That there was collusion between the persecutors of Pastor Clark, Presiding Elder Walker and Bishop Joyce, was shown by the withdrawal of the charges. March 6 the charges were withdrawn and in the text of the document the words "late pastor of the Division Street church," were used. The order of Bishop Joyce taking Pastor Clark out of the pulpit was dated March 8, proving that there was an understanding between the bishop and those who were worrying the Fond du Lac minister.

The withdrawal of the charges has brought matters to a crisis, and Pastor Clark has written an open letter to Messrs. Colman, Griffin, Moore and Shepard, in which, among other things, he says:

> The receipt of the document withdrawing the charges you lately preferred against me is hereby acknowledged. I note there is no confession of your sin, not even an apology for the trouble and extra expense to which you have subjected me. The cruelty of preferring the "trumped-up" charges is now equaled by the cowardice of the act of withdrawal. I had thought you to be better and braver men. It may comfort you to know that even now, probably, I have a much better opinion of you than you can possibly have of yourselves.
>
> Now that the tin sword that has been drawn against me has been replaced in its patent leather scabbard, I am frank to say to you, gentlemen, that had I foreseen all your opposition and all the trouble you have caused me and mine, I should have preached the truth as I understood it just the same. Long ago I determined to do without the friendship of any one who was displeased with me solely because I would not swerve from the path of duty.
>
> You have risked the wrecking of a large church in your foolish attempt to silence the preacher whose occasional advocacy of principles, though dear to Methodism and favorably received by the great body of our local church, were offensive to you. But the right has once more triumphed against supposed might.

The withdrawal of the charges leaves Pastor Clark in a peculiar position. He stands accused of various things which have never been proven. He says he will now force his persecutors to prove everything they have alleged. He does not look to the Methodist church for justice, but will enter the civil courts with a big suit for damages. Whatever may be the result the preacher is sustained by public sentiment, and he will not tolerate the farcical procedure of an ordinary church trial.—Chicago Herald, March 19.

In the year 1891 the legalized liquor traffic gave this country 300,000 criminals, 800,000 paupers and 300,000 idiots.

A bill has been introduced in the Ohio Legislature providing for genuine local option for all parts of the State.

Home and Health.

ENCOURAGE THE SICK.

Of all the hygienic remedies, that of encouragement is the least valued. But after all it is a great factor for health. The "mind cure" people use encouragement for all it is worth, and much of the apparent great results from their line of work comes from the courage inspired by a determined effort to throw off disease and ignore symptoms.

While no seriously ill person can make himself well by thinking nothing is the matter, nevertheless an attitude of courage and victory, a determination not to be crushed by pain and disease, will strengthen and induce health and strength.

We all know how differently disease affects different persons. Take the "grip" that has been so troublesome of late years. One person will be pale with fright, expect to die, and perhaps will die as much of fright as of the disease. The next victim will make light of his pains, laugh at the disease, expect to be well in a day or two, and will be fully recovered while the other is in the last stages of the complaint. In many cases the vitality of the courageous one is no better than that of the victim, and the only difference in his favor is his persistent effort to throw off disease and be cheerful.

We have known many invalids to be worried into their graves by the habit of talking discouragingly before them and telling of all the fatal cases of their disease ever known. We called to see a boy once who had been bitten by a dog—presumably mad. The room was full of women who were telling of the most harrowing cases of hydrophobia they knew of. The boy died in a day or two of fright. The dog was not mad.

Now let all who have care of the sick, preserve an aspect and spirit of courage. Faith in God is still better, but courage and resistance of disease are grand hygienic remedies and good to use in every case.—Emma Woodcock, in the St. Louis Vauguard.

In cases where dandruff, scalp diseases, falling and grayness of the hair appear, do not neglect them, but apply a proper remedy and tonic like Hall's Hair Renewer.

A Matter-of-fact Seed Book.

There is such a great similarity in seed catalogues as a usual thing that it is refreshing as well as beneficial to read one in which plain, unvarnished facts rule. The catalogue issued by J. J. H. Gregory & Son, of Marblehead, Mass., is a matter-of-fact book in every sense of the word and is certain to meet with the highest appreciation from farmers and gardeners who are working for actual results and cannot afford to experiment. There are no highly colored illustrations to mislead, neither is there exaggerated language to deceive. It simply helps the farmer to get the seeds best adapted for his needs and from them derive the best possible results. In a nutshell there is nothing good left out and nothing poor let in. To this method of doing business is no doubt due the increasing popularity of Gregory's seeds and the continual prosperity of that famous old house. Since 1856 they have been studying the wants of farmers and supplying them with just what they wanted. Today it would be difficult to point to a section of the country where Gregory's seeds are not known and grown. They send their catalogues to any one who plants seeds, free of charge.

THE MYSTIC SHRINE

Illustrated.

THE FULL

ILLUSTRATED RITUAL

OF THE

Nobles of the Mystic Shrine

PRICE 15 CENTS, EACH.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

Carrie Orene King

Save the Children

By Purifying Their Blood

Hood's Sarsaparilla Makes Pure Blood, Cures Scrofula, Etc.

"My experience with Hood's Sarsaparilla has been very effective. My little girl, five years old, had for four years a bad skin disease. Her arms and limbs would break out in a mass of sores, discharging yellow matter. She would scratch the eruptions as though it gave relief, and tear open the sores.

Two Bottles of Hood's

Sarsaparilla caused the eruptions to heal and and the scabs pealed off, after which the skin became soft and smooth. As a family medicine we believe Hood's Sarsaparilla has no equal and I recommend it." W. L. King, Bluff Dale, Tex.

HOOD'S Sarsaparilla CURES

Hood's Pills are the best family cathartic, gentle and effective. Try a box. 25 cents.

THE GUIDING HAND;

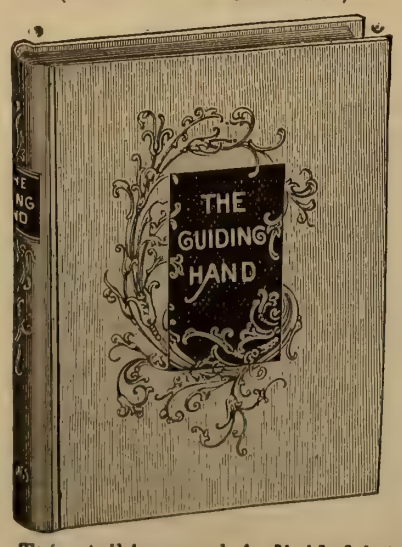
—OR—

PROVIDENTIAL DIRECTION.

—)o(—

Illustrated by authentic instances of Relief and Deliverance in times of Trouble and Perplexity; of Direction through Dreams and Mental Impressions, and of Providential Guidance, resulting in Conversion. Recorded and collected by

H. L. HASTINGS,
(Editor of "The Christian.")



This striking work is divided into three parts as follows:

(1) Providences in Relief and Deliverances. (2) Dreams and Impressions. (3) Conversions.

The "Guiding Hand" contains nearly 400 pages. It is really a handsome book, printed on heavy book paper, from large open type, good for the eyes, and artistically and durably bound in fine cloth, with fancy panels. Price, $1.50.

National Christian Ass'n.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies. A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian churches to disfellowship secret societies. 10cts each.

PROPHECY:

A STUDY.

BY REV. S. F. PORTER,

A Study of Christ's Comings.

Paper Cover, 100 Pages.

Single copies, postpaid..... 25 cents.
Per 100 copies, postpaid..... $20.00.

For sale by the

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST

A Secret Empire;

Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.

By Rev. Richard Horton.

Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.

Price, 60 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chica

A BOOKLET.

107 pages, 5x7 inches.

Paper Cover, Postpaid, 15 Cents

—o:o—

The following addresses form part of the contents of this booklet:

The Martyr's Own Monument, by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association.

Christian Politics, by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure.

The Mysterious Machine: was it Lawnmower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what? by Prof. E. D. Bailey of the Civil-Service Dept. U. S. Government.

This booklet includes other interesting matter connected with the unveiling of the Morgan monument at Batavia, N. Y. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

SEVEN YEARS AMONG THE FREEDMEN.
Revised and Enlarged.

BY MARIA WATERBURY.

Finely Illustrated 196 Pages.....75cts.

The first edition of this book has "gone like hot cakes," and a second edition with more of the same sort has been loudly called for and is now ready for delivery. The press, the pulpit, the educator, the reformer, the masses, have bidden it welcome and Godspeed. We quote a few good words from sundry sources: Earnest Christian: "Publish the book for the good it will do."

Dr. Talmage, in the Christian Herald and Signs of our Times, for February 11th, says: "A helpful little volume, just out, for the workers is, 'Seven Years among the Freedmen,' by Miss M. Waterbury, Polo, Ill.,—a teacher well known to many in Illinois—detailing the quaint and thrilling scenes of her experience—'truth stranger,' oftimes, 'than fiction. One day the chore-man came to Miss M. Waterbury, to be taught a prayer; all the scholars had a prayer to say and he wanted one. John was past middle life and very ignorant. The teacher began the Lord's Prayer, a sentence at a time, explaining as the lesson progressed. 'Thy kingdom come' was all right. 'Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors.' 'What dat mean?' said he. 'That you must forgive everybody, or God will not forgive you.' 'Stop, teacher, can't do dat,' and he went away. After vacation he appeared, saying: 'Now go on wid de prayer. I dun 'orgive him. Old massar once gib me five hundred lashes, and hit me wid a crow bar, an' t' row me out fur dead, and I met him down de street, an' wouldn't speak at him, but to-day I met him an' aid 'How d'ye?' Now go on wid dat prayer'"

Inter Ocean: 'A Splendid Book. Seven Years Among Freedman is a volume of 494 pages by Miss M. Waterbury, of Polo, Ills., who has spent seven years as a teacher among the freedmen in Mississippi and Alabama. It is a series of sketches telling very simply and graphically the life led by Northern teachers in the South. It bears all the evidences of truthfulness and if it fails to impress the reader with the manhood and dignity of the old ruling class of the South, it is perhaps because the whole truth is told. One reading the book will stop to ask, Why not send missionaries to the white people of the South? They seem to need it more than the blacks."

Journal, Freeport, Ills.: "We are indebted to Mrs. Lila L. Buckley, of this city, for a copy of this interesting volume. The efforts made to elevate the freedmen of the South is one of the most important and deserving charities of the present time, far excelling any effort to elevate the heathen of foreign lands, and it should have the aid of all charitable people in this country. ....The proceeds of sales is devoted to the work of elevating the freedmen of the South, and we trust that every one to whom Miss Waterbury applies will purchase a copy of the book, which is in itself fully worth the price. Miss Waterbury's grandfather, Rev. Calvin Waterbury, was the first Presbyterian minister in Freeport, and it was by his efforts that the First Presbyterian church in Freeport was established.

Polo, (Ills.,) Press: "Seven Years Among the Freedmen. Our townswoman Miss Maria Waterbury, the past winter, prepared for publication an account of some of her singular experiences in the "sixties" among the freedmen of Mississippi. Miss Waterbury and Miss Ford, both of this place, did grand work in those years and deserve no small mead of praise for their heroic sacrifices.

National Christian Ass'n.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer. Ennis, Texas.

Sermons of Rev. John McNeill,

12mo. cloth, 416 pages, $1.50.

The fame of this Scottish Spurgeon, as he is very generally called, is becoming as wide-spread as the English tongue. The secret of his power over the masses, has been discussed on both sides of the Atlantic. If one may judge from these printed sermons the secret lies in a homely and pointed putting of the old truths of the Gospel in plain Anglo-saxon. There is evidence of study, but more the study of human nature, and particularly the human heart, than that of books, other than the Book of books—with this volume Mr. McNeill is evidently in love. With unquestioned faith he believes the writen word, and preaches it with an earnestness born of conviction.

The Nonesuch Professor,

In his Meridian Splendor. By William Secker (Puritan). With an introduction by Theo. L. Cuyler, D. D. 16 mo, $1.00.

"It is a mine of sparkling gems."—Presbyterian Observer.

"A sheaf of golden grain, ripened by grace, and sweet with the flavor of rare simplicity and holy wisdom."—N. Y. Observer.

"It is a searching book."—Christian Intelligencer.

"This is a wonderful book. At whatever page you open it, your eye lights upon pithy aphorisms that combine the sententiousness of Benjamin Franklin with the sweet, holy savor of Samuel Rutherford. It contains hundreds of bright seed thoughts."—Rev. T. L. Cuyler, D. D

Talks to Sunday-School Teachers.

By Rev. J. G. Terrill. 12mo, 200 pages, bound in fine cloth.....75

This book is the result of twenty-five years of experience in Sunday-school and treats of: 1. The Sunday-school organization and management. 2. Methods of work. 3. Studies in human nature. 4. Rules of interpretation as applied to the Bible. 5. Illustrative exercises for primary classes and children's meetings. In the style of presentation, subject matter and price of the book, the wants of the officers and teachers of the ordinary Sunday-school are kept in view.

S. S. Times:—A very comprehensive book. N. Y. Independent:—A sensible manual for the average Sunday-school teacher. Evan. Mess.:—We have been very favorably impressed with the book, because it is so intensely practical. The subject is systematically treated, and leaders of teacher's meetings can not do better than adopt it as a text-book and devote half an hour of each session to teaching the theory and practice of teaching as here systematized. Christian at Work:—Any school that will adopt this book generally and carry forward its work or doctrines here laid down will not be long in developing into a model school and reaping the harvest of a rich fruitage. Herald and Presbyter:—These Talks are well attested in their profitableness and excellence. Buffalo Advocate:—A plain, practical, common sense book on a very important subject. The author has had wide experience in this field of work. He knows thoroughly the ground over which he would lead others, and possesses the happy faculty of packing a great deal of valuable information as to matter and manner of teaching into this little hand-book. We commend it to the attention of all Sunday-school workers. Religious Telescope:—We are pleased with the plan and treatment of the subjects throughout, and are sure that the diligent Sunday-school teacher who longs for more thorough equipment, will find in this book a helper of great value. Illustrated Christian Weekly:—The author talks from observation and experience, and talks well.

Sunday School Publications.

The Pearl (Mo.)	Pr. Qr.	3c.	Sunshine (Mo.)	Pr. Qr.	3 c.
The Lily	" "	3 "	Pure Words	" "	3 "
Light & L	Scholar's Qrly.	3 "	Light & L	Inf Cl. wk.	4 "
" "	Teacher's "	5 "	" "	Lesson Leaf "	1½ "
Golden Treasures		1 "	L. & L. Primary	Qly	4 "

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTIONS.

The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, & Sunshine, each Pr. Yr.	25c	Teacher's Quarterly Pr. Yr.	25c
The four to one address "	75c	Scholar's " "	20c
		L. & L. Infant Class, weekly,	25c

Struck by Lightning.

A true and thrilling narrative of one who was struck by lightning; with incidents, experiences and anecdotes for old and young. By Rev. E. Owen.

With Striking Illustrations.

Beautifully bound in cloth, with title stamped in gold on side and back.....50c.
Paper cover.....30c.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

Plan for Evading the Judgment—Request to be Whipped to Death—Learning to Swear—Alarmed by a Rattlesnake—Fall from a Building—Struck by Lightning—Converted—Sanctified—Called to Preach—First Effort—Casting out a Devil—Protracted Meeting on "Satan's Premises"—First Circuit—Revival in "Haying"—S. Hill Revival—Sisters' Quarrel Settled—Accused of Fortune-Telling—Souls Saved—Dreams—Too near Hell to Spend Time with—A Sceptic Awakened—Public Talk with a Universalist—A Chair Thrown at the Minister—Revival in Berlin—A Methodist Church of Baptist Converts—A Noisy Stage Passenger Quieted—Preaching on the Deck of a Steamboat—A Pleasure Trip—Two Overboard—Revival by Torch-light—A Fiddler Saved—A Slanderer Humbled—Bar-room Discussion—Saved by Expulsion from the Church—Dancing with the Devil—Answering a Fool According to his Folly—Raps for Spirit Rappings—Short Debate with a Restorationist—"Open Rebuke"—An Unspeakable Blessing.

COMMENDATIONS.

American Wesleyan: "Thrilling as a romance, and true to the last syllable. No private library or Sunday-school should be without a copy."

Phonographic Monthly, N. Y.: "Calculated to throw light into the dark places of orthodoxy."

Earnest Christian: "A true narrative of instructive events."

Lay Evangelist: "Quite entertaining and neatly gotten up."

Free Methodist: "Meeting with universal favor. Intensely interesting. We have read, laughed and cried, and shall try it again."

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

FARM NOTES.

State aid to localities for any purpose is of course open to grave objections. It should be seldom vouchsafed, and never except in exigent cases; but, after years of agitation, good roads in New York have slim prospects save as the State assists them. Massachusetts has found that State aid and supervision are the only feasible methods. New York will find the same, unless present signs are defective. Certainly if time be a factor in the problem—if good roads are soon to be begun—State aid must be given. While the press has been almost a unit in their behalf, the highest economic authorities have approved them, and the splendid highways of the Old World have been constant object-lessons to the New, comparatively little has here been accomplished. There has been much agitation, with small results. The argument is concluded. Action should ensue; and under the circumstances—the need of prompt, comprehensive, and intelligent action—the proposition for State aid is entitled to consideration.—Harper's Weekly.

Some years ago Mr. E. S. Wood, North Pomfret, Vt., made 400 pounds of butter in a season from four cows, selling the product in the fall for $100, and felt that it was a grand success. This was before Jersey cows and dairy institutes were much known. In more recent years his dairy has produced 300 pounds per cow on the whole herd, including heifers, and one year reached 349½ pounds.

To graft or bud, only young, vigorous stocks should be used. Many trees are injured by injudicious pruning. Cut off decayed and diseased branches, and rub off superfluous buds when they appear. This is more advisable than cutting away large, vigorous branches, which often causes decay and destruction.

More determined efforts have been made in recent years to give the peach orchards higher cultivation, because in many localities they were literally dying out. The new culture guards them from disease, and gives special attention to fertilizing.

Pear trees must have annual pruning. It is a better practice than thinning the fruit. Cut out small branches and not large limbs, and cut back both side and top shoots. The latter part of February is a good time to prune.—Selected.

THE OBJECTS, WORK AND SECRET RITUAL of "The Nobles of the Mystic Shrine" have just been issued in a revised and enlarged edition. Price, in paper, 25 cents. This new order of Freemasonry, now so popular in this country as the basis of social hilarity among members of the higher degrees, claims to have originated in Arabia, and was revived in Egypt, and brought to America from France. It is interlarded with Mohammedan terms and worship; and its original objects as defined in its ritual, was inquisitorial and barbarous. Its prayers are addressed to "Allah," instead of the G. A. O. T. U., and it is quite as un-Christian as the devotees of the blue lodge would have it. The abridged edition is still sold for 15 cents. Address the National Christian Association, 221 West Madison street, Chicago.

THE
Folly, Expense & Danger
OF
SECRET SOCIETIES.
BY
CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.
(President Wheaton College.)

5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago

For Colds,
Coughs,
Croup, Influenza, and Bronchitis, use
AYER'S
CHERRY PECTORAL
the best of all anodyne
expectorants.
Prompt to act,
Sure to Cure

AMERICAN HANDBOOK
AND
CITIZEN MANUAL.
BY
MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
WM. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Chic

THE TWO-FOLD GIFT
of the Holy Ghost,
BY REV. THOS. K. DOTY,
Author of Lessons in Holiness.

240 pp. Price postpaid.....65cts.

The design of this book is, in plain language, to designate the place of the Holy Ghost in both the Godhead and the work of Salvation. Especially to show that Entire Santification is wrought in the heart by the Baptism of Holy Ghost; and that the Epoch of the Baptism is identical with that of his Advent in his Indwelling Personalty. The agency of the Holy Ghost in the Life, and in carrying on the work of the Gospel, is given particular attention.

TITLES TO THE CHAPTERS:

1. A Summary. 2. The Holy Ghost a Person. 3. The New Testament Designating Terms. 4. The Scriptural View. 5. The Holy Ghost is God. 6. Blasphemy Against the Holy Ghost. 7. The Trinity of God. 8. The Apostolic Benediction. 9. The Worship of the Holy Ghost. 10. The Dispensations. 11. The First Dispensation. 12. The Second Dispensation. 13. Holiness—Sinning. 14. "The Sin of the World." 15. Final Deliverance from Sin. 16. The Day of the Holy Ghost. 17. Jesus and the Holy Ghost. 18 and 19. The Epoch of the Holy Ghost. 20. The Anointing. 21. The Baptism of the Holy Ghost. 22. The Baptism of Fire. 23. The Two-Fold Experiences of the Holy Ghost. 24. Fellowship of the Holy Ghost. 25. "In the Spirit." 26. Several Scriptural Terms Considered. 27. Pentecost. 28. Inspiration—Prophecy. 29. Spiritual Leading and Teaching. 30. The Gifts of the Spirit. 31. "Praying in the Holy Ghost." 31 and 32. Power.

This book is creating quite a stir in religious circles. The original, bold and convincing manner of presenting the subject, has forced the press to comment upon the book, either adversely or favorably, generally the latter. We give a few OPINIONS:

Bible Standard and Gospel Record: "This book is very compact, scarcely a superfluous sentence in the whole book. The manner of treating the questions involved is both clear and scriptural. .....The effect of the book will be to deepen thought and increase knowledge and, in the end, deepen piety."

Evangelical Messenger: "Brother Thomas K. Doty has written a book which we take pleasure in commending to all devout readers who enjoy all spiritual things. The subject is so important, and the treatment of it so timely, that we may be pardoned for calling attention to it thus prominently. We, at least have been greatly interested, and gratefully acknowledge that we have also been decidedly profited by perusing it .....Brother Doty writes with an incisive pen, in a clear, lucid style, often epigrammatical and with great force. He is evidently deeply impressed with the truth of what he writes and demands the respect even where he does not gain the intellectual assent of his readers. Withal the book is written in a kindly, candid spirit, rather didactic than polermical, and is calculated to help the reader and not to rouse his opposition, as is the case with so many books which have been written upon this and kindred subjects. The theological views expressed are orthodox, and in some cases the argument is fresh in matter, and certainly fresh in form throughout."

Christian Cynosure: "His book is one of the most excellent, instructive and practical of any that have come to our knowledge. The exposition of the Scriptures concerning the personality and work of the Spirit is very clear, able and comforting. There is much dogmatising on these topics by Christians who never fully felt the power of the Spirit's work, or are not living in gracious fellowship with him. To all such and to those who have not yet learned what gifts the Lord is waiting to bestow on his people we heartily commend the careful reading of this volume."

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

RECENT PUBLICATIONS
OF
FLEMING H. REVELL.

Modern Ideas of Evolution.

As related to Revelation and Science. By Sir William Dawson, L. L. D., F. R. S., etc. 12 mo, cloth, $1.50.

In popular style, a testing by scientific facts and principles, the validity of that multiform and brilliant philosophy of the universe, which has taken so deep a hold of the science and literature of our times.

The New World of Central Africa

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness; with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. Maps, Portraits and numerous engravings. 537 pages, 12 mo, $2.00.

This comprehensive volume is as fascinating as the most entertaining romance. Its vivid portrayal of the dark side of African history makes one's blood tingle, while its earnest appeals create an inspiring sympathy with the effort to evangelize its teeming millions.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

Matthew Henry's Commentary.

An entirely new large type edition of this inimitable Commentary, in six large 8vo. volumes, fine cloth, $15.00; or, in half Morocco, $18.00.

"Biblical students who are most familiar with the very best commentaries of this generation are most able to appreciate the unfading freshness, the clear analysis, the spiritual force, the quaint humor, and the evangelical richness of Matthew Henry's Exposition of the Old and New Testaments."—New York Observer

"First among the mighty for general usefulness we are bound to mention the man whose name is a household word—MATTHEW HENRY. He is the most pious and pithy, sound and sensible, suggestive and sober, terse and trust worthy."—Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

The Present Tenses of the Blessed Life.

By Rev. F. B. Meyer. 32 mo, 50 cents.

"It is sufficient to say its one direct aim is the present enjoyment of the precious promises. Mr. Meyer's earnest and persuasive teaching in this direction is admirably condensed in these brief chapters."

BY THE SAME AUTHOR:

Christian Living. Cloth, 32 mo, 50 cents.

"A more suggestive and helpful volume it would not be easy to name."—Christian Leader.

The Shepherd Psalm. Cloth, 32 mo, 50c.

"This is a gem"—Illustrated Christian Weekly

"It is a little book which hundreds of devout hearts will enjoy,"—Congregationalist.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

OTHER WORKS BY C. H. SPURGEON:

Feathers for Arrows; Or, Illustrations for Teachers and Preachers. 12 mo, $1.

"This work covers a wide range of subjects. The metaphors are always striking and frequently brilliant, while the truths that they illustrate are such as have always formed the staple of Mr. Spurgeon's discourses. A choicer collection of illustrations we do not know."—Freeman.

Spurgeon's Gems. Being a selection of brilliants from his discourses. 12 mo, $1.

The Golden Alphabet. Being a Devotional Commentary on the One Hundred and Nineteenth Psalm. 12 mo, $1.00.

"Mr. Spurgeon brings out the truths and beauties of this wonderful Psalm so as to set a rich feast before the reader. As a practical commentator on the Psalms, Spurgeon has no equal."—Presbyterian Banner.

"This commentary is written in quite the happiest vein of its popular author, and the devotional spirit throughout is intense and elevating."—Occident.

Gleanings Among the Sheaves. 18 mo, 60c.

All of Grace. An earnest word with those seeking the way of life. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

According to Promise; Or, the Lord's Dealings with His chosen People. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Christmas Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve New Year Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth. 50 cents.

"Preachers may get aid in preparing Easter or funeral sermons from this volume. Good to present to those who have lost loved ones."—National Baptist.

Twelve Striking Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Soul-Winning Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Selected by Mr. Spurgeon as the twelve sermons under which there has been the most marked and permanent success.

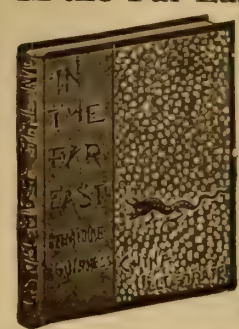
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

The New World of Central Africa.

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness, with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. 12mo., 530 pages with maps, portraits and numerous illustrations.$2.00

"A conscientious piece of work, and gives a very clear account of what has been done by the Protestant missions to evangelize the barbarous races of Central Africa. • • • He who wants to know what missionary effort means in these days may well learn from this volume. • • • The reader who goes carefully through will have a good bird's eye view of recent events in Africa, with all the results of modern travel. • • The work contains solid information of use to all who are interested in the future of this wonderful country. The many illustrations throw light upon savage customs and costumes."—Graphic.

In the Far East.



Letters from China by Geraldine Guinness, edited by her sister, with introduction by Rev. J. Hudson Taylor. Very fully illustrated. Quarto cloth, ...$1.50

This book was scarcely written—it was lived; for the breath of life is in it from cover to cover. • • • We have never read so wonderful an account of successful missionary effort.—Presbyterian

We easily understand how this edition is the fifteenth thousand. It is a very remarkable book.—The Golden Rule.

Frances Ridley Havergall's Poems.

Author's edition complete. The only unabridged authorized edition published in America.

1. 12mo., 880 pages, cloth, beveled....2.00
2. Beveled boards, full gilt.....2.50
3. Half white vellum, gilt top, uncut edges, ...2.50
4. French morocco padded, roll red under gold edges...4.00
5. Persian calf, padded and embossed, gilt roll and r. g. 5.00
6. Crushed levant, elegant.....6.00
7. Full German calf, padded, elegant, gilt, rd. cors.....7.50

Miss Havergall stands without peer in the English language in the department of religious poetry.

"The book in paper and binding is all that could be desired."—Publishers' Weekly.

Small Books by Miss Havergall.

Bound in elegant illuminated board covers.

Kept for the Master's Use. $0

My King; Daily Thoughts for the King's Children.....

Works of Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

Sermon Notes. Covering all the Bible from Genesis to Revelation. 4 vols.....4.00
Feathers for Arrows. A volume of Choice Extracts, 12mo., cloth.....1.00
Twelve Striking Sermons..... 50
Twelve Soul Winning Sermons, ... 50
Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection 50
Twelve New Year Sermons..... 50
Twelve Christmas Sermons..... 50

Notes by C. H. M.

On Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy.

Mr. D. L. Moody says of these books: "They have been to me a very key to the Scriptures."

Deuteronomy is issued in two volumes, the others complete in one volume each.

Separate volumes may be had if desired.

The complete set in six volumes, covering over 2,300 pages, is offered at the reduced price of 75c per vol. or $4.50 per set

A. L. O. E. Intermediate Library.

Selected from the numerous productions of this world-renowned writer as being those of rare merit. 12 vols., 12mo., cloth elegant, each 75c; set.....9.00

An Eden in England.	Life in Eagle's Nest.
Ned Franks.	White Bear's Den.
Sheer Off.	Fairy Spider's Web.
Braid of Chords.	Lake in the Woods.
Silver Keys.	Seven Perils Passed.
Grace Vernon.	Hartley Brothers.

The Jessica Series. By Hesba Stretton. 6 vols., handsome bindings, cloth 50c each, or per set 2.10

Jessica's First Prayer.	Friends till Death.
No Place Like Home.	A Miserable Christmas
Under the Old Roof.	A Night and a Day.

A. L. O. E. Junior Library. Adapted to the young folks. 7 vols., 12mo., cloth, each 60c; the set.....4 20

Claremont Tales.	A Wreath of Smoke.
Christian Conquests.	Pomegranates from
Tales Illustrative of Parables.	Punjab.
	Little Bullets from
The Battle of Life.	Batala.

The Hesba Stretton Series. 8 vols., elegant cloth bound, per set.....4.80

Cassy.	King's Servant.
Lost Gip.	Alone in London.
Max Kromer.	Little Meg's Children
Storm of Life	Crew of the Dolphin.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Royal Baking Powder

Absolutely Pure

A cream of tartar baking powder. Highest of all in leavening strength. — Latest United States Government Food Report.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO.,
106 Wall St., N. Y.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

CHICAGO.

Sixty-five veterinary surgeons, graduates of the Chicago Veterinary College, received their diplomas at the Grand Opera House.

With balls and entertainments for charitable purposes Chicago Hebrews ushered in the Jewish Purim festival.

Five hundred brickmakers at Blue Island are out on a strike over a dispute regarding the wage schedule.

Architects Jenney and Morey warn the county board that the county building must be made safer without delay.

Fire in the South Evanston public school caused a panic among the children and several were seriously injured.

In the United States court Leroy Harris, the money order forger, was sentenced to five years' imprisonment at hard labor.

M. B. Curtis intends to return to the stage. He denies having confessed to the murder of Officer Grant, or to giving bribes.

Fifteen hundred men employed by the Crane Company declined to join the American Federation of Labor in a body.

COUNTRY.

Bimetallists in conference at Des Moines decided to support only free coinage candidates for Congress.

Republicans of New York have passed the blanket ballot bill, which is calculated to disfranchise Democratic voters.

Republicans in the Iowa senate hurried the mulct tax liquor bill through and it is ready for the governor's signature.

Twelve hundred delegates are expected to attend the tenth convention of the Central Illinois Teachers' Association at Normal.

Employers of the Union Pacific are disappointed with the conference and the result may be a general strike.

Probably the largest wheat deal of the northwest, involving 3,250,000 bushels, has been closed at Minneapolis.

Concessions have been made by the railroads which will tend to restore to Buffalo her former great grain trade.

Thomas P. Tuite, the absconding city treasurer of Detroit, has been captured in New York after two years' pursuit.

White Caps at Fayette, Mo., terribly whipped a Negro woman and order edher to leave the county under pain of death.

Supreme President Traynor, of the American Protective Association, urges members of the order to attend caucuses.

Secretary Gresham charges Great Britain with dereliction in presenting legislation concerning the Behring Sea dispute.

Chicago merchants say they can successfully compete with New York in furnishing Indian supplies for the government.

It is considered probable that government fish commissioners will establish a big hatchery at Spring Lake, Ill.

Recent severe snow-storms and cold weather have been very destructive to live stock in the Northwest, and much suffering among the Indians is also reported. Deep snow greatly retarded traffic.

According to Bradstreet's the recent spring-like weather caused a general revival of business at all trade centers.

A natural gas explosion destroyed Mr. L. Harmon's home at Hartford City, Ind. Its seven occupants were injured.

Indianapolis, Richmond, Kokomo, and other Indiana cities are said to have combined to shut out Chicago dressed beef.

Dr. J. A. Houser, of Indianapolis, claims to have arranged with ex-Queen Liliuokalani, of Hawaii, for a lecturing tour of the United States.

Alabama Negroes favor the emigration of their race to Liberia, but think the white people should foot the bills.

Louis Kanitz was elected commander of the Michigan department, G. A. R. Lochren's pension policy was not condemned.

Much sickness is reported among Hurley, Wis., miners, whose constitutions have been greatly weakened by months of privation.

Milwaukee letter carriers will demand pay of Uncle Sam for overtime since the passage of the eight-hour law in 1888.

Eastern lines have entered into a restriction of traffic agreement similar to the one in effect early in 1893.

A protest against the silver seigniorage bill was adopted by the New York bankers, who subscribed to the bond issue.

Forty men were driven to sea on floating ice at St. John's, N. F., and it is feared they have perished.

Litigation involving ownership of 12,800,000 acres of land in New Mexico and Arizona has been commenced at Santa Fe.

It is considered probable that the street car strike in Toledo, Ohio, will be settled by a board of arbitration.

Reports from Wyoming indicate that the blizzard lasting seventy hours has caused great loss of live stock on the ranges.

It is feared by growers that the present cold weather has destroyed all chances for a fruit crop in Illinois this year.

Lillian Willis, aged 15, of Homer, Ga., who killed her father to save her mother's life, has been acquitted by the jury.

Major Randle, of Dallas, Texas, after expending $120,000 to avoid punishment for a murder, was sentenced to twenty years.

FOREIGN.

Queen Victoria and the Prince of Wales have consented to the marriage of Princess Maud to Premier Rosebery.

Several workmen engaged in removing dynamite from the wreck of the Cabo Machiaco at Santander were killed.

Troops had to be called to suppress the citizens at Santander, who were excited over the dynamite explosion.

In a speech at Edinburgh, Sir Joseph Chamberlain said Gladstone had left Premier Rosebery a heritage of woe.

By the explosion of a bomb in the church of Gallieu, France, twenty persons were injured, three of whom may die.

Ex-Premier Gladstone visited a London oculist, and after an examination of his eyes decided to submit to an operation.

London papers profess to be much mystified by Cleveland's action in establishing a naval station at Honolulu.

M. Witte, Russian minister of finance, believes his country has secured the profitable end of the treaty with Germany.

Emperor William is credited with being heartily in favor of the movement to reduce military burdens in European countries.

Soldiers and foreign war-ships have left Rio de Janeiro and all traces of the recent warfare are disappearing.

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances of money to the Cynosure from March 19 to 24.

J A Jarvis, I Ganoung, Miss M Good, A M Paull, J M Chambers, Rev J B Galloway, W Amidon, Rev C H Cook, J Crawford, H McCausland, W O Shaw, A J Millard, Mrs M Bryan, J H Wilson, S L Fay, J E Parker, Mrs K I Moore, R W Kirkwood, W N Evans, J Cation, J C Berg, D Horning, N Daniells, Rev W O Dinius. A Raymond.

Pale Faces

or Loss of Flesh, or a Hacking Cough, reveal a condition; not a theory. Something is wrong. Make it right with the Cream of Cod-liver Oil, which restores a healthy color, builds up flesh, stops coughing and gives strength. Physicians, the world over, endorse it.

Scott's Emulsion

Don't be deceived by Substitutes!

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All Druggists.

JONATHAN BLANCHARD'S

—]-oo-[—

SERMONS AND ADDRESSES.

Select discourses of the late editor of the Cynosure and leader in our reform. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of

LIVING REFORM.

Secret Societies,
The Sabbath,
Temperance,
National Reform,
Christian Education,
Christian Socialism,
The Bible, Etc., Etc.

A BOOK EVERYBODY SHOULD READ

12mo. Fine Photogravure Portrait.
Price, 75 Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Secrecy vs. the Family, State and CHURCH. By Rev. M. S. Dury. The antagonism of organized secrecy to the welfare of the family, state and church, is clearly shown. 10cts each.

There is no reason why children should be allowed to suffer from loathsome scrofulous sores and glandular swellings when such a pleasant, effective, and economical medicine as Ayer's Sarsaparilla may be procured of the nearest druggist. Be sure you get Ayer's.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2	56⅝@	56⅝
Winter No. 2	56 @	56½
Corn—No. 2	35¾@	36
Oats—No. 2	30¼@	32
Rye—No. 2	46½@	48½
Bran per ton	13 00 @	13 25
Hay—Timothy	8 00 @	10 50
Butter, medium to best	12 @	22
Cheese	08 @	12½
Beans	1 10 @	1 55
Eggs, fresh	10	10¼
Seeds—Timothy (100 lbs)	4 35	4 20
Flax	1 37	1 38
Clover (100 lbs.)	9 00	9 30
Broom corn (per ton)	30 00 @	70 00
Potatoes, (old, bu.)	25 @	54
Hides—Green to dry flint	02½@	06¼
Lumber—Common	@	15 50
Wool (unwashed)	12	26
Cattle—Choice to extra	3 60 @	4 20
Common to good	3 00 @	3 40
Hogs	4 25 @	4 75
Sheep	2 40 @	4 50

NEW YORK.

Wheat No. 2	60⅛@	62⅛
Corn No 2	46 @	47
Oats	35½@	38
Rye	48 @	57
Eggs, Western fresh	12	12
Butter	12 @	22½
Wool	15 @	26

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle	1 25 @	4 25
Hogs	4 30 @	4 45
Sheep	steady

The Very Best!

1894—LIGHT and LIFE LESSONS—1894
(INTERNATIONAL)

In book form, containing all the lessons for the entire year, with four large pages of instructions and comments on each lesson, comments being adapted to the Advanced, Intermediate, and Primary classes; Black Board Exercises, Maps, Bible Dictionary, and Class Registers beside other valuable helps. 225 Pages.

Paper covers, postpaid..... .35
Clubs of five or more, postpaid..... .30
Cloth covers, postpaid..... .50
Clubs of five or more, postpaid..... .40

Read what is said about it:

"The classification of each of these fifty-two Lessons is excellent. The choicest of Biblical literature has been drawn upon for material to make it one of the very best lesson expositors extant, and in this respect its compilers have achieved flattering success. Its cheapness and its merits entitle it to a general acceptance by Sunday-school workers."—CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE.

"The book will prove a great convenience and a blessing."—EARNEST CHRISTIAN.

"This is a very complete and valuable guide to the Sunday school teacher for the International Lessons of 1894."—METHODIST RECORDER.

"This is the best thing by way of S. S. supplies I have ever seen."—W. W. HULET.

"It is a marvel of neatness and cheapness."—T. C. GIVENS.

"I am highly pleased with it."—JAMES I. COUNCIL.

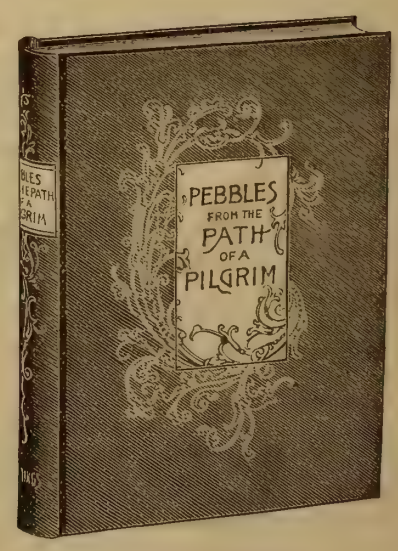
"We like it exceedingly well and presume the plan will be continued in the future; if so you may count on us to subscribe for it."—VICTOR CHARROIN.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim.

—BY—

MRS. H. L. HASTINGS.



This remarkable collection of stories from the eventful life of a Green Mountain girl has been pronounced "more fascinating than any romance." A member of Congress writes: "'Pebbles' has been read by me with great interest. The introductory chapter has followed me into dreams. My copy is read to pieces by the family, and borrowed to death by the neighbors." An editor says: "Surely the faith that 'obtained promises, wrought righteousness, and stopped the mouth of lions,' must have been given in large measure to the writer of this truly remarkable book.... No family library should be without it." "'Pebbles,'" says the Christian Cynosure, "is such a book as Christian parents are always glad to put on their center-tables."

"Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim" is a large and beautiful book of over 300 pages, printed on heavy book paper, from clear open type, and is profusely illustrated. It is artistically bound in handsome cloth, with fancy panels, and specially attractive side and back cover designs. Price, $1.50.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp.

LORD & THOMAS,
NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING
45 RANDOLPH STREET.
CHICAGO.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVI., No. 30. CHICAGO, THURSDAY, APRIL 5, 1894. WHOLE No. 1,249.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞ No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid. ☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill. as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
About Knight Templarism..... 3
"Masonic Baptism"..... 8
Proposed Extermination of Anarchy..... 8
Some Lodge Defenders.. 9
A Strike Epidemic..... 9
CONTRIBUTIONS:
Lodges and Churches.... 1
Loyalty to Christ 2
Disagreement with God. 2
Bible Distribution in Mexico. (Continued)... 3
The Devil's Pack (Poetry) 10
God's Eternal Years (Poetry) 11
The Murderous Saloon..11
Prohibition and the Lodge 11
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 4
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4
Wisconsin Convention.... 5
REFORM NEWS:
From the New England Secretary; The Eastern Agent in Pennsylvania 5
CORRESPONDENCE:
Friends of Anti-secrecy in Kansas; Pen-Sketches of Freemasons 5,6
OBITUARY..... 7
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
N. C. A..... 7
THE HOME.....10
TEMPERANCE.....11
BIBLE LESSON 12
LITERATURE 12
RELIGIOUS NEWS.....12
HOME AND HEALTH.....14
FARM NOTES 15
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....16

Assistant-Secretary of the Interior Renynolds has recently made public a decision that will admit to the rolls of the Pension office the names of a large number of insane, idiotic, and permanently helpless children of deceased soldiers. Under the old law pensions for these unfortunates ceased when the children reached the age of sixteen years. The secretary holds that by the act of June 27, 1890, these dependent persons were restored to the list of pensioners during life or while their disability continues. This decision is considered one of the most important made by the present administration.

The "Sunset Club" is composed of some of the most distinguished business and professional men of Chicago, who meet semi-monthly for a dinner that is followed by brief talks upon some subject previously announced. These discussions are reported in full, printed, and at the end of the year are bound in a substantial manner for reference. On the evening of April 12th, the topic for debate, as announced, will be "Secret Societies and Politics." Pres. Chas. A. Blanchard has been invited to open the discussion in opposition to secret political organizations, and will be supported by several gentlemen. The importance of this movement is found in the fact that it gives our anti-secrecy reform an open platform, and will serve to call to it the attention of prominent educated and public men. Melville E. Stone, head of the Associated Press, is one of the Executive Committee having the meeting in charge. Due notice of the proceedings will appear in the Cynosure.

A new organization—the Illinois Industrial Association of Chicago—has for its object the harboring of convicts discharged from imprisonment, and the reforming of them into industrious, useful citizens. Rev. A. C. Dodds, who fifteen years ago was himself reformed by Ben Hogan, the converted pugilist, has been doing this charitable work on his own account, fitting up a workshop and providing employment for convicts. By his efforts, he claims, three hundred have been already reformed and become reputable persons, earning honest livelihoods in various capacities and filling responsible positions. To enlarge this commendable work is the purpose of those who are now associated with Mr. Dodds in this new enterprise.

Freemasonry, it is reported with the semblance of truth, has invaded the city of Rome, the home of the Pope, notwithstanding his recent fulminations against the Christless fraternity, and that, too, aided and abetted by the Italian government. The place selected for the Grand Lodge is the first floor of the celebrated Borghese palace, one of the most magnificent in the "Eternal City." The portico of its inner court contains ninety-six granite columns, and the collection of paintings within its walls is remarkably fine. What gives this Masonic movement especial interest is the fact that this palace formerly belonged to the papal possessions. The Pope, it is stated, has despatched to the Powers a note strongly protesting against its occupation by the Masons. But Masonry is now the ruling power in Italy.

The respite granted to Eugene P. Prendergast, the slayer of Carter H. Harrison, staying his execution for that crime until to-morrow, with the hope of being able to prove his insanity in a trial for that infirmity, has had the effect of making his violence of temper and general corruption of heart more manifest. In the jail he has had to be immured for days in a dungeon-cell as a punishment for a vindictive assault upon a keeper and his general abuse of those about him. General opinion opposes the idea of his insanity. On this subject the Chicago Herald thus pithily expresses itself: "Prendergast has not become insane since his conviction. His affected airs and antics are of the same kind that were witnessed at the trial and before. He was sane when he murdered Carter H. Harrison. He was sane when in jail before his trial. He was sane when he was tried, convicted and sentenced to be hanged. He was sane at the hour appointed for his execution. He is sane now."

Last week President Cleveland vetoed the "Bland Seigniorage bill," calling for the coinage of the surplus silver in the United States Treasury, as heretofore described in these columns. The bill had passed both houses of Congress with considerable favor in each. Substantially the President vetoes the bill, first, because it is loosely framed and uncertain in meaning; and, second, because it provides for a further infusion of silver into the currency without providing for a corresponding increase in the amount of gold reserve. This second objection applies both to the coining of seigniorage provided for in the first section and to the coining of the remaining silver and the substitution of silver certificates for Sherman notes. The proposed substitution, in the President's opinion, would lead to the direct presentation of Sherman notes for redemption in gold and the consequent depletion of the gold reserve, for the replenishment of which there is no provision. The veto will be a disappointment to many who saw in the proposed law a practical relief from the present scarcity of ready money, and hence a factor in restoring commercial confidence.

Cornell College students who refused to testify in the investigation of the recent fatal outrage in that institution, are to be dealt with summarily. Taylor, the sophomore who withheld his evidence in the case, was imprisoned by Judge Forbes, of the State Supreme court. An effort was made to secure a habeas corpus for his release by another judge. Judge Forbes resented this movement. After ordering a certified copy of the testimony taken by the grand jury in the case, he said: "I will then see what right another judge has to interfere with the business of this court. I am determined to see that there is no miscarriage of justice in this case, and do not propose to be interfered with in the discharge of my duty. It is your duty, Mr. District Attorney, to arrest these men if the evidence warrants it. This court has been trifled with long enough. If the witnesses refuse to testify before me, and we have jails enough in Tompkins county in which to confine them, and they continue to refuse to open their mouths, we will send them to prison and keep them there until they will testify." The grand jury is to reassemble April 21, when new developments are expected.

It is estimated by an expert at San Francisco, Cal., who has made a special study of the subject, that the cost to our government for deporting the 1,500 Chinese who have been sent back to their own country under the provisions of the Geary Exclusion act, is $600 each, or about $90,000. On the other hand, it is well understood that the cost of smuggling a native of China into the United States from Hong Kong, via British Columbia, does not exceed $300. It is the belief in California that there is something radically defective in our system of procedure for deporting the Chinese, which only needs proper investigation to disclose it. Complaint is made that many coolies whom the Federal courts order to be returned to China are allowed to remained here, and, also, that the steamship companies engaged in smuggling Chinese into this country are not brought to justice. The fact is that the law is at variance with the provisions of our treaty with China and with the liberal principles upon which our government is founded. This is manifest in the very exclusive character of the law, since we have made it applicable to the people of one foreign nation, and to no other on the globe. If it could be made universal in its operation for ten years, shutting out all dangerous and undesirable immigrants, it would be less objectionable, and our nation would be the better for it.

LODGES AND CHURCHES.

"The New Era" by Dr. Josiah Strong, author of "Our Country" and General Secretary of the Evangelical Alliance for the United States, contains a chapter on "Two Fundamental Laws." In connection with the second law, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," the author says: "Again this failure of the church to perceive that it is an essential part of her mission to bring society under the second great law of Christ has naturally resulted in an organization of society which is not Christian.

"Christ's fundamental law of society, as we have seen, is that of love, fraternity. That this is not the basis of society, even in the so-called Christian countries, is too obvious to require proof.

'For a' that and a' that,
It's coming yet for a' that;
That man to man the wide world o'er,
Shall brithers be for a' that.'

"An evidence that this brotherhood is coming, though not yet come, is found in the fact that man are seeking it. The Masonic order, the Odd-fellows and the thousand other brotherhoods for insurance, industrial advantage and the like, are attempts to supply what the organization of society does not afford. In these, men are blindly feeling after that which Christ sought to establish when he laid down his second law, viz., a real brotherhood of man, based, not as these organizations are—on self interest—but on love."

Dr. Strong recognizes that this search is conducted "blindly," that its motive is not love, and that it is not inspired by a desire to act the brother's part toward others. He plainly asserts that these organizations, ostensibly fraternal, are yet based, not on "love," but on "self-interest."

Knowing which road has always been broad and which narrow, and knowing which controls the greater number—"love" or "self-interest," real or imagined, we need feel no surprise mingled with our sadness when we read the following foot-note to the above extract:

For the following statistics of lodges as compared with churches in various cities I am indebted to Dr. Graham Taylor. They were compiled from city directories:

	Population	Churches	Lodges
Buffalo, 1888-9	240,000	144	218
New Orleans, 1888-9	216,090	178	270
Washington, 1888-9	203,459	181	316
St. Louis, 1888-9	450,000	220	729
Worcester, 1888-9	85,000	54	88
Boston, 1890	448,477	243	599
Brooklyn, 1890	853,945	355	695
Chicago, 1890	1,099,850	384	1,088

Let us rejoice that this book will go to hundreds of intelligent readers whom ordinary anti-secrecy literature cannot reach. For we may apply here what the author himself says on another page: "In like manner temperance books and periodicals are bought only by those already interested. The indifferent, whom we wish to influence, are precisely the ones who will not buy. We print tons of truth every week; enough to effect a dozen reforms in a twelvemonth, if it were only read and pondered by the right persons. The difficulty is that, for the most part, only those who already believe it read it or know anything about it." Graphite.

LOYALTY TO CHRIST.

BY REV. P. B. WILLIAMS.

Under the above caption I desire to present a few thoughts. If ever there was a time when moral heroes were needed it is now. There is so much vascilation, so much of the policy spirit. Men are looking more at the expediency of the matter than its principle; are governed more, even, by feeling than they are by principle.

Now, I would not give a fig for a religion that had no feeling about it, for it is essential to our happiness that we feel rightly. Yet I would not be governed by feeling in religion; feelings are as variable as mercury, but principles are as steady as the fixed stars. Governed by feeling we will be a Christian off and on; governed by principle, we shall have the blessed assurance all the time. The Word of the Lord should always settle matters for us; and yet many will take the word of man in preference.

"For there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek, for the same Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon him. For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved." Yet how many will go to a man for pardon and the evidence! How many, instead of coming directly to Christ for pardon and its evidence, go to men and let them decide the matter by a vote, or set about reading whole volumes, and compare their lives therewith, to see if they are converted. Oh, for loyalty to Jesus!

Again, many will be moved quicker by reference to their dead friends than by reference to Jesus Christ. Such persons should go in their minds by faith, and stand near the cross at Calvary, and hear the blood-drops at their feet, hear the groans and witness the agony and dying throes of Jesus; then look up into his blessed face, behold his sorrows, and then vow eternal loyalty to him.

The common heathen, as well as many members of the secret lodge system, shame many of the devotees of Christianity by their loyalty to the false religion. They seemingly never weary in their devotion to Baal. The evil influence of these orders is manifest everywhere. Some of the very best men, who would themselves be ashamed were they found in the lodge, nevertheless fear them, and are consequently quiet on the subject.

Last Sabbath, when I announced publicly that on the next Sunday I would speak on the subject of secret societies, you could see the old deacons get their heads together, consulting to know whether it was best to discuss that question. At Oak Ridge Presbyterian church, at the close of my services, they came around, quizzing me to know how I intended to speak on the subject. I told them to come and hear me. The appointment remains, and I shall fill it if the Lord wills. This will suffice to show the evil effect of this system of organized secrecy. It virtually intimidates other wise, good men into disloyalty to Christ.

The hosts of the Most High need to arouse. One thing is sure; the agitation here will not down. I am receiving letters of commendation each week from parties where I have spoken. They are standing firm. May the Lord continually strengthen these loyal hearts.

Philomath, Ore.

DISAGREEMENT WITH GOD.

BY REV. J. M. FOSTER.

Paul and Barnabas worked together harmoniously for a while. But when they differed as to the course to be pursued and their contentions were sharp, they separated. Man walked with God in the garden of Eden. But when he refused to accept the divine authority, they separated. "Can two walk together except they be agreed?"

I. Sin is a disagreement with God. A cat and dog will lie on the rug before the fire in peace. But if you tie them together, then a struggle begins for independence. The Southern States, in 1861, refused to be bound by the compact which "formed a more perfect Union." They demanded separation, and set up an independent government. The struggle then began. Man says: "Who is Lord over us? Who is the Lord, that we should obey him?" 1. Sin demoralizes the moral government of God. Crime is an assault upon the integrity of civil goverment. And if, through indifference or impotency, crime goes unpunished, the days of the government are numbered. It is one of the most alarming signs of the decay of our political life that last year there were more than 6,700 murders and only 121 executions. When Lincoln was leaving Springfield, Ill., in 1861, he said: "I am going up to Washington to see if we have a government." He recognized that the life of the nation was being assaulted, and if the government failed to vindicate its authority in the South, the dissolution of the republic would follow. General Grant said: "I fought for peace all through the war." His sole purpose was to restore harmony by the establishment of the authority of the United States government throughout all her territory. Sin is rebellion against God. It is an assault upon God's authority. It is an effort to dethrone God and create anarchy in the moral universe. Sin must be punished. The majesty of law must be maintained. The authority of God must be vindicated; the rectitude of his moral government must be maintained, and the claims of justice must be satisfied, or else the throne of God goes down. It is said that if the least particle of matter were removed from the solar system, the equilibrium would be disturbed and the wreck of worlds would follow. One sin is such a disturbing element in the moral universe. Hence it is said: "Whosoever shall keep the whole law and yet offend in one point, is guilty of all." 2. Sin injures the children of God. Rebellion injured the South. Their houses, villages and cities were burned and their men were slain. But the moral desolation, the lawlessness and crime that followed were worse than physical evils. The Sunday newspaper, the Sunday train, the saloon, and the lodge, have cursed our land ever since. The judgments of God upon the sinner are either inward, as blindness of mind, a reprobate sense, strong delusions, hardness of heart, horror of conscience and vile affections; or outward, as the curse of God upon the creature and all other evils that befall us in our bodies, names, estates, relations and employments, together with death itself. Sin blinds the mind, sears the conscience, hardens the heart, and makes the will obdurate. It leads us to reject the overtures of the Spirit and grieve him till he departs. It tends to confirm the sinner's evil character, so that he becomes finally impenitent. "He that sins against the Holy Ghost hath eternal sin." It leads down to death—the second death—eternal death. Sin brings fires, famines, pestilences, wars, and every form of divine wrath. Sin kindled the fires of the bottomless pit, into which the sinner falls. 3. Sin is self-propagating. Drop one seed of a Canada thistle in a field and soon the whole field will be bristling with the noxious growth. The multiplied vices and crimes of this world originated in the single act of disobedience on the part of Adam in eating the forbidden fruit. "Lust, when it hath conceived, bringeth forth sin, and sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death." Lot pitched his tent toward Sodom. Think of the sins that grew out of that. Jefferson Davis and a few leaders were responsible for the secession of the Southern States.

II. How can God and man be brought to an agreement? I answer: 1. God cannot come down to man's terms. On Feb. 3, 1865, a commission from the government of the Southern Confederacy—Stephens, Campbell, and Hunter, passed Grant's lines and met Lincoln and Seward at Fortress Monroe. The object was to discuss terms of peace. The South demanded that their independence be recognized. But Lincoln said: "The North cannot recognize the right of the South to an independent government. The South must lay down their arms and submit to the authority of the government at Washington." Stephens replied: "Charles I. recognized the English Parliament, even when rebelling against him." Lincoln said: "I am not very well up in history, but my recollection is that Charlie lost his head." And so the conference ended. There is a general cry for the union of the Protestant churches. But it is noticeable that the less orthodox branches demand that the others come down to them. But the Covenanters say: "We cannot go down to a lower plane. All must come up to the level of the Scriptures, and that is where we stand." So God cannot come down to man's terms. Man must go up to God. 2. Sin cannot cure itself. Should a planet get out of its orbit, its tendency is, not to return, but to go farther away and increase the disorder. Remove a wheel from a clock, and if the works run at all it only injures them. One rotten apple in a barrel soon corrupts all. Let gangrene start in one toe of your foot, and soon the whole body is infected with the poison. Men talk about the evolution of human society, the development of the race and the growth of civilization. But is there any growth for good except by God's Spirit? England forces opium upon China. Is that evolution? The United States sends 750,000 barrels of whisky to the Congo annually. Is that evolution? During Harrison's administration, thirteen colored men were burned alive and 500 were brutally slain by mobs in the South. Is that evolution? It looks likes devilution. The fact is, sin has no tendency to cure itself. It is an evil principle that becomes more deadly as it develops. "Evil men and seducers wax worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived." 3. Punishment does not cure sin. Josephus tells us that the Jews were never so wicked as during the unparalleled sufferings of the siege of Titus, in the year 70. When the Reign of Terror was at its height in Paris, fourteen theaters were in full blast. We suffer from the "hard times." But the theaters, saloons, gambling-dens and prize-rings are flourishing as never before. Punishment hardens the criminal, unless softened by God's grace. When the vials of God's wrath were poured out upon the papal hierarchy, the prophet says: "They gnawed their tongues with pain, and cursed God and looked upward." In the bottomless pit, where nothing but justice, pitiless and rejoicing, prevails, "there is "weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth." 4. The only cure is found in Christ. The death of the Son of God made the pardon of sin and the restoration of the sinner consistent with and gloriously illustrative of the perfections of God, the majesty of the divine law and the stability of the divine government. By it God can be just and the justifier of the ungodly. By it there is freedom from guilt. By it the gift of the Spirit is secured, who regenerates and sanctifies the sinner, and makes him conformable to Christ. By it the curses of Ebal have been abolished and the blessings of Gerizim have been secured. This is the gate of righteousness by which the justified enter the kingdom of God. Christ is the Mediator between an offended God and offending men. He has made peace between heaven and earth. The moral government of God has been placed in his hands. All things work together for good to them that love God. That government makes for righteousness and against wickedness. Those who submit to it are reconciled to God. He must reign until all his enemies be put under his feet. We must either accept his gracious offer now, or be consigned to punishment hereafter. "Prepare to meet thy God, O Israel!" "Agree with thine adversary quickly, while thou art in the way with him; lest the adversary deliver thee to the judge, and the judge deliver thee to the officer, and the officer cast thee into prison. I tell thee thou shalt not escape until thou hast paid the last farthing." "Peace I give unto you"—"the peace of God."

Boston.

BIBLE DISTRIBUTION IN MEXICO.

BY B. B. BLACHLY.

(Continued.)

It was in this town of El Fuerta that there lived a family by the name of Burtram: a father, mother, son, daughters, and three girls, who traded green lemons for tracts. They listened to the reading of the Bible, with which they were much pleased, but were afraid it was Protestant; so they went to a neighbor to look at an old Catholic Bible which was printed by the American Bible Society in 1832, and the title page of the New Testament reads as follows. (For I had the Bible before me and copied the page):

El Nuevo Testamento, Traducido de la Vulgata Latina En Espanol, Por El. P. Felipe Scio De. S. Miguel De las Escuelas Pias. Obispo electo de Segovia.

Nueva Edition. A costa de la, Sociedad Americana de la Biblia, Iuien la ha hecho cotehar con la que revista y corregida publico su traductor el ano de 1797, en Madrid.

Nueva York: Edicion estere otipica por a, Chandler 50, 1832.

While in the plaza of El Fuerta, Mr. Burtram stepped up and shook hands. (This was about a month after I saw him in January, 1891.) He asked where I lived; and, not being able to talk much Spanish, I took him with me to a large house and showed him. He called several times after that, and at one time bought a large family Bible and a good many tracts. Here we take leave of the family, but will have occasion to speak of them later on.

From El Fuerta I went down to Culiacan, but stopped at Moscorita, where the sales were good, and where the Indians were plowing with American plows, but with one handle cut off. Most of the Mexicans through this State use the old plow of Christ's time—a crooked stick. This plow scratches a furrow about three inches wide, and from three to four inches deep. They raise very poor crops. Do you wonder at it?

Traveling on from Moscorita, I passed ranches and small towns, selling Bibles or Testaments. It is indeed a new book to most, if not all, of them, and yet they are anxious to own one for themselves. In the town of Sinaloa, the first capital of the State of the same name, I put up at the hotel, which was kept by a very fanatical woman, and where the priest lived. The first evening, at supper, I was introduced to him.

He was a very small man, about twenty-one years old, and a nephew of the priest at El Fuerta. The landlady wished to know my mission; and on telling her that it was selling books, she asked: "Will you please let the father see them?" So, after supper we went to my room and they looked at the books, but said little. Finally the woman left, and the priest sat and read the Testament for about two hours. Before leaving he said: "It is a good book. I like it very much;" so I presented to him a Rome Gilt Madrid New Testament, with which he seemed much pleased, and shook hands and said: "I will keep this in memory of our talk to-night." But hold! Look at the hypocrite! In the morning was found a part of that nice New Testament (from the tenth chapter of Matt. to the fifteenth) on a shelf in the closet. In Matt. 15: 7 we read: "Ye hypocrites, well did Esaias prophesy of you, saying: This people draweth nigh unto me with their mouth, and honoreth me with their lips; but their heart is far from me. But in vain they do worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men."

It became so unpleasant at that hotel that another one was found, where the landlord was much interested in the Bible, as he had one of his own; so he bought a Bible Dictionary and subscribed for the El Fario for two years. I had several talks with that priest afterwards, and he showed a letter he had received from his superior, commanding him to warn his people against me and the Protestant books, and that he would punish him if he disobeyed. So he warned them in a sermon, one Sunday, and the day following I went to a house and showed the Bible to a young woman, who said: "The priest told us that this was an anti-Christ and an anti-Missa book, and that he would excommunicate all who bought any." But when asked if she did not want to read the book and see for herself if it was a bad book, she replied: "Yes;" and read aloud from it to her mother, brother, sisters, and some others who were present, for about an hour and a half; after which, she said: "This is a good book; I like it, and want to purchase it, but I have only twenty-five cents;" for which the book was sold to her. The sales at this place were good; so good that, having sold out, I telegraphed to Rev. J. D. Eaton, of Chihuahua, for fifty Testaments, which were sent by mail.

Now I moved on down to the capital—Culiacan—where a young man of the M. E. Church, South, had arrived a few days before, but had done nothing except to get a few subscribers to a church paper. In a few days in came Rev. M. A. Crawford, of Hermosillo, bringing Rev. Mr. Bissell to look at Culiacan as a mission center. They rented a large house at $40 a month; then took the stage to El Fuerta, to look at that town, and then back to Hermosillo, where Mr. Bissell's family were waiting his return to take them to his new field of labors, which proved to be El Fuerta, instead of Culiacan. He has been here since April, 1891, and is doing a grand work. The Methodists located a mission in Culiacan, where they are also doing a good work. It was in Culiacan that I was hung in effigy, and on Good Friday was burned in effigy, and was stoned, also shot at five times, and in other ways they tried to intimidate me; so I appealed to the local authorities, but with poor results. I then wrote directly to President Harrison, at Washington, and here plied through his private secretary as follows:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, April 21, 1891.

Mr. B. B. Blachly, Culiacan, Estado da Sinaloa, Mexico,

DEAR SIR:—The President directs me to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of recent date, and to say, in reply, that it has been referred to the Secretary of State for consideration, Very respectfully, ELIJAH W. HALFORD, Private Secretary.

At the same time I wrote to the President of Mexico, but received no reply.

The bishop of Sinaloa had a letter of warning printed and circulated all over the State. The whole of it is given here as translated by Rev. A. C. Wright, of El Paso, Texas.

THE BISHOP'S LETTER.

Instructions which the illustrious Bishop of Sinaloa addresses to the faithful of this city, in regard to the Protestant propaganda:

It having been brought to our notice that certain foreigners have come to our city lately with the object of establishing a Protestant temple here, and that they have begun to distribute Protestant tracts and Bibles, in virtue of the obligation that is on us to care for your spiritual good, we hereby notify you, our very dear children, that you must not buy, receive, nor read these Bibles, nor other tracts or papers which the persons to whom we refer are distributing; all of which our Mother the Holy Catholic Church prohibits to her children under the severest penalties. But that you may have more exact knowledge of your duties in this particular, we present to you the following instructions, published under similar circumstances by some distinguished prelates of our republic.

1. It is a plain apostasy from our holy Catholic religion, Roman and apostolic, in which only exists and can be obtained true salvation, to affiliate with whatever of the sects or Protestant communions. Those who so do, are by that very act separated from the Catholic communion, commit heresy and are anathematized with the excommunication reserved to the holy father.

2. They incur the same punishment who, with full knowledge and consent, co-operate in favoring, directly or indirectly, the formation, action, or propagation of whatever of these sects.

3. In accordance with this, it is not allowed to any of the faithful to furnish house, furniture, utensils or other objects, for the use of any of the sects to which we refer in any meeting or ceremony whatever.

4. Nor is any Catholic allowed to invite any one to attend such services, nor advise such act, not even to attend from pure curiosity.

5. It is not permitted to receive any gift from such communion, if it be of the nature of remuneration for work in its favor, or an incentive to attend their services.

6. Nor is any Catholic allowed to have, read or circulate any book, tract or paper which these dissenters distribute; and, under pain of excommunication, such literature must be delivered up to the authority of the church.

7. In consequence of all this, it is of the strictest obligation to all Catholics to observe absolute isolation from all sects of the Protestants, and to abstain from all co-operation and aid which may favor them.

8. And finally, it is an act to be reproved, and unworthy of any Catholic, to employ against the dissenters injury, insult, threat or the slightest kind of violence.

Such, my dear friends, are the prescriptions which the Catholic church imposes on her faithful children in regard to the separation which they ought to maintain in their lives from the heretical sects which are trying to enter. It is, also, the same that she has ever taught, based, among other motives, on the inspired words of the beloved disciple of the Lord, the Apostle St. John, called even by some of the dissenters the apostle of charity, who, in his second epistle, speaking of the doctrine of the Catholic faith, expresses himself thus: "If any one cometh unto you and bringeth not this teaching, receive him not into your house and give him no greeting: for he that giveth him greeting partaketh in his evil works," favoring to some degree his heretical purposes.

Let this be well understood, dear children in Christ Jesus, and above all, ye fathers and mothers, double, triple, centuple your care and vigilance, in order to shut all the doors of your houses against the seduction of Protestantism, even when it comes with the stimulus of money, which it has already begun to introduce. If you do not do so the result will be that, after having sold your conscience and your sons for a few paltry dollars, faith will disappear from your hearths, to go to illumine other homes and other peoples with its light who will know how to appreciate it. Avoid by all means the association of your children with perverse youths who will lead them by their example to sell their souls to the Protestants in exchange for money and for good locations in the service of the same propaganda, running into the danger of deserting the faith of their fathers to pass over to the camp of the heresy. Behold, my dear ones, that just as the blood of Abel cried from the ground against the one who shed it, so the souls of your children, tormented, perhaps, some day through eternity on account of their apostasy, will cry out against you, who, with your indifference and criminal condescension, will have been the cause of their eternal perdition.

May the most holy heart of our Lord Jesus Christ and his most Holy Mother remove from you the evils which threaten you; and for your part, our dear children, be docile to the voice of the church, strengthen yourselves more and more in your religion; shun conversation with all those who pretend to tear away from you that most precious treasure of the holy faith which you profess, and receive the blessing of your pastor as a proof of the great love which he has for you.

(Signed) JOSE MARIA DE JESUS, Bishop of Sinaloa.

Culiacan, Feb. 19, 1891.

COMMENT ON THE ABOVE LETTER.

1. The reverend father quotes from the same book which he forbids his people to read under pain of excommunication and eternal condemnation.

2. While he prints cautions against the use of violence, he privately instigates his people to hang and burn in effigy a Bible-seller in their town; at another time they shoot at him five times and stone him in the streets.

3. One of his "dear children," a young man, follows this Bible-seller for days, with a deadly knife in his bosom, seeking opportunity to stab him. That young man is now converted to a more Christian religion and confesses the deed.

4. The holy father quotes Scripture correctly in one sentence, and in his closing appeal introduces doctrines in direct opposition to the teachings of that same book.

A year's numbers of the Cynosure would make six good-sized volumes of valuable reform literature, containing 550 pages each.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

The Passion Play.—Easter irreverence.—Rose Croix Masons celebrate the Passover.—Dr. Lorimer prefers Masonry to the church.—The Norwegian system.

The "Passion Play" has been lately represented in Boston, the money raised by it going, I believe, to some charity. It was not performed, however, by living actors, but by marionettes, ingeniously contrived to go through the several parts by means of concealed machinery worked by persons behind the stage, who also supplied the dialogue. Most people of devout minds will be glad to know that the experiment was so far from being a success that it is not likely it will ever be repeated. The real "Passion Play" over which travelers wax so enthusiastic is like the flower which botanists tell us is never found except in one spot, at the extreme southern point of Africa, and always dies in the effort to transplant it. With the simple peasants of the Oberammergau the performance is an act of worship, but anywhere else it is merely a theatrical representation, in which dollars and cents, rather than devotion, form the mainspring.

But while I have seen no favorable criticism on this feeble caricature of the "Passion Play," it does not strike me as more shocking or irreverent —perhaps not so much so—as some other things which the press does not criticise, and even the Christian public seems to accept as a matter of course. Are the grand Easter openings, and the display of Easter fashions at church, a whit less revolting to a refined and sensitive mind? If they are, it is only because usage has made our perceptions obtuse in this regard. The celebration, by the Boston Chapter of Rose Croix, of the Passover, or the Feast of the Paschal Lamb, at the United States Hotel, was to my mind a far more irreverent and blasphemous thing than the representation of the "Passion Play" by puppets, which even the secular press has so severely condemned. "As if to make it of special significance," says the Journal, "the occasion was graced by the presence of the ladies." I wonder how these women who knelt by the cross, and sped with breaking hearts to the sepulchre, before the light had dawned, with their offerings of love, would have enjoyed being present in such a motley crowd of Christian ministers, worldlings, drunkards and libertines who "met on the level" around the table where the bread was broken and the wine poured;—those memorials of our departed Lord, only to be approached by devout hearts, with reverent awe, degraded to "Masonic symbols!" I do not see how any Christian heart could have read the report of the banquet in the daily journals, and failed to be shocked. The picture of Sir Grand Commander Wheeler Cable, the head of the Southern jurisdiction, and successor to Albert Pike, shows a rotund, rather animal face, decidedly more suggestive of good living than of moral or mental superiority. His response to the toast, "Long Life to Scottish Rite Masonry!" was the usual glorification of the order, though he made one astounding historical statement (which went down with no demur from the Knights and ladies present), that "all the commanding officers in the Revolutionary army were Masons, with the exception of one, and he proved a traitor." It is a well-established fact that Benedict Arnold, as well as Aaron Burr, was a Freemason; but at Masonic banquets where, as in one held at the Hub a few years ago, the glasses are drained twenty-one times, it is perhaps too much to expect of the orators that they shall always strictly adhere to historical truth.

Last Sunday the skies not only lowered—they rained; and the Easter bonnet had to abide at home, or take the risk of a wetting. The unemployed gathered on the Common, to hear their prophet, Morrison L. Swift, talk about the duty of the Legislature to provide them with work; and the Knight Templars with their clanking swords, and all the glory of fuss and feathers, marched to Music Hall, to hear a sermon from Dr. Lorimer. The audience-room was packed to the topmost gallery with as many as could find standing-room, and even the corridors were full. The central part was reserved for the five hundred Knights, who filed in while the choir sang: "Onward, Christian Soldiers," and a special ritual was performed, "combining the regular order of worship of the Tremont Temple Church with prayers and hymns adapted to the Masonic celebration." And then Dr. Lorimer, from a pulpit flanked with two great Templar crosses, preached on "The Easter Benediction." Masonic church-members have been known, sometimes, to remark in private that if it ever comes to the question of sacrificing either the lodge or the church, they should give up the church and keep to the lodge. This is surely bad enough; but when a minister of Dr. Lorimer's standing and influence makes this same statement, not in private, but from the pulpit, before thousands of people;—when it is posted on the bulletin-boards, and scattered far and wide in big headlines on the wings of the daily press, never did the powers of darkness have more occasion to rejoice; never did the honor of Christ's bride receive a deadlier thrust. It is amazing that even Dr. Lorimer should be willing, for the purpose of pleasing his Masonic companions, with whom he has drunk wine from a human skull and invoked a double damnation on his soul, to grieve and insult his brethren in the ministry, and all that great assembly of Christian believers who have not bowed the knee to Baal, by emphatically declaring that "if the time should ever come when the church excommunicated Masons, they should all go in a body, and he would go out with them!"

Over forty of the rum-shops in Providence, R. I., have rear rooms fitted up for women, and these places have become such a crying nuisance and disgrace that the License Commissioners have been obliged to stir in the matter. Accordingly the keepers of these places have been warned that unless these rooms are torn down their licenses will be revoked in the spring. Some of the rum-shops, it is said, exist entirely on female trade. It is possible that examination might reveal an equally bad condition of things in Boston as well as other New England cities.

The honors paid to Neal Dow on his birthday show the great advance which temperance sentiment has made in half a century. "The grand old man" of the prohibition cause has lived to see the beginning of the end; and should he round out his century, he may even see—there have been stranger things—the complete overthrow of the traffic. But the Moses of a great reform is seldom vouchsafed more than a view by faith of the promised land.

The much-talked-of Norwegian system finds little or no favor with Prohibitionists, though Mrs. Mary A. Livermore favors it. However, her late utterances in the Sunday Journal in praise of Masonry, placing the family on the same level with the lodge as a secret society, will not predispose thinking people to accept her views without question on other subjects. The Norwegian system strikes me as singularly complicated, and not at all calculated to fulfill the ends sought. The "surplus fund," in itself, is a corrupting factor, and the idea of "a corporation formed of only men of good moral character," for the purpose of selling rum, is a ludicrous farce. When ministers and deacons become stockholders in such a concern, we shall want another Dr. Cheever to give us "Deacon Giles' Distillery," revised. As Dr. Miner well said: "With this law will arise combinations of wicked men. It will regulate nothing, for you cannot regulate an irregularity."

Elizabeth E. Flagg.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, March 28, 1894.

There is always something inexpressibly solemn and awe-inspiring, to me, about a funeral in the United States Capitol. Whether this is because of the infrequency of such funerals, or of being accustomed to seeing different scenes there, I cannot say, but it is certain that most of those who attended the short service held over the remains of the late Senator Colquitt in the Senate Chamber yesterday morning were similarly impressed. Owing to having to catch a train at 11 A. M., the funeral was held at the unusually early hour of 9 o'clock, and the crowd in the galleries was much smaller than upon similar occasions in the past. Senator Colquitt's pure and Christian life had endeared him to all who came in contact with him, and, as his colleague, Senator Gordon, truly said of him announcing his death to the Senate, he was a man of whom it may be said "that in every relation of life, whether as husband or father, or son, or friend, or soldier or citizen, he has been earnest and faithful and true." The concluding words of Senator Gordon, spoken with tears in his voice, are worthy of the careful study of every young man in the land: "The three dreaded monosyllables, 'he is dead,' will soon be true of others in this chamber and of many others before many long years shall pass. If it can be said of us, as it can be of him, that in all his relations of life he had kept his armor of a Christian man bright and burnished, there will have been pronounced over our dead bodies all that eulogies can pronounce." Chaplain Milburn, "the blind man eloquent," who had been an intimate friend of the deceased for more than fifty years, delivered the funeral oration to the assemblage composed of the Senate, the House of Representatives, the Cabinet, the Supreme Court, the diplomatic corps and others prominent in public life, gathered to do honor to the distinguished Georgian who has "fought the good fight" and gone to render his account to the great Commander.

The Sunday-school of Calvary Baptist church took possession of its handsome new building, adjoining the church, last Sunday. The building is 60 feet wide and 95 feet long, and, being arranged especially for Sunday-school purposes, is regarded as a model of its kind. The Sunday-school is one of the largest in the country. There were present, last Sunday, 1,121 scholars.

I do not believe in commending anybody for doing his duty, but when an official in performing his service speaks such wholesome words as Judge Bradley did, this week, to the newspaper men who are reporting the Pollard-Breckinridge trial, I think he deserves and should receive the commendation of all believers in the purity of the family circle, and those who do not are in a pitiable condition. I quote the words of Judge Bradley, in order that other judges may paste them in their scrap-books for reference: "The court cannot exercise or presume to exercise any censorship of the press. I would, however, suggest to the correspondents and representatives of the press that it is in the interest of this community—not only of this community, but of every community where these newspapers go—that so far as possible, and I think it is possible, all disgusting details of matters that have been deemed essential and material to admit as evidence in this case be withheld from publication. There are some matters that, in my judgment, would render their publication sufficient to exclude the newspapers themselves from the mails. I trust, in the interest of the people, of the city, of communities everywhere, and of the families into which these newspapers go from day to day, that these details will be withheld."

Whisky was the direct cause of two men committing suicide here within a few hours of each other, this week. Yet the same law which forbids the sale of other poisons recognizes the traffic in whisky as legitimate. "Why should the sale of one poison be legal and that of others illegal?" is one question not satisfactorily answered.

The opponents of the sugar bounty, in the House, not being entirely certain that the tariff bill will become a law, have decided upon another, and they think speedier way, of abolishing the bounty. It is proposed, and it is understood that the proposition meets with the approval of a majority of the House Ways and Means Committee, to attach an amendment to the legislative and executive appropriation bill repealing the sugar bounty clause of the McKinley law. As this appropriation bill carries the appropriation to pay the sugar bounty such an amendment will be germane and cannot be ruled out on a point of order. If this amendment is accepted in both House and Senate the sugar bounty will cease upon the day the bill becomes a law—July 1, 1894. There is no doubt of the sentiment of the House on this question, but there is of the Senate. The tariff bill, it will be remembered, as revised by the Senate committee, also abolishes the sugar bounty, but it substitutes a duty on sugar both raw and refined, therefor.

—The law in South Carolina, giving the State control of the sale of all ardent spirits, led, last week, to bloodshed. Parties suspected of selling liquor on the sly attacked the spies of the commonwealth, and in the fight four persons were killed and others badly wounded. Gov. Tillman ordered out the State troops to restore peace. But opposition to the law is so bitter that agitation over it is likely to continue. The Governor has placed the State under martial law.

WISCONSIN ANTI-SECRECY CONVENTION.

The annual convention of the Wisconsin State Christian Association, opposed to secret societies, assembled in the Second Free Methodist church at Oshkosh (of which Rev. C. V. Hughes is the pastor), on Tuesday evening, March 27, and continued through the following day.

Oshkosh, a synonym for ruffianism and wickedness in the mind of a stranger, was found, in fact, to be a beautiful city of 25,000 inhabitants, and no worse, morally, than her neighbors.

Some of the forest trees that once covered this place make the residence lots beautiful as well as valuable. The lake beside which Oshkosh stands, and the railroads by which its people travel, make it chief city among a thousand, for residence and business. Boston manufacturers have recently built a fine plant for making elegant dining-room furniture. The goods are for Eastern trade; but the cost of manufacturing it here is one-third less than in New England.

THE CONVENTION

had been advertised throughout the State, by sending some 600 marked copies of the Cynosure to as many different pastors. Personal correspondence brought some, and the cold wave doubtless deterred others who expected to be present.

Some 5,000 programs, with the testimonies of divines and statesmen printed on the reverse side, were placed in the residences and business houses of Oshkosh, and several of the pastors of the city aided by giving notice of this State Christian convention from their pulpits. The leading daily paper also published the program freely, with kind comments, and also gave much space to good reports of each session.

An interesting and profitable meeting we have had. Able and instructive addresses were given by the speakers on the various secret societies, but Freemasonry was more fully discussed than other orders. The idea was made prominent, however, that all of the secret societies belong to the same family, the minor orders serving as stepping-stones to the major ones.

A number of ministers of various denominations were present from abroad, and took an active part in the exercises. The National Secretary, W. I. Phillips, of Chicago, came a few days prior to the opening of the convention and assisted in making necessary preparations for a successful meeting, and to him our association is indeed grateful. His addresses added materially to the interest of our exercises.

We feel indebted to Rev. Wm. Fenton, of St. Paul, and truly appreciate the addresses given by him. They were masterly and opened the eyes of many as he unfolded the "hidden mysteries" of Freemasonry. Those who had listened to Rev. J. B. Galloway on other occasions felt impressed with the unusal power with which he spoke on this occasion.

Rev. J. B. Galloway, of the U. P. church at Poynette, and Rev. Isaiah Faris, of the Vernon Covenanter church, are, in their spirits and labors, the David and Jonathan of the Wisconsin State work.

It was a special pleasure to have the veteran Bro. Griffin and his wife, of Hortonville, present, and to hear their testimony.

One of our city pastors, Rev. David Davies, of the Calvinistic Methodist church, conducted devotional exercises on Wednesday morning and gave a talk on "Illegal and Wicked Oaths," which we shall not soon forget. Mr. Davies speaks fearlessly against the secret lodge system, although a prominent man in society here, with public sentiment strongly against him.

The pastor of the first Presbyterian church, Rev. L. C. Smith, placed himself on record as an anti-secrecy man in the fullest sense, and was to have been present and participated in the exercises, but was detained from coming.

Bro. Wolfe, pastor of a Fond du Lac church, made a deep impression as he narrated how he became a free Free Methodist by renouncing his Masonry, of which he had taken three degrees.

Prof. J. K Lowry, of the Waukesha schools, was suddenly called to Chicago on imperative business, and hence could not give his address.

One of the encouraging events of the convention was the apparent conversion to this reform of a Methodist minister. From an attitude of indifference and unbelief, he became interested and believing, and purchased some literature. A presiding elder of the same church purchased books and was an interested questioner.

While the minor orders were being discussed, Mr. A. Roberts spoke of the G. A. R, of which he was a member as late as 1891, but when he became a Christian he was constrained to withdraw from it on account of the extra-judicial oath and for other reasons.

THE EXECUTIVE BOARD.

The following officers were elected: President, Rev. Isaiah Faris, Reformed Presbyterian, Vernon; Vice-President, Rev. David Davies, Calvinistic Methodist, Oshkosh; Secretary, Rev. C. V. Hughes, Free Methodist, Oshkosh; Treasurer, Rev. J. B. Galloway, United Presbyterian, Poynette.

Resolutions were adopted condemning the secret lodge system, Jesuitry, the American Protective Association, the liquor traffic and social and solitary vices.

We look for God's blessing upon the cause of Christian reforms for the ensuing year, for

"Right is right, since God is God,
And right the day shall win;
To doubt would be disloyalty,
To falter would be sin."

C. V. Hughes, Secretary.
118 Lincoln Ave, Oshkosh, Wis.

REFORM NEWS.

FROM THE NEW ENGLAND SECRETARY.

Springfield, Mass., March 28, 1894.

The Evans House, where I am writing, is strictly temperance, neat, home-like and reasonable in charges. The proprietor, Mr. L. E. McLean, expressed his full accord when I explained my work. In looking around for a hall, I found one very centrally located, which can be had for a convention at nominal rates. The proprietor was most cordial, and thoroughly interested when he learned the character of my work. There is a meeting of the Christian Alliance in progress here, which I have attended to-day. When I entered, Rev. Mr. Frost, of Palmer, Mass., was speaking. He is an adhering Freemason of 42 degrees. In private conversation, he averred that I knew nothing whatever about Masonry, since I had never been a member. I proposed to him that we try the case in his town, and let the people decide after hearing us both. His reply was, as he withdrew: "If I wanted to split a church into fragments I would get on to some hobby and ride it." A brother at my elbow who knew whereof he affirmed, stated that he had once heard me speak from a stump on Douglas camp grounds, and that what I said was correct. The management and sentiment of the meeting is entirely opposed to the lodge, and Bro. Hezekiah Davis, of New Britain, gave a pointed and strong testimony in his very searching Gospel sermon against it. With the hearty approval of Bro. Francis, pastor of the church where the meetings are held, I circulated tracts freely, and have been given an hour to-morrow in which to speak of our work.

I have this evening, at the hotel, met with one of those cases which is to me the most embarrassing. It was that of a refined Christian lady whose deceased husband was a Mason. How to declare the truth under such circumstances, without wounding the feelings of a sensitive, devoted widow, is not always easy to see. After conceding all that she claimed for her beloved dead, I proposed to discuss, not the Mason but Masonry, to which she acceded, and, after listening to a plain statement of a few inside facts, she expressed much surprise and a desire to hear further of those things. It is amazing to witness the blindness that has come upon many good people, and how slow they are to apprehend the most palpable truths until their attention is especially called to them. It is exceedingly gratifying to find some who, when they see the light, have the courage to come out of the darkness and walk with Him who is the "Light of the world." I trust you will ere long hear from one who has made his home happy and his own soul joyful by renouncing and reproving the unfruitful works of darkness and death. J. P. Stoddard.

LATER.

[Bro. Stoddard, since mailing the foregoing letter, sends us a copy of the Springfield (Mass.) Union, of March 30, containing the following incident, which we print with Bro. Stoddard's rejoinder.—Editor Cynosure.]

An impassioned denunciation of Freemasonry was made from a pulpit in Springfield yesterday by Rev. J. P. Stoddard, of Boston, secretary of the "National Association Opposed to Secret Societies."

It occurred during the afternoon session of the Christian Alliance convention, at Shiloh chapel. Rev. Mr. Stoddard took his text from John 18: 20. "In secret have I said nothing." He spoke first of secret societies in general and said:

"Secret societies are a power in this country, which we ought to investigate. The leading secret societies of the world are three, the Jesuits, the Freemasons and the Oddfellows. I could show points in which all are opposed to the doctrines of Christianity, but as my time is limited I shall confine my remarks to Freemasonry. In the order of Freemasonry there are 142 degrees conferred in the United States, and of this number in only one degree is Christ recognized as a Saviour.

"When a man becomes a Mason he renounces private judgment, the right of free speech and the liberty of the press. A candidate for the first degree of Masonry is blindfolded, a rope is tied about his neck, his left foot, arm and breast are laid bare, and in this condition he is led to the door of the lodge room, where after admission six pagan rites are performed upon his person, which the candidate is then sworn to conceal under the penalty of having his throat cut from ear to ear, and his tongue pulled out by its roots.

"Before crossing the threshold of the lodge room the candidate is required to renounce his religion, whether pagan or Christian, and as authority on this subject, I refer you to A. G. Mackey. Masonry claims to furnish in the first three degrees all that the soul of man requires, and Daniel Sickels can be referred to as a prominent authority on this point.

"There is in Masonry absolutely no recognition of Jesus Christ as the Redeemer of men, except in the Knight Templar degree, in which, after drinking four libations of mixed wine and water, he takes a fifth from a human skull, and invokes a double damnation upon himself if he discloses the secrets of a Sir Knight. Masonry is a religious institution from which Christ is excluded."

At this juncture, Rev. Mr. Frost of Palmer, who was in the audience, exclaimed:

"It's a lie."

He then rose and stated that he had taken forty-two degrees of Freemasonry, and expected to live and die in the order.

Mr. Stoddard declined to enter into any discussion of the subject, saying that the time and place were unsuitable, but offered to meet Mr. Frost in his own town and publicly discuss the subject.

Springfield, Mass., March 29, 1894.

To-day's experiences have not been wholly unlike to those of others. I have met with violent opponents before, but do not now recall a previous instance where a man professing entire sanctification has said "It's a lie" when I stated that Christ's name and atonement are omitted from regular degrees of Masonry. Pastor Frost of the Baptist church in Palmer, Mass., is responsible for this charge, at the Christian Alliance meeting to-day, and I offered to meet him in his own city and discuss with him the question before his neighbors. There are at least fourscore witnesses to the truth of this assertion, and I hold myself ready to redeem my pledge at any time on a week's notice.

James P. Stoddard,
218 Columbus Ave., Boston, Mass.

P. S —Will the editor of the Cynosure please send Mr. Frost a copy of his paper with this paragraph marked? J. P. S.

THE EASTERN AGENT IN PENNSYLVANIA.

Washington, D. C., March 29, 1894.

Dear Cynosure:—My Sabbath meetings at Library, Pa., were well attended, and many expressed a wish to hear further concerning the lodge evil. The Baptist church in which I spoke has quite a history. It was one of the pioneer churches of that section. Generations have come and gone since its organization. The present

(Continued on 9th page.)

CORRESPONDENCE.

FRIENDS OF ANTI-SECRECY IN KANSAS.

Marion, Kan., March, 1894.

Editor Cynosure:—I find in my evangelistic work a great deal of anti-secrecy sentiment. As a rule, all spiritually-minded people are opposed to secret organizations, and this is true of many who have never seen the Cynosure or heard of the National Christian Association. Doubtless a want of moral courage, as well as a small estimate of the real evils of the lodge system, is the great reason why so few come forward to identify themselves with our reform. Some good people have been drawn into the Ancient Order of United Workmen simply on the ground of cheap insurance, and as they have seen no special evils in their order they judge that there is nothing specially bad in the others.

At Farnam, Neb., where we organized a church of sixteen members (eight husbands and three wives), all were opposed to secret societies, and only one had been a member of any. He consented to give up his Odd-fellowship, and confessed it had been the occasion of backsliding on his part.

The Congregational and Methodist Episcopal ministers of that place had just joined the A. O. U. W. and their course was highly commended by the local paper. It is an illustration of the testimony of our Lord that "that which is highly esteemed among men is an abomination in the sight of God."

At Elmsdale, Kan., which was my next stopping place, all the religious people, except one, were, to a greater or less extent, opposed to secret societies; and the Congregational minister, with his excellent wife, were very decided in their opposition. This good brother, who seems to be an exceptionally devoted and spiritual man, gave, while I was there, a public testimony against the system, and said that he intended to say more.

I am satisfied that one of the best ways to promote the anti-secrecy reform is by direct evangelistic labor. When men's hearts are melted, and their consciences are truly awakened, they will listen to a kind presentation of the truths on this question.

I feel truly thankful to the Lord for improved health and ability to do a little work in his name.

In Christ, H. H. HINMAN.

PEN-SKETCHES OF FREEMASONS.

[The following reaches us by mail from a town in a neighboring State. It is of recent date. For obvious reasons the name of the place and the writer are withheld; but its authenticity and interest commend it to our readers.—EDITOR CYNOSURE:]

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—Rev. Mr. B—— was a minister of the Presbyterian church and a Mason. Some years ago, in a certain village, he was prostrated by sickness, and, on making known his lodge affiliation, was nursed by members of the order until his recovery. When he had been sufficiently restored to health, he publicly, from the pulpit, expressed his obligations to the Masons, and his high appreciation of their services. One of his hearers, much disgusted with this expression, hastened to a prominent elder of the church —also a Mason—to free his mind. "Oh," replied the elder, "every man of them that nursed him was a Christian!" Yet Christ was openly robbed of all the glory in the minister's avowal, and his honor given to another. "Them that honor me I will honor."

Sometime since it leaked out that in a certain Masonic lodge the name of a well-known person was proposed for membership. He was blackballed and rejected. One brother—a member of the Baptist church—explained his negative vote by saying that "he did not want to be a member of the same lodge with a Jew." Now it happens that the Hebrew whom he thus excluded, and who had not applied for admission to the lodge, is an educated and estimable gentleman, of high moral character, and looking for "the consolation of Israel." Yet this lodge retains in its fellowship the intemperate, the dishonest, the backslider and the open scoffer.

Not very long ago a Mason, possibly connected with the fraternity for thirty years, died at an insane asylum. The Masons supervised his funeral, and purchased, at the request of his brother (my informant), a handsome coffin. In this the remains were conveyed a considerable distance by rail, to the former home of the deceased, for interment. But his Masonic brethren made no offer to pay any part of the funeral expenses.

J. D. S.

HON. WILLIAM H. SEWARD, Speech in the Senate: "Secret societies, sir? Before I would place my hand between the hands of other men, in a secret lodge, order, class or council, and bending on my knee before them, enter into combination with them for any object, personal or political, good or bad, I would pray to God that that hand and that knee might be paralyzed, and that I might become an object of pity and even the mockery of my fellow men. Swear, sir! I, a man, an American citizen, a Christian, swear to submit myself to the guidance and direction of other men, surrendering my own judgment to their judgments, and my own conscience to their keeping! No, No, sir. I know quite well the fallibility of my own judgment, and my liability to fall into error and temptation. But my life has been spent in breaking the bonds of the slavery of men. I, therefore, know too well the danger of coniding power to irresponsible hands, to make myself a willing slave."

CYNOSURE OFFER!

Any of the Books sold by the N. C. A. in this paper, ordered, with subscription to the Cynosure, at one-fourth off from list price, sent postpaid.

The New Volume of Pen and Pencil Series.

WELSH PICTURES Drawn with Pen and Pencil.

By D. Lewis Jones, Morris Jones, Edward Ffoulkes, H. Elvet Lewis, D. Tyssil Evans, D. Davies and O. M. Edwards. Edited by Richard Lovett, M. A. With many Illustrations. Imperial 8vo, cloth, gilt edges, boxed..... 3.20

"'Welsh pictures' is the work of ten Welshmen, among whom illustrating the beauties of Wales has been parcelled out according to the special familiarity of each. The result is a pleasing vol e."—London Times.

THE EARTHLY FOOTPRINTS OF OUR RISEN LORD, Illumined.

A continuous narrative of the Four Gospels according to The Revised Version, with introduction by Rev. John Hall, D. D. Illustrated by 113 full-page half tone re-productions. Small 4to, cloth.....net 1.50
Gilt edge, with silk book mark, boxed.....net 2.00
Full morocco, flexible, gilt edges, round corners, boxed.....net 3.75

Pictures reflecting the best in sacred art from Raphael to the present day are scattered profusely through the book.

"To many the life of the Christ will be a new book in this form. Though beyond the introduction it contains no word except what is found in the four Gospels, yet when read continuously, without the breaks necessarily made by the different stories of the four evangelists, the narrative takes on new force and lifelikeness. The very fact that this is not our usual method of reading the Word will give it a new reality."—Golden Rule

A GIFT OF LOVE, and Loving Greetings for 365 Days.

By Rose Porter. Long 18mo. Paper cloth..... 1.00
White cloth, silver top, in box..... 1.25
Decorated silk, silver top, in box..... 1.75

"'A Gift of Love' is the work of a loving heart. It contains a text of Scripture for every day of the year with the addition of an appropriate thought in poetry of prose all bearing on the theme of love. The work must have called for a great amount of patient toil. But it has not been spent in vain, for the volume will prove a blessing to many a soul. To use it day by day for a year thoughtfully and prayerfully, must result in a rich growth in love on the part of the user. The author is well known and esteemed for her previous works' sake."—The N. Y. Observer.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE SERIES.

By Rev. F. B. Meyer, containing CHRISTIAN LIVING, THE PRESENT TENSES OF THE BLESSED LIFE, and THE SHEPHERD PSALM. 3 vols. in box. 18mo, cloth..... 1.50
White vellum cloth, silver top, in box..... 1.75

D. L. Moody says: "Few books of recent years are better adapted to instruct and help Christians than those of this author. He is a man mighty in the scriptures, saturated with Bible facts and truths."

PRAYERS FROM THE POETS.

By Martha Harger. 16mo, two colored cloth, gilt top..... 1.00
Leatherette, boxed..... 1.50

"This volume is admirable. The Prayer are better suited to some of our moods than formal Litanies and are selected from excellent sources. The book will be a dear treasure to many hearts."—The Churchman.

KIN-DA-SHON'S WIFE.

An Alaskan Story. By Mrs. Eugene S. Willard, Home Missionary of the Presbyterian Board of America to Alaska. With illustrations. 8vo, cloth..... 1.50

"Being a close observer and in deep sympathy with the native population in their struggles towards a Christian Civilization, Mrs. Willard has gained a more intelligent knowledge of their character, of their needs and hindrances, than perhaps any other person."—Dr. Sheldon Jackson.

HEROES OF THE GOODWIN SANDS.

By Rev. Thomas Stanley Treanor. With many illustrations. 8vo, Cloth..... 1.50

"It is a book of most engrossing interest, and as stimulating as it is readable."—The Record.
"The deeds of daring are thrilling in the extreme. Suitable for the public library or for the home."—Times.

THE GREAT LONDON DAILIES.

By H. W. Massingham. Profusely illustrated. 12mo, cloth..... 1.00

Very welcome to all who like to look behind the scenes and see how the great London dailies are worked.

New Editions.

The Prayer Meeting and Its Improvement.

By Rev. LEWIS O. THOMPSON. Eighth edition, cloth, $1.25.

"Most heartily do we wish this work a wide circulation, both among pastors and people, and we hope it may do much toward the lifting of the prayer-meeting into that higher place which it ought to hold among the grand instrumentalities in the kingdom of the Master."—Congregationalist.

"We do not remember to have met with a work so suggestive, and we heartily commend it to both pastors and private members."—Baptist Weekly.

The Crisis of Missions. By Rev. ARTHUR T. PIERSON, D. D.

Cloth, $1.25; paper, 35c.

"We do not hesitate to say that this book is the most purposeful, earnest, and intelligent review of the mission work and field which has ever been given to the church."—Christian Statesman.

The Christian's Secret of a Happy Life.

By HANNAH WHITALL SMITH. One hundredth thousand. Issued in fourteen styles, from 50c. to $2.50. Send for circular.

"To commend this work would seem almost superfluous; and yet to young Christians who may not know it, we cannot refrain from saying, Buy this book, and keep it with your Bible for constant study, until you have thoroughly mastered, in your own experience, the 'secret' of which it tells. It will transform the dark days of your life, as it has transformed those of thousands before you, into days of heavenly light."—New York Evangelist.

The Topical Text Book. Fourth edition.

16 mo., cloth, 60c.

This little volume is a worker's most useful tool. It collates all Scripture passages under their topical headings, and for this reason proves far more helpful in studying a subject than the best concordance.

"I find one of the very best ways to study the Scripture is to study topically."—D. L. Moody.

Stalker's Life of Christ. Twelfth edition.

Stalker's Life of St. Paul. Fourth edition.

12 mo., cloth, each, 60c.

These works by Professor James Stalker, M. A., are unique in their compact putting of these lives into such condensed form without injurious brevity. They are being taken up as text books by Biblical classes in all parts of the country, thus proving their practical value.

Grace and Truth under Twelve Different Aspects.

By W. P. MACKAY, M. A. Paper, 35c.; cloth, 75c. Two hundred and fiftieth thousand.

This remarkable sale can only be attributed to the very practical character of this work as a guide to the inquirer and a work of helpful instruction for the immature Christian. It is of this volume Mr. D. L. Moody said: "I know of no work in print better adapted to place in the hands of the inquirer."

Notes and Suggestions for Bible Readings.

By S. R. BRIGGS. Sixtieth thousand. 8 vo, cloth. $1.00; flexible, 75c.

Edition after edition of this work has been called for until it would seem the demand must be supplied. The sales however, increase rather than otherwise.

Feathers for Arrows. By Rev. C. H. SPURGEON.

16 mo., cloth, $1.00.

Few preachers have made such effective use of pointed illustrations as the well known pastor of the great Metropolitan Tabernacle. Here he has given us a large cluster of his best with liberty to enjoy and employ.

Revell's Record for Church Treasurers.

Size No. 1, $1.50; Size No. 2, $2.00.

Popular because practical – valuable because time saving – the only record for weekly envelope system that reduces the treasurer's work to the minimum.

For sale by the

National Christian Association;

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Ill.

OBITUARY.

DUDLEY ANDREWS.

Dear Cynosure:—I hardly know how to write. I am afflicted. God has taken away my beloved companion with whom I have traveled the journey of life more than thirty-four years.

But I have this great healing source of comfort. I know that God loved him, and that he loved God, and that it was the purpose of his heart to serve God. He was a disciple, following with very humble views of himself, being subject to an extremely nervous and excitable temperament which often gave him occasion to weep. His hopes of salvation rested entirely in the merits and mercy of Jesus. He was one of the most upright, honest, sincere, kind and truly benevolent men that I ever knew, when his health was in such a state that he kept mentally balanced. Nine years previous to our marriage he was suddenly bereft of a beloved wife and two beautiful children, within a very few weeks —three, I believe. Some thought this great shock almost unbalanced his mind, and affected him at times afterwards. But I am sure there has been a sweet reunion of parents and children in heaven, and that "they are waiting and watching for me." He seemed anxious that I should follow soon, and may the Lord grant it.

He was born in Essex, Mass., February 6, 1818. He lived some years in the State of Maine, and a few in California, but his longer residence has been in Waupun, Wis.

He died on the 10th of February at six o'clock in the evening. Tuesday, February 6, was his birthday. Bro. Moon and family, of the Free Baptist church, were with us. He was up all day, and enjoyed himself well. When we were alone, he said to me in a pleasant, cheerful way: "I shall not live long," referring to the fact that in September he had been quite an invalid and a part of the time severely sick. He often talked of dying, but always cheerfully and with a bright hope.

Wednesday morning he appeared as usual. There seemed to be uncommon fervency and length to his prayer. He had a brief conversation with a neighbor on business, and never spoke again. He had a stroke of paralysis on the brain. He remained conscious, and would answer me by pressing my hand. It seemed blessed to receive in this way answers to questions that will always be a comfort to me. I know there are readers of the Cynosure who will remember him, and some who will shed a tear for me.

Mrs. L. C. Andrews.

Waupun, Wis., March 26, 1894.

Purify Your Blood.

The blood is the life, and pure blood is necessary in order to have good health. Medical science has demonstrated that many diseases, like scrofula, rheumatism and catarrh, which were formerly treated with local applications, are caused by an impure or an impoverished condition of the blood. This is the chief reason for the great success of Hood's Sarsaparilla in curing these diseases. It acts directly upon the blood and thus removes the cause. This, too, is why the cures effected by Hood's Sarsaparilla are permanent. Scrofula, salt rheum, boils, pimples and other eruptions and sores are danger signals put out as a warning that the blood is not right, and all of these troubles are speedily cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, the "King of Medicines." Be sure to get only Hood's.

"I was troubled with stiffness and pain in one of my knees and I used external applications without any benefit. Reading a testimonial from a sufferer from rheumatism I concluded to buy a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I took it and the stiffness and pain have left me, though I am in my 74th year." Abraham J. Baun, 54 St. John's Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Buckingham's Dye for the Whiskers can be applied when at home, and is uniformly successful in coloring a brown or black. Hence its great popularity.

CURES OTHERS

M. W. Scott, Esq., of the U. S. Marshall's Office, Atlanta, Ga., writes: "For many years my wife has been a constant sufferer from indigestion, sick headache, nervous prostration and all other complaints that the female sex is heir to, and, after trying many remedies and doctors with but little or no relief, I persuaded her to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery.' She was so out of heart, she returned the answer that it would be like all the rest—of no good; but on my account, she said she would try it, so I got one bottle each: and before she had used half of a bottle she felt that it was benefiting her, and she has continued to improve ever since, and now thinks it the most wonderful remedy on earth for her sex, and recommends it to all suffering females. She has not been so well in ten years.

Mrs. Scott.

I write this without any solicitation and with a free, good will, so that you may let all who may suffer know what it has done for her." Sold by medicine dealers everywhere.

WHY NOT YOU?

DROPSY TREATED FREE Positively CURED with Vegetable Remedies. Have cured many thousand cases called hopeless. From first dose symptoms rapidly disappear, and in ten days at least two-thirds of all symptoms are removed. BOOK of testimonials of miraculous cures sent FREE. 10 DAYS TREATMENT FREE by mail. Dr. H. H. Green & Sons, Specialists, Atlanta, Ga.

MY WIFE CANNOT SEE HOW YOU DO IT AND PAY FREIGHT.

$14 Buys our 2 drawer walnut or oak Improved High Arm Singer sewing machine finely finished, nickel plated, adapted to light and heavy work; guaranteed for 10 Years; with Automatic Bobbin Winder, Self-Threading Cylinder Shuttle, Self-Setting Needle and a complete set of Steel Attachments; shipped any where on 30 Day's Trial. No money required in advance. L 106

75,000 now in use. World's Fair Medal awarded machine and attachments. Buy from factory and save dealer's and agent's profits. FREE Cut This Out and send to-day for machine or large free catalogue, testimonials and Glimpses of the World's Fair. OXFORD MFG. CO. 342 Wabash Ave. CHICAGO, ILL.

WHEATON COLLEGE,

WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women.

SPRING TERM BEGINS TUESDAY, APRIL 3RD.

ENROLLMENT BEGINS MONDAY, APRIL 2ND.

For Catalogue, address

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

IF YOU WANT WORK

that is pleasant and profitable, send us your address immediately. We teach men and women how to earn from $5 per day to $3,000 per year without having had previous experience, and furnish the employment at which they can make that amount. Capital unnecessary. A trial will cost you nothing. Write to-day and address,

E. C. ALLEN & CO.,

Box 1001. Augusta, Me.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained, and all Patent business conducted for Moderate Fees.

Our Office is Opposite U. S. Patent Office, and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A Pamphlet, "How to Obtain Patents," with names of actual clients in your State, county, or town, sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.

Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address plainly. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer. Ennis, Texas.

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST

A Secret Empire;

Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.

By Rev. Richard Horton.

Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.

Price, 60 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N, 221 W Madison St. Chicago.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Colver on Masonry.
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

National Christian Association,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

New England Department.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

Eastern Department.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

Northern Department.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

Pacific Department.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

College Agent, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

Other Lecturers.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
Nathan Callender Montdale Pa.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
W. M. Love, Osceola, Mo.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Thompson, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
D. A. Richards, Brighton, Mich.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill.

Disloyal SECRET OATHS

ADDRESS OF

JOSEPH COOK,

OF BOSTON,

AT THE

Conference of Christians

CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

National Christian Ass'n.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Ignorant. By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter)
—AND OFFICE OF—
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison Street, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

President—Rev. A. J. Gordon, D.D., Boston, Mass.

Vice President—Charles A. Blanchard, President Wheaton College Ill.

Gen'l Sec'y and Treasurer—W. I. Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Rec. Secretary—Amos Dresser, Jr. Wheaton, Ill., Box 367.

Directors—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E Whipple, E. R. Worrell, Edgar B. Wylie W. M. Howie, H. F. Kletzing.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

New England.—Pres., J. A. Cónant; Vice-president, S. C. Kimball; Sec'y, D. B. Gunn.

Connecticut.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

Illinois.—Pres., Rev. R. W. Chesnut Marissa; Sec., Rev. J. R. Wylie, Coulterville; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

Iowa.—Pres., Rev. J. A. Greer, Columbus City; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton; Treas., Rev. L. Mendenhall, Fairfield.

Kansas.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

Nebraska.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

Maine.—Pres., ——, ——, Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

Massachusetts.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

Michigan.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

Minnesota.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom, Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morrill St. Charles.

Missouri.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

New Hampshire.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

New York.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

Ohio.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry; Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

Oregon.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dillon, D.D., Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

Pennsylvania.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S T. Milligan, Beaver; Treas., Edwin P. Sellew, Philadelphia.

Wisconsin.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poynette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas. J W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

HENRY M. HUGUNIN - - - Editor.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, APRIL 5, 1894.

ABOUT KNIGHT TEMPLARISM.

A lady-friend of our reform, residing in Nebraska, sends us a newspaper account of certain "Easter" services held in a Methodist Episcopal church at Lincoln, in that State. The afternoon performance was attended by "Sir Knights of Mt. Moriah Commandery, No. 4, Knights Templar, in full uniform," and the sermon by the pastor, Rev. Dr. Lasby, "was especially directed to that order," from the text in Revelation 6: 2. "The sermon," says the reporter, "was descriptive of the victory of the Christian religion, allusion being made to the part played by the Knights Templar." That reporter never realized, when he wrote that sentence, how aptly he was giving expression to a great truth—"the part played by the Knights Templar;" for it is nothing but an empty "part played" by the Knights when they claim that Masonry has any affiliation with Christianity, or that Knight Templarism has any connection with Masonry. This is what Morris' Dictionary of Freemasonry says about both: "An attempt has been made, within different success, to connect the history of this institution (Knight Templarism) with Freemasonry. Some of the Masonic historians of the last century boldly affirm that the Knights Templar were Masons, and connect them with the Druses, long inhabitants of Mt. Lebanon. There is nothing in Masonic tradition to justify such a belief. On the contrary, the three essential qualifications of ancient Masonry are averse to the idea of a Christianized system." (Art. Templar Knights.)

The fact is, Knight Templarism is, like Masonry (being grafted upon it) a bundle of human traditions strung upon a thread of scriptural history, for the purpose of aggrandizing itself by deceiving ignorant and careless professors of religion. No student of the Bible has any excuse for mixing the two. This was the very crime of which our Saviour accused the Jews of his day—combining in too large proportions the traditions of men with the revelations received by them from God.

But to resume the Anti-masonic character of modern Knight Templarism, as related in Rebold's History of Freemasonry, page 222: After thirty sittings of a Masonic congress at Wilhelmsbad, Germany, convoked by Duke Ferdinand of Brunswick, General Grand Master of all the "strict observance lodges," which met July 16, 1782, it was decided that "Modern Freemasons are not only not the true successors of the (original) Knights Templar, but that as worthy recipients of the three symbolic degrees (Entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft and Master Mason) they cannot be."

Modern Knight Templarism, spuriously built up on the reputation of the original Templars, or Crusaders, was introduced into the United States in 1808, and the General Grand Encampment for the entire Union was organized in New York City, June 20, 1816, with De Witt Clinton as General Grand Master. Robison, in his "Proofs of a Conspiracy," page 45, states that "The Mason lodges of France (where modern Knight Templarism was born) were the hot-beds—where the seeds were sown and tenderly reared—of all the pernicious doctrines which soon after choked every moral or religious cultivation, and have made the society (order or fraternity) worse than a waste—have made it a noisome marsh of human corruption, filled with every rank and poisonous weed." Mackey's Lexicon of Freemasonry (Art. Libation)—the blasphemous "fifth libation" of modern Knight Templarism being a prominent feature in the institution of the modern Knight Templar—tells us that "The material of the libation differed according to the different deities in honor of whom they were made. Among the Greeks and Romans (ancient heathens) the libation constituted an essential part of every sacrifice."

Yet every misleading minister of the Gospel of Christ, who has taken the heathenish "fifth libation" of modern Knight Templarism, would have the world believe that these Knights are "intensely Christian" in their works and ways!

But to return to Dr. Lasby's sermon. He told the Knights that recently English engineers have discovered the original corner-stone of the Temple at Jerusalem, "containing on its face old Masonic emblems."

Masonic writers have lied so long, frequently and persistently about the connection of modern Freemasonry with the artificer of the original Temple at Jerusalem, that it is difficult for them to refrain from their falsification, even in the light of sober Christian truth. To this class of Masonic authorities Prof. T. S. Parvin, Past Grand Master and Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Iowa, and Grand Orator of the Grand Commandery of Iowa, referred in his oration, in 1875, before the Grand Commandery, at Keokuk: "We are wont to meet annually, and as often to tell the old story of the origin of the institution, and present the people who honor with their presence our public assemblies that same old dish of hash called Masonic History, tracing the institution back to the time 'when the morning stars sang together, and all the sons of God shouted for joy.'..... Another and a large number more of our anniversary orators drop the Antediluvian chapter and are even so considerate as to come down to the period of building the first Temple, and trace its origin to that event, and make Solomon its great founder, as God's vicegerent in its creation.... 'Tis true, 'tis pity; and pity 'tis 'tis true,' that even Solomon was no Mason. With all his wisdom, great as it was, he knew no more of the mysteries of Freemasonry than did the beautiful Queen of Sheba who came from afar to adore his wisdom and the Temple he built."

We think there is some mistake about the Masonic symbols found on the alleged corner-stone of the Temple, referred to by Dr. Lasby. The oration of Bro. Parvin would seem to "cast a coolness" over the assertion. When, a few years ago, several scientific gentlemen investigated the great Pyramid of Ghizeh, they found an inscription on one of its walls,—and only one—from which they hoped to gather some important information as to the origin and purpose of that ancient pile. The best talent, however, failed to find in the inscription anything more than a brief memorandum, nobody knows how old, of certain provisions allotted to some workmen for their sustenance. Perhaps the engineers and Dr. Lasby may find the alleged corner-stone inscription quite as inconsequential in Masonic research.

"MASONIC BAPTISM."

That Freemasonry is a religion has been so often and substantially proven, that the fact is as well-attested as anything ever demonstrated by mathematics. That its religion is not Christianity, and has no affiliation with the religion founded by our Lord Jesus Christ, is fully affirmed by the best Masonic authorities, as well as by the opponents of the fraternity. Other facts, equally well authenticated, are: 1. That it is based on Baalism and other heathenish religions; and, 2. That it perpetuates the errors of those religions to the detriment of Christianity. Yet, to their shame be it said, ministers professing the love and service of the Lord Jesus Christ enter into its heathenish mysteries and commend them as worthy of acceptance by members of their congregations. What is this but rank hypocrisy?

The N. C. A. and its agents and lecturers, with the Cynosure and undoubted Masonic and Anti-masonic authorities, have been trying for more than twenty years to dispel the illusions and delusions of Freemasonry, and the amount of work that has been done in this direction is both marvelous and gratifying. If it has done nothing more, it has shown up the utter wickedness of the fraternity and the secret work of its inmost recesses.

Freemasonry being a religion, and finding it necessary to give it a semblance to Christianity, in order, if possible, to deceive the very elect of God, has, from time to time, revived and perpetuated many of the heathenish rites and ceremonies which the ancients derived from the early Christians and corrupted for their own base uses.

Among the various ceremonies thus perpetuated by Freemasonry is the ordinance of baptism, or, as the fraternity style it in their works of authority, "lustration." At first sight the educated Christian pronounces it a blasphemous corruption, in manner and uses, of the ordinance instituted by Christ and his apostles. Masonic writers deny this allegation, and explain Masonic baptism as a rite preserved from the ancient mysteries of heathenism. Perhaps it is; but from whom did the heathen copy it into their religious rites?

Mackey's Encyclopædia of Freemasonry (page 107) remarks: "The term 'Masonic Baptism' has been recently applied in this country by some authorities to that ceremony which is used in certain of the high degrees, and which, more properly, should be called 'Lustration.' It has been objected that the use of the term is calculated to give needless offense to scrupulous persons who might suppose it to be an imitation of a Christian sacrament. But, in fact, the Masonic baptism has no allusion whatsoever, either in form or design, to the sacrament of the church. It is simply a lustration, or purification by water, a ceremony which was common to all the ancient initiations."

Under the head of "Lustration" the same authority (page 478) informs us that this was "a religious rite practiced by the ancients, and which was performed before any act of devotion. It consisted in washing the hands, and sometimes the whole body, in lustral or consecrated water. It was intended as a symbol of the internal purification of the heart.

This is the same thought that is embodied in the Protestant Episcopal Church catechism, where baptism is described as "the outward and visible sign of an inward and spiritual grace." Here both the heathen and Christian carry the idea of spiritual regeneration designated by the baptismal sign of water applied to the individual; and if we are not mistaken, the use of the water symbol in the rite of Masonic baptism in some of the higher degrees of the order conveys to many the same meaning.

Further "light of Masonry" on this subject is now vouchsafed to us by Rev. Henry M. Rugg, in the Freemason's Repository of a recent date. It is in an account of a so-called "Masonic Baptism" performed by a lodge of Symbolic Masons in Buenos Ayres. Thirteen children were brought to the altar of the lodge, where, after prayers and singing, water was poured upon the heads of the children, and its use explained. The explanation is that the child, by this ceremony, is adopted into the lodge, which is charged with its future care, as is the church when it receives a member into its communion by the ordinance of baptism.

Mr. Rugg does not defend the practice, and "regards the ceremony out of place in a Masonic lodge." We should think so! It is nothing but a travestie upon one of the most sacred of the Christian sacraments, and should be classed with the blasphemous "passion play."

PROPOSED EXTERMINATION OF ANARCHY.

The Anarchists of Spain are becoming a terror to all good citizens of that kingdom by their boldness and lawlessness. A writer in one of the newspapers at Madrid advises the settlement of anarchism at once, and in a way that will settle it for all time. He says that it is now a life-and-death struggle between society and those who desire to destroy every institution that marks society as civilized.

His plan demands a treatment that will not dally nor require the extinction of these social murderers by capital punishment at home; but he proposes to colonize them on some far-off island in the South Pacific Ocean, supply them "with a few necessary tools, and provide them with food sufficient to last until they can have reaped the products of their own industry..... Their greatest desires will be fulfilled; they will be allowed to live without God, property, fatherland, or family; without capitalists, without social institutions, without any laws to restrict their liberties."

We doubt the issue of this plan as a reformation. To us it seems more like extermination of the race involved, since they would have to WORK, than which nothing can be more distasteful to your true Anarchist. Each man would yearn to rule the others—to have them work for his support—and this condition, becoming universal on the island, would lead to internecine conflict until the strongest would first destroy the weakest, and end in the extermination of all but one—and he would rather die than work.

Seriously, the Anarchist is an outlaw. Like Ishmael, his hand is against every representative of civilization, its objects or its benefits. He is the outgrowth of discontent, a want of humanity, and a hideous enemy to honest industry. Rapine and murder are his sources of enjoyment. He is an iconoclast—ready to undermine the foundations of society, without providing a corresponding substitute for them. If he is past conversion, as he seems to be, superior force alone will be required for his subjugation.

SOME LODGE DEFENDERS.

Faint reverberations of the testimonies and addresses delivered at the recent State anti-secrecy convention in Pennsylvania continue to reach us from the lodgemen who were struck by the clear-cut and telling truths which were there given to the public. Two of these feeble echoes from the haunts of "Jubela and Jubelo, and also Jubelum," have reached us in clippings from the Germantown (Pa.) Gazette and the Nicetown Sun. The first takes offense because Rev. Stephen Merritt, after learning the best and the worst of what is Freemasonry for forty years, and climbing 148 steps in the Masonic ladder, "decided to be on the Lord's side," and quit the fraternity. To this Christian evidence against the evils of the lodge, the Gazette can find no stronger rebuttal than the hackneyed "good man" argument, and the fact that no Mason can enter the sacred precincts of the lodge "without a belief in a Supreme being"—as if there is any special benefit in a religion that goes no farther, "for even the devils believe" that much, "and tremble." "Honest Grip," in the Sun, attributes the "necessity for secret societies" to a "genuine want of society," which "organizes and gratifies every expressed desire by the adoption of fundamental principles guarded by a prudent secrecy." (We hope the gentleman understands what he means in this sentence, but it is doubtful.) He also attributes the opposition of anti-secretists to their "jealous vindictiveness!" Will these defenders of the secret, oath-bound lodge kindly tell us what there is in it that its opponents want, or why we have any cause for jealousy or vindictiveness after voluntarily forsaking it? Shall we everhear an argument in favor of secret societies that has not been a thousand times refuted by experienced graduates of the lodge?

A STRIKE EPIDEMIC.

Right on the heels of a hard winter, when thousands upon thousands of unemployed persons have had to subsist through dreary months on public and private charity, there comes news of strikes among nearly as many thousands of men and women, whose lives and those of their families have been prolonged and surrounded with comfort because they had steady work, at fairly remunerative wages, throughout the inclement season. Thousands who have been idle all winter are only too glad, even now, to find remunerative employment, while these discontented workmen in paying positions are creating confusion and strife, by refusing to work longer because the exigencies of the times demand retrenchment on the part of their employers. Rather than have their pay reduced a fraction, these malcontents prefer to yield their positions, on which the hope of future sustenance for themselves and their families depend, and lie idle for an indefinite period.

Among the incidents of the past week in the labor world we note the following: A strike, involving about 10,000 laborers in the mines of Pennsylvania, ordered by a labor confederation in that State. Mr. Frick's company have signed a scale of wages for the season of 1894, in accordance with the demands of their workmen. The latter are at present content; but a local dispatch says: "Should the men at the other plants strike, the Frick employes will be forced out, and rioting and trouble may be expected."

Five hundred and twenty-five cigar-makers of the 600 employed by a manufacturing firm in this city, struck on Thursday last because the firm refused to re-instate a workman who had been discharged for alleged neglect of duty. They propose to remain out until they can have their own way in the shop.

Twenty-five hundred workmen employed by Crane Bros. Manufacturing Co., and its branches in this city, quit work last week, owing to a necessary reduction in wages. The company had been liberal with its men, about forty of whom were admitted as stockholders and sharers in the profits of the concern. These men, since the strike, have been notified by the union to withdraw their interests in the company. This strike is likely to prove a boomerang, as the company have discharged the clerks and women employed in the offices and shops, and give no indications of resuming business in the near future. This will leave the strikers stranded on a shoal of their own seeking.

These are but samples of the "benefits" which the trades-unions are heaping upon their adherents. If a man can live on his wages and be content, he cannot be allowed to do it. That is the dictum of his lodge, and he then has plenty of time to contemplate the misery of his family.

There is another view of this subject, however, of which we should not lose sight, and that is the greed and meanness of organized employers who use their combinations to distress, grind and squeeze their employes down to the lowest remuneration by which their souls and bodies can be kept together, and depriving them of all else that makes life desirable. It is these combinations of wealth and power that have led to the arbitrary organizations of workingmen. Such organizations for the protection of the wage-worker have become almost a necessity, but they are so loaded down with secrecy and bitterness against capital that the breach between capital and labor becomes harder every year to heal. What is needed is more of mutual consideration and conciliation, with a government court of arbitration to which all disputed questions may be referred, and whose decisions in every case shall be wise and final. The labor question can never be rightly settled in any other way.

—Mead A. Kelsey, of Traverse City, Mich., has a four-column article in the Christian Worker, of Chicago—the Friends' able journal—for March 29. It is sound along the line of our reform, and is calculated to bring light to those who sit in darkness as to the evils and perils of the oath-bound lodge system. The author would like to correspond with members of the Friends' church in each of the yearly meetings, with a view of more widely disseminating the truth concerning secret societies—especially with the book and tract committees of that denomination.

—Those who believe that the modern stage has any claims to morality and virtue will find themselves undeceived by reading the estimate of it made by one of the most popular of living actresses—Madame Januaschek—who told the people of Baltimore recently that the key to success on the stage at present was notoriety, no matter how infamously gained. "Coarseness and sensuality," she said, "seem to be the views of our nineteenth century life. The prize ring supplies the stage with its male stars and the divorce court supplies it with its female stars." It is not likely that this picture is in the least overdrawn.

—George Ticknor Curtis, a prominent lawyer and author, died last week. Under the fugitive-slave law of 1850, as a United States Commissioner, he heard the case against Thomas Sims, an escaped slave who sought refuge in Boston and had the protection of Garrison, Sumner, Wright and other Abolitionists. He directed that the fugitive should be returned to the owner, and the order was executed notwithstanding the resistance of the greatest mob that Boston ever saw. Yet, when the Southern Rebellion followed, as a sequence of that infamous law, Mr. Curtis supported the Union cause, although he sometimes dissented from the policy of Mr. Lincoln in that struggle.

—Ignatius Donnelly and A. R. Sims, the Wisconsin State lecturer of the A. P. A., held a joint debate on the merits of the association at Milwaukee, last week. Hundreds were unable to gain entrance to the hall, which was packed with about 2,000 persons. Donnelly made strong arguments against the order, but was cleverly met by his opponent. The sensation of the evening occurred when Sims asked the Roman Catholics present whether they would obey a command from this government in preference to one of an opposite character from the Pope of Rome. The yells of "Yes!" were so loud and numerous as to indicate intense enthusiasm. But we do not consider it a safe or satisfactory test of genuine loyalty to our American institutions.

—J. S. Coxey, who, with his Commonweal Army, continues to slowly advance toward Washington, for the purposes heretofore noted, is a middle-aged man of fortune, engaged in the business of breeding and working blooded horses and operating a sandbank and stone-quarry. His home is in Ohio. In politics he is described as "an enthusiastic Populist, graduated from the old greenback party, naturally seeking the solution of his good-roads hobby along the ideas of these parties. In the issue of money without intrinsic value or substantial foundation he sees what will be to him the millennium—long stretches of smooth country roads, hard as adamant and of easy grades." The press of the United States is devoting altogether too much space to him and his hobbies.

—A scene not in the conventional ritual of the sixteenth degree of Scottish Rite Masonry—"Princes of Jerusalem"—was recently enacted in the "cathedral" of the Michigan Sovereign Consistory, during the initiation of several candidates "from all over the State." During a brief intermission in the work a prominent member of the fraternity fell dead on the floor. Valvular disease of the heart was the cause of his demise, the suddeness of which had a startling effect upon the assembly. The "drama" of this degree is not of Bible origin, but from Josephus' Works. Its inventor is unknown, but it was perpetuated by Ramsay and his Jesuits in the old "Rite of Perfection." It is related that Jews modified that rite into the Charleston version of the Scottish Rite in America, turning the original "Princes of Jerusalem"—"Soldiers of Jesus Christ"—into ancient Jews of the time of the Second Temple, and eliminating whatever referred therein to our Saviour. It seems as if one would rather die elsewhere than among the mysteries of this unhallowed false worship.

—In "Father" Lambert, a Redemptorist priest of extraordinary erudition and extensive fame, and one of the ablest refuters of Robert G. Ingersoll's infidel teachings, the Roman Catholic Church in America has lost one of its principal pillars. Quite recently he has withdrawn from that church and its communion, and has found refuge for a season with Rev. James O'Connor, the founder of Christ's Mission in New York, which this excellent man of God—himself a converted Catholic priest—established for the conversion to Christianity of all who are, like "Father" Lambert, tired of the church in which they have been reared. "Father" Lambert says very plainly: 'The intolerance and duplicity which almost from the day of my ordination to the priesthood I found in the Roman Catholic Church have become utterly unbearable to me. Having also come to the conclusion that there is only one High Priest, the God-man Jesus Christ, and one sacrifice, not to be repeated, and, in consequence, doubting my position as a priest, I could not act otherwise than I do now." Let us pray that more benighted ministers, in and out of the Roman Catholic Church, and in the secret oath-bound lodges of Satan, may see the light of God as clearly, and come out from among them.

REFORM NEWS (Continued from 5th page.)

large, commodious structure has taken the place of others known only in history. Under the efficient labors of Bro. Tilton, the present pastor, there has been a healthy growth.

I made the acquaintance of Bro. Tilton at the time of our convention in Allegheny. He has since read the Cynosure, and learned much of the evil being done by the lodge system. As a faithful shepherd he desired his people to know of the snares set for them and extended a cordial invitation to your agent to present the facts. The little lodges have been creeping in around the borders, and their pernicious influence is being felt in this quiet country town, as elsewhere. While many were pleased to hear the truth that I had brought, some manifested their disapproval. I regretted that time did not permit my remaining for a few days' visit and canvass. I am assured that the door will be open when I pass that way again.

I reached home about midnight on Monday. Bushels of poems have been written on the blessings of home, and I shall not attempt another, but will simply remark, in passing, that I have the best there is to be had.

To morrow I must leave for the field again. Men are perishing. Peradventure, God may use me in throwing out the lifeline to some who may be rescued.

W. B. Stoddard.

The Home.

THE DEVIL'S PACK.

BY REV. ALEXANDER THOMSON.

There is a pack of eager hounds
That hunt the whole night through,
And many a man, and many a child,
And many a matron, hunger-wild,
Has cursed the deadly crew.

Their names are known through all the land—
Jack, Ace, and King, and Queen,
And Clubs, and Spades—each strength imparts—
And Diamonds, and the Queen of Hearts,
Come yelping on the scene.

They hunt the pleasant leisure hour
And take its life away,
Leaving its throttled body where
It taints the sweetness of the air
With foulness of decay.

They hunt the lives, so calm and free
From fierce excitement's heat,
Till even in their dreams they hear
The yelping pack, and wake, and fear
The scurrying of their feet.

They break into the peasant's hut—
Into the parlor where,
Beneath the crystal chandelier,
The white breast heaves, and gleams the tear
On lashes long and fair.

They hunt contentment from the heart—
Religion from the soul;
They hunt high thoughts until they lie,
Throttled by heaps, to bleed and die
Where Dead Sea surges roll.

And after their forever toil,
The huntsmen, staunch and true,
With little time for thought or rest,
For church, or state, or sweet home nest,
Follow the yelping crew.

God's curse upon the graceless pack
That worries the earth to-day!—
God's blessing on the souls who guard
Their homes, and, standing watch and ward,
Keep this foul pack away.

Tomahawk, Wis.

FAITHFUL UNTO DEATH.

The quaint old Flemish city of Bruges was the scene of many a martyr-death, in the persecution of the Protestants, during the sixteenth century, under the Duke of Alva. This Alva was, as all readers of history are aware, the willing agent of the gloomy bigot, Philip of Spain, who, in 1588, sent his "Invincible Armada" against England, with the design of reducing her to a Catholic province of Rome; but, by God's providence, the Armada was scattered before the winds, and the little island was saved from the yoke of superstition and cruelty. Not so, however, was it with the Netherlands. At least 100,000 people of all ages, men, women and youths, had suffered torture, imprisonment, and death, before any deliverance was wrought out. And among all who suffered martyrdom for their faith in Christ, not one was more courageous, nor more faithful to the end, than Weynken Van Renesse, a young girl, not quite 18 years of age.

Weynken filled a subordinate position in the house of a merchant at Bruges, named Van der Witte, and fulfilled to the best of her ability the duties of her situation as head nurse to the young family of the burgomaster. He himself was not particular in his religious opinions; in fact, he thought more of amassing wealth, and building up a prosperous business for his sons, than that of any disputed doctrines. For the main, he held that religion belonged to the priests, and that it was sufficient to do what they commanded in order to gain heaven at last. Weynken's mistress was a little more thoughtful on religious matters than her husband, but even she thought more of her appearance, as a Flemish matron of good position, among the other burgomaster's wives, than of the world to come, or of any treasure laid up there. If she spoke of these things at all it was only to rebuke the young girl, who from the pages of her New Testament, handed down to her by her father, sometimes quoted strange and startling words.

This Testament old Van Renesse had received from Tyndale's hands, and when departing this life in the faith taught by that reformer, had bequeathed the volume to Weynken as his most precious legacy. Ever since then it had remained in her secret keeping, treasured up as a miser hoards his gold. "The word of the Lord was precious in those days."

Precious above rubies it was likely to become to Weynken, for a decree was published by the Duke of Alva that all possessing copies of God's Word should expiate the offence with their lives. They were to be put to death as heretics of the worst order, while all in high positions suspected of holding Protestant opinions were, in addition, accused of high treason.

Weynken's mistress was much attached to her, seeing that the little ones of the household had been nursed and tended, day after day, now for five years, by the quiet, calm Flemish maiden, who was about to fall under suspicion of heresy. And in that dreadful time to fall under this suspicion was quite enough. Alva and his co-inquisitors needed no strong proofs of heresy: it was quite sufficient for a man or woman to peruse the Bible in the native tongue, or to prefer its teachings to those of the monks and friars. And some evil-disposed person had confided to a friar, who was accustomed to visit at the house of the burgomaster whom Weynken served, that the modest, intelligent young maiden possessed a Testament which had been printed by William Tyndale.

The friar lost no time in visiting the house, armed with due authority to question and threaten the young girl. A few words served to unfold Father Maurier's errand to the trembling lady of the house, who, with her husband, dreaded much lest any suspicion of false doctrine should attach to them, and then Weynken Van Renesse was summoned to his presence.

She came, calm, pale, but self-possessed, as if cherishing a hidden strength and peace which nothing could shake. She possessed an air of noble birth—indeed, her father was descended from a well-born family, and filled a position superior to that of the burgomaster whom she then served; but reverses had come upon him, and at his death she, the only scion of his house, had been compelled by poverty and loneliness to accept service in Bruges. But her years of faithful tending the little ones of that home had produced a large measure of esteem and affection on both sides. Weynken loved the children, and the mother of those children loved Weynken only second to them; so that when she was accused by the friar of heresy, she, womanlike, defended her young hand-maiden with more warmth than discretion. But Father Maurier only returned his usual cold, sinister look, and, rubbing his hands, waited for the prey which he already felt sure of.

"Weynken," said he, as she came quietly and modestly before him, "I am informed that thou art a heretic! Thou dost not believe in the mass!"

"I am sure the girl goes to mass, and that as regularly as many who profess great attachment to our church, father," said the lady, who sat near to encourage her hand-maiden; "and I am sure if Weynken has a Testament, it must have been lent her by some one not overwise. Thou wilt return it to its owner, or give up the book to the good father, to be dealt with as he shall decide. Say, child, is it not so?"

Weynken understood from these words, what the friar also was not slow in perceiving, that they were meant to suggest a plan of escape. She looked her thanks to her mistress, but she calmly summoned her strength to tell the truth, and to anticipate the consequences.

"Yes, father, I have a Testament, imprinted by Master William Tyndale. My mistress knows not of it; she may have thought that I had borrowed one. But it is a legacy from my father, and, as such, very precious to me."

"Then thy father was not content to lose his own soul, but imperiled thine also, by bequeathing to thee this dangerous weapon! You see," continued he, turning to the lady of the house, who now sat dumbfounded at the failure of her kindly-meant subterfuge, "you see that these heretics are never idle. They sow the seed of their heresy to take root from generation to generation. This child absolutely boasts herself in her wickedness.

"Tell me, thou false heretic," said he, returning to the attack, "what hast thou learnt from this book? How far hast thou gone in heresy?"

"I have learnt that Jesus Christ saves us, if we believe in him, confess our sins to him, and love him," replied the girl. "I thought that all good Catholics believed the same."

"What! do you not believe in the intercession of the saints for us? Do you not pray to the Virgin Mary?"

"The saints cannot intercede for me. Jesus Christ is the true intercessor for poor sinners. He ever lives in heaven to plead for us. As to the Virgin Mary, 'she was blessed above women,' but she cannot pray for me."

"Rank heresy! Thou hast taught this doctrine to thy mistress' children, I'll warrant me," exclaimed the enraged friar.

"No, father; I have only heard their simple prayers at night and morning; I have not taught them my belief," replied the maiden.

"So far, so good. Now, wilt thou save thy life by confessing to me and renouncing these heresies? Thou art only a weak girl, and knowest naught of the questions that perplex men's minds. Why, then, shouldest thou die as a stubborn heretic?"

"I have confessed all my sins to Jesus Christ. I want no other confessor; I do not believe in any other—"

"Nay, I will hear no more," exclaimed Father Maurier, "I have heard enough! I must warn you also, as it becomes my bounden duty," said he, turning to the lady of the house, "that you shelter under your roof one of the rankest heretics I have ever reasoned with. She is stubborn beyond conception."

"Nay, father," said the lady, "do not be so hard upon the poor misguided child—for she is little more than a child. She is an orphan, too, and that should commend her to thy pity. For the rest, leave her to me, and I will promise to do my best to dispossess her mind of these opinions."

"You may as soon expect to wash an Ethiopian white, as to expect one of these children of the devil to renounce his opinions. If the torture and the stake cannot constrain them thus to abjure, surely thou wilt do nothing."

Saying so, Father Maurier strode out of the house, bent with merciless eagerness upon his cruel errand. It was now his congenial task to hunt and persecute this poor trembling girl to the death. She looked at her mistress, as the footfalls of the priest died away, and falling down before her, said:

"Dear mistress, you have pleaded for me kindly to-day, and I thank you much. But it is of no use. I can plainly see that Father Maurier will obtain my death; if so, I am willing; I shall only rejoin my father a little more quickly in the world of joy."

"But do you not feel because of leaving us, and all the little ones who have learned to love you so much? Oh, Weynken, I did not think that our house would have to endure the stain of furnishing a heretic for the stake! And yet, I will not believe it! It must not be that you—a girl of your tender years—shall be allowed to perish thus. Your master will intercede for you, I know he will."

"Mistress, you forget that neither age, rank, nor station will avail in this time of persecution. Is not the best blood of our beloved Flanders being spilt, and that of all the provinces in the land, in order to crush out Protestantism? I shall not be spared, and I am ready to die for the Lord who died for me! But this I will do, and maybe in after-days thou wilt thank me for it. I will secrete my beloved Testament at once, before I am taken away to prison, in some safe place, leaving information of its whereabouts in a sealed paper, which thou needest not discover until I am dead, and when the matter is quiet. Then, thou canst truthfully declare to the officers of justice that thou knowest naught of the book. It is a printed book of much value, and was one of the first finished by godly Master Tyndale. He also sealed his faith by a brave martyrdom, as I shall, if the Lord grant me strength. The disciple should not be above her Lord."

That same night, Weynken secreted the precious Testament in the old lumber-room of the house, and deposited the sealed paper containing instructions where to find it in her mistress' room. It was her most precious legacy to the family, and was hidden not an hour too soon, for next morning, almost as soon as daylight broke, a party of soldiers arrived to apprehend her. The children clung around her, as if to defend her from the soldiers; the good burgomaster stormed and swore, as in those days burgomasters were expected to do, and his wife protested, with tears, against the cruelty of seizing a mere girl. But all in vain. Weynken was carried off to prison, and from thence, very quickly before the stern tribunal which had already won for itself the name of "The Council of Blood."

As usual, her examination was short, and in default of the production of the now missing Testament, which could not be discovered, her own words condemned her. Weynken boldly confessed her faith in Christ as her Saviour. The sentence was, not that she should be burnt at the stake, but that she should be immured alive in the city wall. She shuddered as she heard the terrible doom, but she did not recant one word of her confession.

Within a week afterwards, Weynken Van Renesse was led forth to death. The procession consisted of a guard of soldiers, two friars, a couple of masons, and the gaoler in attendance upon the prisoner. It was the fair, fresh dawn of a beautiful summer day, and as she looked around upon the face of the earth she was soon about to leave forever, a very natural pang shot through her heart at the thought that she should soon see it no more. But some of the words of that Book which had cost her so dear rose up before her mind's vision, and as she thought of "the new heavens and the new earth," she felt strong again to die. She had quoted the words to her weeping mistress only overnight, for she, together with her husband, had come to bid her an affectionate farewell.

Presently the party stood on the city wall, opposite what looked like a deep hole in the massive masonry. It was the space which had been hollowed out to receive her. As she stood opposite the living tomb, one of the friars said:

"Wilt thou recant, now? Our church is merciful to ignorant heretics. I am empowered to offer thee thy life, upon condition of thy recanting and doing penance. Wilt thou accept the proffered terms?"

The startled girl looked around at the tempter, and said, "No, no; I will not recant. If I deny Him, he will also deny me!"

"Lower her," was the brief command. "She does not value life."

Presently she stood down in the opening of the wall, her head alone being above the masonry. There was only room to stand with folded hands; but she took another look around on the dear old city ere she closed her eyes on life.

Once more the temptation came: "Wilt thou deny this faith and save thy life? This is thy last chance."

She looked up, the blue eyes swimming in tears, but firm as a rock. "Nay, I tell thee! If I confess my Lord to the death, he will also confess me before all people. This is my final answer."

"Finish your work," was the stern command to the masons, who looked as if they wished themselves well out of the matter. The trained soldiers and the cruel friars looked on unmoved. It was yet too early for the townsfolk to be about, so the task was accomplished without tumult; and Weynken Van Renesse passed away to her unfading crown, from her living tomb. When all was over the party marched back to the prison.

More than a century afterwards the skeleton of this brave martyr-girl was discovered in the city wall of Bruges, and received Christian burial; but the Tyndale Testament was handed down in the family of the Burgomaster Van der Witte as its most precious treasure. It did its work well, and sowed Protestant truth in the minds of those whom Weynken had nursed. Most probably she and they have now met in the kingdom of that Christ whom she thus nobly confessed.—E. R. Pitman, in Young England.

A WANDERING BOY BROUGHT HOME.

The sparrows are looked after, the ravens are fed, the grass is clothed with beauty, and the very hairs of our heads are all numbered; and yet we need to be constantly reminded of our heavenly Father's faithfulness and care, his willingness to listen to our cries, and his ability to do for us exceeding abundantly above all we ask or think.

The Christian, London, furnishes us this "true incident" which may encourage some doubting heart, and strengthen some mother to pray on for her "wandering boy."

"We have received from Mr. George Lawrence the following remarkable incident, related in a recent letter to him by his daughter, who resides in Cardiff. Miss Lawrence writes:

"'As I am talking about gifts, I may as well tell you about one of those Christmas presents we saw distributed on boxing night at the festival. A Norwegian "wandering boy" had left his home and mother twenty-one years ago, and had not written to the latter for sixteen years. He was wandering about on Christmas morning in an unhappy frame of mind when he heard the singing, and went into the N—— church. Mr. H—— invited all present to the festival next day. At the time named, the "wandering boy" turned up. The number of his ticket was four hundred and something, and I think the corresponding present was a muffler. He did not trouble much about it; but before "turning in" that night, he thought he would inspect it. Fastened to it was a letter addressed to whatever sailor should receive the gift. He opened it, and read the kind message from the maker and sender, who said she was over seventy years old; she had three sons who had gone to sea; the youngest of them had not written to her for sixteen years, and she knew nothing of him. Her signature was at the bottom. When he read it, imagine his feelings; it was his mother's! He had twenty-seven pounds coming to him as wages. He received it, "rigged himself out," and took the first steamer home to gladden her heart and give her a "Happy New Year." Was it not wonderful? Nearly 1,000 presents sent, and the right one to go to the right man! I am sure she is a praying mother.'"

Oh, that men would praise the Lord for his goodness; for his wonderful works to the children of men.—Christian.

GOD'S ETERNAL YEARS.

BY MRS. VICTORIA ALEXANDRA STONE.

Shine on, eternal years of God!
The stars are bright along thy way;
The path the saints and martyrs trod
Is just as pure and bright to-day!
God's own right hand still beckons on;
This truth descends from Eden's bowers—
Whate'er befall from sun to sun,
"The eternal years of God are ours."

The eternal years of God are bright,
His breath blows softly on our way;
Whate'er befall from dark to light,
It leads us up the shining way.
The gates of heaven will never close
While angels strew the path with flowers;
His hand controls each wind that blows—
"The eternal years of God are ours."

Shine on, shine on, oh, years of God!
Our times are always in thy hand;
Thy fingers hold the years of blood;
They fall, like shining grains of sand
Fear not the days so dark with pain,
They soon will end in Zion's bowers;
"Truth crushed to earth will rise again;
The eternal years of God are ours."

Steamburgh, N. Y.

TEMPERANCE.

THE MURDEROUS SALOON.

It takes a case such as we had at Salem, Ore., last Thanksgiving day, to convince many that the above is true.

Richard McGee, a laborer, was found dead at the rear of Bill Anderson's saloon, on the morning after Thanksgiving. The Capitol Journal said: "His death was undoubtedly caused by excessive drinking of egg-nog at the aforesaid saloon, when it was served free to all who came."

At the inquest the corner's jury decided that "he came to his death by alcoholic or other poison to us unknown." The testimony of witnesses was that he never left Anderson's saloon from the time he commenced drinking till he was carried out dead.

This makes Anderson a murderer. In an address delivered at Salem a few days after the occurrence, we branded him as a murderer, and stated that according to the law he should be hung. Is it a greater crime to put a ball through a man's brain, or a knife through his heart, than to murder him with poisonous egg-nog? The man who chooses the slow process of murder, and its consequent results, is foolish in the extreme. If a man is bound to be murdered by drink, why will he not act more wisely? Let him make his wife barkeeper. Barkeepers pay on an average $2 per gallon for whisky. One gallon contains an average of sixty-five drinks, and at ten cents a drink the poor man pays $6,50 per gallon for his whisky. In other words, he pays $2 for the whisky, and $4.50 to a man for handing it over the bar. If this should reach the eye of any man who drinks, let me beseech you to make your wife your barkeeper. Lend her $2 to buy a gallon of whisky for a beginning, and every time you want a drink, go to her and pay ten cents for it. By the time you have drank a gallon, she will have $6.50, or enough money to refund the $2 borrowed of you, to pay for another gallon of whisky, and have $2.50 left. She will be able to conduct further operations on her own capital; and when you become an inebriate, unable to support yourself, shunned and despised by all respectable persons, your wife will have enough money to keep you till you get ready to fill a drunkard's grave.

"A prudent man foreseeth the evil, and hideth himself."

Oh, that men were wise, and would shun the murderous saloon! P. B. Williams.

Philomath, Ore.

PROHIBITION AND THE LODGE.

If the folly of organized secrecy was abandoned it would remove the temptation, and to a large extent prevent many from taking undue advantage of their fellow-men. Good men, good deeds and good principles do not need the cover that secrecy affords. And though good men have engaged in secret organizations, they do not feel that they need the screen it affords to crime, as do vile characters. Wherever there is a prohibitory law against rum, secrecy furnishes a cover, and the only protection to the vile traffic. Men can get whisky in nearly every town in any prohibition State, and this is seldom and little known except by some lodgemen, especially in a way that justice is done in vindication of the righteous law. One of the best of Freemasons told me, in defence of the order, that he got "whisky for medicine," from "a stranger," by giving a "sign." What assurance have we that bad men will not use the same "benevolent" cover against law and the best interests for man? Individuals acting singly and without concert of action in privacy could not so nearly nullify the law. "One sinner destroyeth much good," but thousands organized into a monopoly of secrecy can do vastly more harm to the cause of temperance, or any other good work, than in any other way. In secret harmony two are equal to ten thousand.

How can the Voice claim to be "aggressively right" and ignore the secrecy question? Why do the heavy guns of the prohibition battery never fire a shot into the camp where the enemy is entrenched? Organized secrecy is the fort of the rum-fiend and the dragon of every evil work. When good men and prohibitionists are no longer deceived by the cover and flood of her deceitful iniquity, the church will be more gloriously righteous and a higher civilization exist. Then prohibition will not be a fight, but a pleasure to all, and the devil's tea-kettle where he boiled his coffee—the still—will be no more. Cyrus Smith.

De Kalb, Iowa.

NUGGETS.

Drink baffles us, confounds us, shames us and mocks us at every point. The public house holds its triumphant course.—London Times.

Lady Henry Somerset is appealing for offerings from all the branches of the B. W. T. A. towards establishing a home for inebriate women.

According to the Brewers' Journal seventy-five times as much beer is consumed in high license Nebraska as there is in prohibition Kansas.

When the path of political preferment leads through the ginmills, free government is a farce and its future likely to be an outrage.—Joseph Cook.

In forty-four States and Territories 13,000,000 children now receive scientific instruction on the physical and mental effects of the use of alcoholic liquors.

A religious paper is authority for saying that Lord Roberts, late commander-in-chief of the British forces in India, reports to the British Secretary of War that the effect of temperance work in that country was equal to the addition of three efficient battalions to the British army.

BIBLE LESSON.

STUDIES IN THE BOOKS OF MOSES.

LESSON III.—Second Quarter, 1894, April 15.

SUBJECT.—Joseph Sold into Egypt.—Gen 37: 1-11.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Ye thought evil against me; but God meant it unto good.—Gen. 50: 20.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

Daily Readings.—M.—Gen. 37: 26-36. T.—Gen. 37: 13-22. W. Gen. 39: 1-6. Th.—Psalm 15: 16-22. F.—Psalm 37: 1-13. S.—Matt. 10: 21-31. Su.—1 Pet. 3: 8-17.

COMMENTS BY E. E. FLAGG.

1. Joseph cast into a pit.—vs. 23, 24. Jacob's anxiety regarding the safety of his sons was doubtless owing to the fact that they had rendered themselves obnoxious (ch. 34: 30) to the inhabitants of the country by their cruel and treacherous slaughter of the Shechemites. Joseph came to his brethren, as his father's ambassador, with words of friendliness and peace. So Christ came as an ambassador from the divine Father, and, like Joseph, received only mockery and cruel treatment. "They stripped him of his coat." This coat of many colors was the distinguishing mark of Jacob's foolish partiality. It was like a medal or badge of honor, not so valuable in itself as in what it signified;—that he was the favorite son, to be preferred before the others to places of family trust and dignity—perhaps eventually to receive the birthright. "And they took him and cast him into a pit," there to die a lingering death of starvation, although Reuben, the only one who appears to have shrank from the cruel plot, suggested this way to dispose of him as a means by which he might himself secretly effect his deliverance; while their idea was to murder him first and then impose on their father with the story that he had been killed by some wild beast. We know not whether the plan to put their hated younger brother out of the way was a sudden satanic inspiration, conceived and executed on the spur of the moment, or whether they had long been concocting the plot. The last supposition is the most reasonable. Men do not become full-fledged criminals at once, but by slowly cherishing and turning over in their minds their evil plans, till they grow familiar with the idea, and its wickedness ceases to shock them. Our only safety lies in resolutely shutting out every malicious, envious thought which, indulged in, will surely lead us to hate our brother; "and he that hateth his brother is a murderer."

2. Joseph sold into Egypt.—vs. 25–28. "And they sat down to eat bread" with the cries and lamentations of Joseph still sounding in their ears. Some bravado may have mingled with this exhibition of hardness and brutality. Desperate criminals often put on the semblance of indifference, thinking to still conscience by acting as if they had done nothing wrong. "A company of Ishmaelites," tribes of Northern Arabia, who long enjoyed a monopoly of trade and commerce. A party seated on the plains of Dothan could trace them and their string of camels in the distance. "Bearing spicery and balm, and myrrh." These were in enormous demand in Egypt for purposes of embalmment. Judah's proposal to sell Joseph as a slave seems to have been dictated by a general shrinking on his part from the horrible crime they were about to commit, and the rest seem to have been struck with this easy way to dispose of Joseph without the guilt of an actual murder, and at the same time to enrich themselves. Here, again, we are reminded that Christ himself was sold for the price of a common slave, thirty pieces of silver. The subterfuges by which wicked men deceive themselves with the thought they are not so bad as they might be, are many, but they deceive only themselves, and that but for awhile. Conscience always wakes at last, as it did in the case of Joseph's brethren, when, in danger of being themselves sold as slaves, they said: "We are verily guilty concerning our brother." (ch. 42: 21.)

3 Jacob's sorrow —vs. 29–36. Reuben's grief and consternation were evidently unaffected. As the oldest son, he may have felt that his father would require a stricter account from him; but he seems to have easily fallen in with the plan of the rest to cruelly deceive their aged father by showing him Joseph's coat stained with blood, and making him believe that "an evil beast hath devoured him." "And Jacob rent his clothes," etc. The pathos of the picture is unequalled, unless by the cruel hypocrisy of his sons, who could pretend to try to comfort him when all the while they knew that Joseph was living, a slave in Egypt, and might be found and ransomed if they would tell the truth. "For I will go down into the grave unto my son mourning." This expresses the feeling of too many bereaved parents, who sorrow as those without hope. Jacob little thought when he abandoned himself to such despairing grief, what bright and blessed days the future had in store for him, when he should see his beloved Joseph prime minister of Egypt, and pass his remaining years cherished and cared for by him. "And the Midianites sold him into Egypt." How could Joseph now ever be their lord and ruler? Yet this was the very means God was taking to bring about the fulfillment of Joseph's dream. How dark and strange it must have looked to Joseph himself. So our darkest and strangest experiences are only parts of God's great plan, links in the chain of his divine purpose, and including the highest good for us if we but meekly accept his will.

LITERATURE.

A Lamp to the Path: The Word of God in the Heart, the Home, the Workshop, and the Market-place. By W. K. Tweedie, D. D., with a Preface by H. L. Hastings. One vol. pp. 240. Boston: H. L. Hastings, 47 Cornhill. Price in cloth, 75 cents.

This is a grand little treatise on practical Christianity in everyday life. Its scope is very wide, taking in "all sorts and conditions of men," their needs and their opportunities for bearing testimony to the truth of God and his Word, and of exercising every Christian virtue. All through its pages is manifest the spirituality of Christ and his work, and the work submitted to his followers by him. Once in a while we find a book which, as a true expositor of the mind of Christ, may be read, reread, studied and meditated upon with certain profit, and this volume belongs to this class. Further, we believe that those who closely apply its teachings to their own lives are surely fitting themselves for the sinless future of eternal life.

CURRENT PERIODICALS.

Scribner's Magazine for April opens with the second of Octave Thanet's sketches of American Types, suggested by her observations among the State buildings during the World's Fair. In this article she describes The Farmer in the South. A very different type of character is treated by H. C. Bunner in his Bowery and Bohemia. His familiarity with New York life enables him to describe a type of humanity little known and but imperfectly understood. A group of clever artists is described by Arsene Alexandre in French Caricature of To-day. He is, by acquaintance and study, particularly well-fitted to write of these bright men who satirize the follies of the hour. Gustav Kobbe, in Life Under Water, gives stirring adventures of a diver as related by a veteran. The illustrations are made from life among the divers of New York Bay. Another illustrated article is A Winter Journey Up the Coast of Norway, by Hon. Rasmus B. Anderson, Ex-Minister of the Untied States to Denmark. Thos. Nelson Page contributes The Burial of the Guns—a dramatic episode of the very end of the Rebellion. There are installments of George W. Cable's serial, John March, Southerner, and a Pound of Cure, by William Henry Bishop. William A. Coffin writes A Word About Painting, apropos of present tendencies in American art; and Austin Dobson, the leading authority on 18th-Century life and letters, writes of a famous London book-shop. This number contains poems by Edith M. Thomas, J. West Roosevelt, Duncan Campbell Scott, and others. The illustrations, as usual, possess fine artistic merit. New York: Chas. Scribner's Sons. Price, 25 cents.

St. Nicholas for April has a charm for the little ones at home, and some of the larger ones who can steal a few moments of leisure to enjoy it. This number closes the volume, and Toinette's Philip, by Mrs. Jamieson. Tom Sawyer Abroad, by Mark Twain, also comes to an end, in rather a disappointing way. Howard Pyle begins a new serial story that promises well—Jack Ballister's Fortunes. Recollections of the Wild Life, by Charles A. Eastman, and The Brownies in Fairyland, by Palmer Cox, present new installments. The more solid monographs are: Our Wolves and Foxes, by W. T. Hornaday, On a Glacier in Greenland, by Albert W. Vorse, and San Francisco (Cal.) and some of its attractions, by Chas. H. Shinn. The lighter sketches, verses and pictures are numerous and funny. In the matter of illustration this number is replete with excellent engravings. Published by the Century Co., 33 East 17th street, New York City. Price, 25 cents.

Worthington's Magazine for April, like its predecessors, is well adapted to the tastes and needs of intelligent families, and presents an excellent table of contents. The leading article—Some Great Libraries of the United States, by S. G. W. Benjamin, is comprehensive and full of interest. American English, by Richard Burton, will command special consideration among thoughtful speakers and writers. Mrs. Livermore's serial story—One of the Forty-niners—is continued, with attractive and stirring incidents of the Southern Rebellion. S. Elgar Benet contributes Powhatan and Pocahontas, a love-story, with humorous and pathetic features that will be enjoyed. Other short stories, poems and essays, covering a good variety and ably written, are embodied in this number. The departments of the month are also as bright and instructive as usual. Published by A. D. Worthington & Co., Hartford, Conn. Price, 25 cents.

The Cottage Hearth for April is as fresh and spring-like as the season that brings it forth. Several home-like stories, with "pictures to match," will engage the attention of lady readers. Their titles are as follows: The Artistic Experiment of Berenice Waters; Sweet Lavender; A Chronicle of Niesenstein; A Random Arrow (especially good); A Little Surprise, and a continuation of The Mysterious Voyage of the Daphne. The usual ten social and domestic departments are models of varied intelligence and entertainment. Published by W. A. Wilde & Co., 25 Bromfield street, Boston. Price, 15 cents

NOTES.

Edwin L. Shuman, of the Chicago Journal staff, has in press a volume entitled "Steps into Journalism," which treats of newspaper work as a more or less exact science, and lays down its laws in an informal way for beginners, local correspondents, and reporters. It attempts to answer, among other things, the burning question of the would-be contributor—why editors reject manuscripts.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

CHURCH UNION.

—The questions of church union and co-operation are of living interest to all Christians. The union of the Baptists and the Disciples of Christ; the union of the Northern and Southern Presbyterian churches; the co-operation of the different bodies of Lutherans, are problems now in some form before these different denominations. What has been called a precedent step toward union between the Presbyterian churches North and South, was the appointment of committees by these two bodies for the purpose of harmonizing their work for the Negroes in the South. These committees recently met at Birmingham, Ala., and the discussion of the question of ultimate union has received a fresh impulse.—Christian Reformer.

INCREASE OF MISSIONARIES.

—The Second International Convention of the Students' Volunteer Movement, held in Detroit a few weeks ago, was a great and significant meeting. An attendance of about 800 at the utmost was expected; in fact, 1,357 delegates, representatives of foreign missionary boards and invited speakers, were present. Two hundred and ninety-four institutions were represented. The number who have resolved to consecrate themselves to the evangelization of the world has risen to 3,200. The persistence of this movement demands the attention of the churches who are entrusted with the work of winning the world to Christ. So far as man can judge the hand of God is in it. This army of students continues to say, "Here are we, send us."—Christian Intelligencer.

LUTHERAN.

—The Lutherans have increased more rapidly within the last fifteen years than any other religious denomination in this country. In 1880 they reported 687,418 communicants. Now they number more than twice that number, and are accounted one of the strongest of the Protestant forces. Their great increase is owing mainly to immigration from Germany and other Lutheran countries in Europe.

MENNONITES.

—A dispatch from Vandalia, Ill., states that large numbers of Mennonites are coming to Fayette county, where they have purchased nearly the whole of Sefton township, one of the richest in the country. Some seventy families have already arrived and others are coming. They bring their farm machinery with them.

PRESBYTERIAN.

—At a recent meeting of Presbyterian ministers and elders in London it was decided to organize a Presbyterian social union similar to that in New York. The Rev. Dr. George F. Pentecost presided over the gathering, and proffered the hospitality of Marylebone congregation for the first meeting, at which it was hoped the union would be fairly started. Membership in the union is not to be confined to office-bearers in the various congregations, but will be open to all members of Presbyterian churches.

SALVATION ARMY.

—An appeal has been issued for the purpose of raising a fund of £50,000 in order to celebrate the jubilee of the Salvation Army. In connection with this jubilee General Booth proposes to open a four-months' Salvation Army campaign in the United States next autumn. The General also proposes an international Salvation Army congress in July and expeditions to Japan, Java, and Demerara. General Booth says he has just received a legacy from a lady of £20,000; with which amount and the proposed fund of £50,000 he intends to pay part of the army's debt.

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

111 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. ☞ A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 65 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers. 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Allyn's Ritual of Freemasonry by Avery Allyn contains the fully Illustrated Ritual of the Blue Lodge, Chapter Council and Commandery, 11 of the Scotch Rite Degrees, Several Masonic side degrees and what is termed a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, the Orange and Odd-fellows Societies. Price in cloth $5.00.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor. Profusely illustrated with explanatory engravings, and containing the ritual and work of the order for the seven degrees, including the Royal Arch. Though extensively used as an Instruction Book and one of the best in the market it is not as accurate as "Freemasonry Illustrated," the first book on catalogue. Price in cloth, $2 50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry. Containing the ceremonies of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, etc. Illustrated. Although extensively used in conferring the higher degrees, it is not only very incomplete but inaccurate especially as regards the first seven degrees, and as to the higher degrees it gives but a description and general idea of the degrees rather than the full ritual. Price in cloth, $1.25; Paper covers, 75c.

Look to the East. A Ritual of the first three Masonic Degrees by Ralph Lester. Price in cloth $2.00. Notwithstanding the high price this book is very inferior in every way to Freemasonry Illustrated or The Handbook of Freemasonry at a quarter the price.

Ecce Orienti. The Complete Standard Ritual of the First Three Masonic Degrees in Cypher, with complete Floor Charts of Initiating, Passing and Raising a Candidate. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Cabala. The Complete Standard Ritual of the Chapter Masonic Degrees; 4th to 7th inclusive, in Cypher. Giving the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master and Royal Arch, Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Council of the Orient. The Complete Standard Ritual of Council Masonic Degrees in Cypher, 8th to 10th inclusive. Giving the Degrees of Royal Master, Select Master and Super Excellent Master. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

Knights of the Orient. The complete Ritual of the Commandery Masonic Degrees, Knights of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta, 11th to 13th degrees. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

The Mystic Shrine Illustrated. An Illustrated Ritual of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. This is a Side Masonic degree conferred only on Knights Templar and on Thirty-two degree Masons. 15 cts. each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion. 5 cents each.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper covers, 50cts.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Odd-fellowship: Its History and its Work. By President J. Blanchard. A new pamphlet with cover. Postpaid. 5 cts.

OTHER RITUALS.

Revised Knights of Pythias Illustrated. An exact copy of the new Official Ritual Adopted by the Supreme Lodge of the World, with the Secret work added and fully Illustrated. In cloth 50 cts. Paper cover 25 cts.

Knights of the Orient Illustrated. The full Illustrated Ritual of Ancient Order of the Orient, or the Oriental degree, This is a side degree conferred mostly in Knights of Pythias lodges. 15 cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and council. 25cts each.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin. Illustrated with engravings. 25 cents each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords etc. 15cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated, "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each.

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

Knights of Labor Illustrated ("Adelphon Kruptos.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

Folly, Expense and Danger of Secret Societies. By Pres. C. A. Blanchard. This booklet of 32 pages is a general discussion of the secret orders, whether religious, political, industrial, insurance or social. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Disloyal Secret Oaths. By Joseph Cook, Boston. He quotes the law of Vermont which makes the administration of the Masonic oaths illegal. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing? An address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891. W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's, too." A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void: or Freemasonry Self-Convicted. This is a book for the times. The design of the author is to refute the arguments of those who claim that the oaths of Freemasonry are binding upon those who take them. 207 pages. Postpaid, 40 cents each.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the lodge when S. H. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry. 15 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 300 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Masonry a Work of Darkness, adverse to Christianity, and inimical to republican government. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian) a seceding Mason of 21 degrees. 15 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. J. Day Brownlee. In reply to a Masonic Oration by Rev. Dr. Mayer, Wellsville, Ohio. 5 cents each.

Masonic Outrages. Compiled by Rev. H. H. Hinman. Showing Masonic assault on lives of seceders, on reputation, and on free speech; its interference with justice in courts, etc. Postpaid, 20 cents.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife, of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

A Booklet of 107 pages, which includes "The Martyr's Own Monument," by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association; "Christian Politics," by Rev. J Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure; "The Mysterious Machine: Was it Lawn-mower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow.—or what?" by Prof. E. D. Bailey, of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government. Postpaid 25 cts.

Jonathan Blanchard's Sermons and Addresses. Select discourses of the first editor of the Cynosure. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of living reform, Secret Societies, The Sabbath, Temperance, National Reform, Christian Education, Christian Socialism, The Bible, etc. A book everybody should read. 12mo. Fine photogravure portrait. Price, 75 cents.

American Handbook and Citizen Manual By Manlove N. Butler. Contents: Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement. Over 200 pages. Paper, single copy, 40c.

Image of the Beast: A Secret Empire; or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy. By Rev. Richard Horton. Third edition. 200 pages. Cloth. Price, 60 cents.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages paper cover. 25cts each.

Eminent Men on Secret Societies Composed of "Washington Opposed to Secret Societies," "Judge Whitney's Defence," "The Mystic Tie," "Narratives and Arguments," the "Anti-mason's Scrap-Book" and "Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry as Proved in the New Berlin Trials," 926 pages, cloth $1.00.

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear array of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Prof. J. G. Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies. A most convincing argument against fellowshiping Freemasons in the Christian church. 10 cents each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have. 5 cents each.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher. In cloth, 35cts each; paper covers, 15cts each.

Between Two Opinions: or the Question of the Hour. By Miss E. E. Flagg author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages, cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William M'Nary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury; "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion," and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth $1.00.

Stories of the Gods. By I. R. B. Arnold. Brief sketches from the mythology of Rome, Greece, Egypt, India, Persia, Phrygia, Scandinavia, Africa and America, showing the relations and unity of past and present systems. The idolatrous worship of the Masonic lodge is thus clearly seen and understood. Postpaid, 10 cents.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50cts each.

Home and Health.

Oranges are plentiful now, so a supply of inexpensive jam may be made. The following recipe will be excellent. The slightly bitter taste caused by using the peel is usually liked, and has the merit of being medicinal. It is just the relish to precede the early spring fruits.

Take one dozen oranges and six lemons and wash them thoroughly. Slice very thin, removing all the seeds. Pour over them one gallon of water and let stand thirty-six hours. Then boil gently for two hours. Add ten pounds of best white granulated sugar and cook one hour longer. Fill empty jelly-glasses and pint jars. Be sure that after a taste or two, every one at table, like Oliver Twist, will beg for "more."

It is a tedious task to fry sausage-meat and pack it down in lard for summer use as many housewives do in the country. A better plan is to fill gallon or half-gallon crocks with the sausage, place in the oven and cook thoroughly, keeping a pan over to prevent browning. When done, put a plate over and weight upon it. The grease will come up and seal it all around so the sausage will keep well. When wanted for use cut in slices and fry or brown in the oven.

To cook breakfast bacon, when there is no opportunity to broil it over the coals, place the slices in a wire broiler, put it over a bread-pan to catch the drip and cook in a hot oven, turning the broiler once. Ham is excellent cooked in the same way. To oven-broil chicken have the bread pan very hot, the chicken split open in the back and placed flat in the hot pan, skin side up. Bake some twenty minutes or half hour. Do not season or put in any water. When done, season with butter, pepper and salt, cutting gashes here and there to let the seasoning in. This mode of cooking is almost equal to broiling over coals and is much easier for the cook.

An economical and easy dish is baked liver. The best method is to lard the piece of liver with slices of breakfast bacon well drawn through. Place a slice of carrot and two sliced onions, a couple of bay leaves and two or three whole cloves in the baking-pan, on which place the liver; salt, pepper, and add a cup of water. Place in the oven and bake slowly, the time depending on the size and tenderness of the liver. When well done, dish the vegetables with the liver or omit if preferred, and make a good gravy.

When eggs are scarce or dear a cup of softened bread crumbs added to the well-beaten eggs will make an excellent omelet with a less number of eggs.—Belle P. Drury, in Farm and Fireside

PROPHECY:
A STUDY.

BY REV. S. F. PORTER,

A Study of Christ's Comings.

Paper Cover, 100 Pages.

Single copies, postpaid..... 25 cents.
Per 100 copies, postpaid..... $20.00.

For sale by the

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

THE
Folly, Expense & Danger
OF
SECRET SOCIETIES.
BY
CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.
(President Wheaton College.)

5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago

16 Boils at Once

Hood's Sarsaparilla Purifies the Blood and Restores Health.

Mr. F. W. Stowell
Wilmot, S. Dak.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:
"About four years ago my wife was troubled with salt rheum. Although we tried nearly everything it got worse instead of better and spread over both of her hands so that she could hardly use them. Finally she commenced to use Hood's Sarsaparilla and when she had taken two bottles her hands were entirely healed and she has not since been troubled. In December, 1892, my neck was covered with boils of a Scrofulous Nature.

There were sixteen of them at once and as soon as they healed others would break out. My neck finally became covered with ridges and scars. I then commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after taking four bottles the boils had all healed and the scars have disappeared. I recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla to all suffering from any disorder of the blood." F. W. Stowell, Wilmot, South Dakota.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Hood's Pills act easily, yet promptly and efficiently, on the liver and bowels. 25c.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES

MONTHLIES.
The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, Sunshine, each, per quar., 3c.

WEEKLIES.
L. & L. Infant Class, 4c.
L. & L. Intermediate Lesson Leaf.....1⅞c.
L. & L. Lesson Leaf, 1⅞c.
Golden Treasures (for every fifth Sunday) 1c.

QUARTERLIES.
LIGHT AND LIFE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY....5c.
" " " SCHOLAR'S " ....3c.
" " " INTERMEDIATE " ....3c.
" " " PRIMARY " ....3c.

Secretaries' Books, Class Registers, Reward Cards and Tickets, Charts, Maps, S. S. Libraries and other supplies. A large line of books, tracts, pamphlets, Bibles and Testaments at lowest prices.

BOOK AND PAMPHLET PRINTING
Done with neatness and dispatch. Send for estimates.

T. B. ARNOLD,
104-106 Franklin St., CHICAGO, ILL.

THE MYSTIC SHRINE
Illustrated.
THE FULL
ILLUSTRATED RITUAL
OF THE
Nobles of the Mystic Shrine
PRICE 15 CENTS, EACH.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

MY EXPERIENCES
WITH
SECRET SOCIETIES.
BY A TRAVELER.
With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is Fifteen Cents,
but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chica

RECENT PUBLICATIONS
OF
FLEMING H. REVELL.

Modern Ideas of Evolution.

As related to Revelation and Science. By Sir William Dawson, L. L. D., F. R. S., etc. 12 mo, cloth, $1.50.

In popular style, a testing by scientific facts and principles, the validity of that multiform and brilliant philosophy of the universe, which has taken so deep a hold of the science and literature of our times.

The New World of Central Africa

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness; with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. Maps, Portraits and numerous engravings. 537 pages, 12 mo, $2.00.

This comprehensive volume is as fascinating as the most entertaining romance. Its vivid portrayal of the dark side of African history makes one's blood tingle, while its earnest appeals create an inspiring sympathy with the effort to evangelize its teeming millions.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

Matthew Henry's Commentary.

An entirely new large type edition of this inimitable Commentary, in six large 8vo. volumes, fine cloth, $15.00; or, in half Morocco, $18.00.

"Biblical students who are most familiar with the very best commentaries of this generation are most able to appreciate the unfading freshness, the clear analysis, the spiritual force, the quaint humor, and the evangelical richness of Matthew Henry's Exposition of the Old and New Testaments."—New York Observer
"First among the mighty for general usefulness we are bound to mention the man whose name is a household word—Matthew Henry. He is the most pious and pithy, sound and sensible, suggestive and sober, terse and trust worthy."—Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

The Present Tenses of the Blessed Life.

By Rev. F. B. Meyer. 32 mo, 50 cents.

"It is sufficient to say its one direct aim is the present enjoyment of the precious promises Mr. Meyer's earnest and persuasive teaching in this direction is admirably condensed in these brief chapters."

By the Same Author:

Christian Living. Cloth, 32 mo, 50 cents.
"A more suggestive and helpful volume it would not be easy to name."—Christian Leader.

The Shepherd Psalm. Cloth, 32 mo, 50c.
"This is a gem"—Illustrated Christian Weekly
"It is a little book which hundreds of devout hearts will enjoy,"—Congregationalist.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

Other Works by C. H. Spurgeon:

Feathers for Arrows; Or, Illustrations for Teachers and Preachers. 12 mo, $1.
"This work covers a wide range of subjects. The metaphors are always striking and frequently brilliant, while the truths that they illustrate are such as have always formed the staple of Mr. Spurgeon's discourses. A choicer collection of illustrations we do not know."—Freeman.

Spurgeon's Gems. Being a selection of brilliants from his discourses. 12 mo, $1.

The Golden Alphabet. Being a Devotional Commentary on the One Hundred and Nineteenth Psalm. 12 mo, $1.00.
"Mr. Spurgeon brings out the truths and beauties of this wonderful Psalm so as to set a rich feast before the reader. As a practical commentator on the Psalms, Spurgeon has no equal."—Presbyterian Banner.
"This commentary is written in quite the happiest vein of its popular author, and the devotional spirit throughout is intense and elevating."—Occident.

Gleanings Among the Sheaves. 18 mo, 60c.

All of Grace. An earnest word with those seeking the way of life. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

According to Promise; Or, the Lord's Dealings with His chosen People. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Christmas Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve New Year Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth. 50 cents.
"Preachers may get aid in preparing Easter or funeral sermons from this volume. Good to present to those who have lost loved ones."—National Baptist.

Twelve Striking Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Soul-Winning Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.
Selected by Mr. Spurgeon as the twelve sermons under which there has been the most marked and permanent success.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

The New World of Central Africa.

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness, with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. 12mo., 530 pages with maps, portraits and numerous illustrations. $2.00
"A conscientious piece of work, and gives a very clear account of what has been done by the Protestant missions to evangelize the barbarous races of Central Africa. * * * He who wants to know what missionary effort means in these days may well learn from this volume. * * * The reader who goes carefully through will have a good bird's eye view of recent events in Africa, with all the results of modern travel. * * The work contains solid information of use to all who are interested in the future of this wonderful country. The many illustrations throw light upon savage customs and costumes."—Graphic.

In the Far East.

Letters from China by Geraldine Guinness, edited by her sister, with introduction by Rev. J. Hudson Taylor. Very fully illustrated. Quarto cloth, ...$1.50

This book was scarcely written—it was lived; for the breath of life is in it from cover to cover. * * * We have never read so wonderful an account of successful missionary effort.—Presbyterian

We easily understand how this edition is the fifteenth thousand. It is a very remarkable book.—The Golden Rule.

Frances Ridley Havergall's Poems.

Author's edition complete. The only unabridged authorized edition published in America.
1. 12mo., 880 pages, cloth, beveled....2.00
2. Beveled boards, full gilt.....2.50
3. Half white vellum, gilt top, uncut edges, ...2.50
4. French morocco padded, roll red under gold edges...4.00
5. Persian calf, padded and embossed, gilt roll and r. g. 5.00
6. Crushed levant, elegant.....6.00
7. Full German calf, padded, elegant, gilt, rd. cors.....7.50

Miss Havergall stands without peer in the English language in the department of religious poetry.
"The book in paper and binding is all that could be desired."—Publishers' Weekly.

Small Books by Miss Havergal.
Bound in elegant illuminated board
Kept for the Master's Use
.....
My King; Daily Thoughts for the King's Children.....

Works of Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

Sermon Notes. Covering all the Bible from Genesis to Revelation. 4 vols.....4.00
Feathers for Arrows. A volume of Choice Extracts, 12mo., cloth.....1.00
Twelve Striking Sermons..... 50
Twelve Soul Winning Sermons, ... 50
Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection 50
Twelve New Year Sermons..... 50
Twelve Christmas Sermons..... 50

Notes by C. H. M.

On Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy.
Mr. D. L. Moody says of these books: "They have been to me a very key to the Scriptures."
Deuteronomy is issued in two volumes, the others complete in one volume each.
Separate volumes may be had if desired.
The complete set in six volumes, covering over 2,300 pages, is offered at the reduced price of 75c per vol. or $4.50 per set

A. L. O. E. Intermediate Library.

Selected from the numerous productions of this world-renowned writer as being those of rare merit. 12 vols., 12mo., cloth elegant, each 75c; set.....9.00

An Eden in England.	Life in Eagle's Nest.
Ned Franks.	White Bear's Den.
Sheer Off.	Fairy Spider's Web.
Braid of Chords.	Lake in the Woods.
Silver Keys.	Seven Perils Passed.
Grace Vernon.	Hartley Brothers.

The Jessica Series. By Hesba Stretton. 6 vols., handsome bindings, cloth 50c each, or per set 2.10

Jessica's First Prayer.	Friends till Death.
No Place Like Home.	A Miserable Christmas
Under the Old Roof.	A Night and a Day.

A. L. O. E. Junior Library. Adapted to the young folks. 7 vols., 12mo., cloth each 60c; the set. 4 20

Claremont Tales.	A Wreath of Smoke.
Christian Conquests.	Pomegranates from
Tales Illustrative of Parables.	Punjab.
	Little Bullets from
The Battle of Life.	Batala.

The Hesba Stretton Series. 8 vols., elegant cloth bound, per set.....4.80

Cassy.	King's Servant.
Lost Gip.	Alone in London.
Max Kromer.	Little Meg's Children
Storm of Life	Crew of the Dolphin.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Tried & True

may well be said
of the Superior Medicine,
the standard
blood-purifier,

AYER'S
SARSAPARILLA

Its long record
assures you that what has cured others

will cure you

AMERICAN HANDBOOK
AND
CITIZEN MANUAL.
BY
MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.
WM. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Chic

THE TWO-FOLD GIFT
of the Holy Ghost,
BY REV. THOS. K. DOTY,
Author of Lessons in Holiness.

240 pp. Price postpaid.....65cts.

The design of this book is, in plain language, to designate the place of the Holy Ghost in both the Godhead and the work of Salvation. Especially to show that Entire Santification is wrought in the heart by the Baptism of Holy Ghost; and that the Epoch of the Baptism is identical with that of his Advent in his Indwelling Personalty. The agency of the Holy Ghost in the Life, and in carrying on the work of the Gospel, is given particular attention.

TITLES TO THE CHAPTERS:

1. A Summary. 2. The Holy Ghost a Person. 3. The New Testament Designating Terms. 4. The Scriptural View. 5. The Holy Ghost is God. 6. Blasphemy Against the Holy Ghost. 7. The Trinity of God. 8. The Apostolic Benediction. 9. The Worship of the Holy Ghost. 10. The Dispensations. 11. The First Dispensation. 12. The Second Dispensation. 13. Holiness—Sinning. 14. "The Sin of the World." 15. Final Deliverance from Sin. 16. The Day of the Holy Ghost. 17. Jesus and the Holy Ghost. 18 and 19. The Epoch of the Holy Ghost. 20. The Anointing. 21. The Baptism of the Holy Ghost. 22. The Baptism of Fire. 23. The Two-Fold Experiences of the Holy Ghost. 24. Fellowship of the Holy Ghost. 25. "In the Spirit." 26. Several Scriptural Terms Considered. 27. Pentecost. 28. Inspiration—Prophecy. 29. Spiritual Leading and Teaching. 30. The Gifts of the Spirit. 31. "Praying in the Holy Ghost." 31 and 32. Power.

This book is creating quite a stir in religious circles. The original, bold and convincing manner of presenting the subject, has forced the press to comment upon the book, either adversely or favorably, generally the latter. We give a few OPINIONS:

Bible Standard and Gospel Record:
"This book is very compact, scarcely a superfluous sentence in the whole book. The manner of treating the questions involved is both clear and scriptural. .....The effect of the book will be to deepen thought and increase knowledge and, in the end, deepen piety."

Evangelical Messenger: "Brother Thomas K. Doty has written a book which we take pleasure in commending to all devout readers who enjoy all spiritual things. The subject is so important, and the treatment of it so timely, that we may be pardoned for calling attention to it thus prominently. We, at least have been greatly interested, and gratefully acknowledge that we have also been decidedly profited by persuing it .....Brother Doty writes with an incisive pen, in a clear, lucid style, often epigrammatical and with great force. He is evidently deeply impressed with the truth of what he writes and demands the respect even where he does not gain the intellectual assent of his readers. Withal the book is written in a kindly, candid spirit, rather didactic than polermical, and is calculated to help the reader and not to rouse his opposition, as is the case with so many books which have been written upon this and kindred subjects. The theological views expressed are orthodox, and in some cases the argument is fresh in matter, and certainly fresh in form throughout."

Christian Cynosure: "His book is one of the most excellent, instructive and practical of any that have come to our knowledge. The exposition of the Scriptures concerning the personality and work of the Spirit is very clear, able and comforting. There is much dogmatizing on these topics by Christians who never fully felt the power of the Spirit's work, or are not living in gracious fellowship with him. To all such and to those who have not yet learned what gifts the Lord is waiting to bestow on his people we heartily commend the careful reading of this volume."

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

FARM NOTES.

MONEY IN CORN.

A review of the census report and report of the Secretary of Agriculture reveals some very valuable facts of interest to all corn growers, and should be carefully studied by every farmer in the corn-growing belt of this country. The average total production of corn in the United States for the past three years is, in round numbers, 1,700,000,000 bushels; total area of crops, nearly 73,000,000 acres; average value per bushel, 43.1 cents; average yield per acre, $10.21. Of the 1,700,000,000 bushels raised, more than six-sevenths of it was grown west of the Allegheny Mountains, south of the lakes and the north line of Illinois and Nebraska, and the west line of Nebraska, Kansas, and a line parallel with the south line of the State of Tennessee, east to said mountains. This territory is truly the corn-producing territory of the world, and has the world for its market. The consumption of corn abroad is now in its infancy, Only an average of 3.8 per cent of the amount produced (including meal) was exported to foreign markets during the past three years. It is only a question of time when the many wholesome and healthy preparations of corn for table use now so popular with all classes of people in this coutry will become equally so abroad, and as the demand grows the acreage cannot incsease. Hence, the intelligent farmer will naturally begin to study the best methods of producing corn. He will look first to the preparation of the soil, such as drainage, fertilizing, etc.; and the next step, which is of vital importance, and must not for a moment be forgotten, is the careful selection of seed, care being taken to get not only a variety that will insure a good stand of corn, but one that will produce the best grade and the largest possible yield per acre.—Selected.

Things are Looking Better.

Yes, every day shows cheering signs of improvement in every branch of business. If you are out of employment, or have spare time occasionally, write without delay to B. F. Johnson & Co., Richmond, Va., who can make suggestions that will be worth your consideration.

THE OBJECTS, WORK AND SECRET RITUAL of "The Nobles of the Mystic Shrine" have just been issued in a revised and enlarged edition. Price, in paper, 25 cents. This new order of Freemasonry, now so popular in this country as the basis of social hilarity among members of the higher degrees, claims to have originated in Arabia, and was revived in Egypt, and brought to America from France. It is interlarded with Mohammedan terms and worship; and its original objects as defined in its ritual, was inquisitorial and barbarous. Its prayers are addressed to "Allah," instead of the G. A. O. T. U., and it is quite as un-Christian as the devotees of the blue lodge would have it. The abridged edition is still sold for 15 cents. Address the National Christian Association, 221 West Madison street, Chicago.

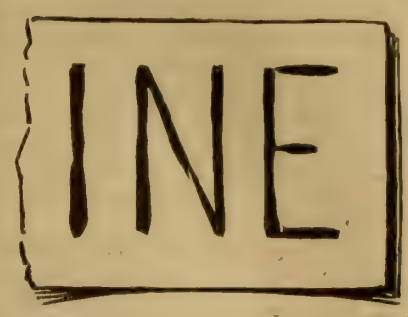
A Journey to Palestine.

BY REV. B. CARRADINE, D. D.

—oo—

Revised and Illustrated Edition. 500 pages. Eighteen beautiful half-tone Engravings, including portrait of Author. Cloth postpaid, $1.50. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.



They End this way

—the names of most so-called washing compounds. And it isn't an accident, either. It's to make them sound something like Pearline. That is the original washing compound—the first and in every way the best. These imitations are thus named in the hope of confusing you—in the hope that you'll mistake them for Pearline. For most people, that ought to be enough. It ought to convince them that the article so imitated, so copied, so looked-up to, is the one that is the best to use. If your grocer sends you an imitation, be honest—send it back—demand Pearline. 382 JAMES PYLE, New York.

THE GUIDING HAND;
—OR—
PROVIDENTIAL DIRECTION.
—)o(—

Illustrated by authentic instances of Relief and Deliverance in times of Trouble and Perplexity; of Direction through Dreams and Mental Impressions, and of Providential Guidance, resulting in Conversion. Recorded and collected by

H. L. HASTINGS,
(Editor of "The Christian.")

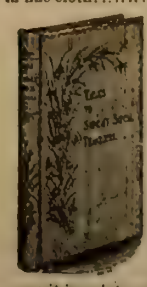
This striking work is divided into three parts as follows:

(1) Providences in Relief and Deliverances. (2) Dreams and Impressions. (3) Conversions.

The "Guiding Hand" contains nearly 400 pages. It is really a handsome book, printed on heavy book paper, from large open type, good for the eyes, and artistically and durably bound in fine cloth, with fancy panels. Price, $1.50.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Talks to Sunday School Teachers.
By Rev. J. G. Terrill. 12mo, 200 pages, bound in fine cloth..... .75



This book is the result of twenty-five years of experience in Sunday-school and treats of: 1. The Sunday-school organization and management. 2. Methods of work. 3. Studies in human nature. 4. Rules of Interpretation as applied to the Bible. 5. Illustrative exercises for primary classes and children's meetings. In the style of presentation, subject matter and price of the book, the wants of the officers and teachers of the ordinary Sunday-school are kept in view.

S. S. Times:—A very comprehensive book. N. Y. Independent:—A sensible manual for the average Sunday-school teacher. Evan. Mess.:—We have been very favorably impressed with the book, because it is so intensely practical. The subject is systematically treated, and leaders of teacher's meetings can not do better than adopt it as a text-book and devote half an hour of each session to teaching the theory and practice of teaching as here systematised. Christian at Work:—Any school that will adopt this book generally and carry forward its work or doctrines here laid down will not be long in developing into a model school and reaping the harvest of a rich fruitage. Herald and Presbyter:—These Talks are well attested in their profitableness and excellence. Buffalo Advocate:—A plain, practical, common sense book on a very important subject. The author has had wide experience in this field of work. He knows thoroughly the ground over which he would lead others, and possesses the happy faculty of packing a great deal of valuable information as to matter and manner of teaching into this little hand-book. We commend it to the attention of all Sunday-school workers. Religious Telescope:—We are pleased with the plan and treatment of the subjects throughout, and are sure that the diligent Sunday-school teacher who longs for more thorough equipment, will find in this book a helper of great value. Illustrated Christian Weekly:—The author talks from observation and experience, and talks well.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

SEVEN YEARS AMONG THE FREEDMEN.
Revised and Enlarged.
BY MARIA WATERBURY.

Finely Illustrated 196 Pages.....75cts.

The first edition of this book has "gone like hot cakes," and a second edition with more of the same sort has been loudly called for and is now ready for delivery. The press, the pulpit, the educator, the reformer, the masses, have bidden it welcome and Godspeed. We quote a few good words from sundry sources: EARNEST CHRISTIAN: "Publish the book for the good it will do."

Dr. Talmage, in the Christian Herald and Signs of our Times, for February 11th, says: "A helpful little volume, just out, for the workers is, 'Seven Years among the Freedmen,' by Miss M. Waterbury, Polo, Ill.,—a teacher well known to many in Illinois—detailing the quaint and thrilling scenes of her experience—'truth stranger,' oftimes, 'than fiction. One day the chore-man came to Miss M. Waterbury, to be taught a prayer; all the scholars had a prayer to say and he wanted one. John was past middle life and very ignorant. The teacher began the Lord's Prayer, a sentence at a time, explaining as the lesson progressed. 'Thy kingdom come' was all right. 'Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors.' 'What dat mean?' said he. 'That you must forgive everybody, or God will not forgive you.' 'Stop, teacher, can't do dat,' and he went away. After vacation he appeared, saying: 'Now go on wid de prayer. I dun 'orgive him. Old massar once gib me five hundred lashes, and hit me wid a crow bar, an' t' row me out for dead, and I met him down de street, an' wouldn't speak at him, but to-day I met him an' said 'How d'ye?' Now go on wid dat prayer'"

Inter Ocean: "A Splendid Book. Seven Years Among Freedman is a volume of 494 pages by Miss M. Waterbury, of Polo, Ills., who has spent seven years as a teacher among the freedmen in Mississippi and Alabama. It is a series of sketches telling very simply and graphically the life led by Northern teachers in the South. It bears all the evidences of truthfulness and if it fails to impress the reader with the manhood and dignity of the old ruling class of the South, it is perhaps because the whole truth is told. One reading the book will stop to ask, Why not send missionaries to the white people of the South? They seem to need it more than the blacks."

Journal, Freeport, Ills.: "We are indebted to Mrs. Lila L. Buckley, of this city, for a copy of this interesting volume. The efforts made to elevate the freedmen of the South is one of the most important and deserving charities of the present time, far excelling any effort to elevate the heathen of foreign lands, and it should have the aid of all charitable people in this country. ....The proceeds of sales is devoted to the work of elevating the freedmen of the South, and we trust that every one to whom Miss Waterbury applies will purchase a copy of the book, which is in itself fully worth the price. Miss Waterbury's grandfather, Rev. Calvin Waterbury, was the first Presbyterian minister in Freeport, and it was by his efforts that the First Presbyterian church in Freeport was established.

Polo, (Ills.,) Press: "Seven Years Among the Freedmen. Our townswoman Miss Maria Waterbury, the past winter, prepared for publication an account of some of her singular experiences in the "sixties" among the freedmen of Mississippi. Miss Waterbury and Miss Ford, both of this place, did grand work in those years and deserve no small mead of praise for their heroic sacrifices.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

JONATHAN BLANCHARD'S
—]-oo-[—
SERMONS AND ADDRESSES.

Select discourses of the late editor of the Cynosure and leader in our reform. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1884 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of

LIVING REFORM.

Secret Societies,
The Sabbath,
Temperance,
National Reform,
Christian Education,
Christian Socialism,
The Bible, Etc., Etc.

A BOOK EVERYBODY SHOULD READ

12mo. Fine Photogravure Portrait.
Price, 75 Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Secrecy vs. the Family, State and CHURCH. By Rev. M. S. Dury. The antagonism of organized secrecy to the welfare of the family, state and church, is clearly shown. 10cts each.

Royal Baking Powder

Absolutely Pure

A cream of tartar baking powder. Highest of all in leavening strength. — Latest United States Government Food Report.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO.,
106 Wall St., N. Y.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

CHICAGO.

Interviews with representative men indicate that Chicago business is rapidly regaining its old-time vigor. Business at the banks is improving.

An injunction forbidding the Metropolitan L road from crossing property of the West Chicago road was dissolved by the Illinois Supreme Court.

By the prolonged absence of President Higinbotham the distribution of $1,200,000 among World's Fair stockholders will be delayed one month.

After two weeks of decrease of smallpox patients eighteen new cases were taken to the pesthouse in one day.

Data from the Central Relief Association shows an expenditure of $129,000 contributed to aid the poor of Chicago.

William Tigerman was given four years in the penitentiary by Judge Bunn for violating the naturalization laws.

Lazarus Silverman, Chicago banker, who failed for $1,780,000, is again in charge of his estate. He will pay in full.

Wing Lee, a Chinese laundryman, and Florence Lee, a white woman, were arrested upon a charge of opium smuggling.

Letter carriers organized an association to furnish immediate relief to members and their families in distress.

Employment for ex-convicts is the object of a Chicago association for which articles of incorporation have been granted.

H. C. Wheeler, of Iowa, has brought suit to eject Chicago from the land on which the Bridgeport pumping station stands.

COUNTRY.

State Superintendent Raab says an effort will be made to establish a normal school in the northern part of Illinois.

Milwaukee ministers have begun a crusade against the so-called indecent pictures pasted on billboards.

Three families, comprising fourteen persons, were buried in a snowslide at Canyon Creek, Wash.

At Indianapolis seven members of a family were poisoned by eating sausage containing trichinæ.

Eastern capitalists have sued southern Illinois counties to recover on railroad aid bonds aggregating $145,000.

Treasury expenditures have again run up to $29,449,000 and receipts reach only $22,323,284, a deficit of more than $7,100,000.

House reports show that exhibits were received at the World's Fair from sixty foreign nations, valued at $28,000,000.

Professor John M. Ellis, of Oberlin College, died on a Santa Fe train as it entered Chicago from California.

St. Louis clergymen are organizing to fight the social evil, violation of the Sunday law and the saloons.

Theaters, cards and dancing have been tabooed as vices by the Epworth League of Michigan.

Charles F. Crisp, Speaker of the House, has been appointed United States Senator by Governor Northern, of Georgia, to fill the vacancy caused by Senator Colquitt's death. He declines.

Jim Godsey, sentenced to five years at Terre Haute for forgery, said his father had trained him in crime from childhood.

At Antigo, Wis., William Nonnemacher pleaded guilty to murdering his wife and three children, and was given a life sentence.

Eight small children and a servant girl were burned to death in a fire which destroyed the home of John Witt, at McKendree, W. Va.

Charles C. Baer, Grand Commander of the Knights Templar of Pennsylvania, died of spinal meningitis at Pittsburgh, aged 53 years.

Assistant Secretary Reynolds has made a decision admitting insane, idiotic and helpless children of soldiers to the pension rolls.

Charles Hardin, accused of stealing $35,000 from the Wells-Fargo Express company, has been arrested at Alma, Ark.

Mrs. Ann E. Webster died at Magnolia Springs, Fla. She was a pioneer of Chicago.

Reports from many places tell of damage to the fruit trees and early vegetation by the recent cold wave.

Frank O'Farrell, a Democratic attorney, and Rev. J. G. Shackelford, an Episcopal divine, engaged in a street fight at Fremont, Ohio, over the A. P. A.

One person was killed, fifteen injured, four of them probably fatally, and property worth $40,000 destroyed by the collapse of a water tower holding 1,500,000 gallons at Peoria, Ill.

William Laidlaw has been awarded damages of $25,000 in his suit against Russell Sage, who used him as protection against a dynamiter.

Fears are expressed that the recent cold snap has greatly injured the crop of winter wheat.

Secretary Smith decided that the claim of Illinois to Kankakee swamp lands could not be entertained.

More than a thousand members of trade organizations in New York are out on a strike over a technicality.

It is not considered probable that the new liquor law in Iowa will be generally enforced. Public sentiment is against it.

For the first time in the history of Harvard University, a Catholic priest conducted the regular Sunday services for the students.

Lake navigation has opened at Buffalo and Milwaukee. Boats at Cleveland will remain in harbor until April 15.

FOREIGN.

Major Le Caron, who was a British spy upon Irishmen in America, is dead in London.

It is estimated that 150,000 persons attended the funeral of Louis Kossuth, in Buda-Pesth.

At Huchow, China, a mob of infuriated natives attacked the American Baptist mission and threatened to murder the occupants.

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances of money to the Cynosure from March 26 to 31.

M L Worcester, M L Cullor, L Landon, Rev E F W Stellhorn, J A Haines, Rev C A Freeman, S J White, A A Johnston, Rev A Turmo, Mrs L Sanderson, J C Caldwell, J J Jones, A Shanks, Rev I Faris, H Mathews, W Chesbro, W J Pierson, G W Rhine, Rev J S Colvin, W S Dodd, W D Miller, Mrs W D Clay, I H Millspaugh, D Glaspie.

Mrs. Languish. "Tired! Oh, so tired all the time!" Mrs. Smart. "Well, so I used to be until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla as a spring medicine, and now I don't know what it is to have that tired feeling. Try it, my dear; only be sure you get Ayer's."

"Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething" softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain and cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Growing too Fast

means that children do not get proper nourishment from food. They are therefore thin, narrow-chested and weak.

Scott's Emulsion

the cream of Cod-liver Oil and hypophosphites, supplies material for growth. It makes sound bones, solid flesh and healthy, robust children. Physicians, the world over, endorse it.

Don't be deceived by Substitutes!

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All Druggists.

TRIAL FREE.

$2.75 Buys our $9 Natural Finish Baby Carriage complete with plated steel wheels, axle, springs, and one piece steam bent handle. Made of best material, finely finished, reliable, and guaranteed for 2 years. Shipped on 10 days' trial. FREIGHT PAID; no money required in advance. 75,000 in use. We are the oldest and best known concern of our kind, reliable and responsible. References furnished at any time. Make and sell nothing but what we guarantee to be as represented, sold at the lowest factory prices. WRITE TO-DAY for our large FREE illustrated catalogue of latest designs and styles published.

OXFORD MFG. CO., 340 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address Box 277. S. C. KIMBALL, Newmarket, N. H.

The St. Louis Sermon

Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

An Address by Rev. B. Carradine D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."

A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover.

Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2	58½	@	59
Winter No. 2	57	@	60
Corn—No. 2	35	@	37
Oats—No. 2	30⅝	@	34½
Rye—No. 2	47	@	49
Bran per ton	11 50	@	12 50
Hay—Timothy	8 00	@	10 50
Butter, medium to best	12	@	21½
Cheese	08	@	11½
Beans	1 35	@	1 55
Eggs, fresh	09		9½
Seeds—Timothy (100 lbs)	2 75		4 30
Flax	1 35		1 35
Clover (100 lbs.)	7 00		8 75
Broom corn (per ton)	30 00	@	70 00
Potatoes, (old, bu.)	40	@	62
Hides—Green to dry flint	02½	@	06¼
Lumber—Common		@	15 50
Wool (unwashed)	12		26
Cattle—Choice to extra	3 75	@	4 35
Common to good	3 15	@	3 50
Hogs	4 60	@	4 87½
Sheep	4 15	@	4 75

NEW YORK.

Wheat No. 2	63⅛	@	62⅝
Corn No 2	46	@	47
Oats	36	@	38
Rye	48	@	57
Eggs, Western fresh	11½	@	12
Butter	11	@	21
Wool	19	@	26

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle	1 75	@	4 20
Hogs	4 30	@	4 50
Sheep	steady

The Very Best!

1894—LIGHT and LIFE LESSONS—1894
(INTERNATIONAL)

In book form, containing all the lessons for the entire year, with four large pages of instructions and comments on each lesson, comments being adapted to the Advanced, Intermediate, and Primary classes; Black Board Exercises, Maps, Bible Dictionary, and Class Registers beside other valuable helps. 225 Pages.

Paper covers, postpaid ..... .35
Clubs of five or more, postpaid ..... .30
Cloth covers, postpaid ..... .50
Clubs of five or more, postpaid ..... .40

Read what is said about it:

"The classification of each of these fifty-two Lessons is excellent. The choicest of Biblical literature has been drawn upon for material to make it one of the very best lesson expositors extant, and in this respect its compilers have achieved flattering success. Its cheapness and its merits entitle it to a general acceptance by Sunday-school workers."—CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE.

"The book will prove a great convenience and a blessing."—EARNEST CHRISTIAN.

"This is a very complete and valuable guide to the Sunday school teacher for the International Lessons of 1894."—METHODIST RECORDER.

"This is the best thing by way of S. S. supplies I have over seen."—W. W. HULET.

"It is a marvel of neatness and cheapness."—T. C. GIVENS.

"I am highly pleased with it."—JAMES I. COUNCIL.

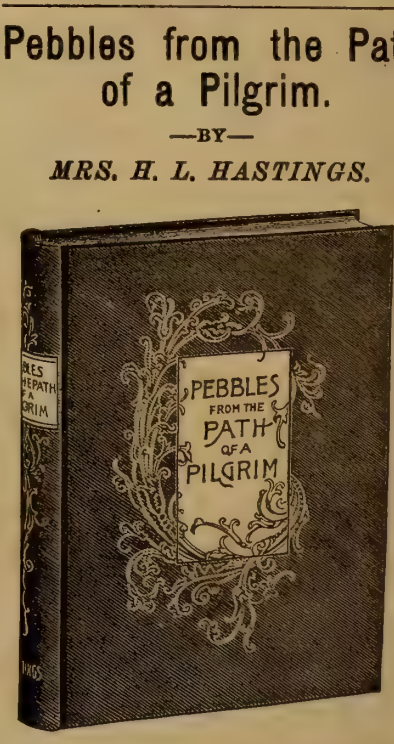
"We like it exceedingly well and presume the plan will be continued in the future; if so you may count on us to subscribe for it."—VICTOR CHARBOIN.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim.

—BY—

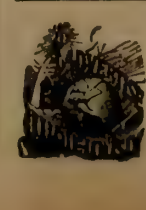
MRS. H. L. HASTINGS.



This remarkable collection of stories from the eventful life of a Green Mountain girl has been pronounced "more fascinating than any romance." A member of Congress writes: "'Pebbles' has been read by me with great interest. The introductory chapter has followed me into dreams. My copy is read to pieces by the family, and borrowed to death by the neighbors." An editor says: "Surely the faith that 'obtained promises, wrought righteousness, and stopped the mouth of lions,' must have been given in large measure to the writer of this truly remarkable book.... No family library should be without it." "'Pebbles,'" says the Christian Cynosure, "is such a book as Christian parents are always glad to put on their center-tables."

"Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim" is a large and beautiful book of over 300 pages, printed on heavy book paper, from clear open type, and is profusely illustrated. It is artistically bound in handsome cloth, with fancy panels, and specially attractive side and back cover designs. Price, $1.50.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.



Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp.

LORD & THOMAS,
NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING
45 RANDOLPH STREET,
CHICAGO.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVI., No. 31. CHICAGO, THURSDAY, APRIL 12, 1894. WHOLE No. 1,250.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill. as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
Strike Riots in Pennsylvania..... 8
The Seventh Commandment in Freemasonry. 8
Pythianism is Heathenism..... 8
The Situation in South Carolina..... 8
A Thrilling Lodge Experience..... 8
CONTRIBUTIONS:
No Bible in Heaven 1
The Dog and the Wolf—A Dream..... 2
Bible Distribution in Mexico (Continued).. 3
To B. B. Blachly (Poetry).....10
"Daft Willie".....10
Intemperance.....11
SELECTED:
American Institutions... 3
A Courageous Preacher. 3
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 4
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4
REFORM NEWS:
The New England Secretary and Dr. Lorimer; The Eastern Secretary in Pennsylvania; The Pacific Coast Work.... 9
CORRESPONDENCE:
Echoes of the Wisconsin Anti-secrecy Convention; Knight Templars Routed; Free Methodists and the A. P. A.; Some Pertinent Questions; New Hampshire Notes; The United Brethren in Oregon ..5,6
LODGE NOTES..... 7
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
N. C. A..... 7
THE HOME.....10
TEMPERANCE.....11
BIBLE LESSON 12
LITERATURE 12
RELIGIOUS NEWS.....12
HOME AND HEALTH.....14
FARM NOTES 15
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....16

We print to-day the official call for the annual meeting of the National Christian Association on the 16th of May, in accordance with the action of the Board of Directors on Saturday last. A full attendance is desired. The proceedings of the Directors' meeting will be printed in next week's Cynosure.

A Louisiana bishop of the Catholic church has issued a decree that no priest shall keep a woman in his house other than his mother or his sister. There are two valid reasons for this considerate step: To remove temptation from the priest, and to keep the world from evil thinking and slanderous suggestions. All of which tends to show that the life of a celibate is not without its snares and troubles as well as that of the benedict.

A shadow of the "World's Fair Parliament of Religions" has fallen on Chicago, in the form of "The American Congress of Liberal Religious Societies," which is to be held in Sinai (Jewish) Temple, May 22–24. The call includes all such "churches and organizations of any name as may be willing to recognize a common duty and to work in the spirit of kinship." It is to be "a general meeting of representatives of all the liberal religions of America, including members of societies for ethical culture, Universalists, Jews, Unitarians, and independents." Hiram W. Thomas, the expelled Methodist preacher, is chairman.

If every evangelical church in the world should follow the example of the German Lutheran, the secret orders would no longer find acceptance or toleration. These Christians not only refuse to commune with members of secret lodges, or admit them to membership, but the clergymen are required to make secretism a profound study in order to combat its encroachments. By classing it among other hurtful isms, and keeping it at arm's length, intelligently and earnestly, they keep a clean record and "touch not the unclean thing," having no use for it in strengthening the cause of the Gospel.

Bradstreet's review of the past week reports trade throughout the country as irregular, but improving. Adverse weather affected general business. Bank clearings continue to show a large decrease from those of the corresponding week last year. "The industrial feature of the week," says the report, "is found in thirty-one strikes throughout the country, involving 40,000 employes, principally among building trades at New York and Chicago, textile industries at Paterson and New York, coal mines and coke operatives in western Pennsylvania and farther west. Noticeably large increases in the number of small strikes weekly have taken the place of resumptions of industrial establishments."

Our friends of the National Reform Association have suffered another serious defeat in their endeavor to have God specifically recognized in the national Constitution, by the refusal of the House Committee on the Judiciary to bring it before Congress for action. In other words, the bill providing for a Constitutional amendment was laid upon the table, not to be taken up again for action, and this movement is interpreted as the final disposition of the matter. It will be a great disappointment to a large number of Christian patriots; but while the result has discomfited them, they are not cast down. They will (D. V.) continue the contest to have the United States declared a Christian nation in its most important state paper.

The Eight-Hour Herald notices a strong tendency on the part of trades-unions throughout the Western States to affiliate with the Farmers' Alliance and organizations of a similar character, the object of such a coalition being to work harmoniously in politics. The Herald deems it doubtful whether any benefit would result to the cause of labor from such a movement for the following reasons: "The Farmers' Alliance, the Grange and like organizations are composed chiefly of the owners of farms, men who in our State Legislatures have always been depended upon to defeat the aspirations of organized labor. This has been the case in the past, and it will be in the future. With farm proprietors largely in the majority in the new movement, the cause of organized labor will receive scant recognition." It seems to us that the Herald is basing its argument upon a wrong proposition. We do not believe that the aggregation of voters in both the Alliance and the Grange outnumbers that of the trades-unions. Is not this the real reason why the Herald would object to the proposed coalition?

We hear it said, and find it written in Masonic works, that Freemasonry is "non-partisan" as well as non-sectarian. There are those, however, who are not Masons, but close observers of human nature, and they tell us that in politics the Masonic candidate, as against the one who is not a Mason, will in any election get the majority, if not all, of the votes of his Masonic brothers. In such a case Freemasonry is not non-partisan, nor can it be, if a writer in the Voice of Masonry for April is to be believed. Speaking of the Grand Lodge, he says: "It must have the right, at any and all times, to fix the status of its own membership and the members of the craft as to qualifications, and as to the affiliations of the craft with enemies, or clandestine, suspended, expelled, or irregular Masons, and to determine rules of jurisdiction for itself and subordinates." In New Hampshire the State, in the Fifty-Second Congress, had two Republican Senators and two Democratic Representatives; yet nearly all the elective and appointive offices in the State, we are assured, are filled by Freemasons. It looks very much as if, so far as Freemasonry is concerned, Freemason politics, regardless of other parties, are extremely partisan. How can it be otherwise when Masons are sworn to assist each other and espouse each other's cause "whether he be right or wrong," when occasion requires? See the obligation of the Royal Arch degree.

The spring elections in the West generally show Republican gains, which may be partly attributed to the aid which that party received from the American Protective Association, and partly to the desire of many reputable voters for relief from prevailing "gang rule." In Milwaukee and Kansas City, especially, Republicans and the A. P. A. (as openly charged) united their forces, and carried both cities. The influence of the A. P. A., as reported by the press, was strongly felt in other localities, but always with the effect of electing more or less Republicans. Indications are that the trend of politics is hereafter to be largely governed by religious preferences, as well as other considerations. The Democratic party, for half a century or more, has received, as a general rule, the bulk of the Roman Catholic vote. To overcome this influence it is natural that the Republicans, desiring to maintain their political strength, should resort to a coalition which promises to overcome the aggressiveness of the Roman Catholics, and also the rapacity for office which so strongly distinguishes the Democratic party. As a natural consequence, bad blood was engendered at various polls, and personal conflicts ensued, and in a few instances lives were sacrificed to partisan rancor. But this was not unexpected and will probably, henceforward, be a marked feature in our political contests.

NO BIBLE IN HEAVEN.

BY. REV. L. N. STRATTON, D. D.

If the dear Lord, in infinite mercy, shall admit me into heaven, one of the sources of my earthly comfort will there be probably cut off, and that will be the Bible. In heaven this earthly monitor and guide will not be needed. Faith will be lost in fruition. The battles of life will be ended, and "the sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God," ordained in heaven and issued from the arsenals of various peaceful printing companies on earth, will fall into disuse to the disembodied spirit.

1. If this position be correct, upon it I would base a most important argument, as it seems to me: If there will be no Bible in heaven, it becomes me to treasure up in memory as much of it as possible to carry along with me; for by it have come all my earthly spiritual victories; and I will want to meditate upon its thought and phraseology, the trend of its paragraphs and chapters, the meanings of its parables, and the exact language of its prophecies, which I may want to look out of heaven to see fulfilled. How, no doubt, the incidents and conditions of faith will spring up in memory a thousand years hence! The beautiful but toilsome past will recur. The integrity we have felt for Christ, based upon the purity of our intentions which God's Word enjoins, will fill our souls with rekindled rapture.

2. There is then great need that in this time-world I should accumulate a rich store of these relics for heaven, and be prepared to carry them through the valley of the shadow of death. They will illumine the tomb and the narrow sea of death with a brightness above the brilliancy of a thousand Eddystone lightouses. They will hang their rich draperies of promise all the way from the dying chamber to the gateways of glory as a canopy and shield. They will be a light in the valley and a staff in the shadow of death. The language of the holy Word will be set to the music of the redeemed. Will not the waiting angelic hosts "behold the conquering heroes come?" Then the shining ranks of cherubim and seraphim will part to right and left, and form, to let the plodding, way-worn pilgrims pass on up "nearer the great white throne and nearer the crystal sea," singing as they go "unto Him that hath loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood, and hath made us kings and priests unto God and the Father; to him be glory, and dominion, and power, for ever and ever. Amen!" Even with the narrow limit of my human comprehension, I have sometimes almost fainted away for very rapture in hearing the great chorus of Handel's Oratorio of "The Messiah," as it was sung by four and five hundred voices, accompanied by seventy-five or one hundred instruments of music. When the final climax has been reached, and with a heavenly whirlwind of music they strike the grand AMEN, how can I ever hear its equal until before the great white throne it becomes the grand "amen" of my Redeemer? Blood-washed and ransomed souls snatched up from the pains and heart-aches of earth to the bliss of the redeemed, saved through the Word, alone can undertand its full meaning.

3. How interested, then, should I be in storing up this thinking soul of mine with the immaterial grandeur of the will of that God whose thought cannot be fully symbolized by some inky traceries on paper pages, but who must stoop to the level of our lowly comprehension to make himself understood, even "in part." In heaven how glad I doubtless shall be that I can remember some of the good things he said to me in his Word; glad that it strengthened me for my day and trial, and death itself seemed easy then. That is why I have sometimes written my name in the place of the pronoun he spoke, as though he addressed me personally, and I entered more understandingly into "the fellowship of his sufferings." In heaven these promises will recur, and the things he has told me of the redemption of my poor soul, and of his unforgetting love and wonderful, infinite, inexhaustible sympathy for me; and that he threw his very life, hazarding his very soul, into the darkness of his suffering when the Father turned his face away and left him in hopeless gloom! Ah, let me not abate from my memory one jot of God's history of that awful tragedy when I have no Bible in heaven!

4. Science tells us that by the use of the solar spectrum is the weight of the planets so easily determined that other worlds belonging to our solar system are shown to be of material similar to that which constitutes our own. Reaching these scientific conclusions by means of scientific tests is called "getting news from other worlds." The natural laws which govern the form, density, motion, and general characteristics of this planet, doubtless apply to all the spheres which gem the sky and came trickling like dewdrops from the fingers of the great Creator. In like manner, no doubt, the laws of God's government, as revealed in the Bible, apply in principle to angels, fallen and unfallen, and to all the moral universe of God as well as to mankind. In exalted thought King David so saw it. He says: "Whither shall I go from thy spirit? or whither shall I flee from thy presence? If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there; if I make my bed in hell, behold, thou art there; if I take the wings of the morning and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea, even there shall thy hand lead me and thy right hand shall hold me. If I say, surely the darkness shall cover me, even the night shall be light about me. Yea, the darkness hideth not from thee, but the night shineth as the day; the darkness and the light are both alike unto thee." (Psalm 139: 7–12.) Thus, in all lands and zones and spirit worlds, the whole great moral law of God as revealed to men seems to hold sway. This affords an additional reason why I should faithfully study, and fully learn all I can of the teachings of the Bible. Indeed, I should commit as perfectly as possible its very phraseology, for I shall have no Bible in heaven with which to correct up my imperfect understanding and give me the beautiful shades and tints and hues of the meanings found in the Bible.

5. The richer deposits of God's Word he has placed behind "time-locks;" they do not all at first appear to the hungry eyes and souls of those who seek them. They do not come into view in all their glory the first day or year, or lustrum or decade. No, onward and on, they grow in numbers and elegance. Nuggets are found on the mountain-sides; but it is to the drilling and blasting and dangers of the patient toiler that Lady Fortune responds to her seldom visitors, and deals out her golden ingots from behind her crystal counter. Who can estimate the worth of the applications of the Scriptures to our experiences, and which become more and more cherished by us for what they will be worth to us in immortal memories? Though I am weak, both in judgment and in execution, still my heart is lifted up all the time through the passing years of my pilgrimage, by the positive declarations of passages in the divine Word addressed to me; and why should not I, with every reader, make this word personal and as applicable especially unto myself? Can we not every one do this? Born as we are for a higher destiny than earth, why should we grovel with the entanglements of time, to meet our King and Judge in the end, and with remorse confess that we did not think enough of the rich estates he had left us in his will to even read it over! Can it be possible? Alas, that it should be so! We must admit that we cannot comprehend it all, no more than can an ocean bather touch all the waters of zones and longitudes; but we can bestir ourselves to learn all we can of the divine Word and will, and exult in the boundless limits of its delights, with a rapture which cannot be syllabled into words. Let us then study it daily, for we shall have no Bible in heaven.

Pecatonica, Ill., March 29, 1894.

THE DOG AND THE WOLF—A DREAM.

BY REV. WILBUR N. COFFEE.

I had fallen asleep, thinking upon the almost unaccountable attitude of many so-called Christian denominations toward the moral-reform questions of the day; and while I feel that one should apologize for going to sleep over such a subject, yet I might offer, in extenuation of the case, that I had just kept three watch-nights, and this was after midnight of the fourth.

I dreamed that I was again on the prairies of Dakota, and it was in the early days of her settlement—the exciting days of antelope memories, badger-shooting and wolf-hunting. We had tracked a wolf to her den, and were working away with pickax and spade to unearth her habitation, when we came suddenly upon a spacious excavation, the abode of the wolf and a few mongrel whelps. She met us at the door and disputed our entrance.

Up to this time we had, with difficulty, kept our dog in the background. He was treading with his front feet as he sat on his haunches; his eyes were blinking; he was licking his chops and whining with impatience. We now let him go. He made a terrific lunge, and with a roaring growl came up against the wolf. We jumped aside to be on safe ground during the desperate conflict. But we were provokingly disappointed and chagrined to hear the dog's ferocious growl dwindle into a simpering whine, and to see him fawn over her in happy surprise.

What could be the matter with that dog? Why, simply this: Many a moonlight night had they trotted together over the prairies. A casual acquaintance had grown up into perfect fellowship and ripened into affection. That was all (?)

Now in dreams all things animate have the faculty of speech. So Mrs. Wolf says to this simpering canine: "I knew you would not deliver me up to these men; but why did you growl so ferociously? I almost doubted your loyalty to me. Yet I knew that my whelps were bone of your bone and flesh of your flesh. But that was an ominous growl."

"I beg your pardon, Madam," the dog replied; "you know a dog has no excuse for his existence in this world except it be that he lives to care for his master's interests; hence you can readily see that to maintain my reputation I must keep up an appearance of loyalty to those upon whom I am dependent. But, notwithstanding, when I am put to the test I will protect the object of my love."

My dream was at an end.

The difference between my Dakota days and the present was quickly bridged, and I awoke in the land of stern realities. But what a singular dream! How came I to dream it? Then I remembered that Solomon says: "A dream cometh through the multitude of business." But in what business was I engaged before I fell asleep? Then I remembered how my mind was exercised relative to churches and reform work, and I recognized in my dream an accurate solution of the problem over which I had toiled when awake.

When we see the myriads of church-spires so conspicuous in city and country; when we hear the ringing of the bells on a Sabbath morning, and see the multitudes gathering at their respective places of worship; when we see our gigantic publishing houses—the winged auxiliaries of the church—and hear the clicking of the type and the rolling of the presses; when we see our Christian schools, the fulcrum upon which the doctrines of Christ find augmented purchase, one is led to say: "If I were sin I would despair of life." But from too many of these sources, sin has little to fear.

On a Sabbath morning you may see "the butcher, the baker and the candlestick-maker" in their aprons at their doors. The journalist, the excursion agent, the professional sport, and church-members who find no comfort in religious worship, boldly pervert this divine favor to man, and in spite of church disciplines and civil laws, trample under foot the sanctity of the Most High. Sabbath desecration is not afraid of spires, nor bells, nor multitudes.

Secretism fairly perforates church and state, if letting darkness instead of light through them can be called perforation.

Catholicism comes across the waters and tells the fathers of our government how the United States should be ruled, and Christianity places a chair for her on the front veranda of the national home and entertains her while, in book-agent fashion, she says her little piece which she learned by heart before leaving home, and which she has said to every nation on earth. European countries of importance ushered her out of their doors long ago. They have been blessed with success for so doing. We could do the same if we would; but soon we may be in poor Ireland's place, where we would if we could. Or, like South America and Mexico, we may, through Catholic policy, relapse into ignorance and superstition so dense that we cannot determine the nature of our ailment.

Christianity ought to arise as one man and restore the Bible to the public school, relieve the laboring man from that praying penuriousness of the tattling sister of charity, lift the enormous burden of arbitrary church-tax from his shoulder, remove Catholic impediments from the way to Americanization, and turn Catholic state-aspirations back to those countries where universal degradation testifies to the undisputed sway of the Catholic church for centuries.

Intemperance stands, a fat, a flourishing feeder upon the sins of mankind. She has a box of cigars under one arm, a bottle of intoxicants in each hand, a bag of chewing-tobacco over one shoulder, a sack of opium over the other; her pockets filled with cigarettes and snuff—she has come to stay. She caters to the native and acquired depravity of the country. She has a very important carriage already. She casts a blighting influence over the entire nation. She is ruining the laboring man. During the latter part of 1893, through her influence mainly, the vast army of workingmen were placed in such a condition that when they had been without work one month, thousands upon thousands had become a public charge. A tramp whom I fed at my table acknowledged that for several years past he had received $60 and board per month; and that without protracted sickness, and without a family to support, he had made way with his earnings. He confessed that intemperance, with its accessories, had become possessor of his all.

Some church societies do practically nothing to remove this curse from the doors of our land. Sabbath desecration, secretism, Catholicism, and intemperance are each and all plainly a menace to civil and religious government.

But what is being done by many so-called Christian churches to withstand their encroachments? Well:

> The bells they ring, the steeples shake,
> The pulpits thunder, patrons quake;
> Assemblies meet, they "make a chain;"
> The church has moved, but all in vain;
> 'Tis but a mere pretension.

When we look at the ominous resolutions passed by some of our prominent conferences and assemblies against these evils, we are disposed to feel encouraged. But when in times of pressing need we see little but indifference and apathy, we cannot help but feel that the relation between such churches and this world is stronger and closer than the relation between them and Christ. They are joined to the world; and the product of this union is an admiring mongrel progeny, which, like charming Herodias, palsies the arm which should be raised in the defense of right, and thus forestalls justice.

Here and there faithful bands are waging war upon these institutions. But there needs to be a general uprising on the part of the church, a severing of all unholy alliances with her, an invocation of divine help, and a moving forward in solid phalanx, through faith in Christ. Rise to the support of those periodicals which are courageous enough to lock horns with these giant evils; sustain those embassadors of Christ who "preach the Word" in preference to tickling the fancy of those who have "itching ears." Unload some of the "social" machinery with which the church is burdened to-day, and use the time and means thus regained for the furtherance of moral reform.

Abolish the extravagance in personal attire, too often found among those who claim to be disciples of the lowly Nazarene, and throw the millions of dollars thus saved into a general fund for the aid of reform-work. If this could be realized, righteousness would traverse this land as though on wings.

"Be faithful to thy mission,
In service of thy Lord,
And then a golden chaplet
Shall be thy just reward."

Burlington, Iowa.

BIBLE DISTRIBUTION IN MEXICO.

BY B. B. BLACHLY.

(Continued.)

After looking in vain two days for a room, I happened into the shoe-shop of an ex-soldier, and, stating my case to him, he tried to get me a room, but could not; so said: "You are welcome to live with me; we are poor and have only this one room." He had a wife, son and daughters at home, and two sons, school-teachers, who were away from home. On telling him that if I lived in his house, the wrath of the whole town would be down on him, he said: "I spilled part of my blood for the liberty of my nation, and I am willing to give the rest of it for the liberty of religion."

While spending nearly a month with him (Hill Gueteras), he bought a large Bible. In spite of the terrible opposition here, sales were good; mailbag after mailbag full of Bibles and other books and tracts was sent by Rev. James D. Eaton, of Chihuahua. One day a woman asked if I had books of the devil to sell. A girl who was looking at the Bible said: "The priest prohibits this book; but I will get one and read it, and if I like it I will not confess; but if I don't like it I will destroy it and go and confess." Another girl said: "I will buy this Testament and read it, but will not confess that I have read it, for we are only to confess our sins, and it is no sin to read the Testament." In spite of the anathema of the bishop the people bought the Bible, saying: "The bishop is very brutal."

On meeting a Mexican who could talk English, he said: "We don't want you to come here with your Bibles, for we never heard of any but the Catholic religion, and don't want to know any other. We are not half-civilized yet, but we think we are and that you Americans are not; but you are."

This was in April, 1891.

In talking with a Mexican who had studied for two years for the priesthood, I said: "They told me there was in the church a half a glass of the real blood that Christ shed on the cross." He made sport of the idea, and said: "I could not stand it to be ordained into such a church, as a priest, when such folly was taught;" yet he was a drunken carpenter.

A day or two before leaving Culiacan, a young Mexican minister was brought there by the presiding elder of the M. E. Church, South (Rev. Mr. Cerbin); so a church was to be established there.

As colporteurs journey along on horseback, they know not what is in store for them, nor where they will stop for the night, nor when they will get anything to eat. We often sleep out of doors and go for hours and hours without eating. The food we get is beans and corncake baked on a hot tin, or a meal of dry bread and water, and sometimes cheese.

On the return trip to El Fuerta, I rode about thirty leagues, or ninety miles, from one o'clock in the afternoon till twelve o'clock the following day. I went to Mr. Bissell's house and took dinner and supper.

The El Fuerta Valley is very rich and fertile, and if the people only had energy enough to irrigate it, it would be greatly improved, for it is a fine sugar country, and now there is a large sugar mill there. From here I sent an order for a large shipment of books, which Rev. Dr. Edward Gillman sent to Alainos by mail, direct from the Bible House, on receipt of a telegram from Rev. H. P. Hamilton, of Mexico City. In Alainos was also a missionary (Mexican) of the M. E. Church, South.

One evening, while returning to my room, I came to a house, in front of which were seated mother, daughter and son. On showing them the Bible, the girl read it aloud, and the mother, on learning the price, said: "I have no money now, but if you will wait I will try and get it;" so after waiting awhile she brought out some clothing which she gave to her daughter, who took it to a pawn-shop (I presume), and soon came back with the money to pay for the Bible; and oh, how rejoiced she was when she knew that the Book was her own! Sales were good. A wealthy widow bought a large Bible, New Testament, Bible Dictionary, and several other books and tracts, saying: "I am a Protestant; I used to be a Catholic, but when my husband was sick and wanted the priest to come and hear his confession, the priest would not give him absolution unless my husband paid him a certain sum, which he refused to do, so he died without being absolved. Then the priest refused the body admittance into the church, and when I appealed to the mayor, he sent the police to demand the priest to open the door, and if he refused the police were to break the door open." The price for baptizing is $1.50, and if less is offered, the priest will not baptize the infant. I succeeded in selling out most of the supply, except some New Testaments.

Leaving Alainos, I traveled on horseback on the stage-road, through a Yaqui Indian country, and, passing several soldier posts, sold most of the New Testaments. It being the month of June (1891) both rider and horse suffered much from heat, thirst and hunger, so I would canvass in the day and ride a good deal at night.

I reached Guaymas about the middle of June, where I met Rev. Mr. King, of the M. E. Church, South. Here, also, the sales were splendid, people being as anxious for the Bible as anywhere; in fact, more open to receive the Word. Guaymas is the southern terminus of the Sonora railroad, from Nogales, Arizona. It is also a port of entry for foreign goods; so there are more or less foreigners living there and passing through. It may interest the reader to hear of the opposition the priests made to the entrance of the railroad. This was told by an American who knew all about it: "When the blasting of rock for the road-bed was going on, the priests said: 'It is a Protestant work, and ought not to be allowed;' and that the shock of the blasting would raise the bottom of the bay so that the water would become so shallow that ships could not enter. A stop was put to the work several times, until it became necessary to lock up the priest, to keep him from hindering. And finally the President had to send an order that the railroad be put through if it took all the soldiers in the Republic of Mexico."

From Guaymas I sent ten 12mo Bibles to Torres by mail, and rode there on horseback. Reaching Torres the second day about three o'clock in the morning, I tied the horse to a telegraph pole, spread down my blankets and slept till daylight; then rustled for food for both rider and horse; after which I went to the postoffice, took out the ten Bibles and sold them in about two hours.

In the afternoon I started on for Hermosillo. The weather being very hot, I stopped at a station to water the horse. But the people refused to give or sell any water; but when I took out a Testament and read to them, they gave me two pails of water. The Word of God had more power than money. At several different times I was obliged to get water for the horse from the locomotives. The last night before entering Hermosillo, I was so sick that I could hardly sit in the saddle, and the horse was nearly famished; but on reaching the city I was most kindly and heartily received by Rev. M. A. Crawford and his good wife. Here the American Board Association of Foreign Missions have a fine chapel, with bell, and a good building for a boarding-school. Rev. Mr. Crawford has been in the place about four years, and he certainly has a very fanatical field to labor in. In canvassing every house in the place, I did not sell more than fifty Bibles and Testaments; excepting one or two places this is the hardest place to sell Bibles in that I have experienced during all my three years' work.

(To be continued.)

AMERICAN INSTITUTIONS.

Rev. Dr. James M. King, of this city, who is secretary of the National League for the Protection of American Institutions, addressed a gathering of ministers in Baltimore the other day and said: "This National League is not anti-Romanist, anti-Protestant, anti-Jewish or anti-anything else, but is protective to American institutions and is opposed to whatever is against them. It is not a secret organization, and is not popular in the sense of a populous movement. The institutions inherited by us as distinctively American, and which we aim to protect, are: Civil liberty, protected by law. The sovereignty of individual suffrage. Religious liberty. Absolute separation of church and state. A free press. Easy access to the wealth of thought of this century. Libraries of books and periodicals. Free common school system of education. Higher education substantially free to the humblest. The three great pillars supporting this country are God's church, God's book and God's day. These must be preserved from all assaults. The leaders of the great parties stand like cowards and dare not make pronunciamentos. The National League now represents 500,000 members, including the best citizens in the country. It is indorsed by ninety patriotic orders representing a membership of 3,000,000 voters. The absolute separation of church and state is the only hope of the country as set forth in the proposed sixteenth amendment to the Constitution. Twenty-three out of the forty-four States now provide against the appropriation of money for sectarian institutions. Two of the old States, Mississippi and Kentucky, have changed their constitutions to contain the same provisions, and the new States come into the Union with this article in their constitutions."—New York paper.

A COURAGEOUS PREACHER.

The Rev. O. P. Gifford, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist church of Chicago, preached last Sabbath night on the subject, "The Young Man in Politics." From the beginning of his discourse he scored the city administration in a way that is refreshing. We give a short extract:

"Opposite the mayor's office in the City Hall a great building is being erected. The contractors desired to employ a class of men known as non-unionists, and organized labor objected. The honest man with tools on his shoulder is outraged on the public street and the mayor of the city of Chicago never looks out of his window to see what is going on. Organized labor has been too cowardly to punish the contractors at law or by force for the agreement they are charged with breaking, so they turn on a few defenceless men who have come to seek work in order that their families may live. It is sheer cowardice. What do the men do about it? They always arrest the wrong man. And what is the reason of this condition of affairs? It is because the best man is too busy to go to the City Hall. The mayor holds an executive office. If he finds he cannot execute the law and keep his oath he should resign and get out. The law of the State says, 'No gambling;' the mayor says, 'No gambling,' and he sends an order to the chief of police with the words, 'No gambling' in it. Then the mayor says, 'I have ordered gambling stopped, therefore it is stopped'—Innocents abroad! His honor says 75 per cent of the brewers want gambling. Of course they do; but the idea of a chief executive of a great city like the city of Chicago taking his orders from a class of men who cater at the hell-side of nature!"—The New Republic, March 31.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

At Dr. Gordon's.—Dr. Fulton and the A. P. A.—The prospects for the anti secret cause.—A pleasant evening.—Mrs. Gleason.—Municipal Suffrage in the Legislature.

Last Sunday morning saw the writer enjoying what is to her one of the greatest treats included in staying over the Sabbath in Boston—hearing Dr. A. J. Gordon preach one of his vital, living sermons which are so full of the elements for spiritual growth; deep and clear as a mountain lake, handling mysteries, the profoundest, and yet so plain that a child could understand him. The drawing power of the simple Gospel simply preached is the same now that it was in the days of the apostles. There are no empty seats in Dr. Gordon's church, but it is always packed full of earnest, thoughtful faces of men and women who will go forth to the battle of life on Monday morning, strengthened, cheered, helped, fed. Speaking of the prevailing tendency towards ritualism, the doctor brought out, very forcibly, the truth that Christ's is a finished work, and all keeping of saints' days, all rites and ceremonies above that which is written, assumes that the work is not done, and thus crucifies the Lord afresh. Such preaching will inspire a missionary spirit, as nearly $13,000 raised by the church for missions the past year abundantly testifies.

In the afternoon I went to the People's Church to hear Dr. Fulton preach on "Washington Gladden and the A. P. A." The change was as complete as if I had passed at one step from the palms of the tropics to polar icebergs. And yet there was plenty of fire of a certain kind, though not that which came down at Pentecost. It showed itself every little while in demonstrations that would have been more fitting on a week-day, beginning as soon as Dr. Fulton stepped out on the platform, which was hung with the stars and stripes, and began to read the Scripture lesson, which he took from the 22nd chapter of Luke. The last clause of the 36th verse he read with the following interpolation: "And he that hath no sword let him sell his garment and buy one"—and join the A. P. A. This brought out another round of cheers. "It is beginning to be popular," said the doctor, "to decry secret, oath-bound organizations." This was in the nature of news to your correspondent, who had hitherto supposed herself a humble co-worker in the most unpopular reform of the day; so she listened with added interest to his defence of the particular secret, oath-bound combination of the A. P. A. But Dr. Fulton's position savored more of apology than defence. The Romish Church was itself the greatest secret society on earth. The oath of the Jesuits, the Clan-na-Gael, and the Ancient Order of Hibernians, far transcended in blood-curdling horror that taken by the A. P. A., which he ridiculed as flat and insipid in comparison. But what is the use of an oath so "flat and insipid" that its violation can inspire no terror? Why not dispense altogether with such a rope of sand, and trust, instead, to the bond of a common faith and a common patriotism? The doctor has a good voice and presence; he is an earnest and vigorous speaker, full of illustration and incident, and always, and everywhere—Justin Fulton. Perfect storms of applause greeted his most audacious utterances, as for instance when he said that Leo. XIII knew very well that he could manage a republic with a fool like Grover Cleveland at the head, better than a monarchy with a man like King Humbert of Italy for ruler. If to do foolish things makes a man a fool, I am quite willing to admit that Cleveland deserves a distinguished place in the category. At the same time I felt doubtful of the propriety of thus characterizing the nation's chief executive, considering the time and place. However, the applause was really not near so general as the noise made would seem to indicate. It is the men who, attaching no particular sacredness to churches or Sabbaths, feel free to make all the demonstrations they want to, like one—probably an A. P. A.—who said to another as the throng passed out: "I tell you, as the Frenchman said, that was a d——d good sermon."

I should despair of success in our war with Romanism if I did not know there is a Gideon's band who believe in the use of spiritual rather than carnal weapons, and prefer to stand in the light themselves as they turn on Rome's abominations the flashing rays from God's sun of truth, than retire into the darkness of secret chambers, and use the method in which centuries of use have made her an adept while they are mere novices. In D'Aubigne's History of the Reformation, the chapter recording Zwingli's death on the battlefield thus concludes: "He had wielded an arm that God had forbidden.....the bolt had furrowed the cloud, the blow had reached the reformer, and his body was no more than a handful of dust in the palm of a soldier." God pity our country when the cause of pure religion must be defended by the sword!

As I talked over the anti-secret work with Bro. and Sister Stoddard in their quiet snuggery at 218 Columbus Avenue, I felt that there never had been a time in the history of our reform so pregnant with great results, so favorable to its speedy triumph among thinking Christian people. The world will love its own, but if we can drive the lodge out of the churches the victory is won. The stir which Bro. Stoddard's sermon against Masonry before the Alliance made in Springfield; the fact that Boston's most widely circulated paper, the Herald, published the matter, name and subject in big headlines; and Dr. Lorimer's public assertion that he cares more for the lodge than he does for the church;—in all of this we see God's finger on the hands of the dial. Who knows how soon it will strike the hour of Masonry's downfall?

A delightful evening passed with Bro. and Sister Derikson and their daughter Jessie, staunch friends of our cause, whom I learned to know and love before I met them in their cozy home, and the sight of their numerous antiquarian treasures, brought from Holland, will not soon fade from mind. A massive Dutch Bible, printed not long after the Pilgrims sailed from Leyden, a volume of Dutch sermons printed in 1630, and wonderful hand-painted plates, three centuries old, were among the curios brought from their early home. Possibly those plates had witnessed the siege of Haarlem, or been held in hands that had participated therein. If there is any nation in the world next to England herself whose history and soil should be dear to us it is that of Holland. Mrs. Derikson also showed me some wonderful specimens of Dutch skill in mending;—the warp and woof, and the very figure, whether of dress, table linen or stocking, being so perfectly imitated that nobody could tell it from the original fabric. But catch a busy American woman setting herself down to diminish the contents of her mending-basket by any such slow and "wearisome" process!

A day spent with Mrs. M. E. A. Gleason, of Rosindale, found her as bright, earnest and cheery as when she won all our hearts at our first N. E. Convention. She is now national lecturer on Tobacco and Narcotics, and Peace and Arbitration, having dropped the State superintendency of those departments.

The event of the week in the Legislature was the passing, by the House, of the bill granting municipal suffrage to women. The galleries were filled with interested listeners when the bill passed to its third reading, and room was even granted them on the floor. The suffragists had by far the most able and eloquent speakers, but decidedly the most amusing ones were on the other side. One member said it was a bill under the auspices of the W. C. T. U., and he was opposed to it because if it passed the women would all vote for No-license. Then he turned squarely round and made the contradictory objection that if given the ballot equally with men they, too, would be liable to the temptations of the rum-power. Another opposed the bill because it appealed to religious prejudice. Would the commonwealth wish women like Mrs. Lease in politics? This inspired Mr. Mellen to give some statistics of the reduced pauperism and empty jails in that part of "the wild and wooly West," where woman suffrage has been adopted, that was not at all soothing to "Massachusetts pride. A member from the green isle did not want the women turned into Jezebels and Boadiceas. In fact, the horror which the Irish members seemed particularly to feel of woman's being contaminated by the mire of politics and their firm belief in the home as her only proper sphere, was not a little funny. But the funniest thing was the closing, when, after an eloquent speech from Mr. Roe, the leading advocate of the bill, Mr. Sullivan offered an amendment that the question be submitted to the people next November, which was carried with a rush. But as Sullivan and Co. inadvertently allowed the original bill to stand as it was, it conflicted with the amendment, and the House found itself in an absurd tangle. Reconsideration was refused the next day by a very close vote. The question now goes to the Senate, and it depends on their action whether Massachusetts shall stand abreast of New Zealand in the march of progress. Meanwhile the women who, with Mrs. Hill, and other noble leaders, had so long hoped, and prayed, and worked for municipal suffrage, filed out from the galleries, echoing in their hearts the song of Tennyson's Princess when, "like that great dame of Lapidoth, she sang:"

"Our enemies have fall'n, have fall'n; the seed,
The little seed they laughed at in the dark
Has risen and cleft the soil . . . .
Our enemies have fall'n, have fall'n; they struck;
With their own blows they hunt themselves, nor knew
There dwelt an iron nature in the grain."

Elizabeth E. Flagg.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, April 4, 1894.

The National Union for Practical Progress is a new organization which promises to become a very useful one. The sole requirement for membership is a desire for the betterment of society, and the spread of moral reform. Although new, this organization already has branches in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, with prospects of soon having one in every city in the United States. A meeting of the Washington Civic Center of the organization was held here this week, and, in response to a circular invitation to join in a consolidation of progressive citizens for the purpose of raising the morals of the nation, was attended by many of the clergymen and heads of charitable and reform organizations. It was stated at the meeting that circulars containing statistics of the leading evils of the country had been prepared and sent to every minister in Washington, with the request that they be used in connection with special sermons on practical reform, which the ministers have been requested to deliver monthly. The organization originated from two magazine articles which appeared less than a year ago. The following are its National Executive Committee: Philip S. Moxom, D. D., president; B. O. Flower, editor of the Arena, treasurer; Rev. Harry C. Vrooman, secretary; W. D. McCracken and Diana Hirscheler. The officers of the Washington branch are Rev. Alexander Kent, chairman; A. S. Diggs, secretary, and P. A. Auer, treasurer, any of whom will take pleasure in answering inquiries concerning the organization.

The news from South Carolina this week has been more than interesting to the temperance people, a few of whom have endorsed the Tillman liquor law of that State, and all of them have been carefully watching the effect of that law upon the liquor traffic. Next to absolute prohibition of the terrible traffic, in the opinion of many able advocates of temperance comes some system that will give the authorities better control of the evil than they have under the present license system. The bloodshed and excitement in South Carolina, reported by recent press dispatches, has raised serious doubts in the minds of those who had almost become advocates of the State dispensary system provided for by the South Carolina law, and now they are disposed to wait for their developments before taking a pronounced stand either for or against that law. The no-compromise prohibitionists regard the events in South Carolina during the past week as a strong argument in favor of prohibition, which they claim to be the only certain remedy for the intemperance which is the curse of our country. They believe that neither States nor individuals should be allowed to engage in such a harmful traffic.

It is claimed by those who are endeavoring to secure support for the bill drafted and endorsed by the American Medical Association at a meetiug in this city nearly three years ago, providing for the establishment of a Department of Public Health, which was this week introduced in the Senate by Mr. Grey, of Delaware, that it would, if it became a law, enable the temperance people to get what they have been in vain asking from Congress for a number of years—an official investigation of the alcoholic liquor traffic of the country. The bill creates a new member of the Cabinet, with an Assistant Secretary and a clerical force sufficient to procure medical, vital and social statistics; information relative to climatic conditions beneficial to health, intemperance and prostitution, and the condition of the laboring classes. The bill is accompanied by many letters from prominent physicians in all sections of the country, asking that it be passed, and I have been informed that the temperance organizations will be asked to endorse it, but have not been able to learn that any action has been taken in that direction by the physicians who are asking that the bill be passed.

Several hundred of the members of the big choir which led the singing at the recent Moody and Sankey meetings in Washington went to Richmond, Va., for the purpose of singing at the Moody meeting in that city last Sunday. They brought back pleasant stories of their reception as well as of the success of the Richmond meetings.

In addition to beginning the debate on the tariff bill, the Senate this week passed a bill providing needed authority for carrying out the provisions of the Bering Sea arbitration. The House, after spending more than a week in a practical dead-lock, succeeded in getting a voting quorum and in disposing of the Missouri contested election case that started the trouble. Senator Allen, of Nebraska, has offered an amendment to the tariff bill, providing for the free coinage of silver, but it is too early to say whether it will be seriously supported by any considerable number of Senators. *

Renew your own subscription and get your neighbor to subscribe.

CORRESPONDENCE.

ECHOES OF THE WISCONSIN ANTI-SECRECY CONVENTION.

Poynette, Wis., March 31, 1894.

Editor Cynosure:—I greatly enjoyed the late Christian convention at Oshkosh. Of course, with many of us, it was the old story over again; but it is the same with the Gospel itself. Our Free Methodist brethren entertained us handsomely, and I hope they received good in return. They are fighting a great battle in such cities, and their fervor in the cause did us all good.

I was very much pleased with the faithful reports given in the local papers; a large proportion of the inhabitants were reached in that way, and also by the distribution of programs and tracts.

The address of Rev. Wm. Fenton on Wednesday evening was certainly a masterpiece. Some ministers in their preaching, give us the deep things of God; and, like them, Bro. Fenton makes bare his arm, and brings to light the deep things of diabolism. Perhaps no living man has looked more profoundly into the mysteries of the secret empire than has he.

Brethren, we have delivered our testimony in another city. May the Lord water it and make it fruitful! J. B. Galloway.

[Not being able to attend the convention, Bro. Thomson sent the following letter to the brethren:]

Tomahawk, Wis., March 24, 1894.

Dear Bro.:—It would have been a great pleasure could I have been with you at the State Association, for we who stand together against the secret empire need often to be together for counsel and encouragement.

There can be no doubt that we live in evil days, the danger of which is not yet apparent to any large body of Christians. But to those who have their eyes open, the fact that the lodge is sapping the spiritual life of the people cannot be controverted. All the more sad is it because of the impossibility of making this fact clear to others.

There is a story that the vampire bat of South America, while it sucks the blood of its victim, fans it with its gently-moving wings, to keep it quiet and asleep. Such appears to be the power of the lodge. It grows strong, while its victim —the church of God—is, in many cases, I fear, sleeping the sleep of death.

In one of these North Wisconsin towns, I found that in four of the evangelical churches there were but seventy male members. On inquiry, I found that in one lodge—that of the Odd-fellows—there were three more members than in all four churches. Alas, the prayers of the lodge, its religious ceremonies at burial, its selfish and clannish spirit, substituted for Christian fellowship, have already done their deadly work. Our Protestant churches, many of them, are like blown eggs—little left but the shell. Socialism, like a witchs' cauldron, boils below; the great Roman Catholic church, like a upas tree, grows above, and the saloon is a fretting leprosy through all; while the Protestant church, because of the deadly influence of the lodge, has lost her spiritual power, by which alone these great evils can be overthrown.

May the blessing of the Father rest upon your deliberations. May there be the courage of strong, clear conviction, united with that charity that ever speaks truth in the spirit of kindness.

Yours in the love of Jesus, A. Thomson,
Pastor Cong'l church, Tomahawk.

REV. WM. FENTON'S ADDRESS.

The address of the evening was delivered by Rev. Wm. Fenton of St. Paul, and was on the subject, "Freemasonry as a Religious System, Offering Salvation to Men Without Christ and in Antagonism to the Gospel of Christ."

The speaker began his address by reviewing the history of Freemasonry. He read this history from a book which he claimed had been endorsed by men high in the Masonic order. This book, he said, showed the Masonic order to be founded on pagan mysteries. The order had originated in early times and had continued through three epochs, the last one being at the beginning of the eighteenth century. At this time the fraternity had greatly degenerated and was composed of men commonly known as saloon loafers, and disreputable characters. A revival was necessary, and to accomplish this end the members sought to adapt the Bible to the pagan mysteries. He claimed the order was founded upon cunningly-devised fables, and it had been the aim of the organization to conform the Bible to these fables. Masons based their hope for salvation on the resurrection of Hiram, whom it was claimed had been killed while Solomon's temple was being built, and had been raised by King Solomon by the five points of fellowship. The speaker considered the idea that Masons based their salvation on the resurrection of Hiram was sufficient evidence that the order rejected Christ. The name of Christ was even left out in the ritual. The candidate for admission to the order must swear to keep secret everything that may be revealed to him at some future time. Masons had merely a resurrection idea, founded upon a lie about the Bible. The speaker said that if a lie against character was libel, then every Freemason in the country should be indicted for libeling Hiram and Solomon. Every man had obligations to God, and no man could escape. If a man violated his obligations to God by swearing to keep the oaths of the Masonic order, then he perjured himself. A Freemason could not help but violate the first commandment, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me." In violating this, a man commits the greatest sin on earth. In closing, the speaker said that it was blasphemy to put the name of Christ in the Masonic ritual. The heathenish rites were carried out in the Masonic order, and it was antagonistic to the Gospel of Christ.

KNIGHT TEMPLARS ROUTED.

Little Rock, Ark., April 3, 1894.

Editor Cynosure:—About the 8th of March the pastor of my church called me aside, after prayer-meeting, stating to me that the Knight Templars wanted to come to the church as a body on "Easter Sunday," stating, as a reason for so doing, that they had always gone to one place, and that they wanted to visit other churches, and asked me if I had any objections. I said: "You know that I have no sympathy with them, but, of course, I could not object." He said he would like to have a chance to preach a Gospel sermon to them.

I went home, and taking Butler's Hand-Book with me, went directly out to the pastor's house. I read to him the Scripture texts quoted in Butler's book. After I had read Leviticus 5: 4, 5, he asked me to read it again. I did so. I then told him again I had no objections to the Templars coming to hear the Gospel, quoting to him, Luke 13: 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, and saying: "I suppose that they are as great sinners as any other men that dwell in Little Rock, and that unless they repent they will likewise all perish." They had furnished him a manual, and he was reading up the "beauties (?)" of the order.

A few days afterward a notice appeared in the daily papers that a lecture on Masonic Religion would be delivered by A. J. Millard, at the hall, Sixteenth and Centre streets. I soon learned that they were not coming to the Baptist church, but were going to their usual place, Christ's Episcopal. There is very little sympathy for the Masonic fraternity in the Baptist churches of this city, and I never have seen a Masonic demonstration of any kind in any of them; to my knowledge there are only a few affiliating Masons with us, but many who have quit the lodge are as dumb as an oyster on the subject.

The lecture on Masonic Religion was delivered to a small audience, for the location and other things made the hall an unpopular place, and many kept away. It is very difficult to get a desirable place on account of the power and influence of the lodge. A. J. M.

FREE METHODISTS AND THE A. P. A.

Chicago, April 9, 1894.

Editor Cynosure:—I understand that some of the Free Methodists are so anti-Catholic in their principles that they see but little harm in the principles of the A. P. A., and regret that the discipline of the church forbids their union with any secret society, whatever its principles or objects. I commend to the consideration of all such the stand taken by the New York Conference of their church, last September, as a safe guide in this vexed question, which is as follows:

Secret societies differ in the degree of evil that exists in them and results from them, but even the best and mildest of them are evil. They shear their votaries of their manhood. Their tyranny is such that they tell a man where to work, for whom to work, and what wages shall be received. In executing their tyrannical orders, families are brought to the verge of starvation, and, at times, precious lives destroyed. Instance the Homestead tragedy and the present starvation in England. We unhesitatingly reaffirm our continued opposition to all secret societies, and our faith in the rule to "abstain from connection with all secret societies, keeping ourselves free to follow the will of the Lord in all things."

It is the only safe rule. V. G.

SOME PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

Washington, D. C., March 26, 1894.

Editor Cynosure:—I am grateful for one of the best, most needed and timely articles on the Pollard-Breckenridge case from your Washington correspondent, in your issue of March 22.

A reform by court and press, curtailing the publicity of scandal, is greatly to be desired by the moral sentiment of every community. But let us have clear-cut reform, treating both sides alike, excluding men and women spectators from the court-room.

I quote from the Evening Star, of this city, "that the seats vacated by the women were instantly taken possession of by men." The presiding judge of this trial has, by this action of excluding women, decided the testimony to be unfit for women to hear. Is it not likewise unfit for men to hear? Is it a proper place for gentlemen where ladies are excluded, when both sexes are connected with the trial? Do not the ladies who are retained there have the same right to the sympathy and society of their own sex? Is there not a deeper meaning underlying this action of the court, that of favoring the defendent and giving wider scope to the attorneys for indecent language? (Mrs.) E. H. Powers.

NEW HAMPSHIRE NOTES.

New Market, N. H., March 29, 1894.

Editor Cynosure:—This State has been a stumbling-block in the way of temperance reform, by having, for over thirty years, a severe prohibitory law, and yet, in the larger villages and cities, failing to execute it. A brighter day is dawning. The New Hampshire Law and Order League has been organized, and good work has already been done by it. Ex-Governor Goodell said, in a recent speech: "The liquor-dealers have a secret organization to advance their interests; we purpose to confront them with an open one for the enforcement of our laws." Rev. A. J. Wheeler is secretary, general agent, and organizer of local leagues.

Want of space forbids even mention of the cities and towns where good work has been done. Of twenty-seven liquor-saloons in Littleton, not one remains. Over 50 saloons have been closed in Manchester, and 16 have been raided, or prosecuted, in Concord. The hotels and saloons of Franklin have been raided. The city marshal of Rochester ordered all saloons in that city closed after March 17. The hotels and saloons of Lancaster have been successfully raided, and the law-breakers are booked for punishment.

It is proper to say that F. J. Brown, R. A. Frohock, and other citizens, aided by Solicitor Fellows, had nearly abated the liquor nuisance in Belknap county before the Law and Order League was formed. Praise the Lord for this shock to Satan's kingdom! S. C. KIMBALL.

THE UNITED BRETHREN IN OREGON.

WELLS, Ore., March 27, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—It was my privilege to spend Saturday and Sunday, March 17 and 18, in the capital city (Salem), attending the United Brethren quarterly meeting.

Rev. H. L. Barkley, the presiding elder, was taken suddenly ill and was unable to be present. Bishop Dillon preached Saturday afternoon and Sunday morning; your correspondent spoke Saturday night and Sunday night.

We were not in time to hear the bishop Saturday afternoon, but on Sunday morning he preached the ablest discourse on Man's Immortality we ever heard. It was listened to with marked attention. All the services were well attended. On Sunday night all standing-room was taken.

On Saturday night our theme was "Infidelity," showing the marked differences between the "light of nature" and that of "divine revelation." We made a telling hit against the sincerity of professed infidels of this coast, by saying: "A small amount added to what it cost some of them to come to this coast would have taken them entirely out from under the influence of divine revelation where they could enjoy the 'light of nature' to their 'heart's content,' but so long as they hover about where divine revelation shines, I am persuaded that they are not sincere. If men like the light of nature better than that of divine revelation, why do they not go and root in the ground like the Hottentot? Or help the Arab lasso the wild horse, or the Mexican pick his cochineal, or the Turk hunt for gall nuts?" "The greatest question the soul can ask is, 'What must I do to be saved?' There is nothing in all nature that affords an answer; but, coming to divine revelation, we have it: 'Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved.'"

On Sunday evening our theme was "Anti-Worldliness," founded on 1 Kings 18:42. We tried to show how the church and the world were together on the side of carnal eating and drinking. The discourse was especially directed against the modern church fairs, festivals, and all such worldly methods of raising means to carry on the Lord's work. Our central theme was that God requires us to give to his cause without being bribed to duty by a stick of candy, or ice cream, or jimcracks of any sort.

At the close of our discourse, the advanced class from the deaf-mute school rendered two pieces of music, closing with "Jesus Lover of My Soul." Their work was perfect. Rev. J. B. Early, of the German Baptist church, is the very efficient superintendent. He is doing an excellent work. I am informed that all the scholars are Christians.

Prof. Baldwin, pastor of the United Brethren church, has done an excellent work in building up a large congregation. The church has been built less than one year, yet it is noted that we have next to the largest congregation in the city.

At 2:30 P. M. on Sunday, we went with Bishop Dillon to the county jail and held a service with the prisoners. The bishop never fails to speak to them when he is in the city on Sunday. At 4:00 P. M. we attended a temperance meeting at the W. C. T. U. hall, and spoke for ten minutes in favor of prohibition. Thus we spent the time at Salem. We are invited to come and speak on the lodge question, and have sent them April 5 as the date.

I am now at Wells, where I am to speak to-night and to-morrow night. I learn that Bro. Barkley is just at the crossing of Jordan. Let prayer be made that he may be spared many years yet. He is one of God's noblemen.

P. B. WILLIAMS.

CYNOSURE OFFER!

Any of the Books sold by the N. C. A. in this paper, ordered, with subscription to the Cynosure, at one-fourth off from list price, sent postpaid.

The New Volume of Pen and Pencil Series.

WELSH PICTURES Drawn with Pen and Pencil.

By D. Lewis Jones, Morris Jones, Edward Ffoulkes, H. Elvet Lewis, D. Tyssil Evans, D. Davies and O. M. Edwards. Edited by Richard Lovett, M. A. With many Illustrations. Imperial 8vo, cloth, gilt edges, boxed..... 3.20

"'Welsh pictures' is the work of ten Welshmen, among whom illustrating the beauties of Wales has been parcelled out according to the special familiarity of each. The result is a pleasing volume."—London Times.

THE EARTHLY FOOTPRINTS OF OUR RISEN LORD, Illumined.

A continuous narrative of the Four Gospels according to The Revised Version, with introduction by Rev. John Hall, D. D. Illustrated by 113 full-page half tone re-productions. Small 4to, cloth.....net 1.50
Gilt edge, with silk book mark, boxed.....net 2.00
Full morocco, flexible, gilt edges, round corners, boxed.....net 3.75

Pictures reflecting the best in sacred art from Raphael to the present day are scattered profusely through the book.

"To many the life of the Christ will be a new book in this form. Though beyond the introduction it contains no word except what is found in the four Gospels, yet when read continuously, without the breaks necessarily made by the different stories of the four evangelists, the narrative takes on new force and lifelikeness. The very fact that this is not our usual method of reading the Word will give it a new reality."—Golden Rule.

A GIFT OF LOVE, and Loving Greetings for 365 Days.

By Rose Porter. Long 18mo. Paper cloth..... 1.00
White cloth, silver top, in box..... 1.25
Decorated silk, silver top, in box..... 1.75

"'A Gift of Love' is the work of a loving heart. It contains a text of Scripture for every day of the year with the addition of an appropriate thought in poetry of prose all bearing on the theme of love. The work must have called for a great amount of patient toil. But it has not been spent in vain, for the volume will prove a blessing to many a soul. To use it day by day for a year thoughtfully and prayerfully, must result in a rich growth in love on the part of the user. The author is well known and esteemed for her previous works' sake."—The N. Y. Observer.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE SERIES.

By Rev. F. B. Meyer, containing CHRISTIAN LIVING, THE PRESENT TENSES OF THE BLESSED LIFE, AND THE SHEPHERD PSALM. 3 vols. in box. 18mo, cloth..... 1.50
White vellum cloth, silver top, in box..... 1.75

D. L. Moody says: "Few books of recent years are better adapted to instruct and help Christians than those of this author. He is a man mighty in the scriptures, saturated with Bible facts and truths."

PRAYERS FROM THE POETS.

By Martha Harger. 16mo, two colored cloth, gilt top..... 1.00
Leatherette, boxed..... 1.50

"This volume is admirable. The Prayer are better suited to some of our moods than formal Litanies and are selected from excellent sources. The book will be a dear treasure to many hearts."—The Churchman.

KIN-DA-SHON'S WIFE.

An Alaskan Story. By Mrs. Eugene S. Willard, Home Missionary of the Presbyterian Board of America to Alaska. With illustrations. 8vo, cloth..... 1.50

"Being a close observer and in deep sympathy with the native population in their struggles towards a Christian Civilization, Mrs. Willard has gained a more intelligent knowledge of their character, of their needs and hindrances, than perhaps any other person."—Dr. Sheldon Jackson.

HEROES OF THE GOODWIN SANDS.

By Rev. Thomas Stanley Treanor. With many illustrations. 8vo, Cloth..... 1.50

"It is a book of most engrossing interest, and as stimulating as it is readable."—The Record.
"The deeds of daring are thrilling in the extreme. Suitable for the public library or for the home."—Times.

THE GREAT LONDON DAILIES.

By H. W. Massingham. Profusely illustrated. 12mo, cloth..... 1.00

Very welcome to all who like to look behind the scenes and see how the great London dailies are worked.

New Editions.

The Prayer Meeting and Its Improvement. By Rev. LEWIS O. THOMPSON. Eighth edition, cloth, $1.25.

"Most heartily do we wish this work a wide circulation, both among pastors and people, and we hope it may do much toward the lifting of the prayer-meeting into that higher place which it ought to hold among the grand instrumentalities in the kingdom of the Master."—Congregationalist.

"We do not remember to have met with a work so suggestive, and we heartily commend it to both pastors and private members."—Baptist Weekly.

The Crisis of Missions. By Rev. ARTHUR T. PIERSON, D. D. Cloth, $1.25; paper, 35c.

"We do not hesitate to say that this book is the most purposeful, earnest, and intelligent review of the mission work and field which has ever been given to the church."—Christian Statesman.

The Christian's Secret of a Happy Life. By HANNAH WHITALL SMITH. One hundredth thousand. Issued in fourteen styles, from 50c. to $2.50. Send for circular.

"To commend this work would seem almost superfluous; and yet to young Christians who may not know it, we cannot refrain from saying, Buy this book, and keep it with your Bible for constant study, until you have thoroughly mastered, in your own experience, the 'secret' of which it tells. It will transform the dark days of your life, as it has transformed those of thousands before you, into days of heavenly light."—New York Evangelist.

The Topical Text Book. Fourth edition. 16 mo., cloth, 60c.

This little volume is a worker's most useful tool. It collates all Scripture passages under their topical headings, and for this reason proves far more helpful in studying a subject than the best concordance.

"I find one of the very best ways to study the Scripture is to study topically."—D. L. Moody.

Stalker's Life of Christ. Twelfth edition.

Stalker's Life of St. Paul. Fourth edition. 12 mo., cloth, each, 60c.

These works by Professor James Stalker, M. A., are unique in their compact putting of these lives into such condensed form without injurious brevity. They are being taken up as text books by Biblical classes in all parts of the country, thus proving their practical value.

Grace and Truth under Twelve Different Aspects. By W. P. MACKAY, M. A. Paper, 35c.; cloth, 75c. Two hundred and fiftieth thousand.

This remarkable sale can only be attributed to the very practical character of this work as a guide to the inquirer and a work of helpful instruction for the immature Christian. It is of this volume Mr. D. L. Moody said: "I know of no work in print better adapted to place in the hands of the inquirer."

Notes and Suggestions for Bible Readings. By S. R. BRIGGS. Sixtieth thousand. 8 vo, cloth. $1.00; flexible, 75c.

Edition after edition of this work has been called for until it would seem the demand must be supplied. The sales however, increase rather than otherwise.

Feathers for Arrows. By Rev. C. H. SPURGEON. 16 mo., cloth, $1.00.

Few preachers have made such effective use of pointed illustrations as the well known pastor of the great Metropolitan Tabernacle. Here he has given us a large cluster of his best with liberty to enjoy and employ.

Revell's Record for Church Treasurers. Size No. 1, $1.50; Size No. 2, $2.00.

Popular because practical—valuable because time saving—the only record for weekly envelope system that reduces the treasurer's work to the minimum.

For sale by the

National Christian Association;

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Ill.

Lodge Notes.

THE TAIL OF THE MASONIC DOG.

The "Mysterious Order of Veiled Prophets of the Enchanted Realm" is growing very rapidly in New York State. Hon. Thomas I. James, of New York City, is Most Potent Grand Monarch; LeRoy Fairchild, of Hamilton, N. Y., D. G. Monarch; Sidney D. Smith, of Hamilton, N. Y., Grand Secretary. They have ten grottos in New York State, including one in New York City and one in Minnesota. None but Master Masons in good standing are eligible for membership. It has weird and attractive ceremonies, and is attracting a good deal of attention, and many prominent Masons from all sections of the country are members of it already.—American Tyler.

A RELIC OF ANTI-MASONIC TIMES.

The stories of Morgan times are often related by the older members of Ancient Craft Masonry to the younger brothers, and serve to keep alive the events of those stirring times when the hands of all seemed raised to strike a deathblow to the institution. Those were no doubt thrilling times for Master Masons. A relic of those days is owned by W. H. Clutterbuck, of the Seymour House, in Ogdensburg, N. Y. It is a sheepskin pouch in which the charter of Ogdensburg Lodge was carried in those tempestuous days by Bro. Gerald, of Prescott. The pouch was strapped around his body, and if it had been discovered his life would no doubt have paid the penalty. Of 502 Masonic lodges in the State at that time, 430 surrendered their charters. Asa Gerald, son of the tried and true Mason who carried the pouch, presented it to Mr. Clutterbuck.—Lodge Secret.

The Masonic Grand Lodge of Minnesota has decided that a lodge cannot appropriate its funds to "assist in building a bridge."

England has 80,000 Masons to 35 millions of inhabitants. In the United States there 725,000 to 66 millions people.

Hood's Restores Health.

"About a year ago I became run down from overwork and got so weak that I could not sleep nights and was about giving up all hope of regaining my health, after repeated trials with local doctors, from none of whom I gained much if any relief. Some of them advised me to stop work for some time, but this to a poor man means a great deal, but after many months of misery a friend of mine came from New York to see me and advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I did so, and after using two bottles I began to regain my health with such rapidity that it was surprising to my neighbors and even to myself. Now, after using eight bottles, I am in as good health as I ever was and I owe all to Hood's Sarsaparilla. I believe that there is no greater health restorer on the market to-day and that it cannot be too highly recommended to the public. I have induced others to take it with equally good results." PATRICK J. BRADY, 27 Hampden St., Boston, Mass.

THE MYSTIC SHRINE
Illustrated.
THE FULL
ILLUSTRATED RITUAL
OF THE
Nobles of the Mystic Shrine
PRICE 15 CENTS, EACH.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

THE
Folly, Expense & Danger
OF
SECRET SOCIETIES.
BY
CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.
(President Wheaton College.)
5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred
NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago

SMALL BUT EFFECTIVE,

Was the little Monitor that met the Merrimac at Hampton Roads. So too are Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, effective in conquering the enemy—disease. When you take a pill it's an important point to have them small—provided they have equal strength and efficacy. You find what you want in these little liver pills of Dr. Pierce. They're put up in a better way, and they act in a better way, than the huge old-fashioned pills. What you want when you're "all out of sorts"—grumpy, thick-headed and take a gloomy view of life, is these Pellets to clear up your system and start your liver into healthful action. Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels, are prevented, relieved, and cured. Put up in sealed glass vials, and always fresh and reliable.

JAMES WILLIAM CRAIG, ESQ., of Georgetown, Ky., says: "My wife thinks your little 'Pellets' are the greatest pills out."

$5.00 a Day and FREE Samples to AGENTS to sell the Greatest Kitchen Utensil ever invented. Retails 25 cts. 2 to 6 sold in every house. Sample, postage paid FREE. FORSHEE & McMAKIN, 190 W. 5th St., Cincinnati, O.

MY WIFE CANNOT SEE HOW YOU DO IT AND PAY FREIGHT.
$14 Buys our 2 drawer walnut or oak Improved High Arm Singer sewing machine finely finished, nickel plated, adapted to light and heavy work; guaranteed for 10 Years; with Automatic Bobbin Winder, Self-Threading Cylinder Shuttle, Self-Setting Needle and a complete set of Steel Attachments; shipped any where on 30 Day's Trial. No money required in advance. 75,000 now in use. World's Fair Medal awarded machine and attachments. Buy from factory and save dealer's and agent's profits. FREE Cut This Out and send to-day for machine or large free catalogue, testimonials and Glimpses of the World's Fair. OXFORD MFG. CO. 342 Wabash Ave. CHICAGO, ILL.

WHEATON COLLEGE,
WHEATON, ILL.
A School for Men and Women.
SPRING TERM BEGINS TUESDAY, APRIL 3RD.
ENROLLMENT BEGINS MONDAY, APRIL 2ND.
For Catalogue, address
CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

IF YOU WANT WORK
that is pleasant and profitable, send us your address immediately. We teach men and women how to earn from $5 per day to $3,000 per year without having had previous experience, and furnish the employment at which they can make that amount. Capital unnecessary. A trial will cost you nothing. Write to-day and address,
E. C. ALLEN & CO.,
Box 1001. Augusta, Me.

PATENTS
Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained, and all Patent business conducted for Moderate Fees.
Our Office is Opposite U. S. Patent Office, and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.
Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.
A Pamphlet, "How to Obtain Patents," with names of actual clients in your State, county, or town, sent free. Address,
C. A. SNOW & CO.
Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

The Christian Witness
Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.
Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.
Send stamp for sample copy.
Address S. C. KIMBALL,
Box 277. Newmarket, N. H.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Colver on Masonry.
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

NORTHERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
Nathan Callender Montdale Pa.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
W. M. Love, Osceola, Mo.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Thompson, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
D. A. Richards, Brighton, Mich.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill.

Disloyal SECRET OATHS
ADDRESS OF
JOSEPH COOK,
OF BOSTON,
AT THE
Conference of Christians
CHICAGO, 1880.
No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference.
Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate. By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter)
—AND OFFICE OF—
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. A. J. Gordon D.D., Boston, Mass.

VICE PRES. DENT—Charles A. Blanchard, President Wheaton College Ill.

GEN'L SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I. Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

REC. SECRETARY—Amos Dresser, Jr. Wheaton, Ill., Box 367.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E Whipple, E. R. Worrell, Edgar B. Wylie W. M. Howie, H. F. Kletzing.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., J. A. Conant; Vice-president, S. C. Kimball; Sec'y, D. B. Gunn.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. R. W. Chesnut Marissa; Sec., Rev. J. R. Wylie, Coulterville; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., Rev. J. A. Greer, Columbus City; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton; Treas., Rev. L. Mendenhall, Fairfield.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., ——, ——, ——, Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom, Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morrill St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry; Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor. Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

OREGON.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dillon, D.D., Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan, Beaver; Treas., Edwin P. Sellew, Philadelphia.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poynette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas., J. W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

HENRY M. HUGUNIN - - - - Editor.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, APRIL 12, 1894.

The Annual Meeting of the National Christian Association will occur on Wednesday, May 16, 1894, at 10:30 A. M., in Carpenter building, 221 West Madison street, Chicago, Ill., for the election of officers and the transaction of other important business. REV. A. J. GORDON, Pres.
AMOS DRESSER, JR., Sec'y.

STRIKE RIOTS IN PENNSYLVANIA.

The public press last week teemed with details of the riots and bloodshed which followed the strike of 10,000 miners and coke-burners in Pennsylvania. Like the strike at Homestead, two years ago, it has resulted disastrously for both sides.

The strikers, generally considered, were Slavs and Hungarians, who had been imported by mine and coke operators because they work for less pay than the English-speaking men of the same class. These men and their wives and daughters are little better than barbarians, un-American in habits and intelligence, ignorant of American principles and institutions, and unable to speak our language. Naturally brutal, they resist anything that concerns their own interests, regardless of the rights and interests of those from whom they derive their livelihoods. Crossed in their demands, they resisted their employers by rioting, preventing other laborers from taking their places, and destroying property by fire and dynamite, like incarnate fiends.

Practically the strikers took possession of two counties, terrorizing all decent, quiet citizens. Men were stoned and beaten to death. Frick's chief engineer, while performing his duty, was rudely massacred, and murderous outrages were continually occurring. And the women, sympathizing with their lawless husbands and relatives, gave them substantial assistance by outdoing them in cruelty and violence.

The strikers reported killed in the fiercest conflict with the local authorities who endeavored to quell the riot, numbered about a dozen; and on Thursday it was announced that the survivors had become intimidated by the loss of their associates, although they retained their character of a lawless mob.

No doubt these men and their families had been imported to work for less wages than the old hands had received and were put into their places. No doubt they found their wages inadequate. We are prepared to believe that they were underpaid and badly treated, as they claim; and the responsibility of their employers should fall upon those to whom it belongs for engendering the situation in which they have placed themselves and their workingmen. The rapacity of the companies, and the undesirable class of employes engaged, are to be deplored; but the blame is to be equally shared by both. There is no valid excuse for either greed or vengeance.

THE SEVENTH COMMANDMENT IN FREEMASONRY.

In his sworn testimony before the court, the other day, Col. Breckenridge declared that he was a member of the Presbyterian church, and had been since 1859; that his father was a Presbyterian minister, and that he had often addressed young ladies' seminaries. He also swore that he was a member of the Masonic fraternity. Since 1884, during the time when his wife was living, he swore that he had illicit relations with Madeline Pollard, continuing up to about March 30, 1893, at which time he was secretly married to Mrs. Wing.

He claims, however, that he did not know that the father of Miss Pollard was a Mason; he only knew that he was an Odd-fellow. When asked what were the special obligations due to the daughters of Masons, he declined to answer. Had he known that this talented young woman was the daughter of a Mason, his Masonry, if not his honor and religion, might have prevented him from compassing her ruin. What a sad misfortune to both the colonel and Miss Pollard! Glorious Masonry! How it ennobles a Christian statesman—provided always that he happens to know that his intended victim is the daughter of a Mason!

Perhaps the colonel sinned through ignorance, as he claims; had he known how fearfully he was breaking the obligation of his Masonic fealty—which is as follows—would he have honored it by observance in preference to the command of God, with which, surely, he could not have been unacquainted?

His oath as a Master Mason: "I further promise and swear that I will not have illicit carnal intercourse with a Master Mason's wife, his mother, sister, or daughter, I knowing them to be such, nor suffer the same to be done by others, if in my power to prevent."

The command of God, in the Seventh Commandment: "Thou shalt not commit adultery."

Col. Breckenridge is not the only man in the Masonic lodge who would respect his secret obligation before he would perform his duty as a Christian. Several of the so-called Christian churches embrace members who openly express themselves in favor of the lodge and what it requires in preference to their baptismal vows and the injunctions of the Gospel.

Respecting the daughters of Masons and their peculiar connection with the craft, Mackey's Encyclopædia, page 204, gives us these additional particulars: "The daughter of a Mason is entitled to certain peculiar privileges and claims upon the fraternity, arising from her relationship to a member of the craft. There has been some difference of opinion as to the time and manner in which the privileges cease. Masonic jurists, however, very generally incline to the opinion that they are terminated by marriage. If a Mason's daughter marries a profane (non-Mason) she absolves her connection with the fraternity. If she marries a Mason, she exchanges her relation of Mason's daughter for that of a Mason's wife." Which doesn't change the Master Mason's obligation, unless she marries a profane! Are we, then, to infer that in such a case the Masonic oath no longer protects her against the insults of Masons?

PYTHIANISM IS HEATHENISM.

Rev. D. Simon, editor-in-chief of the Lutheran Standard, of Columbus, Ohio, in the issue of that paper for March 31, has an article on "The Knights of Pythias," which demands attention for the explicitness with which it places that order among the resurrections of heathen philosophy and worship, occupying a similar position, in this respect, to the Freemasons and Odd-fellows.

Grecian history relates that Dionysius, Damon and Pythias, upon whose operations the order of Knights of Pythias is founded, were heathens. Damon and Pythias were followers of Pythagoras, the ancient philosopher, who taught the transmigration of souls—the passage of the souls of the dead into the organism of living beings; and this, says Mr. Simon, "is the underlying thought of all the important heathen religions. It is the very soul of Buddhism. Without it there would be nothing in it, even to the heathen mind. This strange theory lays great stress on virtues, whatever that word may mean among the heathens. If a person has led a virtuous life (as they speak of virtue), when his body dies the soul will pass into a higher and nobler sphere of existence; if on the other hand the life has been of a degrading character, the soul will enter some lower animal life, possibly a toad or a snake or even a worm.

"This was the very soul of the Pythagorean philosophy, and as a faithful follower of his teacher, in whom the followers are said to have had implicit confidence, Pythias, undoubtedly, also embraced these shocking ideas and comforted himself with his own virtues whilst a hostage for his friend Damon.

"It is remarkable that all these noble (?) institutions of men are traceable to heathenism. Masonry, for example, is only an outgrowth or development of Egyptian heathenism. Odd-fellowship is but modified Masonry, and, as can be shown by their own publications, stands on a level with the fire-worshipers of India. And now through the history of the Knights of Pythias, as published by themselves, we are led to know that they have the very germ of their existence from a heathen philosopher."

Mr. Simon then asks: "Are the members of these institutions necessarily heathen?" and answers his question thus: "The religion embodied in the very existence of these institutions is heathen in its character, excluding the great Mediator Jesus Christ, and rejecting the central thought of all Christian truth, the atonement. People are led to believe that through virtues of their own they will be exalted to a higher sphere of existence, and are thus led away from the delightful and only saving truth that we are saved solely through the merits of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Possibly not all whose names stand on the roll of membership in these orders have in their hearts renounced Christianity; but one thing is beyond dispute, and that is that they practically, by their religious exercises, from which Jesus' name is carefully excluded, confess a religion that excludes Christ and his entire redemptive work and directs the souls of men away from the living God to things that do not exist."

There may be nothing new in all this, but there is enough of truth and significance to make any true Christian pause and consider his ways if he is at all tempted to enter the mysterious and hidden recesses of this revamped heathenism.

THE SITUATION IN SOUTH CAROLINA.

Governor Tillman, of the old "Palmetto State," has proved himself a man of energy and courage in the enforcement of the liquor laws within his jurisdiction. The liquor traffic of South Carolina is confined to State agencies known as "dispensaries," controlled by authorized officials, governed by reasonable restrictions, and no one else is permitted to sell intoxicating drinks. Governor Tillman discovered that infractions of the law were becoming rife, and he at once set about to enforce the laws. Opposition of a strong character met him at the outset, with the effect of arousing his energies, and an official declaration that the laws must and should be obeyed. "These continued disturbances," he said, "have been brought on by the low-down whisky element and by the violent opposition to the measure which the cities have made. The issue is whether the State is to be turned over to hoodlums and toughs or be governed by its intelligent citizenship." All the powers at his command were brought to bear upon the insurrection, which was becoming quite general in certain districts, and every available means to suppress the contraband sale and transportation of liquors was put into requisition. Railroad cars and all possible places where the law was infringed were embargoed. Finding the civil force too weak to cope with the trouble on his hands, the State troops were ordered out to assist it, with instructions to arrest all active opponents. At length such consummate skill and energy was rewarded by a suppression of the evil, and last Thursday the governor issued a proclamation declaring the insurrection at an end. The law may be unconstitutional, but it is enforced. Congress may investigate the governor's right to interfere with the railroads under the Inter-State Commerce law by seizing their property and telegraph lines, but the insurrection has failed.

A THRILLING LODGE EXPERIENCE.

Leon Wilson, of Cynthiana, Ind., a venerable Christian minister, in his seventy-fourth year, has written to John-Three-Sixteen his experience with the lodge. Few men who are led to renounce the secret works of darkness so fully realize the position in which they found themselves when enlightened by the Holy Spirit. He says:

"In my younger days I was induced to join a secret lodge, by friends who told me it was a great institution, and would be a great help to me in my work as a minister, it would add so much to my influence. This seemed to be done in all kindness, but it was a temptation of the devil, and proved through life to be the darkest spot of my moral horizon. When I came to myself, and my eyes were opened, my conscience was awakened, and reason restored. I saw that I had taken a very solemn oath which would screen the guilty, corrupt courts, dethrone justice, steal and destroy the vitality of the church. Moreover, that I had committed the awful crime against God and my soul, of denying the Lord Jesus Christ, by binding myself to another master, a band who called me brother, which knew no Saviour but their own system which forever forbids the name of Jesus Christ entering their lodge. It is needless to say that I left the lodge with much less ceremony than when I entered it. But the thought that I had denied the beloved Saviour, and foresworn myself to do so, pierced my heart, and why? Because I had exchanged the door of mercy and grace for that of the lodge, which refuses all mercy and favor from the Lord Jesus Christ, and denies any Saviour outside of itself."

—Woman-suffrage was finally reconsidered in the Iowa Legislature, and the act conferring it upon residents of the State was again passed, one Democrat voting effectually in its favor.

—An item in the Union Signal reports Miss Frances E. Willard, now in Europe, as steadily improving in health. She and Miss Anna Gordon, her traveling companion, propose to leave for home on the first of June, hoping to be present at the Montreal convention of temperance workers in July. Miss Willard's many friends sincerely rejoice, and pray for her perfect recovery.

—A note from the home of Mrs. Victoria Alexandra Stone, our esteemed contributor, brings us intelligence of her serious illness. She trusts that the readers of the Cynosure will remember her in their prayers. She wishes us, also, to tell the boy and girl readers of the Cynosure that she has written a nice story for them, which they are to have as soon as she is able to copy it. Her story of "Daft Willie," which we print to-day, is one of her best, and will be read with interest. We hope soon to be able to announce her complete restoration to health.

—F. L. Taylor, sophomore of Cornell College, at Ithaca, N. Y., who refused to testify in the prosecution of his fellows for their part in the recent fatal banquet of the sophomores, and was committed to jail for contempt of court, has been notified by the faculty that he has been dropped from the college rolls because of delinquency in his studies. Taylor says that he was unable to prepare for examination because he was required to be present at the sessions of the coroner's and grand juries. He is beginning to realize that "the way of the transgressor is hard."

—Kossuth, the Hungarian patriot, if Roman Catholic statements may be believed, seems to have had a "checkered" career. Besides his position as a patriot and soldier, we are told, "he advocated international Freemasonry of the sort condemned by the church, associated himself with the intrigues of that body which have culminated in the divorce, civil marriage, and birth regulations against which the Catholic hierarchy has arraigned itself in Hungary.....Although he had always lived a Protestant, he received the last sacrament of the Church of Rome shortly before his death. His deathbed repentance and conversion carries with it a renunciation of all these things." His dual relations to Freemasonry and the Catholic church were equally discreditable to his head and heart.

—We are in receipt, weekly, and have been for several years, of The Literary Digest, published by Funk and Wagnalls Co., 18 Astor Place, New York City, which, in every number, presents the cream of all important current literature, condensed from the freshest domestic and foreign periodicals. In the issue for March 29, there were represented 45 magazines—American, English, Canadian, German, French, Dutch, Spanish and Russian—and 41 daily and weekly papers—some Japanese, Chinese and South African; also some printed in India, Hawaii and New Zealand. In the number for April 5 were notable articles, freely illustrated, on nearly every living topic of general interest from all over the world. Translations and condensations are made especially for this periodical by its regular editorial staff. It is one of the best exchanges on our list. Send for sample copies and terms.

REFORM NEWS.

THE NEW ENGLAND SECRETARY AND DR. GEORGE C. LORIMER.

[The following letter from Rev. J. P. Stoddard was sent to the Boston Journal for publication, but was declined by the editor, because, as he said: "We do not wish to enter into the controversy between the Masons and Anti-masons." It will, notwithstanding, receive due circulation through the Cynosure and other competent mediums.—Editor Cynosure.]

Editor Boston Journal,

Dear Sir:—Returning to the city, a friend has called my attention to the following paragraph in your issue of the 26th of March, referring to the Easter service of Sir Knights in Music Hall:

"Dr. George C. Lorimer, the pastor, preached a stirring sermon on the subject, 'The Easter Benediction.' In his remarks he alluded to a recent pulpit utterance to the effect that all Masons should be excommunicated, and declared with great emphasis that when that time came, the Masons should go in a body and he would go with them."

The Doctor's "remark" suggests a number of inquiries:

1. Since the Masonic order is preferable to the church, why wait for excommunication? Why not go now?

2. Why not abandon the church and take the lodge, and thus avoid the trouble and expense of maintaining both?

3. How many degrees does it take in Masonry to prepare an ordinary sinner for heaven?

4. What has the Doctor to suggest for the salvation of young men under age, old men in dotage and women and persons too poor to pay initiation fees and lodge dues?

5. How does the Doctor justify himself in devoting even a part of his efforts to the worse, thus, of necessity, depriving the lodge of a part of his services? Does the church pay more for his services, or what is the consideration?

6. Would the Doctor discard the cup of our Lord in the sacrament and substitute the Knight Templar's "fifth libation," in which the initiate drinks pure wine from a human skull and invokes double damnation upon his head if he discloses any secrets of the order?

If the Doctor can give us "light" upon these and similar queries that are germane to the subject, and explain why it is that men having a purer light than the church should put it "under a bushel," possibly there are some who still cling to the simple forms of worship which they have learned from the New Testament, and who would be ready to abandon the worse for the better, and join him and his Masonic brothers in a grand "hegira" from "the Body and Bride of Christ," and swear allegiance to a system of which Nathaniel Colver, one of his predecessors in the Tremont Temple Baptist church, after having taken the lodge and chapter degrees, deliberately wrote: "I regard it as Satan's masterpiece, a terrible snare to men."

Many are looking for the light, that they may "walk" in it. Will the Doctor kindly shed some rays upon our benighted minds, or shall we be compelled to take up the sad lament of Job when he said: "When I waited for light there came darkness." Whatever the result, we "who believe" and who have "fallen upon perilous times" spoken of in 2 Timothy, chapter 3, may stay ourselves upon the promise in 1 Samuel 2: 9: "He will keep the feet of his saints, and the wicked shall be silent in darkness, for by strength shall no man prevail." Rev. James P. Stoddard,

New England Sec'y of the N. C. A.

THE EASTERN SECRETARY IN PENNSYLVANIA.

On Train, En-route for Barto,
Berks Co., Pa., Apr. 5, 1894.

Dear Cynosure:—I have filled the appointments made for me by Rev. J. T. Myers, of the German Baptist church, Oaks, Pa., as announced in the Cynosure. Sabbath morning I spoke, in what is known as the Green Tree church, to a large and attentive audience. In the evening I addressed a smaller company at Port Providence. A lecture was given in the Port Providence church, Monday evening, and another in the Green Tree church, Tuesday evening. Last evening my lecture was in Royersford Brethren church. My receptions at all points have been very encouraging.

Bro. Myers rejoiced in my coming, and did all he could to make the meetings a success. He felt very solicitous lest the young men connected with this congregation be entrapped and led into the various little lodges that are being organized on all sides. He was glad to see a large number of these young men come to the lectures and listen attentively as the facts were given them.

A local minister of the M. E. church, living at Port Providence, and looked upon as a devout Christian, was causing some to think Masonry a good thing. While professing and teaching sanctification he, at the same time, upheld the lodge. He attended both of my lectures, and can no longer plead ignorance of the iniquity of Masonry. If he is an honest Christian, he must now forsake this system of dishonesty. We shall hope, for the sake of his own soul and the souls of those over whom he has influence, that he may walk in the light.

At the Port Providence lecture some questions were asked by a Masonic adherent. In reply to my question, he denied, most emphatically, that when made a Mason he was put in a barrel and water poured over him; but he would not deny that he was stripped, blindfolded and cable-towed before entering the lodge. The audience saw the truth and had a laugh at his expense. There were several in this section who had given up attendance on the various lodges and united with the church, who still felt that the obligations which they had assumed in the lodge were binding. I endeavored to show clearly that lodge oaths were not binding. How many saw their way clear to tell of the iniquities they had seen practiced in the lodges with which they were connected I may not know. At least one man made a clean breast of the whole thing, and was made happy in giving his neighbors the facts, that they might never be caught as he had been. The collections were good, considering the times.

I should like to write of those who have shown me personal kindness, but time and space do not permit. Our friends, the Mennonite Brethren in Christ at Royersford and Spring City, were enthusiastic. A lecture is arranged for the church of which Rev. Mr. Fitler is pastor in Spring City, April 11.

I go to Barto to-night, where I am to be the guest of Bro. Latshaw. Rev. A. S. Shelly comes to-morrow to convey me to where five or six appointments are made for me to lecture. The people are hungry for the truth. They find lodge chaff a very unsatisfactory diet.

Our train has stopped at Boyertown. Boys have just passed through the cars distributing bills which state that Rev. W. B. Stoddard is to lecture in Rhoads' Opera House Friday evening. The effects of the grand convention in Philadelphia are seen all along the line. Friends are encouraged, people are inquiring, and God's name is being honored. W. B. Stoddard.

THE PACIFIC COAST WORK.

Philomath, Ore., April 3, 1894.

At Wells we spoke two nights, to very fair-sized congregations. The attention was splendid. The audience was quite demonstrative. I distributed quite a number of tracts and secured two subscriptions to the Cynosure, and took an order for Ronayne's Hand-book.

As an evidence of the good work being done by our Association at this point a very nice Christian gentleman informed us that he had never before met any one who was speaking out against the orders. He was very much interested in the work; and with the paper and the Hand-book he will post up, and perhaps we may hear from him on the subject.

There is no lodge at this place except the Grange, which seems to be on its last legs.

Here we first met Rev. W. J. Feemster, of the Congregational church. He is an all-round reformer—a man of God, not ashamed or afraid to show his colors. He is a regular subscriber to the Christian Cynosure, and gave us great encouragement.

Bro. C. P. Jensen is the superintendent of the Sunday-school. He subscribed for the Cynosure, and will doubtless teach anti-secrecy doctrine.

From here I went to Suver and spoke two nights to very fair congregations. The interest was good. A few lodgemen were present and took our criticisms with good grace. Here we distributed quite a number of tracts, and secured one subscriber to the paper. Miss Mary Northrup is the very efficient teacher of the public school at this place. I visited the school on Friday afternoon, and found one of the most orderly schools I have ever seen. It is with great ease that Miss N. manages her students, and commands the respect of both the students and their parents. We addressed the school for a few moments, and as we left thes choolroom we breathed a silent wish that we were again young, that we might better improve the time allotted for study.

We returned home on Saturday and preached twice on Sunday. On Sunday night we took for our theme "Christ the Way," and showed that since the fall whatever reaches God and heaven must go through Jesus Christ; and whatever comes from God to man, is by the same route. Vain are the attempts of individuals or institutions to try to seek God except through his Son.

A certain physician of Corvallis, a member of the board of regents and treasurer of the Oregon Agricultural College, is in jail at Corvallis, having been arrested for a most heinous sin. As he is a prominent Freemason, we await results with interest. P. B. Williams.

The Home.

TO B. B. BLACHLY.

BY REV. B. F. WORRELL.

Sometimes, doubtless, thou art weary,
Fasting, thirsting, needing rest;
Busy in the Master's service,
Which has been so largely blest;
Tired in, but never of it,
As the flesh is often weak,
But the spirit, which is willing,
Never fails new work to seek.

Toiling in the world-wide vineyard,
Thine will be a large reward;
Even now the shadows deepen—
Soon will come our risen Lord.
Not within the palace only,
But in hovels, may be found
Those who at the Second Coming
Will as priests and kings be crowned.

Bear, then, to the poor and needy
Books whose worth cannot be told,
Which make known the royal highway
To the city paved with gold.
Those who run can reach its portal,
And be helped to enter in,
Saved from death—the blood avenger—
Fully saved, no more to sin.

Tell them of the cross and manger,
Of the garments laid aside,
When the Saviour came from heaven,
Took our place and for us died;
Of the resurrection morning
Speak, and cheer the aching heart;
Tell them of the grand re-union
In which they may have a part.

Carry everywhere the Bible—
Read to those who wish it read—
So that precious souls, now starving,
May with angels' food be fed.
None too poor to own a Bible!
Give to those who cannot buy;
It will help them lay up treasure
Safe from rust and thieves on high.

Take the trinkets which they offer,
As from home to home you call,
Even though they have no value,
Or, if any, very small;
Take their beads, and cross, and keepsakes,
Charms, and shells, and spoons and rings,
Mites, of which two make a farthing,
And a host of useless things.

Men are blest more by their giving
Than they are when they receive;
Help the people learn this lesson,
And then act as they believe;
Then the Bible will be precious
In proportion to its cost,
And the deeper be the sorrow
If, through priestcraft it be lost.

Tracy, Ill., March 26, 1894.

OPPORTUNITY AND CHARACTER.

It is not opportunity and the lack of opportunity, not ability and the lack of ability, that makes the difference in the power of human lives for good. It is faith and the lack of faith, character and the lack of character. It is consecration and concentration, and the failure to consecrate and concentrate. It is courage and self-denial over against cowardice and selfishness.

There is a potential hero of faith, a possible prophet of larger truth, in every soul. The door of supreme opportunity swings open to every man and woman, church and nation. In some great moment God stands before each and says: "Now is thy time! Show what is in thee! Show the world thy vision or thy blindness!" And what makes one great and the other small is that one grasps what the other passes by. One enters the door of opportunity which the other fails to enter because of the cowardice of unbelief. One looks at himself and fails, while the other looks God and his universe in the face and dares to trust, trust in spite of the stupidity of the church, the mockery and unbelief of the world, the misunderstanding of friends.

Harlan Page, pressed with business cares, battling with ill health, led a hundred young men into the ministry by consecrating his personal influence to Christ. Every business man has the same Christ and the same opportunity. John Wesley became the apostle of a new dispensation of divine grace to the world; yet every student in Oxford had the same opportunity to gather about him a half-dozen fellow-students for prayer and Scripture study and divine guidance. The noble daughter of Willian E. Dodge has consecrated herself and wealth and time to solving the problem of the poor in New York City; yet many rich men's daughters have the same opportunity. George Muller, beginning in poverty, has built up those orphan homes in Bristol, England, which are a miracle of prayer the unbelief of the world cannot gainsay; yet there were other students in the German University where he studied upon whom the same spirit of prayer was pressing. Time would fail me to tell of the many who, through faith, have seen the purpose of God in their day, which the pride and unbelief of the world would not see, and have made them their opportunity.

It therefore behooves us each to be about our Father's business, watchful for our opportunities; for the night cometh in which no man can work. In an hour when we think not the Son of Man may come to us, in the supreme moment of our life, and find us sleeping on the threshold of a matchless opportunity. It is God's part to estimate the value of our service; it is our part to serve and question not.—George D. Herron.

"DAFT WILLIE."

BY MRS. VICTORIA ALEXANDRA STONE.

Did you ever visit an asylum for idiots, reader? If so, did you not wonder, while gazing upon those poor unfortunates, if it were possible that they had souls? It is but natural that one should wonder if such unfortunate creatures, who seem scarcely above the beasts of the field in point of intelligence, could have souls—"the divine spark," which God bestows with the life of every human being.

These thoughts were suggested by an incident which occurred in the Highlands of Scotland many years ago. There lived at the time of which we write, on the banks of the river Ayr, a man whom we will call John McDonald. His family consisted of himself, his wife, and two sons. The oldest, Willie, aged seventeen, was an idiot; the youngest, Sandy, was a bright lad of fourteen years. Their father was a fine, intelligent man, who was proud of his bright boy Sandy, and loved dearly his idiot son Willie, or "Daft Willie," as he was called in the hamlet where he lived.

One day, a naturalist who was stopping in the place offered Sandy two dollars for a young eagle. The boy kept anxious watch for the coveted bird, and one morning he came running in the house crying: "I have found it, the eagle's nest! Come with me, Willie!" The boys hastened to the hills near the river, and Sandy, venturing near the brink of the precipice, showed his brother Willie the eagle's nest. The precipice was nearly or quite perpendicular, and was nearly eighty feet from top to bottom; and about half way down on a large, flat rock which jutted several feet outward from the main body of the crag, was the eagle's nest. There it was, a nest made of sticks and moss, and it contained two young eagles.

"I'll get them both!" cried Sandy, excitedly.

"But how get down?" said Willie.

"I can go down on those vines," said Sandy; "they are strong, and I am not afraid."

Suiting the action to the word, he threw off his cap and heavy shoes, swung himself off the brink, and started downward, clinging to the vines. The dirt rattled down, with a few stones, but Sandy laughed, saying: "It is all right." Meanwhile "Daft Willie" was lying flat upon his stomach, with his head over the brink of the precipice, watching his brother. All went well until Sandy had nearly reached the eagle's nest, when he suddenly stopped. He swung back and forth; several of the vines snapped, but he clutched wildly at others, and finally he lifted a white, scared face to his idiot brother, who was bending over the precipice, watching him.

"Willie," he cried in a voice sharp with terror, "run home and get a rope, and bring father and mother with you. I cannot go any farther! the wall bends inward here, and there is nothing for me to take hold of."

"Why don't you come up?"

"I can't," said Sandy; "the vines are breaking. Run, run!"

Willie sped with flying feet homeward.

Poor Sandy clung with the grasp of desperation to the frail vines above him. Beneath him yawned the precipice more than fifty feet below. It seemed hours, but was really but a few moments, before Willie returned. He looked up and saw his idiot brother bending over the precipice with a coil of rope.

"Father! Mother!" cried Sandy, "are you there?"

"They are here!" cried Willie.

With deft fingers the idiot boy made a slip-noose in one end of the rope, and the other end he tied to a sapling which grew near the brink of the precipice. Then throwing the rope over he grasped it, and, swinging off, he slid rapidly down to the spot where his brother was hanging. Here, hanging by one hand, he managed to slip the noose over his brother's feet, and by using each hand alternately he succeeded in drawing it tightly beneath his brother's arms.

"Now you are safe," he said pleasantly; "let go the vines!"

Sandy did so, and "Daft Willie," looking upward, cried: "Now pull up the rope!"

It was a heavy load, but strong and loving hands grasped the other end, and they had arrived within twenty feet of the top when Willie's voice, sharp with terror, stopped them.

"The rope is breaking!" he cried.

Alas! it was too true. The sharp rocks had cut the rope, and just five feet above their heads only a few strands separated the boys from a fearful death. McDonald and his wife looked over the precipice, and the white face of their son Willie—"Daft Willie"—was looking up at them.

Where was the foolish, idiotic expression that he had worn so long? The white face that looked up at them was like the face of an angel. The deep, grey eyes beamed with intelligence, and a sweet smile played upon his lips.

"Stop!" he cried, and let go with one hand. He looked down at his brother hanging beneath his feet, and then upward at the faces of his father and mother bending over the precipice.

"Now draw up the rope!" he cried; and let go with the other hand and dropped.

His brother was saved. Except that one momentary flash of reason and intelligence so vivid that it well-nigh blinded and bewildered his parents who witnessed it, not a ray of reason had ever illuminated the soul of the idiot. As his father was wont to say: "God spake through him!" He was kindly remembered in the little hamlet where he lived, and for many years afterward the children climbed the hills and mountains in quest of heather and blue-bells with which to decorate and make beautiful the grave of poor "Daft Willie."

Steamburgh, N. Y.

THE ABIDING POWER OF PRAYER.

Not long ago a man of fifty years was happily converted to God. His first prayer offered in his home was a prayer his father used to offer forty years ago. His first public prayer in the church was a part of the same prayer. Though this father had long been dead, and the son had led a prayerless, worldly life, the prayers of that father had an abiding power. They were not forgotten, even though for so many years they seemed to be wholly fruitless. At last, however, the father's prayers are answered, and the very prayers of long ago are the first to find expression in the heart and on the lips of one who has become a new creature in Christ Jesus. How real and how great is the abiding power of true prayer!

A young man was recently converted who had led a very wayward life. Soon after his conversion he began to speak and pray in public like one who had long been a Christian. His readiness in prayer and his familiarity with the very language of God's kingdom which he had so recently entered, were a matter of remark by those who heard him. There was a mystery about it all, till one day this young man in giving his testimony for Christ told of his early Christian education, of the family altar, and of the prayers he had been taught by his godly mother in his early childhood. This solved the mystery. The prayers and training of pious parents had not been lost, though their boy seemed so long to be entirely indifferent respecting these influences of his Christian home. At last, however, he is brought within the fold of safety, like a wandering sheep rescued from the perils of mountain wilds, and there is seen in all its beauty the abiding power and blessing of prayer. The Christian education of this young man served him after his conversion as Paul's education served him when he became a preacher of the Gospel of Christ.

Many a young man has been kept from going to the bad by the ubiquitous power of his mother's prayers. The prayers of a devout mother have wonderful keeping power. In a great measure parents do not realize, even mothers, what a power prayer will have on the children, even if they are wayward; even if far away from home, and perhaps have already commenced the downward path. Yet that mother's prayer, constant, earnest prayer, how much it means! Said a young man, not long ago, "I started out for a wild night, but something seemed to urge me toward a church. I saw a sign—Everybody Welcome. Looking in, I saw a meeting going on. Went in, heard the Gospel, accepted Jesus Christ. I found afterward that my mother was praying for me that night, and had been all day. I believe I should have been lost except for that mother's prayers."

How true it is that parents sometimes feel utterly powerless to do anything for their children. They seem to be beyond their control, beyond their reach in every way. But this is not really so. They may be reached by way of the throne of grace. They may be away from home; they may be wayward and forgetful of God and their relations to him; yet what a privilege it is for parents to be in close touch with the great God, who is able to deliver and able to lead into right paths those who have wandered away.

Let no one, then, lose faith in the abiding power of prayer. Let prayer be earnestly offered daily for children and friends, remembering that "The supplication of a righteous man availeth much in its working."—Religious Telescope.

KEEP OUT OF BAD COMPANY.

There are two reasons for this. First, "Birds of a feather flock together." Second, "Evil communications corrupt good manners." If you are in bad company, people will judge you by your company, and like poor Tray you may be beaten for other people's faults. Many a man lies in prison to-day for some crime which he never committed, simply becomes he was in a bad crowd. Some one did the wrong, others escaped and he found himself in the clutches of the law. Further, you will not only be judged by the company you are in, but you will become like the company which surrounds you. If you run with dogs you will learn to bark. If you stand in the way of sinners you will become like them; and the very fact that you are willing to stay in such company shows that you are more like them now than you are willing to own. If you are honest, conscientious and faithful and true, your soul will abhor the ways of ungodliness. You will keep clear of them. If you go among the impure, the profane, the intemperate, you will be no better than your company; you will have no better reputation and you will sink down to their level. You may flatter yourself that you can elevate them, but the experiment has been tried too often; but vice holds its sway over the multitudes who have drifted and wandered and sunk at last into things which they would have at first abhorred.—The Common People.

LETTING THE LIGHT SHINE.

A chaplain in our army during the war was passing over the field, when he saw a poor fellow that had been wounded lying upon the ground. He happened to have his Bible under his arm, and he stooped down and said to the man: "Would you like me to read you something that is in the Bible?" "That wounded man said: "I'm so thirsty, I would rather have a drink of water." The chaplain hurried off, and as quickly as possible brought the water. After the man had drank the water, he said: "Could you lift my head and put something under it?" The chaplain removed his light overcoat, rolled it up, and, tenderly lifting the head, put it as a pillow for the tired head to rest on. "Now," said the man, "if I only had something over me. I am so cold." There was only one thing the chaplain could do, and that was to take off his coat and cover the cold man. As he did so, the wounded man looked up in his face and said: "For God's sake, if there is anything in that Book that makes a man do for another what you have done for me, let me hear it." There is a world of meaning, to my mind, in this incident. The need of to-day is the acting of object-lessons the Book teaches.—Exchange.

KISSED HIS MOTHER.

She sat in the porch in the sunshine
  As I went down the street—
A woman whose hair was silver,
  But whose face was blossom sweet,
Making me think of a garden,
  When, in spite of the frost and snow
Of bleak November weather,
  Late, fragrant lilies blow.

I heard a footstep behind me,
  And the sound of a merry laugh,
And I knew the heart it came from
  Would be like a comforting staff
In the time and the hour of trouble,
  Hopeful and brave and strong,
One of the hearts to lean on
  When we think all things are wrong.

I turned at the click of the gate-latch,
  And met his manly look;
A face like his gives me pleasure,
  Like the page of a pleasant book.
It told of a steadfast purpose,
  Of a brave and daring will;
A face with a promise in it,
  That, God grant, the years fulfill.

He went up the pathway singing;
  I saw the woman's eyes
Grow bright with a wordless welcome,
  As sunshine warms the skies.
"Back again, sweetheart mother,"
  He cried, and bent to kiss
The loving face that was uplifted
  For what some mothers miss.

That boy will do to depend on;
  I hold that this true—
From lads in love with their mothers
  Our bravest heroes grew.
Earth's grandest hearts have been loving hearts,
  Since time and earth began;
And the boy who kisses his mother
  Is every inch a man.

—Christian Intelligencer.

TEMPERANCE.

INTEMPERANCE.

BY REV. P. B. WILLIAMS.

The figures I present are taken from the United States census, and can be verified byany one who will examine the official report. The total wages of the laboring-classes in this Union, in 1890, is $1,168,784,000, or less than four-fifths of our liquor-bill. All the food and food-productions for our 60,000,000 people cost only $600,365,500 per year, while the drink-bill costs two and a half times more than the food for the nation.

The use of only a single glass daily by the 30,000,000 freemen in the United States, at five cents a glass, amounts to $150,000,000, and in fifty years to $7,500,000,000. Ten cents a day for liquor amounts to $36.50 per year, enough to supply a family of six persons with the best flour the year round.

When a person pours a glass of ten-cent whisky down his throat, he can say, "Here goes flour enough to feed six persons a whole day." After he has practiced that for twenty years, he can say: "I have swallowed a two-story brick house, lot, chimney and all." Intemperance destroys vast estates as well as giant intellects.

We have six hundred thousand habitual drinkers who lose half their time in drunkenness, making, at a low estimate, a loss of one hundred millions of dollars. Besides, there are ninety million bushels of grain worse than destroyed. Add to this the cost of pauperism, crime, prisons, courts, etc., comprising fully one-half of all our taxes, and we can see the cause of our hard times—can see where the money goes. Our nation's drink-bill is our nation's great curse. The resources of our great country are amply sufficient to place all our people beyond the reach of poverty and destitution, if rightly used; and yet we are groaning under our pauperism, and talking of taxes and hard times, and no work or trade, while intemperance is stalking abroad through the land and devouring half of our substance. It is entering the homes of millions and taking food from their tables, fuel from their fires, clothing from their backs and beds, turning their homes and lands over to others, pushing them into beggary and crime, so that thousands and thousands are dragging out a miserable existence in penitentiaries and alms-houses. It sends over two hundred thousand of our citizens to the poor-house annually, and more than that number of orphans into the streets shelterless, shivering and hungry.

In one year there were fifty-nine thousand six hundred and seventy-two lodgers in the station-houses of Philadelphia. Not less than forty thousand of these were brought to this necessity by drink. Our poor-tax is our rum-tax; our police-tax is our rum-tax, and our prison-tax is our rum-tax.

Chas. G. Hoyt, secretary of the New York Board of Charities, in his official report to the New York Legislature says: "The cause of the pauperism of nine thousand eight hundred and fifty-five, over sixteen years of age, eighty-four per cent was from intemperance. The drinking system is directly responsible for twenty per cent of our idiots, forty per cent of our lunatics, seventy-five per cent of our crimes, ninety per cent of our paupers, and ninety-five per cent of all the thriftless, broken-down, broken-hearted people in our country.

Look at the crime it has occasioned. It sends more than one hundred and fifty thousand criminals to our prisons annually. It causes more than five hundred murders and four hundred suicides a year, not to mention the enormous crop of lying, thieving, profanity and licentiousness fruitful of this sin. Crime is the natural effect of alcohol. It breaks down the conscience, increases the courage, induces recklessness, and makes man scout all law and right, and hurries him to the perpetration of every abomination and crime. Excite a man by alcohol, and he is at once bad enough for any crime. He can lie, and steal, and swear, and plunge the dagger into the bosom of his nearest friend. John Wilkes Booth failed in his courage to murder Abraham Lincoln, until he rushed into a saloon and poured a full glass of brandy down his throat, and then he could put a bullet into the head of that great statesman and turn a whole nation into mourning. The records of our courts tell us of the crimes committed under the influence of rum, which curdle the blood in our veins. Husbands butcher their wives; children slaughter their parents. The far greater part of the atrocities committed in our land proceed from the maddening influence of ardent spirits. Man under this influence first becomes stupid, then idiotic, then a maniac. It reduces him to a brute, then to a fool, then to a devil.

In Baltimore, in one month, in 1878, there were two thousand four hundred and sixty-three arrests made by the police of that city; nine hundred and seventy-seven of them were for intoxication.

"Nine-tenths of all the prisoners" (says Capt. Pillsbury, Warden of Sing Sing State prison), "are decidedly intemperate men."

(To be continued.)

A CATHOLIC BISHOP ON CATHOLIC SALOON-KEEPERS.

Bishop Watterson has issued a circular letter to the clergy of his diocese—a letter on the subject of temperance, which was appointed to be read at the Sunday Masses and Lenten service immediately following its reception. The bishop says:

"To give greater efficiency, both to the recommendations of the bishops and to the declarations of our Catholic laity at the recent congress in Chicago, concerning the saloon business, I hereby withdraw my approbation from any and every Catholic society, or branch or division thereof, in this diocese that has a liquor-dealer or saloon-keeper at its head or anywhere among its officers, and I suspend every such society itself from its ranks and privileges as a Catholic society until it ceases to be so officered."

The bishop further charges his clergy:

"If there are saloon-keepers in your parish who call themselves Catholics, and yet carry on their business in a forbidden and disedifying way, or sell on Sundays, either openly or under any sort of guise or disguise in violation of the civil law and to the hurting of order and religion, and to the scandal of any part of the community, you will refuse them absolution, should they perchance come to receive the sacraments, unless they resolve and promise to cease offending in these or other ways and to conduct their business blamelessly, if they can, or get out of it, and out of it altogether."

BIBLE LESSON.

STUDIES IN THE BOOKS OF MOSES.

LESSON IV.—Second Quarter, 1894, April 22.

SUBJECT.—Joseph Ruler in Egypt.—Gen. 41: 38-48.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Them that honor me I will honor.—1 Sam. 2: 30.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

Daily Readings.—M.—Gen. 41: 38-48. T.—Gen. 41: 1-13. W. Gen. 41: 14-24. Th.—Gen. 41: 25-37. F.—Acts 7: 9-16. S.—1 Sam. 2: 6-10. Su.—Psalm 1.

COMMENTS BY E. E. FLAGG.

1. Joseph exalted.—vs. 38–41. "Can we find such an one as this, a man in whom the Spirit of God is?" Pharaoh had many so-called wise men, but none like Joseph. It is interesting to note why, in Pharaoh's estimation, Joseph was superior to them all, for thereby we can draw a lesson for our own times. There might have been greater politicians among them, and certainly there could have been none so young and totally inexperienced in affairs of statesmanship. But the Spirit of God was in him, and it was not in the rest of Pharaoh's counselors. We often speak of "the sovereign people of America," meaning that they, like Pharaoh, can choose their own public servants. But on what class of men does the choice too often fall? Men who do not want God's Spirit to guide them, but prefer to be directed by "policy," or "expediency," which means the interest of some political "boss," rather than the people's. The example of this heathen king is worthy to be taken to heart by American voters. Let them also be careful to appoint to office only men "in whom the Spirit of God is," and our land would never be in any danger of the same fate which befell the powerful nations of antiquity. Pharaoh, however, did not act on the unreasoning impulse of the moment. "Forasmuch as God hath shewed thee all this;"—not only had he interpreted the dream, but given wise and prudent counsel, by which it was to prove the salvation of the whole land of Egypt. Very rarely God speaks to his people—and occasionally those who are not his people—by dreams. The true test of a dream, whether it be from God, or only the foolish fancies of our own brain, is that the former always serves some useful purpose, either of warning or instruction. "See, I have set thee over all the land of Egypt." What a change from the life of a slave and a criminal's cell! Joseph's advancement is a grand commentary on our Saviour's saying: "He that is faithful in the least is faithful also in much." He was faithful as a shepherd-boy, reporting even his brothers' lack of fidelity, and thus risking an increase in their enmity towards him. He was faithful as a slave, or Potiphar would never have promoted him to be his chief steward. If Joseph had not been careful in the smallest details, making his master's interests in every respect his own, would the Lord have made all that he did to prosper under his hands? (Ch. 39: 3.) Slavery in itself is a condition of life that tempts to unfaithfulness; and as a prisoner, his moral environments were still worse, from which we may learn that circumstances need never make us sin if we but keep our faith in the God who is always stronger than circumstances.

2. Joseph further honored.—vs. 42–45. Joseph was next duly invested with the paraphernalia of his well-nigh royal dignity:—the ring, the gold chain, the fine linen, the heralds to go before his chariot. Henry thinks there may have been some who secretly opposed his elevation (ch. 49: 23). If this was so—and it would not have been strange were this the case—the king meant to give them an object-lesson, and by his solemn asseveration, "I am Pharaoh," to show the uselessness of their opposition. So Christ, as the Saviour of the world, is one day to be invested, before the eyes of humanity, with the outward glories of his office, and they who oppose him will find, too late, that they have been fighting the will of Omnipotence.

3. Joseph's wise policy.—vs. 46–48. "And Joseph went out from the presence of Pharaoh, and went throughout all the land of Egypt." He might have stayed at court, and given out the business to deputies, but this was not Joseph's way. Again we see the same spirit of minute fidelity in the smallest matters in the prime minister that we saw in the slave. He was not content unless he personally supervised the work—unless he went himself into the remotest corners of the kingdom, and assured himself that his orders were obeyed; there was no waste or dishonesty on the part of the officials, which there would surely have been without this watchful oversight. "And he gathered up the food of the seven years," laying it up in storehouses against the time of famine that was coming. Here is an important spiritual lesson. As summer is the time to prepare for winter, so life is the time to lay up heavenly treasure. Are we doing it? "The earth brought forth by handfuls;" but the prudent Joseph suffered nothing to be wasted. He knew that this abundance would not more than suffice to carry them through the seven years of famine. So we cannot lay up in our day of greatest bodily and mental vigor more than enough to carry us through the autumn of age and the winter of death.

LITERATURE.

CURRENT PERIODICALS.

The April issue of the Century is noticeable, especially, for the large number of full-page engravings which it contains, and these, in turn, are quite as remarkable for their artistic character. The frontispiece proper is a full-length portrait of Matthew Arnold, accompanying a letter-press sketch of this poet and philosopher by Florence E. Coates. The two serials of Pudd'nhead Wilson and Cœuer d' Alene are continued. Very attractive and full of suggestion is From the Old World to the New—an Emigrant idyl told in eighteen pictures by Andre Castaigne. Other illustrated articles of undoubted interest are: My First and Last Balloon Ascension, by Robert V. V. Sewell; A Comet-Finder, by Frank W. Mack; Monotones—The Wreck, by Geo. W. Edwards; A Summer Month in a Welsh Village, by Susan N. Carter; Driven Out of Thibet, by Woodville Rockhill; Millet's Life at Barbizon, by Pierre Millet; Hunting an Abandoned Farm in Connecticut, by Wm. H. Bishop, and The Gods of India, by F. Marion Crawford. Not the least attractive among others are: Lincoln's Literary Experiments, by John G. Nicolay; Wild Flowers of English Speech in America, by Edward Eggleston; The Supply at St. Agatha's, by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps; Out of Sight, Out of Mind—Methods of Sewage Disposal, by Geo. E. Waring, Jr.; with others, in verse and prose, that carry with them their own compensation for reading. New York: The Century Company. Price, 35 cents.

The Journal of Hygiene, always possessing interest in its popular presentations of hygiene for the people, has a fine array of contributors and timely counsels for men and women. The following are the principal papers in the April issue: The Cumulative Effects of Poison, by Dr. Charles H. Shepard; Typhoid Fever and Drinking Water, by Dr. V. C. Vaughn; Round-Shouldered Girls, by Dr. Mary W. Allen; Ceylon and the Sinhalese, by Dr. W. A. English; Musicians' Eyes, by Dr. Carter. By Jennie Chandler: Moral Health; Training Children to be Brave; Too Much Kindergarten; Women Must Do It; Royal Women Swimmers; Perfect Men; A Broader Life for Women. By the Editor: The Perfect Man; A Jewish View; The Bridal Tour Unhygienic; Corpulency and its Treatment; Finest Climate in the World; Healthfulness of Lemonade; Making Bread Directly from the Grain; Diet in Hot Climates; Stamping Out Consumption; and Book Notices. Published by Dr. M. L. Holbrook (who is also its editor), at 46 East 21st street, New York City. Price, 10 cents.

The Social Economist, if not always acceptable in its ideas, appeals forcibly to every candid thinker by its outspoken views of current social and political topics. The April number is no exception. Its first paper is The Economy of High Wages—an abstract of a lecture by the editor, Mr. Geo. Gunton—a title sufficiently suggestive to interest a large class of readers. Other topics ably treated are: Popular Mistakes About Taxation; Mr. Gladstone's Retirement; Our (New York State) Constitutional Convention; Economic Theory Concerning Value; Future Wheat Farming; Politics and the Saloon. The Editor's Crucible is a lucid summary of current Economic subjects; the Editor's Drawer answers questions of correspondents relating to Economics, and Among the Books indicates the progress of Economic literature. No man can read this magazine from month to month without realizing its scope and force as an educator. Published at 34 Union Square, New York City. Price, 25 cents.

The Cosmopolitan is not a whit behind its contemporaries in point of novelty and attractiveness. The April number has a genuine surprise in the reproduction of a story written by Napoleon Bonaparte, and confided by him to his uncle, Cardinal Fesch. After the Cardinal's death the manuscript disappeared for a time, but was eventually purchased, with other of Napoleon's manuscripts, by Lord Ashburnham at a cost of $40,000, and is now first given to the public through the instrumentality of Frederic Masson, with its due authentication. The authorship of this story will be sure to secure for it a host of readers. The following illustrated articles, with their finished engravings, will also attract general attention: Some Colonial Women, by Anne H. Wharton; The Romance of the Great (Suez) Canal, by G. T. Ferris; Under the Cross of St. Andrew, by V. Gribayedoff; Graham's Bungalow, by Sewall Read; The Nautilus, by Edmund Gosse; The Origin of Thought, by A. C. Valdes; The Employer and the Young Man, by Edward W. Bok; A Phantom of the Mines, by Robert H. Syms; "Ma Tante," by E. R. Spearman. Other contributions: How People Live in a Plutocratic City, by W. D. Howells, and Home Rule in Cities, by E. E. Hale; with poems, art, literary, and science notes. Published in New York City. Price, 15 cents.

For the lover of practical and progressive astronomy we know of no periodical devoted to that sublime science that is more likely to afford a high degree of satisfaction than Astronomy and Astro-physics, published ten times a year at Carleton College, Northfield, Minn. The following papers in the April number will well repay the cost of its purchase: Illustrated Views of the Satellites of Jupiter, as seen through the Lick Observatory's telescope; Mechanical Causes of the Formation, Motion and Periodicity of Sun Spots—illustrated; The Satellites of Neptune, and Observations of the New Star in Norma. In Astro-Physics, also, are found choice variety and advancement. Price, $4 a year.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

BAPTIST.

—Rev. Thomas Spurgeon has been chosen as the regular pastor of the London Tabernacle. The church meeting was a large one, over 2,700 members being present, and it is gratifying to note that Mr. Spurgeon received about four-fifths of the votes of the church. The only other candidate was Dr. A. T. Pierson, of Philadelphia, Pa.

D. L. MOODY SICK.

—The health of Mr. Moody has become so precarious that he has canceled his engagements to work in London. The entire people of this land and of Great Britain, and very many of Europe, will feel this bereavement; for Mr. Moody belongs to all the evangelical hosts.—Golden Censor.

LUTHERAN.

—The Missouri Synod has entered upon Slavonian mission work. It has recently organized two Hungarian congregations at Braddock, Pa., and Cleveland, Ohio. It has preaching in the Hungarian language at Pittsburgh, Pa., and Youngstown, Ohio.

—During the last decade the increase in the numerical strength of the Lutheran church in this country has been over 75 per cent, or fully three times as great as the increase in population. A large percentage of increase has been owing to immigration from Germany, the Scandinavian lands and other Lutheran countries in Europe. In 1880 the Lutherans reported 689,418 communicants; in 1890 it was 1,231,072.

—A movement is on foot to erect a great Lutheran church in Rome, to be named the Luther Memorial church. The sum of $2,500 has already been raised for this purpose. Chancellor Caprivi protests against this movement in a letter to the Evangelical High Consistory of Berlin. He says the government itself does not object to the building of such a church in Rome, but it must not be called after Luther, because it might give offence to the pope!

PRESBYTERIAN.

—In Cleveland, Ohio, the Presbyterian Ministers' club has taken the initiative in the formation of a civic federation with a view to combining all the moral forces of the city regardless of sect or circumstances of life, for the betterment of the associate life of the city.

—The late resolution of the Presbyterian board of home missions to halt in its march to possess our land for Christ, has called out strong expressions of regret and liberalty.

SABBATH REFORM.

—The Ministerial Union of Philadelphia has inaugurated a campaign against Sunday newspapers. As a first step 476 circulars were sent to the pastors of the city asking suggestions for practical measures to suppress them.

—Officers of the Pennsylvania State Committee on Sabbath Reform suggest that the 100th anniversary of the Sabbath law in that Commonwealth shall be celebrated in due form and ceremony on the 22nd of this month (April) all over the State by the various Sabbath Associations, by united action of churches, and other Christian organizations and Labor Unions.

UNITED BRETHREN.

—Official announcement is made of the meetings of the United Brethren's Board of Education at Horton Street church, Marion, Ind., May 23, at 7:30 P. M.; of the Home and Frontier and Foreign Missionary Society at Marion, Ind., May 24, at 7:30 P. M., and of the General Sabbath-school Board at the Horton Street church, Marion, Ind., May 24, at 2:00 P. M.

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

111 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. ☞ A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 65 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers. 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Allyn's Ritual of Freemasonry by Avery Allyn contains the fully Illustrated Ritual of the Blue Lodge, Chapter Council and Commandery, 11 of the Scotch Rite Degrees, Several Masonic side degrees and what is termed a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, the Orange and Odd-fellows Societies. Price in cloth $5.00.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor. Profusely illustrated with explanatory engravings, and containing the ritual and work of the order for the seven degrees, including the Royal Arch. Though extensively used as an Instruction Book and one of the best in the market it is not as accurate as "Freemasonry Illustrated," the first book on catalogue. Price in cloth, $2 50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry. Containing the ceremonies of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, etc. Illustrated. Although extensively used in conferring the higher degrees, it is not only very incomplete but inaccurate especially as regards the first seven degrees, and as to the higher degrees it gives but a description and general idea of the degrees rather than the full ritual. Price in cloth, $1.25; Paper covers, 75c.

Look to the East. A Ritual of the first three Masonic Degrees by Ralph Lester. Price in cloth $2.00. Notwithstanding the high price this book is very inferior in every way to Freemasonry Illustrated or The Handbook of Freemasonry at a quarter the price.

Ecce Orienti. The Complete Standard Ritual of the First Three Masonic Degrees in Cypher, with complete Floor Charts of Initiating, Passing and Raising a Candidate. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Cabala. The Complete Standard Ritual of the Chapter Masonic Degrees; 4th to 7th inclusive, in Cypher. Giving the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master and Royal Arch, Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Council of the Orient. The Complete Standard Ritual of Council Masonic Degrees in Cypher, 8th to 10th inclusive. Giving the Degrees of Royal Master, Select Master and Super Excellent Master. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

Knights of the Orient. The complete Ritual of the Commandery Masonic Degrees, Knights of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta, 11th to 13th degrees. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

The Mystic Shrine Illustrated. An Illustrated Ritual of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. This is a Side Masonic degree conferred only on Knights Templar and on Thirty-two degree Masons. 15 cts. each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion. 5 cents each.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover. 50cts.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Odd-fellowship: Its History and its Work. By President J. Blanchard. A new pamphlet with cover. Postpaid. 5 cts

OTHER RITUALS.

Revised Knights of Pythias Illustrated. An exact copy of the new Official Ritual Adopted by the Supreme Lodge of the World, with the Secret work added and fully Illustrated. In cloth 50 cts. Paper cover 25 cts.

Knights of the Orient Illustrated. The full Illustrated Ritual of Ancient Order of the Orient, or the Oriental degree, This is a side degree conferred mostly in Knights of Pythias lodges. 15 cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and council. 25cts each.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin. Illustrated with engravings. 25 cents each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords etc. 15cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated, "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each.

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

Knights of Labor Illustrated. ("Adelphon Kruptos.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

Folly, Expense and Danger of Secret Societies. By Pres. C. A. Blanchard. This booklet of 32 pages is a general discussion of the secret orders, whether religious, political, industrial, insurance or social. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Disloyal Secret Oaths. By Joseph Cook, Boston. He quotes the law of Vermont which makes the administration of the Masonic oaths illegal. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing? An address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891. W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's, too." A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void: or Freemasonry Self-Convicted. This is a book for the times. The design of the author is to refute the arguments of those who claim that the oaths of Freemasonry are binding upon those who take them. 207 pages. Postpaid, 40 cents each.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the lodge when S. H. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry. 15 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 300 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Masonry a Work of Darkness, adverse to Christianity, and inimical to republican government. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian) a seceding Mason of 21 degrees. 15 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. J. Day Brownlee. In reply to a Masonic Oration by Rev. Dr. Mayer, Wellsville, Ohio. 5 cents each.

Masonic Outrages. Compiled by Rev. H. H. Hinman. Showing Masonic assault on lives of seceders, on reputation, and on free speech; its interference with justice in courts, etc. Postpaid, 20 cents.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife, of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty-three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

A Booklet of 107 pages, which includes "The Martyr's Own Monument," by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association; "Christian Politics," by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure; "The Mysterious Machine: Was it Lawn-mower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what?" by Prof. E. D. Bailey, of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government. Postpaid 25 cts.

Jonathan Blanchard's Sermons and Addresses. Select discourses of the first editor of the Cynosure. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of living reform, Secret Societies, The Sabbath, Temperance, National Reform, Christian Education, Christian Socialism, The Bible, etc. A book everybody should read. 12mo. Fine photogravure portrait. Price, 75 cents.

American Handbook and Citizen Manual. By Manlove N. Butler. Contents: Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement. Over 200 pages. Paper, single copy, 40c.

Image of the Beast: A Secret Empire; or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy. By Rev. Richard Horton. Third edition. 200 pages. Cloth. Price, 60 cents.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages paper cover. 25cts each.

Eminent Men on Secret Societies. Composed of "Washington Opposed to Secret Societies," "Judge Whitney's Defence," "The Mystic Tie," "Narratives and Arguments," the "Anti-mason's Scrap-Book" and "Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry as Proved in the New Berlin Trials." 328 pages, cloth, $1 00.

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear arraignment of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Prof. J. G. Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies. A most convincing argument against fellowshiping Freemasons in the Christian church. 10 cents each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have. 5 cents each.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher. In cloth, 35cts each; paper covers, 15cts each.

Between Two Opinions: or the Question of the Hour. By Miss E. E. Flagg author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages; cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William M'Nary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury; "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion" and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth $1 00.

Stories of the Gods. By I. R. B. Arnold. Brief sketches from the mythology of Rome, Greece, Egypt, India, Persia, Phrygia, Scandinavia, Africa and America, showing the relations and unity of past and present systems. The idolatrous worship of the Masonic lodge is thus clearly seen and understood. Postpaid, 10 cents.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50cts each.

Home and Health.

WEDDING JOURNEYS.

There is a story of two lovers who had been surrounded by so many interested friends and relatives during their courtship that they never saw each other alone at all, and went with anticipations of great delight to a shooting-box in the country, remote from any habitation. Three days of this isolation almost convinced them that marriage was indeed a failure. Nevertheless, the quiet honeymoon is to be commended, even though it may result in partial disillusion; it is better to face prosaic facts at the outset, and shape one's course accordingly. "My husband courted me for five years," said a middle-aged woman, "and we thought we were exactly alike in everything—perfectly in accord in all our sympathies. It took only five days of the honeymoon to find out that we were unlike in everything, and didn't care for the same things at all. So we had to begin over again, and become acquainted with each other as we really were. It was trying at first; but we had the mental pliability of youth, and soon learned to make the best of things. Now we are as happy as most people, and have never regretted that our eyes were opened to the truth in time." Another advocate of the quiet honeymoon advises that the wedding journey be taken six months or even a year after the wedding. The trip made before the home is settled is too full of anticipations and plans for that home to be really enjoyed. —Journal of Hygiene for April.

HONEYMOON PROVERBS.

A husband's wrath spoils the best broth.

Rebuke when alone; caress when at home.

Govern yourself and you will govern each other.

One kind thought spoken is worth two unsaid.

The proof of the temper is in the unexpected guest.

Man is the head of the house, but woman is the neck that turns it.

It takes a man to talk economy—a woman to practice it.

Dandruff is an exudation from the pores of the scalp that spreads and dries, forming scurf and causing the hair to fall out. Hall's Hair Renewer cures it.

"Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething" softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain and cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES

MONTHLIES.
The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, Sunshine, each, per quar., 3c.

WEEKLIES.
L. & L. Infant Class, 4c.
L. & L. Intermediate Lesson Leaf..... 1⅞c.
L. & L. Lesson Leaf, 1⅞c.
Golden Treasures (for every fifth Sunday) 1c.

QUARTERLIES.
LIGHT AND LIFE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY....5c.
" " " SCHOLAR'S " ....3c.
" " " INTERMEDIATE " ....3c.
" " " PRIMARY " ....3c.

Secretaries' Books, Class Registers, Reward Cards and Tickets, Charts, Maps, S. S. Libraries and other supplies. A large line of books, tracts, pamphlets, Bibles and Testaments at lowest prices.

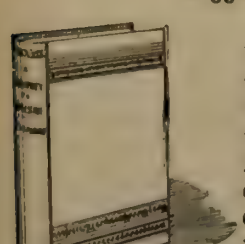
BOOK AND PAMPHLET PRINTING
Done with neatness and dispatch. Send for estimates.

T. B. ARNOLD,
104-106 Franklin St., CHICAGO, ILL.

A Journey to Palestine.

BY REV. B. CARRADINE, D. D.

—oo—



Revised and Illustrated Edition. 500 pages. Eighteen beautiful half-tone Engravings, including portrait of Author. Cloth postpaid, $1.50. Address

National Christian Ass'n.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Mrs. S. A. Lefeber
Rossmoyne, Ohio.

Terrible Misery

Helpless With Rheumatism and Without Appetite

Tired Feeling and Pains Dispelled by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"I was in terrible misery with rheumatism in my hips and lower limbs. I read so much about Hood's Sarsaparilla that I thought I would try it and see if it would relieve me. When I commenced I could not sit up nor even turn over in bed without help. One bottle of

Hood's Relieved Me

so much that I was soon out of bed and could walk. I had also felt weak and tired all the time; could not sleep, and obtained so little rest at night that I felt all worn out in the morning. I had no appetite to eat anything, but Hood's

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Sarsaparilla restored my appetite so that I could eat without any distress, and I have gained rapidly in strength. I have taken five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and I am as well as ever." Mrs. S. A. Lefeber, Rossmoyne, O.

Hood's Pills cure liver ills, constipation, biliousness, jaundice, sick headache, indigestion.

SEVEN YEARS AMONG THE FREEDMEN.
Revised and Enlarged.
BY MARIA WATERBURY.
Finely Illustrated 196 Pages.....75cts.

The first edition of this book has "gone like hot cakes," and a second edition with more of the same sort has been loudly called for and is now ready for delivery. The press, the pulpit, the educator, the reformer, the masses, have bidden it welcome and Godspeed. We quote a few good words from sundry sources: Earnest Christian: "Publish the book for the good it will do."

Dr. Talmage, in the Christian Herald and Signs of our Times, for February 11th, says: "A helpful little volume, just out, for the workers is, 'Seven Years among the Freedmen,' by Miss M. Waterbury, Polo, Ill.,—a teacher well known to many in Illinois—detailing the quaint and thrilling scenes of her experience—'truth stranger,' oftimes, 'than fiction. One day the chore-man came to Miss M. Waterbury, to be taught a prayer; all the scholars had a prayer to say and he wanted one. John was past middle life and very ignorant. The teacher began the Lord's Prayer, a sentence at a time, explaining as the lesson progressed. 'Thy kingdom come' was all right. 'Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors.' 'What dat mean?' said he. 'That you must forgive everybody, or God will not forgive you.' 'Stop, teacher, can't do dat,' and he went away. After vacation he appeared, saying: 'Now go on wid de prayer. I dun 'orgive him. Old massar once gib me five hundred lashes, and hit me wid a crow bar, an' t' row me out fur dead, and I met him down de street, an' wouldn't speak at him, but to-day I met him an' aid 'How d'ye?' Now go on wid dat prayer'!"

Inter Ocean: "A Splendid Book. Seven Years Among Freedman is a volume of 494 pages by Miss M. Waterbury, of Polo, Ills., who has spent seven years as a teacher among the freedmen in Mississippi and Alabama. It is a series of sketches telling very simply and graphically the life led by Northern teachers in the South. It bears all the evidences of truthfulness and if it fails to impress the reader with the manhood and dignity of the old ruling class of the South, it is perhaps because the whole truth is told. One reading the book will stop to ask, Why not send missionaries to the white people of the South? They seem to need it more than the blacks."

Journal, Freeport, Ills.: "We are indebted to Mrs. Lila L. Buckley, of this city, for a copy of this interesting volume. The efforts made to elevate the freedmen of the South is one of the most important and deserving charities of the present time, far excelling any effort to elevate the heathen of foreign lands, and it should have the aid of all charitable people in this country. ....The proceeds of sales is devoted to the work of elevating the freedmen of the South, and we trust that every one to whom Miss Waterbury applies will purchase a copy of the book, which is in itself fully worth the price. Miss Waterbury's grandfather, Rev. Calvin Waterbury, was the first Presbyterian minister in Freeport, and it was by his efforts that the First Presbyterian church in Freeport was established.

Polo, (Ills.,) Press: "Seven Years Among the Freedmen. Our townswoman Miss Maria Waterbury, the past winter, prepared for publication an account of some of her singular experiences in the "sixties" among the freedmen of Mississippi. Miss Waterbury and Miss Ford, both of this place, did grand work in those years and deserve no small mead of praise for their heroic sacrifices.

National Christian Ass'n.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

THE GUIDING HAND;

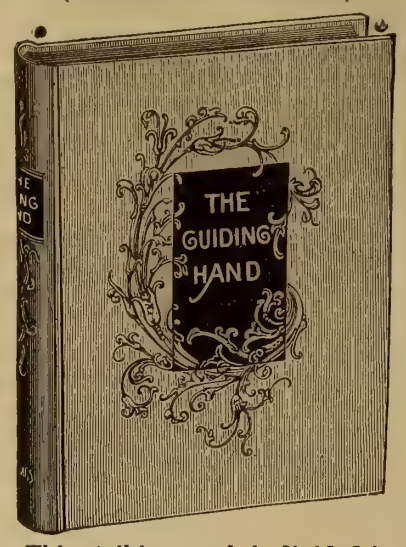
—OR—

PROVIDENTIAL DIRECTION.

—)o(—

Illustrated by authentic instances of Relief and Deliverance in times of Trouble and Perplexity; of Direction through Dreams and Mental Impressions, and of Providential Guidance, resulting in Conversion. Recorded and collected by

H. L. HASTINGS,
(Editor of "The Christian.")



This striking work is divided into three parts as follows:

(1) Providences in Relief and Deliverances. (2) Dreams and Impressions. (3) Conversions.

The "Guiding Hand" contains nearly 400 pages. It is really a handsome book, printed on heavy book paper, from large open type, good for the eyes, and artistically and durably bound in fine cloth, with fancy panels. Price, $1.50.

National Christian Ass'n.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

A BOOKLET.

107 pages, 5x7 inches.

Paper Cover, Postpaid, 15 Cents

—o:o—

The following addresses form part of the contents of this booklet:

The Martyr's Own Monument, by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association.

Christian Politics, by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure.

The Mysterious Machine: was it Lawnmower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what? by Prof. E. D. Bailey of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government.

This booklet includes other interesting matter connected with the unveiling of the Morgan monument at Batavia, N. Y. Address

National Christian Ass'n.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

JONATHAN BLANCHARD'S

—]-oo-[—

SERMONS AND ADDRESSES.

Select discourses of the late editor of the Cynosure and leader in our reform. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of

LIVING REFORM.

Secret Societies,
The Sabbath,
Temperance,
National Reform,
Christian Education,
Christian Socialism,
The Bible, Etc., Etc.

A BOOK EVERYBODY SHOULD READ

12mo. Fine Photogravure Portrait.

Price, 75 Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

Secrecy vs. the Family, State and Church. By Rev. M. S. Dury. The antagonism of organized secrecy to the welfare of the family, state and church, is clearly shown. 10cts each.

Sermons of Rev. John McNeill,

12mo. cloth, 416 pages, $1.50.

The fame of this Scottish Spurgeon, as he is very generally called, is becoming as wide-spread as the English tongue. The secret of his power over the masses, has been discussed on both sides of the Atlantic. If one may judge from these printed sermons the secret lies in a homely and pointed putting of the old truths of the Gospel in plain Anglo-saxon. There is evidence of study, but more the study of human nature, and particularly the human heart, than that of books, other than the Book of books—with this volume Mr. McNeill is evidently in love. With unquestioned faith he believes the writen word, and preaches it with an earnestness born of conviction.

The Nonesuch Professor,

In his Meridian Splendor. By William Secker (Puritan). With an introduction by Theo. L. Cuyler, D. D. 16 mo, $1.00.

"It is a mine of sparkling gems."—Presbyterian Observer.

"A sheaf of golden grain, ripened by grace, and sweet with the flavor of rare simplicity and holy wisdom."—N. Y. Observer.

"It is a searching book."—Christian Intelligencer.

"This is a wonderful book. At whatever page you open it, your eye lights upon pithy aphorisms that combine the sententiousness of Benjamin Franklin with the sweet, holy savor of Samuel Rutherford. It contains hundreds of bright seed thoughts."—Rev. T. L. Cuyler, D. D

Love, the Supreme Gift:

The Greatest Thing in the World.

The Perfected Life;

The Greatest Need in the World.

Both by Prof. Henry Drummond. Bound in chaste white vellum paper, each 20 cts.

These are not to be judged by the size, unless rubies are counted for the weight thereof. The first has been very largely circulated, the second is now only just published and deserves the same wide reading—both are gems such as are only found at rare intervals. If you have not read them, do so at once, you will be a better man or woman for the reading.

Struck by Lightning.

A true and thrilling narrative of one who was struck by lightning; with incidents, experiences and anecdotes for old and young. By Rev. E. Owen.

With Striking Illustrations.

Beautifully bound in cloth, with title stamped in gold on side and back.....50c.
Paper cover.....30c.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

Plan for Evading the Judgment—Request to be Whipped to Death—Learning to Swear—Alarmed by a Rattlesnake—Fall from a Building—Struck by Lightning—Converted—Sanctified—Called to Preach—First Effort—Casting out a Devil—Protracted Meeting on "Satan's Premises"—First Circuit—Revival in "Haying"—S. Hill Revival—Sisters' Quarrel Settled—Accused of Fortune-Telling—Souls Saved—Dreams—Too near Hell to Spend Time with—A Sceptic Awakened—Public Talk with a Universalist—A Chair Thrown at the Minister—Revival in Berlin—A Methodist Church of Baptist Converts—A Noisy Stage Passenger Quieted—Preaching on the Deck of a Steamboat—A Pleasure Trip—Two Overboard—Revival by Torch-light—A Fiddler Saved—A Slanderer Humbled—Bar-room Discussion—Saved by Expulsion from the Church—Dancing with the Devil—Answering a Fool According to his Folly—Raps for Spirit Rappings—Short Debate with a Restorationist—"Open Rebuke"—An Unspeakable Blessing.

COMMENDATIONS.

American Wesleyan: "Thrilling as a romance, and true to the last syllable. No private library or Sunday-school should be without a copy."

Phonographic Monthly, N. Y.: "Calculated to throw light into the dark places of orthodoxy."

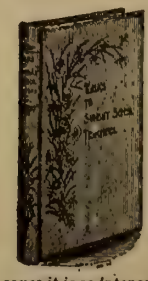
Earnest Christian: "A true narrative of instructive events."

Lay Evangelist: "Quite entertaining and neatly gotten up."

Free Methodist: "Meeting with universal favor. Intensely interesting. We have read, laughed and cried, and shall try it again."

Talks to Sunday-School Teachers.

By Rev. J. G. Terrill. 12mo, 200 pages, bound in fine cloth.....75



This book is the result of twenty-five years of experience in Sunday-school and treats of: 1. The Sunday-school organization and management. 2. Methods of work. 3. Studies in human nature. 4. Rules of Interpretation as applied to the Bible. 5. Illustrative exercises for primary classes and children's meetings. In the style of presentation, subject matter and price of the book, the wants of the officers and teachers of the ordinary Sunday-school are kept in view.

S. S. Times:—A very comprehensive book. N. Y. Independent:—A sensible manual for the average Sunday-school teacher. Evan. Mess.:—We have been very favorably impressed with the book, because it is so intensely practical. The subject is systematically treated, and leaders of teacher's meetings can not do better than adopt it as a text-book and devote half an hour of each session to teaching the theory and practice of teaching as here systematized. Christian at Work:—Any school that will adopt this book generally and carry forward its work or doctrines here laid down will not be long in developing into a model school and reaping the harvest of a rich fruitage. Herald and Presbyter:—These Talks are well attested in their profitableness and excellence. Buffalo Advocate:—A plain, practical, common sense book on a very important subject. The author has had wide experience in this field of work. He knows thoroughly the ground over which he would lead others, and possesses the happy faculty of packing a great deal of valuable information as to matter and manner of teaching into this little hand-book. We commend it to the attention of all Sunday-school workers. Religious Telescope:—We are pleased with the plan and treatment of the subjects throughout, and are sure that the diligent Sunday-school teacher who longs for more thorough equipment, will find in this book a helper of great value. Illustrated Christian Weekly:—The author talks from observation and experience, and talks well.

Sunday School Publications.

The Pearl (Mo.)	Pr. Qr. 3c.	Sunshine (Mo.)	Pr. Qr. 3 c.
The Lily "	" 3 "	Pure Words "	" 3 "
Light & L. Scholar's Qrly.	3 "	Light & L. Inf. Cl. wk.	4 "
" " Teacher's "	5 "	" " " Lesson Leaf	" 1⅞ "
Golden Treasures	1 "	L. & L. Primary Qrly	4 "

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTIONS.

The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, & Sunshine, each Pr. Yr.	25c	Teacher's Quarterly Pr. Yr.	25c
The four to one address "	75c	Scholar's " "	20c
		L. & L. Infant Class, weekly,	25c

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

Farm Notes.

In preparing ground for gardening, common cultivating tools will not go too deep, and the work with them should be repeated until the bed of soil is deep and mellow, and every clod is finally broken. But when the work of cultivating between the rows commences, the plan should be entirely changed so far as depth is concerned. The surface should be kept finely pulverized, but going deep will be apt to break the roots of the plants, and to increase dryness under certain conditions. It is therefore well to provide deep pulverizers, such as spring tooth and disc harrows drawn by two horses, in preparing the garden, but disc and spring tooth implements intended for one horse will be apt to cut too deep between the rows.

Early spring pruning should be controlled by the nature of the plants or trees on which the work is performed. It may be done later on those which throw up new shoots freely, such as the peach or the grape, less check being given to the new growth than to such as the cherry, which does not sprout freely. The earlier in the spring the pruning is performed the better, but the peach will bear late pruning better than the cherry. A young cherry tree may be easily pruned to death; and young cherry trees which are grafted, if the graft fails, should be allowed to send up shoots from the stock.

Winter apples kept in fruit rooms become more exposed to decay as warm weather approaches. Loss may be prevented by taking advantage of cool nights. Keep the fruit room closely shut up to exclude warm air during the day time; and when night comes on, open the windows and let in the cold air, closing the windows again early in the morning. The labor is small and the advantage is great, and the keeping season may be thus prolonged more than a month. We have thus retained such apples as the Baldwin in good condition into June.—Exchange.

THE OBJECTS, WORK AND SECRET RITUAL of "The Nobles of the Mystic Shrine" have just been issued in a revised and enlarged edition. Price, in paper, 25 cents. This new order of Freemasonry, now so popular in this country as the basis of social hilarity among members of the higher degrees, claims to have originated in Arabia, and was revived in Egypt, and brought to America from France. It is interlarded with Mohammedan terms and worship; and its original objects as defined in its ritual, was inquisitorial and barbarous. Its prayers are addressed to "Allah," instead of the G. A. O. T. U., and it is quite as un-Christian as the devotees of the blue lodge would have it. The abridged edition is still sold for 15 cents. Address the National Christian Association, 221 West Madison street, Chicago.

PROPHECY:
A STUDY.

BY REV. S. F. PORTER,

A Study of Christ's Comings.

Paper Cover, 100 Pages.

Single copies, postpaid..... 25 cents.
Per 100 copies, postpaid..... $20.00.

For sale by the

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer. Ennis, Texas.

Easy to Take and keep the system in Perfect Order.

AYER'S
CATHARTIC PILLS

A specific for Headache
Constipation, and Dyspepsia.
Every dose

Effective

AMERICAN HANDBOOK
AND
CITIZEN MANUAL.
BY
MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
Wm. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Chic

THE TWO-FOLD GIFT
of the Holy Ghost,
BY REV. THOS. K. DOTY,
Author of Lessons in Holiness.

240 pp. Price postpaid.....65cts.

The design of this book is, in plain language, to designate the place of the Holy Ghost in both the Godhead and the work of Salvation. Especially to show that Entire Santification is wrought in the heart by the Baptism of Holy Ghost; and that the Epoch of the Baptism is identical with that of his Advent in his Indwelling Personalty. The agency of the Holy Ghost in the Life, and in carrying on the work of the Gospel, is given particular attention.

TITLES TO THE CHAPTERS:

1. A Summary. 2. The Holy Ghost a Person. 3. The New Testament Designating Terms. 4. The Scriptural View. 5. The Holy Ghost is God. 6. Blasphemy Against the Holy Ghost. 7. The Trinity of God. 8. The Apostolic Benediction. 9. The Worship of the Holy Ghost. 10. The Dispensations. 11. The First Dispensation. 12. The Second Dispensation. 13. Holiness—Sinning. 14. "The Sin of the World." 15. Final Deliverance from Sin. 16. The Day of the Holy Ghost. 17. Jesus and the Holy Ghost. 18 and 19. The Epoch of the Holy Ghost. 20. The Anointing. 21. The Baptism of the Holy Ghost. 22. The Baptism of Fire. 23. The Two-Fold Experiences of the Holy Ghost. 24. Fellowship of the Holy Ghost. 25. "In the Spirit." 26. Several Scriptural Terms Considered. 27. Pentecost. 28. Inspiration—Prophecy. 29. Spiritual Leading and Teaching. 30. The Gifts of the Spirit. 31. "Praying in the Holy Ghost." 31 and 32. Power.

This book is creating quite a stir in religious circles. The original, bold and convincing manner of presenting the subject, has forced the press to comment upon the book, either adversely or favorably, generally the latter. We give a few OPINIONS:

Bible Standard and Gospel Record: "This book is very compact, scarcely a superfluous sentence in the whole book. The manner of treating the questions involved is both clear and scriptural. .....The effect of the book will be to deepen thought and increase knowledge and, in the end, deepen piety."

Evangelical Messenger: "Brother Thomas K. Doty has written a book which we take pleasure in commending to all devout readers who enjoy all spiritual things. The subject is so important, and the treatment of it so timely, that we may be pardoned for calling attention to it thus prominently. We, at least have been greatly interested, and gratefully acknowledge that we have also been decidedly profited by persuing it .....Brother Doty writes with an incisive pen, in a clear, lucid style, often epigrammatical and with great force. He is evidently deeply impressed with the truth of what he writes and demands the respect even where he does not gain the intellectual assent of his readers. Withal the book is written in a kindly, candid spirit, rather didactic than polermical, and is calculated to help the reader and not to rouse his opposition, as is the case with so many books which have been written upon this and kindred subjects. The theological views expressed are orthodox, and in some cases the argument is fresh in matter, and certainly fresh in form throughout."

Christian Cynosure: "His book is one of the most excellent, instructive and practical of any that have come to our knowledge. The exposition of the Scriptures concerning the personality and work of the Spirit is very clear, able and comforting. There is much dogmatising on these topics by Christians who never fully felt the power of the Spirit's work, or are not living in gracious fellowship with him. To all such and to those who have not yet learned what gifts the Lord is waiting to bestow on his people we heartily commend the careful reading of this volume."

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

RECENT PUBLICATIONS
OF
FLEMING H. REVELL.

Modern Ideas of Evolution.

As related to Revelation and Science. By Sir William Dawson, L. L. D., F. R. S., etc. 12 mo, cloth, $1.50.

In popular style, a testing by scientific facts and principles, the validity of that multiform and brilliant philosophy of the universe, which has taken so deep a hold of the science and literature of our times.

The New World of Central Africa.

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness; with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. Maps, Portraits and numerous engravings. 537 pages, 12 mo, $2.00.

This comprehensive volume is as fascinating as the most entertaining romance. Its vivid portrayal of the dark side of African history makes one's blood tingle, while its earnest appeals create an inspiring sympathy with the effort to evangelize its teeming millions.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

Matthew Henry's Commentary.

An entirely new large type edition of this inimitable Commentary, in six large 8vo. volumes, fine cloth, $15.00; or, in half Morocco, $18.00.

"Biblical students who are most familiar with the very best commentaries of this generation are most able to appreciate the unfading freshness, the clear analysis, the spiritual force, the quaint humor, and the evangelical richness of Matthew Henry's Exposition of the Old and New Testaments."—New York Observer.

"First among the mighty for general usefulness we are bound to mention the man whose name is a household word—MATTHEW HENRY. He is the most pious and pithy, sound and sensible, suggestive and sober, terse and trustworthy."—Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

The Present Tenses of the Blessed Life.

By Rev. F. B. Meyer. 32 mo, 50 cents.

"It is sufficient to say its one direct aim is the present enjoyment of the precious promises. Mr. Meyer's earnest and persuasive teaching in this direction is admirably condensed in these brief chapters."

BY THE SAME AUTHOR:

Christian Living. Cloth, 32 mo, 50 cents.

"A more suggestive and helpful volume it would not be easy to name."—Christian Leader.

The Shepherd Psalm. Cloth, 32 mo, 50c.

"This is a gem."—Illustrated Christian Weekly

"It is a little book which hundreds of devout hearts will enjoy."—Congregationalist.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

OTHER WORKS BY C. H. SPURGEON:

Feathers for Arrows; Or, Illustrations for Teachers and Preachers. 12 mo, $1.

"This work covers a wide range of subjects. The metaphors are always striking and frequently brilliant, while the truths that they illustrate are such as have always formed the staple of Mr. Spurgeon's discourses. A choicer collection of illustrations we do not know."—Freeman.

Spurgeon's Gems. Being a selection of brilliants from his discourses. 12 mo, $1.

The Golden Alphabet. Being a Devotional Commentary on the One Hundred and Nineteenth Psalm. 12 mo, $1.00.

"Mr. Spurgeon brings out the truths and beauties of this wonderful Psalm so as to set a rich feast before the reader. As a practical commentator on the Psalms, Spurgeon has no equal."—Presbyterian Banner.

"This commentary is written in quite the happiest vein of its popular author, and the devotional spirit throughout is intense and elevating."—Occident.

Gleanings Among the Sheaves. 18 mo, 60c.

All of Grace. An earnest word with those seeking the way of life. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

According to Promise; Or, the Lord's Dealings with His chosen People. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Christmas Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve New Year Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth. 50 cents.

"Preachers may get aid in preparing Easter or funeral sermons from this volume. Good to present to those who have lost loved ones."—National Baptist.

Twelve Striking Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Soul-Winning Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Selected by Mr. Spurgeon as the twelve sermons under which there has been the most marked and permanent success.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

The New World of Central Africa.

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness, with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. 12mo., 530 pages with maps, portraits and numerous illustrations. $2.00

"A conscientious piece of work, and gives a very clear account of what has been done by the Protestant missions to evangelize the barbarous races of Central Africa. • • • He who wants to know what missionary effort means in these days may well learn from this volume. • • • The reader who goes carefully through will have a good bird's eye view of recent events in Africa, with all the results of modern travel. • • The work contains solid information of use to all who are interested in the future of this wonderful country. The many illustrations throw light upon savage customs and costumes."—Graphic.

In the Far East.

Letters from China by Geraldine Guinness, edited by her sister, with introduction by Rev. J. Hudson Taylor. Very fully illustrated. Quarto cloth, ...$1.50

This book was scarcely written—it was lived; for the breath of life is in it from cover to cover. • • • We have never read so wonderful an account of successful missionary effort.—Presbyterian.

We easily understand how this edition is the fifteenth thousand. It is a very remarkable book.—The Golden Rule.

Frances Ridley Havergall's Poems.

Author's edition complete. The only unabridged authorized edition published in America.

1. 12mo., 880 pages, cloth, beveled....2.00
2. Beveled boards, full gilt..... 2.50
3. Half white vellum, gilt top, uncut edges, ...2.50
4. French morocco padded, roll red under gold edges...4.00
5. Persian calf, padded and embossed, gilt roll and r. g. 5.00
6. Crushed levant, elegant.....6.00
7. Full German calf, padded, elegant, gilt, rd. cors.....7.50

Miss Havergall stands without peer in the English language in the department of religious poetry.

"The book in paper and binding is all that could be desired."—Publishers' Weekly.

Small Books by Miss Havergall.

Bound in elegant illuminated board

Kept for the Master's Use .....

My King; Daily Thoughts for the King's Children.....

Works of Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

Sermon Notes. Covering all the Bible from Genesis to Revelation. 4 vols.....4.00
Feathers for Arrows. A volume of Choice Extracts, 12mo., cloth.....1.00
Twelve Striking Sermons..... 50
Twelve Soul Winning Sermons, ... 50
Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection 50
Twelve New Year Sermons..... 50
Twelve Christmas Sermons..... 50

Notes by C. H. M.

On Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy.

Mr. D. L. Moody says of these books: "They have been to me a very key to the Scriptures."

Deuteronomy is issued in two volumes, the others complete in one volume each.

Separate volumes may be had if desired.

The complete set in six volumes, covering over 2,300 pages, is offered at the reduced price of 75c per vol. or $4.50 per set.

A. L. O. E. Intermediate Library.

Selected from the numerous productions of this world-renowned writer as being those of rare merit. 12 vols., 12mo., cloth elegant, each 75c; set.....9.00

An Eden in England.	Life in Eagle's Nest.
Ned Franks.	White Bear's Den.
Sheer Off.	Fairy Spider's Web.
Braid of Chords.	Lake in the Woods.
Silver Keys.	Seven Perils Passed.
Grace Vernon.	Hartley Brothers.

The Jessica Series. By Hesba Stretton. 6 vols., handsome bindings, cloth 50c each, or per set 2.10

Jessica's First Prayer.	Friends till Death.
No Place Like Home.	A Miserable Christmas
Under the Old Roof.	A Night and a Day.

A. L. O. E. Junior Library. Adapted to the young folks. 7 vols., 12mo., cloth each 60c; the set.....4 20

Claremont Tales.	A Wreath of Smoke.
Christian Conquests.	Pomegranates from Punjab.
Tales Illustrative of Parables.	Little Bullets from Batala.
The Battle of Life.

The Hesba Stretton Series. 8 vols., elegant cloth bound, per set.....4.80

Cassy.	King's Servant.
Lost Gip.	Alone in London.
Max Kromer.	Little Meg's Children
Storm of Life	Crew of the Dolphin.

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

Royal Baking Powder

Absolutely Pure

A cream of tartar baking powder. Highest of all in leavening strength. — Latest United States Government Food Report.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO.,
106 Wall St., N. Y.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

CHICAGO.

Collector Mize reports 2,000 Chinese in his district to be registered before May 3. He fears he will be compelled to deport many of them.

Three more building and loan associations in Chicago have been found in bad condition by State Auditor Gore.

Citizens of Morgan Park voted against annexation to Chicago.

Of the thirty-four aldermen elected 12 are Democrats and 22 Republicans, giving the latter a majority of 16 in the council.

Dr. Teed, high priest of the Koreshan Unity, is planning to found a colony of his followers on a tract of land in western Florida.

Joseph Reich, who deserted his family ten years ago in Austria, was confronted by his wife a few moments after he was married to another woman.

Salaries of first and second year teachers in the public schools have been raised.

An organization similar to the Parkhurst Society of New York has been organized with Rev. William G. Clarke as president.

COUNTRY.

Addressing the New York Chamber of Commerce, Edward Atkinson said the South was suffering from ignorance on financial subjects.

In the lower house of Congress the urgent deficiency bill appropriating more than $1,000,000 was passed.

President Cleveland is quoted as being favorable to a change in the currency laws at this session of Congress.

Rev. George W. Patrick, an A. P. A. enthusiast of Kaukauna, Wis., was fined for using abusive language.

Robbers stole $15,700 from a bank in Eldorado, Kan.

Judge Caldwell's decision in the Union Pacific wage conference at Omaha favors the employes at every point.

Gen. Frye's army of commonwealers was stranded in East St. Louis, the railroads refusing to furnish free transportation.

Impeachment proceedings have been commenced against Judge Talley, of Alabama, charging him with failure to prevent a murder.

Wisconsin's new law abolishes the customary three days' grace on notes. Commercial paper must be met on the day it falls due.

Mrs. Sarah Morris, of Indiana, whose husband and child were murdered by Indians, has sued them through the United States government for $20,000.

Three hundred miners in the Massillon, Ohio, district are reported to be starving.

Gov. Peck sent $533.02 to the relief committee at Hurley and notified it that no more charitable contributions would be made.

While trying to force a passage through the Straits of Mackinac the steamer Minneapolis, loaded with 48,577 bushels of wheat, went down. Propeller Barnum, Chicago for Buffalo, carrying 52,000 bushels of corn, struck floating ice in the Mackinaw Straits and went down. The crew was saved.

Union grain shovelers at Buffalo won a fight with Italians and Poles in which many of the latter were seriously injured.

Burglars attempted to rob the store of George Weirick at Palestine, Ind. He killed two of them and wounded a third.

Members of the American Protective Association and their opponents fought at the polls in Kansas City. One man was killed, two fatally shot and many others seriously hurt.

Troops have been ordered to the Cheyenne country, where the Indians and cowboys are fighting. A courier from the scene says thirty men, half of them Indians, were killed, and a general war was feared.

Non-union dyers in Paterson, N. J., were waylaid and badly beaten by armed strikers.

Judge Wiley has decided that the district drainage law of Indiana is unconstitutional. Thousands of acres of swamp lands are involved.

In Congress, Speaker Crisp secured a second defeat for the Bland bill, which the Republicans had hoped to pass over the President's veto.

Emmet Seymour, just released from a three years' term in an Iowa penitentiary for larceny, is to be tried for killing his father-in-law in 1890.

Four children of Frank Bilski, an Indiana farmer, were poisoned by eating poke roots. One died and the others were in a critical condition.

Mrs. William Raymond and her three children were carried into the Hatchehubbe River at Cherokee, Miss., by a frantic horse and drowned.

By an unexplained explosion the house of Joseph Kallas in Oil City, Pa., was demolished. Kallas, his wife and three children were killed.

FOREIGN.

In the British Commons the bill to carry out the provisions of the Bering Sea treaty was passed.

By the collapse of a mine near Breslau eleven men were killed.

Walter Wellman, the arctic explorer, has sailed from Rotterdam for Bergen, Norway.

Three persons were injured by the explosion of a bomb in a restaurant in Paris.

The Anti-Sabbath Traveling Union of London, England, has recently established a branch in Montreal, Canada.

An angry mob of 2,000 attacked the Queen's Own, the crack regiment of Toronto, Can., while on parade and a serious fight ensued.

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS

The following have made remittances of money to the Cynosure from April 2 to 7:

G M McClelland, T Fraser, S Blanchard, S F Proctor, D R Patterson, Rev B F Worrell, Rev W S Fulton, R E Bennett, H C Spencer, W Chestnut, J T Adams, J A Learn, Rev N W Deveneau, R Platt, Rev L G Almen, Rev H Best, J Houston, J Gardner, Miss J M Grindon, L Platt, Mrs H Parsons, H Holt, J W Wood, Dr W H Miller.

"Six days shalt thou labor," says the great lawgiver. To do good work, man must be at the best. This condition is attained by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It overcomes that tired feeling, quickens the appetite, improves digestion, and makes the weak strong.

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST
A Secret Empire;
Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.
By Rev. Richard Horton.
Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.
Price, 60 cents.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

CONSUMPTION
is not inherited. It develops only when lungs are weak and the system run down.
Scott's Emulsion
the cream of Cod-liver Oil, often cures Consumption in its early stages and always prevents it. Coughing is stopped, Lungs are strengthened and the system built up. Physicians, the world over, endorse it.
Don't be deceived by Substitutes!
Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All Druggists.

The St. Louis Sermon
Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?
An Address by Rev. B. Carradine D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.
W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."
A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover.
Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

MY EXPERIENCES
WITH
SECRET SOCIETIES.
BY A TRAVELER.
With a Key to Masonry Illustrated
A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is Fifteen Cents,
but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chica

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies. A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian churches to disfellowship secret societies. 10cts each.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2	59	@	63¾
Winter No. 2	62¾	@	63¼
Corn—No. 2	37	@	39½
Oats—No. 2	31¼	@	34½
Rye—No. 2	47	@	49
Bran per ton	11 50	@12	50
Hay—Timothy	8 00	@10	50
Butter, medium to best	10	@	23
Cheese	08	@	13
Beans	1 35	@ 1	55
Eggs, fresh	09		09½
Seeds—Timothy (100 lbs)	3 00	4	20
Flax	1 30	1	31½
Clover (100 lbs.)	7 00	8	75
Broom corn (per ton)	30 00	@70	00
Potatoes, (old, bu.)	45	@	65
Hides—Green to dry flint	02½	@	06¼
Lumber—Common		@15	50
Wool (unwashed)	12		26
Cattle—Choice to extra	3 95	@ 4	55
Common to good	3 40	@ 3	99
Hogs	4 75	@ 5	10
Sheep	3 50	@ 5	40

NEW YORK.

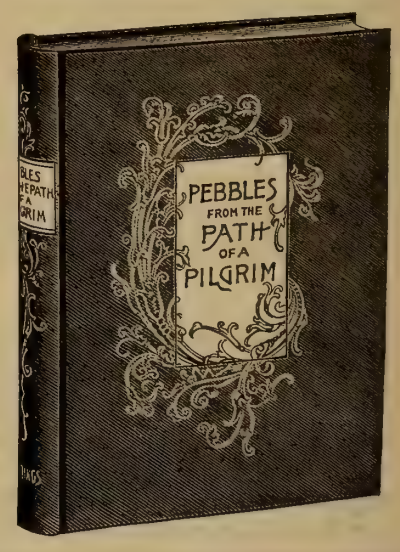
Wheat No. 2	67	@	69¼
Corn No 2	43⅞	@	45⅛
Oats	36¼	@	37⅛
Rye	48	@	57
Eggs, Western fresh	11
Butter	11	@	23¼
Wool	15	@	26

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle	1 75	@ 3	60
Hogs	4 40	@ 4	67½
Sheep	higher

The Very Best!
1894—LIGHT and LIFE LESSONS—1894
(INTERNATIONAL)
In book form, containing all the lessons for the entire year, with four large pages of instructions and comments on each lesson, comments being adapted to the Advanced, Intermediate, and Primary classes; Black Board Exercises, Maps, Bible Dictionary, and Class Registers beside other valuable helps. 225 Pages.
Paper covers, postpaid ..... .35
Clubs of five or more, postpaid ..... .30
Cloth covers, postpaid ..... .50
Clubs of five or more, postpaid ..... .40
Read what is said about it:
"The classification of each of these fifty-two Lessons is excellent. The choicest of Biblical literature has been drawn upon for material to make it one of the very best lesson expositors extant, and in this respect its compilers have achieved flattering success. Its cheapness and its merits entitle it to a general acceptance by Sunday-school workers."—CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE.
"The book will prove a great convenience and a blessing."—EARNEST CHRISTIAN.
"This is a very complete and valuable guide to the Sunday school teacher for the International Lessons of 1894."—METHODIST RECORDER.
"This is the best thing by way of S. S. supplies I have ever seen."—W. W. HULET.
"It is a marvel of neatness and cheapness."—T. C. GIVENS.
"I am highly pleased with it."—JAMES I. COUNCIL.
"We like it exceedingly well and presume the plan will be continued in the future; if so you may count on us to subscribe for it."—VICTOR CHARROIN.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim.
—BY—
MRS. H. L. HASTINGS.



This remarkable collection of stories from the eventful life of a Green Mountain girl has been pronounced "more fascinating than any romance." A member of Congress writes: "'Pebbles' has been read by me with great interest. The introductory chapter has followed me into dreams. My copy is read to pieces by the family, and borrowed to death by the neighbors." An editor says: "Surely the faith that 'obtained promises, wrought righteousness, and stopped the mouth of lions,' must have been given in large measure to the writer of this truly remarkable book.... No family library should be without it." "'Pebbles,'" says the Christian Cynosure, "is such a book as Christian parents are always glad to put on their center-tables."
"Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim" is a large and beautiful book of over 300 pages, printed on heavy book paper, from clear open type, and is profusely illustrated. It is artistically bound in handsome cloth, with fancy panels, and specially attractive side and back cover designs. Price, $1.50.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp.
LORD & THOMAS,
NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING
45 RANDOLPH STREET,
CHICAGO.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVI, No. 32. CHICAGO, THURSDAY, APRIL 19, 1894. WHOLE No. 1,251.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill. as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
The Ethics of Labor..... 8
Political Secret Societies 8
The Labor Situation.... 8
CONTRIBUTIONS:
Bible Distribution in Mexico (Continued).. 1
Do the Duty that Lies Nearest Thee (Poetry)10
Devoted Love for the Bible.....10
SELECTED:
Female Freemasonry... 2
Anti-secrecy Missionary Work 3
Christ and Masonry..... 3
Freemasonry and Romanism..... 3
BOSTON LETTER..... 3
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 4
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4
LODGE NOTES..... 7
REFORM NEWS:
Our Work Upon the Pacific Coast; The New England Secretary in Rhode Island; The Eastern Secretary in New York 5,9
CORRESPONDENCE:
A Letter from Rev. Wm. Fenton; Rev. R. N. Countee Faithful Among Trials 5,6
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
N. C. A..... 7
Board Meeting..... 8
Secret Societies in Politics 9
THE HOME.....10
TEMPERANCE.....11
BIBLE LESSON 12
LITERATURE 12
Catalogue of Publications 13
HOME AND HEALTH.....14
FARM NOTES 15
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....16

A new order of fighting monks—"The Armed Brothers of the Sahara"—has been organized by a Roman Catholic cardinal, "to assist and protect the white fathers in their mission work in Africa." This movement is more in the spirit of Mohammed than of Christ, who said that "they that take the sword shall perish by the sword." The Gospel is entirely opposed to all secret and armed forces.

Dispatches from London and New York indicate that among the friends of Ireland in both places, the reported death of Le Caron, the famous spy of the British government, is considered a "blind," designed to divert attention from him while he is being "spirited off to some other country, or again started in a second career of duplicity either in America of Ireland, where he is almost completely unknown." If Le Caron still lives, he will, no doubt, be heard from, sooner or later, to the dismay of those who would rather see him dead.

Platte City, Mo., has taken a step in civilization and good morals that ought to have a strong following in a thousand other towns and cities. On Wednesday of last week the grand jury found indictments against forty of the leading ladies and gentlemen of that place for playing "progressive euchre," thus establishing the practice as a crime. A huge sensation was created, and one of the prominent churches is in danger of disruption through the publication of the facts. "Progressive euchre" is neither more nor less than a captivating form of gambling, and exceeding popular in "good society."

As to student hazing and the remedy for it, opinions have been obtained from nearly a dozen presidents of colleges, of whom only one favors legislation against it. There is an expression of uniform agreement, however, that the only effective cure for this evil is the cultivation of a proper sentiment among the students themselves. There has evidently been too great a lack of moral restraint put upon the frisky sophomores by the faculties of the respective colleges, and to this, we fear, too many of the reported college outrages are attributable. Too much freedom will spoil the finest colt in the world.

On Thursday last several employing firms and individuals in this city, discharged their men, not exceeding a few thousand for an indefinite period, to await a better spirit on the part of the labor unions. The latter are said to have received this determination of the employers with derision, and boast that they will win in the contest. Perhaps they will. In the meantime, idleness, distrust, and disorder are rife.

A Roman Catholic paper states that "for this year the Catholics have received (from the general government) for their Indian schools, $365,835; the Presbyterians, $30,090; the Congregationalists, $25 736 last year and $8,756 this year; the Episcopalians, $7,020; the Quakers, $10,020; the Mennonites; $2,750; the Unitarians, $5,400 and the Lutherans, $15,120." Is there any reason for this display of partisan religion on the part of our general government? If not, it is time that we should have a government more in accordance with the Constitution under which we are supposed to be living.

The death of Le Caron, the spy of the British government, has revived the slander that the murdered Dr. Cronin and the deceased were associates and partners in this clandestine employment. The friends of Dr. Cronin indignantly deny the allegation; but it is admitted that both were members of the Clan-na-Gael. It is further stated that when Le Caron attempted to unite with the Catholic order of Foresters, Dr. Cronin was instrumental in keeping him out. There seems to be no evidence linking the two, but testimony is made public that the Cronin faction in the Clan-na-Gael was opposed to Le Caron, who testified in the Parnell-Times trial that his great source of information was the "Triangle" of the Clan that condemned Dr. Cronin to death.

The evils that most seriously afflict our nation at present are those which are defiant of law. This truth is rapidly fastening itself upon the minds of all intelligent men who love the law and obey it as good citizens ought to, and its effect upon this portion of our entire population should be to more effectually unite them in enforcing all just laws and repealing all those that are an offence to God and Christian men. From those who thrive best under bad laws patriots and God-fearing citizens have nothing to hope. "Who would be free, himself must strike the blow." Our warfare against the social and political evils of the day must needs be prompt, earnest, prayerful and united, or pandemonium and destruction beyond remedy will soon menace us. Now is the time for us to awaken out of sleep, and be up and doing. The time for loitering has gone by.

The Midland thinks that in ousting the Freemasons from city offices, Mayor Hopkins (a Catholic) is giving the fraternity a dose of its own medicine. It is the custom for Masons to "favor one another in politics, especially in the way of one Masonic official appointing other Masons to office"—which is legitimate Masonry. . . . As a religion Masonry is worse than Catholicism, but as a political power the Catholic church is as secret and is the more dangerous. . . . But Masons are getting another bitter dose. By history and by observation we know of many cases where they have interfered with the right of free speech. They have mobbed Anti-masonic speakers at different times. They have threatened lecturers and had them arrested on trumped-up charges. Now lecturers employed by the American Protective Association, controlled by Masons, are attacked by Catholics and used very much as Masons have used our Anti-mason speakers. . . . The evils of secret societies, whether Catholic or anti-Catholic, are as much alike as two eggs." But they do no more agree than sulphuric acid and cold water, which, when brought together, create a terrible degree of caloric.

One of the curiosities of modern thought and practice is unfolded in an address delivered at the Salt Lake (Utah) Mormon Tabernacle, March 11, 1894, by Congressman Geo. Q Cannon, on "Secret Combinations." The singularity of the address begins with the text, which is an extract from "Ether," one of the books of the authorized "Book of Mormon," written (the speaker said) in 1829, and the foundation of Mormon faith, on which the Mormon church is built. Another singularity of this address is also found in the fact that although the orginators of the Mormon church were Masons, and favored Masonry for years after the church was organized, and then established secret societies of their own in the name of their church and for its benefit—such as the Endowment House and the Danites—they had this precious revelation and had taken it for their guide; but we believe that until very recently the church has never attached sufficient importance to it to follow its warnings and precepts. Here is one. It is "Moroni" who speaks: "Whatsoever nation shall uphold such secret combinations, to get power and gain, until they shall spread over the nation, behold, they shall be destroyed." President Cannon's address is forcible and directed against secret combinations, political, industrial, and capitalistic as injurious to the national government. We may refer to it again.

BIBLE DISTRIBUTION IN MEXICO.

BY B. B. BLACHLY.

(Continued.)

On the 14th of November, 1891, I left Torres with a wagon train for Soyopa. The drivers were all Indians, and only one of them understood Spanish.

We were thirteen days on the road, and we ran out of provisions, except some corn and beans, which they boiled and we all ate, for it was good when we were all so very hungry.

I stopped at ranches along the road and tried to get other food, but could not get anything for love or money. At one place the woman said, putting her hand on her stomach: "We are nearly famished for food; my husband is gone a long way to see if he can get some corn, but it is so scarce and dear, and money so hard to get, we suffer much from hunger." Then a happy thought came to me, and taking out a Testament, I read to her from the first chapter of Matthew about Mary; then told her she might have the Testament for some tortillas (cornmeal cakes), whereupon she took the book and brought five or six cakes.

We became reduced to such straits that one day as we came to a spring in which was a drowned antelope, we stopped. The men drew out the antelope, dressed and cooked it and we all ate of it.

Just before reaching Soyopa there was a very steep hill to descend, and as it was in a narrow pass, we camped there one night. Ore was hauled from here to the railroad; there were forty-eight mules harnessed to one wagon to draw up a twelve-mule load, and then it was only accomplished after much cruelty on the part of the drivers.

In this town lived an American, where I made my headquarters. I was not able to find a Bible in town; but the American's wife (a Mexican woman) had a Testament, English and Spanish, which she said was Catholic; but I showed her that it was a print from the American Bible House. The people were very poor, and living was high, for there had been scarcely any rain for about two years; yet many books were sold. While going along the street, one day, with a goodly number of books, a very old woman stopped and asked me to go to her house. When we entered; she brought an old prayer-book, with a picture of a priest in his priestly robes. Under it was printed "The Saviour of the World." She asked if this was a good and true book. She said: "I don't believe our religion is good; we are so ignorant and like burros." On telling her that Christ was the Saviour of the world, not the priest, she said: "Yes, that is so." She looked at the Bible and read it, and was much pleased with it, but said: "I am so poor—I have no money." On telling her she could have a Bible in exchange for the old book, she was much rejoiced and brought out another old book, which she exchanged for a Testament.

It was at this place, in the store of the priest's sister, that a colporteur and priest had quite a discussion, which was as follows: Colporteur: "Where is your authority for selling the sacraments, such as baptism, marriage and the like?" Priest: "I have no Bible authority; it is simply a business transaction." Col.: "Where do you get your authority for teaching that there is such a place as purgatory? It is not in the Bible." The priest says nothing. Col.: "Let me tell you, it is an invention of you priests to extort money from the ignorant people. When a man dies his wife goes to you and asks you where the soul of her dead husband is, and you tell her it is in purgatory, because he did not make a good confession before he died; so she asks you to say mass for his soul, and asks you how much you will charge; and when you tell her, she will probably say: 'I am very poor;' but she will sell her cow, hog, or chickens to get the money for you, which you take greedily, even if the poor woman goes without food. That is your purgatory; an invention of you priests; a mine of gold where you can go to get money." The priest left in disgust and the crowd laughed at him. The priest's sister said: "I want a book; come to-morrow and I will take one;" so on the morrow she bought a Bible.

From Soyopa I went on mules over to a town called Elvia Ticopita.

One day, while the pack-mule was passing under an oak, the box of Bibles caught against a limb, which broke the strap and let the box go tumbling down the mountain until it broke open, and spilled out all the books.

Although the people here were poor, the sales were good and the peopie wanted a missionary. They said if the missionaries would furnish the wood and iron they would make the brick and put up a church. But where is the missionary? In this town I found one Testament and one Bible, which a man had lately bought and brought in with him.

I went from here, with two burros and a Mexican guide, to Trinidad, where the sales were good and where five Bibles were stolen and sold for mescal, a Mexican whisky. Having sold out all the books, as I was about to leave town, a woman came and, holding out the money, asked for a Bible. On telling her they were all sold she looked very sad.

As we left Trinidad, my guide told me that the people thought that I had a great deal of money and some would probably follow us; so we traveled on until we reached the highest point of the mountains, where we met two Mexicans with mules loaded with corn. There we all stopped and passed the night, while my Mexican kept watch till morning. He said that at about one or two o'clock in the morning, two Mexicans from Trinidad passed.

From here we went to the town of La Dura, a rich silver mining camp owned by a German company. Stopping at a ranch on the road, I showed a Bible to a Mexican, who said it was the first time he had had a Bible in his hand, and he bought it. On reaching the office of the company the manager said: "I was just talking of you;" and he took two Bibles.

At this place the sales were wonderful. All who could read wanted a book. Going into a house for the second time, I saw a girl crying as if her heart would break. On asking her mother what the trouble was, she said that her daughter had seen a Bible and wanted her father to get her one, but he would not. But the girl finally got one.

I met a very intelligent Mexican woman, wife of a mine-owner. She bought a large Bible, and invited me into her altar-room and showed her saints, crosses and images, but said: "I don't pray to them, but like to look at them as you do the pictures of your father or mother." She said: "I knew the priest of Batopilas; he had a daughter, though he was not married; and then another daughter by his first daughter."

Here the people wanted a missionary. Having finished canvassing here, I went to a town called The Barrance, another rich silver-mining camp, also owned by a German company. Here there was grand success in sales, and here, too, the people said: "Send us a missionary." The same eagerness for the Bible was manifested here.

After an absence of seven weeks, I started back to Hermosillo. I had sold out four boxes of Bibles and other books, and could have sold more while visiting about twelve towns where there is a crying demand for a missionary. It needs at least three or four live active men for this district. The churches of the Catholics are in a state of ruin.

From Hermosillo I went to La Paz, Lower California, where, in ten days, I sold 150 Bibles and Testaments. Here, also, the M. E. church has a mission.

Taking the stage here, I went to Triumfo, a mining town, where, in eight days, I sold 150 books. One day I sold $46 worth of Bibles and Testaments in the streets.

Going from house to house near this place, I met a boy on the mountains, on his way to get medicine for his father; but on seeing the Bible, he said: "I can get the medicine on credit;" so he bought a Bible with the money.

Near here, on the same mountain, I went into a hovel where lived an old woman and daughter. The daughter could read well, and wanted the Bible, but said she had no money. On asking her if she had any saints, she said she had some old ones, and she exchanged them for a Bible, and a scapulary (which she wore around her neck as a charm), for a Testament.

At another hovel I found on the ridge-pole an old book, much worm-eaten, all the capital letters of which were in red type, with l for s. As the woman could read very well, she took a Bible in exchange for the old book, which I afterward sold to the American Councilor (Mr. Hill) at Nogales for three dollars and turned the money into the Bible fund.

One, wealthy man bought four Bibles—one for each child—although they were grown up.

After returning to La Paz, I took the steamer and crossed the gulf to Guaymas, and went on a small steamer back to San Rosalia, a large French copper-mine, where in five days I sold over one hundred books, and could have sold more if I had had them. So I crossed again to Guaymas, going from there up to Hermosillo, after more books. This was in February, 1892.

(Concluded next week.)

FEMALE FREEMASONRY.

The arrival in Chicago, last week, of Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Lease, who claims to have learned the secrets of Freemasonry by surreptitiously witnessing the initiation of a member in a regular lodge, and the announcement that she intended while here to establish a lodge of female Freemasons, attracted some attention. But whatever Mrs. Lease may have seen done by the fraternity in secret, she is no more eligible to class herself as a Mason, to benefit by her knowledge of Freemasonry, or to establish a clandestine lodge of women, than is any ordinary reader of Morgan's or Ronayne's expositions of Masonry, or even of the "Ecce Orienti" of the Masons. These works are within reach of all who desire to purchase them, but the ownership of them confers no Masonic authority to set up Masonic worship or to exercise the rights and duties of its genuine followers.

There has been, in France, a class of women calling themselves Masons by right of some occult ceremony.

Mme. Deraismes, whose death recently occurred in Paris (says the Philadelphia Times), was renowned not only as one of the most successful leaders in the struggle for the emancipation of her sex, but likewise for her revival of female lodges of the Masonic craft. Several European and American newspapers described her as having been the first woman ever deliberately admitted into the mysteries of the order, while others cited the well-known instance of Lord Doneraile's daughter as being the only other instance of a lady having been initiated.

This is altogether wrong. For in the past century there were a large number of ladies of rank who were Freemasons; and at the present moment female Masonic lodges abound in Spain, the principal feminine dignitary of the craft being Princess Maria de Bourbon, daughter of the Infant Don Enrique, who was solemnly initiated by the El Taller lodge of Salamanca.

It was in 1730 that we first heard of feminine lodges being constituted in France, and although they may be said to have existed alongside of masculine Freemasonry rather than forming part and parcel of it, yet they were definitely recognized as belonging to the craft by decree of the Grand Orient of France, dated April 10, 1774. Feminine Masonry in those days was restricted almost exclusively to ladies of royal and noble rank. Thus we find the Duchess of Chartres as mistress of one lodge and the Duchess of Bourbon of another, both of these Princesses being addressed as "Honorable and Worshipful!" in official communications dispatched to them by the Grand Orient of France.

Marie Antoinette's friend, the lovely Princess de Lambaile, who was massacred during the Reign of Terror, and whose head was carried on a pike through the streets of Paris, was the mistress of the Social Contract Lodge, and a short time before the overthrow of Royalty served for a time as a Grand Mistress of the order.

In 1805 the Empress Josephine was present at a meeting of a duly constituted feminine Masonic lodge at Strasburg; and again, in 1819, we hear of the celebrated Marquise de Vallette presiding at the institution of a new Masonic lodge. In short, feminine Masons abounded in France up to the year 1863, when the decree of Pope Pius IX., denouncing Freemasonry as incompatible with membership in the Church of Rome, caused the abandonment of Freemasonry by women and the practical, if not official, dissolution of their various lodges throughout the country.

It was not until 1882 that any attempt was made to revive them. In January of that year Mme. Deraismes was solemnly initiated by the masculine lodge "Les Libres Penseurs" the (Free Thinkers), at Lepecq, near Paris. The Grand Orient of France, however,, declined to ratify the selection, and even went so far as to officially dissolve the lodge that had been guilty of unauthorized revival of a practice which had become obsolete.

In no wise discouraged by this lack of good will on the part of the Grand Orient, Mme. Deraismes took advantage of her initiation to found a Masonic lodge of her own, and at the present moment there are some 60 or 70 members belonging thereto, one of the Past Grand Mistresses being Mme. Clemence Royer, wife of the former Cabinet Minister and statesman of that name.

All the ladies who belong to this lodge, which bears the name of the Droit Humain, or Human Right, turned out in full force at the funeral of its founder and laid on her coffin a large wreath and inscription. Of course the obsequies were of a purely Masonic and lay character, the church being unrepresented at the grave, for Mme. Deraismes, like all her sister Masons of the present day in France, was a Freethinker and an enemy of the Catholic church. She made a profession of these sentiments when she applied for recognition of her lodge to the Grand Orient. "It's through woman that Catholicism has made its way into our social system," she declared, "and if it maintains its place there it is entirely through woman. You would, therefore, oh, my brethren, do well to initiate as many women as possible into the craft if you wish to combat Catholicism on an equal ground."

It has become a noteworthy fact that when in 1863 the great ladies of France abandoned Masonry in deference to the injunction of the Church of Rome, the women of Spain, who are quite religious, and perhaps even still more submissive to the church, should have gone on maintaining lodges and practicing the craft.

The only woman that has ever been initiated as a Mason in Great Britain was Lord Doneraile's daughter.

The meetings of the lodge over which Lord Doneraile presided were held at his residence, Doneraile Castle, and in course of one of the meetings, which was held in a hall communicating with a smaller room in which his young daughter happened to be occupied by chance, the young lady unwittingly overheard all that was going on.

ANTI-SECRECY MISSIONARY WORK.

It should ever be remembered (says the New York Christian Nation) that efforts to get truth before the community, especially truth which is not believed, is mission work of the first order. This is true of work done in the anti-secret cause. No truth is so unpopular as that which opposes secret societies. Probably the reason is because such multitudes of men are in them; probably because the opposition of secretists is so severely felt if you speak truth with reference to them. At all events, Christian people are slow to come out boldly and testify. Yet they are to be overcome "by the blood of the Lamb and by the word of their testimony." The need for such testimony is becoming greater and greater. The various secret orders are rapidly multiplying and are running all over. They fill the offices and influential positions. Nearly every public meeting is graced with a secret society man in the chair. Christian Endeavor is not free from the hurtful influence. The President of New York State Christian Endeavor for two years ending October, 1893, was a high up Mason. It is probable his successor is in the same institution somewhere. It is their policy to get to such positions; and by their secret methods, they generally succeed. Secret society men are the rulers of the land, filling, we presume, nine-tenths of the offices. If parents will save their sons from these sinful institutions, they must be up and doing, for they have, since the Morgan abduction, come in like a flood.

Furthermore, it is capable of demonstration that those who go in, if they escape not away, will lose their vital godliness. You cannot be an enthusiastic secretist and a good Christian at the same time. The two are like oil and water—they will not mix. It will be noticed that those who have become members of the order and are satisfied with their new venture, generally lose all interest in church work. The prayer-meeting is forsaken for the lodge; the church treasury for that of the lodge. Worldliness goes in; spirituality goes out. Christ undergoes a continual crucifixion.

CHRIST AND MASONRY.

[Paper read by G. T. Soper before the Mutual Improvement Association, and ordered to be published in the Wesleyan Methodist. The author had eleven years' experience in Masonic work.]

Why cannot a man be an adhering Freemason and an experimental Christian at the same time?

To be a Christian means to be Christ-like. Christ says: "What ye hear in the ear, that preach ye upon the housetops." Masonry says: "Whatsoever ye hear behind tyled doors and in the secret chambers thou shalt keep a profound secret, save to a brother of the same degree."

Christ says: "I am the resurrection and the life." Masonry rejects Christ, and by a certain named grip, comes forward and says: "We resurrect from a dead level to a living perpendicular," after that which is matter has cleaved from the bones, thus uniting spirit and matter, declaring man complete and perfect. Christ says: "He that entereth not by the door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber. I am the door; by me if any man enter in he shall be saved."

How can a man be a Christian without a Christ? It is impossible. Masonry rejects him. Man cannot be saved without an atonement. Masonry denies the need of the atonement and claims to save men by their works. God's plan of saving men is through repentance and faith in the Lord Jesus Christ.

Christ says: "Swear not at all, neither by heaven, for it is God's throne, neither by the earth, for it is his footstool." But Masonry binds its members under the most blood-curdling oaths, which are in open violation of God's Word.

"No man can serve two masters, for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will hold to the one and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon." The individual joining the Masonic lodge pledges himself by an oath to render implicit obedience to his superior officers, no matter how much it may conflict with the laws of God.

The Lord says of his church: "Ye are the light of the world; a city that is set on an hill cannot be hid." Furthermore, he says: "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." But in opposition to this, Masonry performs its work in secrecy and darkness. In conclusion: A man to be a Christian must have an abiding Christ within, and that continually.

FREEMASONRY AND ROMANISM.

The desperate contest that Freemasonry is waging against the church (says "T. P. C." in the Catholic Review) has, since the 20th of September, 1893, entered into an acute stage; very grave events are now in the course of development. The time is marked by events of the greatest gravity, and it is the duty of every Catholic to be prepared to resist the attack.

In a letter written very recently, on his return from Rome, Monsigneur Valleau, Bishop of Quimper, gave an account of his interview with His Holiness Leo XIII., and, in a passage of that communication, he thus explained his conclusions:

"The most important question that now engages the attention of the Sovereign Pontiff is Freemasonry. Frequently he repeated to me in the strongest and most emphatic tone: 'That is the enemy.' "....

"Freemasonry," says one of the official journals at the Vatican, "is satanic in all its relations—in its origin, in its organization, in its action, in its end; in the means it uses, in its code and in its government. It is satanic, and is making common cause with Judaism. Freemasonry is, in fact, the principal force, the indispensable means employed by Judaism to banish the kingdom of Jesus Christ from the earth and to substitute for it the kingdom of Satan."

For a long time (continues "T. P. C."), the infernal hosts have been let loose; the factors of the church have known this, and many of them have not hesitated to publish it. In the secret lodges, the worship of Satan is already organized; it has its rites, its ceremonies, its prayers, its sacraments, all of which are practiced with formal acts that are horribly sacrilegious.

....The time is at hand for decisive action. It is necessary for all Catholics to gather around the chair of Peter. The whole Catholic world must form a sacred league, a firm battalion, universal as the church, compact and united against the common enemy.

BOSTON LETTER.

Boston, Mass., April 9, 1894.

In a sermon on "Secret Societies," in the Second Reformed Presbyterian church of Boston, we took occasion to say, that all Masons and members of other secret oath-bound fraternities should be suspended from the privileges of the church. On Easter Sabbath, Rev. Dr. Lorimer, pastor of Tremont Temple Baptist church, preached a sermon before the Knights Templar in Music Hall. In the course of his remarks he said: "A certain pastor in this city has said in a public discourse, that all Masons should be suspended from the church. When that day comes, they will go out, and I will go along with them." So it seems to be a choice between the lodge and the church with the doctor. "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve; if the Lord be God, follow him; but if Baal, then follow them." Apropos to this, Bro. J. P. Stoddard has written a very pungent tract, and it is to be hoped that it will set those thinking who heard this strange utterance.

The Catholics made a strong fight in the Massachusetts Legislature for minority representation on the school-board of this city; but they were just as strongly opposed by Joseph Cook, Mrs. E. Trask Hill, and others; and their bill met with inglorious defeat. The people are coming to recognize in the Stillwater, Faribault and Riverside experiments the iron hand of Jesuitry clutching at the throat of our public school system. The fundamental principle of Rome is, that the state has no right whatever to educate; that this is the exclusive prerogative of the church, and from this she does not swerve in any of her covert attacks. Edward F. Dunne said, at the Baltimore lay congress: "Why should the state ask for the child? What can it do with it? It cannot educate it! It has no power in that direction. In man there is only body and soul; and you cannot teach a child even the multiplication table by a godless teacher, in a godless school, with godless surroundings, without hurting the soul." See the treachery of Rome! She joins hands with infidels and atheists in driving the Bible from our public schools and making them secular, and then lifts up her hands in sham horror at the thought of children attending godless schools. It is time for Protestant America to lift this mask and expose the falsehood and perfidy of these Jesuits. The open letter written by Bishop Coxe, on the 22d of February last, to Satolli, is a note of alarm and solemn warning that should stir the blood of every true patriot.

The Breckenridge-Pollard trial in Washington is a stench in the nostrils of this Christian nation. It reveals a depth of infamy that is indeed appalling. The defence that he makes is as great a scandal as the long-continued crime with which he is charged. He had the temerity to stand up and say, that while such "a miserable life of sin" would injure him, it would ruin her. And one of his witnesses, a Roman Catholic nun, testified that she tried to dissuade Miss Pollard from prosecuting Breckenridge, by saying that after the trial Breckenridge would be respected as before, while she would be disgraced forever. Has it come to this, that we must recognize one standard of morals for the men and another for the women? Has our Christian civilization so degenerated that we have no righteous indignation to express against such an infamous suggestion! If the woman should be banished from society, so should the man. If she is a moral leper, so is he. The same law that punishes her should mete out an equally severe penalty upon him. There is one law, and only one, for both; and the society that smiles upon him and frowns upon her is morally corrupt at heart.

Coxey's "army of the commonweal," marching to Washington, is certainly a pathetic farce. The bill which he proposes would have Congress appropriate $500,000,000, to be used in building roads through the States and counties. It provides that every applicant for work shall be employed at the rate of $1.50 per day, and teamsters $3.50 per day. This money is to be loaned to the States and counties. But how can a State, any more than a business corporation, do that without becoming bankrupt? The government must pay its debts.

On April 2, Rev. A. S. Gumbart preached an excellent sermon on the proposed Christian Amendment. The report of it in the Monday Herald is as follows:

"In the Dudley Street Baptist church, last night, Rev. A. S. Gumbart preached on the subject, 'Shall the United States Recognize Jesus Christ as the Ruler of all Nations?' In speaking of the proposed Constitutional amendment he said: If Congress shall decide against this amendment we shall be worse off than ever, for practically we shall say: 'We will not have this Christ to rule over us.'

"It is the most important question this nation has ever been called upon to decide. The adoption of this amendment forces no kind of religion upon any of our subjects. It does not say whether you shall be a Jew, a Christian or an infidel; but it does say that we as a nation recognize God as the Father, the Bible as God's Book, and Jesus Christ as the Ruler of this people.

"This nation can afford to put itself on record in this matter in such a way that there can be no misunderstanding of the fact that we are a Christian people and recognize God's Bible and God's Christ. When in 1863 the nation found itself in the midst of a terrible war, we did not repudiate the right of our government to call upon the people of the nation to lift up their hearts in prayer to God for help.

"This amendment should pass, because nations are dependent upon God for all blessings. No man, except a heathen or an infidel, would deny that all true and permanent prosperity must come from God; to him we as a nation must render an account, and to him we must look for the forgiveness of our sins. It will be a sorry day for our beloved land when we shall be too proud or too self-sufficient to depend upon God for prosperity and protection. We shall never be so rich or strong, or so large that we can afford to forget to praise the God of our fathers. He made us mighty when we were weak, rich when we were poor, large when we were small, and honored when we were despised.

"The question of this amendment is not a new theory; it is simply putting into the Constitution what is already in the hearts of the people."

J. M. Foster.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

A labor anomaly.—A clerical anecdote.—The municipal suffrage defeat.—A unique association.—Matters educational.—The Boys' Brigade in Maine.—Patriots' Day.

April, it is said, always borrows three days of March. She has borrowed them this year with compound interest. Last Sunday shone on as white a world as if it had been January. One alternately admired the snow-laden shrubbery, and the red-breasted robins as they hopped about on the lawn, perhaps inly wondering if they could have possibly made a mistake, and come ahead of time. But to-day the sun shines brightly enough to dissipate all their fears on this score, if they had any, and set them house-hunting in good earnest. "Sugar-snow," Vermont people would call it. The spring has been a favorable one for this species of industry, but the crop has been generally a failure, owing to the scarcity of help to work the sugar orchards. It is one of the anomalies of the financial situation that armies of the unemployed in one section should be balanced in other sections by farms only partially tilled, and women wearing themselves out in the tread-mill of domestic toil because it is impossible to obtain reliable help. This is a blundering old world anyhow. From slavery and feudalism it has slowly blundered its way into a more equitable but far from perfect condition of society; so we may reasonably hope that it will eventually blunder into the right solution of the whole economic problem by and by; though judging from past progress, it will take a millennium to do it.

There is a small New Hampshire town from which sixteen young people have gone, either for purposes of education or to engage in teaching. And not the least interesting fact is, that thirteen are members of the one church, which happens to be Congregational, in their native town. It is easy to understand why the New England country-town, drained of its best blood, so often lapses into intellectual and spiritual apathy, if not a state of semi-barbarism. Side by side with the question, "What shall we do with our city slums?" rises in importance the question, "What shall we do to enlighten the darkness of our back-country districts?"

The fondness for quotations shown by many young ministers in the pulpit, reminds me of a story told me the other day about a certain aged divine, whose name, though withheld for obvious reasons, is well-known at the Hub, as one of the most successful among her pastors of a former generation. He was fresh from the divinity school, but with considerable reputation already for power and eloquence. He preached a fine sermon—everybody said so,—full of pat and apposite quotations from Shakespeare. This was at the morning service. A young lady, who had attended and seemed deeply interested, was missed by a Christian friend from the second service. On making a remark to this effect, the young lady replied that as soon as she got home, she had proceeded to look up the minister's Shakespearian quotations and got so deeply engaged in the employment as to continue it till too late to go to church. The moral of this little story it would be quite superfluous for me to point out.

Women in the city of Boston control $120,000,000 worth of property; yet the Senate has decided to reject the Municipal Suffrage bill, by a vote of 23 to 13. The outcome was not a surprise to those who knew the immense pressure that was being brought on the members by the rum power. One Boston liquor seller said he would give $10,000 to defeat the measure. But the suffragists have not met with a Waterloo, but, rather a Bunker Hill, as the Woman's Column has it. It is simply putting the day a little farther off.

All of us have heard of deluded individuals setting out with pick-axe and shovel to find some of the buried treasures which Capt. Kidd is supposed to have concealed in various localities; but it was something of a surprise to me, and perhaps it will prove such to many Cynosure readers, to learn that there is a regularly organized company, having offices in Boston, whose sole object is to search for a large amount popularly supposed to be buried at Oak Island, Nova Scotia. If the grim old pirate had any sense of the ludicrous, he must have chuckled to himself when hiding away his ill-gotten gains; for while they have enriched no one, so far as I know, it is the glamour surrounding these buried pots of gold that has kept his name alive more than the record of his crimes. A company to search for the philosopher's stone would not be instituted on a more chimerical basis. In the old days when Boston was just a pleasant provincial town, and old elm-trees stretched their friendly arms where now huge stores replace the pleasant dwelling-houses, and the roar of traffic is never still, every ship which left her ports bound on a long voyage—and in those times when steam and electricity had not girdled the world as now, one to three years was the usual length—carried, packed in kegs, $20,000 or $30,000 in specie, hard Spanish silver dollars, for purposes of trade. These were very tempting in the eyes of the pirate gentry. It is a curious fact, by the way, and not one calculated to make us feel at all proud, that the only genuine survival of Boston's old-time commerce, when her ships were upon every sea, is the trade carried on with the West Coast of Africa by barks which carry Medford rum and import palm oil in exchange.

"Shall Greek in the Girls' Latin School be elective?" This question is causing considerable discussion in educational circles. We are growing away from the old-fashioned idea that the discipline of the intellect is sufficient reason for keeping up a study that is distasteful to the pupil, and will subserve no practical end in his or her future life. There is an appalling amount of time and brain force which is thus wasted in our high schools and colleges by both sexes. But why not make Greek elective and the study of English compulsory? I think every one who, like the writer, has been a witness to the treatment our noble mother-tongue sometimes receives from young people who have been through a college classical course, will assent to the suggestion with a hearty Amen.

A Boys' Brigade has just been started in Belfast, Maine, the first one which has yet been organized in that State. The whole movement is not a progressive, but a retrogressive, movement. It practically nullifies the teachings of the Prince of Peace, and tends to confuse and obliterate in the minds of young people that radical distinction which lies at the root of all true understanding of the Christian life;—that distinction between an earthly and a heavenly kingdom, carnal weapons and spiritual, which our Lord was always trying to impress on his disciples, and which the church, if she would follow in his footsteps, cannot emphasize too much.

Maine still retains her old-fashioned Fast Day; but Gov. Cleaver keeps step with Massachusetts, by appointing it on the 19th. Gov. Greenhalge, while omitting any mention of "fasting and prayer," calls it, in his proclamation, "Patriots' Day," and recommends that it be dedicated "to solemn religious and patriotic services." This is as it should be. How can a true Patriots' Day be otherwise observed? We may, if we will, retain much of the spirit of the custom, even if we change the form.

There is a movement, generally favored by the G. A. R., to have Memorial Day come on Sunday. This will be one more potent factor in breaking down the barriers which hedge in the day of rest; and it should meet with the strongest opposition from all Christian people who take a stand for Sabbath observance.

Elizabeth E. Flagg.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, April 11, 1894.

Indian Commissioner Browning is a staunch believer in the civilizing and uplifting effect of education and Christianity upon everybody, and he has never for a moment accepted the absurd theory put forward by some people that the American Indian is an exception to the rule. In order to back up his arguments with an indisputable object lesson, Mr. Browning recently obtained permission from the Secretary of the Interior to bring the band and choir of the United States Indian Industrial School at Carlisle, Pa., to Washington and give a public concert. Mrs. Cleveland and the ladies of the Cabinet kindly consented to allow the use of their names as patronesses, and the result was an audience of prominent people to hear the concert, which took place this week. The choir is composed of forty voices, male and female, and the band, led by a full-blood Oneida Indian, of thirty pieces. The program was quite as ambitious, both vocal and instrumental, as that usually given by the musical clubs from the great colleges, and it was excellently rendered. Not a few of those who heard the concert were greatly astonished, having accepted the idea that the musical instinct was entirely lacking in the nature of the Indian. It is only Christianity and education that the American Indian and all other savages lack to make them our equals in many things which partially-informed people imagine to be signs of race superiority in the Anglo-Saxon. It is principally the result of ages of Christianity, education and the naturally accompanying refinement in ways of living that appears to stamp the white race as superior to all others.

Senator Allen, of Nebraska, earned and received the thanks of those opposed to that species of gambling known as pool-selling on horse-races when he succeeded in getting an amendment adopted by the Senate to a bill regulating horse-racing in the District of Columbia, absolutely prohibiting pool-selling. The action of the Senate was a surprise to the gamblers, who are now hard at work trying to get votes enough to bring about a reconsideration of the vote by which the Senate killed horse-racing in this District, for notwithstanding the talk in certain circles about horse racing being merely "an incentive to improving the breed of horses," they knowing that without gambling there can be no profitable horse racing. It is a fact known to the sorrow of many parents that hundreds of young men have taken their first step towards disgrace for themselves and their families by making a bet on a horse race. And it is a fact equally well-known that intemperance is a twin brother of gambling. Therefore it is hoped that the Senate will not retrace this step towards lessening the temptation of the young men who reside at or visit the national capital.

The Christian Endeavor Union held one of the most enthusiastic meetings in its history Monday evening. Addresses were delivered by Mr. W. H. Pennell, who was introduced as the "First Christian Endeavorer," and who told the story of how the organization originated and the first society was formed by Dr. F. E. Clark, of Williston church, Portland, Maine, and by Dr. Tennis S. Hamlin, who spoke on "growth from great conventions;" but it was the encouraging reports of the committees which are working to have the 1896 convention held in Washington that aroused the greatest enthusiasm. All Washington is interested in these efforts, and valuable assistance is being rendered by the business men of the city, who are just as anxious to secure the convention as the Endeavorers are. One noticeable and commendable feature of the work that is being done is that not one word of disparagement is heard of the other cities which are competing with Washington for the honor of entertaining the convention in 1896.

Rev. Samuel W. Small, who is deservedly popular as a preacher and a temperance orator, has been in Washington for a week, and I regret to say that by one act of his he has caused himself to be harshly criticised by some of his warmest admirers. After preaching in one of our churches last Sunday morning, he lectured at night in the same theater in which the scoffer Ingersoll had the previous Sunday night attacked everything the Christian holds sacred. It did not lessen the offence that Mr. Small's lecture was advertised as an answer to Ingersoll's attack on the Bible and Christianity. It was delivered on Sunday night, and the Sabbath was desecrated by the sale of admission tickets. Christians are as a rule opposed to the opening of theaters for any purpose on Sunday, and many of them do not hesitate to say that Mr. Small made a mistake which he should not repeat if he wishes to retain his place in their esteem. A minister should set a better example. *

REFORM NEWS.

OUR WORK UPON THE PACIFIC COAST.

Wells, Ore., April 5, 1894.

Editor Cynosure:—The people of Wells and Suver were favored with a visit from Rev. P. B. Williams last week, in the interest of the temperance and anti-secret reforms. He lectured two evenings at each place, and though the audiences were not large, they were attentive; and their attention was well repaid by a clear and vigorous presentation of the subjects under consideration. Whether any members of secret organizations were present when that topic was treated we do not know; but if so, a fair challenge was given to any who desired to show that the fraternities were misrepresented. So far as I have been able to learn, the lectures were favorably received, and if good impressions were not permanently made, we should say it was no fault of the lecturer, either through lack of candor, earnestness, or a wisely selected course of treatment. Freemasonry and Odd-fellowship were shown to be enemies of the family, state and church.

W. J. Feemster.

FROM THE COAST AGENT.

Among the foot-hills of the Coast Range Mountains, fifteen miles west of Philomath, nestles a beautiful little glen, called Blodgett's Valley, the station on the Oregon Pacific railroad taking the same name. Mr. Blodgett, a graduate of Yale College, came and secured a homestead of six hundred and twenty acres of this rich land, in the first settling of this country. I am credibly informed that he had eighty thousand dollars in gold coin at the same time. Unfortunately he took to drinking. When he died he would have been buried by the county, had not his son interfered and furnished the means. This is no isolated case, but one of many where rum destroys giant intellects and vast estates. It is related of Mr. Blodgett that he boasted of having paid one hundred fines of thirteen dollars each, in Corvallis. Besides, he served a number of terms in the jail. The students of the State school used to visit the jail to get him to work knotty problems for them.

We spoke two nights at Blodgett's to very fair and interesting congregations; the first night (April 3), on the subject of Intemperance, and the next night on Secret Societies. I find quite a number of intelligent farmers and business men here who are opposed to all secret societies. Several signed our constitution. I distributed some tracts and secured four subscribers to the Cynosure.

I was very kindly entertained by Mr. Brown and his family. They know how to make a stranger feel at home. May the Lord bless them very greatly.

Rev. A. C. Tunison was present the last night, and gave his hearty approval of our discussion of the lodge question.

From there I went to Salem, where I expected to speak in the city. On my arrival I found that the appointment was five miles east, at Fruitlands German Baptist church. The house was crowded. The lodge of Good Templars attended in their regalia. We had very good attention. At the close, a leader of their class desired to reply to us, but was promptly informed by the trustees of the church that nothing but the Gospel of Jesus Christ and Christian principles could be taught in that house. I would that all churches were as loyal to Christ as this one.

In our address we defended the position of this church and others who make the lodge a test of membership. We showed that the lodges were, or pretended to be, religious institutions. If a member comes to one church from another, we insist that he throw off his allegiance to the other; so, when a man comes from the Masons or Odd-fellows, we should require him to do the same. Those churches which do not, certainly place a premium on the lodges above the churches. Again, when a man comes from a foreign land, desiring to become a citizen of this country, we require him to throw off all allegiance to the foreign country, for the reason that no man can be loyal to two governments at the same time. If this is true in the political world, it is true in the religious world. No man can be true to a secret lodge and the church at the same time.

Rev. J. B. Early is the very efficient pastor of this church, and is also a teacher in the Salem deaf-mute school. He is greatly beloved by his people. He will receive the Cynosure regularly, and wisely desires to post up on the subject, so that he may meet the lodge adherents in an intelligent manner. Bro. Early and all his family are true-blue anti-sscretists.

We returned to Salem by midnight. I took the five o'clock train and ran down to Woodburn to see our afflicted Elder Barkley. We found him a little improved, and have hopes now that he may recover. May the Lord grant it.

P. B. Williams.

THE NEW ENGLAND SECRETARY IN RHODE ISLAND.

Providence, R. I., April 12, 1894.

The storm which is upon us, and the intensely bad condition of the sidewalks, have diminished the number attending the "Christian Workers" convention in this city; but has not interfered with the spirituality and power of the meetings. Those in attendance evidently believe in the "perseverance of the saints," and, as was frequently expressed, they are determined "to go through on this line." Yesterday's afternoon and evening services were times of humiliation and deep searchings before God. One dear man of sixty years' experience in the service of a "hard master" confessed his sins and bowed with the people of God, earnestly and intelligently praying that he might be forgiven and receive the witness that he was sealed an heir of his heavenly inheritance.

Bro. Hoyt asked me to open the afternoon session, and as there is perfect freedom in the Lord, I felt liberty to speak of the "hidden things of dishonesty." It was evidently a matter of interest to all present; but when I sat down I somehow questioned whether I had not mistaken the "mind of the Spirit." Subsequently I was convinced that it was in "the Lord's order," as it brought out a number of blessed testimonies to the antagonism of the lodge spirit to "the effectual workings of the Holy Spirit," even in the Good Templar and minor orders.

After calling on Bro. Paull, Sister Graves and a few friends, I had purposed to return on the 10 P. M. train to Boston. The leader of the local meeting here, who was once connected with and deeply interested in several secret orders, wished me to remain and speak further on the subject; and as I was tendered the hospitality of a Christian home I decided that it was God's will that I should remain. At the beautiful home of Albert H. Williams, every attention was given to their grateful guest; and on being shown to my room I saw upon the wall, in tasty frames, two certificates of mine host's membership in the Blue Lodge and Chapter. The subject of secret societies was not spoken of directly, but the kindness of mine host, and the fervor of his prayer, as we all knelt before the Lord, made me feel that, like our good brother Stephen Merritt, the Holy Ghost had touched his heart, and that he would anoint his eyes, and in due time bring him out into "a large place."

If the Lord will, I am to occupy a part of this evening's session in a "chart talk."

After my remarks yesterday, a gentleman gave me his hand, saying, "The last time I heard you speak before, was in the World's Fair, where you were discussing secret societies with a Roman Catholic," etc. And, by the way, I do not remember to have mentioned an incident of recent occurrence, indicative of the far-reaching influence of the work at the Fair. I was stopping at a hotel, and, learning of a prayer-meeting near, I felt inclined to ask a gentleman, who like myself was a transient, to accompany me. Two days afterwards I found myself his traveling companion for a couple of hours. As we talked, it came out that he had, as a member, visited many lodges of Odd-fellows in this country and Europe, and that we had met at the Fair. When he related some of the incidents of our conversation I recalled the meeting very distinctly, and how he bore a decided testimony to the correctness of what I had said, to the confusion and shame of those who were denouncing me as a fraud. Two young men, sitting on the seat directly in front of us, were attracted by our conversation. They proved to be students from Northfield, and one of them, mentioning an interview we had at the World's Fair, refreshed my memory so that I recalled the man and the conversation. They took tracts and said they would bring the matter to the notice of the authorities at Northfield and, if practicable, secure a discussion of the subject in that school of the prophets.

April 13.—Last evening's meeting at Providence was one of much interest. The hall, though not large, was well-filled. I spoke for an hour,

(Continued on 9th page.)

CORRESPONDENCE.

A LETTER FROM REV. WM. FENTON.

St. Paul, Minn., April 7, 1894.

Editor Cynosure:—When the man had ruined the girl, he said to her: "You have done for yourself now, my lassie;" and the glittering jewel she held in her hand—the price of her virtue—was a poor compensation for her loss.

When a man joins a secret society he takes a fatal step that deprives him of the confidence of his wife and his neighbor, and that confidence can be restored only by telling his wife and his neighbor all that was done in that lodge and ceasing to walk in the ways of darkness.

The Methodist denomination, as is evinced by her holiness leaders, bishops and pastors, goes in the way of Cain, following after her grandmother—the mother of harlots. The great holiness leader of the denomination (it is unnecessary to mention names, for they are all agreed; else why do they walk together?) is a Freemason and glorifies Freemasonry. With a ha, ha, ha, he scouts the idea of confessing that he sinned by joining the Masons, and calls Anti-masons monomaniacs, simply because they are Anti-masons. A bishop says: "I am a Royal Arch Mason; I like Masonry; if a man breaks the Masonic obligation the penalty should be executed." That is to say, if a Royal Arch Mason fails to "assist a companion Royal Arch Mason, when engaged in any difficulty, and refuses to espouse his cause so far as to extricate him from the same, whether he be right or wrong;" keep all his secrets, murder and treason not excepted; he should have nothing less than his "skull smote off, and his brains exposed to the scorching rays of the meridian sun." And these Methodists pray to their god (the devil who deceives them) to keep them steadfast in their diabolical crimes against the true God and human society.

Last Monday morning a paper was read in the Ministers' Meeting at Oshkosh, Wisconsin, entitled "Denominational Federation." But what other federation can be hoped for, as regards, Methodists, Baptists, Episcopalians Congregationalists, and Presbyterians, than that spoken of in Revelation 17: 13: "These have one mind, and shall give their strength and power unto the beast, and these shall make war with the Lamb?" W. Fenton.

REV. R. N. COUNTEE FAITHFUL AMONG TRIALS.

Wichita, Kan., April 5, 1894.

Editor Cynosure:—I have thought that a little of my experience in Kansas would be interesting to your readers and to my many friends.

When I last wrote you I was in Lawrence. I am yet holding forth for the Baptists in that city, but I am now at home on a visit to my family here in Wichita. I shall return to Lawrence again on the 6th of the month.

I find the church, or I may say churches, perfectly honeycombed with worldly societies, secret and social. And the brazen foe to Christianity has had full sway in this locality. No voice has been heard, no note of warning given to the people, and so on, on, and on they have gone, until I find a church with 280 members and sixteen secret societies represented in the body, and one of them meeting in the basement of the church-house.

My second Sunday, February 18, was remarkable for its excitement. I had announced, on my first Sunday among them, that no society notices should be read from the pulpit. It had been customary to publish every festival, public and private entertainment, regular meetings of the society, or societies, therefrom each Sunday. On this particular occasion my integrity was to be tested, and so up came the notices. One was for a "Grand Masquerade Party," to be given by a secret benevolent society. I took the notice, and without giving any name, day, or date concerning the affair, I denounced the entire thing in the most vehement manner. My being a new man in the community, unacquainted with any of the parties concerned, gave them no opportunity to say that I was using personalities or venting any spleen towards any particular party; but you know how "touchy" the folks are who are deluded by these hoodwinked associations. Every remark made concerning their "awders" is a personal matter, and no sooner had I ceased to talk, than up jumped a man some sixty years of age. He denounced me to the people. He said: "I have been a member of this church for over twenty years, and, brothers and sisters, you know that our society laid the corner-stone of this church; and we bury the dead and look after the sick; and this man has come here to break up and interfere with our business, instead of preaching the Gospel. Come out Wednesday night. Admission, 15 cents. Come out, everybody—come." Having raised his voice to its highest tension, he broke down, and sat down, and the audience, or congregation, of nearly 500, made the walls ring, apparently, as they applauded the belligerent speaker.

I stood up in the pulpit, very much composed in body and mind. Several of the officers started to lay hold of this dear old brother. I waved them down with my hand, and said: "Be quiet; keep as sweet as you can; do not let the enemy throw you off your guard." I then said: "My brother, you or I want to run this church; but since nothing from nothing leaves nothing, we will be excused with the Doxology."

I am now steadily preaching Christ and him crucified. Many rumors are afloat as to my being run out of town; but I never shrink or falter. The usual "boycott" is resorted to, because of my contending for the truth against the lodge, the bar-room, or "dives" as they call them here, and the dance halls. I have, by God's grace, broken up a thriving dance hall, and the collection in the church has grown wonderfully small; nevertheless I trust Him.

A few weeks ago I went with one of the deacons of the Baptist church, with whom I stop, to hear an annual sermon preached to the Oddfellows. The exercises took place in North Lawrence, in the African M. E. Church. There were about 500 persons present, and the "buds" of the "awder" were rigged out in their Sunday clothes and lodge paraphernalia. The preacher was a miniature creature, like myself; and no sooner was my appearance made known, than one of the dignitaries came near the door where I had dropped down and said: "Elder, please come forward and have a seat in the pulpit." I respectfully declined to do so. The preacher was an earnest body, and did all in his power to impress upon the audience the importance of secret societies. He related the covenant between Jonathan and David as the first secret of the world. He had on a 'little white rag beneath his bosom," and took especial pains to let all know that he was a Mason. He also related his experience; told how roughly they treated him, and said: "I thought they were rougher than there was any need of being." I nudged the deacon, who sat by me, for he was and is a Mason. Finally the preacher warmed up and said: "And I am yet climbing up. I have spent nearly two hundred dollars climbing heavenward." I said aloud, unaware of where I was: "Oh, deacon, did you hear that lie?"

One day last week I was out dining with two M. E. preachers and a Baptist minister, and they were relating their experiences. They said they could do as I was doing, intimating that they had to live. I only know that God provides for me. And I am more and more impressed that with my present views I will have to stay in the field as a field-missionary. I am expecting the church to tell me to go every time we meet. They are all very timid; the church folks are so afraid I will offend, or, at least, that I will drive the congregation away and they will not get any money. The house is crowded every Sunday; but they have determined to starve me out. Pray that in God's name the good work may go on. Yours for truth at any cost,

R. N. COUNTEE.

CYNOSURE OFFER!

Any of the Books sold by the N. C. A. in this paper, ordered, with subscription to the Cynosure, at one-fourth off from list price, sent postpaid.

The New Volume of Pen and Pencil Series.

WELSH PICTURES Drawn with Pen and Pencil.

By D. Lewis Jones, Morris Jones, Edward Ffoulkes, H. Elvet Lewis, D. Tyssil Evans, D. Davies and O. M. Edwards. Edited by Richard Lovett, M. A. With many Illustrations. Imperial 8vo, cloth, gilt edges, boxed..... 3.20

"'Welsh pictures' is the work of ten Welshmen, among whom illustrating the beauties of Wales has been parcelled out according to the special familiarity of each. The result is a pleasing volume."—London Times.

THE EARTHLY FOOTPRINTS OF OUR RISEN LORD, Illumined.

A continuous narrative of the Four Gospels according to The Revised Version, with introduction by Rev. John Hall, D. D. Illustrated by 113 full-page half tone re-productions. Small 4to, cloth.....net 1.50
Gilt edge, with silk book mark, boxed.....net 2.00
Full morocco, flexible, gilt edges, round corners, boxed.....net 3.75

Pictures reflecting the best in sacred art from Raphael to the present day are scattered profusely through the book.

"To many the life of the Christ will be a new book in this form. Though beyond the introduction it contains no word except what is found in the four Gospels, yet when read continuously, without the breaks necessarily made by the different stories of the four evangelists, the narrative takes on new force and lifelikeness. The very fact that this is not our usual method of reading the Word will give it a new reality."—Golden Rule.

A GIFT OF LOVE, and Loving Greetings for 365 Days.

By Rose Porter. Long 18mo. Paper cloth..... 1.00
White cloth, silver top, in box..... 1.25
Decorated silk, silver top, in box..... 1.75

"'A Gift of Love' is the work of a loving heart. It contains a text of Scripture for every day of the year with the addition of an appropriate thought in poetry of prose all bearing on the theme of love. The work must have called for a great amount of patient toil. But it has not been spent in vain, for the volume will prove a blessing to many a soul. To use it day by day for a year thoughtfully and prayerfully, must result in a rich growth in love on the part of the user. The author is well known and esteemed for her previous works' sake."—The N. Y. Observer.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE SERIES.

By Rev. F. B. Meyer, containing CHRISTIAN LIVING, THE PRESENT TENSES OF THE BLESSED LIFE, AND THE SHEPHERD PSALM. 3 vols. in box. 18mo, cloth..... 1.50
White vellum cloth, silver top, in box..... 1.75

D. L. Moody says: "Few books of recent years are better adapted to instruct and help Christians than those of this author. He is a man mighty in the scriptures, saturated with Bible facts and truths."

PRAYERS FROM THE POETS.

By Martha Harger. 16mo, two colored cloth, gilt top..... 1.00
Leatherette, boxed..... 1.50

"This volume is admirable. The Prayer are better suited to some of our moods than formal Litanies and are selected from excellent sources. The book will be a dear treasure to many hearts."—The Churchman.

KIN-DA-SHON'S WIFE.

An Alaskan Story. By Mrs. Eugene S. Willard, Home Missionary of the Presbyterian Board of America to Alaska. With illustrations. 8vo, cloth..... 1.50

"Being a close observer and in deep sympathy with the native population in their struggles towards a Christian Civilization, Mrs. Willard has gained a more intelligent knowledge of their character, of their needs and hindrances, than perhaps any other person."—Dr. Sheldon Jackson.

HEROES OF THE GOODWIN SANDS.

By Rev. Thomas Stanley Treanor. With many illustrations. 8vo, Cloth..... 1.50

"It is a book of most engrossing interest, and as stimulating as it is readable."—The Record.
"The deeds of daring are thrilling in the extreme. Suitable for the public library or for the home."—Times.

THE GREAT LONDON DAILIES.

By H. W. Massingham. Profusely illustrated. 12mo, cloth..... 1.00

Very welcome to all who like to look behind the scenes and see how the great London dailies are worked.

New Editions.

The Prayer Meeting and Its Improvement.

By Rev. LEWIS O. THOMPSON. Eighth edition, cloth, $1.25.

"Most heartily do we wish this work a wide circulation, both among pastors and people, and we hope it may do much toward the lifting of the prayer-meeting into that higher place which it ought to hold among the grand instrumentalities in the kingdom of the Master."—Congregationalist.

"We do not remember to have met with a work so suggestive, and we heartily commend it to both pastors and private members."—Baptist Weekly.

The Crisis of Missions. By Rev. ARTHUR T. PIERSON, D. D.

Cloth, $1.25; paper, 35c.

"We do not hesitate to say that this book is the most purposeful, earnest, and intelligent review of the mission work and field which has ever been given to the church."—Christian Statesman.

The Christian's Secret of a Happy Life.

By HANNAH WHITALL SMITH. One hundredth thousand. Issued in fourteen styles, from 50c. to $2.50. Send for circular.

"To commend this work would seem almost superfluous; and yet to young Christians who may not know it, we cannot refrain from saying, Buy this book, and keep it with your Bible for constant study, until you have thoroughly mastered, in your own experience, the 'secret' of which it tells. It will transform the dark days of your life, as it has transformed those of thousands before you, into days of heavenly light."—New York Evangelist.

The Topical Text Book. Fourth edition.

16 mo., cloth, 60c.

This little volume is a worker's most useful tool. It collates all Scripture passages under their topical headings, and for this reason proves far more helpful in studying a subject than the best concordance.

"I find one of the very best ways to study the Scripture is to study topically."—D. L. Moody.

Stalker's Life of Christ. Twelfth edition.

Stalker's Life of St. Paul. Fourth edition.

12 mo., cloth, each, 60c.

These works by Professor James Stalker, M. A., are unique in their compact putting of these lives into such condensed form without injurious brevity. They are being taken up as text books by Biblical classes in all parts of the country, thus proving their practical value.

Grace and Truth under Twelve Different Aspects.

By W. P. MACKAY, M. A. Paper, 35c.; cloth, 75c. Two hundred and fiftieth thousand.

This remarkable sale can only be attributed to the very practical character of this work as a guide to the inquirer and a work of helpful instruction for the immature Christian. It is of this volume Mr. D. L. Moody said: "I know of no work in print better adapted to place in the hands of the inquirer."

Notes and Suggestions for Bible Readings.

By S. R. BRIGGS. Sixtieth thousand. 8 vo, cloth. $1.00; flexible, 75c.

Edition after edition of this work has been called for until it would seem the demand must be supplied. The sales however, increase rather than otherwise.

Feathers for Arrows. By Rev. C. H. SPURGEON.

16 mo., cloth, $1.00.

Few preachers have made such effective use of pointed illustrations as the well known pastor of the great Metropolitan Tabernacle. Here he has given us a large cluster of his best with liberty to enjoy and employ.

Revell's Record for Church Treasurers.

Size No. 1, $1.50; Size No. 2, $2.00.

Popular because practical—valuable because time saving—the only record for weekly envelope system that reduces the treasurer's work to the minimum.

For sale by the

National Christian Association,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Ill.

Lodge Notes.

ORIGIN OF ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

A. G. Wolford, in the Western Odd-fellow, gives the following account of the origin of Odd-fellowship, which was taken from an old magazine, published years ago:

"The origin of Odd-fellowship in America is closely connected with a Baltimore inn. At the Seven Stars, on the 26th day of April, 1819, the first American Lodge of Odd-fellows was instituted, by the assembling of the required number of five of the order, who had previously been initiated in England, under the name of Washington Lodge, No. 1. Thomas Wildey, to whom a monument is erected on Broadway, Baltimore, as the father of Odd-fellowship in America, was elected the first Noble Grand at the 'Free Loggerheads,' a dismal out of the way tavern near the docks, and much frequented by sailors and wharf loungers. The organization grew in importance, and received the first warrant ever granted a lodge in the United States, from the order in the mother country. Here the Grand Lodges of Maryland and of the United States were instituted, and held their first session. Its sign, which swung from a projecting beam, represented on each side two extremely ugly faces, with the legend above them: 'We three loggerheads be.'

"The social character of the 'Loggerheads' is described by a passerby, who one summer night was attracted beneath the open window by the sound of mirth. A large room was well lighted and pretty well filled; a noisy commotion was prevailing, but by three vigorous blows of a mallet orderly silence was produced. All at once a deep-toned tenor voice sang, 'Old King Cole,' with all the variations. The vocal imitations of four and twenty fiddlers, fifers, drummers and a soliloquy from 'Richard III' in imitation of a great actor of the day, followed. This also was well received. There was then a hubbub of internal commotion which lasted until stopped by the loud sounding mallet. A sweet, soft voice then executed: 'The Poor Little Sweep.' Entering the tavern, the stranger demanded:

" 'What is the charge to your Free and Easy?' To which mine host indignantly replied:

" 'There's no free and heesy 'ere; hits the Hodd-fellows' Lodge hover 'ead.' "

The writer heard Grand Sire Wildey sing: "Old King Cole" on July 4, 1838, at a barbecue, which was held in a grove near my residence.

"Peculiar."

We often hear it said of men who have made an unusual record by means of their superior intellectual powers that they are "peculiar." To be peculiar is to be different from everybody else, and if they had not been peculiar they would never have been heard of. This principle holds good everywhere. The best piece of machinery ever invented is peculiar, for the simple reason that it is superior. The best medicine ever put on the market has gained the reputation of being peculiar from the fact that it has been found the best. This is why Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiar. It cures when all other preparations and even the best doctors have failed. The reason why it cures is that it has true merit and intrinsic virtue. It does not consist of a few cheap drugs put together just as it might happen, to be offered for sale, but it is carefully compounded so as to produce a medicine that will make pure blood and thus not only remove disease, but, if used when the system is run down and the blood impoverished, will build it up and guard it against disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla, in short, is peculiar because it cures.

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST
A Secret Empire;
Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.
By Rev. Richard Horton.
Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.
Price, 60 cents.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

CURES OTHERS

A prominent clergyman of Mississippi recommends "Golden Medical Discovery" to suffering humanity everywhere. The "Discovery" builds up the strength and solid flesh when reduced below a healthy standard.

DYSPEPSIA AND GENERAL DEBILITY.

REV. A. H. MEVS.

Rev. A. H. Mevs, of Friar's Point, Coahoma Co., Mississippi, writes: "Having suffered for a number of years with dyspepsia, torpid liver and general debility, and having tried several physicians with little or no benefit, I resolved, as a last resort, to consult your specialists at the World's Dispensary. Being advised by them to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, I did so, and after using several bottles, I feel entirely restored to health. Now, I take great pleasure in recommending your medicines to suffering humanity everywhere."

WHY NOT YOU?

$12.00 to $35.00 a week can be made working for us. Parties preferred who can furnish a horse and travel through the country; a team, though, is not necessary. A few vacancies in towns and cities. Men and women of good character will find this an exceptional opportunity for profitable employment. Spare hours may be used to good advantage. B. F. JOHNSON & CO., 11th and Main Streets, Richmond, Va.

MY WIFE CANNOT SEE HOW YOU DO IT AND PAY FREIGHT.

$14 Buys our 2 drawer walnut or oak Improved High Arm Singer sewing machine finely finished, nickel plated, adapted to light and heavy work; guaranteed for 10 Years; with Automatic Bobbin Winder, Self-Threading Cylinder Shuttle, Self-Setting Needle and a complete set of Steel Attachments; shipped any where on 30 Day's Trial. No money required in advance. 75,000 now in use. World's Fair Medal awarded machine and attachments. Buy from factory and save dealer's and agent's profits. FREE Cut This Out and send to-day for machine or large free catalogue, testimonials and Glimpses of the World's Fair.
OXFORD MFG. CO. 342 Wabash Ave. CHICAGO, ILL.

WHEATON COLLEGE,
WHEATON, ILL.
A School for Men and Women.
SPRING TERM BEGINS TUESDAY, APRIL 3RD.
ENROLLMENT BEGINS MONDAY, APRIL 2ND.
For Catalogue, address
CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

IF YOU WANT WORK

that is pleasant and profitable, send us your address immediately. We teach men and women how to earn from $5 per day to $3,000 per year without having had previous experience, and furnish the employment at which they can make that amount. Capital unnecessary. A trial will cost you nothing. Write to-day and address,
E. C. ALLEN & CO.,
Box 1001. Augusta, Me.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained, and all Patent business conducted for Moderate Fees.
Our Office is Opposite U. S. Patent Office, and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.
Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.
A Pamphlet, "How to Obtain Patents," with names of actual clients in your State, county, or town, sent free. Address,
C. A. SNOW & CO.
Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES

MONTHLIES.
The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, Sunshine, each, per quar., 3c.

WEEKLIES.
L. & L. Infant Class, 4c.
L. & L. Intermediate Lesson Leaf..... 1½c.
L. & L. Lesson Leaf, 1½c.
Golden Treasures (for every fifth Sunday) 1c.

QUARTERLIES.
LIGHT AND LIFE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY.... 5c.
" " " SCHOLAR'S " .... 3c.
" " " INTERMEDIATE " .... 3c.
" " " PRIMARY " .... 3c.

Secretaries' Books, Class Registers, Reward Cards and Tickets, Charts, Maps, S. S. Libraries and other supplies. A large line of books, tracts, pamphlets, Bibles and Testaments at lowest prices.

BOOK AND PAMPHLET PRINTING
Done with neatness and dispatch. Send for estimates.
T. B. ARNOLD,
104-106 Franklin St., CHICAGO, ILL.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Colver on Masonry.
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

NORTHERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
Nathan Callender Montdale Pa.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
W. M. Love, Osceola, Mo.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Thompson, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
D. A. Richards, Brighton, Mich.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill.

Disloyal SECRET OATHS
ADDRESS OF
JOSEPH COOK,
OF BOSTON,
AT THE
Conference of Christians
CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Christian? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter)
—AND OFFICE OF—
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. A. J. Gordon D.D., Boston, Mass.

VICE PRESIDENT—Charles A. Blanchard, President Wheaton College Ill.

GEN'L SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I. Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

REC. SECRETARY—Amos Dresser, Jr. Wheaton, Ill., Box 367.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E Whipple, E. R. Worrell, Edgar B. Wylie W. M. Howie, H. F. Kletzing.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., J. A. Conant; Vice-president, S. C. Kimball; Sec'y, D. B. Gunn.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant; Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. R. W. Chesnut Marissa; Sec., Rev. J. R. Wylie, Coulterville; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., Rev. J. A. Greer, Columbus City; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton; Treas., Rev. L. Mendenhall, Fairfield.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., ——, ——, Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom, Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morrill St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry; Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor. Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

OREGON.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dillon, D.D., Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan, Beaver; Treas., Edwin P. Sellew, Philadelphia.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poynette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas., J W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

HENRY M. HUGUNIN - - Editor.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, APRIL 19, 1894.

The Annual Meeting of the National Christian Association will occur on Wednesday, May 16, 1894, at 10:30 A. M, in Carpenter building, 221 West Madison street, Chicago, Ill., for the election of officers and the transaction of other important business. Rev. A. J. Gordon, Pres.
Amos Dresser, Jr, Sec'y.

THE ETHICS OF LABOR.

Judge Jenkins, of the United States Court at Milwaukee, it will be remembered, a few months ago rendered a strong decision relating to strikers and their rights, and issued an order to the men employed by the receivers of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, forbidding them to leave the company's service or to injure the property of the company. Under this decision and order, the railway secret, oath-bound labor brotherhoods claimed that the workingmen were put absolutely at the mercy of their employers, denying them the privilege of protesting against oppression, or of striking at such times as may be most effective in crippling the business of the road.

On the sixth inst., after carefully hearing and weighing the arguments of officers of four or five of the more important "brotherhoods" of railway men for a modification of his decision, the judge struck out the clause which read: "And from ordering, recommending, approving or advising others to quit the service of the receivers of the Northern Pacific on January 1, 1894, or at any other time."

In all other respects the judge denied the motion of the men.

On the fifth inst., in the United States Court at Omaha, Nebraska, Judge Caldwell handed down his opinien in the wage-schedule contest between the Union Pacific Railway and its employes. The decision is remarkable for being "diametrically opposite" to that rendered by Judge Jenkins, although many features in both cases are quite similar. The labor question thus becomes confronted by a decision from one high court, pronouncing workingmen slaves, and another, from an equally high court, declaring them freemen. This practically explains the situation, without proposing any method of reconciling the two decisions. If either is right, the other is wrong.

The outcome of this clashing of judicial opinions must be an appeal to a higher tribunal; for as soon as either decision is put to a practical test the war between labor and capital will be fiercely renewed.

POLITICAL SECRET SOCIETIES.

By the discussion of the influence of secret, oath-bound organizations upon the political safety of nations, at the Sunset Club, last week, our anti-secrecy reform was brought into a healthful prominence, the result of which cannot now be estimated, but it was a step in advance in the educational work of the N. C. A. Of the hundreds who were present on that occasion, no doubt a large number received impressions that will not easily be effaced. The very object which we would gain—the stimulation of right thoughts concerning the evils of secretism and their effect upon the political character of our country—was strongly presented. What we need is opportunities like that for the presentation of the influence these same evils have upon the social and Christian character of the nation and the world. We have reason to be thankful for the hearing which we have had through the Sunset Club, and pray for other equally favorable occasions for letting our light shine.

The evil influence of secret societies upon the stability of nations is not confined to our own age and country. History records many instances where it has wrought disturbance and ruin. They need not be brought into prominence here, but there is a chapter in American affairs, now almost forgotten, in which secret societies played an important part.

Every secret political society has an evil object, and must employ methods equally evil to perfect its operations. Whether that object has a religious, civil or social basis upon which to found revolutionary principles, it is no excuse for an underhanded work of secrecy.

THE LABOR SITUATION.

The last week has been filled with movements of the labor factions, creating and perpetuating strikes by dissatisfied workingmen, and of employers who assert their right to hire whom they will, or to close up their several places of business and hire no more help until they are met by concession and submission. Whether either class is wise in these operations is a problem for future settlement. At present the point of interest is, who can "hold the fort" in opposition the longest, with the least injury.

The strikes of a week or two ago undoubtedly crippled many employers and contractors, and seriously delayed building operations. So general were the withdrawals of employes, that the combined employers, feeling that they were being "bulldozed," determined for the most part to discharge the men who remained at work, and close their shops, to await the outgrowth of the situation.

That both steps will be disastrous to private and public enterprise there can be no doubt; but it is equally certain that important interests are at stake. Men have a right to quit work if they are not satisfied with the conditions that confront them in their positions. Employers, having the same right and privileges as other citizens, believe that they have an option whether to continue business under hindering and losing circumstances, or to discontinue their enterprises without consulting their laborers, especially after the latter have become a formidable disturbing element.

There have been threats, by laboring men, of bringing suits for conspiracy against employing manufacturers and builders, for acting thus independently; but this course has no foundation in equity, since the lockouts are a direct result of the strikes. As to conspiracy, the charge can be as well-maintained by the employers, especially where threats and violence have been used, or where union men have refused, by physical efforts, to allow non-union laborers to work in peace. There is, no doubt, blame on both sides.

While there have been no fatal outbreaks among the striking coke-burners in Pennsylvania, there has been rioting, combined with destruction of property by them; and it is remarkable that the female relations of the strikers have been most effective in the work of demoralization. Police protection has been in constant service during the past week; and although many of the workingmen would no doubt be glad to resume their occupations, the general disturbance caused by the discontented has not been favorable for a settlement of the existing difficulties.

A dispatch from Helena, Mont., last Friday, reports the beginning of a general strike on the Great Northern Railway extending from Minot, North Dakota, to Seattle, Wash., on the main line, and from Havre to Butte, on the Montana Central. Nearly 2,000 miles of road are tied up. The strike embraces all classes of employes. Every conductor, engineer, fireman, brakeman, operator, clerk, shopman, section man, car repairer and coal heaver between the points named quit work together with most of the switchmen. This strike was ordered by the general organizer of the American Railway Union, because, as he claimed, the men were being discharged at Great Falls for joining the American Railway Union and that he learned on reliable authority that men are now being brought from the east to take their places. The men have been urged not to concede a single point to the management.

Railway Brotherhood chiefs disclaim responsibility for the Great Northern strike.

The American Railway Union is a new secret order, and this is the first strike which it has inaugurated. It claims great strength in Montana, and the Montana Central is likely to become seriously involved in the present strike.

A call has been issued by the different railroad organizations of America for a convention of railroad employes of the United States, Canada and Mexico, to be held in the Lenox Lyceum on May 27, 28 and 29. The call is addressed to the Order of Railway Conductors, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, Order of Railway Telegraphers and Switchmen's United Aid Association. The object of the convention is to consider and, if possible, to agree upon a line of action to be followed in securing desired legislation.

Joseph R. Buchanan, a Knight of Labor, has sent out a call to the Knights of Labor, the Federation, the several railway federations and brotherhoods and other general organizations inviting them to be represented at a conference which, he says, will be held in Philadelphia on April 28 "to make the preliminary arrangements to effect the unity of labor on a common ground of understanding and mutual assistance on a practical basis of joint action."

—The case of Eugene Prendergast, the slayer of Mayor Harrison, is still unsettled. His execution has been postponed until July 2. His trial for insanity is set for May 21, when, if he be declared unsound in mind, he will be removed to a proper asylum for safe-keeping. Very few believe that he is crazy, or has been for a year past.

—Rev. H. L. Hastings, of Boston, has a unique but pointed "dig" at secret societies that fairly illumines the subject: "I take no oaths; I make no pledges to keep unknown secrets. If a thing is good I wish to tell it to others. If it is bad, I do not wish others to tell it to me." In this way Mr. Hastings keeps himself free.

—Referring to Pres. Chas. A. Blanchard's recent course of lectures at Moody's church in this city, the Pacific of San Francisco, Cal., has this pleasant mention of him: "Many in Oakland and this city will recollect this brother. He supplied the Oakland First church a few years ago for a time. We hope he will spend his vacation with some church here again. He is right in principle and practice—a whole, large-hearted man."

—It is understood that Congressman Breckenridge, the Masonic gentleman who "did not know" that his victim, Miss Pollard, was the daughter of a brother Mason, is to be expelled from the Presbyterian church of which he is a member; but we hear nothing of his expulsion from the lodge to which he belongs. Congress, it is believed, will also expel him, in which case it will be wise or his constituents to allow him to remain quietly at home with that stigma upon his character, and that awful sin upon his soul.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

REGULAR MEETING OF THE DIRECTORY.

The Board of Directors of the National Christian Association met at their rooms, 221 West Madison street, Chicago, Saturday, April 7, at 9 o'clock, A. M.

The opening prayer was by Professor Elliot Whipple, of Wheaton College.

Mr. Ezra A. Cook was elected chairman, pro tem, in the absence of the chairman.

The minutes of the last meeting were read, corrected and approved.

Before entering upon business, the Board listened to a full and interesting statement, by General Secretary Wm. I. Phillips, of the workd one since the previous meeting. Notwithstanding the serious financial stringency throughout the country, special work of the Association has advanced healthfully in all departments.

A committee on plans for future work, to report at the next annual meeting, was appointed, consisting of the following gentlemen: President Chas. A. Blanchard, Professor Elliot Whipple, Secretary Wm. I. Phillips.

The annual meeting of the Association was called for Wednesday, May 16, at 10:30, A. M.; and it was voted to recommend to the Association that the time for holding the annual meeting hereafter be the second Wednesday in May.

Having received, through a friend of the anti-secret reform, a request from the Chicago Masonic Temple authorities for the publications of the Association for the Temple library, it was determined to make the donation of books.

The report from the Pacific Coast was especially encouraging, and arrangements were made, subject to the concurrence of friends there, to keep Rev. P. B. Williams in the field.

After a prayer of thanksgiving for the past, and petitions for the future, by Professor H. F.

Kletzing, of Northwestern College, the Board adjourned, to meet May 16, at 8:30.

Ezra A. Cook, Chairman pro tem. E. Blaisdell Wylie, Secretary.

SECRET SOCIETIES IN POLITICS.

THE DISCUSSION AT THE SUNSET CLUB.

As announced in the Cynosure of April 5, the semi-monthly festival of the Sunset Club of this city occurred on the evening of last Thursday at the Grand Pacific Hotel, and was of unusual interest, especially to those who favor the anti-secrecy reform.

The subject announced for discussion on this occasion—"Secret Societies and Politics"—called out a full attendance of interested gentlemen, and the occasion, from first to last, was marked with enthusiasm.

All the morning papers of last Friday gave liberal reports of the proceedings, a portion of which we gather mainly from the Record, and appears to best reflect the spirit of the discussion.

The National Christian Association and Wheaton College were represented by Pres. Chas. A. Blanchard, Professors H. A. Fischer and Elliott Whipple, and Secretary W. I. Phillips. President Blanchard, by invitation, first had the floor.

When he arose "the men who wore the Maltese cross watch-charms of the Knights Templar, the keystones of the Masons, the triple links of the Odd-fellows or the buttons of the Knights of Pythias, pursed their lips and nodded to each other with assumed indifference, for they recognized the speaker as the man who has been waging war upon secret societies since his boyhood days. As he progressed the winks and smiles gave way to frowns and set lips, the air of indifference was succeeded by rapt attention, and the mutter of disapproval was only prevented from becoming outspoken words of indignation by the laugh which followed the speaker's happily timed witticisms."

Pres. Blanchard, without attacking any special organization, said in substance:

"This is a land of secret societies. They cannot flourish in European countries, where the people have no money to indulge in their frills. In this country they have become dangerous institutions. The fact that the grip and sign are potent is evidence that they prove more effectual in the court than the argument of the attorney. These societies are organized for various purposes—for insurance, for benefits in sickness, for protection of class and business interests, and for political ends. They are in politics. This is admitted by the American Protective Association and denied by the Jesuits and the Masons.

"The fact that so many Masons are in office beyond their just proportion of the voting population is due to their oaths to help each other. Secret societies should not be in politics, for they are destructive of all civil service principles."

President Blanchard wanted to know how it happens that Freemasons, having about one vote in twenty throughout the land, have from one-half to nine-tenths of the salaried offices in the country. He said it is because the lodge is in politics and puts candidates on both tickets. He added:

"The Dr. Cronin end of a secret society is never so strong as the triangle end. If Dr. Cronin has not sense enough to wink at stealing he will be murdered and slandered, and then some one will swear that he undressed himself and put his clothes in a catch-basin, went to another catch-basin, fell in head first, pulled the cover on with his toes and died of kidney trouble as he lay head down in the water. Secret societies in politics, if they become strong enough, are certain to interfere with the administration of justice. A certain society when it becomes widely extended will inevitably be used in cases where only the law of the land should decide. If the American Protective Association proves permanent and secures a fair share of the offices its members will appeal to it for aid in civil and criminal cases as naturally as those connected with the Masonic order or the Clan-na-Gael do to their fraternities now."

Gen. Hawley was the next speaker. He said:

"The American Protective Association is in politics. It is purely a political organization of American citizens who have no fight with any man's religion so long as he uses it as a saving grace, but when he hitches it to the political wagon we are after him. You have heard of us in the last few days. You will hear from us again next fall; and in 1896 you will hear from us with a President who will have the A. P. A. brand on him or there will be no President. We see to-day the very bulwarks of American liberty attacked by an ecclesiastical institution that comes from the banks of the Tiber. The Catholic church has begun a cunning, relentless fight on our public schools, and it is now an open attack. The A. P. A. resists that attack. It would do it if any other than the Catholic church made the attack."

Postmaster Washington Hesing said that as an abstract proposition he was opposed to secret societies, and that secret societies in politics had his hearty disapprobation. He said in part:

"Secret societies in politics had never been productive of any good, but had invariably appealed to the baser passions of men. The A. P. A. is figuring prominently in our politics and everywhere forming sinister alliance with one of our great political parties. From three polluted sources its inspiration is drawn; first, the Orange order, which originated during the religious wars of Europe; second, the united empire loyalists or tories, who were driven from the United States at the time of the Revolution; and third, the old leaven of Knownothingism. What would that society say if another society were founded which imposed upon its members the same identical oath, only changing the words 'Roman Catholic' to 'Methodist or Presbyterian?' That society would have my unalterable opposition and undying hatred just as the A. P. A. has."

At this point, the meeting was thrown open for discussion of the topic under consideration.

Dr. W. A. Stevens rose to say that the Freemasons' was not a secret society, but was a society with secrets. He then scored the Catholic church and voiced some strong American Protective Association sentiments.

Prof. Elliott Whipple, of Wheaton College, denounced secret societies in general. He included in the list and as the most dangerous to the country the political party caucus and the executive sessions of the Senate. He concluded by reading President Washington's farewell address on the sinister influences of secret organizations.

Prof. H. A. Fischer was greeted with the cry: "Are you from Wheaton, too?" when he arose. He told them he was. He read what purported to be the oath taken by the Royal Arch Masons and which bound them to stand by and aid each other even though "murder or treason" were involved. He defied any of the Royal Arch Masons in the room to deny that they took that oath, and instantly a score of flush-faced men were on their feet with cries of "No, no, no." The professor did not quail, but on the contrary strode forward, and, waving the paper in his outstretched hand, cried: "Then meet me in some hall, in some public hall, and I'll prove by facts that either you took this oath or else you have committed perjury."

James Mann was particularly pointed and personal in his remarks and leaned halfway over the table as he threw argumentative bricks at the A. P. A. and Anti-masons. Gen. Hawley briefly but warmly replied.

After Mr. Hesing had charged the A. P. A. with "spreading infamous lies," President Blanchard ended the discussion. He appealed to Americans to stand by American principles, and his eloquence brought shouts from Masons, Catholics, A. P. A.'s and anti-secret society men. Then the meeting ended.

REFORM NEWS (Continued from 5th page.)

and some five or six testified to the power of God to save from lodge bondage, as they knew from personal experience. J. P. Stoddard.

THE EASTERN SECRETARY IN NEW YORK.

On Train, En route for New York City, April 12, 1894.

Dear Cynosure:—Wm. T. Totten, 672 North 10th street, Philadelphia, advertises patent medicines and Freemasonry. In his catalogue of patent medicines I find the following: "Freemasonry is a progressive moral science, veiled in allegory, whose foundation-stone is love. Freemasonry is as broad as the earth itself. It does not claim to take the place of the church, but it does claim to direct men to the same God, and to teach the same truths concerning our duties to God, our neighbors and ourselves."

His representation of the order is on a par with the usual bombastic utterances employed by lodge defenders. So blind is he that in the same sentence in which he says Masonry "does not claim to take the place of the church," he says it does claim to do the same work. If they do the same thing what's the use of the two? Perhaps he thinks it good to have a variety, so one can choose his route to heaven.

A Reading paper reports that Charles C. Baer died at his home in Pittsburgh. He was a wholesale tobacconist and Grand Commander of the Knights Templar in that State. The following titles are attached to his name. "He was Division Commander of the Grand Commandery; Secretary of the Masonic Consolidated Charity Fund; President of the Masonic Veterans' Association of Pennsylvania; Sovereign Grand Master of Pennsylvania Grand Council Princes of Jerusalem; Past Grand Master of the Grand Council Royal Select Masters, of the State; a 33 degree Mason, past officer of Dallas Lodge, No. 508, Zerubbabel chapel, No. 162, Mount Moriah Council No. 1 Pennsylvania Grand Council Royal and Select Masters of Pennsylvania." When he reaches that so-called "grand lodge above" to which his friends consigned him, will he appear with a cigar in his mouth and give the presiding "Grand Architect of the Universe" a list of his titles, if he can remember them? Doubtless he would agree, with patent medicine Masonic advertiser Totten and Masonic lecturer Col Breckenridge, that the "foundation-stone of Masonry is love," and that it teaches the same as the church. How sad that so many souls are being so terribly deceived!

I have lectured each night during the week past save one, and twice on Sabbath, making twelve addresses delivered in eleven days and evenings. Lectures have been usually well attended. Inclement weather has prevented the attendance of some.

I found that Bro. Shelly had my meetings arranged and well-advertised. All I had to do was to fill, as best I could, the program that he made out. The lectures have been as follows: Boyertown Opera House, Friday evening; Macungie Hall, Saturday evening; Bally Mennonite church, Sabbath afternoon and evening; also Monday evening; Bechtelsville Union church, Tuesday evening, and Mennonite Brethren in Christ, Spring City, last evening. Sabbath morning I heard Bro. Shelly preach in the German language. I think it was a good sermon; at least I could not testify that it was not. The "Pennsylvania Dutch" has been the language used all through this section. It has been the language used on the street, in the store, and in common everywhere. Few of the older people understand the English, but there are scarcely any of the young people and children who do not speak it well. It is taught in the schools. As the language is in a transition state, German and English sermons are required of the pastor who reaches and instructs all.

I leave this field for the great metropolis with pleasant memories. While I have worked hard I have been rewarded in seeing the kindly appreciation of friends. Many have been the invitations to return and tell us more regarding this matter. Collections have more than met expenses and the Cynosure list has been enlarged, as usual.

I intended in last week's report to have mentioned the departure of our brother and co-worker, J. L. Stiles. His home was in Philadelphia. There he labored as an evangelist and missionary. His work was among the poor. God honored him by using him in bringing many souls to himself. He was a member of the Free Methodist church. He spoke fearlessly against sin as he understood it. His anti-secrecy sentiments are well known. After attending our recent convention in Philadelphia he gave utterance to his convictions regarding the lodge evil in his meetings. His death was sudden, but we are assured that he died as he lived—happy in the Lord. The workers fall, but God's work goes on.

W. B. Stoddard.

[Since the above was written, Bro. Stoddard has secured headquarters in New York City at 228 West 36th street—the same apartments that he occupied last year—where he may be addressed until further notice.—Editor Cynosure.]

The Home.

DO THE DUTY THAT LIES NEAREST THEE.

BY MRS. VICTORIA ALEXANDRA STONE.

I have heard the music swelling
In a melody so sweet,
Like the tramp of angels marching
Down the length of Zion's street,
And the burden of that anthem
Made my pulses throb and beat,
As I listen for the coming of his feet.

By the mighty God of Israel
Who still rules with power complete,
By his glory flashing o'er us,
As the passing moments fleet,
By his Spirit we shall conquer,
As he guides with power replete,
While we listen for the coming of his feet.

Do thy duty!—do it nobly!—
Long as friend and brother meet;
Do thy duty!—do it bravely!—
Thy reward shall be so sweet!
Till He comes, and drums of heaven
Roll with thrilling throb and beat,
Let us listen for the coming of his feet.

Steamburgh, N. Y.

DEVOTED LOVE FOR THE BIBLE.

BY MISS M. J. MIDDLETON.

Not long since I was reading in a Young People's Weekly some of the history of the art of printing, and a sketch of the first printing presses, which stated that a copy of the Bible was the first book printed from metal type. The interesting facts of that piece brought to my mind some of the accounts of earnest Bible readings, and consequent persecutions, before Bibles had become plenty and cheap.

Hundreds of years ago, before the art of printing had been discovered, every book being written with pens, at a great cost of time and labor, there were so few Bibles that a single copy would cost as much as a house. So that instead of nearly every man, woman and child having Bibles of their own, there were many then who had never seen one. Even after there were some printed, they were so scarce, often, as to only supply one Bible for a whole parish or congregation; and it would be chained to a desk, so that it was never to be taken out of the church. But the people could come together to hear it read; and sometimes one person would get permission to come and read it for himself.

In the parish of Brentwood, in England, there lived in those times a youth still in his teens named William Hunter. He was happy to be able to read; but only having a copy of the Psalms of his own he used to go to the old church to read the Bible at the desk there. How searchingly the question arises to our minds: Would the young people of our day be willing to leave homes and pleasant occupations to walk several miles to the church daily for the purpose of reading the Bible? Yet this William Hunter would have been glad of the opportunity to read it at any pains and trouble unmolested; and no doubt many of our young people to-day are filled with the same zeal necessary to such pains, if it was so required by scarcity of the holy Word of God.

At the time of this young Hunter's zeal his privilege was about to be disturbed, as the pious young King Edward VI., by whose command the Bible had been given to the people to read, was now dead, and his sister, Queen Mary, who succeeded him, was a Roman Catholic. As she believed that none but the priests had any right to read the Bible, she sent them all over England to forbid the people reading it. One of these priests found this young Christian, Hunter, one afternoon in the old church diligently reading the Bible aloud, while some faithful listeners drank in the precious words of Life.

Upon seeing Hunter thus engaged, the priest cried out: "Who gave you leave to read the Bible and explain it?" William replied that he only read it for his comfort and did not explain it to others.

But the confession that he read it at all was quite enough to condemn him to the Roman Catholics, and he was at once sent to the bishop at London, who, failing to make him promise to not read the holy, comforting Scriptures, then sent him back to his native town to be burned to death. His father and mother, also, loving God's Word, they had encouraged their son to love it too, and they felt that they would rather witness his being burned at the stake than to see him deny the Lord and give up his faith in the Gospel which it teaches. His brother, also, stood firmly by him in the cause, and likewise came near losing his life by his devoted affection for William.

Many persons gathered around the youthful martyr as he was led to execution. After reaching the spot he said: "Good people, pray for me while you see me live, and I will pray for you likewise." "Pray for thee," answered the justice (as though he was one of the good people): "I will no more pray for thee than for a dog." William calmly answered: "You have now what you desired in my execution, but I pray God it may not be laid to your charge at the last day. Howbeit, I forgive you."

Through the teachings of our Saviour in his Word, this martyr had the same spirit of Christ, which cried out in his agony to his Father to forgive his persecutors for crucifying him, as they knew not what they were doing. And as the young faithful martyr, Hunter, for the sake of Christ, was bound to the stake, he raised his eyes to heaven and prayed: "Son of God, shine on me now!" which prayer was soon answered by the thick clouds, that had up to that time cast a gloom all around, then suddenly being dispersed by the sun of nature shining out brightly over everything about them, making a glorious type of the real Sun of Righteousness which lightens the hearts of all who trust him, and whose light and comfort was made manifest at that time to strengthen and uphold his faithful young servant in the painful death put upon him.

As the fagots were lighted, William gave up his precious book of Psalms (which had been such sweet comfort to him) into the hands of his beloved brother, who said: "William, think on the sufferings of Christ and be not afraid." "I am not afraid," he replied. Then, lifting his eyes to heaven again, he prayed: "Lord! Lord! receive my spirit;" and bending his head the thick smoke soon suffocated him, releasing his spirit, no doubt, to join that blessed company which came out of great tribulation, and "have washed their robes white in the blood of the Lamb; therefore are they before the throne of God, serving him day and night in his temple."

The day may not be far distant when we, both young and old, may be compelled to suffer persecutions for Christ's and the Gospel's sake; and shall not such noble examples as the above encourage and inspire us all with zeal and firmness to hold out faithful to the end?

New Concord, Ohio.

DESTROYERS OF AMERICAN HOMES.

No one with the best interests of our American life at heart can look but with disfavor upon the enormous growth of boarding-houses and apartment-houses in our large cities, writes Edward W. Bok in the Ladies' Home Journal. To a far greater extent than many suppose are these growing factors the destroyers of our American home system. Each year finds these apartment-houses more generally patronized by families. It will indeed be a pity if our American women shall continue to eschew house-keeping during the next twenty years as they have in the past score of years. Nothing bodes so ill for our children. What recollection does life in an apartment-house, a hotel or a boarding-house give to a child in after-years? The sweetest memory to a man is the home of his boyhood; and how little sweetness can there be in the memory of a childhood spent as a "cliff-dweller!" A child has a rightful claim to a house influence, and a mother is untrue to her highest trust when she deprives her child of that right. To offer the argument that a home circle can be established in our modern apartment-house just as well as in a home, is simply to excuse what we know in our hearts to be an untruth. Home life is only possible in a home. A poor apology indeed for a home is even the most comfortable and gorgeously appointed apartment. Women excuse their resort to this form of life because of the freedom from the annoyance of servants. But the servant girl problem cannot be solved by shirking it. It seems to me that if some of our American women would trouble themselves less about municipal and suffrage problems, which men will take care of, and devote their much flaunted capabilities for municipal executive ability toward the solution of the servant girl problem, which is theirs and theirs only, it would be better for our American life.

HOW WESLEY DIED.

Friday, February 25, 1791, Mr. Wolff having brought him home to City Road, Mr. Wesley went up stairs and requested that for half an hour he should be left alone. When the time expired, faithful Joseph Bradford found him so unwell that he sent for Dr. Whitehead. "Doctor," said the dying patriarch, "they are more afraid than hurt."

Saturday, February, 26, was principally passed in drowsiness and sleep.

Sunday morning, February 27, he seemed better, got up, sat in his chair, looked cheerful, and repeated, from one of his brother's hymns:

"Till glad I lay this body down,
Thy servant, Lord, attend!
And, oh! my life of mercy crown
With a triumphant end."

And then soon after, with marked emphasis, he said: "Our friend Lazarus sleepeth." His niece, Miss Wesley, and Miss Ritchie prayed with him. "When at Bristol," said he, alluding to his illness there in 1753, "my words were:

"I the chief of sinners am,
But Jesus died for me!"

Miss Ritchie asked: "Is that your language now?" "Yes," said he. "Christ is all. He is all." He then dozed and sometimes wandered; but in his wanderings was always preaching or meeting classes.

On Monday, February 28, his weakness increased. Dr. Whitehead wished for further assistance. Wesley replied: "Dr. Whitehead knows my constitution better than anyone else. I am quite satisfied, and will have no one else." Most of the day was spent in sleep. He seldom spoke; but once, in a wakeful interval, was heard saying in a low, distinct voice: "There is no way into the holiest, but by the blood of Jesus." Then, referring to the text, "Ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though he was rich," etc., he remarked with solemn emphasis: "That is the foundation, the only foundation; there is no other." It was now evident to all that he was beginning to sleep his last sleep. His friends were intensely anxious and alarmed. "I want to write," said he. A pen was put into his hand, and paper was placed before him. His hand had forgot its cunning. "I cannot," said the dying man. "Let me write for you," remarked Miss Ritchie; "tell me what you want to say." "Nothing," he replied, "but that God is with us."

"I will get up," he said; and while his friends were arranging his clothes, the happy old man began singing:

"I'll praise my Maker while I've breath,
And when my voice is lost in death
Praise shall employ my nobler powers.
My days of praise shall ne'er be past
While life, and thought, and being last,
Or immortality endures.

"Happy the man whose hopes rely
On Israel's God; he made the sky,
And earth and seas with all their train.
His truth forever stands secure;
He saves the oppressed, he feeds the poor,
And none shall find his promise vain."

Once more seated in his chair he, in a weak voice, said: "Lord, thou givest strength to those that can speak, and to those that cannot. Speak, Lord, to all our hearts, and let them know that thou loosest tongues." And again he began to sing, which proved to be his last song on earth:

"To Father, Son, and Holy Ghost,
Who sweetly all agree."

But here his voice failed, and after gasping for breath, he said: "Now we have done. Let us all go."

Full of happiness, but utterly exhausted, he was put to bed, where, after a short but quiet sleep, he opened his eyes, and addressing the weeping watchers who stood around him, said: "Pray and praise!" and of course they at once complied. Then he asked Joseph Bradford about the contents of his bureau, remarking: "I would have all things ready for my executors. Let me be buried in nothing but what is woolen, and let my corpse be carried in my coffin into the chapel." And then as if no other earthly matters required his attention, he again called out: "Pray and praise!" Down fell his friends upon their knees, and fervent were the dying patriarch's responses, especially to John Broadbent's prayer that God would still bless the system of doctrine and discipline which Wesley had been the means of establishing. On rising from prayer each watcher drew near to the bed of the expiring saint, and with affectionate solicitude awaited the coming of the shining ones to conduct him home. With the utmost placidity, he saluted each one present, shook hands, and said: "Farewell, farewell!"

Conflict, there was none. The scene was the peaceful setting of a glorious sun, undisturbed by the slightest soughing wind, undimmed by the smallest intervening cloud.—New York Advocate.

LIGHT IN THE DAYS OF DARKNESS.

I am not seeking to cast any shadow upon glad lives when I say that every young woman should learn in sunny days where to find light in the days of darkness. If you are about to enter Mammoth Cave, while you are still outside in the sunshine, the guide puts a lamp into your hand. It seems useless, then, as you walk down the green bank, and its beams appear pale and dim; but when you enter the cavern you understand the value of your little lamp, and its light is very beautiful as it shines in the dense gloom.

The lamp of Christ's comfort may seem useless to you in the happy days of youth, when you have no sorrow; but some time it will grow dark about you, with no earthly light to shine upon your path, and then this heavenly lamp will be most welcome. Keep the picture before you, therefore, at Christ's feet in sorrow. It will teach you where to go when the night darkens about your own soul.—"Mary of Bethany."

WHICH?

Reader, there are two ways of beginning the day—with prayer, without it. You begin the day in one of these two ways. Which?

There are two ways of spending the Sabbath—idly or devotionally. You spend the Sabbath in one of these two ways. Which?

There are two classes of people in the world—the righteous and the wicked. You belong to one of these two classes. Which?

There are two great rulers in the universe—God and Satan. You are serving under one of these great rulers. Which?

There are two roads which lead through time to eternity—the broad and the narrow road. You are walking in one of these two roads. Which?

There are two deaths which people die—some "die in the Lord," others die in their sins. You will die one of these two deaths. Which?

There are two places to which people go—heaven and hell. You will go to one of these two places. Which?

Ponder these questions; pray over them; and may the issue be your salvation from the "wrath to come."—Onward.

THEY ARE GOD'S CREATURES.

The daughter of an army officer, whose life had been spent in the far West, told the following anecdote: "Indians, when they accept Christianity, very often hold its truths with peculiar simplicity. They are not hackneyed to them.

"There was near our fort an old chief called Tassorah. One day when I was an impulsive girl I was in a rage at my pony, and dismounting, beat him severely. The old man stood by, silent for a moment.

"'What words have I heard from Jesus?" he said sternly. 'If you love not your brother whom you have seen, how can you love God whom you have not seen?'

"'This horse is not my brother!' I said.

"The old man laid his hand on the brute's head and turned it toward me. The eyes were full of terror.

"'Is not God his Creator? Must he not care for him?' he said. 'Not a sparrow falls to the ground without his notice.'

"I never forgot the lesson. It flashed on me then for the first time that the dog that ran beside me, the birds, the very worms were his, and I, too, was one of his great family."

A French naval officer has written a book which is a bold and powerful plea for mercy and kindness toward all living things. Even the brief life of a day given to an insect is sacred in his eyes.

"If I can never return life to them again," he asks, "shall I make it wretched; shall I for no cause take it from them?"

The eloquence of his plea for the dumb part of God's creation was one of the reasons of the recent elevation of M. Viaud, better known by his pen-name Pierre Loti, to a seat in the French academy.

To understand the force of his argument, look attentively at the dumb creature nearest to you—horse, dog or cat; at its strength, its beauty, the intelligence looking out of its eyes.

If God took care and thought to make it thus, shall not he hear its cry against him who wrongs it?—Youth's Companion.

HOME HAPPENINGS.

Make bright the hearth where children throng
In innocence and glee,
With smiles of love, the carol'd song,
The spirit's harmony.

The healthful sports the cheek that flush,
The mother's fond caress,
Nor let the stateliest father blush,
His merry boy to bless.

For, far adown the vale of life,
When he his lot shall bear,
That hallowed gleam shall cheer the strife,
And gild the clouds of care.

If midnight storms and breakers roar,
Its treasured spell shall be
A lighthouse 'mid the wrecking shore,
The star of memory,—

Shall warn him, when the siren's wiles
His faltering feet entice;—
Make bright the hearth where childhood smiles,
And guard the man from vice.

—Mrs. Sigourney.

TEMPERANCE.

INTEMPERANCE.

BY REV. P. B. WILLIAMS.

(Concluded.)

In the city of New York there are over eleven thousand dramshops. The annual result is over two million dollars added to the city taxes; millions more wasted for liquors; twenty-five thousand men, women and children sent to the city prisons; forty thousand destitute, outcast, harmless children; ninety-eight thousand eight hundred and sixty-one arrests in a single year, nine-tenths of which were the results of drink; six hundred and fifty violent deaths, and seventy-five thousand young men hastening on to ruin.

The police of New York City arrested in 1868 eighty-nine thousand eight hundred and sixty-one persons, of whom fifty thousand eight hundred and forty-four were charged with intoxication and disorderly conduct. Drunkenness itself is a crime, and we have more than six hundred thousand drunkards in this country.

A man who gets drunk is a drunkard, though he may only get drunk once in five years; just as a man who commits theft is a thief, though he may steal but once in a year. A man who commits murder is a murderer, though he may commit but one murder in a life-time. So a man who gets drunk is a drunkard, though he may not be a common drunkard.

Were all those collected together who have been found drunken in our land the past year, they would make a much larger army than Napoleon, Lee or Grant ever commanded; and yet our tipplers and moderate drinkers would make a much larger army.

Could all the oaths, obscenities and blasphemies which alcohol causes every hour be uttered in one voice, it would be louder than the thunders of Gettysburg—it would appal creation.

Look at the fearful destruction of human life occasioned by the rum traffic. At the lowest estimate, it sends to drunkards' graves every year not less than seventy-five thousand men and women; two hundred a day, eight every hour, and one every eight minutes. The church of Christ can never accomplish her work until she first wipes out this monster evil of intemperance.

What can sixty-three thousand churches do to bring on the millennium while two hundred and fifty thousand saloons are in full blast—nearly four liquor-shops to every church and five saloon-keepers to every minister?

We have four saloons to every school-house in the nation. The sale of all our churches at the very highest cash value would not pay our liquor bill for six months.

Rev. Newman Hall says: "Thirty thousand church members are slaughtered in England annually by this traffic."

Rev. Richard Knill, of London, says: "Nearly all the blemishes which have been found on the characters of ministers in England for the last fifty years have arisen directly or indirectly from the use of intoxicating liquors."

The sale and use of intoxicating beverages keeps men away from the house of God, and leads to the neglect of the means of grace and ordinances of religion. The drinking usages are almost universally associated with infidelity, profanity and Sabbath-desecration. This sin debases and depraves man's whole nature, and tends to the utter annihilation of all moral and religious feelings, hence is always prejudicial to morality and religion. The rumseller outrages community, dishonors God, and feeds and lives upon the vices of his fellow-men. His business is a perpetual crime against God and man. He draws around him the worst classes of the community, and, instead of reforming them, he ministers to their most depraved and pernicious appetites. It is no wonder that he retires from the sanctuary, scarcely ever putting a foot within its doors. It is not strange that the minister of Christ is discarded, the Bible rejected, and Christianity ridiculed and burlesqued. The larger part of dramsellers are, sooner or later, cursed with their own curse; that is, they are overthrown and ruined by drink; and their sons grow up drunkards and form a large per cent of the rowdy element in our cities and towns, including many of our felons and criminals. "Woe unto him that giveth his neighbor drink."

This evil extends from generation to generation, so that the iniquity of the fathers reaches their children, and their families are usually blotted out in a few generations. It is very clear to be seen that the curse of God and heaven rests upon the ill-gotten gains of the iniquitous traffic. We can form no adequate idea of the state of things that would obtain if intoxicating drinks were dispensed with entirely. This world would be comparatively converted into a paradise. There would be comparatively no poverty. The one million four hundred thousand dollars spent and wasted for liquors annually would annihilate the physical poverty of the world, and the present poor-tax of Massachusetts would be ample for the United States.

There would be comparatively no more crime. Prison discipline and official statistics, as we have seen, show that nine-tenths of all our crimes are directly traceable to the use of alcoholic drink. Our prisons and poor-house would be comparatively empty. We would not have to build another insane asylum in a hundred years.

Nine-tenths of our insanity is traceable to drinking habits. Omniscience only knows the terrible woes of children begotten of drunken parents.

Before the track of intemperance is innocence, plenty, joy,—a full summer; behind it is poverty, crime, broken hearts, despair,—a desert. To license this business is a crime against God and man.

Philomath, Ore.

NUGGETS.

If drunkenness is a disease, what right has the state to license saloons and propagate the disease? If drunkenness is a sin, what right has the church to support a license party?

In Thomas' Farmer's Almanac, 1833, appears the declaration of seventy-five physicians of Boston, giving it as their opinion that "men in health are never benefited by the use of ardent spirits; that, on the contrary, the use of them is a frequent cause of disease and death."

Harvard College has never been suspected of being a hot-bed of prohibition, and yet the president and fellows of that institution have adopted a rule that "hereafter no punches nor distilled liquors shall be allowed in any college-room on class day, or on commencement day." And they expect this prohibition to prohibit.

BIBLE LESSON.

STUDIES IN THE BOOKS OF MOSES.

LESSON V.—Second Quarter, 1894, April 29.

SUBJECT.—Joseph Forgiving His Brethren.—Gen. 45: 1-15.

GOLDEN TEXT.—If thy brother trespass against thee, rebuke him; and if he repent, forgive him.—Luke 17: 3.

Open the Bible and read the lesson.

Daily Readings.—M.—Gen. 45: 1-15. T.—Gen. 43: 1-14. W.—Gen. 43: 15-25. Th.—Gen. 43: 26-34. F.—Gen. 45: 16-28. S.—Gen. 47: 1-12. Su.—Rom. 12: 14-21.

COMMENTS BY E. E. FLAGG.

1. Joseph's emotion. Vs. 1–3. The previous chapter gives us the moving appeal of Judah for the release of Benjamin, whom it had been part of Joseph's policy to detain as a prisoner. It so moved him that he could wear the mask no longer. He "caused every man to go out," leaving them with no curious eyes to witness the scene. It is evident, from the after-narrative, that he did not tell Pharaoh the shameful story of his brothers' treatment of him; but that he tried in every way to screen their former guilt, and cause them to make a favorable impression at court. So he who has been called our Elder Brother covers our former sins so that they are remembered against us no more, as soon as we show ourselves truly penitent. Joseph spoke no word of anger or reproach. He simply said, "I am Joseph;" yet it was enough to strike his brethren with speechless terror. Conscience pricked them to the heart. They were now as completely in his power as he was once in theirs. He could order them decapitated, or sold as slaves, and in an instant his command would be obeyed. They judged him by themselves. They could not conceive of a magnanimity so generous that it would utterly overlook the terrible past. So there will come a day when our Lord will appear in all the glory of his exaltation to the right hand of the Father, and sinners "shall look on him whom they pierced."

2. Joseph comforts his brethren. Vs. 4–8. No New Testament saint ever manifested a more Christ-like disposition than did Joseph. But the Spirit of God is not confined to any era, race, or dispensation; and then, as now, wherever implanted, it brought forth the fruits of the spirit, "long-suffering," "gentleness," "love." "God did send me before you to preserve life." In his own good time and way God will shed light on the darkest dispensations. Joseph must have often wondered why God should let him be sold into Egypt, but now it was all made clear. It was his appointed way by which not only the Egyptians, but the whole Hebrew nation in embryo, was kept from being destroyed by famine. It was through the terrible sin of Judas and the chief priests that God wrought out the salvation of our race. The greatest crimes and blunders of men have only helped on his divine purposes; but this fact does not take away free-will, or absolve us from personal responsibility. If men will deliberately choose, like Joseph's brethren, to be the devil's slaves and do the devil's work, the right will triumph all the same, without thanks or reward to them. If, instead, they choose, like Joseph, to be the Lord's freemen, they will have an intelligent participation in his great plans, and a share, at last, in the glorious reward. When our plans are defeated, when disasters overtake, or the wicked persecute us, if we can but recognize God's hand in it, and have faith that the final outcome of all will be good, both for ourselves and for others, we shall find every bitter cup sweetened. We shall feel no anger, or resentment, or rebellion against his will. This is the true philosophy of life: To live above our troubles and so look down on them as the aeronaut looks on the fogs floating in the valley beneath him and see them all irradiated by the sun.

3 The charge to his brethren. Vs. 9–15. Joseph's filial love and tenderness is here beautifully brought out. "Haste ye." He was eager to have his father know that his favorite son was yet alive, and holding the highest office in the greatest kingdom of the world. Doubtless Joseph had never before felt a thrill of joy at his elevation so keen and pure as now, when he thought of the wonder and delight with which his father would hear the glad news, and how he should fill his remaining days with every comfort and luxury. "And thou shalt dwell in the land of Goshen, and thou shalt be near unto me, thou and thy children," etc. Are we not reminded of Christ's tender words of promise; how he will bear in his bosom the aged, with the lambs of the flock? "It is my mouth that speaketh unto you." "It is I. Be not afraid." It was not a stranger masquerading for a cruel hoax, but Joseph himself. And so, when the disciples stood in terrified doubt at the first sight of their risen Lord, he comforts them with the assurance, "It is I, myself." How our doubts and fears would vanish if we could feel that Jesus is ever with us—not an abstraction, but a living Presence. Nothing will make him thus real to us but the ordering of our daily lives in the minutest detail to conform with his will, and studying his words and example with the constant endeavor to pattern our own by them.

LITERATURE.

Gems for the Sick: Compiled by Mary Paine Manwell. One volume, finely bound, pp, 261. A. W. Hall, publisher, Syracuse, N. Y. Price, 75 cents.

Mrs. Manwell has done a good work in the collection of these touching tokens of sensibility and sympathy for the sick. Its design is simply to bring comfort to the afflicted. The poems it contains are appropriately called "gems" in this respect, and are gathered from many sources, each and all bearing a spirit of kindness and pious resignation that well befits a sick-room. Some old favorites have found a place in its pages, and others less known, but none the less practical and soothing to the mind and heart. Had it no other merit, the gathering together of so many choice fugitive poems would entitle it to welcome consideration. Pres. Chas. A. Blanchard, whose own heart has recently been touched by severe domestic affliction, contributes to the volume an Introduction which alike commends itself and the collection to the afflicted.

The Pentateuch: Its Origin and Authorship. By H. L. Hastings. One vol., paper, pp. 30. Boston: H. L. Hastings, 47 Cornhill, Boston. Price, 10 cents.

Moses testified of Jesus, and our Saviour testified concerning Moses. Jesus taught the people from the words of Moses, as coming from God through the Jewish law-giver (see Matt. 8: 4, and Lev. 14: 3, 4, 10; Matt. 19: 3–8; Gen. 1: 27; Gen. 5: 2; Gen. 2: 24; Deut. 24: 1; John 7: 19, 22, 23; John 5: 46; and other passages, equally corroborative of the authenticity of Moses as the author of the Penteteuch). A very remarkable fact is the clearness with which the dying first martyr (Stephen) testified (Acts 7) to the works and writings of Moses, and then died triumphant in the joy of his Lord. Yet the higher critics would have us believe that the books of Moses were written by other men after the death of Moses. There is not a scintilla of evidence in this direction. It is to offset this sort of criticism, which is not worthy of the name, that Mr. Hastings has written this pamphlet, and in it embodied all the refutation necessary to save Moses from the charge of plagiary. It is not strange that Robert G. Ingersoll should find mistakes in Moses that Moses never made, or that Dr. Harper should fail to understand that Moses, living in or near the times of which he wrote, was better able to judge (having the aid of divine inspiration) of what was false and what was true of ante- and post-diluvian affairs. Many of these would-be critics have studied and worked hard, in the light of worldly wisdom, to "upset Moses;" but like the corner-stone of creation, he still stands as the witness of God's wisdom, power and justice. "The grass withereth, the flower fadeth; but the word of our God shall stand forever." (Isaiah 40: 8) Mr. Hastings' pamphlet is timely and good.

Steps into Journalism: Helps and Hints for Young Writers. By Edwin Llewellyn Shuman. One volume, pp 229. Published by the Correspondence School of Journalism, Evanston, Ill., 1894.

Here is a young man, who began his newspaper career as a "printers' devil," working upward as "compositor, proof-reader, reporter, copy-reader, telegraph editor, exchange reader and editorial writer" for one of our oldest and best daily papers, giving us his practical views of journalism and its requirements with the wisdom of many a newspaper "old timer," and doing it marvelously well. The attention which he gives to the thousand and one details of newspaper work stamp him as a close observer and student in his chosen profession. Nothing seems to have escaped his notice; and while we believe that your true press writer, like the real poet, is born, not made, we also believe that a very poor newspaper-man, by following our author's instructions, may learn to perform very creditable work in his proper sphere of action. Mr. Shuman's hints and suggestions, however, take a wider range than the routine duties of newspaper life. For all who desire to succeed as writers for the press in any form, he gives explicit instructions, ignorance of which, or too much reliance on the editor's good-nature, often compel the latter to reject communications which he would be pleased to print were they presented in a proper shape. To any young man or woman who has an ambition to earn money and promotion as a correspondent, reporter or miscellaneous writer for the press, this book will be a useful companion and guide, since it points out the importance of cultivating close observation and descriptive power, and the avoidance of the many errors into which even educated persons not familiar with the work of journalism are liable to fall when they put their ideas upon paper. As an intimation of the many good points scored in this volume, the following heads of chapters are mentioned, the treatment of which is replete with interest and information: Evolution of the Press. Mission of the Press. (The author should have given this subject a more prominent position in his book.) Preparation of a Newspaper Article. A Day With a Reporter. Interviewing and Newsgathering. Getting a Start as a Correspondent. Methods of the Editorial Room. Women in Newspaper Work. Errors of All Sorts. Special Writing—Stories, etc. The whole is not only a source of instruction, but of entertainment.

CURRENT PERIODICALS.

The story of the life of Rev. Dr. Parkhurst and of his remarkable war against the official protection of vice and crime in New York City, illustrated with several portraits of the doctor, forms an important chapter in the April number of McClure's Magazine. Portraits of Professor Henry Drummond, Andrew Carnegie, and Ellen Terry are the Human Documents. Ellen Terry, in her life on and off the stage, is the subject of an intimate study, illustrated with portraits and views of her charming country home. Archdeacon Farrar has a notable article on Christianity—True and False. The Poisonous Snakes of India—and there are more of them and of a more virulent type in India than in any other country—is the subject of an abundantly illustrated article. Zola, through that most skillful reporter, R H. Sherard, tells the story of his literary career and his methods of work. Robert Barr and Clark Russell contribute short stories. Altogether, in contents and illustrations, it is a prime number of this favorite magazine. Published by S. S. McClure (Ltd.), 743 and 745 Broadway, New York. Price, 15 cents.

The Progress of the World, in the April Review of Reviews, contains an interesting discussion originating in the resignation of Mr. Gladstone and its reception by the American people. Other topics in this comprehensive department cover the Seigniorage bill, filibustering in Congress, the outlook for Bimetalism, the Wilson bill in the Senate, Louisiana and free sugar, the Senate report on Hawaii, the triumph of the Brazilian republic, the Bluefields incident, the prosecution of election crimes, the present position of the Democratic and Republican parties, the fight against the House of Lords, the Russo-German commercial treaty, the services of the late Dr. Poole, of Chicago, the death of Louis Kossuth, and many matters of international interest. W. T. Stead contributes a tripartite character sketch of Gladstone, Rosebery and Harcourt, the Liberal leaders. The whole past, present and future of British liberalism passes under view. The analysis of character and policy is keen and skillful. Announcement is made of a series of articles by the leading publicists of Australia and New Zealand, to appear under the general title of "The Drift in Australasian Politics." The series opens with a paper on the delays in federation and what they have taught the people, by Sir Henry Parkes. Dr. Albert Shaw shows in an interesting way what is being done for Negro education in Alabama by the Negroes themselves. His article describes the remarkable work carried on at the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute. There is also a history and description of the Battersea Polytechnic Institute, in Southwest London, which was formally opened by the Prince and Princess of Wales in February last. Published at 13 Astor Place, New York. Price, 25 cents.

HON. SAMUEL DEXTER, in an Open Letter to the Grand Master of Mass., 1798: "If there be no very important reason for upholding Masonry at a moment like the present, there is a reason against it. The system of the destroyers of human virtue and happiness is to undermine in the dark the castle that cannot be carried by storm. Secret agency has overthrown all the republics of Europe, and an extended, secret, leveling, self-created society, without any valuable object of pursuit, and embracing bad characters as well as good, cannot be the subject of approbation of an anxious patriot."

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

111 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. ☞ A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 65 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers, 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Allyn's Ritual of Freemasonry by Avery Allyn contains the fully Illustrated Ritual of the Blue Lodge, Chapter Council and Commandery, 11 of the Scotch Rite Degrees, Several Masonic side degrees and what is termed a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, the Orange and Odd-fellows Societies. Price in cloth $5.00.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor. Profusely illustrated with explanatory engravings, and containing the ritual and work of the order for the seven degrees, including the Royal Arch. Though extensively used as an Instruction Book and one of the best in the market it is not as accurate as "Freemasonry Illustrated," the first book on catalogue. Price in cloth, $2 50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry. Containing the ceremonies of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, etc. Illustrated. Although extensively used in conferring the higher degrees, it is not only very incomplete but inaccurate especially as regards the first seven degrees, and as to the higher degrees it gives but a description and general idea of the degrees rather than the full ritual. Price in cloth, $1.25; Paper covers, 75c.

Look to the East. A Ritual of the first three Masonic Degrees by Ralph Lester. Price in cloth $2.00. Notwithstanding the high price this book is very inferior in every way to Freemasonry Illustrated or The Handbook of Freemasonry at a quarter the price.

Ecce Orienti. The Complete Standard Ritual of the First Three Masonic Degrees in Cypher, with complete Floor Charts of Initiating, Passing and Raising a Candidate. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Cabala. The Complete Standard Ritual of the Chapter Masonic Degrees; 4th to 7th inclusive, in Cypher. Giving the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master and Royal Arch, Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Council of the Orient. The Complete Standard Ritual of Council Masonic Degrees in Cypher, 8th to 10th inclusive. Giving the Degrees of Royal Master, Select Master and Super Excellent Master. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

Knights of the Orient. The complete Ritual of the Commandery Masonic Degrees, Knights of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta, 11th to 13th degrees. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

The Mystic Shrine Illustrated. An Illustrated Ritual of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. This is a Side Masonic degree conferred only on Knights Templar and on Thirty-two degree Masons. 15 cts. each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion. 5 cents each.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover. 50cts.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Odd-fellowship: Its History and its Work. By President J. Blanchard. A new pamphlet with cover. Postpaid. 5 cts.

OTHER RITUALS.

Revised Knights of Pythias Illustrated. An exact copy of the new Official Ritual Adopted by the Supreme Lodge of the World, with the Secret work added and fully Illustrated. In cloth 50 cts. Paper cover 25 cts.

Knights of the Orient Illustrated. The full Illustrated Ritual of Ancient Order of the Orient, or the Oriental degree, This is a side degree conferred mostly in Knights of Pythias lodges. 15 cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and council. 25cts each.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin. Illustrated with engravings. 25 cents each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords etc. 15cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated, "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each.

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

Knights of Labor Illustrated ("Adelphon Kruptos.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation; Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

Folly, Expense and Danger of Secret Societies. By Pres. C. A. Blanchard. This booklet of 32 pages is a general discussion of the secret orders, whether religious, political, industrial, insurance or social. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Disloyal Secret Oaths. By Joseph Cook, Boston. He quotes the law of Vermont which makes the administration of the Masonic oaths illegal. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing? An address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891. W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's, too." A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover Postpaid, 5 cents.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void: or Freemasonry Self-Convicted. This is a book for the times. The design of the author is to refute the arguments of those who claim that the oaths of Freemasonry are binding upon those who take them. 207 pages. Postpaid, 40 cents each.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the lodge when S. H. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry. 15 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 300 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Masonry a Work of Darkness, adverse to Christianity, and inimical to republican government. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian) a seceding Mason of 21 degrees. 15 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. J. Day Brownlee. In reply to a Masonic Oration by Rev. Dr. Mayer, Wellsville, Ohio. 5 cents each.

Masonic Outrages. Compiled by Rev. H. H. Hinman. Showing Masonic assault on lives of seceders, on reputation, and on free speech; its interference with justice in courts, etc. Postpaid, 20 cents.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife, of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

A Booklet of 107 pages, which includes "The Martyr's Own Monument," by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D, Western Secretary of American Missionary Association; "Christian Politics," by Rev. J Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure; "The Mysterious Machine: Was it Lawn-mower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what?" by Prof. E. D. Bailey, of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government. Postpaid 25 cts.

Jonathan Blanchard's Sermons and Addresses. Select discourses of the first editor of the Cynosure. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of living reform, Secret Societies, The Sabbath, Temperance, National Reform, Christian Education, Christian Socialism, The Bible, etc. A book everybody should read. 12mo. Fine photogravure portrait. Price, 75 cents.

American Handbook and Citizen Manual By Manlove N. Butler. Contents: Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement. Over 200 pages. Paper, single copy, 40c.

Image of the Beast: A Secret Empire; or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy. By Rev. Richard Horton. Third edition. 200 pages. Cloth. Price, 60 cents.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages paper cover. 25cts each.

Eminent Men on Secret Societies. Composed of "Washington Opposed to Secret Societies," "Judge Whitney's Defence," "The Mystic Tie," "Narratives and Arguments," the "Anti-mason's Scrap-Book" and "Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry as Proved in the New Berlin Trials." 328 pages, cloth. $1.00.

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear array of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Prof. J. G. Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies. A most convincing argument against fellowshiping Freemasons in the Christian church. 10 cents each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have. 5 cents each.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher. In cloth, 35cts each; paper covers, 15cts each.

Between Two Opinions: or the Question of the Hour. By Miss E. E. Flagg author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages, cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William M'Nary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury; "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion," and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth $1.00.

Stories of the Gods. By I. R. B. Arnold. Brief sketches from the mythology of Rome, Greece, Egypt, India, Persia, Phrygia, Scandinavia, Africa and America, showing the relations and unity of past and present systems. The idolatrous worship of the Masonic lodge is thus clearly seen and understood. Postpaid, 10 cents.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50cts each.

Home and Health.

The Massachusetts State Board of Health concludes, from investigation of artificial ice, that artificial processes of freezing concentrate the impurities of the water in the inner core of the portion last frozen; that the impurities are least if distilled water is used; that the number of bacteria in artificial ice is insignificant under the prevailing methods of manufacture, and that the amount of zinc found in the ice is insufficient to cause injury from its use.

The prettiest bedstead is made of some dark wood, beautiful in grain and construction, but absolutely without decoration. The headpiece is straight in lines, and so low that if pillows were used in the dressing they would reach the top. The footpiece is lower, but with the rolled bolster and silk or embroidered spread it looks cozy as well as sumptuous, and furnishes the room as no metal bed could.

The quickest cure on record in the Bellevue Hospital, New York, was that of Jennie Klevanskey, who was suffering with hysterical hiccoughs. On her way to the alcoholic ward in charge of an attendant, a nurse entered with a straight jacket. The woman shrieked and declared that she was cured. She had stopped hiccoughing and was immediately discharged.

A deal of sympathy is wasted upon the American woman who marries a foreign title and finds that she has made a bad trade. The woman who marries for a title is not entitled to sympathy, and the man who marries that kind of a woman is as much to be pitied as she is.

The death of Hannah Dempsey, a domestic, at Marylebone, England, recently, was caused by blood-poisoning, the result of wearing dyed stockings.

To remove rust from kettles and other ironware rub with kerosene oil and let them stand. Keep a day, then wash with hot water and soap.

Good players of the harp are said to be the scarcest of all musical performers.

Sit down on the do-nothing stool and you will come to the poor-house.

To relieve the pain of rheumatism rub the afflicted joint with kerosene.

THE LARGEST MANUFACTURERS IN THE WORLD OF CHURCH FURNISHINGS
OPERA AND ASSEMBLY CHAIRS.
THE GRAND RAPIDS, SCHOOL FURNITURE CO.
GRAND RAPIDS MICH.

$2.75 Buys our $9 Natural Finish Baby Carriage complete with plated steel wheels, axle, springs, and one piece steam bent handle. Made of best material, finely finished, reliable, and guaranteed for 3 years. Shipped on 10 days' trial. FREIGHT PAID; no money required in advance. 75,000 in use. We are the oldest and best known concern of our kind, reliable and responsible. Reference furnished to any one. Make and sell nothing but what we guarantee to be as represented, sold at the lowest factory prices. WRITE TO-DAY for our large FREE illustrated catalogue of latest designs and styles published.

OXFORD MFG. CO., 340 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

THE MYSTIC SHRINE
Illustrated.

THE FULL

ILLUSTRATED RITUAL OF THE

Nobles of the Mystic Shrine

PRICE 15 CENTS, EACH.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address S. C. Kimball,
Box 277. Newmarket, N. H.

Burning Pain

Erysipelas in Face and Eyes

Inflammation Subdued and Tortures Ended by Hood's.

"I am so glad to be relieved of my tortures that I am willing to tell the benefits I have derived from Hood's Sarsaparilla. In April and May, I was afflicted with erysipelas in my face and eyes, which spread to my throat and neck. I tried divers ointments and alteratives, but there was no permanent abatement of the burning, torturing pain, peculiar to this complaint. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and

Felt Marked Relief

before I had finished the first bottle. I continued to improve until, when I had taken four bottles, I was completely cured, and felt that all signs, marks and symptoms of that dire complaint had forever vanished." Mrs. E. E. Ottawa, Hillsboro, Wisconsin.

HOOD'S Sarsaparilla CURES

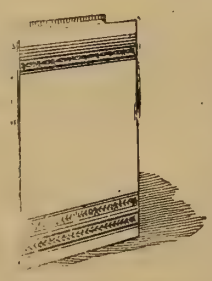
Hood's Pills are prompt and efficient, yet easy in action. Sold by all druggists. 25c.

A Journey to Palestine.

BY REV. B. CARRADINE, D. D.

—oo—



Revised and Illustrated Edition. 500 pages. Eighteen beautiful half-tone Engravings, including portrait of Author. Cloth postpaid, $1.50. Address

National Christian Ass'n.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

MY EXPERIENCES
WITH
SECRET SOCIETIES.
BY A TRAVELER.

With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

—o-o—

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,

but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chica

Sermons of Rev. John McNeill,

12mo. cloth, 416 pages, $1.50.

The fame of this Scottish Spurgeon, as he is very generally called, is becoming as wide-spread as the English tongue. The secret of his power over the masses, has been discussed on both sides of the Atlantic. If one may judge from these printed sermons the secret lies in a homely and pointed putting of the old truths of the Gospel in plain Anglo-saxon. There is evidence of study, but more the study of human nature, and particularly the human heart, than that of books, other than the Book of books— with this volume Mr. McNeill is evidently in love. With unquestioned faith he believes the writen word, and preaches it with an earnestness born of conviction.

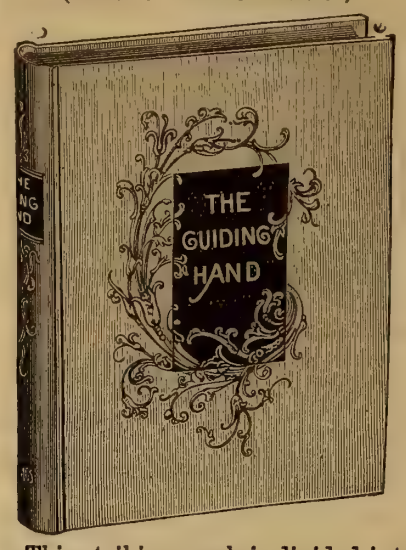
National Christian Ass'n.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

THE GUIDING HAND;
—OR—
PROVIDENTIAL DIRECTION.

—)o(—

Illustrated by authentic instances of Relief and Deliverance in times of Trouble and Perplexity; of Direction through Dreams and Mental Impressions, and of Providential Guidance, resulting in Conversion. Recorded and collected by

H. L. HASTINGS,
(Editor of "The Christian.")



This striking work is divided into three parts as follows:

(1) Providences in Relief and Deliverances. (2) Dreams and Impressions. (3) Conversions.

The "Guiding Hand" contains nearly 400 pages. It is really a handsome book, printed on heavy book paper, from large open type, good for the eyes, and artistically and durably bound in fine cloth, with fancy panels. Price, $1.50.

National Christian Ass'n.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

A BOOKLET.
107 pages, 5x7 inches.

Paper Cover, Postpaid, 15 Cents

—o:o—

The following addresses form part of the contents of this booklet:

The Martyr's Own Monument, by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association.

Christian Politics, by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure.

The Mysterious Machine: was it Lawnmower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what? by Prof. E. D. Bailey of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government.

This booklet includes other interesting matter connected with the unveiling of the Morgan monument at Batavia, N. Y. Address

National Christian Ass'n.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

JONATHAN BLANCHARD'S
—]-oo-[—
SERMONS AND ADDRESSES.

Select discourses of the late editor of the Cynosure and leader in our reform. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of

LIVING REFORM.

Secret Societies,
The Sabbath,
Temperance,
National Reform,
Christian Education,
Christian Socialism,
The Bible, Etc., Etc.

A BOOK EVERYBODY SHOULD READ

12mo. Fine Photogravure Portrait.

Price, 75 Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

Secrecy vs. the Family, State and Church. By Rev. M. S. Dury. The antagonism of organized secrecy to the welfare of the family, state and church, is clearly shown. 10cts each.

RECENT PUBLICATIONS
OF
FLEMING H. REVELL.

Modern Ideas of Evolution.

As related to Revelation and Science. By Sir William Dawson, L. L. D., F. R. S., etc. 12 mo, cloth, $1.50.

In popular style, a testing by scientific facts and principles, the validity of that multiform and brilliant philosophy of the universe, which has taken so deep a hold of the science and literature of our times.

The New World of Central Africa

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness; with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. Maps, Portraits and numerous engravings. 537 pages, 12 mo, $2.00.

This comprehensive volume is as fascinating as the most entertaining romance. Its vivid portrayal of the dark side of African history makes one's blood tingle, while its earnest appeals create an inspiring sympathy with the effort to evangelize its teeming millions.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

Matthew Henry's Commentary.

An entirely new large type edition of this inimitable Commentary, in six large 8vo. volumes, fine cloth, $15.00; or, in half Morocco, $18.00.

"Biblical students who are most familiar with the very best commentaries of this generation are most able to appreciate the unfading freshness, the clear analysis, the spiritual force, the quaint humor, and the evangelical richness of Matthew Henry's Exposition of the Old and New Testaments."—New York Observer

"First among the mighty for general usefulness we are bound to mention the man whose name is a household word—Matthew Henry. He is the most pious and pithy, sound and sensible, suggestive and sober, terse and trust worthy."—Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

The Present Tenses of the Blessed Life.

By Rev. F. B. Meyer. 32 mo, 50 cents.

"It is sufficient to say its one direct aim is the present enjoyment of the precious promises. Mr. Meyer's earnest and persuasive teaching in this direction is admirably condensed in these brief chapters."

By the Same Author:

Christian Living. Cloth, 32 mo, 50 cents.

"A more suggestive and helpful volume it would not be easy to name."—Christian Leader.

The Shepherd Psalm. Cloth, 32 mo, 50c.

"This is a gem."—Illustrated Christian Weekly

"It is a little book which hundreds of devout hearts will enjoy,"—Congregationalist.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

Other Works by C. H. Spurgeon:

Feathers for Arrows; Or, Illustrations for Teachers and Preachers. 12 mo, $1.

"This work covers a wide range of subjects. The metaphors are always striking and frequently brilliant, while the truths that they illustrate are such as have always formed the staple of Mr. Spurgeon's discourses. A choicer collection of illustrations we do not know."—Freeman.

Spurgeon's Gems. Being a selection of brilliants from his discourses. 12 mo, $1.

The Golden Alphabet. Being a Devotional Commentary on the One Hundred and Nineteenth Psalm. 12 mo, $1.00.

"Mr. Spurgeon brings out the truths and beauties of this wonderful Psalm so as to set a rich feast before the reader. As a practical commentator on the Psalms, Spurgeon has no equal."—Presbyterian Banner.

"This commentary is written in quite the happiest vein of its popular author, and the devotional spirit throughout is intense and elevating."—Occident.

Gleanings Among the Sheaves. 18 mo, 60c.

All of Grace. An earnest word with those seeking the way of life. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

According to Promise; Or, the Lord's Dealings with His chosen People. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Christmas Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve New Year Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth. 50 cents.

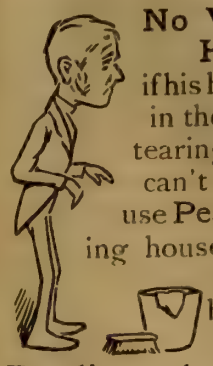
"Preachers may get aid in preparing Easter or funeral sermons from this volume. Good to present to those who have lost loved ones."—National Baptist.

Twelve Striking Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Soul-Winning Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Selected by Mr. Spurgeon as the twelve sermons under which there has been the most marked and permanent success.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago



No Wonder He Dreads It, if his house is cleaned in the old-fashioned, tearing-up way. Why can't a man's wife use Pearline for cleaning house, and let him keep comfortable? That's all she needs—Pearline and water—to make it an easy thing (and a quick one,), both for herself and for everybody around her. Everything in the house, from cellar to attic, can be cleaned best with Pearline. Besides, with your paint and wood-work and such things, you'll save a lot of wear that comes from useless scrubbing.

Beware of imitations. 410 JAMES PYLE, N.Y.

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer. Ennis, Texas.

THE TWO-FOLD GIFT of the Holy Ghost,

BY REV. THOS. K. DOTY,
Author of Lessons in Holiness.

240 pp. Price postpaid.....65cts.

The design of this book is, in plain language, to designate the place of the Holy Ghost in both the Godhead and the work of Salvation. Especially to show that Entire Santification is wrought in the heart by the Baptism of Holy Ghost; and that the Epoch of the Baptism is identical with that of his Advent in his Indwelling Personalty. The agency of the Holy Ghost in the Life, and in carrying on the work of the Gospel, is given particular attention.

TITLES TO THE CHAPTERS:

1. A Summary. 2. The Holy Ghost a Person. 3. The New Testament Designating Terms. 4. The Scriptural View. 5. The Holy Ghost is God. 6. Blasphemy Against the Holy Ghost. 7. The Trinity of God. 8. The Apostolic Benediction. 9. The Worship of the Holy Ghost. 10. The Dispensations. 11. The First Dispensation. 12. The Second Dispensation. 13. Holiness—Sinning. 14. "The Sin of the World." 15. Final Deliverance from Sin. 16. The Day of the Holy Ghost. 17. Jesus and the Holy Ghost. 18 and 19. The Epoch of the Holy Ghost. 20. The Anointing. 21. The Baptism of the Holy Ghost. 22. The Baptism of Fire. 23. The Two-Fold Experiences of the Holy Ghost. 24. Fellowship of the Holy Ghost. 25. "In the Spirit." 26. Several Scriptural Terms Considered. 27. Pentecost. 28. Inspiration—Prophecy. 29. Spiritual Leading and Teaching. 30. The Gifts of the Spirit. 31. "Praying in the Holy Ghost." 31 and 32. Power.

This book is creating quite a stir in religious circles. The original, bold and convincing manner of presenting the subject, has forced the press to comment upon the book, either adversely or favorably, generally the latter. We give a few OPINIONS:

Bible Standard and Gospel Record: "This book is very compact, scarcely a superfluous sentence in the whole book. The manner of treating the questions involved is both clear and scriptural. .....The effect of the book will be to deepen thought and increase knowledge and, in the end, deepen piety."

Evangelical Messenger: "Brother Thomas K. Doty has written a book which we take pleasure in commending to all devout readers who enjoy all spiritual things. The subject is so important, and the treatment of it so timely, that we may be pardoned for calling attention to it thus prominently. We, at least have been greatly interested, and gratefully acknowledge that we have also been decidedly profited by persuing it .....Brother Doty writes with an incisive pen, in a clear, lucid style, often epigrammatical and with great force. He is evidently deeply impressed with the truth of what he writes and demands the respect even where he does not gain the intellectual assent of his readers." Withal the book is written in a kindly, candid spirit, rather didactic than polermical, and is calculated to help the reader and not to rouse his opposition, as is the case with so many books which have been written upon this and kindred subjects. The theological views expressed are orthodox, and in some cases the argument is fresh in matter, and certainly fresh in form throughout."

Christian Cynosure: "His book is one of the most excellent, instructive and practical of any that have come to our knowledge. The exposition of the Scriptures concerning the personality and work of the Spirit is very clear, able and comforting. There is much dogmatising on these topics by Christians who never fully felt the power of the Spirit's work, or are not living in gracious fellowship with him. To all such and to those who have not yet learned what gifts the Lord is waiting to bestow on his people we heartily commend the careful reading of this volume."

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

FARM NOTES.

HOW TO FERTILIZE TOMATOES.

The market gardeners of Maryland have brought the growing of tomatoes to a nearly perfect science, and their methods of planting and fertilizing are therefore worthy of attention by tomato growers everywhere. They recommend applying 400 to 500 pounds of nitrogenous fertilizer broadcast, doing this early in the season, so that frequent stirring of the soil will thoroughly mix the fertilizer with it. When the plants are set out they apply a small handful of the fertilizer to each hill. Whether the crop is a success or failure depends largely on whether vigorous and stocky plants or those that have grown tall and spindling are planted. It is impossible for the best system of manuring to make spindling plants produce a good crop either in quantity or quality.—Boston Cultivator.

ODDS AND ENDS.

It is difficult to cure alfalfa into hay.

Now is the time to arrange for a pure-bred sire for spring use.

Green bones fed to chicks will make their growth seem marvelous.

Black leg is prevalent among the cattle in some sections of the West.

The best farmers grow the best crops and keep up the fertility of the soil.

Sprinkle powdered sulphur in the nest of the setting hen to keep out the vermin.

Corn contains eighty-six per cent of heat elements and clover thirty-five per cent.

After killing a fowl the inside and the crop should be removed as quickly as possible.

It takes a really good farmer to know how to put money into the farm so as to get the greatest advantage from it.

It requires one-half of the food that an animal can consume to sustain it. The profits must come from the last half.

It is said that the rotting of potatoes stored in cellars may be checked or prevented by scattering quicklime over them.

On gathering eggs from the nest see that they are perfectly clean before packing them for the market or sitting purposes.

When feeding clover hay cut it into one-half inch lengths; if too long it will cause crop-bound. Scald it at night and mix with bran in the morning mash.

If the hair is falling out, or turning gray, requiring a stimulant with nourishing and coloring food, Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer is just the specific.

"Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething" softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain and cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

THE OBJECTS, WORK AND SECRET RITUAL of "The Nobles of the Mystic Shrine" have just been issued in a revised and enlarged edition. Price, in paper, 25 cents. This new order of Freemasonry, now so popular in this country as the basis of social hilarity among members of the higher degrees, claims to have originated in Arabia, and was revived in Egypt, and brought to America from France. It is interlarded with Mohammedan terms and worship; and its original objects as defined in its ritual, was inquisitorial and barbarous. Its prayers are addressed to "Allah," instead of the G. A. O. T. U., and it is quite as un-Christian as the devotees of the blue lodge would have it. The abridged edition is still sold for 15 cents. Address the National Christian Association, 221 West Madison street, Chicago.

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies. A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian churches to disfellowship secret societies. 10cts each.

If You Have

Scrofula,
Sores, Boils, or any other skin disease, take

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA

the Superior
Blood-Purifier
and Spring Medicine.
Cures others,

will cure you

Struck by Lightning.

A true and thrilling narrative of one who was struck by lightning; with incidents, experiences and anecdotes for old and young. By Rev. E. Owen.

With Striking Illustrations.

Beautifully bound in cloth, with title stamped in gold on side and back.....50c.
Paper cover.....30c.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

Plan for Evading the Judgment—Request to be Whipped to Death—Learning to Swear—Alarmed by a Rattlesnake—Fall from a Building—Struck by Lightning—Converted—Sanctified—Called to Preach—First Effort—Casting out a Devil—Protracted Meeting on "Satan's Premises"—First Circuit—Revival in "Haying"—S. Hill Revival—Sisters' Quarrel Settled—Accused of Fortune-Telling—Souls Saved—Dreams—Too near Hell to Spend Time with—A Sceptic Awakened—Public Talk with a Universalist—A Chair Thrown at the Minister—Revival in Berlin—A Methodist Church of Baptist Converts—A Noisy Stage Passenger Quieted—Preaching on the Deck of a Steamboat—A Pleasure Trip—Two Overboard—Revival by Torch-light—A Fiddler Saved—A Slanderer Humbled—Bar-room Discussion—Saved by Expulsion from the Church—Dancing with the Devil—Answering a Fool According to his Folly—Raps for Spirit Rappings—Short Debate with a Restorationist—"Open Rebuke"—An Unspeakable Blessing.

COMMENDATIONS.

American Wesleyan: "Thrilling as a romance, and true to the last syllable. No private library or Sunday-school should be without a copy."

Phonographic Monthly, N. Y.: "Calculated to throw light into the dark places of orthodoxy."

Earnest Christian: "A true narrative of instructive events."

Lay Evangelist: "Quite entertaining and neatly gotten up."

Free Methodist: "Meeting with universal favor. Intensely interesting. We have read, laughed and cried, and shall try it again."

Love, the Supreme Gift:

THE GREATEST THING IN THE WORLD.

The Perfected Life;

THE GREATEST NEED IN THE WORLD.

Both by Prof. Henry Drummond. Bound in chaste white vellum paper, each 20 cts.

These are not to be judged by the size, unless rubies are counted for the weight thereof. The first has been very largely circulated, the second is now only just published and deserves the same wide reading—both are gems such as are only found at rare intervals. If you have not read them, do so at once, you will be a better man or woman for the reading.

Talks to Sunday-School Teachers.

By Rev. J. G. Terrill. 12mo, 200 pages, bound in fine cloth.....75

This book is the result of twenty-five years of experience in Sunday-school and treats of: 1. The Sunday-school organization and management. 2. Methods of work. 3. Studies in human nature. 4. Rules of Interpretation as applied to the Bible. 5. Illustrative exercises for primary classes and children's meetings. In the style of presentation, subject matter and price of the book, the wants of the officers and teachers of the ordinary Sunday-school are kept in view.

S. S. Times:—A very comprehensive book. N. Y. Independent:—A sensible manual for the average Sunday-school teacher. Evan. Mess.:—We have been very favorably impressed with the book, because it is so intensely practical. The subject is systematically treated, and leaders of teacher's meetings can not do better than adopt it as a text-book and devote half an hour of each session to teaching the theory and practice of teaching as here systematised. Christian at Work:—Any school that will adopt this book generally and carry forward its work or doctrines here laid down will not be long in developing into a model school and reaping the harvest of a rich fruitage. Herald and Presbyter:—These Talks are well attested in their profitableness and excellence. Buffalo Advocate:—A plain, practical, common sense book on a very important subject. The author has had wide experience in this field of work. He knows thoroughly the ground over which he would lead others, and possesses the happy faculty of packing a great deal of valuable information as to matter and manner of teaching into this little hand-book. We commend it to the attention of all Sunday-school workers. Religious Telescope:—We are pleased with the plan and treatment of the subjects throughout, and are sure that the diligent Sunday-school teacher who longs for more thorough equipment will find in this book a helper of great value. Illustrated Christian Weekly:—The author talks from observation and experience, and talks well.

Sunday School Publications.

The Pearl (Mo.)	Pr. Qr. 3c	Sunshine (Mo.)	Pr. Qr. 3 "
The Lily "	" 3 "	Pure Words "	" 3 "
Light & L Scholar's Qrly	3 "	Light & L Inf Cl. wk.	6 "
" Teacher's "	5 "	" " Lesson Leaf	" 13 "
Golden Treasures	1 "	L. & L. Primary Qrly	4 "

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTIONS.

The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, Teacher's Quarterly Pr. Yr. 25c
Sunshine, each Pr. Yr. 25c Scholar's " " " 90c
The Year to one address " 15cts. Light & L. Infant Class, weekly, 50c

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

The New World of Central Africa.

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness, with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. 12mo., 530 pages with maps, portraits and numerous illustrations. $2.00

"A conscientious piece of work, and gives a very clear account of what has been done by the Protestant missions to evangelize the barbarous races of Central Africa. * * * He who wants to know what missionary effort means in these days may well learn from this volume. * * * The reader who goes carefully through will have a good bird's eye view of recent events in Africa, with all the results of modern travel. * * The work contains solid information of use to all who are interested in the future of this wonderful country. The many illustrations throw light upon savage customs and costumes."—Graphic.

In the Far East.

Letters from China by Geraldine Guinness, edited by her sister, with introduction by Rev. J. Hudson Taylor. Very fully illustrated. Quarto cloth, ...$1.50

This book was scarcely written—it was lived; for the breath of life is in it from cover to cover. * * * We have never read so wonderful an account of successful missionary effort.—Presbyterian

We easily understand how this edition is the fifteenth thousand. It is a very remarkable book.—The Golden Rule.

Frances Ridley Havergall's Poems.

Author's edition complete. The only unabridged authorized edition published in America.

1. 12mo., 880 pages, cloth, beveled.....2.00
2. Beveled boards, full gilt.....2.50
3. Half white vellum, gilt top, uncut edges, ...2.50
4. French morocco padded, roll red under gold edges...4.00
5. Persian calf, padded and embossed, gilt roll and r. g. 5.00
6. Crushed levant, elegant.....6.00
7. Full German calf, padded, elegant, gilt, rd. cors.....7.50

Miss Havergall stands without peer in the English language in the department of religious poetry.

"The book in paper and binding is all that could be desired."—Publishers' Weekly.

Small Books by Miss Havergall.

Bound in elegant illuminated board

Kept for the Master's Use .....

My King; Daily Thoughts for the Children.....

Works of Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

Sermon Notes. Covering all the Bible from Genesis to Revelation. 4 vols.....4.00
Feathers for Arrows. A volume of Choice Extracts, 12mo., cloth.....1.00
Twelve Striking Sermons..... 50
Twelve Soul Winning Sermons, ... 50
Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection 50
Twelve New Year Sermons..... 50
Twelve Christmas Sermons..... 50

Notes by C. H. M.

On Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy.

Mr. D. L. Moody says of these books: "They have been to me a very key to the Scriptures."

Deuteronomy is issued in two volumes, the others complete in one volume each.

Separate volumes may be had if desired.

The complete set in six volumes, covering over 2,300 pages, is offered at the reduced price of 75c per vol. or $4.50 per set

A. L. O. E. Intermediate Library.

Selected from the numerous productions of this world-renowned writer as being those of rare merit. 12 vols., 12mo., cloth elegant, each 75c; set.....9.00

An Eden in England.	Life in Eagle's Nest.
Ned Franks.	White Bear's Den.
Sheer Off.	Fairy Spider's Web.
Braid of Chords.	Lake in the Woods.
Silver Keys.	Seven Perils Passed.
Grace Vernon.	Hartley Brothers.

The Jessica Series. By Hesba Stretton. 6 vols., handsome bindings, cloth 50c each, or per set 2.10

Jessica's First Prayer.	Friends till Death.
No Place Like Home.	A Miserable Christmas
Under the Old Roof.	A Night and a Day.

A. L. O. E. Junior Library. Adapted to the young folks. 7 vols., 12mo., cloth each 60c; the set. 4 20

Claremont Tales.	A Wreath of Smoke.
Christian Conquests.	Pomegranates from
Tales Illustrative of Parables.	Punjab.
The Battle of Life.	Little Bullets from Batala.

The Hesba Stretton Series. 8 vols., elegant cloth bound, per set.....4 80

Cassy.	King's Servant.
Lost Gip.	Alone in London.
Max Kromer.	Little Meg's Children
Storm of Life	Crew of the Dolphin.

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

Royal Baking Powder

Absolutely Pure

A cream of tartar baking powder. Highest of all in leavening strength. — Latest United States Government Food Report.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO.,
106 Wall St., N. Y.

News of the Week

CHICAGO.

Charles Goodrich, accused of murdering Mrs. Cron at Wilmette, was found guilty of manslaughter and sentenced to imprisonment for five years.

Visiting Congressmen censure federal judges for leaving the postoffice building and threaten to oppose payment for the new quarters.

In the Von Humboldt school, Chicago, a panic occurred by which one boy lost his life, seven children were dangerously hurt, and over thirty sustained injuries more or less serious. The occasion was a defective automatic air valve in the steam radiator on the upper floor of the building.

In an address to the Chicago Academy of Homœpathic Physicians, Dr. R N. Foster said la grippe could be traced back nearly 100 years.

Prohibitionists of Cook County met at Willard Hall and nominated a county ticket.

Hyde Park's water tunnel, commenced ten years ago, is practically completed and water will be turned into it May 1.

Long distance telephonic communication between Washington and the Chicago postoffice has been established.

Rev. Edwin C. Bissell, D. D., LL. D., professor of Hebrew in McCormick Theological Seminary, died from pneumonia.

An injunction restraining Contractors Falkenau Bros. from employing union painters on the Stock Exchange Building was secured by the Nesbitt Company.

Male ticket sellers at all the suburban stations of the Illinois Central Road were replaced by young women.

COUNTRY.

By the burning of the Davidson Theatre at Milwaukee, Wis., nine firemen were killed and six seriously injured.

The fireworks factory at Petersburg, Va., was burned. Two explosions of the material caused the death of eleven persons and injured many more. Among the dead is the proprietor.

David Dudley Field, famous as a lawyer and a writer on legal topics, died in New York, aged 89.

Nearly 100,000,000 bushels of wheat in the United States and Canada is reported by Bradstreet's.

Many corporations in Illinois have failed to comply with the requirements of the anti-trust law and will be prosecuted.

Judge Dundy has ordered the Union Pacific receivers to restore the wages of employes which were cut last September.

Striking coke workers drove employes from their work at Uniontown, Pa. Governor Pattison has been asked for troops.

Democrats in Congress, tired of Republican filibustering, proposed to enforce business by counting a quorum when one is present.

At Birmingham, Ala., White Caps have been persecuting defenseless colored people.

Grading has commenced for the Chicago, Paducah and Memphis Line in Illinois, and for the Muncie extension of the Chicago and Southeastern road in Indiana.

At Chadron, Neb., a bandit stole $2,500 from a bank and locked the president of the institution in the vault.

On May 1, transcontinental freight rates between Atlantic and Pacific coast points will be advanced to the figures in effect two years ago.

At Buffalo, N. Y., the plant of the American Glucose Company was destroyed. The loss is $1,000,000; insurance $585,000. Twelve of the workmen were cremated.

Delegates representing the American Protective Association of Indiana were last week in secret convention at Indianapolis.

Newell B. Parsons, of Saginaw, Mich., has been arrested on a charge of stealing $463,000 worth of railroad bonds.

California commonwealers, 1,200 strong, seized a train of twenty Union Pacific coal cars at Uinta and are coming East.

Condition of winter wheat is placed by the government report at 86 7, which would indicate a yield of 268,000,000 bushels.

A logging train ran into a fallen tree near Whitehall, Mich., and of the nine men on board only two escaped death

Proclamation of the terms of the act to give effect to the Bering Sea arbitration award has been made by the President.

Edward H Strobel, third assistant secretary of state, was appointed minister to Ecuador.

A tornado which swept through Coffey County, Kansas, destroyed many buildings and did great damage to fruit and grain.

In a speech in opposition to the tariff bill, and particularly the income tax provision, Senator Hill attacked the administration of President Cleveland.

FOREIGN.

A bomb exploded in the window of a restaurant—the Foyot—opposite the Senate Chamber, in Paris. Many persons were injured.

Cholera of a virulent type is raging in Czenstochow, Poland, a place of about 5,000 inhabitants on the Prussian frontier. The town has been quarantined.

Speakers in the British parliament urged speedy legislation on the Bering Sea question and professed confidence in the fairness of Americans.

The steamer Faraday left London with a portion of the new cable to be laid from Waterville, Ireland, to Nova Scotia.

In the British house of commons the Irish land tenor bill passed second reading.

King Humbert, of Italy, and his queen visited Victoria at her villa near Florence. Great enthusiasm was shown by the people.

In an interview with a Paris newspaper correspondent King Humbert declared absurd the statement that Italy desired war.

A mob burned the French missions at Hsianfu, China, and maltreated the priests. France has demanded redress.

The Spanish minister at Washington has been instructed to ask the government to watch the movements of Cuban refugees.

Cholera in a malignant form is prevalent in Constantinople.

A Moslem band which had committed depredations in Malabar were attacked by mounted police and thirty-three were killed.

Sir Charles Russel assured the house of commons there were no serious differences between Great Britain and the United States in regard to the Bering Sea bills.

In Passen, Turkey, three weeks ago, 7,000 persons had no bread. A thousand have been added every week of late. In Khanoos the city is in a terrible condition. Twenty thousand human beings in Erzroom, with its population of sixty thousand, have nothing to eat except as it is given to them in charity. The story everywhere is the same—nakedness, hunger, sickness, death. Thousands pray to die rather than to live. Even loving parents are not sorry when their children die. Anything that is done should be done at once. These people—forty thousand of them—are starving now. Remittances for the relief of this distress if sent to Langdon S. Ward, Esq., 1 Somerset St , Boston, Mass., will at once be reported by cable and will be immediately available at Erzroom.

Civil war has again broken out in Samoa and many natives have been butchered.

Men connected with the United States Bank in Paris have been arrested, charged with fraud.

Nobody need have Consumption. It is not inherited. The inherited tendencies toward it are overcome by the Cream of Cod-liver Oil, which makes children robust and healthy, and stimulates the development of the lungs in old and young alike. Physicians, the world over, endorse it.

Scott's Emulsion

Don't be deceived by Substitutes!

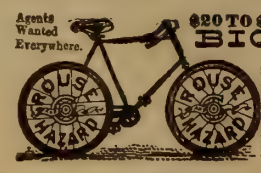
Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All Druggists.

Subscription Letters.

The following have made remittances of money to the Cynosure from April 9 to 14:

H C Strup, L E Reynolds, G Winston, A C Lane, Mrs J A Milligan, C Merrick, E Mapes, T Prall, S F Robinson, R Dow, G Bach, T H Nichols, G W Pritts, W R Turner, L Day, A J Sutor, E J Hayes, Mrs M Neubauer, J B Barnes, O C Lindley, F W Smith, E B Webster, L Wilson, I Garn, Miss E I Spencer, Mrs J A C De Long, Mrs D E Will, Mrs A Rosekrans, Miss L Kessel.

It would be worth while for the ladies to bear in mind that if they take a gentle course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla in the spring, they will have no trouble with "prickly heat," "hives," "sties," "boils" or "black heads," when summer comes. Prevention is better than cure.



Agents Wanted Everywhere.

$20 TO $60 SAVED ON NEW BICYCLES

$125 high grade Safety $50; $100 pneu. $60; $40 cush. ball $20 etc. Largest and oldest dealers in U. S. Easy payments We sell everywhere. Catafree. Rouse, Hazard & Co., Mfrs., 4 G St., Peoria, Ill.

HOUSEHOLD TREASURE.

Growing Popularity of the Oxford Sewing Machines.

There is nothing more truly a household treasure than a good sewing machine. To be without it is to be wilfully deprived of the immense advantage of one of the greatest of all inventions. A machine once bought is a perpetual treasure. It demands no wages, occasions no expense or trouble and is always ready without a moment's notice to render the work of the laborious housewife tenfold more efficient and expeditious. Some machines combine the best ideas and suggestions which have been so abundantly introduced in this remarkable mechanism.

A machine which exhibits in liberal combination all the best features introduced is the Oxford Manufacturing Company, with lock-stitch, shuttle running light and quiet. These machines have the following important features: Cheapness, perfect, self-adjusting and graduated tension, are under control of the operator and are always positive in their working. They are entirely self-threading in all points, including the shuttle. The needle is self-setting, the attachments are quickly and easily placed and fastened. The shuttle has an easy, oscillating motion, causing it to keep its proper place against the race. Their Oxford, Home and Columbian machines, with attachments, were awarded the medal premium at the World's Columbian Exposition, Chicago.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2	59⅜	@	60
Winter No. 2	59¾	@	60⅝
Corn—No. 2	36½	@	38⅜
Oats—No. 2	31⅞	@	35
Rye—No. 2	49	@	50
Bran per ton	11 50	@	12 50
Hay—Timothy	8 00	@	10 50
Butter, medium to best	10	@	23
Cheese	08	@	12
Beans	1 10	@	1 55
Eggs, fresh	10½	@	11
Seeds—Timothy (100 lbs)	4 10	@	4 20
Flax	1 30	@	1 31½
Clover (100 lbs.)	9 00	@	9 00
Broom corn (per ton)	30 00	@	70 00
Potatoes, (old, bu.)	60	@	75
Hides—Green to dry flint	02½	@	06¼
Lumber—Common			15 50
Wool (unwashed)	12	@	26
Cattle—Choice to extra	4 05	@	4 55
Common to good	3 50	@	4 05
Hogs	5 00	@	5 40
Sheep	2 50	@	4 90

NEW YORK.

Wheat No. 2	60¼	@	60¼
Corn No 2	43⅝	@	44⅝
Oats	37½	@	37½
Rye	51	@	56
Eggs, Western fresh	12
Butter	12	@	25
Wool	15	@	26

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle	1 50	@	4 45
Hogs	4 70		5 15
Sheep	stronger

Where Grapes are Choicest

—sweeter and juicier than anywhere else—they're taken from the vine, pressed and their succulence concentrated—the origin of SANITAS GRAPE FOOD—

The California GRAPE CURE

—unfermented—absolutely pure.

It's a delicious medicine—nourishes the digestion, strengthens the nerves, clears the vocal organs. A refreshing beverage — non-alcoholic —suitable for table and sick-room use—keeps fresh for years.

A pint bottle (65c.) makes one-half gallon of the food.

Your grocer or druggist sells it. Booklet free.

THE CALIFORNIA GRAPE FOOD CO.,

Los Gatos, Cal.

UNFERMENTED SANITAS TRADE MARK

General Eastern Agency, 145 Broadway, N. Y.
General Pacific Agency, 408 Sutter St., San Francisco.
Chicago Selling Agent, Edwin E. Hills, 70 State St.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVI., No. 33. CHICAGO, THURSDAY, APRIL 26, 1894. WHOLE No. 1,252.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill. as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
The "Patriotic" Secret Societies..... 8
The A. P. A. in Wisconsin..... 8
A Masonic "Kicker"..... 8
An Irish-American Revolution..... 8
CONTRIBUTIONS:
Bible Distribution in Mexico (Concluded).. 1
The Solitariness of Christ's Sufferings.... 2
Frosty Masonry..... 3
The A. P. A..... 3
The American Flag (Poetry).....10
A Girl's Influence.....10
SELECTED:
The Illinois Children's Home Society..... 3
What it Proposes to Do.. 3
Hunters' Lodges..... 4
REFORM NEWS:
The Eastern Agent in New York; From the Pacific Coast Agent... 5
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 4
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4
CORRESPONDENCE:
From Rev. Wm. Fenton; Rev. Francis J. Davidson's Work in the South.....5,6
OBITUARY..... 7
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
N. C. A..... 7
THE HOME.....10
TEMPERANCE.....11
BIBLE LESSON.....12
RELIGIOUS NEWS.....12
LITERATURE.....12
Catalogue of Publications 13
HOME AND HEALTH.....14
FARM NOTES.....15
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....16
MARKETS.....16

The recent civil and military disturbance at Denver, Colo., caused by the vigorous attempt of Gov. Waite to seat State officers selected by himself, in the face of strong factional opposition, has resulted in a complete triumph for law and order. The Supreme Court has rendered a decision fully supporting his position.

The destruction of ancient Thebes and seven other villages in Greece, with a loss of about 200 human lives, is among the events of the past week. At Athens there was great damage, but all the ancient classical monuments escaped, except that some injury was done to the Arch of Hadrian. At other points the earth opened in immense chasms, and houses were shaken into wrecks. Churches and monasteries were swept out of existence by the several shocks. The devastation was great, but the government has undertaken to alleviate the sufferings of the people.

Woman suffrage was never so popular at any time, or in any country, as it is to-day in the United States. The slow growth of the movement has given way to earnest pressure; frequent triumphs are noted, and woman's power is likely to become, at an early day, an important factor in the settlement of all controverted social and political questions. Catholics and Protestants alike favor it, and its advocacy in dominant circles of society will ere long become the rule rather than, as in the past, the exception in its discussion. The adoption of woman suffrage is but little debated, since manifest destiny has stamped it as a blessing to be desired.

The Chicago Herald complains that the speakers at the Sunset Club meeting, while discussing politics and secret societies, did too much "denouncing." It is impossible for a Christian patriot, in view of the authentic exposures of the evils of secret societies, to refrain from speaking of them as they are. These institutions ought to be rebuked, and were none too severely handled on that occasion. As for arguing the respective merits of such societies, their members will not argue, preferring to entrench themselves behind the "secrecy and silence" to which they are bound by their lodge obligations. The best witnesses against secret societies are those who have learned their real character in the lodges, and then renounced them. Not one of these men has ever been known to praise the organization from which he withdrew.

At Columbia, S. C., on the 19th inst., the Supreme Court of South Carolina declared the present temperance law—the "dispensary system"—unconstitutional. Two of the three justices supported this position; the third dissented. Perhaps it was not the best plan for the promotion of temperance in that State, but it was a step in advance of licensed saloons on every street corner; and in enforcing it with promptitude and vigor, Gov. Tillman is certainly entitled to commendation. In his dealings with the insubordinate officers and soldiers of the State militia who refused to obey his orders, he has been mild and conciliatory, although their action was treasonable and dangerous. Of course a new law will be next in order. In pursuance with the decision the governor closed all the dispensaries, and the traffic seems to be unrestricted.

On the 15th of April there was a commotion of no little significance at Hampshire, Ill., in the quarterly services of the German Lutherans. Rev. Otto Gruner, of North Plato, presided. When the time came to administer the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, the pastor flatly refused to allow five members of the church to partake of the sacred elements, because they were members of the secret order of Modern Woodmen. In explanation, Mr. Gruner said that he was acting in accordance with a decree from the conference, which must be strictly obeyed. As for himself, he said he was convinced that the Modern Woodmen of America, and other secret societies, were antagonistic to the church and its teachings. The five men, after one of them had denounced the pastor as "a willful prevaricator," withdrew, and the services proceeded.

Much of interest is comprised in the recent report of the House judiciary committee in Congress, asking for a further amendment to the present immigration laws. The amendment would confer upon our consuls in foreign ports the power of inspectors to keep out of this country all immigrants who are incapable of self-support. The report shows that while 14 77 per cent of our population is foreign born, twenty-six per cent of all white persons confined in jails and prisons for crime are persons of foreign birth. The total number of convicts in our penitentiaries whose birthplaces are known, is given in the census at 28,440, of whom 13,715 are native and 14,725 are foreign born. Of the 53,696 inmates of our poorhouses over 51 per cent were foreign born at the taking of the last census. These statistics indicate the necessity of this or a more restrictive amendment to our immigration statutes.

The record of strikes, last week, showed twenty-three new ones, involving 21,000 persons, besides the later one of 130,000 coal miners in Illinois and other States. The prospect is for the further extension of existing strikes. The number of workmen out, at the close of the week, is estimated at 190,000. Eleven important industrial establishments closed involuntarily during the week, while thirty-two others, employing 5,000 operatives, resumed work. Seven manufactories reduced the wages of their employes. Cities along the line of the Great Northern railroad, which road is now at a standstill because of the strike of employes, are finding their reduced volumes of business still further curtailed, and in this city the labor troubles seriously interfere with the progress of building enterprises. These events and the gathering of poorly-fed, ill-clad and reckless "commonweal armies" in various States, and the troubles which they cause, indicate a condition of affairs deplorable to contemplate.

It would seem as if the union of evangelical Christian churches is an impossibility, yet it is possible for the Holy Spirit, in his own good time and way, to reconcile all the differences that now exist among the churches and bring them into harmony with the divine government. The Christian Inquirer thinks that "the attempted union between the Disciples and Baptists does not seem to amount to much but talk;" and adds: "There can be no organic union unless the Campbellites (Disciples) abandon the old, mischievous and unscriptural position of Alexander Campbell." Now we have no controversy with the Baptists or the Disciples so far as their respective theological beliefs are concerned, but we "merely rise to remark" that if both the Baptists and the Disciples would adopt Alexander Campbell's ideas of the evils of secret societies and clear themselves from lodge influences, their churches would be cleaner, more spiritual and better prepared to perform the work set before them. "I simply affirm," wrote Mr. Campbell, in 1849, "that no Christian man is under any sort of obligation to join any secret society; nay, that he cannot, as a Christian, become a member of any of them without dishonoring the church of Jesus Christ, or himself and the Founder of it; and that his connection with them, as such, in any act of Christian worship is a departure from both the doctrine and practice of the first Christians."

BIBLE DISTRIBUTION IN MEXICO.

BY B. B. BLACHLY.

(Concluded.)

In March, 1892, I left Guaymas with fourteen boxes of books (weighing 150 pounds), for Mazatlan, a large city of 15,000 inhabitants on the coast of Sinaloa, where in one day I sold 150 Bibles. A woman about 100 years old bought a Bible, and pressed it to her breast with great joy. Another woman went without water that she might get a Bible; another pawned her flat-iron, with which she needed to earn her living. Here the M. E. Church, South, has a mission.

From here I went twelve leagues to a mining town called San Rosario, where there were three houses of inquisition, one of which I entered. It was here that one Sunday, after mass, the priest sent a crier through the streets to warn the people against buying books of me, under penalty of excommunication. But in spite of that the people were just as anxious for the Bible; for on filling my grip with books I went along after him and sold thirty-one Bibles and Testaments, and a Bible to a poor old soldier for seventy-five cents. It was here that a merchant was going to pound me. And here, too, I appealed to the chief of police for a special guard to be placed over my house one night.

On the way back to Mazatlan, by stage, I stopped at a small town. Arriving about two o'clock in the morning, I slept on the stones until daylight. Then, after breakfasting, I sold that day over one hundred books, which were all I had; so went on, by stage, to Mazatlan, and from there, by steamer, to Altata, a small port from which a railroad runs up to Culiacan, where I was burned in effigy.

Here I met Andrace Burtram, the same man who was in El Fuerte. He, his wife, son and two daughters, were now members of the M. E. Church, South; also Hill Gueteras (the ex-soldier and shoe-maker), his wife and daughters were members, at which we all greatly rejoiced. Burtram bought a Bible Dictionary, and was known all over town as Protestant, for he was such a student of the Bible. His son, on being examined to find out how much of the Bible he had made his own during the year, wrote 19 pages of foolscap paper without mistake. In fact, the paper showed a wonderful memory and application for the year. The minister, a young Mexican by the name of Marcus de La Garcer, married the shoe-maker's daughter, a smart young woman, who was teacher of geometry in the public school; but after she became engaged to a Protestant, they would not let her teach. (This was in August, 1892.)

From Culiacan I went, by railroad, and then steamer, to Guaymas, after an absence of about four months; and being out of books (having disposed of nearly ten hundred) I went to Hermosillo for more; then off again to San Rosalia for the second time, where six more boxes of books, mostly Bibles and Testaments, were disposed of.

Then I went, by small sail-boat, of forty tons burden, to Los Anhales, farther north, in Lower California. While on this voyage we were in a hard wind for nearly three days, and I was very sick. The sail was badly torn, and the sea was so rough that it looked as though we might go down; but we finally reached Los Anhales safely. There I found three boxes of Bibles waiting, which had been sent direct from Guaymas. Here every one that could read took a Bible or Testament, and many took "Nights with the Romans." The people were anxious for the Word, and the sales were good. Here I was met by the same two men whom I had met in Culiacan in 1891, who told me, that when I left Culiacan several men started out to overtake and hang me. But they took the road to Alamos, and I took the road to Fuerte; so God can protect us anywhere.

From Los Anhales I went on a small sail-boat, of 120 tons burden, to Guaymas, and then to Hermosillo for more Bibles; then back to Guaymas, and by steamer to Cape Lucas, Lower California, where the sales were middling good.

In San Jose de Cabo I met an old man who, forty years ago, gave three cows for a Bible, and said that a man's life was not safe to own and read one in those days. He bought a large Bible and several small ones, as he wanted each of his children to have one. One woman traded her books for a Bible; some traded their rosaries.

On the 24th and 25th of October I sent two hundred and fifty Bibles by mail to the towns of Ures District, Arispo and Montezuma, but was delayed by failure of mail-carriers to take the books. In Montezuma twenty-four Bibles were taken out of the office and given away by the postmaster. Here an old Indian woman gave an old brass cross and saint for a Bible, with which she was much delighted. In Cumpus the books were sold out before the people were all supplied.

At one time I traveled through an Indian country, when my guide rode with his rifle in his hand all the time. At another time I rode in the night through a very rough country, with a guide from Montezuma; also took a trip of twelve leagues of very rough road, and sold only two Bibles and gave away ten. Most of the doors of the houses had white crosses and red hearts on them.

From Montezuma I rode one night, with a guide, eighteen leagues over a mountain trail; and in two days more reached Hermosillo, on the 15th of December; and started out again for the Altar district, where one hundred and seventy five books were disposed of; then hastened back to Hermosillo for the Christmas of 1892.

On the 9th of February, 1893, I left San Jose for Guaymas, where, for the third time, I had a wonderful sale, disposing of three boxes of books; then returned to Hermosillo. From Hermosillo I went with two boxes of Bibles and Testaments to Nogales, where about sixty books were sold, the first one being to a very poor woman, who said: "If I give this twenty-five cents for a Bible I can't have anything to eat to-day." But she took the Bible with great joy. Others gave their saints or rosaries. Leaving Nogales, by stage, I went to Tucson, Arizona, where, having sold ninety-one Bibles and ninety-nine Testaments, I returned to Nogales and took the train to Fairbank, Arizona, and then to Tombstone, where the sales were good; nearly all were eager for the Word of God.

Passing on to Bisbee, where there is a rich copper-mine, called the Copper Queen, sales were pretty good, and those who had no money gave up their saints and rosaries for Bibles. The minister at Bisbee said. "You have done more in three days than any other colporteur and I have done in five years." The need of Bible-work along the border States is great.

From Bisbee I went to El Paso, Texas, where success was good; but in Ciudad Juarez I was arrested and put in jail on the first day of work there. On May 10, 1893, I was obliged to wait for Bibles. About July 15, I went down to Eagle Pass, where were sold about ninety Bibles and Testaments. The people were anxious to procure the Word of God, even at a sacrifice of their saints and prayer-beads. Work has been done here for several years; still many of the poor have not the Bible.

Crossing from Eagle Pass, Texas, to the Mexican side of the line, I succeeded in putting in circulation about 119 Bibles and Testaments. Here some of the women took off their earrings and gave them for Bibles.

Oh, the thirst there is for the Scriptures when presented to the people, without note or comment!

From here I went to San Antonio, Texas, where I handed in my report for June, 1893. At San Antonio there are about 10,000 Mexicans, and, as far as I can learn, there has been no systematic Bible-work done here. I went out one day with a member of one of the churches, and in about three hours sold thirteen Testaments, but had to stop for lack of books.

All along the border, from ocean to ocean, there is great need of thorough Bible-work among the Mexican people, for they are ignorant of the true way of life and salvation. During the year of 1893, I had the pleasure of putting into the hands of the Mexican people, 1,409 Bibles, 612 Testaments and 246 portions, making a total of 2,267, for which was received, $874.55, Mexican currency.

THE SOLITARINESS OF CHRIST'S SUFFERINGS.

BY REV. J. M. FOSTER.

"I have trodden the wine-press alone." Isa. 63: 3.

The hatred of Esau for Jacob was perpetuated in the enmity of Edom for Israel. David gained his greatest victories in Edom. "Moab's my washing-pot; my shoe I'll over Edom throw. Oh, who is he will bring me to the city fortified? Oh, who is he to the land of Edom will me guide?" In the reign of Jeboshaphat the Edomites conspired with the Moabites and Amorites to destroy Judah, but their swords devoured one another. And during the capitivity in Babylon the Jews prayed: "Remember Edom's children, Lord, who, are in Jerusalem's day, even unto its foundation, raze, raze it quite, did say." They connect Edom's fall with Babylon's overthrow. "Oh, daughter thou of Babylon, near to destruction, blessed shall he be that thee rewards as thou to us hast done." The prophet Isaiah saw the conqueror Cyrus sacking Babylon and slaying her king. He saw him march into Edom, storm and carry their citadel—Petra—the city of the rocks, with a very great slaughter, and return, having his garments stained with blood and his captives chained to his chariot. He recognizes Edom as a type of Satan and his empire of darkness. Cyrus is a type of Christ. And he asks, "Who is this that cometh from Edom, with dyed garments from Bozrah, this that is glorious in his apparel, traveling in the greatness of his strength?" And the response comes: "I that speak in righteousness, mighty to save." Again, the prophet asks: "Wherefore art thou red in thine apparel, and thy garments like him that treadeth in the winefat?" And the conqueror replies: "I have trodden the winepress alone; and of the people there was none with me. And I looked, and there was none to help; and I wondered that there was none to uphold; therefore mine own arm brought salvation unto me."

Christ's sufferings were solitary:

I. In that they were the sufferings of a divine Person. In the constitution of Christ's person, a perfect human nature was united with the divine nature. He possessed all divine perfections from ternity. In the fullness of time he took a true body and a reasonable soul, a perfect manhood, into union with his divine Person. Man is fearfully and wonderfully made. Body and soul are united. The body is the temple of the soul and the instrument through which the soul acts. But the personality of the man resides in the soul. "Great is the mystery of godliness; God was manifest in the flesh." In Christ the human and the divine are united in two distinct natures, but one Person. His personality resides in the divine nature. He is a divine Person from eternity to eternity. He never was a human person. He only assumed a perfect human nature. The acts of his human nature have no more moral character, considered apart from his divine Person, than the involuntary action of the nerves or muscles of a man's body. His human nature was infinitely blessed because of its union with the divine. The acts of his human nature had infinite merit, because they were the acts of a divine Person. "In him dwelt all the fullness of the godhead bodily." All the perfections of God were seen in him in a bodily form. These were "the unsearchable riches of Christ," which Paul was to preach to the Gentiles. If he were only God he would be too august and majestic. If only a man, he would be nothing. But the God-man is mighty to save. "Who being the brightness of his glory, and the express image of his person, and upholding all things by the word of his power, when he had by himself purged our sins, sat down on the right hand of the Majesty on high." "Who is the image of the invisible God, the first-born of every creature." Creation, providence and redemption are Christ-centric. "That in all things he might have the pre-eminence." It is proper to say a divine Person was born of the Virgin Mary. "Therefore that holy thing that shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God." The title "Son of God" proclaims his possession of infinite and eternal dignity. He has all the perfections of God and is literally in and of that one indivisible essence which we adore as God. A divine Person was baptized at the Jordan. The voice from heaven proclaimed: "This is my beloved Son." A divine Person stood upon the Mount of Transfiguration. The Father declared from the excellent glory: "This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased." A divine Person arose from the dead. "He was declared to be the Son of God, with power, by his resurrection from the dead." And a divine Person suffered and died upon the cross. The church of God which he hath purchased with his own blood. The blood of God was shed on Calvary. "The blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin." "Redeemed not with corruptible things as silver and gold, but with the precious blood of Christ." The blood of Jesus was precious because it was the life of the infinite and eternal Son of God. In this appears the loneliness of Christ's sufferings. A father may enter into the joys and sorrows of his child and they may have fellowship together in them. But beyond a certain limit a child cannot go. There the father must leave the child and enter a world of thought and feeling and activity and experience to which the child is a stranger. So Christ had fellowship with his disciples, and they participated in his human joys and sorrows. But in the joys of the holy mount and in the deep and unknown sufferings of Gethsemane only the three chosen disciples could be wondering and overcome witnesses. And when the band of soldiers met him at the gate of the garden and bound him as the victim and led him away for sacrifice, all his disciples forsook him and fled, and he was left to tread the winepress alone. These were the mysterious and unknown sufferings of the Son of God, which attracted the attention of the angels. "Which things the angels desired to look into." These were the sufferings that will be the theme of God's people's praises through all eternity. "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain, to receive glory and honor; for thou hast redeemed us with thine own blood." He who died upon the cross is worshiped by men and angels on earth and in heaven.

II. In that they were substitutionary sufferings. There are two distinct elements in guilt. Blameworthiness, or demerit, and liability to punishment. The first cannot be transferred. It must forever be true that the man who committed the sin is the culpable person. Christ could not be the substitute of sinners in the sense that he would become personally guilty. "He is holy, harmless, undefiled, and separate from sinners." But in the second sense Christ took our place, and our sins were placed to his account and punished in his person. Hence his sufferings were penal. The Jews regarded his sufferings, during the closing period of his life, as the evidence of his great guilt. "We esteemed him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted." Although they could discover no trace of sin in his life, they concluded that he must be guilty of enormous crimes, and they wished to have nothing to do with him. "And we hid, as it were, our faces from him." He was arrested and tried as a criminal. A judicial tribunal found him guilty of a capital offence. The Jewish Sanhedrim condemned him to death for blasphemy, because he claimed to be the Son of God. Pontius Pilate, although convinced that he was innocent, and troubled at the presence of this mysterious Person, for fear of the Jew, gave sentence against him. "Take ye him and crucify him." But these outward forms of judicial procedure were but the instrumentality through which the divine tribunal discovered its decrees to the children of men. "Him being delivered by the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God, ye have taken and with wicked hands have crucified and slain." "God spared not his own Son, but gave him up to the death." "He became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross." It was a great execution. The Son of God was slain, The sword of justice was unsheathed and bathed in his blood. "Awake, O sword, against my shepherd, against the man that is my fellow. Smite the shepherd." "Christ, through the eternal Spirit (i. e., by virtue of his divine nature), offered himself a sacrifice without spot unto God." "I lay down my ife for the sheep."

(Concluded next week.)

FROSTY MASONRY.

Was it the influence of long-continued membership in the lodge that showed itself when a minister, listening to a sermon preached in Springfield, Mass., interrupted it by crying out, "It's a lie"? The Springfield Union and the Boston Herald have given the matter wide circulation, the latter emphasizing its report with headlines. Rev. S. T. Frost, of Palmer, fifteen miles east of Springfield, appeared in print once before in a similar connection, when he was pastor at Ashland, on the same line of road, but nearer Boston.

It was at the time when Holman, replying to Bro. Stoddard, told the Boston Baptist ministers' meeting that he never saw anything in a Masonic lodge that he would not have been willing to have in his own parlor, in the presence of his wife and daughters. This was the time when Cleveland withdrew from the Boston ministers' conference, and was rewarded by the present of a big watermelon, sent all the way from the distant South to cool him down.

Bro. Stoddard may not have recollected that the man who publicly accused him of lying at Springfield was the one who, at the time of the widely published Boston affair, went on record as a Mason who doubted whether, if he were to live his life over again, he would join anything rather than the church of God.

Mr. Stoddard's own report in the Cynosure is as follows:

"When I entered, Rev. Mr. Frost, of Palmer, Mass., was speaking. He is an adhering Freemason of 42 degrees. In private conversation, he averred that I knew nothing whatever about Masonry, since I had never been a member. I proposed to him that we try the case in his town, and let the people decide after hearing us both. His reply was, as he withdrew: 'If I wanted to split a church into fragments I would get on to some hobby and ride it.'"

This remark was peculiarly interesting to me, because I had lately heard and read so much relating to Palmer of which it reminded me. I will copy one recent editorial from the Palmer Journal, the editor of which is Bro. Fisk, of the Palmer Baptist church:

REV. MR. FROST AGAIN.

The not-altogether-harmonious state of affairs at the Baptist church was somewhat stirred up again last Sunday evening. In the course of his remarks, the pastor stated that during the war of the Rebellion there were in the South many Christians who were praying honestly for victory for their side, but that they finally came to see the error of their way, and at a meeting of Baptist clergymen held in Washington, they acknowledged their wrong and begged to be forgiven. Later in the evening some one asked that the hymn "Blest be the Tie that Binds" be sung; and the pastor gave a history of the origin of the hymn, which was, that a Baptist clergyman in England, who had been called to another place and had his goods packed ready to move, was importuned so strongly by his people to remain that he finally concluded he would; and, going into his house, wrote this hymn. The speaker remarked that this was somewhat different from the course pursued now-a-days, when the congregation kicked the pastors out and were glad to have them go, and he hoped that no one would sing the hymn who could not do so from the heart. After the singing of one verse, he announced that many who had sung the hymn were hypocrites, and was replied to by one lady, who questioned his right to judge them. He retorted that he had the right, and immediately pronounced the benediction. As he walked down the aisle, he met one young lady and told her she was the one he referred to; that she had made lots of trouble, and he was glad she had left town, and hoped she would never return, with other remarks of an uncomplimentary nature.

This happened before the Springfield episode, but after it had become obvious that Mr. Frost's removal was desired by a large part of the church.

A party adhering to Mr. Frost has hired the Advent chapel, and, at a late date, it was at least surmised, if not expected, that he would remain in Palmer and preach there after being obliged to end his pastorate of a church which he found in better condition than usual and leaves divided.

So it is obvious that any use he might have had for a "hobby" to "break a church to pieces" had been already superseded. NATHAN.

THE A. P. A.

BY A LUTHERAN.

For over a year I have studied this organization by a constant perusal of one of its recognized organs, and by observing all that the newspapers have to say about its doings. The result of this study is the following conclusions:

1. The A. P. A. is only the political side of Masonry, being manned by the same persons. This identity may not be intentional, but it is a fact, nevertheless. Prominent Masons are nearly always the prominent A. P. A.'s.

[Our contributor may not know it, but it is true, that the "grip" of the Masonic Entered Apprentice, made by the clasping of right hands, is identically the same as that of the A. P. A.; only the latter employ left hands.—EDITOR CYNOSURE]

2. The fight against the Roman Catholic church is only a blind, intended as a fool-catcher. Protestants, aware of the Masonic hostility to revealed religion, can be allured into the A. P. A.'s by their dread of the Jesuits.

3. Their pompous patriotism is another blind—a means to an end. That is paramount to the great patriotism of saloon-keepers in displays of flags, hurrah sfor Uncle Sam, etc. It is only a varnish, and not a thick one at that.

4. The real aim of the A. P. A.'s is to banish Christian influence from politics, and to make the educational system of the land an instrument of warfare against Christianity.

5. A secondary aim is to raise a spirit of animosity between the natives and the later immigrants and their children. The fact that in the States north of the Washington parallel, the immigrants and their children nearly equal in numbers the older immigrants (or natives)—that fact is one secret impetus to the A. P. A.; i. e., a revival of the old "Knownothing" party.

It would be well if all anti-secrecy workers could find time to examine into the workings of this A. P. A. society. If it is such a liberty-loving institution as it claims to be, it ought to be supported. But its secrecy makes it look suspicious, and that aroused my curiosity. Let others investigate and give the readers of the Cynosure their results. My impression is that Christian morals and liberty of conscience have even a more dangerous foe in the A. P. A. than in Masonry itself.

Somewhere, April 14, 1894.

THE ILLINOIS CHILDREN'S HOME SOCIETY.

Rev. M. V. B. Van Arsdale, Presbyterian, is the general superintendent. The society is ten years old and has placed 3,832 children in Christian homes. The object and nature of the work is set forth below:

To seek homeless, neglected and destitute children, and to become their friend and protector.

To find homes for them in well-to-do families, and to place them there, wisely, with the least possible delay.

To minister in comforting assurances to parents living in fear of leaving their children penniless and homeless.

To make it possible for many persons without children of their own to adopt, without fear of future interference, a child that may be a blessing to the household.

To protect society by guaranteeing proper home training and education to the unfortunate little ones against its two greatest enemies, ignorance and vice, and thus to improve American citizenship.

THE METHOD.

1. By publishing a monthly magazine, The Children's Home Finder, also a Working Manual, and many circulars, calling the attention of the people of every community to these two factors, viz.: homeless children and childless homes.

2. By national and state directories and superintendents; also district superintendents and local advisory boards (now embracing 15,000 non-salaried officers).

3. By temporary homes holding the children a short time between acceptance and placement.

4. By careful transportation.

5. By supervision until of legal age.

It will be seen that this society is working along the same lines with our United Presbyterian Orphans' Home at Pittsburgh. We believe it to be a Christ-like work, which may save thousands of children from the clutches of the Church of Rome, as well as provide for them good homes and fit them for being good and useful citizens, instead of barnacles upon society. From our limited knowledge of this work, we are disposed to commend it as an undenominational, but Christian, effort in the right direction. It ought to be better known to the churches.—Christian Instructor.

WHAT IT PROPOSES TO DO.

The non-secret, independent National League for the Protection of American Institutions, which now claims 500,000 members, and has its headquarters at No. 1 Madison avenue, New York City (Rev. James M. King, Secretary), in its address to the people, says:

"New York State, more than others, has suffered from politico-religious alliances based upon enormous sectarian appropriations to institutions and undertakings under sectarian control. These have introduced religious questions into politics, have debased both religious and civil life, have encouraged a scramble for spoils, and have discouraged political reform....The proposed amendment (to the constitution of the State of New York) deals impartially with all religious sects and creeds, protects the common school fund, and secures that money drawn from the people by taxation shall honestly be used only for those civil purposes for which it was collected.

"We believe that the proposed amendment, when incorporated in the organic law of the State, will produce the following results:

"1. Preserve the integrity of the funds and the fair and impartial character of the American free public-school system.

"2. Eliminate religious controversy from political questions and issues.

"3. Secure and perpetuate essential separation of church and state.

"4. Destroy the intimidating power of ecclesiasticism over both citizens and lawmakers.

"Neglect to pass this amendment to our organic law at the present time would result in:

"1. Increased and continually increasing arrogance on the part of those who seek ecclesiastical or sectarian advantages by political organization, and by the use of public money.

"2. The continued disturbance of civil peace, of political issues, and of legislative and executive action by insatiate claimants of public money for private ends.

"3. The continued effort to decide questions of religious faith by political majorities.

"4. Continually increasing burdens laid upon the state for the support of private ecclesiastical or sectarian institutions.

"5. The gradual dismemberment and destruction of our free common-school system.

"6. The indirect but dangerous union of church and state in matters pertaining to taxation."

HUNTERS' LODGES.

A rebellion broke out in Lower Canada, in 1837, among the ignorant French Catholics, instigated by ambitious leaders, who desired to overthrow the existing government and wrest Canada from British control. It was a wild scheme, without a possible chance of success, but the unfortunate rebels were stimulated by offers of men, money and arms from restless citizens of the United States—men who, having nothing to lose but life and everything to gain in a war of invasion, flocked to the frontier to embark in this Quixotic enterprise. They comprised a class upon whom advice and warning could have but little effect; and, to add strength and mystery to their schemes, they established a number of secret, oath-bound societies, known as "Hunters' Lodges." All who joined their forces were compelled to pass through these lodges as a token of their fealty to the cause. The secret work has possibly never been fully exposed, but enough is known of it to condemn it as matching the brutality of any other similar institution for such an unlawful purpose.

The expedition from the United States eventually landed in Canada, near Prescott, where, in 1838, it encountered a superior force of British troops. A fight ensued, known as the "battle of the Windmill," in which the invaders were routed. The leaders were captured and hanged, and numerous others of the party were banished to Van Dieman's land as convicts. That ended the rebellion in Canada.

Louis Joseph Papineau, one of the French leaders in the Colonial Parliament, was suspected of complicity in the affair, and accused of high treason, but escaped to the United States, and fled to Paris. Under the general amnesty granted to the rebels in 1840, he returned to Canada and was again elected to Parliament.

"Hunters' Lodges," and the local secret societies of Frenchmen in Canada, were a prime element in promoting this rebellion. But it was no worse than the Fenian and United Hibernian secret organizations in the United States, which had for their object the invasion and conquest of British territory in Ireland.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

A link with the past—Temperance matters—Coxey's army—The New England M. E. Conference—A famous family—A false culture—Is Saul also among the prophets?

The name of Kossuth has been for at least a generation a mere link with the past, and the snapping of such a link makes one suddenly aware of the swift, silent passage of time, and the changes this greatest of all magicians has wrought in ourselves and the world about us. There are many who will remember the furore created by the appearance of the handsome Hungarian patriot as he rode through the cities and towns of New England, cheered to the skies by the multitudes who lined the streets to do him honor, the most of whom have joined the silent majority, while the rest are on the downward slope of life. My own dim and very unsentimental remembrance of the hero is limited to a bright tin-plate, bearing on it a picture of him, in relief, clad in a full suit of mail, and with the heavy, brigandish-looking moustache which he set the fashion of wearing. The old plate long since disappeared, and thereby some future antiquarian has lost a treasure.

The Murphy campaign against the saloon is stirring Boston, and it is to be hoped doing good. Anything which keeps the public mind agitated on this great question is to be welcomed. At the same time I do not think the liquor-sellers are very much troubled by temperance meetings, even on so large a scale and rousing so much enthusiasm as these. They are much more excited over the bill for a new liquor-law, which shall restrict its sale to outside of a 400-foot air-line radius from the schoolhouses. This, if put in force, will oblige a number of saloonists to move their places of business. A meeting to discuss the Norwegian system was held lately at the New Old South, presided over by Edward Atkinson and such bright and shining lights to address them as Bishop Lawrence, Rev. G. A. Gordon, and Drs. Park and Moxom. But an experiment endorsed by great names is not thereby made a success, as proved by its failure to reach the root of the evil in the very country where it originated. No-license in the towns around has not only made Boston a dumping-ground for their drinking classes, but also a refuge for the suburban rum-seller when forced to seek "fresh fields and pastures new." Naturally Boston liquor-dealers resent the intrusion, and are making it hard this year for those outsiders who have transferred their business to the Hub to get a license.

Coxey's army does not gather recruits very fast. The great majority who have joined it from Boston and the towns around are of that very undesirable floating material who abominate all steady employment—society's scum and refuse. But when the scum rises to the top it is always a sign of heat and commotion underneath. The papers have generally treated the movement as a huge joke, but thoughtful people are inclined to treat it more seriously. It shows the unrest beneath the surface. In history, as a rule, the farce precedes the tragedy. Before the French Revolution burst in its grim fury, the elements of burlesque and caricature disported themselves like the straws carried hither and thither in the first breath of an on-coming whirlwind.

At the recent New England Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, held in Waltham, it was voted to raise funds for a hospital in Boston, to be carried on in connection with the Deaconess' Home. This is one of the good works for suffering humanity which church people are constantly doing without saying much about it. But if the lodge should do such a thing, which, with all its reputed benevolence, it has never yet done and never will do, it would be with such a blare of trumpets that all the world would be deafened. A controversy on tobacco one day, and the woman-question the next, gave the spice of variety to the proceedings. Rev. Dillon Bronson, of Newton, refused, on conscientious grounds, which the reporter did not make exactly clear, to answer the inquiry, "Will you pledge yourself wholly to abstain from the use of tobacco?" He explained, however, that he did not use tobacco in any form, or intend to use it. This precipitated a warm discussion; but what action will finally be taken in his case remains to be seen. On the question of admitting women to the general conference, Dr. Warren spoke over two hours. How much breath might be saved for the discussion of practical Christian work, if only these good brethren would come round to the standpoint of that first great Conference in Jerusalem, on the day of Pentecost, when the question whether the sisters should be admitted seems not to have been so much as thought of. If Dr. Buckley, instead of the Apostle Peter, had been moderator of that meeting, perhaps things would have been different.

New England seems to be especially the origin and starting-point of famous families. We are reminded of this by the long life just ended of David Dudley Field. The Fields were, like the Beechers, a Connecticut family, and, like them, the income allowed no margin for luxuries, and only a narrow one for common necessities. What a picture his brother, Rev. Henry M. Field, has drawn of the young man starting off with $10, a Bible, and his father's blessing, to begin those law-studies which were eventually to make him the most famous of living American jurists. "Our father was a Puritan of the Puritans," he writes..... "Our mother! Who but her children can tell what they owe to that bright, cheerful spirit that never gave way to despondency and gloom." These wonderful New England families will never entirely die out while there continues to be an apostolic succession of such mothers.

"The culture that destroys enthusiasm has dry-rot at the bottom, and it is the culture which breeds indifference that I most vehemently condemn," said Prof. Felix Adler at Harvard, recently. It is this kind of culture which makes such barren soil for reforms. The seed glances off as from the hard surface of a concrete highway. Was there not a class of people, in anti-slavery days, too cultured to touch with the tip-end of their fingers such a low subject as the abolition cause, just as there are to-day people too refined to take up the warfare against the saloon, and who, in reference to this and other social evils, seem to proceed on the principle of "letting the snake alone if he will let me alone?" But the snake does not always fulfill his part of the compact.

"Is Saul also among the prophets?" Dr. Lorimer's sermon, last Sunday, naturally raises the query. He "deplored that there should be any secret organizations." At least so the press reports him as saying, which is certainly strange language from Dr. Lorimer. Speaking of the A. P. A., he said, "it might be better for us to have no such society, and a great deal better still if there was no necessity for any such society;" but "American citizens are forced into it by another secret society which has its headquarters at Rome. We may have to oppose one evil against another," etc. This is far from being Gospel ground, as the Apostle Paul understood it, when he denounced as utterly wrong and fallacious the policy of "doing evil that good may come." There is a rumor that Dr. Lorimer is going to accept a call to a Baptist church in Brooklyn, N. Y. This the doctor denies, but says he "will stay in Boston and build Tremont Temple"—which sounds very praiseworthy; but if he daubs it with such untempered mortar as has filled his sermons of late, the worse for the Temple and the worse for Dr. Lorimer. Elizabeth E. Flagg.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, April 18, 1894.

President Cleveland and his entire Cabinet, with the exception of Secretary Lamont, who was out of the city, occupied seats in the front row of chairs in the Senate chamber during the funeral services over the remains of the late Senator Vance, of N. C., which were conducted by Rev. Dr. Moses D. Hoge, of Richmond, Va., who made use of the occasion to show how insignificant were all human affairs and greatness when brought into contact with the Divine will. He referred to the solemn statement of Massillon, a famous French preacher, when about to preach a funeral sermon over a French king, in the midst of the splendor and mocking vanity usually affected by followers of royalty—"God only is great!" "To-day," said Dr. Hoge, "this chamber, by a solemn dispensation of Providence, has been converted into a place of sorrow, and in this audience are those occupying the highest posts of authority and influence in the land; and yet how all temporal distinctions are now forgotten and how great themes of controversy and strife which absorb and agitate us appear insignificant in the presence of the dead, in the presence of the living God—there is nothing great but God." Dr. Hoge concluded with the familiar lines:

> "My God and Father, while I pray
> Far from home on life's rough way,
> Oh, teach me from my heart to say:
> 'Thy will be done.'"

Resolutions asking the House of Representatives to consider the case of Representative Breckenridge, of Kentucky, and to take some definite action looking toward a higher standard of personal purity in its membership, have been received from the Woman's Protective League, the Woman's National Press Association, and the District of Columbia W. C. T. U., and they have occasioned much talk, in and out of Congress. It may be that a resolution in accordance with the resolutions may be offered in the House, but it is not believed that it will ever be seriously considered. If offered, it would be referred to the Committee on Elections, and would probably never again be heard of. One member of the House, the purity of whose private life is so well-known that he could oppose such resolutions without suspicion being aroused as to his reasons, said of them: "I know many of these ladies and know that their intentions are of the best, but they have made a mistake. They should not appeal to Congress. When it is desired to purify the water in a stream, the proper place to begin the work is at its source, not its mouth. It is the voters of the several districts to whom they should appeal; they are the proper persons to pass upon the character of the men they send to Congress. If the voters of a district send a man to Congress, it means that they consider him the proper man to represent them, and, unless the man is legally convicted of treason or other crimes which could disfranchise him, I seriously doubt the Constitutional right of Congress to expel him."

As a part of their season's campaign against intoxicating liquors the W. C. T. U. engaged Dr. Dorman, of New Haven, Conn., to deliver his lecture on the "Effects of Alcohol on Body and Mind." The lecture was delivered in the Union

M. E. church, last night, and was illustrated by paintings and chemical experiments which proved, beyond the shadow of a doubt, that he who drinks alcoholic liquors is seriously injuring both his body and his mind. Dr. Dorman is thoroughly acquainted with the subject, and the lecture is interesting as well as instructive. It ought to be delivered in every school-house in the land. If we could only teach the children to abhor and shun intoxicating liquors the next generation would have no drunkards.

Another interesting meeting held under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. was that at the Garfield Memorial church. The principal speaker was Rev. Dr. William G. Hubbard, of Columbus, Ohio, a prominent member of the National Peace Association, and the subject was the good work that has been done and is being done by that association. Incidentally, the speaker said that he was not prepared to endorse the Coxey Commonweal army, although it claimed to be an army of peace, and that although it announced peaceable intentions, armies were always liable to get into mischief. That is just about the feeling of most people in Washington towards Coxey's army now nearing Washington.

Looking at the matter from a strictly legislative point of view the House of Representatives took the most important step of the session when it adopted a rule authorizing the counting of members present and not voting, in order to make a quorum. It is noteworthy that out of a total vote of 259 only 47 were cast against the rule. It was expected that the Senate would act upon the new Chinese treaty this week, but it is now understood that it has been postponed until May 3. *

—Several days and nights were occupied in the Masonic Temple of Chicago, last week, by the higher degree Masons—the consistory rank and file, the Mystic Shrine pilgrims, etc.—in secret work, conferring degrees and otherwise Masonically amusing themselves. Should any reader of the Cynosure desire to learn what it is all about, he can obtain complete rituals of their work and other information at this office.

Renew your own subscription and get your neighbor to subscribe.

Reform News.

THE EASTERN AGENT IN NEW YORK.

228 West 36th St., New York City,
April 20, 1894.

I have met with nothing but success during the past week. Surrounded by the multitudes, realizing I am but one among millions, the feebleness of my effort is apparent.

When I consider that God has infinite power, and that as a Christian I work together with him, I may feel strong for the conflict. The little leaven is going to leaven the whole lump. The Stone cut from the mountain without hands is to fill the earth. Every plant that our heavenly Father hath not planted shall be rooted up. I may but drop a pebble in the ocean of public sentiment, as I visit this great metropolis from year to year. My labor in the Lord will not be in vain, but will redound to the glory of him whose I am. The seed which I have been enabled to sow here has grown, and already the fruits appear. I take subscriptions to the Cynosure as fast as I can call on the friends. Several of those who have been reading of the work have cheerfully, and often unsolicited, contributed toward its maintenance. As God warms their hearts by his love, they feel their privilege in thus working together with him. All receipts will of course be duly acknowledged in the Cynosure, so I will not make individual mention here. May God bless those who have so kindly aided us.

The subject considered at the Wednesday prayer-meeting in the 39th Street R. P. church was Self-control. The chapter read was Colossians 3, at the conclusion. The only true self-control is divine control. We are either controlled by an evil or divine power. If by the divine, we walk in the light even as he who controls is in the light.

Sabbath evening I preached the Word in the 7th Avenue United Presbyterian church, Rev. A. H. Tate, pastor. Bro. Tate is a staunch United Presbyterian. He has recently come from the seminary to take charge of this congregation. Since Bro. Kidd, the former pastor, resigned there has been a scattering of the flock. Internal trouble has diminished the membership. We are assured that Bro. Tate takes hold of the work with a strong hand, and a faith that knows no failure. May God bless him. He takes the Cynosure, of course, to keep up to the times on the anti-secrecy line. All the Y. M. C. A.'s in this and adjacent cities have been provided with the Cynosure, through the kind contributions of friends. Any receiving the paper regularly who have not subscribed for it may know it is sent by some friend.

I can not spend the time I could wish in work here now. If I reach the annual meeting in Chicago, May 16, I must return home soon. A strong convention could be held here with God's blessing next October. What say you, friends? Shall we work and pray for it?

W. B. Stoddard.

FROM THE PACIFIC COAST AGENT.

Philomath, Ore., April 13, 1894.

After speaking twice at Plainview, Linn county, Ore., last Sunday, I went, on Monday evening, the 9th, to Brownsville, an old town of some twelve hundred inhabitants. It has six or seven churches, and but one pastor who does not belong to some lodge—Rev. L. C. Haulman, pastor of the Christian church. We spoke, Monday night, amid the greatest racket we ever heard. The Opera House had been secured for two evenings, and the two brass bands of the place were occupying the upper room, practicing. Had it not been for backing down I should not have spoken at all. At it we went, and stayed with it an hour or more. The people were quite attentive, and seemed to be very appreciative.

It had been surmised by some of my friends, that possibly there might be some interference to my speaking on the lodge question. On the contrary, the lodgemen were out in full force. Some appeared pleased; others were mad from the very onset. Quite a number who came in displaying badges in a most prominent manner, were soon seen to hide them, so they would not be so conspicuous.

When we came to the point, "Why a woman cannot be made a man," we gave the only answer "Because she's a woman." You should have seen the ladies present clap their hands and stamp their feet, in demonstration.

The address was well-received by at least a majority of the large audience present, and I think good was accomplished for our cause. I received one subscriber for the Cynosure, and distributed a number of tracts. One of the most prominent business men of the place said, after the meeting closed: "I am a Mason, but you hit us pretty hard to-night. Such a giving away of the work as you did here will certainly hinder us from receiving any members into the lodge." I answered him, "That is certainly my desire." He took a number of tracts to his real estate office, and promised to distribute them to the best advantage possible.

Having taken a severe cold, and not receiving any word from Sodaville and Mountain Home, where I had sent appointments, I returned home for repairs; but after coming home I received a letter stating that I was announced to speak at Mountain Home last night. I am sorry. This is the first disappointment I have had or made since I started in the work. I have sent them an appointment for next month.

The political pot is beginning to seethe pretty lively here at present. Men are around telling us that the only salvation of the country is to make more money. I think a right use of what we have would be a start toward great prosperity. Our "wasted resources" is the cause of our hard times. Our speaker, last night, was one who was rampant in denouncing "goldbugs." At the same time he had on what appeared to be very large gold rings on each hand, gold cuff buttons, gold studs, a gold pin, and a gold watch and chain. We wondered how much of the "stuff" it would take to constitute a bug. We intimated to him at the close that he was on the wrong track; instead of fighting "goldbugs" he had better be after saloon snakes. They (the People's party) agree if we will put them in power they will do away with the saloon. I should hesitate to trust a party that is too cowardly to put anything in its platform. That sounds too much like marrying a drunkard to reform him. I fear the party itself will need reforming. No true prohibitionist will be deceived by any such chaff, I am sure. Stay by the party that is never afraid to show its colors.

P. B. Williams.

Correspondence.

FROM REV. WILLIAM FENTON.

St. Paul, Minn., April 20, 1894.

Editor Cynosure:—Excepting, perhaps, the apostate bride of Jesus Christ, I have no doubt but that Freemasonry, with its brood of vipers, is Satan's most gigantic enemy of God the Father, Jesus Christ, God's only begotten Son, and the Holy Ghost, the witnesser of the truth, that this world has ever known.

In regard to the contradiction offered to Professor Fischer at the Sunset Club, on the 12th inst., the publisher of "Freemasonry Illustrated," who also handles the "Cabala," printed by the Masonic fraternity to work by in the lodge, could best satisfy the readers of the Cynosure as umpire. The professor has, however, on his side the testimony of the celebrated Le Roy convention of eight thousand (see Bernard's "Light on Masonry"); also the affidavits in "Freemasonry Illustrated."

Concerning the fall that plunged us all into the gulf of sin and woe, John Milton wrote:

> ——"she pluck'd, she eat!
> Earth felt the wound; and Nature from her seat
> Sighing, through all her works gave signs of woe
> That all was lost! Back to the thicket slunk
> The guilty serpent."

The last sentence of this quotation is quite Biblical. It applies to the "Garrow Bush" of Africa, in which men swear to be perpetual liars, under penalty of death, as well as to the lodge, where the men who said: "No, no, no," at the Sunset Club nestle in the coils of the "guilty serpent."

On the Judgment-day, however, it will be interesting to observe that not one of the human race, in heaven or in hell, escaped a fall into that "thicket." And it will be no less interesting than marvelous to unfallen angels to understand how any one of us ever got out of the thicket. It has been said, and I think with good authority, that to be a true Freemason a man must commit the unpardonable sin—blasphemy against the the Holy Ghost. Any one who has given sufficient attention to the subject may see that such blasphemy is the design of the institution.

W. Fenton.

REV. FRANCIS J. DAVIDSON'S WORK IN THE SOUTH.

New Orleans, La., April 14, 1894.

Dear Cynosure:—I boarded the Chicago fast-mail train of the Illinois Central Railroad, at 6 o'clock in the evening, April 6, and sped along until we reached Paddock, where we were hindered by "hot-boxes" until 2 o'clock the following morning. We reached Jackson, Miss., two hours late. Here we were entertained by Mr. Milton Stamps until 6 A. M., when we boarded a Yazoo and Mississippi Valley train. Traveling along at about 15 or 16 miles an hour, we reached our destination (Greenwood) at 12 M., and were met by Brother Edward W. Barnes, a member of the A. M. E. church of Botlapoula, Miss.; and also our brother-in-law, Bro. Barnes, who carted us about eight miles back into the woods. We were kindly received and entertained during our stay by Bro. Barnes and family.

I preached four times at the Mt. Ariah Baptist church. Great interest was manifested in the services, and the congregation increased each night. We had the pleasure of adding several to the church, and left about fifteen anxious inquirers. Secretism has almost died out in this section of the country. Mr. Zedok W. Davis, who was one of my most ardent foes in 1888, was among my most cordial welcomers this year. Mr. Willis Davis (a secretist), however, is still very much prejudiced toward me and attempted to get me into a confusion twice. The "Red Necks" (bulldozers) are still alive in all of their deviltry. I was confidentially assured that a colored man's wife was whipped two weeks ago, and when her husband resented it, the white man that committed the crime threatened to kill the husband. Another colored woman, last week, was cooking for a white family at Sidon, and she left and went to keep house for a colored man. The white man refused to give her her clothes and wages, and she applied to a magistrate, who sent a deputy constable to get her things. The colored woman wrote a note to her former employer relative to her clothes, etc. This raised his ire to bulldozers' pitch, and a crowd of "Red Necks" (as they are called) came to her cabin at night and carried the woman above Rising Sun, whipped her almost into insensibility and left her.

The county farm, or vagrant, law is one of those Southern enactments which are so generally established to disfranchise and oppress the Negro. I have always opposed wholesale Negro emigration to parts unknown; but since I have seen so much oppression and so many unreasonable legislative enactments against the Negro of this country, I am almost willing to say to my people, "go anywhere in God's world, so long as you leave the bloody South!" Everything in the South (with few exceptions) discriminates against the Negro.

I was very much surprised at the accommodation for colored passengers on the Illinois Central Railroad. I was compelled to pay first-class fare, but I was forced into a miserable second-class coach, where a partition had been built, and one end was utilized as a smoker, and the other end was used for colored passengers. I inquired, was there not another or better car attached to the train for colored passengers. I was assured that there was not, and that all of the Negroes were compelled to huddle together in this one half-car and be partly stifled with the tobacco fumes from pipes and bad cigars coming from the other part of the car.

After leaving Ponchatoula, several colored ladies boarded the train, and as there were several white men (apparently rough ones) who remained in the colored department of the car, and as they had been smoking and were still smoking, I entered a second protest. The porter requested the smokers to retire to the other end of the car to smoke, but very little attention was paid to his request, and especially by the whites. I finally inquired, was it not as proper to enforce the separate-car law by compelling the rough element of white men to remain in the car where white ladies were traveling as it was to force gentlemanly colored men and ladies to remain in the wretched apartment specially set apart for colored people. I was warned that I was not in New Orleans, and too many murmurs would cause me to think "Jordan a hard road to travel" on the I. C. R. R. through Mississippi.

On reaching Jackson, and changing cars, I felt quite sure that on the Yazoo branch we would have better accommodations; but to my disgust and surprise it was worse. The colored coach was a very respectable one, but there was not even a partition, and white men and colored men smoked excessively and cursed and used bad language without restraint. If the Negro is to be thus humiliated, subjugated and defamed, how can he ever rise above American serfdom?

I left Rising Sun on Thursday the 12th, at 1:30 P. M., and reached Jackson at 6 P. M. I was kindly received by, and dined with, Rev. E. B. Topp, pastor of the Church Street Baptist church, and ex-missionary to Africa. I found Elder Topp having a most glorious revival. He was enthusiastic, and assured me that he was in full accord with my views. Rev. A. T. Murphy, pastor of the Locust Grove Baptist church of Greenwood, was assisting Elder Topp in his meetings. I attended services with Elders Topp and Murphy, where I met fully 600 earnest listeners, about 60 of whom went forward to be prayed for, and four confessed and were received for baptism.

On Friday I returned to New Orleans, where I found the members of my church in revival meetings. I preached, Friday night, from Matt. 9: 14. A favorable impression seemed to have been made, and three came forward for prayers. One seemed very deeply impressed. I am still contending and battling for the right, and preaching the Gospel of separation. My opposers, however, seem to be legion; but God be praised, he has always given his servants the victory!

We are having a great revival season here in most of the churches. Some of them have already received and baptized more than 100 each. Pray for our continued success.

Yours in the Master's work,

FRANCIS J. DAVIDSON.

CYNOSURE OFFER!

Any of the Books sold by the N. C. A. in this paper, ordered, with subscription to the Cynosure, at one-fourth off from list price, sent postpaid.

The New Volume of Pen and Pencil Series.

WELSH PICTURES Drawn with Pen and Pencil.

By D. Lewis Jones, Morris Jones, Edward Ffoulkes, H. Elvet Lewis, D. Tyssil Evans, D. Davies and O. M. Edwards. Edited by Richard Lovett, M. A. With many Illustrations. Imperial 8vo, cloth, gilt edges, boxed..... 3.20

"'Welsh pictures' is the work of ten Welshmen, among whom illustrating the beauties of Wales has been parcelled out according to the special familiarity of each. The result is a pleasing volume."—London Times.

THE EARTHLY FOOTPRINTS OF OUR RISEN LORD, Illumined.

A continuous narrative of the Four Gospels according to The Revised Version, with introduction by Rev. John Hall, D. D. Illustrated by 113 full-page half tone re-productions. Small 4to, cloth.....net 1.50
Gilt edge, with silk book mark, boxed.....net 2.00
Full morocco, flexible, gilt edges, round corners, boxed.....net 3.75

Pictures reflecting the best in sacred art from Raphael to the present day are scattered profusely through the book.

"To many the life of the Christ will be a new book in this form. Though beyond the introduction it contains no word except what is found in the four Gospels, yet when read continuously, without the breaks necessarily made by the different stories of the four evangelists, the narrative takes on new force and lifelikeness. The very fact that this is not our usual method of reading the Word will give it a new reality."—Golden Rule.

A GIFT OF LOVE, and Loving Greetings for 365 Days.

By Rose Porter. Long 18mo. Paper cloth..... 1.00
White cloth, silver top, in box..... 1.25
Decorated silk, silver top, in box..... 1.75

"'A Gift of Love' is the work of a loving heart. It contains a text of Scripture for every day of the year with the addition of an appropriate thought in poetry of prose all bearing on the theme of love. The work must have called for a great amount of patient toil. But it has not been spent in vain, for the volume will prove a blessing to many a soul. To use it day by day for a year thoughtfully and prayerfully, must result in a rich growth in love on the part of the user. The author is well known and esteemed for her previous works' sake."—The N. Y. Observer.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE SERIES.

By Rev. F. B. Meyer, containing CHRISTIAN LIVING, THE PRESENT TENSES OF THE BLESSED LIFE, AND THE SHEPHERD PSALM. 3 vols. in box. 18mo, cloth..... 1.50
White vellum cloth, silver top, in box..... 1.75

D. L. Moody says: "Few books of recent years are better adapted to instruct and help Christians than those of this author. He is a man mighty in the scriptures, saturated with Bible facts and truths."

PRAYERS FROM THE POETS.

By Martha Harger. 16mo, two colored cloth, gilt top..... 1.00
Leatherette, boxed..... 1.50

"This volume is admirable. The Prayer are better suited to some of our moods than formal Litanies and are selected from excellent sources. The book will be a dear treasure to many hearts."—The Churchman.

KIN-DA-SHON'S WIFE.

An Alaskan Story. By Mrs. Eugene S. Willard, Home Missionary of the Presbyterian Board of America to Alaska. With illustrations. 8vo, cloth..... 1.50

"Being a close observer and in deep sympathy with the native population in their struggles towards a Christian Civilization, Mrs. Willard has gained a more intelligent knowledge of their character, of their needs and hindrances, than perhaps any other person."—Dr. Sheldon Jackson.

HEROES OF THE GOODWIN SANDS.

By Rev. Thomas Stanley Treanor. With many illustrations. 8vo, Cloth..... 1.50

"It is a book of most engrossing interest, and as stimulating as it is readable."—The Record.
"The deeds of daring are thrilling in the extreme. Suitable for the public library or for the home."—Times.

THE GREAT LONDON DAILIES.

By H. W. Massingham. Profusely illustrated. 12mo, cloth..... 1.00

Very welcome to all who like to look behind the scenes and see how the great London dailies are worked.

New Editions.

The Prayer Meeting and Its Improvement.

By Rev. LEWIS O. THOMPSON. Eighth edition, cloth, $1.25.

"Most heartily do we wish this work a wide circulation, both among pastors and people, and we hope it may do much toward the lifting of the prayer-meeting into that higher place which it ought to hold among the grand instrumentalities in the kingdom of the Master'—Congregationalist.

"We do not remember to have met with a work so suggestive, and we heartily commend it to both pastors and private members."—Baptist Weekly.

The Crisis of Missions. By Rev. ARTHUR T. PIERSON, D. D.

Cloth, $1.25; paper, 35c.

"We do not hesitate to say that this book is the most purposeful, earnest, and intelligent review of the mission work and field which has ever been given to the church."—Christian Statesman.

The Christian's Secret of a Happy Life.

By HANNAH WHITALL SMITH. One hundredth thousand. Issued in fourteen styles, from 50c. to $2.50. Send for circular.

"To commend this work would seem almost superfluous; and yet to young Christians who may not know it, we cannot refrain from saying, Buy this book, and keep it with your Bible for constant study, until you have thoroughly mastered, in your own experience, the 'secret' of which it tells. It will transform the dark days of your life, as it has transformed those of thousands before you, into days of heavenly light."—New York Evangelist.

The Topical Text Book. Fourth edition.

16 mo., cloth, 60c.

"This little volume is a worker's most useful tool. It collates all Scripture passages under their topical headings, and for this reason proves far more helpful in studying a subject than the best concordance.

"I find one of the very best ways to study the Scripture is to study topically."—D. L. Moody.

Stalker's Life of Christ. Twelfth edition.

Stalker's Life of St. Paul. Fourth edition.

12 mo., cloth, each, 60c.

These works by Professor James Stalker, M. A., are unique in their compact putting of these lives into such condensed form without injurious brevity. They are being taken up as text books by Biblical classes in all parts of the country, thus proving their practical value.

Grace and Truth under Twelve Different Aspects.

By W. P. MACKAY, M. A. Paper, 35c.; cloth, 75c. Two hundred and fiftieth thousand.

This remarkable sale can only be attributed to the very practical character of this work as a guide to the inquirer and a work of helpful instruction for the immature Christian. It is of this volume Mr. D. L. Moody said: "I know of no work in print better adapted to place in the hands of the inquirer."

Notes and Suggestions for Bible Readings.

By S. R. BRIGGS. Sixtieth thousand. 8 vo, cloth. $1.00; flexible, 75c.

Edition after edition of this work has been called for until it would seem the demand must be supplied. The sales however, increase rather than otherwise.

Feathers for Arrows. By Rev. C. H. SPURGEON.

16 mo., cloth, $1.00.

Few preachers have made such effective use of pointed illustrations as the well known pastor of the great Metropolitan Tabernacle. Here he has given us a large cluster of his best with liberty to enjoy and employ.

Revell's Record for Church Treasurers.

Size No. 1, $1.50; Size No. 2, $2.00.

Popular because practical—valuable because time saving—the only record for weekly envelope system that reduces the treasurer's work to the minimum.

For sale by the

National Christian Association;

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Ill.

OBITUARY.

EDWARD J. HAYES, SENIOR,

was born near Hartford, Conn., Sept. 8, in the year 1813, the younger of two boys, only children in his father's family. In early manhood he learned the silversmith's trade at Springfield, Mass. His eyesight not proving sufficiently strong for this trade he learned that of wheelwright in the town of Granby, Conn. Then at the age of twenty-one he removed to Mesopotamia, Ohio, whither his parents had gone eighteen months previous. In 1835 he was married to Evaline Lampson. His father having died he cared for his mother, who was a consumptive, until her death. His brother, Solon, who became totally blind, removed with his family to the southern part of Ohio. In 1843, Evaline, the wife of our brother, and the mother of two little girls, became the victim of consumption, and thus the tenderest ties were severed. In 1845 he was united in marriage to Phebe H. Bishop, of Middlefield, O. He had purchased land in East Middlefield, where he built a house, shop and other buildings, the place receiving the name of Hayes' Corners. This became his permanent residence. Of the six children born here, three sons and one daughter reached maturity. Four loved girls, two daughters and two granddaughters, were taken from him by death in early life. He was a most industrious, energetic and faithful laborer, both as mechanic and farmer. He was very provident; his household knew no want, and his was a hospitable home. His early advantages for education were small, but he was a good reader and writer, and by his constant reading became a well-informed man. He was a lover of truth, and a great reformer; a subscriber to the Cynosure from its commencement. His reformatory principles led him to change his church relations from the Methodist Episcopal to the Wesleyan Methodist church at the organization of the latter. His views of the atonement and Bible doctrines seemed clear and solid. For some time he was a great worker in the Sunday-school. His fondness for little children was great, and his love as a father expressed itself in practical help and kindness to his children. He departed from earth March 12, 1894, after one week's affliction with paralysis, aged eighty years, six months, and leaves a wife and six children, seven grandchildren, and friends on every side. No one in his neighborhood will be more missed than he; his home was a home to any who knocked at his door, and to-day in heaven we trust he hears the words of Jesus: "Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of the least of these, ye did it unto me." Funeral discourse Luke 20: 36.

ELDER J. CASE.

Your Blood Needs Cleansing.

Of all the seasons of the year this is most emphatically the one in which to purify your blood.

There is a certain tonic in winter air which is exhilarating and beneficial, and the loss of which, when milder weather comes, makes us feel tired and "played out."

Besides this, our close confinement indoors, breathing air charged with impurities, contaminates our blood and makes liable the appearance of unexpected diseases.

Therefore the necessity of purifying the blood, and therefore the popularity at this season of Hood's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier and strengthening medicine. The least inquiry will bring to your notice well known people who "think the world of Hood's Sarsaparilla."

If you have never taken Hood's Sarsaparilla try it this spring. It will do you good.

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST
A Secret Empire;
Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.
By Rev. Richard Horton.
Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.
Price, 60 cents.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

YOUR GOOD HEALTH, if you're a suffering woman, demands Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. There's no other medicine like it, for women's peculiar ills. No matter how distressing your symptoms, it relieves your aches and pains, and if faithfully used will bring a permanent cure in every chronic weakness or derangement, in catarrhal inflammation, and in the displacements of women. West Liberty, O.

DR. R. V. PIERCE: Dear Sir—I can cheerfully recommend your valuable medicine, the "Favorite Prescription," to suffering females. Three years ago my health became so poor that I was scarcely able to help with the household duties. I was persuaded to try your medicine, and I purchased six bottles. That, with the local treatment you advised, made me strong and well.

My sister has used it in the family with like results.

L. E. Johnson

$5.00 a Day and FREE Samples to AGENTS to sell the Greatest Kitchen Utensil ever invented. Retails 25 cts. 2 to 6 sold in every house. Sample, postage paid FREE. FORSHEE & McMAKIN, 190 W. 5th St., Cincinnati, O.

MY WIFE CANNOT SEE HOW YOU DO IT AND PAY FREIGHT.

$14 Buys our 2 drawer walnut or oak Improved High Arm Singer sewing machine finely finished, nickel plated, adapted to light and heavy work; guaranteed for 10 Years; with Automatic Bobbin Winder, Self-Threading Cylinder Shuttle, Self-Setting Needle and a complete set of Steel Attachments; shipped any where on 30 Day's Trial. No money required in advance. 75,000 now in use. World's Fair Medal awarded machine and attachments. Buy from factory and save dealer's and agent's profits. FREE Cut This Out and send to-day for machine or large free catalogue, testimonials and Glimpses of the World's Fair. OXFORD MFG. CO. 342 Wabash Ave. CHICAGO, ILL.

WHEATON COLLEGE,
WHEATON, ILL.
A School for Men and Women.
SPRING TERM BEGINS TUESDAY, APRIL 3RD.
ENROLLMENT BEGINS MONDAY, APRIL 2ND.
For Catalogue, address
CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

IF YOU WANT WORK
that is pleasant and profitable, send us your address immediately. We teach men and women how to earn from $5 per day to $3,000 per year without having had previous experience, and furnish the employment at which they can make that amount. Capital unnecessary. A trial will cost you nothing. Write to-day and address,
E. C. ALLEN & CO.,
Box 1001. Augusta, Me.

PATENTS
Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained, and all Patent business conducted for Moderate Fees.
Our Office is Opposite U. S. Patent Office, and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.
Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.
A Pamphlet, "How to Obtain Patents," with names of actual clients in your State, county, or town, sent free. Address,
C. A. SNOW & CO.
Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

The St. Louis Sermon.
Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?
An Address by Rev. B. Carradine D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.
W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."
A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover.
Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Colver on Masonry.
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

NORTHERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
Nathan Callender Montdale Pa.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
W. M. Love, Osceola, Mo.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Thompson, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
D. A. Richards, Brighton, Mich.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill.

Disloyal SECRET OATHS
ADDRESS OF
JOSEPH COOK,
OF BOSTON,
AT THE
Conference of Christians
CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate. By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter)
—AND OFFICE OF—
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. A. J. Gordon D.D., Boston, Mass.

VICE PRESIDENT—Charles A. Blanchard, President Wheaton College Ill.

GEN'L SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I. Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

REC. SECRETARY—Amos Dresser, Jr. Wheaton, Ill., Box 367.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E Whipple, E. R. Worrell, Edgar B. Wylie W. M. Howie, H. F. Kletzing.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., J. A. Conant; Vice-president, S. C. Kimball; Sec'y, D. B. Gunn.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. R. W. Chesnut Marissa; Sec., Rev. J. R. Wylie, Coulterville; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., Rev. J. A. Greer, Columbus City; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton; Treas., Rev. L. Mendenhall, Fairfield.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo; Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., ——— ———, ——— Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom, Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morrill St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry; Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

OREGON.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dillon, D.D., Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan, Beaver; Treas., Edwin P Sellew, Philadelphia.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poynette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas. J W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

HENRY M. HUGUNIN - - - - Editor.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, APRIL 26, 1894.

The Annual Meeting of the National Christian Association will occur on Wednesday, May 16, 1894, at 10:30 A. M., in Carpenter building, 221 West Madison street, Chicago, Ill., for the election of officers and the transaction of other important business. Rev. A. J. Gordon, Pres.
Amos Dresser, Jr., Sec'y.

THE "PATRIOTIC" SECRET SOCIETIES.

"The American Protestant, a journal devoted to the interests of American Protestant associations," is published in Boston, and devotes a large space to the promotion of the current "patriotic" societies, secret and otherwise. As its name indicates, it is intensely Protestant, and forcible in its denunciation of whatever threatens the perpetuity of American institutions based on the outcome of the American Revolution. We may add, however, that it has no quarrel with any secret society not tolerated or supported by adherents of the Church of Rome.

In its issue of April 14, we find set forth the principles of all prominent "patriotic" political associations—to-wit: The American Protestant Association; The American Protective Association; Junior Order United American Mechanics; National League for the Protection of American Institutions; Loyal Orange Institution of the United States of America; Patriotic Order Sons of America, and the American Orange Knights. All of these, except the National League, are understood to be secret in their work.

It also gives a list of members of the Massachusetts Legislature and other State magnates. The Representative from the Fourteenth Worcester district is a Knight Templar, an Odd-fellow, a Knight of Honor and a United Workman. Another from Lowell is a 32-degree Mason. A third, from Somerville, belongs to the G. A. R., the Masons, and other fraternities.

There is great similarity in the principles of the seven "patriotic" societies named. Ostensibly some of them do not denounce Roman Catholicism as a religion, but all do oppose it for attempting to vitiate and destroy national and State institutions, founded in the interest of the American people, by partisan and sectarian aggressiveness.

The political secret society is rapidly becoming an important factor in our State and national economy, and its tendency is rather to a union with the Republican party than with the Democratic. Wherever, in the spring elections, such a union has been formed, the Republicans claim that they have either made large gains or won victories at the polls.

THE A. P. A. IN WISCONSIN.

A correspondent of the West Superior (Wis.) Leader, writing from Duluth, claims to have formerly united with the A. P. A., but never met with the order after the night of his initiation. He claims, also, that since he joined the A. P. A. the anti-Catholic oath, in Wisconsin, has been modified, but in other States is retained as printed. Originally it was copied from the Orange oath of certain societies in Canada. In this form the candidate was sworn never to give employment to Catholics, or to vote for one for office, or to go on a strike.

This correspondent claims, also, that at the Wisconsin State meeting of the order, at Milwaukee, the ritual was changed, and that the new version has not been published. He also prints a large list of prominent citizens who belong to the order in Wisconsin and are active promoters of its principles. These principles are similar in all the States, and are already familiar to the public.

We should have more confidence in the Leader's correspondent if we knew his name and responsibility, since he makes public additional statements of considerable interest. For instance, he tells us that "the fee for membership is $1.50; the dues are 50 cents per quarter, or $2.00 a year." The officers are D. B. Cheney, president; J. N. Galloway, secretary, with a treasurer, secretary of state, chaplain, sergeant-at-arms, guard, and vice-president, besides the executive committee. "The executive committee runs the whole council (lodge). It is composed of the four chief officers of the council, who are elected for one year. These four appoint five more, who are entirely secret, and not known, and never have been known to individual members of the order." This correspondent, however, gives the names of the entire five and their business connections in West Superior. "The five do the bidding of the other four, priming and fixing the council; and thus the council is hoodwinked, the same as a candidate when he is initiated." He adds that certain members of the committee, with the help of a Roman Catholic editor, and without the knowledge of other members, manipulated the entire political operations of the lodge (or council), by using the secret portion of the executive committee, who fixed up a ticket to suit themselves for the ensuing election of city officers; and the scheme worked very effectually. Of couse the rank and file of the council voted according to orders from their chiefs.

This correspondent is represented as a Baptist, a property-owner and former citizen of West Superior, where he still holds interests, although he lives in Duluth. A peculiarity of the order in Duluth and West Superior—the one in Minnesota, and the other in Wisconsin—is that to prevent undue publicity of their acts, citizens of each town united with the councils in the other; so that Duluth men belong to West Superior councils, and vice versa.

On the whole, we believe that this exposure, since the correspondent names well-known parties, is in all respects trustworthy, and shows how secret societies can govern not only their own members with a rod of iron, but also influence local elections, in spite of outside voters.

A MASONIC "KICKER."

The first resolution in the series adopted by the convention of the Pennsylvania State Christian Association, opposed to secret societies, held in Philadelphia, February 26 and 27, 1894, reads as follows:

Whereas, We believe that "Freemasonry," so-called, the Society of Jesuits, and all societies which impose on their members an oath or other obligation to keep secret and obey a code of unknown laws and regulations, are unscriptural, un-Christian, un-American, and necessarily and essentially unfriendly to the church of Christ, and a threatening danger to free republican government, etc.

A copy of these resolutions was sent by Rev. Anthony S. Shelly, of Bally, Pa., an efficient anti-secrecy reformer, to the writer of the following, which reached Bro. Shelly without name or date. Like the proverbial "wounded bird," he "flutters," and throws himself, for support, upon the dignity of the fraternity, as if it is too good or too strong to be assailed by Christian people. This is the protest:

"If you are a Mason, you know there is no truth, not the slightest shadow of it, in the resolutions that the 'Christian people' (who are they, by the way?) have, through you, spread abroad in such an un-Christian way.

"If you are not a Mason, you have no right, legal or moral, to pass upon, and print resolutions concerning that of which you can know nothing whatever.

"Nothing can be more insulting to a Mason than to have his craft included in the same sentence of censure as the 'Society of Jesus,' between whom and the Masonic fraternity there has existed an imperishable enmity since the founding of the Jesuits. And be it said, that if ever the plans of the latter to secure the control of our beloved country are thwarted, the Masons will deserve more credit than all other sects and denominations combined. Yours for Christ and our country,

"A Baptist, and 32d Degree Mason."

According to long-established authority, which seems candid and intelligent, the aim of Freemasonry is to supplant Christianity by ignoring its Founder, mutilating his Word, discarding his work of atonement, and forming a theology of its own, which is of itself to save a man, if he lives up to all the requirements of the fraternity. Its other aim, if similar authority may be accepted, is secretly to bring everything in church and state, in the community and the family, with matters of opinion and custom, into subjection to itself. If this is true, it is self-evident that such an association must be the natural enemy of Christianity. That the member of a Baptist church should not see it in this light indicates a spiritual blindness that is frightful.

AN IRISH-AMERICAN REVOLUTION.

Since the collapse of the Fenian Society, and the imprisonment and punishment of its members in Great Britain, Irish-Americans and Irishmen in the British kingdom have for many years been content to form themselves into less murderous and more moderate societies for the promotion of home-rule for Ireland, depending upon the leaders of that movement in parliament and elsewhere for its success. In Ireland the friends of home-rule formed a corporate body known as the "Home Government Association," showing its strength rather by numbers and political influence than by secret and warlike demonstrations. In the United States a similar society was established—"The Irish National League of America"—which, following the lead of the society in Ireland, has been giving its influence and money to the cause of home-rule for Ireland.

The last defeat of the Home Rule bill in the House of Lords, after its passage in the Commons, was a heavy blow to the friends of the measure, both at home and in America. The resignation of Mr. Gladstone and the elevation of Lord Rosebery to the premiership, added more sorrow and distrust to the situation, and led to the issue, by the treasurer of the Irish National League of America, on behalf of that organization, of a proclamation addressed to Irishmen in this country and abroad. The address condemns parliamentary methods as futile, and advocates revolution as the only means by which Ireland can achieve the restoration of her rights. After declaring that the Irish cause has been betrayed by Gladstone and Rosebery, the address says:

"Traitors have brought the Irish cause almost to the verge of ruin. The question is, Who can save it, rhetoricians or revolutionists? Rhetoric is a poor weapon in a struggle for liberty. Take the history of Ireland for a hundred years. What victories have the rhetoricians gained? None. Free trade, that is, the right of Ireland to trade on her own account, and legislative independence were won, not by the pen, or by the tongue, but by the sword."

The manifesto then gives a retrospect of the various parliamentary attempts made to secure self-government for Ireland between 1793 and 1870, and concludes as follows:

"The campaign is not over yet. The struggle still goes on. A critical moment has come. Let those who fight for the principle of Irish nationality close their ranks and smite the English foes and Irish traitors hip and thigh. Once again Ireland has got to depend on the revolutionists. The revolutionists only can save her. We must have no more talk. We must have deeds. One blow struck at the enemy is worth a thousand speeches. Remember this, each and every one of you, and the end of the struggle must soon come in a blaze of glory. Now for revolution and revolution only. God save Ireland."

In this connection we recall the publication, on the 3d of last February, in the Western Catholic News of Chicago, of a description of a new Irish-American non-secret league, to be popularly known as the "Ults." The editor of that paper seemed to be the prime originator and promoter of it. It proposed to embrace every Irishman in the United States, and its professed object was tersely stated to be—to rise en masse, when sufficiently strong, "demand home rule for Ireland or go and take it."

The manifesto of the Irish-American League is so similar in sentiment that it is easy to believe that an important Irish revolution against Great Britain is in progress.

—The Illinois State Prohibition convention is to be held at Bloomington, May 3 and 4. A State ticket is to be nominated. Particulars may be obtained from J. H. Shaw, Bloomington.

—"Over Mr. Gladstone's bedstead," says a traveling item, "is hung the motto: 'Christian, remember what thou hast to do.'" Very good, but less comforting and appropriate than the last clause of Psalm 127:2.

—A note from Rev. David Morrow, of Oakland, Cal., says: "We are making arrangements to have this middle part of the State of California canvassed by an agent and lecturer in opposition to secret societies. If any should see this who wish to take part in helping the cause, they will please address me, Rev. David Morrow, at 1015 Twenty-first street, Oakland, Cal."

—Rev. A. J. Gordon, D. D, the president of the corporate body of the National Christian Association, writes his regrets that his other duties only permit his sanction to the call for the Annual Meeting, and will not allow of his being present.

—The Deseret News (Mormon) of Salt Lake City, Utah, mentions the delivery of a lecture on the Mormons there by Joseph Cook on the 8th inst. It must have been characteristically pungent, for the News speaks of it as "fanatical drivel." Some one seems to have been hit.

—Rev. Nathan Wardner, D. D., prominent among the Seventh-day Baptists, and a warm friend of the anti-secrecy cause, died at his home in Milton Junction, Wis., on the 6th inst, in his seventy-fourth year. Notwithstanding his age, he had fairly retained his mental and physical vigor, and his death was sudden. A biographical sketch of Bro. Wardner is to appear in this paper next week.

—Secretary Phillips has returned from New York State, where he has been laboring for the past week in the interest of the N. C. A. He has just perfected arrangements for a six days' series of meetings in Northwood, Iowa, by Rev. William Fenton. This city is in Worth county, and on the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Northern railroad. The first lecture will be on Monday evening, May 14.

—An error in the first two lines of the fourth section of Rev. L. S. Stratton's article, "No Bible in Heaven," on page 2 of the Cynosure for April 12, made him say: "Science tells us that by the use of the solar spectrum is the weight of the planets so easily determined," etc. It read, as he wrote it: "Science tells us that by the use of the solar spectrum, and the weight of the planets so easily determined," etc., which is certainly more agreeable to the truth of science.

—The Advance chronicles the death, by fever, after a short illness, of Rev. Matthew A. Crawford, a missionary of the American Board, at Hermosillo, Mexico, on the 3d of April. He leaves a wife and four children. Mrs. Crawford is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Sturges, pioneer missionaries of the Board to the Caroline Islands. Mr. Crawford was a brother of Mrs. Zaraphonithes, the well-known missionary to Greece. His death will be a loss to the cause in Mexico.

—A note from a friend of the Cynosure, residing at New Concord, Ohio, April 16, says: "It is with great interest and profit that we read your paper, and we wish much success and prosperity to attend your good efforts for the cause of right and reform. The writings of the 'Home' department are always hailed with deep interest, especially those of the estimable and gentle Mrs. Victoria A. Stone—truth being the watchword of all that is ennobling and good, rather than fiction. May truth always prevail."

—The American Railway Union, the new industrial oath-bound league, which is holding down the Great Northern railroad in the strike, is rapidly gaining strength among railroad men, especially those who are dissatisfied with the other railway labor unions. It is peculiarly strong in the Northwest, and at St. Paul, last week, the thirteenth branch of the order was organized, with nearly 300 members. Its principal advantage over its sister societies appears to lie in its vindictiveness against the railroad company.

—It seems that the "Father" Lambert, a Roman Catholic priest who renounced his church and sacerdotal position the other day and allied himself to Rev. James O'Connor's Christ's Mission in New York City, is not, as we inadvertently stated in a recent number of the Cynosure, the L. A. Lambert who ably refuted Ingersoll's infidel teachings. Others seem to have made the same mistake that we did, and the unconverted priest felt called upon to deny the statement in a letter to the Philadelphia Catholic Times. Otherwise the Cynosure was correct.

—Mr. Shiel, a Roman Catholic, who was defeated at Indianopolis by A. P. A. voters, a few days ago, while seeking the Republican nomination for county treasurer, has issued a card denouncing the American Protestant Association, instead of the American Protective Association. We think it would puzzle Mr. Shiel to tell to which of the two associations he is indebted for his overthrow. It may have been either or both. Both are intensely partisan and "patriotic;" both are fighting Catholics, and both are as sly in their operations as the Jesuits themselves.

—Following the lead of Rev. Dr. Parkhurst, of New York City, the new "Chicago Society for the Prevention of Crime" has been fully organized and is now ready for business. It is to be a corrective of municipal neglect in the suppression of vice, and has already collected sufficient evidence, it is stated, to "warrant proceedings against several law-breakers high in social life" in Chicago, and arrests are to follow. Rev. W. G. Clarke is president, and the names of men of integrity appear in the list of officers. The field to be cultivated by this society is particularly rocky and weedy.

—The Christian Reformer quotes Dr. Lorimer's remark, when alluding to a recent pulpit utterance to the effect that all Masons should be excommunicated, "that when that time came, the Masons should go in a body, and he would go with them," and then quotes as follows: "Some years ago Mr. Moody, in a sermon, referred to the objection often made to preaching against secret societies, that it would drive members of the secret orders out of the church. 'Let them go,' said Mr. Moody, 'and better men will take their places.'" The retort seems quite as pungent as the provocation.

—The careful student of history will no doubt agree, with the late Hon. Elihu B. Washburne, that the "foolishness of one age" (and he might well have added, its wickedness) "supplies history for the succeeding generations." Yet all history of nations and peoples is liable to come down to us sadly tainted by the prejudices of our ancestors. Therefore every honest effort to evolve the truth from the distortion of the past ages is commendable. But this does not imply the right of "higher criticism" to shade with doubt the divine truths and inspired records of the Bible, the authenticity of which is amply sustained by internal and external evidence.

—A dispatch from Anderson, Ind., April 9, brought intelligence that G. W. Steece, a well-known manufacturer, who has been in Anderson and Muncie for some time, has disappeared very mysteriously. He was a radical A. P. A. man and has had several lively fights with Catholics, who detested him intently. He had been in a difficulty shortly before he disappeared, and it is the belief of his American Protective Association brothers that Catholics have dealt foully with him. The matter has been placed in the hands of the authorities and will be sifted to the bottom. He was well known in the central States and was president of the West Muncie tack factory.

—Segovia, capital of a flourishing province of the same name in Spain, contains more than 150,000 inhabitants, has over twenty-four churches and twenty-one convents, and is thoroughly under control of the Church of Rome. According to the London Daily Telegraph, the government is of a kind which all Christians should pray may never rule in this country. The incident is thus related: "The Dean of Segovia—a learned priest, and author of many works—has been flogged by the bishop of his diocese because he had dared to be a member of a lodge of Freemasons, the priests in attendance chanting the 'Miserere mei' while the flagellation was in progress." The case is without a precedent, and could never have occurred except in a thoroughly Roman Catholic community.

—Masonic charity is very greatly disgruntled by the recent decision of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania in the case of the Masonic Home at Pittsburgh. Some time ago Masonic authorities claimed exemption of the institution from taxation on the ground that it was a public charity under the constitution and the laws. The city sued the Home for the taxes and the case went before the Court of Common Pleas. That court held that the Home was not subject to taxation. The case was appealed by the city to the Supreme Court, and, a few days ago, the decision of a majority of the court was given. It reversed the judgment of the lower court and remanded the case for a new trial, ruling that the Home is not a "purely public charity." It is feared, however, that this decision will also seriously affect the standing of other charitable institutions in the State, and likewise subject them to taxation.

—In the trial of Miss Pollard (a Mason's daughter) against Congressman Breckenridge (a Mason), for ill-usage, the jury awarded her damages to the amount of $15,000. The accomplished libertine is reported as saying that he did not intend to let the litigation end here. If the motion for a new trial be denied he will prosecute an appeal. "The verdict," said he, "has not weakened the ties that bind my wife and children to me nor impaired the friendship felt for me by my friends." He remains a candidate for renomination to Congress. The church to which he belongs, his lodge and Congress have yet to be heard from in this case. And this man has a wife and children! On Sunday week, Rev. Mr. Curmick, of Springfield, Ohio, preached a sermon to a good audience, in which he said: "If Kentucky shall return Breckenridge to Congress, it will place a premium on hypocrisy, seduction, and adultery that will ruin the youth of the country." This seems to be the object-lesson presented by the recent trial.

—A missionary writes to the New York Sun: "The men who form the A. P. A. believe that they are doing harm to the Catholic Church. But as a matter of fact they are doing her good, as the following incident will show. A few days ago a Catholic Irishman, who had not practiced his religion, gone to the sacraments or to church in many years, met his pastor, and bowing politely to him, said: 'Father, did you see this?' at the same time showing him a newspaper containing a bitter attack on Catholics by the Rev. Madison C. Peters, a champion of the A. P. A. 'No,' said the priest, 'I have not time to read such things.' 'Well, father,' said the Irishman, 'I have read it. It is a pack of lies. What a set of noodles he must preach to if they believe all he says. They are threatening the old church again, and by gob, if so, I am going back where I belong. Father, I will go to confession next Saturday night.'" If this is the effect of the A. P. A. and its teachings, why does the Church of Rome bitterly oppose it?

—The beating of a newsboy, last week, in this city, for selling a partisan newspaper on the street, was a piece of intolerance not warranted by the constitution and laws of this republic. It is true that the perpetrator of this unprovoked outrage was a "thug," a "tough," a "gambler," and probably not a citizen of the State or Union which he disgraces by his presence; and the act was one which forms no precedent to be followed by any other person, be he a Federal judge or only a beer-swigger. The boy was following a lawful vocation with lawful wares, and in a peaceable manner. If the paper was offensive to his assailant, the boy was free from the responsibility of its sentiments; if he was breaking any ordinance, he was amenable to the law in a court of justice; if he was not infringing upon the rights of others, he should not have been molested. It was a piece of cowardly brutality against which every citizen should utter an indignant protest. Since the foregoing was written this outrage has been repeated, and another boy hurt.

—"The army of the commonweal," under Coxey and other leaders possessing more persistence than good sense, has not yet reached Washington. The original movement gave rise to a number of other similar enterprises in various States. The situation last week, as depicted by the daily press, was as follows: "C. Columbus Jones in Delaware, 'Gen.' Kelly in Iowa and 'Gen.' Frye in Indiana are conspicuous among the marchers. An industrial army in Colorado is bartering for box-car transportation to the East. Out in Washington State a group of 'commonwealers' is getting ready to ride or walk, as best it can, toward the capital. And there are others. Some are tramping; others are traveling by freight; still more are combining their methods of transit. Coxey is floating on a canal." Even the unemployed in Chicago threatened to leave the city and join the motley crew. If we understand the situation, the rank and file of the "commonwealers" prefer marching and foraging on the country to working for an honest living. The prospect is that nothing but tramping and subsisting on charity will be gained by the movement. At Washington they will meet with a serious repulse.

The Home.

THE AMERICAN FLAG.

BY MRS. VICTORIA ALEXANDRA STONE.

My country's bright banner, the red, white and blue,
How dear are thy colors to hearts that are true;
Brightly thy colors are blown to the breeze—
Dear star of Columbia, I love thee for these.

'Mid the smoke of the battle you waved in the air,
And brave hearts grew strong that thy colors were there;
'Mid the cannon's wild thunder you waved in the breeze,—
Oh, soul of Columbia, I love thee for these!

From the far Southern skies, to the land of the pine,
O'er hill and o'er valley, how brightly you shine;
With the blood of all nations, ye sail o'er the seas,—
Oh, crown of Columbia, I love thee for these.

God bless thee, bright banner, wherever you wave,
And long may you float o'er the land of the brave;
And when on the earth our probation is past,
Then may you float over our ashes at last!

Steamburgh, N. Y.

A GIRL'S INFLUENCE.

BY MISS EDNA S. BECKER.

It is very difficult to tell what influence is. Webster says it is "a hidden power to lead or direct." Who can tell how far one's influence extends? A girl that is pure in thought, word and deed is sure to have a strong influence for good among her associates. I think a girl of this character has a stronger influence for good over a young man than any one else can have. Young men would never think of saying anything improper to any true lady.

I think I am right when I say, that if girls would use better judgment in selecting their company, there might be a better class of young men than there is.

A little of the writer's experience, right here, might add a little to what I wished to say. Sometime ago I kept company with a very fine young man; but in a short time I found that he, like a great many of the so-called fine young men, was in the habit of smoking. Once we were out for a drive, when, to my surprise, he took a cigar from his coat-pocket, and as he did so, he asked: "Have you any objections to my smoking this cigar in your presence?" Well, let me say that it took a great deal more courage to answer him in a way that would not openly offend him, and at the same time tell him in such a manner that he would know that it was very much against my wishes to have him smoke in my presence, than one would suppose who had never tried it.

I kindly told him that I dlsliked the smoke of a cigar very much, and that I would rather he would not smoke it. He said: "All right; just as you say," and put the cigar back into his pocket.

We had not gone far, however, when he took it from his pocket again. Then he told me that if I would let him smoke just that one, he would not ask to smoke another; but I felt that I had a right to refuse him, and I did so. Presently he said that if I would let him smoke that cigar, he would get me a cigarette. This I openly refused, and told him that if he wanted to smoke as badly at that, he might get out and walk while he did it, or I would—just whichever he chose to do.

What do you suppose he did? I will tell you. He put the cigar right back in his pocket, and never said another word about it. I kept company with him for some time after that, but never again did he offer to smoke in my company.

I do not know whether he was trying to get me to give up to him, or that he wanted to see how firm I would be. I have always been thankful that I did not let him smoke in my presence at that time, for it is more than likely he would have kept it up.

Tobacco-using in any form is very distasteful to me. I think it was a golden opportunity to do good; and if we neglect a duty of this kind, it may be as a pearl lost. I do not know whether the young man thought me unkind, or whether he respected me for standing up for my rights; but it must have had an influence, although it may have been small. But, dear girls, use your influence for good. Though it may be small, you cannot tell what good may come from it.

I was in one of the larger cities in Southern Illinois, some time ago, and noticed that more than half of the young men and middled-aged men were addicted to the use of cigars and cigarettes. And I have seen little boys puffing away, as large as life, when they really ought not to have known what a cigar looked like. Oh, I cannot tell you how very sad it makes me feel to see a fine, noble-looking young man smoking; I do not have the respect for him that I would otherwise. The most of us know some of the bad effects of tobacco on the system, in one way and another; but it is better understood by those that have been more closely connected with it.

Dear girls, most of you have an influence, and if you would just watch your opportunity for using it, you may be the instrument, in God's hand, for doing a wonderful amount of good to those around you. Oh, never, never tell a young man that you like the odor of tobacco used in any form, or encourage the use of it in any way, or entice them to smoke, as I have known girls to do; for you may be the means of doing a great deal of harm if you should; but, instead, say what you can against it in a polite, easy manner, and there are very few young men that will not respect you for your interest in them, in after-life, if they do not at the time. Who can tell what a kind word may do in this direction? Young ladies realize too little the influence they have over others.

Buda, Ill.

THE PURPOSE OF AFFLICTION.

Afflictions do not spring out of the dust. Do not be impatient with them; we need something to soften this hard life. Oh, if it were all buying, selling, getting gain, outrunning one another in a race for wealth, in which the racers take no time to record themselves, there would be no gardens on the face of the earth, no places consecrated to floral beauty, no houses built for music, no churches set up for prayer. But affliction helps to keep us right; affliction helps to bring us to our knees. Poverty says: "Think, fool, think."

Affliction opens the Bible at right places. If you, strong man, with the radiant face and full pocket, were to open the Bible, it would open upside down and at nothing. But you, broken-hearted mother; you, child of sickness; you, orphan and lonely one, your Bible falls open always at the right place. Give me your family Bible and I will tell your history. The Bible of the strong, prosperous, rich man, 'tis like himself; well kept—too well. Hand me yours, man of the broken heart and the tear-stained cheeks and the reddened eye and the furrowed brow. Ah! all marks and thumbings and turnings down and marginal notes and pencil indications—thirty-third Psalm, fourth of Isaiah, a hundred places in Jeremiah, including the Lamentations—why, I need no concordance to this Bible if I want to seek out the promises. I see your guest has been sorrow, and the hospitality you have offered him has been patience. If you would know the value of the Bible in the house, consult those who have needed it most, and abide by their sweet reply.—Joseph Parker, D.D.

A SAILOR'S BIBLE.

On the voyage of the "Lord Canonbury" from the Philippine Islands to England, a sailor, twenty-one years of age, fell from the mizzen top-gallant cross-tree to the deck and was fatally injured. Capt. H—— gently told the lad that recovery was impossible, and tenderly asked what he could do for him in his last moments. The dying boy pointed to his chest and asked for his Bible, the gift of his mother, and placing his finger on the fly-leaf, gasped: "Oh, sir, please read." With eyes wet with tears, Capt. H—— read the following: "May 16, 1884, my dear Joe's 18th birthday. Stick to this Bible, Joe, and never forget to read it. Let it always be your guide. When you read it think of your poor mother, who is always praying for her Joe. But thanks be to God which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. (1 Cor. 15: 57.) That I may know him and the power of his resurrection. (Phil. 3: 10.)"

As the above was read the picture in the forecastle was very impressive. As the sailors crowded about the lad's side they wept aloud, for tender-hearted sailors are sympathetic. Joe begged the captain to send the Bible to his mother in Hartlepool and tell her of his death, and—best of all—that he believed in a risen Saviour.

In due time Capt. H—— carried out this request to the letter, testifying to the mother that her earnest prayers in her son's behalf had been answered. Mothers' Bibles have a potent power, and many a sailor has been brought to the Master's feet as he has read the writing on the fly-leaf of his mother's Bible.—The Sailors' Magazine.

"FRITZ."

Fritz is a large gray and white cat. Fritz and his mother, Gyp, belong to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Heath. Both are cats of unusual size and beauty. Fritz is an amateur acrobat of considerable ability, and will roll over, jump through a hoop and turn somersaults at word of command.

Two years ago there was mourning in the house of Heath. Fritz had suddenly disappeared. At night Gyp came into the house, snipped at the basket she and Fritz had occupied together since the latter's kittenhood, and walked disconsolately away. The Heaths thought perhaps their pet had been carried across the canal and could not get back, so they wandered in Finegan avenue and the purlieus of the Fourth ward, and searched diligently, but he could not be found. Time heals broken hearts, and as the months passed all but Gyp forgot the missing member of the household. She could not be induced to go near the accustomed bed still kept for her by the fire, and refused to be comforted.

A little more than two weeks ago she jumped into the basket for the first time since Fritz's disappearance, and lying down began to purr contentedly. A few days afterward Mr. Heath and his wife returned from an evening call. A cat, which they in the darkness supposed to be Gyp, was crying on the doorstep, and as they opened the door it ran into the hallway and out again as quickly. Later in the evening Mrs. Heath heard crying at the door, and being possessed of a tender heart toward suffering animals, proposed going down to bring in the poor thing, which had proved not to be Gyp, and give it something to eat. As she opened the door the cat darted into the hallway and up the stairs to the Heath apartments. When it came into the lighted sitting-room Mrs. Heath exclaimed: "Why, Tom, it's Fritz!"

Hearing his name, Fritz bounded into Mrs. Heath's lap, from her's to her husband's, turned somersaults, rolled over and performed all the tricks he had been taught, as if to thoroughly identify himself, or to express his joy at getting home. There was little doubt then of its being Fritz, but to make assurance doubly sure a small stick was thrown down the stairs into the dark hallway.

"Go get it, Fritz," said Mr. Heath, and the cat darted downstairs, returning instantly with the stick triumphantly balanced in his mouth—a trick, by the way, common enough with retrievers, but that few cats have ever been taught to perform. After a good supper the reclaimed Fritz went straight to the basket behind the stove and cuddled down contented. Gyp, seeming at once to recognize her prodigal son, fell on his neck and kissed him.

Fritz now stays very closely at home. His two years' absence seems to have given him an increased regard for the shadows of the family roof-tree.

A strange question, and one which should interest psychologists, is this: Did the old cat receive some telepathic information that Fritz was about to return, which dispelled her aversion to the basket, or was it simply a coincidence?—Syracuse Journal.

WHO ARE "POOR FOLKS?"

Polly was a bright and beautiful child, who, with a brother older than herself, carried home the laundry work to her mother's patrons. She was always neatly dressed, and had a happy smile and a cheerful voice.

One day Polly carried home some fine laces to a lady in a hotel. The servant told her the lady was ill, and could not be disturbed, but Polly had had strict orders not to trust her package with anyone else; so she ventured to go upstairs.

She stood at the door for a moment, and then tapped very lightly, saying to herself, "If she is asleep, that won't wake her, and if she's awake, she will answer."

In a moment a low voice asked, "Is that you, Bridget?"

"No, ma'am," replied Polly, putting her lips very close to the keyhole and speaking in a loud whisper, "It's Paulina Brown, that folks call 'Little Polly.' I have a very particular message for you, and I won't disturb you a bit if you will let me in."

The lady could not help saying, "Come in," in answer to this modest request.

She was in trouble, and that had caused her a sick headache. She lay there all alone in a darkened room, with no one to care whether she got better or not.

Polly had just come from a bright, sunny room, with a gay rag carpet on the floor, and bright flowers growing in the windows; and this room, with its heavy draperies, looked gloomy to her. She went up to the bed and gave her message in a low, soft voice, and then said: "Oh, Mrs. Ball, I'm so sorry for you! You haven't any husband nor little girl to comfort you when you are sick. My mother has father, and Tommy, and me, and the baby. Sometimes when she has her tired headaches, I can drive them off just with my own hands and a little bay water. I don't suppose you would let me sit upon your nice bed, and bathe your head, would you?"

"Yes, Polly; I am always glad to have such a tidy little girl near me. You will find bay water in that pink bottle on the bureau," said Mrs. Ball.

While the little, soft hands were passing over her troubled brow, the lady said, "Polly, I think your family are the happiest 'poor people' I ever met."

"Oh, Mrs. Ball, we're not 'poor people,'" cried Polly, with a queer laugh. "There are three poor families in our house, but we are rich—almost. We were rich once, and had half a house, though we're not so rich now, since father lost his arm; but as mother can do up laces so beautifully, we're pretty rich still. We do lots of things to help the poor folks in the house, and other poor folks, too."

"What can you do for them?" asked the lady.

"Oh, we save Mrs. Crane's coal by letting her steep her tea in our kitchen—days that she can keep warm by sitting in the sun—and we take care of Mrs. Barnes' baby whenever she gets a day's work, and mother always makes broth enough on Wednesdays to share with some one that's poor."

"Who do you call 'poor folks,' Polly?" asked the lady.

Polly had no definition ready, but, after thinking for a moment, she replied, "Poor folks are folks that don't have everything they want."

"Then you have everything you want?" asked Mrs. Ball.

"Yes, ma'am," replied Polly innocently. "We all have Sabbath clothes, besides our common ones; and we have good things to eat—mother bakes all our bread and pies herself—and we have a real nice kitchen to work and eat in—without a bed in it, like poor folks; and we buy a whole ton of coal at once, instead of lots of bushels."

And so little Polly prattled on in a low, pleasant voice, till the lady really felt better, and said so.

"I'll tell you what's another real good thing to drive the rest of it off,—air and sunlight. Mother never shuts up for a headache," said the little nurse.

Here Polly looked at the bronze clock, and said, "It's time now for the baby to wake up, and I shall have to go as soon as I let in a little of my sun and air; but I'll come in any time when you have the headache, and cure you again."

"Thank you, my good little girl; you have almost cured me now," said Mrs. Ball. "In my closet you will find a large paper bag full of oranges; take them home and share them with the 'poor folks' in your house."

The rich little girl ran home in glee to divide the treasures with the less fortunate.

The poor lady lay alone, to reflect on the lesson she had just received. She had lost twenty thousand dollars, but she had thirty thousand left; and, instead of being thankful for that, she was bewailing her fate, as if she was next to a pauper. She would still have all the comforts, although a few less of the luxuries of life; and, as she remembered now, no one but herself would suffer by the change, for she had never helped "the poor folks in the house," nor out of it, as Polly's mother was doing.

"Poor folks," she said to herself, "are folks who haven't everything they want. I haven't that twenty thousand, and I never can have it again. But I can learn to be happy on less, and to share even what I have with others."

A ray of "Polly's sun" peeped in, and a breath of her pure air was wafted toward her; and she rose, saying, "Because I have lost some of my fortune, I need not therefore throw away my health, the best of all my blessings."

In Polly's sense of the word, the poor are often found amid elegance and luxury, and the truly rich in humble dwellings.—Selected.

TEMPERANCE.

THE TWO GLASSES.

There sat two glasses, filled to the brim,
On a rich man's table, rim to rim;
One was ruddy and red as blood,
And one as clear as the crystal flood.

Said the glass of wine to the paler brother,
"Let us tell the tales of the past to each other.
I can tell of banquet and revel and mirth,
And the proudest and grandest souls on earth
Fell under my touch as though struck by blight,
Where I was king, for I ruled in might.
From the heads of kings I have torn the crown;
From the heights of fame I have hurled men down;
I have blasted many an honored name;
I have taken virtue and given shame;
I have tempted the youth with a sip, a taste,
That has made his future a barren waste.
Far greater than a king am I,
Or than any army beneath the sky;
I have made the arm of the driver fail,
And sent the train from the iron rail;
I have made good ships go down at sea,
And the shrieks of the lost were sweet to me,
For they said, 'Behold, how great you be,
Fame, strength, wealth, genius, before you fall,
For your might and power are over all!'
Ho! ho! pale brother," laughed the wine,
"Can you boast of deeds as great as mine?"

Said the water glass, "I cannot boast
Of a king dethroned or a murdered host,
But I can tell of a heart, once sad,
By my crystal drops made light and glad—
Of thirsts I've quenched, of brows I've laved,
Of hands I've cool'd, of souls I have sav'd;
I have leaped through the valley, dashed down the mountain,
Flow'd in the river and play'd in the fountain,
Slept in the sunshine and dropped from the sky,
And everywhere gladdened the landscape and eye;
I have eased the hot forehead of fever and pain;
I have made the parched meadows grow fertile with grain;
I can tell of the powerful wheel of the mill
That ground out the flour and turned at my will;
I can tell of the manhood debased by you
That I lifted up and crowned anew.
I cheer, I help, I strengthen and aid;
I gladden the heart of man and maid;
I set the wine-chained captive free,
And all are better for knowing me."

These are the tales they told each other—
The glass of wine and its paler brother—
As they sat together, filled to the brim,
On the rich man's table, rim to rim.

—Pittsburgh Post.

A PROPOSED LAW TO PUNISH DRUNKARDS.

The British parliament has before it the report of a committee recommending a much more drastic method of dealing with drunkards than British law now permits. This committee was appointed under the Salisbury government and has among its members several eminent physicians and the superintendent of the Broadmore Criminal lunatic asylum. Under an act passed in 1879 there were established some retreats or reformatories for the treatment and cure of drunkards who chose to go to them voluntarily. This committee finds that a considerable portion of the drunkards who enter these reformatories are cured and that more would be if they would remain longer; therefore they recommend that parliament give magistrates the power to send these dipsomaniacs to these retreats for a period not exceeding two years.

This commitment may be made on petition of the relatives of the inebriates or at the discretion of the magistrate, and it subjects the drunkard to a rigorous discipline and close confinement if necessary. A drunkard may still be admitted to these retreats on his own petition, but once in he must stay there until discharged as cured. He may select his own retreat, whether sentenced or going voluntarily there, and such property as he has would be liable for his and his family's maintenance during his confinement. The poorer classes are to be provided for out of the public treasury or in public asylums.

The semi-criminal class of habitual drunkards with whom the police have to deal are to be subject to an indeterminate sentence, which shall be not less than a year, upon their third conviction for drunkenness or neglect of their families. It is also proposed to give the police in the large towns and cities the power to arrest without a warrant all persons found drunk on the public streets or in public places and lock them up until they can be tried before a magistrate.

These last suggestions of the committee are regarded as bold and almost revolutionary, for the right of the Briton to be drunk on the streets has been regarded as an inalienable one. Public sentiment is said, however, to approve the recommendations of this committee, which are largely based on the legislation in force in several of our States, and they are likely to be enacted by the commons and probably by the lords also.—St. Louis Star-Sayings.

ANTI-SALOON LEGISLATION.

Rev. Joseph Cook recently wrote to the Northwestern Congregationalist: "The next step is to rescue voters who are church members from the inconsistency of excluding rumsellers from church membership and yet, at the same time, voting to legalize rum-selling. Most Protestant churches exclude the rum-seller from church membership. All voters that favor this wise and righteous measure ought in common honor to refuse to legalize the rum-seller's business. There are 5,000,000 voters in the United States who are church members. If they would act independently and vote together on the temperance question, there is no political party that they could not bring to terms.

"Many serious men are meditating on such a reorganization of politics, State and national, as will deliver the churches from all blame for the continuance of State sanction of solicitation to vice. We have all lived to see slavery made an outlaw. Why is it incredible that the liquor traffic, which destroys more property and more lives than slavery did in any one year before the civil war, should itself be made also an outlaw by both State and national constitutional enactment.

"When the path to political preferment leads through the gin-mills, free government is a farce and its future is likely to be a tragedy. No American political party can be permanently preserved in whisky."

GILDED SALOONS THE MOST DANGEROUS.

Think of it! $250,000 worth of paintings adorning the walls of one saloon in this city! How enticing the devil is making his snares! Give us a hundred low groggeries, with their sawdust-covered floors, their barren walls and greasy tables, where the air is thick and foul with tobacco smoke, and where curses come thick and fast from the lips of drunken loafers! Yes, give us a thousand of low dens, where every sight is repulsive to clean young men, in preference to one such as this, with its glitter and beauty, its cut-glass mirrors and costly paintings, its brilliantly decorated bar with its shining decanters and bright rows of glasses, its great soft plush-covered chairs where "tired young men can rest."

These are the places that start young men. They, with the fashionable club and bar, are the twin palaces of Satan.—Chicago Ledger.

A call has been issued for a reception to Gen. Neal Dow in honor of his ninetieth birthday, and for an international congress, to be held at Prohibition Park, Staten Island, June 3–5. All local, state, and national temperance societies, and all churches and other organizations, which hate the saloon, are requested to send representatives to the congress. The object of the congress is to review the entire field of battle, to compare in friendly discussion the conflicting views of temperance people, to come as nearly as possible to an agreement, so that there may be less waste of strength and disputations, and to take such steps as may be necessary to place the teaching of temperance hygiene in the public schools on the basis of a fixed study.

BIBLE LESSON.

STUDIES IN THE BOOKS OF MOSES.

LESSON VI.—Second Quarter, 1894, May 6.

SUBJECT.—Joseph's Last Days.—Gen. 50: 14-26.

GOLDEN TEXT.—The path of the just is as the shining light, that shineth more and more unto the perfect day.—Prov. 4: 18.

| Open the Bible and read the lesson. |

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Gen. 50: 14-26. T.—Gen. 50: 1-13. W.—Ex. 13: 17-22. Th.—Josh. 24: 29-33. F.—Matt. 5: 43-48. S.—Psa. 37: 25-37. Su.—Prov. 4: 10-18.

COMMENTS BY E. E. FLAGG.

1. The burial of Jacob. Vs. 14, 15. The troubled life of the venerable patriarch had a beautiful and peaceful close, and according to his wish his body was taken to Canaan for interment in the cave of Machpelah. We have no account in the Bible of such another funeral procession as attended Jacob to his last resting-place. It comprised not only the Hebrews themselves, but members of the royal household, and the highest dignitaries in the land of Egypt, with detachments of military; a most imposing cavalcade for one who had all his life been a simple shepherd, "a plain man dwelling in tents," apart from the stir and glitter of camps and courts. "And Joseph returned into Egypt, he and his brethren." The last pious duty of affection to his aged parent had been performed. We can see from verse 1 how, with his warm, affectionate nature, he mourned for the beloved parent who once mourned so bitterly for him when thinking that he should see the face of his favorite son no more. But other duties remained to be performed, and Joseph was not the man to be so absorbed in his own selfish sorrow as to forget the claims of the living. They said, "Joseph will peradventure hate us." They could not understand the strong, noble, forgiving nature with which they had to deal. So the wicked judge the motives of the good by their own. They forget that the Christian stands on an altogether different plane, and views the injuries done him from a standpoint so high that he can afford to overlook them.

2. Joseph's dream fulfilled. Vs. 16–18. First they sent a messenger to Joseph, begging him to forgive them, because their father before he died had commanded it. We find no record of such a command anywhere else, and we cannot but think that Jacob understood too well the noble and magnanimous character of Joseph to consider a formal exhortation, like this, necessary. But there are lessons here to note. 1. We are to forgive our enemies because our Father commands it. He has made it one of the chief signs by which we may be sure that we belong to him. 2. We are to be especially careful to forgive a Christian brother or sister, if we feel that they have given us just cause for grievance. He or she, whatever their shortcomings, is a servant of the God of our Father. "And Joseph wept when they spake unto him." Although an Old Testament character, the love which suffereth long and is kind, which showeth mercy even as it hath obtained mercy, was never more fully exemplified than in Joseph. "And his brethren also went and fell down before his face." Here we have his youthful dream exactly fulfilled, and they themselves, their very malice and rage against him, had been the instruments of its fulfillment. Our early visions are more often realized than we think. Then it behooves us, in our dreams of the future, to cherish only the purest and loftiest. Let the young aspire to be rulers of themselves, bringing all their habits, appetites and desires into subjection, making them as vassals to bow before them—their servants, but never their masters. There is also another important suggestion. We are promised that if we delight ourselves in the Lord, he shall give us the desire of our hearts. We are not told how or when, or what untoward means the Lord will make work for our good, as in the case of Joseph, but such a promise should be a star of hope in the darkest night.

3. Joseph consoles his brethren. Vs. 19–21. "Fear not." So Christ our Elder Brother says Fear not, when our hearts are heavy with thoughts of our past sin and our present coldness, and we dread the thought of standing for judgment before him, lest he refuse altogether to receive such unprofitable servants. "I will nourish you and your little ones." So he has promised to care for his people from the cradle to the grave. "Spake kindly." The literal Hebrew is, "spake to their hearts." So he speaks to our hearts when weary and heavy laden. The true communion with our Master which brings with it the sense of sins forgiven is always heart communion.

4 Joseph's last days. Vs. 22–26. Joseph saw his descendants to the fourth generation, and died full of years and honors. But it is about his last words that our interest chiefly centers. Death as a rule strips away all masks, and shows the real man. Joseph's faith in God, which sustained him and kept him scathless "in the fierce light which beats upon a throne," shines out gloriously in his last hours. "God will surely visit you." To all outward appearances the Israelites had found a permanent dwelling-place in Egypt. They were prosperous and happy in the land of their adoption; but so sure was Joseph that God's promise would be fulfilled he made them swear that they would carry his bones with them when they left Egypt. So Joseph died having passed through the whole gamut of human experience, an Israelite indeed in whom was no guile.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY.

—In connection with the removal of the American Tract Society in New York to its new quarters at 10 East Twenty-third street, the Publisher's Weekly gives the following interesting facts about the society's work: It has issued 472,767 copies of "Pilgrim's Progress," 512,000 of "Baxter's Call to the Unconverted," 832,877 of "Dew Drops," 400,000 New Testaments, with notes, 141,000 "Nelson on Infidelity," 141,000 "Pike's Persuasives to Early Piety," 181,000 "Doddridge's Rise and Progress of Religion in the Soul," 263,550 Baxter's "Saint's Rest," 339,240 "Songs for Little Ones at Home," and 223,260 Bible dictionaries.

BAPTIST.

—In the United States there are, now (1894), 38,122 Baptist churches, 25,354 ordained ministers, 1,498 associations, and an aggregate church-membership of 3,496,988. The grand total, including all other countries throughout the world where Baptists are found, shows an aggregate of 44,069 churches, 29,871 ordained ministers and a membership of 4,184,507. The number of members received by baptism, during the year, was, in the United States, 176,077, throughout the world, 221,724; received by restoration in our own country, 25,074; by letter, 88,071; making of additions in all ways, in the United States, 289,222.—Standard.

CHRISTIAN PHILOSOPHY.

—The American School of Christian Philosophy will hold its annual session at Chautauqua, N. Y., July 5 to 12. Among the speakers are Dr. Amory H. Bradford, Professor Purves of Princeton, Dean George Hodges of the Protestant Episcopal theological seminary, Cambridge, Vice-chancellor McCracken of New York, Pres. H. M. Booth of Auburn, Prof. Graham Taylor of Chicago, Pres. W. G. Balentine of Oberlin, and Dr. George Dana Boardman of Philadelphia. The subjects for discussion will be "The Incarnation" and "The Re-union of Christendom."

CONGREGATIONAL.

—The Congregational Church Building Society, during 1893, paid out $126,032 in aid of new buildings, and $20,108 in aid of parsonages. The society since 1852 has received for such work $2,524,568, and has aided 2,445 churches and 429 parsonages.

—President Blanchard's paper, read before the Chicago Association of Congregational ministers, had for its topic "The Puritans vs. Baptists, Quakers and Witches." He proved from history that Roger Williams was not banished for his religion, but because he was disorderly and uncontrollable. They had either to banish him or to make him dictator. He was not an immersionist when he was banished, but he could not afterwards get along with the church which he himself had made. In reference to the banishment of the Quakers, the President said, we are apt to think of them as the harmless, inoffensive persons which they are to-day. Such was not the case. They were banished, not because of their religion, but because they were factious and disorderly. In the witchcraft craze which swept over the world the Puritans were by no means the extremest participants. Innocent VIII., issued a bull which caused the death of thousands as witches. In Geneva 500 persons suffered death. In England they perished by hundreds. Moreover the judges which condemned the Salem witches were not elected by the people. It may be asked, then, why the Puritans have been specially stigmatized as persecutors. They loved God, to which no man objects; but they also hated the devil, which invariably creates trouble.

EVANGELICAL.

—The Rev. John McNeill, the well-known Scotch evangelist, has been conducting a brief but remarkable mission at Brighton, England, and is now on his way to South Africa, where he hopes to spend some time in Gospel work.

—Rev. Father Lambert, who lately left the Roman Catholic church, spoke to an immense audience at the revival meeting at Cooper Institute recently. He called upon the people to open their eyes and note the grasp the Pope was getting upon America and American institutions. He declared that Catholics are denied the liberty of speech and the liberty of thought, and that so long as they remained members of the Catholic church they were mere serfs and slaves.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL.

—The funds of the American University have been increased by a late donor to $1,000,000. The name of the contributor has not yet been made public. He is said, however, to be a wealthy Northern man. Toward the erection of Asbury hall, one of the buildings to be attached to the university, $65,000 have been pledged by ministers. In about two months the work on the foundation of the main structure will be begun.

—The Epworth League, which is confined to the Methodist Episcopal church alone, has, with its juniors, a membership nearly half as large as that of the Christian Endeavor society, which has about 1,800,000 members in thirty-one denominations in all parts of the world. Including the Methodist Episcopal church, South, and the Methodist church of Canada there are now 1,000,000 Epworth Leaguers.

PRESBYTERIAN.

—The sub-committee of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church on theological seminaries had a meeting recently in Cincinnati, at which they formulated a plan for the more efficient control of the seminaries by the church. This will be submitted to the general committee before it is given to the public.

—The one hundred and sixth General Assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America will meet in the First Presbyterian church, Saratoga. N. Y., Thursday, May 17, and will be opened with a sermon by the retiring moderator, Rev. Willis G. Craig, D. D., LL. D.

PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL.

—Bishop McLaren, of Chicago, declined to allow the students of the Episcopal Seminary to unite with the students of the Baptist, Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational seminaries at their annual re-union, alleging that there was not much in common between his boys and the others. And yet the amiable bishop was one of the formulators of the bishops' general overture on Christian union! It is wicked to laugh at a bishop, and therefore we cannot commend such doings.—Interior.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

—The following figures in reference to the Sunday-schools in this country and in the world were given at the recent meeting of the International Sunday-school Committee: Number of schools in the United States 121,977, officers and teachers 1,303,254, scholars 9,688,506—total 11,113,557. In the whole world there are: Schools 224,563, officers and teachers 2,239,738, scholars 20,268,923—total 22,732,224.

UNITARIAN.

—The Independent, in an article under the caption, "Lowering the Christian Flag," takes notice of the fact that in a modified constitution prepared by a committee of which Dr. E. E. Hale is chairman, the National Unitarian Conference practically repudiates the Christian position it has heretofore claimed for itself, and now welcomes the fellowship and co-operation of all of every name who can unite with us." This is understood to put the conference upon a basis "which will allow the disciples of Judaism, Buddhism, Brahminism, Theosophy, Ethical Culture, and practically any other faith or form of ethics to enter into the Unitarian fellowship." In the report of the organizing committee article nine of the Unitarian constitution is dropped out altogether, and nothing is proposed to take its place. It is as follows: "Reaffirming our allegiance to the Gospel of Jesus Christ, and desiring to secure the largest unity of the spirit, and the widest practical co-operation, we invite to our fellowship all who wish to be followers of Christ."

LITERATURE.

The Preacher's Magazine for April, edited by Revs. Mark Guy Pearse and Arthur E. Gregory, has for its leading sermon, Guidance and Glory, by President H. C. G. Moule. Dr. Geo. G. Findlay writes on Faith and Duty, and Rev. Mark Guy Pearse on The Vision of God, being one of the chapters of his excellent series of articles entitled Moses—His Life and Its Lessons. Rev. W. Hay Aitken contributes an able paper on Mission or Revival Preaching. The Homiletical Department is, as usual, complete. Among the contributors are Revs. Gordon Calthrop, W. L. Watkinson, Wm. J. Holtzclaw, and C. S. Laird. Rev. J. Reid Howatt contributes a Children's Sermon, for which he has chosen the title, Well Grounded. Notes and Illustrations, Notes on the International Sunday School Lessons, Books of the Bible, Great Bible Words, are among the other departments and articles. One of the features of this magazine is the Outline Addresses on the Golden Texts of the International Sunday School Lessons. They are most suggestive, and will be found very helpful to the Sunday School superintendent and pastor. This homiletical magazine is published monthly at 15 cents per copy, or $1.50 per year. Wilbur B. Ketcham, Publisher, 2 Cooper Union, New York.

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

231 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. ☞ A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 65 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers. 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Allyn's Ritual of Freemasonry by Avery Allyn contains the fully Illustrated Ritual of the Blue Lodge, Chapter Council and Commandery, .11 of the Scotch Rite Degrees, Several Masonic side degrees and what is termed a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, the Orange and Odd-fellows Societies. Price in cloth $5.00.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor. Profusely illustrated with explanatory engravings, and containing the ritual and work of the order for the seven degrees, including the Royal Arch. Though extensively used as an Instruction Book and one of the best in the market it is not as accurate as "Freemasonry Illustrated," the first book on catalogue. Price in cloth, $2 50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry. Containing the ceremonies of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, etc. Illustrated. Although extensively used in conferring the higher degrees, it is not only very incomplete but inaccurate especially as regards the first seven degrees, and as to the higher degrees it gives but a description and general idea of the degrees rather than the full ritual. Price in cloth, $1.25; Paper covers, 75c.

Look to the East. A Ritual of the first three Masonic Degrees by Ralph Lester. Price in cloth $2.00. Notwithstanding the high price this book is very inferior in every way to Freemasonry Illustrated or The Handbook of Freemasonry at a quarter the price.

Ecce Orienti. The Complete Standard Ritual of the First Three Masonic Degrees in Cypher, with complete Floor Charts of Initiating, Passing and Raising a Candidate. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Cabala. The Complete Standard Ritual of the Chapter Masonic Degrees; 4th to 7th inclusive, in Cypher. Giving the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master and Royal Arch, Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Council of the Orient. The Complete Standard Ritual of Council Masonic Degrees in Cypher, 8th to 10th inclusive. Giving the Degrees of Royal Master, Select Master and Super Excellent Master. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

Knights of the Orient. The complete Ritual of the Commandery Masonic Degrees, Knights of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta, 11th to 13th degrees. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

The Mystic Shrine Illustrated. An Illustrated Ritual of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. This is a Side Masonic degree conferred only on Knights Templar and on Thirty-two degree Masons. 15 cts. each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion. 5 cents each.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50cts.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Odd-fellowship: Its History and its Work. By President J. Blanchard. A neat pamphlet with cover. Postpaid. 5 cts.

OTHER RITUALS.

Revised Knights of Pythias Illustrated. An exact copy of the new Official Ritual Adopted by the Supreme Lodge of the World, with the Secret work added and fully Illustrated. In cloth 50 cts. Paper cover 25 cts.

Knights of the Orient Illustrated. The full Illustrated Ritual of Ancient Order of the Orient, or the Oriental degree, This is a side degree conferred mostly in Knights of Pythias lodges. 15 cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and council. 25cts each.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin. Illustrated with engravings. 25 cents each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords etc. 15cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated, "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each.

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

Knights of Labor Illustrated ("Adelphon Kruptos.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

History Nat'l Christian Association. Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

Folly, Expense and Danger of Secret Societies. By Pres. C. A. Blanchard. This booklet of 32 pages is a general discussion of the secret orders, whether religious, political, industrial, insurance or social. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Disloyal Secret Oaths. By Joseph Cook, Boston. He quotes the law of Vermont which makes the administration of the Masonic oaths illegal. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing? An address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891. W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's, too." A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void: or Freemasonry Self-Convicted. This is a book for the times. The design of the author is to refute the arguments of those who claim that the oaths of Freemasonry are binding upon those who take them. 207 pages. Postpaid, 40 cents each.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the lodge when S. H. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry. 15 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 300 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Masonry a Work of Darkness, adverse to Christianity, and inimical to republican government. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian) a seceding Mason of 21 degrees. 15 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. J. Day Brownlee. In reply to a Masonic Oration by Rev. Dr. Mayer, Wellsville, Ohio. 5 cents each.

Masonic Outrages. Compiled by Rev. H. H. Hinman. Showing Masonic assault on lives of seceders, on reputation, and on free speech; its interference with justice in courts, etc. Postpaid, 20 cents.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife, of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

A Booklet of 107 pages, which includes "The Martyr's Own Monument," by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association; "Christian Politics," by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure; "The Mysterious Machine: Was it Lawn-mower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what?" by Prof. E. D. Bailey, of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government. Postpaid 25 cts.

Jonathan Blanchard's Sermons and Addresses. Select discourses of the first editor of the Cynosure. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of living reform, Secret Societies, The Sabbath, Temperance, National Reform, Christian Education, Christian Socialism, The Bible, etc. A book everybody should read. 12mo. Fine photogravure portrait. Price, 75 cents.

American Handbook and Citizen Manual. By Manlove N. Butler. Contents: Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement. Over 200 pages. Paper, single copy, 40c.

Image of the Beast: A Secret Empire; or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy. By Rev. Richard Horton. Third edition. 200 pages. Cloth. Price, 60 cents.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages. paper cover. 25cts each.

Eminent Men on Secret Societies. Composed of "Washington Opposed to Secret Societies," "Judge Whitney's Defence," "The Mystic Tie," "Narratives and Arguments," the "Anti-mason's Scrap-Book" and "Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry as Proved in the New Berlin Trials," 328 pages, cloth $1.00.

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear array of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Prof. J. G Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies. A most convincing argument against fellowshiping Freemasons in the Christian church. 10 cents each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have. 5 cents each.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher. In cloth, 35cts each; paper covers, 15cts each.

Between Two Opinions: or the Question of the Hour. By Miss E. E. Flagg author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages, cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William M'Nary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury; "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion," and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth $1.00.

Stories of the Gods. By I. R. B. Arnold. Brief sketches from the mythology of Rome, Greece, Egypt, India, Persia, Phrygia, Scandinavia, Africa and America, showing the relations and unity of past and present systems. The idolatrous worship of the Masonic lodge is thus clearly seen and understood. Postpaid, 10 cents.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50cts each.

Home and Health.

(From the Vanguard.)

House-cleaning time is at hand in Northern States, and it is a matter of a great deal more importance than most people think to have it properly done. Some folks use a great deal of time in doing what may be called the ornamental part. A real wholesome cleaning will be thorough with everything whether it shows off or not. The garrets, closets, and recepticles for old rags and cast-off garments should all be thoroughly gone over. Do not forget the cellar, as much of the diphtheria and other contagious diseases of the times come from an unwholesome condition of the cellar. Look to the cistern and drains also; they are often neglected and a fruitful cause of disease. Do not think your house is clean until everything is in the best possible condition for health.

Spring biliousness is generally the result of a bad winter diet, especially one of pork, with its variety of dishes. This, with the abundant use of lard, mince pies, tea and coffee, clogs the system and encourages disease. Many die from this cause, while headaches, and general sluggishness are the common effects. The remedy is not in "bitters" or quinine, but in dieting, and in cleansing the system by thorough outward and inward washings with water, and by much open-air exercise.

Do not use pepper if you expect to be healthy and keep the victory over your appetites and passions. All such irritants inflame the system and incite disease. The natives of hot climates usually indulge in very highly seasoned food and use much pepper. Some suppose it necessary to use these stimulants; but the personal experience of some who have lived for years in a hot climate without using a bit of pepper, and who remain in excellent health, proves that hygienic living is as practicable in a hot climate as in a cold one.

Baldness is either hereditary or caused by sickness, mental exhaustion, wearing tightfitting hats, and over-work and trouble. Hall's Renewer will prevent it.

THE OBJECTS, WORK AND SECRET RITUAL of "The Nobles of the Mystic Shrine" have just been issued in a revised and enlarged edition. Price, in paper, 25 cents. This new order of Freemasonry, now so popular in this country as the basis of social hilarity among members of the higher degrees, claims to have originated in Arabia, and was revived in Egypt, and brought to America from France. It is interlarded with Mohammedan terms and worship; and its original objects as defined in its ritual, was inquisitorial and barbarous. Its prayers are addressed to "Allah," instead of the G. A. O. T. U., and it is quite as un-Christian as the devotees of the blue lodge would have it. The abridged edition is still sold for 15 cents. Address the National Christian Association, 221 West Madison street, Chicago.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES

MONTHLIES.
The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, Sunshine, each, per quar., 3c.

WEEKLIES.
L. & L. Infant Class, 4c.
L. & L. Intermediate Lesson Leaf.....1⅞c.
L. & L. Lesson Leaf, 1⅛c.
Golden Treasures (for every fifth Sunday) 1c.

QUARTERLIES.
LIGHT AND LIFE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY....5c.
" " " SCHOLAR'S " ....3c.
" " " INTERMEDIATE " ....3c.
" " " PRIMARY " ....3c.

Secretaries' Books, Class Registers, Reward Cards and Tickets, Charts, Maps, S. S. Libraries and other supplies. A large line of books, tracts, pamphlets, Bibles and Testaments at lowest prices.

BOOK AND PAMPHLET PRINTING
Done with neatness and dispatch. Send for estimates.

T. B. ARNOLD,
104-106 Franklin St., CHICAGO, ILL.

Mr. George W. Tuley
Benjamin, Missouri.

Good Advice Quickly Followed

Cured of Rheumatism by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"I was taken down with rheumatism over year ago. I was sick for over six months. Often I would have such pains that I could hardly endure them. A friend came to me and advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I took him at his word and got a bottle of it, and since have taken eight bottles of it.

It Has Cured Me

When the doctors could do me no good whatever. After being benefited so much from this medicine I describe Hood's Sarsaparilla as a wonderful medicine. I also advise every one who is troubled with rheumatism not to be without Hood's Sarsaparilla. I am a farmer, and the medicine has given me much energy and strength to perform my work." George W. Tuley, Benjamin, Missouri.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Hood's Pills are hand made, and perfect in proportion and appearance. 25c. a box.

—freed from their seeds and skins, as fresh and sweet as when fresh plucked, are the grapes in

The California Grape Cure

Concentrated and Perfectly Pure.

It's a royal drink and (you wouldn't know it, except by the good it does)—a medicine. It clears the vocal organs, soothes the nerves, purifies the blood and nourishes the weakest stomach.

Not a taint of alcohol is in it—it's suited for table or sick-room.

A	costs	at	or	Makes
pint	65	your	your	one-half
bottle	cents	grocers	druggists.	gallon.

A Booklet about it mailed free.

THE CALIFORNIA GRAPE FOOD CO.,
Los Gatos, Cal.

General Eastern Agency, 145 Broadway, N. Y.
General Pacific Agency, 408 Sutter St., San Francisco.
Chicago Selling Agent, Edwin E. Hills, 70 State St.

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer. Ennis, Texas.

THE GUIDING HAND;

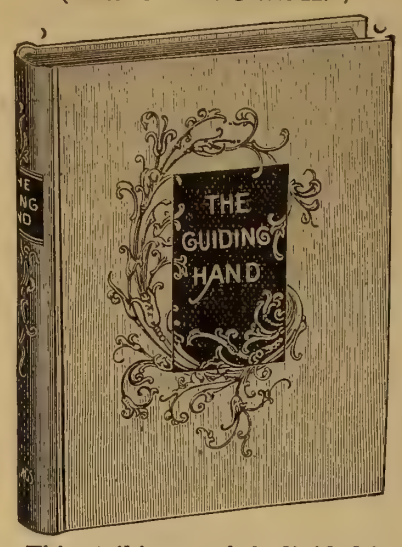
—OR—

PROVIDENTIAL DIRECTION.

—)o(—

Illustrated by authentic instances of Relief and Deliverance in times of Trouble and Perplexity; of Direction through Dreams and Mental Impressions, and of Providential Guidance, resulting in Conversion. Recorded and collected by

H. L. HASTINGS,
(Editor of "The Christian.")



This striking work is divided into three parts as follows:

(1) Providences in Relief and Deliverances. (2) Dreams and Impressions. (3) Conversions.

The "Guiding Hand" contains nearly 400 pages. It is really a handsome book, printed on heavy book paper, from large open type, good for the eyes, and artistically and durably bound in fine cloth, with fancy panels. Price, $1.50.

National Christian Ass'n.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

A BOOKLET.

107 pages, 5x7 inches.

Paper Cover, Postpaid, 15 Cents

—o:o—

The following addresses form part of the contents of this booklet:

The Martyr's Own Monument, by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association.

Christian Politics, by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure.

The Mysterious Machine: was it Lawnmower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what? by Prof. E. D. Bailey of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government.

This booklet includes other interesting matter connected with the unveiling of the Morgan monument at Batavia, N. Y. Address

National Christian Ass'n.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

JONATHAN BLANCHARD'S

—]-oo-[—

SERMONS AND ADDRESSES.

Select discourses of the late editor of the Cynosure and leader in our reform. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of

LIVING REFORM.

Secret Societies,
The Sabbath,
Temperance,
National Reform,
Christian Education,
Christian Socialism,
The Bible, Etc., Etc.

A BOOK EVERYBODY SHOULD READ

12mo. Fine Photogravure Portrait.

Price, 75 Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

Secrecy vs. the Family, State and Church. By Rev. M. S. Dury. The antagonism of organized secrecy to the welfare of the family, state and church, is clearly shown. 10cts each.

The New World of Central Africa.

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness, with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. 12mo., 530 pages with maps, portraits and numerous illustrations.$2.00

"A conscientious piece of work, and gives a very clear account of what has been done by the Protestant missions to evangelize the barbarous races of Central Africa. * * * He who wants to know what missionary effort means in these days may well learn from this volume. * * * The reader who goes carefully through will have a good bird's eye view of recent events in Africa, with all the results of modern travel. * * The work contains solid information of use to all who are interested in the future of this wonderful country. The many illustrations throw light upon savage customs and costumes."—Graphic.

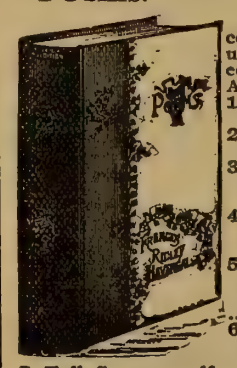
In the Far East.

Letters from China by Geraldine Guinness, edited by her sister, with introduction by Rev. J. Hudson Taylor. Very fully illustrated. Quarto cloth, ...$1.50

This book was scarcely written—it was lived; for the breath of life is in it from cover to cover. * * * We have never read so wonderful an account of successful missionary effort.—Presbyterian.

We easily understand how this edition is the fifteenth thousand. It is a very remarkable book.—The Golden Rule.

Frances Ridley Havergall's Poems.



Author's edition complete. The only unabridged authorized edition published in America.

1. 12mo., 880 pages, cloth, beveled....2.00
2. Beveled boards, full gilt.....2.50
3. Half white vellum, gilt top, uncut edges, ...2.50
4. French morocco padded, roll red under gold edges...4.00
5. Persian calf, padded and embossed, gilt roll and r. g. 5.00
6. Crushed levant, elegant.....6.00
7. Full German calf, padded, elegant, gilt, rd. cors.....7.50

Miss Havergall stands without peer in the English language in the department of religious poetry.

"The book in paper and binding is all that could be desired."—Publishers' Weekly.

Small Books by Miss Havergall.
Bound in elegant illuminated board
Kept for the Master's Use .....
My King; Daily Thoughts for the King's Children.....

Works of Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

Sermon Notes. Covering all the Bible from Genesis to Revelation. 4 vols.....4.00
Feathers for Arrows. A volume of Choice Extracts, 12mo., cloth.....1.00
Twelve Striking Sermons..... 50
Twelve Soul Winning Sermons, ... 50
Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection 50
Twelve New Year Sermons..... 50
Twelve Christmas Sermons..... 50

Notes by C. H. M.

On Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy.

Mr. D. L. Moody says of these books: "They have been to me a very key to the Scriptures."

Deuteronomy is issued in two volumes, the others complete in one volume each.

Separate volumes may be had if desired.

The complete set in six volumes, covering over 2,300 pages, is offered at the reduced price of 75c per vol. or $4.50 per set.

A. L. O. E. Intermediate Library.

Selected from the numerous productions of this world-renowned writer as being those of rare merit. 12 vols., 12mo., cloth elegant, each 75c; set.....9.00

An Eden in England.	Life in Eagle's Nest.
Ned Franks.	White Bear's Den.
Sheer Off.	Fairy Spider's Web.
Braid of Chords.	Lake in the Woods.
Silver Keys.	Seven Perils Passed.
Grace Vernon.	Hartley Brothers.

The Jessica Series. By Hesba Stretton. 6 vols., handsome bindings, cloth 50c each, or per set 2.10

Jessica's First Prayer.	Friends till Death.
No Place Like Home.	A Miserable Christmas
Under the Old Roof.	A Night and a Day.

A. L. O. E. Junior Library. Adapted to the young folks. 7 vols., 12mo., cloth, each 60c; the set.....4 20

Claremont Tales.	A Wreath of Smoke.
Christian Conquests.	Pomegranates from Punjab.
Tales Illustrative of Parables.	Little Bullets from Batala.
The Battle of Life.

The Hesba Stretton Series. 8 vols., elegant cloth bound, per set.....4.80

Cassy.	King's Servant.
Lost Gip.	Alone in London.
Max Kromer.	Little Meg's Children
Storm of Life	Crew of the Dolphin.

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

FARM NOTES.

SOUTHDOWN SHEEP.

An enthusiastic admirer of Southdowns says they are preferred because they are so hardy.

Because they herd in large numbers.

Because they are the earliest to mature.

Because they market more meat to the acre than any other live stock.

Because it costs less to produce their meat than any other domestic animal.

Because they produce the best meat; their mutton is best graded with fat and lean; is the juiciest and best flavored.

Because mutton is worth more than wool.

Because they are certain in impressing their good qualities upon other breeds.

Because they are the most beautiful.

Because they are the best sheep in the country.—Farm, Field and Fireside.

SOILS.

There are only about six kinds of soils that we as farmers have to deal with, although scientists give us a much larger number. They are sand, sandy loam, loam or alluvial, muck or peat, clay loam or clay.

There is a wide difference in the character of these soils, and the crops that are well adapted to each of them vary greatly.

It should be the aim of the progressive farmer to ascertain just what this soil is, and then plant or sow the crop best adapted to it. This can be done generally by observation, but if there is any uncertainty whatever an analysis can be obtained at the experiment station.

Of the soils mentioned sandy loam will produce almost everything grown in the garden or on the farm, although it requires constant fertilizing, as it is not retentive like the clays. High fertilization and plenty of water are what such soils require. Indeed this is just the soil for successful irrigation. Of farm crops corn and the best of potatoes grow on a sandy loam. Alluvial soil will also produce a great variety of crops.

Muck and peat are well adapted to grass. It is on such a soil that cranberries flourish and celery is at home. Clay soil is better adapted to grass than any other crop, and manure applied to such soils will produce a crop longer than on any other. For dairying such soils are the best adapted, and they are in fact the best soil in the eastern portion of the country. Experience will show what is the best crop, and will in time guide the farmer and gardener aright in the production of a crop.—Selected.

"Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething" softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain and cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

MY EXPERIENCES
WITH
SECRET SOCIETIES.
BY A TRAVELER.

With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

—o-o—

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,

but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chica

THE
Folly, Expense & Danger
OF
SECRET SOCIETIES.
BY
CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.
(President Wheaton College.)

5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago

To Restore
hair which has become thin, and keep the scalp clean and healthy, use
AYER'S
HAIR VIGOR
It prevents the hair from falling out or turning gray.
The best
Dressing

AMERICAN HANDBOOK
AND
CITIZEN MANUAL.
BY
MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
WM. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Chic

THE TWO-FOLD GIFT
of the Holy Ghost,
BY REV. THOS. K. DOTY,
Author of Lessons in Holiness.

240 pp. Price postpaid.....65cts.

The design of this book is, in plain language, to designate the place of the Holy Ghost in both the Godhead and the work of Salvation. Especially to show that Entire Santification is wrought in the heart by the Baptism of Holy Ghost; and that the Epoch of the Baptism is identical with that of his Advent in his Indwelling Personalty. The agency of the Holy Ghost in the Life, and in carrying on the work of the Gospel, is given particular attention.

TITLES TO THE CHAPTERS:

1. A Summary. 2. The Holy Ghost a Person. 3. The New Testament Designating Terms. 4. The Scriptural View. 5. The Holy Ghost is God. 6. Blasphemy Against the Holy Ghost. 7. The Trinity of God. 8. The Apostolic Benediction. 9. The Worship of the Holy Ghost. 10. The Dispensations. 11. The First Dispensation. 12. The Second Dispensation. 13. Holiness—Sinning. 14. "The Sin of the World." 15. Final Deliverance from Sin. 16. The Day of the Holy Ghost. 17. Jesus and the Holy Ghost. 18 and 19. The Epoch of the Holy Ghost. 20. The Anointing. 21. The Baptism of the Holy Ghost. 22. The Baptism of Fire. 23. The Two-Fold Experiences of the Holy Ghost. 24. Fellowship of the Holy Ghost. 25. "In the Spirit." 26. Several Scriptural Terms Considered. 27. Pentecost. 28. Inspiration—Prophecy. 29. Spiritual Leading and Teaching. 30. The Gifts of the Spirit. 31. "Praying in the Holy Ghost." 31 and 32. Power.

This book is creating quite a stir in religious circles. The original, bold and convincing manner of presenting the subject, has forced the press to comment upon the book, either adversely or favorably, generally the latter. We give a few OPINIONS:

Bible Standard and Gospel Record: "This book is very compact, scarcely a superfluous sentence in the whole book. The manner of treating the questions involved is both clear and scriptural. .....The effect of the book will be to deepen thought and increase knowledge and, in the end, deepen piety."

Evangelical Messenger: "Brother Thomas K. Doty has written a book which we take pleasure in commending to all devout readers who enjoy all spiritual things. The subject is so important, and the treatment of it so timely, that we may be pardoned for calling attention to it thus prominently. We, at least have been greatly interested, and gratefully acknowledge that we have also been decidedly profited by perusing it .....Brother Doty writes with an incisive pen, in a clear, lucid style, often epigrammatical and with great force. He is evidently deeply impressed with the truth of what he writes and demands the respect even where he does not gain the intellectual assent of his readers." Withal the book is written in a kindly, candid spirit, rather didactic than polermical, and is calculated to help the reader and not to rouse his opposition, as is the case with so many books which have been written upon this and kindred subjects. The theological views expressed are orthodox, and in some cases the argument is fresh in matter, and certainly fresh in form throughout."

Christian Cynosure: "His book is one of the most excellent, instructive and practical of any that have come to our knowledge. The exposition of the Scriptures concerning the personality and work of the Spirit is very clear, able and comforting. There is much dogmatising on these topics by Christians who never fully felt the power of the Spirit's work, or are not living in gracious fellowship with him. To all such and to those who have not yet learned what gifts the Lord is waiting to bestow on his people we heartily commend the careful reading of this volume."

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

RECENT PUBLICATIONS
OF
FLEMING H. REVELL.

Modern Ideas of Evolution.

As related to Revelation and Science. By Sir William Dawson, L. L. D., F. R. S., etc. 12 mo, cloth, $1.50.

In popular style, a testing by scientific facts and principles, the validity of that multiform and brilliant philosophy of the universe, which has taken so deep a hold of the science and literature of our times.

The New World of Central Africa

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness; with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. Maps, Portraits and numerous engravings. 537 pages, 12 mo, $2.00.

This comprehensive volume is as fascinating as the most entertaining romance. Its vivid portrayal of the dark side of African history makes one's blood tingle, while its earnest appeals create an inspiring sympathy with the effort to evangelize its teeming millions.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

Matthew Henry's Commentary.

An entirely new large type edition of this inimitable Commentary, in six large 8vo. volumes, fine cloth, $15.00; or, in half Morocco, $18.00.

"Biblical students who are most familiar with the very best commentaries of this generation are most able to appreciate the unfading freshness, the clear analysis, the spiritual force, the quaint humor, and the evangelical richness of Matthew Henry's Exposition of the Old and New Testaments."—New York Observer

"First among the mighty for general usefulness we are bound to mention the man whose name is a household word—MATTHEW HENRY. He is the most pious and pithy, sound and sensible, suggestive and sober, terse and trust worthy."—Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

The Present Tenses of the Blessed Life.

By Rev. F. B. Meyer. 32 mo, 50 cents.

"It is sufficient to say its one direct aim is the present enjoyment of the precious promises. Mr. Meyer's earnest and persuasive teaching in this direction is admirably condensed in these brief chapters."

BY THE SAME AUTHOR:

Christian Living. Cloth, 32 mo, 50 cents.

"A more suggestive and helpful volume it would not be easy to name."—Christian Leader.

The Shepherd Psalm. Cloth, 32 mo, 50c.

"This is a gem"—Illustrated Christian Weekly

"It is a little book which hundreds of devout hearts will enjoy,"—Congregationalist.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

OTHER WORKS BY C. H. SPURGEON:

Feathers for Arrows; Or, Illustrations for Teachers and Preachers. 12 mo, $1.

"This work covers a wide range of subjects. The metaphors are always striking and frequently brilliant, while the truths that they illustrate are such as have always formed the staple of Mr. Spurgeon's discourses. A choicer collection of illustrations we do not know."—Freeman.

Spurgeon's Gems. Being a selection of brilliants from his discourses. 12 mo, $1.

The Golden Alphabet. Being a Devotional Commentary on the One Hundred and Nineteenth Psalm. 12 mo, $1.00.

"Mr. Spurgeon brings out the truths and beauties of this wonderful Psalm so as to set a rich feast before the reader. As a practical commentator on the Psalms, Spurgeon has no equal."—Presbyterian Banner.

"This commentary is written in quite the happiest vein of its popular author, and the devotional spirit throughout is intense and elevating."—Occident.

Gleanings Among the Sheaves. 18 mo, 60c.

All of Grace. An earnest word with those seeking the way of life. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

According to Promise; Or, the Lord's Dealings with His chosen People. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Christmas Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve New Year Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth. 50 cents.

"Preachers may get aid in preparing Easter or funeral sermons from this volume. Good to present to those who have lost loved ones."—National Baptist.

Twelve Striking Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

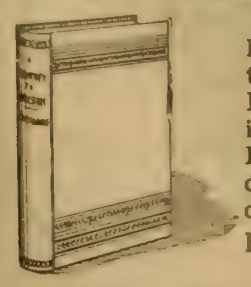
Twelve Soul-Winning Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Selected by Mr. Spurgeon as the twelve sermons under which there has been the most marked and permanent success.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

A Journey to Palestine.
BY REV. B. CARRADINE, D. D.

—oo—



Revised and Illustrated Edition. 500 pages. Eighteen beautiful half-tone Engravings, including portrait of Author. Cloth postpaid, $1.50. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Struck by Lightning.

A true and thrilling narrative of one who was struck by lightning; with incidents, experiences and anecdotes for old and young. By Rev. E. Owen.

With Striking Illustrations.

Beautifully bound in cloth, with title stamped in gold on side and back.....50c.
Paper cover.....30c.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

Plan for Evading the Judgment—Request to be Whipped to Death—Learning to Swear—Alarmed by a Rattlesnake—Fall from a Building—Struck by Lightning—Converted—Sanctified—Called to Preach—First Effort—Casting out a Devil—Protracted Meeting on "Satan's Premises"—First Circuit—Revival in "Haying"—S. Hill Revival—Sisters' Quarrel Settled—Accused of Fortune-Telling—Souls Saved—Dreams—Too near Hell to Spend Time with—A Sceptic Awakened—Public Talk with a Universalist—A Chair Thrown at the Minister—Revival in Berlin—A Methodist Church of Baptist Converts—A Noisy Stage Passenger Quieted—Preaching on the Deck of a Steamboat—A Pleasure Trip—Two Overboard—Revival by Torch-light—A Fiddler Saved—A Slanderer Humbled—Bar-room Discussion—Saved by Expulsion from the Church—Dancing with the Devil—Answering a Fool According to his Folly—Raps for Spirit Rappings—Short Debate with a Restorationist—"Open Rebuke"—An Unspeakable Blessing.

COMMENDATIONS.

American Wesleyan: "Thrilling as a romance, and true to the last syllable. No private library or Sunday-school should be without a copy."

Phonographic Monthly, N. Y.: "Calculated to throw light into the dark places of orthodoxy."

Earnest Christian: "A true narrative of instructive events."

Lay Evangelist: "Quite entertaining and neatly gotten up."

Free Methodist: "Meeting with universal favor. Intensely interesting. We have read, laughed and cried, and shall try it again."

The Nonesuch Professor,

In his Meridian Splendor. By William Secker (Puritan). With an introduction by Theo. L. Cuyler, D. D. 16 mo, $1.00.

"It is a mine of sparkling gems."—Presbyterian Observer.

"A sheaf of golden grain, ripened by grace, and sweet with the flavor of rare simplicity and holy wisdom."—N. Y. Observer.

"It is a searching book."—Christian Intelligencer.

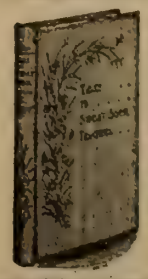
"This is a wonderful book. At whatever page you open it, your eye lights upon pithy aphorisms that combine the sententiousness of Benjamin Franklin with the sweet, holy savor of Samuel Rutherford. It contains hundreds of bright seed thoughts."—Rev. T. L. Cuyler, D. D

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Talks to Sunday School Teachers.

By Rev. J. G. Terrill. 12mo, 200 pages, bound in fine cloth.....75



This book is the result of twenty-five years of experience in Sunday-school and treats of: 1. The Sunday-school organization and management. 2. Methods of work. 3. Studies in human nature. 4. Rules of Interpretation as applied to the Bible. 5. Illustrative exercises for primary classes and children's meetings. In the style of presentation, subject matter and price of the book, the wants of the officers and teachers of the ordinary Sunday-school are kept in view.

S. S. Times:—A very comprehensive book. N. Y. Independent:—A sensible manual for the average Sunday-school teacher. Evan. Mess.:—We have been very favorably impressed with the book, because it is so intensely practical. The subject is systematically treated, and leaders of teacher's meetings can not do better than adopt it as a text-book and devote half an hour of each session to teaching the theory and practice of teaching as here systematised. Christian at Work:—Any school that will adopt this book generally and carry forward its work or doctrines here laid down will not be long in developing into a model school and reaping the harvest of a rich fruitage. Herald and Presbyter:—These Talks are well attested in their profitableness and excellence. Buffalo Advocate:—A plain, practical, common sense book on a very important subject. The author has had wide experience in this field of work. He knows thoroughly the ground over which he would lead others, and possesses the happy faculty of packing a great deal of valuable information as to matter and manner of teaching into this little hand-book. We commend it to the attention of all Sunday-school workers. Religious Telescope:—We are pleased with the plan and treatment of the subjects throughout, and are sure that the diligent Sunday-school teacher who longs for more thorough equipment, will find in this book a helper of great value. Illustrated Christian Weekly:—The author talks from observation and experience, and talks well.

Sunday School Publications.

The Pearl (Mo.)	Pr. Qr.	1c.	Sunshine (Mo.)	Pr. Qr.	3 c.
The Lily "	"	3 "	Pure Words "	"	3 "
Light & L Scholar's	Qrly.	3 "	Light & L Inf Cl. wh.		4 "
" " Teacher's	"	5 "	" " Lesson Leaf	"	1½ "
Golden Treasures		1 "	L. & L. Primary	Qrly	4 "

SINGLE COPY RATES PER YEAR.

The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, Teacher's Quarterly Pr. Yr. 25c
" Sunshine, each Pr. Yr. 25c Scholar's " " 20c
The four to one address " 75c. Light & L. Infant Class, weekly, 25c

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Royal Baking Powder

Absolutely Pure

A cream of tartar baking powder. Highest of all in leavening strength. — Latest United States Government Food Report.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO.,
106 Wall St., N. Y.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

CHICAGO.

Health officers and school officials entertain no fear of smallpox breaking out in schools. So far in April 277 cases of the disease have been reported.

Prospects for a beer war are said to be bright. An attempt to revive the former pool has failed, and several independent breweries are to be established.

Mayor Hopkins refused a race license to Garfield Park Club and West Siders held a jollification meeting.

The Atlas Loan Company was declared insolvent by Judge Ewing and its affairs were placed in the hands of a receiver.

Withdrawing stockholders of the Continental Investment Society have been asked to sacrifice 20 per cent to save the concern.

Police Officer Healy was fined and ordered imprisoned for ten days by Judge Goggin for intimidation of a witness.

Evanston will not become a part of Chicago. Only 642 votes were cast in favor of annexation. The "antis" numbered 2,155.

Judge Goggin refused to issue an injunction to restrain the police from interfering with nickel-in-the-slot machines.

Dr. J. B. Murphy was made honorary president for America by the International Medical Congress just concluded in Rome.

The no-license element was victorious at the election in Harvey, while the people's ticket carried the day in Lemont.

On account of annoying delays by being "bridged" the Lake street L is looking about for a second place to cross the river.

Agricultural implement dealers formed a national association to defeat obnoxious legislation. Colonel A. L. Conger was elected president.

Notice of annulment of existing agreements has been sent to Monon conductors, trainmen and telegraphers, as well as to engineers and firemen.

COUNTRY.

Great Northern railway strikers were enjoined from obstructing the operation of the road by Judge Sanborn.

The New York publishing firm of Charles L. Webster & Co., of which Mark Twain is a prominent member, has made an assignment.

Investigation of the Davidson theater fire at Milwaukee resulted in a verdict that no one was to blame for the loss of life.

Kelly's industrial army will come to Chicago on foot. Treatment of the commonwealers by the authorities led to indignation meetings in Council Bluffs and Omaha.

J. B. Greenhut was elected president of the whisky trust, whose net profits last year were reported at $726,944.

In Washington: At a conference of Chicago Congressmen it was agreed to advocate a new federal building on the present site. Meyer's bill for the coinage of the seigniorage and for low interest bonds is said to have been approved by Secretary Carlisle. A bill which prohibits the issuance by State banks of anything in the form of money was introduced by Senator Palmer. A loss of nearly $10,000 is expected in the general balance of the Treasury for the month of April.

In a collision between sheriff's officers and striking Polish laborers near Detroit, Mich., two of the latter were killed and at least fifteen persons were wounded.

All the employes of the Great Northern at Minneapolis were ordered out and the eastern end of the road is now tied up.

Exports of general merchandise in March were $4,750,000 in excess of imports, and for nine months the excess was over $223,000,000.

Party lines were generally ignored in the elections held throughout Illinois, license or no license being the issue.

In the aldermanic elections at Peoria, Ill., the Republicans, in alliance with the A. P. A., elected thirteen of their fourteen candidates.

Henry S. Ives, known as the "Napoleon of finance," died near Asheville, N. C., from consumption. He was twenty-nine years old.

Ernest Koabe, senior member of the well-known firm of piano manufacturers, died in Baltimore from heart disease.

United States marshals are reported to have had a fight with six members of the Dalton gang in Oklahoma. All of the bandits are said to have been killed.

FOREIGN.

The bill to repeal the Irish coercion act passed second reading in the British House of Commons.

Antwerp police arrested Mme Marie Joniaux, a society leader, on a charge of having poisoned her sister, a brother and uncle to get the insurance on their lives.

Brazilian torpedo boats are said to have sunk the Aquidaban, formerly Admiral Mello's flagship, off the Island of Santa Catherine.

Coburg (Germany) was a scene of royal magnificence and interest. Queen Victoria's arrival to attend the wedding of her granddaughter, the Princess Victoria, and the Grand Duke Ernst of Hesse, was marked by an address of welcome, and a review of her German regiment. The marriage ceremonies and festivities were attended by numerous distinguished visitors, including the Emperor of Germany.

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances of money to the Cynosure from April 16 to 21:

B M Smith, J Cochran, L Warner, L Baldwin, W French, C P Potter, J G Butterfield, R Goreley, I Leadbetter, W Hamlyn, T C Radabaugh, W A Hervey, G A Scroggs, H R Smith, W H McKee, Mrs C M Candee, Rev D Morrow, Dea M Pierce, P B Bates, Rev C N Peterson, T White.

It is only of late years that rheumatism been treated as a blood disease. But that this is a correct theory is proved by the extraordinary success attending the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, in this painful and very prevalent malady. It seldom fails of radical cure.

In this paper appears an advertisement for the Leonard Manufacturing Company, of Chicago, to which the attention of the readers of the Cynosure is especially directed. Their offer of World's Fair Souvenir Spoons of exceptional beauty and durability at marvelously low prices is almost unprecedented.

The Company is reliable in every way and the spoons are exactly as represented. If not satisfactory the privilege of returning the goods is granted and money will be refunded,

No one, however, who sees the beautiful spoons can fail to admire them and appreciate their value as souvenirs of the great Columbian Exposition or note their utility as dainty home accessories. Do not delay but write at once for a souvenir at once charming and inexpensive.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2	59	@	59¾
Winter No. 2	57	@	59¾
Corn—No. 2	39	@	41⅛
Oats—No. 2	32	@	36
Rye—No. 2	49	@	50
Bran per ton	11 37½	@	11 50
Hay—Timothy	9 00	@	11 00
Butter, medium to best	10	@	21
Cheese	06	@	11
Beans	1 10	@	1 65
Eggs, fresh	10	@	10½
Seeds—Timothy (100 lbs)	4 12½	@	4 20
Flax	1 20
Clover (100 lbs.)	9 35	@	9 00
Broom corn (per ton)	30 00	@	70 00
Potatoes, (old, bu.)	50	@	73
Hides—Green to dry flint	02½	@	06¼
Lumber—Common			15 50
Wool (unwashed)	12	@	26
Cattle—Choice to extra	3 95	@	4 35
Common to good	3 35	@	4 00
Hogs	4 90	@	5 30
Sheep	2 25	@	4 80

NEW YORK.

Wheat No. 2	62⅜	@	63⅛
Corn No 2	44⅛	@	44⅞
Oats	39	@	40
Rye	51	@	56
Eggs, Western fresh	11	@	11¼
Butter	11½	@	23
Wool	15	@	26

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle	2 30	@	4 40
Hogs	4 85		5 05

Waste

is overcome by giving the body proper and sufficient nourishment. When waste is active and you are losing flesh and strength, take the Cream of Cod-liver Oil. It will overcome the waste by giving ample nourishment. Physicians, the world over, endorse it.

Scott's Emulsion

Don't be deceived by Substitutes!

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All Druggists.

WORLD'S FAIR VIEWS Four cents sent to John Wanamaker, Philadelphia, Pa., will secure Portfolio No. 1 of the Magic City, containing 16 large photographic views of the World's Fair, in royal blue, and the 100-page Illustrated Store Book.

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address S. C. KIMBALL,
Box 277. Newmarket, N. H.

Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp.

LORD & THOMAS,
NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING
45 RANDOLPH STREET,

HOW WE ARE ABLE TO DO IT!

These spoons were made up especially for the World's Fair trade, by THE ONEIDA COMMUNITY Ltd., and were left on their hands. In order to dispose of them Quickly we make this unheard of offer. SIX SOUVENIR SPOONS, after dinner coffee size HEAVY COIN SILVER PLATED, with GOLD PLATED BOWLS, each spoon representing a different building of the World's Fair. The handles are finely chased, showing head of Columbus, and dates 1492-1893 and wording "World's Fair City." They are genuine works of art, making one of the finest souvenir collections ever produced. Sold during the Fair for $9 CO; we now offer the balance of this stock at ONLY 99c. Sent in elegant plush line case properly packed and express prepaid to any address. Send Postal Note, or Currency. Money cheerfully refunded if goods are not as represented. LEONARD MF'G CO., Sole Agents, Dept. 493, 20 Adams St., Chicago, Ill.

What the "CHRISTIAN AT WORK" of New York, has to say in their issue of March 22, 1894:

"These spoons have been submitted to us, and we are sure that those who send for them will be exceedingly gratified to receive such dainty and useful souvenirs of the World's Fair as these spoons are. The Leonard Manufacturing Company will promptly and without question return the money sent in payment if the spoons fail to give satisfaction. We do not believe, however, that they will ever be called upon to do so."

THE MYSTIC SHRINE
Illustrated.
THE FULL
ILLUSTRATED RITUAL
OF THE
Nobles of the Mystic Shrine

PRICE 15 CENTS, EACH.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

Love, the Supreme Gift:
THE GREATEST THING IN THE WORLD

The Perfected Life;
THE GREATEST NEED IN THE WORLD.

Both by Prof. Henry Drummond. Bound in chaste white vellum paper, each 20 cts.

These are not to be judged by the size, unless rubies are counted for the weight thereof. The first has been very largely circulated, the second is now only just published and deserves the same wide reading—both are gems such as are only found at rare intervals. If you have not read them, do so at once, you will be a better man or woman for the reading.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

A Journey to Palestine

BY REV. B. CARRADINE, D. D.

—oo—

Revised and Illustrated Edition. 500 pages. Eighteen beautiful half-tone Engravings, including portrait of Author. Cloth postpaid, $1.50. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

PROPHECY:
A STUDY.

BY REV. S. F. PORTER,

A Study of Christ's Comings.

Paper Cover, 100 Pages.

Single copies, postpaid..... 25 cents.
Per 100 copies, postpaid..... $20.00.

For sale by the

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

Sermons of Rev. John McNeill,

12mo. cloth, 416 pages, $1.50.

The fame of this Scottish Spurgeon, as he is very generally called, is becoming as wide-spread as the English tongue. The secret of his power over the masses, has been discussed on both sides of the Atlantic. If one may judge from these printed sermons the secret lies in a homely and pointed putting of the old truths of the Gospel in plain Anglo-saxon. There is evidence of study, but more the study of human nature, and particularly the human heart, than that of books, other than the Book of books— with this volume Mr. McNeill is evidently in love. With unquestioned faith he believes the writen word, and preaches it with an earnestness born of conviction.

"Best" Marriage Certificate. Size 14x17½. Price postpaid 25 cents; per dozen, $2.50.

This superb certificate meets a popular demand, and is rapidly becoming the favorite. Read what the people say of it: BRO. BEST: My attention having been called to your marriage certificate, I must pronounce it the neatest in design and execution of any I have seen. Rev. E. P. HART. E. C. BEST—Dear Brother: I am well pleased with the specimen copy of your marriage certificate, and shall use them hereafter. They are in good taste, well executed, on good material, and at a very reasonable price. Yours, M. V. CLUTE.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVI., No. 34 | CHICAGO, THURSDAY, MAY 3, 1894. | WHOLE No. 1,253.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill. as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
Incorrigible Stupidity... 8
We Have no Need of the A. P. A..... 8
Jesuitism in Canada 8
Enforcement of Masonic "Charity"..... 8
To Enforce Law and Order..... 8
CONTRIBUTIONS:
The Solitariness of Christ's Sufferings (Concluded)..... 1
Rome, in Apocalyptic Vision..... 2
To a Fellow-Laborer (Poetry) 10
SELECTED:
Letter from John Wesley. 3
Odd-fellowship Dissected by Rev. J. P. Stoddard 3
No Woman Need "Peek" 4
Coxey—and After..... 4
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 4
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4
REFORM NEWS:
Progress of our Work on the Pacfic Coast..... 5
CORRESPONDENCE:
Likes the Cynosure; From Washington State; Extracts from Letters to Secretary Phillips; Kind Words from a New Friend; Eve Reasons Masonically; From a Lutheran; Some New Laws of Iowa..... 5,6
OBITUARY..... 7
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
N. C. A..... 7
THE HOME.....10
TEMPERANCE.....11
BIBLE LESSON 12
RELIGIOUS NEWS:.....12
LITERATURE 12
Catalogue of Publications 13
HOME AND HEALTH.....14
FARM NOTES 15
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....16

The official call for the Annual Meeting of the N. C. A. will be found at the head of the eighth page of this issue of the Cynosure. Especial attention is called to the date—May 16; and all those who cannot be present in person on that day are earnestly requested to write, conveying to the meeting whatever suggestions or opinions they may have to offer in regard to the work of the Association during the coming year. Everything that tends to the profitable extension and progress of our reform will be appreciated. Let as many as can, however, be with us on that occasion.

The British press sees in the Coxey movement an American conflict impending between labor and capital that threatens to equal that which grew out of slavery. This idea may be exaggerated by the press; but the movement is a problem that will require good judgment to solve it without injustice or injury to all concerned.

Whatever grievance may have originally induced the employes of the Great Northern Railroad to strike and "tie up" its rolling stock, the affair appears to have settled down into a contest between the new American Railway Union and the older "brotherhoods" of railway men. The affair is no less disastrous to the corporation and the public on that account; and the latter will hold all concerned equally guilty of foolhardiness and malevolence.

The financial and business situation of the United States is commented upon by Dun's Weekly Review of Trade as follows: "When accounts of great strikes and labor disturbances crowd all newspapers, it is idle to look for much improvement in business. That every week of idleness for so many men must appreciably lessen the aggregate power to purchase products of labor is evident. But in spite of all some improvement still appears. Continual reports of changes in the tariff bill add to the difficulties of producers and dealers." Bradstreet's notes that "trade is decreasing in the large cities." Labor disturbances are cited as the principal cause.

New York's new State law to punish the ruffianism of college students has received the Governor's approval and is now in force. There is not a State, we believe, that has not upon its statute-books a good and sufficient law to punish every sort of ruffianism, whether applied to the injury of persons or property; and it seems a little strange that it is not made sufficiently broad and effective to reach the rowdy element in educational institutions as well as in the slums. But the requirement of a special law of this kind does not seem to be questioned.

The Christian Nation, discussing secret societies in its issue of April 25, thus sums up the matter: "It is idle to hope for any permanent good from secret orders, no matter how praiseworthy many of their objects may be. They are destined to failure because they run squarely against the teaching of Scripture in their fundamental principle. No man need be in the dark as to his duty with respect to secret orders. He does not need to learn their evil before he can condemn them. He does not need to go in the way of evil to learn the path of duty." True—every word true.

Respecting the greatest strike of bituminous coal-miners ever known in the United States, and still "on," the Christian Statesman, of Pittsburgh, says: "It involves 132,000 men and stops work in mines that produced upward of 100,000,000 tons of coal last year in twelve States and Territories. These miners received $53,809,627 in wages in 1890, according to the eleventh census of the United States. In that year 139,886 produced 79,890,108 tons of coal valued at $69,350,-669." Now they prefer idleness and want to honest industry and a livelihood, while the great iron manufacturing interests of the country and their workmen are straitened on account of a scarcity of coal. It must be very earnest devotion to a principle that involves a sacrifice of such magnitude.

The A. P. A. in Germany is composed principally of educated persons, has been in existence for about five years, and is known as "The Central Committee of the Evangelical Union." It is thoroughly organized, is said to have a membership throughout the empire of nearly 130,000, and its declared purpose is to "combat Rome with tongue and pen." We are not informed as to its details, or as to its secrecy, but its opposition to the aggression of Roman Catholics is openly avowed. In this connection it is known that although a recent act of the national reichstag admits Jesuits to the empire, after keeping them out for years, the measure is not well received by the people, and lawful obstructions to the admission of these undesirable immigrants are employed.

The Northwestern Christian Advocate seems to doubt whether the distinguished Roman Catholic prelate to whom was confided, for transmission to the pope, the letter addressed to him, a few days ago, by the Methodist ministers of Chicago, will ever reach its destination. It noted the fact that the pope had expressed his approval of the freedom of the conscience and liberty of worship, guaranteed to all American citizens in our constitution, and asked him and his church to interpose and secure for Protestants the same liberty enjoyed by Catholics in such countries as Mexico and the South American States, which are almost completely under Catholic control. The Christian Conservator inquires: "If the pope announces such freedom as good in countries under Protestant control, why not in countries under Catholic control?" It is doubtful whether this conundrum will ever reach the Vatican, or receive attention there, if it does.

W. J. H. Trainor, of Detroit, supreme president of the American Protective Association, and C. T. Beaty, of Saginaw, supreme secretary, were in Chicago last week, on their way to Omaha, Neb., where the secret national convention of the order is in session. To are porter, said Mr. Trainor: "The A. P. A. holds the key to the political situation of the country." Rehearsing the well-known objects of the organization, he added: "The recent elections prove this. It has been the rule both in the east and west that where the issue has been made plain our side has won." The future will tell whether this is an idle boast or not.

We are indebted to some kind friend at a distance for a copy of the King's Messenger, edited and published by Stephen Merritt, the seceding Freemason and active missionary in New York City. An article in it is entitled "Secretism"—evidently written by the editor. It is throughout a strong plea against the lodge, and for the separation of Christians from this unclean work of darkness. We make room, to day, for one extract: "One of the duties of the day—of the hour is, to lift up thy voice like a trumpet, and awaken the church and the people to the danger and damnation of this evil in our midst. The rum oligarchy and Masonry are joined together to ruin and to waste; and more are destroyed by the former with its unholy alliance with the latter, then we can tell. A most eminent divine in our city during the past year, eloquent and beloved, a most pronounced Mason, advocating its rites and ceremonies, was led to his ruin and death by delirium tremens by the power of the saloon and the order, who joined hand to hand in his destruction." How can any man, after this, say that, a the Masons tell us: "A moral life is enough; if you are an upright man and obey the precepts of the lodge, it is all right?" This is the salvation offered by the lodge—a broken reed in the hour of death.

THE SOLITARINESS OF CHRIST'S SUFFERINGS.

BY REV. J. M. FOSTER.

Concluded.

His sufferings were vicarious. When the eyes of the Jewish converts were opened, they saw the truth. "He was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon him, and by his stripes we are healed." When the Spirit is poured out upon the Jewish people, "They shall look upon me whom they have pierced and shall mourn for him." "The Messiah was cut off, but not for himself." "He was made sin for us, who knew no sin, that we might be made the righteousness of God in him. He died for our sins." Men tell us that Christ died simply as an example of self-sacrifice. It is true that "the captain of our salvation was made perfect through sufferings;" but this is only one ray from the Sun of righteousness. Some say, Christ died simply to demonstrate God's love. It is true that "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." But this is only one ray from the Sun. Others hold that Christ died to demonstrate God's hatred to sin and to maintain his moral government. It is true that Christ's death established the pillars of the moral world. But this is only one ray of light. The whole truth is that Christ died as our substitute. His sufferings magnified the law of God more than the eternal sufferings of all the children of men could have done, as his obedience honored the law more than the perfect obedience of all the sons and daughters of Adam could have done. His sufferings made it possible for God to be just, and yet the justifier of the ungodly. They made the pardon of sin and the restoration of the sinner consistent with and gloriously illustrative of the perfections of God, the stability of the divine government, and the majesty of the divine law. We say the life of a man is worth more than the lives of all the animals in the world. We say that the life of the chief magistrate, the head of the nation and the commander-in-chief of the armies is worth hundreds of lives of private citizens. David's men said: "Now thou art worth ten thousand of us." When Lincoln was assassinated, the whole nation mourned. So the death of the Son of God has redeeming efficacy. Andrew Fuller uses this classic illustration: "When Zeleuchers, one of the Grecian kings, had made a law against adultery, that whosoever was guilty of this crime should lose both his eyes, his own son is said to have been the first transgressor. To preserve the honor of the law, and at the same time to save his own son from total blindness, the father had recourse to an expedient of losing one of his own eyes and his son one of his. This expedient, though it did not conform to the letter of the law, yet was well adapted to preserve the spirit of it, as it served to evince to the nation the determination of the king to punish adultery, as much, perhaps more, than if the sentence had been put into execution against the offender. But if, instead of this, he had appointed that one eye of an animal should be put out in order to save that of his son, or if a common subject had offered to lose an eye, would either have answered the purpose? The animal and the subject were each possessed of an eye, as well as the sovereign. It might be added, too, that it was mere bodily pain; and seeing it was in the body only that this penalty could be endured, any being that possessed a body was equally capable of enduring it. True, they might endure it, but would their sufferings answer the same end? Would it have satisfied justice? Would it have had the same effect upon the nation or tended equally to restore the tone of injured authority?"

III. In that they were victorious sufferings. Satan, the god of this world, had taken unlawful possession. "The whole world lieth in the wicked one." When Christ came he shouted: "Shall the prey be taken from the mighty? Shall the captive of the terrible one be delivered?" Satan was the strong man who kept the house of this world. Christ was the stronger than he who came and bound him with the cords of the law fulfilled and spoiled his goods. Satan was the head of the empire of darkness which Christ overthrew. "Through death he destroyed him that had the power of death, that is the devil, and delivered them who through fear of death are all their lifetime subject to bondage." "He spoiled principalities and powers, and made a show of them openly, triumphing over them in his cross." This is the victory which Isaiah describes: "For I will tread them in mine anger, and trample them in my fury; and their blood shall be sprinkled upon my garments, and I will stain all my raiment. For the day of vengeance is in mine heart, and the year of my redeemed is come. And I will tread down the people in mine anger, and make them drunk in my fury, and I will bring down their strength to the earth." This is the victory which the Apostle John describes: "And I looked, and behold a white cloud, and upon the cloud one sat like unto the Son of man, having on his head a golden crown, and in his hand a sharp sickle. And another angel came out of the temple, crying with a loud voice to him that sat on the cloud, Thrust in thy sickle and reap; for the time is come for thee to reap; for the harvest of the earth is ripe. And he that sat on the cloud thrust in his sickle on the earth; and the earth was reaped." "And the angel thrust in his sickle into the earth, and gathered the vine of the earth, and cast it into the great winepress of the wrath of God. And the winepress was trodden without the city, and blood came out of the winepress, even unto the horse-bridles, by the space of a thousand and six hundred furlongs." Christ gained the victory over Satan and his kingdom on the field of law in his cross. And this is the instrument of his successful conquest on the field of fact. "And they overcame by the blood of the Lamb and by the word of their testimony." When the apostle describes the conflict between Christ in the church and Satan in the Roman empire, he says: "There was war in heaven: Michael and his angels fought, and the dragon and his angels. And he prevailed not, but was cast out into the earth." When the apostle describes the conflict of Christ with Jesuitry and the secret empire, intrenched in secular governments and a worldly and corrupt church, he says: "And I saw heaven opened, and behold a white horse; and he that sat upon him was called Faithful and True, and in righteousness he doth judge and make war. His eyes were as a flame of fire, and on his head were many crowns; and he had a name written that no man knew but he himself. And he was clothed with a vesture dipped in blood; and his name is called the Word of God. And the armies which were in heaven followed him upon white horses, clothed in fine linen, white and clean. And out of his mouth goeth a sharp sword, that with it he should smite the nations: and he shall rule them with a rod of iron; and he treadeth the winepress of the fierceness and wrath of Almighty God. And he hath on his vesture and on his thigh a name written, King of kings, and Lord of lords." The triple alliance of Germany, Austria and Italy, and the double alliance of France and Russia, each having an army of two or three millions, and armed with modern weapons that enable two armies to annihilate each other in a few hours, prepare us for the fulfillment of the prophecy: "And I saw an angel standing in the sun; and he cried with a loud voice, saying to all the fowls that fly in the midst of heaven: Come and gather yourselves together unto the supper of the great God: that ye may eat the flesh of kings, and the flesh of captains, and the flesh of mighty men, and the flesh of horses, and of them that sit on them, and the flesh of all men, both free and bond, both small and great." And when we remember that the Roman Pontiff controls the triple alliance and the western half of the double alliance, through the ultramontane party, we are prepared for the prophecy: "And I saw the beast, and the kings of the earth, and their armies, gathered together to make war against him that sat on the horse and against his army. And the beast was taken and with him the false prophet that wrought miracles before him, with which he deceived them that had received the mark of the beast, and them that worshiped his image. These both were cast alive into a lake of fire burning with brimstone. And the remnant were slain with the sword of him that sat upon the horse, which swords proceeded out of his mouth; and all the fowls are filled with their flesh."

Boston, April 14, 1894.

ROME, IN APOCALYPTIC VISION.—THE DRAGON AND THE BEAST DESCRIBED.

BY REV. C. A. S. TEMPLE.

In Rev. 12, 13 and 17 is shown a great, frightful apparition, "with seven heads and ten horns." In chapter 12 he is called "a great red dragon." In chapters 13 and 17 he is called "a beast." In chapter 17: 9, those heads are the representatives of seven mountains, "on which the woman (the city) sitteth." (See verse 18.) Now Rome is built on seven hills. Hence her statesmen, her historians, her poets, orators and priesthood, often and loudly boast of her as the "city of seven hills," "the seven-hilled city." Both Romish and Protestant annotators are agreed that those seven "hills" are represented by the seven heads upon the dragon and beast.

"And these are seven kings." (v. 10.) "In the general language of prophecy, monarchies, under a succession of princes of the same nation—and not individual monarchs—are meant by kings." (Scott's Commentary on Daniel 2:38.) In perfect agreement with our best Protestant expositors, the Roman church teaches, in her Rhemish "notes," that those "heads" also represent a succession of seven different, or distinct, forms of government, under which, at the end of her career, Rome will have governed all under her dominion and power; viz., kings, consuls, decemvirs, military tribunes, dictators, emperors and popes.

"Five are fallen and one is, and the other is not yet come." (Same verse.) The first five "heads" had already come and gone.

"One is." That is, the sixth form of government—the imperial—was in existence, then and there. It continued a few centuries, when that also "fell" and was succeeded by the seventh, the papal power. (Dowling; "History of Romanism." Pp. 173–8.)

THE SEVENTH HEAD.

The history of Rome, from the subversion of the empire in A. D. 476 till the full establishment of the papacy, in 1278, is veiled in great obscurity. It is known, however, that in 756 the pope was actually invested with the temporal power, "and took rank as one of the kings of the earth." Till then (from the fall of the empire) Rome had—only by sufferance—no civil government of her own, was sacked and pillaged, from time to time, by her enemies, passing occasionally from one master to another, yet subject, perhaps generally, to one or another of the sovereigns of the Eastern empire, though "from A. D. 730, the time of the dispute concerning images—their sovereignty there was merely a dead letter." "On Christmas day (A. D. 800) Charlemagne, King of France, was crowned and proclaimed emperor, by the pope". . . . "From this time forward, the nominal sovereignty of the Eastern emperor over Rome. . . . was formally transferred to the new emperor of the Romans, although the principal power of administering the government of that city was left by him (where it had long been) in the hands of the pope. From that time, notwithstanding the subordination (real or apparent) of the papacy to the outside imperial power, the pope claimed, at some period —supreme dominion over even all earthly kings and emperors." (Dowling, p. 178)

Such, for more than 500 years, was the status of the papacy; despite its temporal powers, a sort of fief, under different masters, till A. D. 1278, when Rudolph of Hapsburg (then, too, emperor of Rome) "defined by a charter the dominions of the Holy See, separated them forever from those dependent on the empire" . . . . and "released the people of all those places from their oath of allegiance to the empire, giving up all rights over them which might still remain in the imperial crown, acknowledging the sovereignty of the same to belong to the See of Rome." (Id. 178.)

Thus, after long centuries of unlimited and uninterrupted spiritual supremacy, and of subordinate temporal power, as the seventh head of the beast (in its incipiency and in its growth), the papacy became, by that act of the emperor an actual, independent monarchy; the full development and realization of the now perfected seventh head!

THE EIGHTH HEAD.

The advent of this head (the "healed" head of Rev. 13: 3), as represented both in that prophetic vision and in history (for it is history now), forms one of the most remarkable and important epochs in the career of Rome. Says the inspired revelator:

"I saw one of his heads as it were wounded to death, and his deadly wound was healed." The chief interest, or significance, in these apocalyptic and historic descriptions of Rome now centres and culminates in those seventh and eighth heads. Those heads represent the closing scenes or events in her long and wonderful career. That career has abounded with epochs, crises even, through all of which Rome has ever maintained her identity as the great seven-headed dragon, or beast.

"ONE IS."

Those seven heads have now "all "come," and all "are fallen"; yet "one is!" Paradoxical as this may appear, it is proved by the following statements in the text before us:

1. "The first of his heads." Although "one" is the primary signification of the Greek "mian," in the text, yet, as in several other places in the New Testament (see Matt. 28: 1; Mark 16: 2 9; Luke 24: 1; John 20: 1, 19), from its surroundings in that passage, and from the historical facts in the case, this rendering—"the first of his heads"—is a far more literal description of the circumstances, and therefore, as we shall see, an evidently more exact, and so a more correct, expression of the meaning and design of the sacred writer, than that in either the "Authorized" or "Revised Version."

2. "As it were slain." This is the corrected marginal rendering, in both the old and new versions. It is a literal, an exact expression of the original Greek, and so, of course, of the intention and design of the inspired author. More; it is also a perfect statement of the historical facts in the case.

As we have seen already—"Rome was first governed by kings; but Tarquin, the seventh king, being expelled for his tyranny (A. U. 244), the regal government was abolished." . . . "The haughtiness and cruelty of Tarquin inspired the Romans with the greatest aversion to regal government, which they retained ever afterward." (Adams' Rom. Antiq., pp. 94–99.) Thus the first form of government (the first head of the beast) in Rome was literally "slain." For more than two thousand years it lay dead, beyond the possibility of restoration.

3. "His deadly wound was healed." Despite the long and bitter "aversion" of the Romans to regal government, and the consequent failure of all attempts to revive and restore it, it was destined in the then far distant future to reappear.

When "the set time" had fully come (Sept. 20, 1870), Victor Emanuel, King of Sardinia and Naples, became king of Italy and Rome. That was at once a signal and an assurance that the secular or civil power of the papacy was ended.

But although the pope is shorn of his temporal power, his relations with the hierarchy and the church remain undisturbed. This is also after the ancient model. (See Adams' Roman Antiquities, p. 248). Livy, and other ancient historians, assume that the ancient "Pont Max" (a title which, as of old, the pope still claims for himself) "was supreme judge and arbiter in all religious matters," . . . that "he took care that sacred rites were properly performed, and for that purpose all the other priests were subject to him." Exactly so with the same pontiff now.

Thus, as in the days of Romulus, Numa and the Tarquins, Rome is again a kingdom. Thus, too, the ancient relations between the "two horns" (departments) of the Roman government, the civil and the hieratic, are now literally and completely restored. That "first head" has thus reassumed and still maintains its original place and relationship in "the city of the seven hills."

(Concluded next week.)

LETTER FROM JOHN WESLEY.

CITY ROAD (London), Jan. 21, 1780.

To the Editor of the Freeman's Journal, Dublin:

SIR:—Some time ago a pamphlet was sent to me entitled "An Appeal from the Protestant Association to the People of Great Britain." A day or two since a kind of answer to this was put into my hand, which pronounces its style contemptible, its reasoning futile, and its object malicious. On the contrary I think the style of it is clear, easy and natural; the reasoning, in general, strong and conclusive; the object or design, kind and benevolent.

And in pursuance of the same kind and benevolent design, namely, to preserve our happy constitution, I shall endeavor to confirm the substance of that tract, by a few plain arguments. With persecution I have nothing to do. I persecute no man for his religious principles. Let there be as boundless a freedom in religion as any man can conceive. But this does not touch the point. I will set religion, true or false, utterly out of the question. Suppose the Bible, if you please, to be a fable, and the Koran to be the Word of God. I consider not whether the Romish religion be true or false, I build nothing on one or the other supposition. Therefore, away with all your common-place declamation about intolerance and persecution for religion. Suppose every word of Pope Pius' creed to be true. Suppose the Council of Trent to have been infallible; yet I insist upon it, that no government not Roman Catholic ought to tolerate men of Roman Catholic persuasion.

I prove this by a plain argument (let him answer it that can): That no Roman Catholic does, or can, give security for his allegiance or peaceable behavior. I prove it thus: It is a Roman Catholic maxim established, not by private men, but by public council, that "NO FAITH IS TO BE KEPT WITH HERETICS." This has been openly avowed by the Council of Constance; it was never openly disclaimed. Whether private persons avow or disavow it, it is a fixed maxim of the Church of Rome. But as long as it is so, nothing can be more plain, than that the members of that church can give no reasonable security to any government of their allegiance or peaceable behavior. Therefore, they ought not to be tolerated by any government, Protestant, Mohammedan or Pagan. You say: "Nay, but they will take an oath of allegiance." True, five hundred oaths; but the maxim: "no faith is to be kept with heretics," sweeps them all away as a spider's web. So that still no governors that are not Roman Catholics can have any security for their allegiance.

Again, those who acknowledge the spiritual power of the Pope can give no security for their allegiance to any government; but, all Roman Catholics acknowledge this; therefore they can give no security for their allegiance. The power of granting pardon for all sins—past, present and to come—is, and has been for many centuries, one branch of his spiritual power. But those who acknowledge him to have this spiritual power, can give no security for their allegiance, since they believe that the Pope can pardon rebellion, high treason, and all other sins whatsoever. The power of dispensing with any promise, oath or vow, is another branch of the spiritual power of the Pope, and all who acknowledge his spiritual power must acknowledge this. But whoever acknowledges the dispensing power of the Pope can give no security for his allegiance to any government. Oaths and promises are none; they are light as air—A DISPENSATION MAKES THEM ALL NULL AND VOID. Nay, not only the Pope, but even a priest, has power to pardon sins!

This is an essential doctrine of the church of Rome. But they that acknowledge this cannot possibly give any security for their allegiance to any government. Oaths are no security for their allegiance to any government. Oaths are no security at all; for the priest can pardon both perjury and high treason. Setting their religion aside, it is plain that upon principles of reason, no government ought to tolerate men who cannot give any security to that government for their allegiance and peaceable behavior. But this no Romanist can do, not only while beholds that "no faith can be kept with heretics," but so long as he acknowledges either priestly absolution, or the spiritual power of the Pope. . . . . .

If any one pleases to answer this, and sign his name, I shall probably reply. But the productions of any anonymous writers I do not promise to take any notice of. I am, sir, your humble servant,

JOHN WESLEY.

ODD-FELLOWSHIP DISSECTED BY REV. J. P. STODDARD.

Ever since J. P. Stoddard lectured on secret societies in Canada, about a year and a half or two years ago, the effects of his teachings have been felt and manifested, both by friends and opponents of the secret lodge system in the Dominion. Occasionally the opposition to his exposures and strictures crops out in the local Canadian press. Among others who severely criticised our brother was Grand Master Joliffe, who sent a "defence" of Odd-fellowship to the editor of the Waterloo County Chronicle. In reply, Bro. Stoddard caused the following to appear in the columns of the same paper. While it may not contain much that is new to the Cynosure readers, it will serve to keep the Christless character and selfish features of that order fresh in the minds of those who believe that it has no claim upon their respect or fellowship:

To the Editor of the Chronicle:

DEAR SIR:—An absence of several months, and the consequent accumulation of work at home on my return, has occasioned delay in noticing a communication from Grand Master Joliffe which he is pleased to style a "Defence of Odd-fellowship."

I respectfully decline to enter into personal altercation with the Grand Master, preferring to leave your readers to judge of the merits or demerits of my previous communications, to which he takes exception. If my critic is immaculate in his character and devotion, he is all the more culpable for being "unequally yoked together with unbelievers," and those tempted to follow even such a human leadership would do well to note the words of Jeremiah 17: 5: "Cursed is the man that trusteth in man, and maketh flesh his arm," before entering orders which may "indeed appear beautiful outwardly, but are within full of dead men's bones and all manner of uncleanness." With due respect to the warning by Jude, not to "speak evil of dignities," I may without assumption follow the example of Him who "made himself of no reputation" in exposing inaccuracies in the teachings of those "who love the uppermost rooms at feasts, and the chief seats in the synagogues, and greetings in the markets, and to be called of men Rabbi, Rabbi." Timothy seems to have encountered specimens of this "heady, highminded" Brotherhood of Mutual Admirationists, who, "having their conscience seared with a hot iron," made "lies in hypocrisy" a vocation, whom Paul affirms are "lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God; having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof," adding the timely words, "from such turn away."

Omitting to note further Scripture proofs, that in the divine economy "One is your Master, even Christ, and all ye are brethren," I accept the obliging condescension of Ontario's Grand Master of Odd-fellows, when he says, "We are willing that Mr. Stoddard, or any other man so desiring, may see our book of form, with the ceremony of installing officers, dedicating halls, anniversary services, etc., together with our constitution and by-laws, and especially the charge of the Past Grand, the publication of which has been authorized by Sovereign Grand Lodge, and which epitomizes our principles." This is certainly an amazing statement, emanating from one high in the "Mystic Order." . . . . . .

Again I read, "There is nothing in Odd-fellowship antagonistic to Christianity." Before completing his "defence" the writer says, "In reference to the prayers used in the lodge, I admit the name of Christ is not prominent." Following this statement in the same paragraph, is a lengthy attempt to justify the suppression of Christ's name, which attempted defence is simply an acknowledgment that the order has the authority, and it has used that authority in manufacturing a system of religion to suit its own purposes, and as Jews and Buddhists and infidels (not atheists) are at enmity with Christ, his name is cast out. Could anything be plainer than this attempted justification of the stigma cast upon that ever blessed name? A simple assertion would not have a tithe of the force contained in such an attempted vindication, and for the same person to assert, "There is nothing in Odd-fellowship to conflict with Christianity," caps the climax of inconsistency. . . . . No marvel that they bar the door against the pure and holy One, but the marvel is that a professed Christian and Christian minister should admit Christ's exclusion and then attempt to justify such an outrage upon Christianity and its author. Is it possible that the writer has overlooked John 14: 6: "No man cometh to the Father but by me," or that he has never read John 16: 23, 24: "Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name he will give it you; hitherto ye have asked nothing in my name?" What will he do with 1st Timothy 2: 5: "There is one God and one Mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus?" Has the Grand Lodge or its Grand Master in Ontario invented or discovered some by-path or "other way" to reach the Father, so that John 10: 1 is no longer true, so that the minister who professes Christ and the Jew who rejects him, the Mormon who has his spiritual wives and the priest with his vow of celibacy upon him, may clasp hands around a common altar, and acceptably approach the Father while rejecting and excluding even the name of his Son from their worship? The Grand Master, permit me kindly to suggest, would do well to make it a little clearer in his next article how it is "possible that God can be just and justify" the man who "defends" an order that rejects Christ to please those who do not believe in Jesus.

I had intended to invite your readers to take a short journey with me over the perilous road of initiation; but as this is not found "in the publication authorized by Sovereign Grand Lodge" its "Grand Master" might not be "willing," although he indicates great confidence when he says in behalf of the order, "I am sure we only need to be known to be appreciated," and so Mr. Editor, at some future time I shall be pleased to give your readers an opportunity to "know," that they may "appreciate" the inner life of this mysterious organization.

(Concluded next week.)

NO WOMAN NEED "PEEK."

To the editor of the New York Morning Journal:

"Not by peeking; so there." Every one who knows anything about Masonry believes that, and knows that Mrs. Lease has had no chance to "peek."

But the notion that she knows more about Masonry than all other women is a mistake. I could tell her of more than one woman who would be able to give some blue lodge Masons points they have never thought of, and tell them about chapter and commandery degrees they have never taken. Long before Mrs. Lease went to Boston, I met a woman there who is connected with the publishing department of a woman's paper, and who can talk with Sbriners themselves about Masonry.

Mrs. Lease's peculiarity is not knowing more, but claiming a purpose to do more about Masonry than other women. If any one doubts what I say, let him formulate a test question and address it to Mrs. J. P. Stoddard, Hotel Howland, 218 Columbus avenue, Boston. He can say that he does it by my direction, and can rely on my knowing that I am at liberty to give the direction.

He can also rely on learning, if he is a Mason, that, whatever Mrs. Lease knows or does not know, this Boston woman knows fully as much as Mrs. Lease pretends to.

But even she "didn't peek."

J. B. ROBINSON.

New York City, April 10.

COXEY—AND AFTER.

The rise of Coxey and several factions of "commonwealers," under men who imitate and encourage him, has recalled a remembrance of the period immediately preceding the famous French Revolution of 1789–1793.

The story, briefly told, is this: "In 1774, Louis XVI., a well-meaning, weak prince, succeeded to the throne. His first ministers, Maurrepas, Turgot, and Malesherbes, had not the vigor to carry out the reforms which their sense and patriotism suggested to them, and they were soon compelled to yield to the intrigues of the nobility and resign their places. They were succeeded by the financier Neckar, who endeavored, by economy and method, to arrest the impending bankruptcy of the state, and succeeding ministers made futile attempts to diminish these financial disorders by new forms of taxation, which were generally opposed either by the assembly or the court. The American war of freedom (the Revolution) had disseminated republican ideas among the lower orders, while the assembly of the notables had discussed and made known to all classes the incapacity of the government and the wanton prodigality of the court. The nobles and the tiers etat were alike clamorous for a meeting of the states; the former wishing to impose new taxes on the nation, and the latter determined to inaugurate a thorough and systematic reform." The general state convention, to consider the condition of the country, met at Versailles, May 25, 1789. "France was at that moment ripe for a revolution." The revolt followed on the 12th of July.

The Chicago Herald reviews the situation as follows:

WHERE THE DANGER LIES.

"Thus far Coxeyism has been for the most part an American movement. If it shall continue to be such to the end probably it will not result in any serious outbreak against the properly constituted authorities.

"Americans have a way of going close up to the line on the other side of which lies commotion and bloodshed and coming abruptly to a halt before crossing. Their demonstrations are sometimes noisy, and sometimes to the unpracticed eye they look decidedly menacing. But away down in their hearts, born in them as a precious heritage from a law-abiding, self-governing ancestry, is a feeling of respect for law and for existing institutions. There is an underlying realization of the truth that in this land of representative government grievances are not to be redressed nor wrongs righted by revolutionary violence. Left to themselves, therefore, there is not much danger that they will overstep the bounds and appeal to arms.

"But will they be left to themselves? The hordes of foreigners who have been attracted to our shores by the false promises of the tariff protectionists, or imported under contract by the beneficiaries of the tariff system, are just now extremely restive. The number of them now engaged in strikes is estimated at considerably more than one hundred thousand. Great armies of them, more or less thoroughly equipped for murderous work, are terrorizing whole communities, and we hear urgent appeals for military protection.

"These strikers are excited and in some localities furious. They lack American training and the inborn American law-abiding character. They are but little advanced beyond the plane of their ancestors, who once almost obliterated European civilization. When this inflamed material attaches itself to the Coxey 'armies' what may happen?

"The Republican organs which are egging on the deluded American Coxeyites and formulating demands for them to make when they reach Washington can tell us, perhaps. Encouraging the Coxey dead-beat and train-stealing movement is no joke. It is liable to develop into something very serious as the armies traverse the regions where more than one hundred thousand desperate men are marching about threatening destruction and slaughter."

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

A curious test in court.—Riches that take to themselves wings.—Another count against the gipsey moth —A scandalous doctrine.—Mr. Hale's crusade.

We have all heard of the superstitious tests of the Middle Ages—the walking over hot ploughshares, or making the suspected murderer touch the body of his victim, in which case the wounds would begin to bleed; but it will surprise many people to learn that such tests are not quite obsolete even in this land and age. Judge Sherman, of the Supreme Court, had occasion recently to instruct a jury in the worth of superstitious tests as legal evidence. It was a case of larceny, and defendant and plaintiff were both Jews of the North End. There were seven persons, in all, who had an opportunity to take the money. They were requested to enter a dark room separately and touch a live chicken, with the understanding that in some mysterious manner the real thief would be thus detected. The chicken's feathers had been beforehand saturated with bluing. One of the seven, overcome by superstitious fear and a guilty conscience, did not touch the fowl, as was evidenced by his coming out of the room with no bluing on his fingers. The jury accepted this as proof presumptive of guilt, and very soon brought in a verdict to that effect.

P. T. Barnum's heirs, who are nine in number, are reported to be greatly dissatisfied—and certainly with some reason—over the way in which the executors are managing the estate. Their report for last year shows that it cost $41,000 to collect $114,000. The defunct endowment orders hardly make a worse showing. Another illustration of the proverb that riches take to themselves wings is the palatial mansion built at Portland, Me., at a cost of $125,000, the granite in the walls encircling the grounds costing $4,000, which has been offered for sale at $20,000, but nobody wants it. A home for priests who leave the Catholic church is to be established about eight miles from Boston, and fourteen acres of land, according to the British American, have already been offered for this purpose. Here is a chance for some patriotic millionaire to invest his money in a way that cannot fail to yield good interest, whatever the situation of the financial market. It would be the greatest aid in the fight against Rome of anything that has yet been done.

There is another count against the gipsey-moth. It likes tobacco. This shows it to be a low-bred insect, even if it is "so English, you know;"—as low-bred as Lord Randolph Churchill, whose American wife must have felt a keen pang of shame when he floundered through his tipsy speech in the House of Commons last week.

Dr. Donald, at the monthly meeting of the Trinity Club, last night, lectured to the young men on "The Political Parties of the United States," in which he said that once in New York he "voted for the greatest rascal who ever held office," and justified his action on the ground that principles not men should be recognized by the voter in exercising the ballot. As if a rascal could ever be trusted to carry out righteous principles! It is a pity to have young voters taught such a scandalous doctrine.

It is said there is a woman in Boston who belongs to twenty-two different clubs. She may be a member in the larger part simply by virtue of paying her fees, without attending; but certainly this is carrying the craze to an inordinate length. What time can such a woman have to bestow on her home and friends, or for actual self improvement?

Mr. Hale, the Middleboro pastor who so stirred up the churches in that place by his article in the Forum, a while ago, finds the idea of a church-union whose aim is "to bring Christianity into its simplest form, and do away with petty doctrinal differences," favorably received by such men as Dr. Shedd, of the Presbyterian, and Dr. Huntington, of the Episcopal church, which doubtless comforts him for the many enemies he has made in a good cause. He refuses, however, to apologize for writing the truth in regard to using Boys' Brigades, clam-bakes, and other adventitious attractions as a means to "draw." Those clergymen who are brave enough to protest against these abuses are getting the usual meed of reformers—persecution. It is not long since a pastor in Maine was arrested for refusing to allow a church-supper to be held in the church where he preached. A few more such examples of suffering for a principle may be needed, before the churches wake up to the importance of the subject. These questionable methods of raising money are to the Protestant church now what Miracle plays were to the Catholics in the Middle Ages—the gross indecencies of which were one of the many factors that helped on Luther's Reformation. Protestantism needs a new reformation.

ELIZABETH E. FLAGG.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, April 25, 1894.

The principal topic of conversation in Washington this week is the approaching armies of unemployed men. No less than three ministers preached sermons last Sunday in local churches on the subject. It is generally agreed that these men are doing a foolish thing to come to Washington, which has been severely taxed all winter to provide for its own unemployed, of whom there are more than ever before. They cannot get the relief from Congress which their leaders have evidently made them believe they can. It then becomes a serious problem for the people of Washington and vicinity as to what will be done with these men after they get here. Congress will not appropriate money to feed them; the government of the District of Columbia has no fund that can be used for that purpose, even if its officials were so disposed. Where then is their food to come from? It is plain that private donations will be insufficient to provide for the large number of men that those connected with the ill-advised movement say will be here next week, because many who, under ordinary circumstances, would gladly contribute will not do so now, knowing that the longer the men are fed the larger their number will grow and the longer they will remain. Having issued a proclamation warning these men that their coming can accomplish no good, the Commissioners of the District are now taking every precaution to prevent the vicious element, always found in large bodies of men, making trouble. The rest must be left in the hands of an all-wise Providence.

In view of recent happenings at the national capital, which have been spread broadcast over the land by the newspapers, a sermon preached by Rev. Dr. Power, last Sunday, is significant. He presented a strong, in fact, an unanswerable, argument in favor of an equal standard of morality for both sexes, and denounced as "an infamous slander" the recent public implication by a lawyer that all men were libertines. It is a subject that will sooner or later have to be taken up by the pulpit and by society.

The House of Representatives has joined the Senate in the good work of suppressing race-track gambling in the District of Columbia, by refusing, by a vote of 87 to 64, to pass a bill exempting the race-track in this District from the provisions of the law against gambling, when they were used for horse-racing. Nothing has occurred during the present session of Congress which more certainly indicates the growth of moral reform sentiment in Congress than the action of the Senate and House upon this question of race-track gambling. It would have been impossible to have secured such action a few years ago from Congress.

It really sounds odd, now that Rev. Thomas Harrison, the famous evangelist, is almost, if not quite, old enough to be himself the father of a preacher, to call him the "Boy Preacher," but that is the title under which he first earned renown as a revivalist, and it sticks to him. Mr. Harrison spent three days in Washington this week, and for the first time in ten or twelve years he conducted revival meetings here. He was in charge of the meetings at Metropolitan M. E. church Sunday, Monday and Tuesday evenings, and very interesting and successful meetings they were, too. Mr. Harrison preaches with all the fire of his youth and believes thoroughly in old-fashioned revivals, in which the people go down humbly upon their knees to implore forgiveness. He went from here to Trenton, N. J., where he has been holding meetings for three weeks, and has made 300 converts.

"I have been accused of being a crank," was the abrupt way in which Mrs. Anna L. Diggs, of Kansas, opened a characteristic temperance speech at a meeting held under the auspices of the Good Templars. "And may be, justly," she continued, "for I am an awful crank in espousing the cause of anything that promises to benefit the human race. The great law of God is humanity, and there is no humanity in the wine-cup. It first insiduously steals in and gains the confidence of the imbiber, and when once it has secured hold of its victim, laughs at his petty efforts to free himself; and when its foul work is accomplished, and the man is robbed of his money, his health, and the honest manhood that God gave him, he is thrown into the street to bear the jeers of an unsympathetic world and to lie in the drunkard's grave. It is a great and all-consuming curse, and the sooner it is eliminated from the world the better for all of us. Legislation has been tried, and in some ways has helped to check the constantly growing evil; but there is one thing that kills it effectually, and that is the grace of God. We need that grace, and with our prayers and tears the reformation will eventually be worked out, although the way looks dark and the devil now appears to have the upper hand."

The amicable agreement in the Senate ended with the close of the debate upon the tariff bill as a whole, yesterday afternoon. The bill is now to be discussed by items, and, unless the surface indications are at fault, a wrangle is about to begin over the time that shall be daily spent in discussion. *

REFORM NEWS.

OUR WORK ON THE PACIFIC COAST.

PHILOMATH, Ore., April 18, 1894.

Yesterday, the 17th, I put in nearly the entire afternoon with a dear young man in Albany, who is a Christian Odd-fellow. He had never considered the unholy alliances caused by these secret societies, until I sat down by his side and talked the matter over with him in an intelligent Christian manner. He is very sincere, and will weigh the arguments against the order in the light of the Gospel. I would risk anything on his leaving the lodge. Where I find Christian character and spiritual life prevailing, it is no trouble to convince men of the sinfulness of organized secrecy. But where there is no spiritual life and power, there is very little hope of success. "The world will love its own." May the Lord bless the young man! I stayed all night with a K. of P. He undertook a defence of the lodge on Christian principles, but he was badly worsted in the conversation. I think he is under conviction, and he promised me to think over it and pray about it. He acknowledged that I gave him more light on the subject than any man he had ever conversed with. I have hopes that he will quit the secret order and stand for Christ alone. I received a letter to-day from a dear young man in Wallula, Washington. He says: "Since the conversation with you that night in Salem, I have left the lodge forever. I am growing in grace, and am very happy since I quit the lodge." The Lord be praised for these clear testimonies. If I could persuade all the pastors to speak out on this subject, and warn their people against the evils of the lodges, it would not be long until secret societies would be as unpopular as they are popular now. I notice that the ex-reverend gentleman who was here some time ago lecturing in the interest of the A. O. U. W. and Odd-fellows, is now suing his wife for a divorce. I have not been able to state the cause. One thing is certain, the lodge relation conflicts with the family relation, the church and the government. Any person wishing to maintain loyalty to these most sacred institutions, should steer clear of all secret societies. P. B. WILLIAMS.

CORRESPONDENCE.

LIKES THE CYNOSURE.

LAWRENCE, Kan., April 28, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—Some years ago I was a reader of the Cynosure, and also for several years a contributor to it of reading matter. On account of permanent ill-health and financial disability, I "dropped out" of the ranks. Recently a sample copy (April 26) came to me, for which I thank you. I am glad to see its familiar face once more, and glad, also, to see its fresh, beautiful appearance and its unimpaired vigor.

Yours truly, (Rev.) J. D. GEHRING.

FROM WASHINGTON STATE.

SEATTLE, April 24, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—The present financial depression is bearing down heavily on this State in the northwestern corner of our nation. Some who came here with high hopes of getting rich in a few years, are now returning to their former homes—some discouraged, some disgusted, some regretfully. But many more are holding on, because they do not care to return, though they "have nothing to do."

But probably, even now, there are a great many more people coming to this State than are leaving it. Central Washington is being developed, land is being redeemed by getting water from artesian wells, and from large rivers, on a large scale. The county of Yokima is having almost a boom, so rapidly is the land being taken in small lots of 40 acres, and less, for fruit-farming, and for homes.

It is requiring diligent efforts to supply new communities with Gospel privileges. But it is encouraging to learn that these new communities all desire such privileges.

The Great Northern railroad is just now tied up by a "strike." There is a great deal of sympathy shown towards the strikers, and as they are orderly in these parts, the people make no complaints. An "Industrial Army" has been organized in Seattle, and in other cities. Opinions vary a great deal in regard to the "army" movement. Joseph Cook was here a few days ago. His reference to this movement was spoken of by a good many as indicating a lack of sympathy with the common people in their needs. In fact, a great deal that is said against movements of the people lacks sympathy. There are many, however, who do not endorse the present movements who realize that the laboring people have real grievances, and that they need substantial relief. Never before has there been such a time in our nation. Men are organizing secret orders of one kind and another, swearing men to stand by each other in a common cause, and these secret organizations are contending one against another. The masses are bound by their oaths to follow their leaders; and in this way little—and big—monarchies,—tyrannies—are being established by scores in this land of liberty. We are forgetting that a government of the people, by the people, for the people, can stand, and can succeed. And we are allowing a multitude of governments, by one man or a limited committee, to govern the people in the interests of classes. All these combinations are such that Lincoln's formula would read "governments of classes, by one, or by a few, for the few or for classes." Thus we are being led away from the American idea. It is time for us to assert, with emphasis, the principles of American liberty and independence. On the Pacific coast we feel the pulse-beat of the Atlantic. And we know here that this nation must be one nation, and this people one people. And it requires no wonderful sagacity to see that an appeal to the law of Christ, the law of love, is all that will save the nation. Men form secret combinations to protect themselves against selfishness—and to promote the purposes of selfishness. When men are willing to deal justly and righteously, they will need no secret combination.

Cold logic, the reasoning of selfishness, will never solve the problems which now disturb our country. With the HEART, not with the head, man believes unto righteousness. No law but the law of love can secure to the child the tender care of a mother, and the protection and support of a father. The government must love the people, or it will not—it cannot—protect and support them. The capital of this nation will always be oppressive until the hearts of those who control it give the pulse-beat to business. This heart-beat will change the hands of toil from machines to men, and no one will care who owns the capital only so that it broods instead of bruises. No secret oath can take the place of secret love.

(Rev.) A. JUDSON BAILEY.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS TO SECRETARY PHILLIPS.

WILLINGTON, CONN.

We find it takes the grace of God to go up and down this earth teaching men the truth on the line of the lodge; and if any of your Christian people don't think so, to work, and it may lead you to have more respect for those called of God to hold up the truth on the line of secret societies.

(Rev.) F. W. WEED.

CHEROKEE, IOWA.

The spiritually-deadening influence of secret societies is simply deplorable. May God save our churches. I desire to attend more of the State conventions in the future than I have in the past. Yours fraternally,

(Rev.) W. L. FERRIS.

GENEVA, OHIO.

Cynosure friends, you who cannot take the platform, or obtain space in the newspapers, for the spread of anti-lodge truth, send your hard-earned dollars, if need be, to the Cynosure office, and get their leaves from the tree of life, and when you write to a friend, or to others, insert one of those leaves, and thus help to heal the nations. Try it, and gather fruit after many days. I am your old brother in the fight,

EDWARD BRAKEMAN.

ERWINNA, PENN.

We are having a series of revival meetings at this place, and the lodge is one of our worst enemies. The chief one is called Knights of the Golden Eagle. May the blessing of God rest upon you and your work. Yours in the fight.

(Rev.) R. D. DREISBACH.

CHICAGO.

The fight is hard, but books and tracts work like gunballs and bombshells. The devil is howling like a stricken dog and tries to hit back. But never mind, he has to flee anyhow. With brotherly love, yours, (Rev.) E. F. W. BERSTH.

KIND WORDS FROM A NEW FRIEND.

DEGO, Ind., April 21, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—I desire to express my appreciation of your valuable paper. I was not aware that there was a paper occupying the field, and endeavoring to do the work that you are so ably doing, until quite recently, nor did I know that there was so much opposition to secret societies, except by our own people—the German Baptist, or Dunkards, as we are called, until I was induced by a brother to subscribe for the Christian Cynosure. I can say, truthfully, that your paper is highly appreciated, and the reformation that you plead for is greatly needed, as we think that secret orders are the bane of society, a hydra-headed monster, controlling and corrupting courts, elections and churches. Having been an advocate of non-secrecy and an opposer to the lodge for many years, I am greatly pleased with your paper. I bid you God-speed; and if it should come within the scope of my opportunities, I will gladly aid you by my humble efforts to increase your circulation. I should like to see the Cynosure in the hands of many people in this community. Yours respectfully, ARTEMAS SMITH.

EVE REASONS MASONICALLY.

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 19, 1894.

Since writing my previous letter, my eyes rest upon a passage in Milton's "Paradise Lost," Book 9, line 810, in which Eve, expatiating upon her new-found and forbidden pleasures, flatters herself that God does not see her. The true spirit of Masonry is expressed by the prophet Ezekiel 8:12: "Then said he unto me, Son of man, hast thou seen what the ancients of the house of Israel do in the dark, every man in the chambers of his imagery? For they say: The Lord seeth us not; the Lord hath forsaken the earth." [The prophet, observe, is speaking of Freemasonry and its brood of vipers.] In this spirit Eve said:

".....Thou open'st wisdom's way,
And giv'st access, though secret she retire.
And I, perhaps, am secret; heav'n is high,
High and remote, to see from thence distinct
Each thing on earth, and other care, perhaps,
May have diverted from continued watch
Our great forbidder, safe with all his spies
About him. But to Adam, in what sort shall I appear?"

You observe how she, like every sinner, puts God afar off, and fears man more than God.

It is for our encouragement that Christ said: "Blessed are those that hunger and thirst after righteousness; for they shall be filled." And again: "Blessed are the pure in heart; for they shall see God." But the guilty sinner does not want to see him, until grace enters his heart; then he pants after God, as the hart for the water-brooks. W. FENTON.

FROM A LUTHERAN.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., April 9, 1894.

To the Secretary, National Christian Association:

DEAR SIR:—Pardon me for not answering your kind and long letter sooner. By the information you gave me, I was able to procure literature sufficient to prove that these more modern (secret) societies are organizations which a Christian must avoid.

Our Lutheran church, especially the German Lutheran Synod of Missouri, ever did take a decided stand against the lodges; hence we had no Masons or Odd-fellows; but the Royal Arcanum, A. O. U. W., National Union, etc., had gained a number of our people, by saying: "We are simply an insurance company."

We opened our crusade against them in a large German church. About 900 voting members were present. There are six large German Lutheran churches here which exclude members of secret orders. Four of them belong to the Missouri Synod, or synodical conferences, and two to the Ohio Synod. There are three English Lutheran churches—one of the General Synod, and one of the General Council. These two are full of lodge members. The third is a small one of twenty-five voting members (or families). They are "Missourians," and have not a single secretist among them. Our German churches have had, but have drawn out, quite a number. Others are coming; but a few, undoubtedly, will remain stubborn, and will be put out of the church.

SOME NEW LAWS OF IOWA.

DE KALB, Iowa, April, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—The new laws of Iowa are an improvement, in the main. A step was taken in the right direction on woman suffrage, but they are only allowed to vote for bonds or to increase taxes. Bonds for school or any other purpose, and an increase of taxation, would not be a desirable improvement, however.

The prohibition of the sale of tobacco in any form to minors under sixteen, after July 4, is in the right direction of reform. The State takes the lead of some of the churches in this needed reform. The Free Methodists are nearest right on this line, I think, and I am not a member of their church either, but I rejoice at their noble stand. The old United Brethren are toning up on that line.

Lodge insurance is to be controlled by the Auditor of State. It is supposed that it means that they are to be allowed no more privileges than other insurance companies. This seems, also, a proper step, because lodge insurance companies need to be inspected and regulated as well as others, to keep them from swindling their own brethren.

A new law prohibits prize-fighting. Heavy fines and imprisonment are the penalties for violation.

The new liquor law amounts to nothing, except probably where prohibition is most liable to be violated. CYRUS SMITH.

JOHN MARSHALL, Chief Justice, in a Letter to Edward Everett, July 22, 1833, said of Freemasonry: "That the institution ought to be abandoned, as one capable of producing much evil, and incapable of producing any good which might not be effected by safe and open means."

CYNOSURE OFFER!

Any of the Books sold by the N. C. A. in this paper, ordered, with subscription to the Cynosure, at one-fourth off from list price, sent postpaid.

The New Volume of Pen and Pencil Series.

WELSH PICTURES Drawn with Pen and Pencil.

By D. Lewis Jones, Morris Jones, Edward Ffoulkes, H. Elvet Lewis, D. Tyssil Evans, D. Davies and O. M. Edwards. Edited by Richard Lovett, M. A. With many Illustrations. Imperial 8vo, cloth, gilt edges, boxed..... 3.20

"'Welsh pictures' is the work of ten Welshmen, among whom illustrating the beauties of Wales has been parcelled out according to the special familiarity of each. The result is a pleasing volume."—London Times.

THE EARTHLY FOOTPRINTS OF OUR RISEN LORD, Illumined.

A continuous narrative of the Four Gospels according to The Revised Version, with introduction by Rev. John Hall, D. D. Illustrated by 113 full-page half tone re-productions. Small 4to, cloth.....net 1.50
Gilt edge, with silk book mark, boxed.....net 2.00
Full morocco, flexible, gilt edges, round corners, boxed.....net 3.75

Pictures reflecting the best in sacred art from Raphael to the present day are scattered profusely through the book.

"To many the life of the Christ will be a new book in this form. Though beyond the introduction it contains no word except what is found in the four Gospels, yet when read continuously, without the breaks necessarily made by the different stories of the four evangelists, the narrative takes on new force and lifelikeness. The very fact that this is not our usual method of reading the Word will give it a new reality."—Golden Rule.

A GIFT OF LOVE, and Loving Greetings for 365 Days.

By Rose Porter. Long 18mo. Paper cloth..... 1.00
White cloth, silver top, in box..... 1.25
Decorated silk, silver top, in box..... 1.75

"'A Gift of Love' is the work of a loving heart. It contains a text of Scripture for every day of the year with the addition of an appropriate thought in poetry of prose all bearing on the theme of love. The work must have called for a great amount of patient toil. But it has not been spent in vain, for the volume will prove a blessing to many a soul. To use it day by day for a year thoughtfully and prayerfully, must result in a rich growth in love on the part of the user. The author is well known and esteemed for her previous works' sake."—The N. Y. Observer.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE SERIES.

By Rev. F. B. Meyer, containing CHRISTIAN LIVING, THE PRESENT TENSES OF THE BLESSED LIFE, AND THE SHEPHERD PSALM. 3 vols. in box. 18mo, cloth..... 1.50
White vellum cloth, silver top, in box..... 1.75

D. L. Moody says: "Few books of recent years are better adapted to instruct and help Christians than those of this author. He is a man mighty in the scriptures, saturated with Bible facts and truths."

PRAYERS FROM THE POETS.

By Martha Harger. 16mo, two colored cloth, gilt top..... 1.00
Leatherette, boxed..... 1.50

"This volume is admirable. The Prayer are better suited to some of our moods than formal Litanies and are selected from excellent sources. The book will be a dear treasure to many hearts."—The Churchman.

KIN-DA-SHON'S WIFE.

An Alaskan Story. By Mrs. Eugene S. Willard, Home Missionary of the Presbyterian Board of America to Alaska. With illustrations. 8vo, cloth..... 1.50

"Being a close observer and in deep sympathy with the native population in their struggles towards a Christian Civilization, Mrs. Willard has gained a more intelligent knowledge of their character, of their needs and hindrances, than perhaps any other person."—Dr. Sheldon Jackson.

HEROES OF THE GOODWIN SANDS.

By Rev. Thomas Stanley Treanor. With many illustrations. 8vo, Cloth..... 1.50

"It is a book of most engrossing interest, and as stimulating as it is readable."—The Record.
"The deeds of daring are thrilling in the extreme. Suitable for the public library or for the home."—Times.

THE GREAT LONDON DAILIES.

By H. W. Massingham. Profusely illustrated. 12mo, cloth..... 1.00

Very welcome to all who like to look behind the scenes and see how the great London dailies are worked.

New Editions.

The Prayer Meeting and Its Improvement.

By REV. LEWIS O. THOMPSON. Eighth edition, cloth, $1.25.

"Most heartily do we wish this work a wide circulation, both among pastors and people, and we hope it may do much toward the lifting of the prayer-meeting into that higher place which it ought to hold among the grand instrumentalities in the kingdom of the Master'—Congregationalist.

"We do not remember to have met with a work so suggestive, and we heartily commend it to both pastors and private members."—Baptist Weekly.

The Crisis of Missions. By Rev. ARTHUR T. PIERSON, D. D.

Cloth, $1.25; paper, 35c.

"We do not hesitate to say that this book is the most purposeful, earnest, and intelligent review of the mission work and field which has ever been given to the church."—Christian Statesman.

The Christian's Secret of a Happy Life.

By HANNAH WHITALL SMITH. One hundredth thousand. Issued in fourteen styles, from 50c. to $2.50. Send for circular.

"To commend this work would seem almost superfluous; and yet to young Christians who may not know it, we cannot refrain from saying, Buy this book, and keep it with your Bible for constant study, until you have thoroughly mastered, in your own experience, the 'secret' of which it tells. It will transform the dark days of your life, as it has transformed those of thousands before you, into days of heavenly light."—New York Evangelist.

The Topical Text Book. Fourth edition.

16 mo., cloth, 60c.

This little volume is a worker's most useful tool. It collates all Scripture passages under their topical headings, and for this reason proves far more helpful in studying a subject than the best concordance.

"I find one of the very best ways to study the Scripture is to study topically."—D. L. Moody.

Stalker's Life of Christ. Twelfth edition.

Stalker's Life of St. Paul. Fourth edition.

12 mo., cloth, each, 60c.

These works by Professor James Stalker, M. A., are unique in their compact putting of these lives into such condensed form without injurious brevity. They are being taken up as text books by Biblical classes in all parts of the country, thus proving their practical value.

Grace and Truth under Twelve Different Aspects.

By W. P. MACKAY, M. A. Paper, 35c.; cloth, 75c. Two hundred and fiftieth thousand.

This remarkable sale can only be attributed to the very practical character of this work as a guide to the inquirer and a work of helpful instruction for the immature Christian. It is of this volume Mr. D. L. Moody said: "I know of no work in print better adapted to place in the hands of the inquirer."

Notes and Suggestions for Bible Readings.

By S. R. BRIGGS. Sixtieth thousand. 8 vo, cloth. $1.00; flexible, 75c.

Edition after edition of this work has been called for until it would seem the demand must be supplied. The sales however, increase rather than otherwise.

Feathers for Arrows. By Rev. C. H. SPURGEON.

16 mo., cloth, $1.00.

Few preachers have made such effective use of pointed illustrations as the well known pastor of the great Metropolitan Tabernacle. Here he has given us a large cluster of his best with liberty to enjoy and employ.

Revell's Record for Church Treasurers.

Size No. 1, $1.50; Size No. 2, $2.00.

Popular because practical—valuable because time saving—the only record for weekly envelope system that reduces the treasurer's work to the minimum.

For sale by the

National Christian Association;

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Ill.

OBITUARY.

REV. NATHAN WARDNER, son of Deacon Philip and Polly Wardner, natives of Vermont, was born in Wheatland, Monroe Co., N. Y., April 12, 1820. He was the youngest of nine children. His mother died when he was two and a half years old, and he was brought up by a stepmother, a Christian woman. At the age of 19 he was baptized into the fellowship of the First-day Baptist church of Andover, N. Y., of which church his father was deacon.

Leaving home in June, 1841, he started out to get an education, with the view of entering the ministry of the Baptist church. He soon entered Alfred Academy, where he continued his studies most of the time until the autumn of 1846. When he left home he had but 18 cents in money, and was poorly clad. He had to depend solely upon his own labor for his support while in school, which made the practice of economy a necessity. He early manifested those traits of character which were the earnest of the success which, all the way through life, attended his labors, viz, integrity, industry, economy, courage, perseverance.

While a student at Alfred he came to believe in the Seventh-day Sabbath, and began the observance of that day. In September, 1846, he was called to the Foreign Mission Field by the Seventh-day Baptist Missionary Society. At a missionary meeting held in Alfred, Oct. 6, 1846, he was married to Olive Brown Forbes, by Rev. Chauncy Wardner, who still lives at North Hector, N. Y.

December 31, 1846, at Plainfield, N. J., he was ordained to the Gospel ministry, and he and his wife, together with Eld. Solomon Carpenter and wife, were set apart to the China Mission, for which field of labor they sailed Jan. 5, 1847, from New York. They returned from China to this country in 1857.

He occupied the pastorate of the following named churches, entering upon his labor with each as indicated by the dates given: Second Alfred, 1858; Westerly, 1866; West Hallock, Ill., 1868; Milton Junction, 1877; Utica, Wis, 1892. From 1875 to 1877 he engaged in missionary and Sabbath reform work in Scotland, under the employment of the American Sabbath Tract Society. From 1890 to 1892 he did not serve as pastor.

He was from the beginning among the ablest defenders of the principles of the denomination which he loved.

October 5, 1888, the companion with whom he had lived forty-two years was removed by death. December 4, 1889, he was married to Miss Mattie Harvey, who remains to mourn her great loss.

In his later years he ripened rapidly in spiritual tenderness and sociability. He had been in usual health so far as any one had observed, and the community was greatly shocked when, on the morning of April 6, he was suddenly called from a life of toil to an eternity of rest. The funeral services were held in the church at Milton Junction, April 10. The pulpit and platform were tastefully draped, and the floral offerings many and choice. The services were impressive.—Rev. Geo. W. Burdick, in the Gospel Messenger.

[Bro. Wardner was a staunch friend of the anti-secrecy reform, as every true and intelligent Christian must be as soon as he becomes acquainted with the effects of secret societies upon our social, religious and political institutions.—EDITOR CYNOSURE.]

"A wolf in sheep's clothing"—the substitute offered by the "cutter" as being just as good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. If you don't want to be bitten, insist upon having Ayer's Sarsaparilla, even if it is a little dearer. Depend on it, it will be cheaper for you in the end.

When the hair begins to fall out or turn gray, the scalp needs doctoring, and we know of no better specific than Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer.

"Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething" softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain and cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

A SURGEON'S KNIFE

gives you a feeling of horror and dread. There is no longer necessity for its use in many diseases formerly regarded as incurable without cutting.

The Triumph of Conservative Surgery is well illustrated by the fact that RUPTURE or Breach, is now radically cured without the knife and without pain. Clumsy, chafing trusses can be thrown away! They never cure but often induce inflammation, strangulation and death. TUMORS Ovarian, Fibroid (Uterine) and many others, are now removed without the perils of cutting operations. PILE TUMORS, however large, Fistula and other diseases of the lower bowel, are permanently cured without pain or resort to the knife. STONE in the Bladder, no matter how large, is crushed, pulverized, washed out and perfectly removed without cutting. STRICTURE of Urinary Passage is also removed without cutting in hundreds of cases. For pamphlet, references and all particulars, send 10 cents (in stamps) to World's Dispensary Medical Association, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Agents wanted BICYCLES ON EASY PAYMENTS

New or 2nd hand; lowest prices, largest stock; makers & oldest dealers in U.S. We sell everywhere. Catalog free Sylph ROUSE HAZARD & CO. 4 G St. Peoria, Ill.

MY WIFE CANNOT SEE HOW YOU DO IT AND PAY FREIGHT.

L 106 $14 Buys our 2 drawer walnut or oak Improved High Arm Singer sewing machine finely finished, nickel plated, adapted to light and heavy work; guaranteed for 10 Years; with Automatic Bobbin Winder, Self-Threading Cylinder Shuttle, Self-Setting Needle and a complete set of Steel Attachments; shipped any where on 30 Day's Trial. No money required in advance. 75,000 now in use. World's Fair Medal awarded machine and attachments. Buy from factory and save dealer's and agent's profits. FREE Cut This Out and send to-day for machine or large free catalogue, testimonials and Glimpses of the World's Fair. OXFORD MFG. CO. 342 Wabash Ave. CHICAGO, ILL.

WHEATON COLLEGE,

WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women.

SPRING TERM BEGINS TUESDAY, APRIL 3RD.

ENROLLMENT BEGINS MONDAY, APRIL 2ND.

For Catalogue, address

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

IF YOU

WANT WORK

that is pleasant and profitable, send us your address immediately. We teach men and women how to earn from $5 per day to $3,000 per year without having had previous experience, and furnish the employment at which they can make that amount. Capital unnecessary. A trial will cost you nothing. Write to-day and address,

E. C. ALLEN & CO.,

Box 1001. Augusta, Me.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained, and all Patent business conducted for Moderate Fees.

Our Office is Opposite U. S. Patent Office, and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A Pamphlet, "How to Obtain Patents," with names of actual clients in your State, county, or town, sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.

Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

MY EXPERIENCES

WITH

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY A TRAVELER.

With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,

but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chica

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Colver on Masonry.
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

NORTHERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
Nathan Callender Montdale Pa.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
W. M. Love, Osceola, Mo.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Thompson, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
D. A. Richards, Brighton, Mich.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill.

Disloyal

SECRET OATHS

ADDRESS OF

JOSEPH COOK,

OF BOSTON,

AT THE

Conference of Christians

CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate. By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter)
—AND OFFICE OF—
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. A. J. Gordon D.D., Boston, Mass.

VICE PRESIDENT—Charles A. Blanchard, President Wheaton College Ill.

GEN'L SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I. Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

REC. SECRETARY—Amos Dresser, Jr. Wheaton, Ill., Box 367.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E Whipple, E. R. Worrell, Edgar B. Wylie W. M. Howie, H. F. Kletzing.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., J. A. Conant; Vice-president, S. C. Kimball; Sec'y, D. B. Gunn.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. R. W. Chesnut Marissa; Sec., Rev. J. R. Wylie, Coulterville; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., Rev. J. A. Greer, Columbus City; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton; Treas., Rev. L. Mendenhall, Fairfield.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo; Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., ——— ———, ——— Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom, Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morrill St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry; Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

OREGON.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dillon, D.D., Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan, Beaver; Treas., Edwin P Sellew, Philadelphia.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poynette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas J W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

HENRY M. HUGUNIN - - - - Editor.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, MAY 3, 1894.

The Annual Meeting of the National Christian Association will occur on Wednesday, May 16, 1894, at 10:30 A. M., in Carpenter building, 221 West Madison street, Chicago, Ill., for the election of officers and the transaction of other important business. REV. A. J. GORDON, Pres.
AMOS DRESSER, JR., Sec'y.

INCORRIGIBLE STUPIDITY.

Following, we present parts of two private letters, written, respectively, by the editors of two prominent religious newspapers, printed in the State of New York, to a well-known Congregational missionary in Africa, which we deem it a duty to publish, to show their deplorable and willful ignorance of Freemasonry:

THE FIRST LETTER.

I do not believe those stories about their (Freemasons') oaths. If they were true, we should never see a Mason convicted of a crime, and that fact would be a publicly notorious one. So far as I know, Masons are just as likely to be convicted of crime in the courts as anybody else; and I agree with the great mass of our citizens in thinking that President Blanchard, of Wheaton College, is a crank on that subject, and that President Finney was misled. Plainly, we do not see evidence of the truth of the statements made. I regard them as slanders. I am not a Mason, myself. I despise the whole thing for its folly. Yours very truly.

THE SECOND LETTER

As we have not seen the publications to which you refer, we must refrain from expressing an opinion upon them. We may say generally, however, that there have been some very absurd statements published by well-meaning, but somewhat fanatical, people regarding Freemasons. No member of our staff happens to be a Freemason, and we speak only from outside knowledge; but we all know many excellent citizens and honorable men who belong to the association (fraternity), and are perfectly confident that if it were, in fact, anti-Christian and anti-moral, these men would not for a minute belong to it. The present writer happens to know two or three ministers, with whose personal life and moral character he is very well-acquainted, who are Masons, and they assure him that there is nothing prejudicial to good citizenship and Christian character in belonging to that body.

The exceeding verdancy, to use no harsher word, of these editors is really amazing. The facts in reference to Masonic oaths are as well-known as any other facts of history. Whether "President Blanchard is a crank," and "President Finney was misled," may be questions about which men may differ, but some things are as clearly proved as ever were the statements on which a jury founded their verdict. They are, briefly:

1. That the oaths of Freemasonry have been declared to the world by many hundreds of seceding Masons of unquestionable reputation. They all agree in their statements, and have never been officially contradicted.

2. In a considerable number of instances, these oaths have been authenticated by legal investigation in courts of justice, and made the basis of judicial decisions. They have also been established by repeated investigations before several State legislatures.

3. Freemasons, themselves, who are not only in good standing, but prominent leaders in the order, have printed the ritual and the oaths of Freemasonry, and they are now on sale in Masonic bookstores. The oaths thus published (in cypher) do not differ in any essential respect from the statements of seceded Masons.

4. If the statements made in reference to the oaths of Masonry are "slanders," as one of these astute editors thinks, they could easily be proved to be such, and the men and the papers that publish them could be enjoined from so doing. On the contrary, when Thaddeus Stevens was accused of slander, because he published the ritual and oaths of Masonry, he proved before the courts that the statements were true, and therefore not slanderous.

Will the editors who write so tenderly of Freemasonry kindly notice that the statutes of Vermont make the oaths of that fraternity and other secret societies illegal? They put a penalty of $50 to $200 upon every secret oath not authorized by public law. By this statute Vermont has actually uprooted all societies founded upon such oaths. Massachusetts also had once a law abolishing all such oaths and obligations, and Daniel Webster heartily approved of it.

5. Whatever may be the editor's opinion about President Finney's being "misled," he will hardly say this of Drs. Moses Stuart and Leonard Woods, of Andover, John Quincy Adams, Daniel Webster, William H. Seward, John C. Spencer, Millard Fillmore, and many other distinguished men, who not only accepted the truth of the statements about the oaths of Masonry, but condemned the system as strongly as ever did Presidents Finney and Blanchard. John Quincy Adams wrote:

"I am prepared to complete the demonstration before God and man, that the Masonic oaths, obligations and penalties cannot by any possibility be reconciled to the laws of morality, of Christianity, or of the land."

We ask the reader to carefully scan the statements made in the second editor's letter, quoted above, and compare it with the following, written by John Quincy Adams in 1831:

"Go to the records of the courts. You will find witnesses refusing to testify upon the express ground of Masonic obligations, avowing that they consider those obligations paramount to the laws of the land. You will see them contumacious to the decisions of the courts, fined and imprisoned for contempt, suffer the punishment rather than bear the testimony, and instead of expulsion, be refunded, in part, at least, for their fines by contributions from the lodges." And then he gives the names of the nine Masons to whom he referred. Then he proceeds: "You will find much more. You will find the Masonic grand and petit juries, summoned by Masonic sheriffs, eager to sit upon the trials, perverting truth and justice when admitted on the array, and often excluded upon challenge to the favor; and, last of all, you will find one of the men most deeply implicated in the murder screened from conviction by one Mason upon his jury."—Letters and Addresses on Freemasonry, by John Quincy Adams, pages 69–70.

Let this offset the "good-man" argument.

Before these astute editors of religious papers in New York State again write letters as misleading as those copied at the beginning of this article, let them read a little of New York's history, which will abundantly confirm all that has been charged against Freemasonry.

WE HAVE NO NEED OF THE A. P. A.

It is worthy of note that just now Rome in the United States is confronted by two separate and distinct A. P. Associations—both secret in their operations. The names by which they are known are: The American Protective Association and the American Protestant Association. The American Protestant, the Boston organ of the latter organization, which is very much older than its political co-laborer, makes this statement in its behalf:

It is American, because we sincerely believe that elements are at work in our midst whose object is to sap the foundations of our government, to overthrow its institutions, and to smother out the last spark of the fire of our glorious liberty. It is purely Protestant, because we believe that Roman Catholicism is antagonistic to true republicanism, and that a pure and undefiled Protestantism is essentially requisite to the preservation of our country and its free institutions.

There is nothing offensive in this declaration. But ——

In his address at the Sunset Club, when secret political societies were under discussion, General Hawley, championing the American Protective Association, used this expression:

"You have heard of us in the last few days. You will hear from us again next fall; and in 1896 you will hear from us with a President who will have the A. P. A. brand on him or there will be no President."

This is one great objection to the A. P. A. It will have the President branded and owned by itself, or there will be an end to Presidential administrations. The country wants no secretly-branded or secretly-elected President. It wants a President wise enough, strong enough, good enough, whatever his religion, to know the needs of the whole people, and energetic enough to use all his influence to satisfy them—a man whose private judgment is unwarped by injurious, oath-bound partisanship—a man whose conscience is sufficiently tender to enforce all wholesome laws for the benefit of all the people rather than the few.

The glaring fault of the American Protestant Association is its religious partisanship, which pits one form of religion against another, and would combine Protestantism with national politics, just as the Church of Rome is seeking, under cover of its religious tenets, to subdue the politics of America to itself. This course is as un-American as that of the American Protective Association, which proposes to have a President who will do its bidding without regard to any other brand than its own. What we most need is a Union-loving band of intelligent citizens, with only one object in their efforts to overcome the aggressions of Rome, regardless of sects, or parties, or lodges—the salvation of our country from alien dominion.

JESUITISM IN CANADA.

A statue of Loyola, the founder of the Jesuits' society, stands in front of the Jesuits' Retreat, in one of the best suburbs of the city of Quebec, Canada. It represents "Loyola Crushing out the Protestant Reformation." The base is ten feet high, and the statue is eight feet. It is a reproduction of the celebrated statue of the Vatican, and was erected in Quebec a few years ago. On the panel above the base is an inscription in Latin, "To Loyola, Founder of the Society of Jesus." On the coat-of-arms of the base, and on the scroll in Loyola's left hand, is the motto of the Jesuits, "To the greater glory of God." The statue represents Loyola as stamping on the Protestant and on the Book which he clasps.

To discover the object for which the secret order of the Jesuits was created by Loyola, we must not go to the books which they have written (although these develop the wickedness of the organization), but to those who have broken away from their despotism after having experienced their brutality. If the testimony collected against them may be relied upon, "the first, most manifest design of the Jesuits was to exterminate Protestantism, and the second, to build up the Roman Church. Included in the latter, was their purpose to diminish the power of the bishops, in favor of the supremacy, the absolutism, the infallibility of the pope, and then to obtain control of that pope, as embodying the church, and so advancing their society. The vow of obedience is the strongest and most essential part of the constitution of the Jesuits. Every Jesuit's oath includes perpetual obedience to the Father-General, 'as holding the place of God.' Jesuit missionaries, going under orders, confessed to a fellow-traveler: 'Wherever we are, in the garden, in the street, if the command comes to us to go to any part of the earth, ... on any service, we do not wait to enter the house for money, for clothing, or for farewells, but simply and at once start from where we are and go'".

In the Church of Rome, unless the pope was obedient to the will of the Jesuits, the highest prelates were freed from obedience to the pope, and history records that the clashing of the pope's will with that of the Jesuit General has always resulted in the submission or ruin of the pope.

Such is this dangerous order. History is filled with their deviltries; nations have either expelled them or bowed to their tyranny. They are not men, but mere machines—engines of destruction alike to individuals or nations who oppose them. They have become a necessary adjunct of the Church of Rome, and Protestantism, off its guard, is their victim. In this case eternal vigilance and valor only can insure deliverance from their machinations.

Canada, as we understand it, is partly ruled by the Church of Rome, which is controlled by the Jesuits; and were Canada separated from the British empire, no doubt it would become an independent nation of Jesuits.

ENFORCEMENT OF MASONIC "CHARITY."

A dispatch from Topeka, Kan., April 23, states as follows: "Judge Hogan, of the district court, to-day decided the celebrated case of Reno County Lodge vs. The Grand Lodge, Independent Order of Odd-fellows, giving the opinion that the Grand Lodge of Kansas has the right to lay (or assess) the per capita tax for the support of the DeBoissiere Odd-fellows' Home in Franklin County. The court recites that the Sovereign Grand Lodge duly authorized such a levy. The decision is of national interest, and affects not only the order of Odd-fellows, but all secret orders."

"In 1853 the Grand Lodge (Masonic) of Arkansas passed an edict requiring its subordinate lodges to levy and collect a tax of $2 00 per annum from each affiliated Mason for the benefit of St. John's College. Two lodges refused to comply. At the communication in 1854 the Grand Master argued that the Grand Lodge had the right to impose the tax."—Chase's Digest of Masonic Law, p. 448. "These precedents are sufficient to establish the power of the Grand Lodge to levy and collect taxes for such purposes as in its estimation will tend to carry out the great ends of Masonry."—Ibid.

"A Grand Lodge is invested with power and authority over all the craft within its jurisdiction. It is the supreme court of appeal in all Masonic cases, and to its decrees implicit obedience must be paid by every lodge and every Mason situated within its control. The government of Grand Lodges is, therefore, completely despotic.....Its edicts must be respected and obeyed without examination by its subordinate lodges."—Mackey's Encyclopedia of Freemasonry, page 320.

With such power in its hands, what can hinder a Grand Lodge from levying any tax upon the members within its jurisdiction? The Kansas decision is in exact harmony with Masonic law.

TO ENFORCE LAW AND ORDER.

Under its present government, Chicago is a stronger commonwealth than the State of Illinois. The Mayor and Common Council permit Sabbath-breaking by all classes whose inclinations lie in that direction, either by liquor-selling, working or seeking unhallowed amusement. But the State laws provide:

1. That whosoever keeps open any tippling house or place where liquor is sold or given away, upon the first day of the week, commonly called Sunday, shall be fined not exceeding $200.
2. Whoever disturbs the peace and good order of society by labor (works of necessity and charity excepted), or by any amusement or diversion on Sunday, shall be fined not exceeding $25. This section shall not be construed to prevent watermen and railroad companies from landing their passengers, or watermen from unloading their cargoes, or ferrymen from carrying over the water travelers and persons moving their families on the first day of the week, nor to prevent the due exercise of the rights of conscience by whomever thinks proper to keep any other day as Sabbath.
3. Whoever shall be guilty of any noise, rout or amusement on the first day of the week, called Sunday, whereby the peace of any private family may be disturbed, shall be fined not exceeding $25.

These statutes have become dead letters in our municipality, and are seldom or never referred to within the city's jurisdiction, except by those who deplore the neglect of them and desire to have them reformed. We do not wonder that Evanston, situated in a wealthy and flourishing prohibition district, eight miles in diameter, would not consent to annexation with our rum-sodden corporation.

It is announced that the International Sabbath Observance League has been organized to enforce the State laws above quoted in this city and county. Every good citizen is under obligation to support it in opposition to the "gang rule" under which we now suffer.

—The quality of Chicago politics is shown in the refusal of the election commissioners to produce the ballots of last election in a court of justice for investigation.

—Y——— can't keep house without the Cynosure—it improves with age," writes one of our Pennsylvania subscribers. He "doesn't have to." Really these kind words of appreciation touch us deeply.

—A feature not surprising in the Coxey movement is the statement of a secular paper that "Col." Inman, of the Sacramento (Cal.) branch, has served three terms in the penitentiary. No matter how just a cause may be in any behalf, it is such adherents that serve to bring it into disrepute.

—Educators will remember that this year's sessions of the National Educational Association, of which A. G. Lane, superintendent of Chicago public schools, is president, are to be held at Asbury Park, N. J., July 6–13, inclusive. Liberal rates by rail to this beautiful resort on the seashore are offered to interested visitors.

—Coxey and company, in several factions, in various localities, have furnished the staple material for the press during the past week. The situation is full of interest, rather for the possible consequences than for the actual disorder that attends the movement, although that is by no means trivial. An article—"Coxey—and After," on page 4, and our Washington correspondence, discuss the gravity of the subject.

—New Jersey has twice placed itself, recently, on the record as in favor of the custom of college hazing. The bill making the practice a distinct crime was defeated in the Legislature, and when called up for reconsideration was again defeated. It now devolves upon the faculties of the several colleges and universities in the State to fix the limits to this demoralizing custom.

—Lay representation in Methodist Episcopal conferences, on equal terms with ministerial representation, has been defeated by a vote of 831 in its favor to 2,579 in opposition. Several plans to overcome this defeat are under discussion. One is to reduce ministerial representation to a minimum. Another is to divide ministers and laymen into upper and lower houses of legislation. The Northwestern Christian Advocate favors the latter, and deems it available in removing the friction of the two classes.

—Mrs. Hattie C. Powers, the earnest supporter of our reform at the national capital, writes to us as follows: "I am holding anti-secrecy meetings every day. I have started out in simple faith in God, and by his commandment, to throw the light of truth upon the secret things of darkness, with a success that warrants me in sending this order for books, with the names of two subscribers for the Christian Cynosure." We are sure that the Lord will abundantly bless this sister's work to his glory and the advancement of his kingdom.

—The World's Fair Parliament of Religions, last year, was a serious mistake. It encouraged infidels and deists of all degrees and names, from India's coral strand to Chicago's twenty-fourth ward, to flaunt their respective isms and sneer at the religion of Jesus Christ. In the words of the Christian Instructor: "Well would it have been if that parliament had never been held. It has done, and will, for years to come, do injury to the cause of Christ. We trust that God will in the end overrule it for good." That prayer will be widely echoed.

—A Masonic writer in the Craftsman intimates, by blasphemously quoting Scripture, that the anti-secrecy "cranks" (as he calls them) in the recent Philadelphia Convention "know not what they do." He also points to Gen. Washington as a glorious Mason, while Stephen Merritt, who probably took 135 more Masonic degrees than "the father of his country," is alluded to as "the daisy boss crank" of the convention. Somehow, Freemasonry, like Romanism, is very inconsistent in its expressions, and always hates those who are led by the Spirit to forsake it.

—A writer in the Advance has reduced charitable giving to a proportionate system, on the basis of one-tenth of the personal income. Thus one whose income is $1,000 a year should divide up $100 annually as follows: To local church work, $50; foreign missions, $13; home missions, $11; Freedmen and Indians, $7 40; church and parsonage building, repairs, etc., $3; education, $3 80; mission Sunday-schools, $1; ministerial relief, 80 cents; miscellaneous, $10. Other objects than those named may be substituted, but the proportion will remain unchanged. Systematic giving has many advantages.

—Ida B. Wells, a young colored woman from Memphis, Tenn., is interesting the British public by her efforts to arouse them to protest against the prevalent custom of Americans to hang, burn, or otherwise destroy accused Negroes on small provocation. She emphasizes her addresses by recounting numerous instances of these outrages, and insinuates plainly that in most cases where the Negroes have been hanged for assaulting white women the latter have been willing companions of their black paramours. The English are rather inclined to believe her statements, of which an incident of a few days ago will serve as an excellent object-lesson and attestation. Four more of the half-dozen colored men accused (not convicted) of the Boyce murder were lynched near Tallulah, La., by a mob of 200 persons. Miss Wells has plenty of material for a successful appeal to British sympathy and protestation.

—Rev. J. C. McFeeters, of Philadelphia, in a recent letter to our Eastern Secretary, sending a remittance for the State work in Pennsylvania, writes: "I wish I had more to send you for the good cause. The echoes of the convention here are still heard. Such good work must, by the blessing of God, bring forth good fruit. These two dollars are from Miss Augusta Tabor, 1617 Summer street, of our city. Please send her a receipt. May the Lord give you help and strength for your work. With kind regards, sincerely yours." Bro. Stoddard particularly desires that contributions from friends of the State work in Pennsylvania may be sent directly to Rev. Edwin P. Sellew, State Treasurer, at 207 Walnut place, Philadelphia, Pa.

—The Christian Intelligencer sees, in the signs of the times, hopeful indications of "a closer union of Presbyterians, Reformed, Congregationalists, Methodists and Lutherans." This hope has its basis in a meeting of the "Executive Commission of the Alliance of the Reformed churches, in Philadelphia, in which it was decided to establish a Committee on Co-operation in Home Missions, and Rev. Dr. Roberts reported that the joint Committee on Federation, which had met that day, had unanimously adopted a plan of federative union to be recommended to their churches—a plan which he thought was most feasible and promising. This joint committee represents the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches of the country." In union there is strength, and division is weakness. Paul's injunction is too easily forgotten—Eph. 4:1–7—but this movement seems to be in harmony with it.

—The executive committee of the Indian Rights Association (1305 Arch street, Philadelphia) has addressed an earnest and strong protest to the Committee on Indian Affairs, H. of R., in Congress against the proposed abolition of the office of superintendent of Indian schools. To abolish this office, it claims, is practically to destroy the usefulness of the Indian school service, and reproduce the state of confusion and inefficiency out of which the present superintendent, Dr. W. N. Hailman, is now bringing it. The committee also urges weighty reasons why the present force of inspectors and special agents of the Indian school system should not be reduced. The appeal is filled with cogent arguments against the proposed changes and the disastrous effects which they would inaugurate. These changes are attributed largely to ignorance of the needs and value of the service, and the plea of the association is both timely and important.

—The United Presbyterians have lost their church property in Detroit, by a recent decision of the Supreme Court of the State of Michigan. The decision is important as involving ownership in this class of property, and will form a precedent in other cases than the one in which it originated. The case, as stated by the United Presbyterian, is this: "In 1889, the Detroit congregation, by a majority vote, decided to withdraw from the United Presbyterian church, and, in common with several others, was given a certificate by the presbytery, a majority of whose members were concerned in the movement. Some of the members, in behalf of those who did not go with the majority, entered suit, asking the court to enjoin the trustees to hold and administer the property for the United Presbyterian congregation. In the lower court this was refused, and now the decision has been confirmed by the Supreme Court." The point at issue and settled by the court is, that the congregation as a corporation, or society, is, under the civil law, virtually independent of the ecclesiastical body.

—An interesting international temperance congress, to be held at Prohibition Park, Staten Island, N. Y., June 3–5, 1894, has been called by many of the most distinguished men and women of the United States and Canada. Its object is two-fold—to offer suitable demonstration in honor of the venerable Neal Dow on reaching his ninetieth birthday, and "to compare frankly and fully the conflicting views of temperance reformers, to come to an agreement as nearly as possible, to issue an address appealing to the people of the United States and Canada against the saloons, to plan for temperance teaching in the public schools, for temperance agitation among the people, for the enlisting of pulpit and press, and for the obtaining of fresh laws." Churches, societies, and religious bodies may send one delegate for each twenty members. Delegates, to participate in the proceedings, will be required to favor total abstinence and the overthrow of the saloon. General Dow is to be present on the opening day. Maj. Gen. O. O. Howard will preside, and the oration will be delivered by Joseph Cook. It promises to be an attractive and useful event, and should be a representative gathering of the temperance people throughout America.

THE HOME.

TO A FELLOW-LABORER.

BY MRS. VICTORIA ALEXANDRA STONE.

If I could guide thy way,
Across life's stormy sea;
If hopes and prayers could aught avail,
I'd hope and pray for thee.

But clouds obscure our sight,
And loud the thunders roar,
And farther seems the morning's light,
And dim the distant shore,

And wide the trackless sea,
That spreads before our eyes;
And a dreary hour, dear friend, for thee,
In the far-off future lies.

Although the tempest's shock
Our heart with terror thrills,
Our feet are still upon His Rock,
Our eyes upon his hills.

And so, dear friend, his love
Shall guide thy steps along
To that reward which waits for those
Who suffer and are strong.

Steamburgh, N. Y.

THE LIFE THAT NOW IS.

To suppose that temporal things are too little for our condescending God is to forget that he observes the flight of sparrows and counts the hairs of our heads. Besides, everything is so little to him, that if he does not care for the little, he cares for nothing. Who is to divide affairs by size and weight? A man of God once lost a key. He prayed about it and found it. It was reported of him as a strange circumstance. But why? We are assured that when our Lord gave his angels charge to guard our feet from stones in the way, he placed all the details of our life under heavenly care, and we are glad to commit all things to his keeping.

It has been the writer's lot to test the Lord hundreds of times about temporal affairs, being driven thereto by the care of orphans and students. Prayer has many times brought opportune supplies and cleared away serious difficulties. I know that faith can fill a purse, provide a meal, change a hard heart, procure a site for a building, heal sickness, quiet insubordination, and stay an epidemic. Like money in the worldling's hands, faith in the hand of the man of God "answereth all things." How I wish that my reader could so believe in God as to lean upon him in all the concerns of his life. This would lead him into a new world, and bring to him such confirmatory evidence as to the truth of our holy faith that he would laugh skeptics to scorn. The simple-hearted believer, though laughed at as an idiot, has a wisdom which cometh from above and effectually baffles the cunning of the wicked. Nothing puzzles a malicious enemy like the straightforward unguardedness of an out-and-out believer.—Spurgeon.

THE FORCE IN EACH DAY.

To live each day so that it ministers to the day that is to follow, is the unexpressed hope of every thinking mortal. In business we call this foresight, in education it is a love of study, in religion we call it living like a Christian. Each day, whether we will it so or not, represents the high-water mark of attainment. The mistakes of to-day mark the development of business sagacity; the unlearned lesson is the test of intellectual ambition; the sin of to-day measures the strength of resistance.

Physicians tell us that our weakest point, physically, measures our strength to resist disease. In mechanics there is an adage that expresses a principle: "The vessel is no stronger than its weakest part." It is true of man. The measure of his strength is where he shows the least resistance; where he is persuaded by outward or inward forces to that act which results in evil, in retarding of development, whether in purse, in mind, or in soul.

Men grow narrow because they do not live in sympathy with the times; they grow hard because they keep the world outside; they lose in spiritual force because they keep that force under in their daily life. Every day witnesses to the life lived the preceding day; this must be so, for life is cumulative either in good or evil; there is no blank. Consciously or unconsciously, this force is working, for good or evil; stagnation is death. When we realize this to the full, we strive to compel attainment. When we look upon each day as a period by itself, we become the playthings of time.—The Christian Home.

SPOILING CHILDREN.

Sacrifice appears to be the predominating element in a mother's nature. She is willing to deprive herself of actual necessaries for the sake of giving to her children, and when taxed by others with the too great self-denial will plead as her excuse that it is for the children.

Parents save and skimp themselves of many comforts; they toil from morning until night, with but one object in view—the future happiness of the sons and daughters God has given them; and in how many cases does their sacrifice result in fostering in the hearts and minds of those for whom they slave a selfishness that causes them to accept all that is done for them as their due, and complain because greater favors are not in the power of the parents to bestow?

We know how the great mother heart has no boundary in its loving desires and earnest wishes for life's best gifts to be showered upon the children that lisp her name; but, after all, is this continual subjugation of self the best training for those that are in time to be turned loose upon the world and fight there the battle for daily bread and earthly preference?

The children who have been accustomed to get all that they desired, even though they crippled the purse of father and mother in the accomplishment of their wishes, will find that the great world is not so willing to bend to their slightest whim, and strangers are not prone to give up the best places and greatest good to them as mother and father have always done.

Life will be much harder for them if they have been spoiled at home, and the selfish nature which has been encouraged there will materially work against them when they come in contact with all sorts and conditions of men. Remember this, all ye dear, kind-hearted fathers and mothers, when ye feel tempted to forego some personal benefit and plead that the sacrifice is made for the sake of the children.—Commercial Advertiser.

THE HEART OF THE RELIGIOUS PROBLEM.

When a veteran missionary in India affirms that the Hindu's "religion is only the outward expression of his desire to conceal the true nature of his original depravity," or "the garment of fig-leaves in which he has chosen to clothe himself in the vain attempt to hide his nakedness," that is giving another side of the problem from that which is presented usually at a congress of religions. It is the side, too, which just now it is not counted liberal to take; yet it is often profoundly true. There is in the religion of the Hindu, as of the other various non-Christian peoples, truth, of course, and often well and even beautifully expressed. The fig-leaves are really quite tasteful garments. But the human heart there is the same as it is in the Christian congregation. It is fond of substituting the ideas of religious philosophy for genuine repentance.

The missionary referred to once spoke to a large company on "Love to God and Love to Man." A man in the audience rose and said, "Sir, there is no objection to what you have said; if all men would act according to this doctrine, there would be a marvelous transformation in this world; but there is one difficulty; it is a fatal one among us Hindus. It is simply this, we have no relish for it." Intellectual, emotional relish some might have for it; but not that relish which proceeds from a will that has accepted these fine ideas as the inspiration and rule of present daily living.

The Hindu is not different in this regard from the San Franciscan. The latter rather likes the notion of the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. Any eloquent speaker can bring down a house from that platform. Parliaments and congresses of religion regale all hearers with that watchword. The hearers listen and are so complacent to think that their minds are so hospitable to noble ideas. But in the real, the thoroughgoing insistence, such as Christ gave this deep law, complacency in one's self gives place to conviction of sin and to immediate renovation. The young man who has admired and kept the Commandments goes away sorrowful, or else denies himself and follows the Master. He comes to have that "relish" for these truths, which is the sign of genuine moral health, and is the promise and potency of the eternal life.

There comes such an amazing difference, both for the Hindu and the church-going American, when one or the other exchanges the admiration of the forms of religious thought for personal repentance. In nothing does simple New Testament Christianity show itself to be so divine as in the fact that it concentrates the problem of religion right on this point of immediate obedience to the soul's true King. Not those who say, or admire, Lord, Lord, but they who do his will.—San Francisco Pacific.

KEEPING THE WORD.

"By thy words thou shalt be justified, and by thy words thou shalt be condemned," said the Saviour. Words reveal man's inner nature. Even those who believe that language was intended to "conceal ideas," cannot deny that words disclose the real character of the individual; and this is often the case when people intend no such thing. If a man uses deceptive words, they simply show him to be a deceiver; his vain words tell of his vanity; his false words tell of his falsehood; and the man who does not keep his word, who does not redeem his promises, who neglects to do what he has promised that he would do, who leads people to trust in him only to be disappointed; that man, who cares nothing for his word, cares nothing for his character.

How an honest man will toil to keep his promise. The promise may have been unwisely made, circumstances may have changed, but still, if it is a possible or practicable thing, the man will do as he has agreed. Of course no man can perform impossibilities; but if it becomes absolutely impossible or impracticable for a man to keep his word, it is his business then to honestly state the facts, and so explain and account for his failure. But the man who makes promises right and left, fails to fulfill them, says nothing about them, but seems to suppose that others will forget what he has promised as readily as he does, will find ere long that what reputation he had for truth has gone, and that only strangers and foolish people put trust in what he says.

It is a sad thing for a man to lose the confidence of honest and intelligent men, who know him but dare not trust him; and if we forfeit the confidence of men who know us, how can we expect the blessing of God who is of purer eyes than to behold iniquity, who hath magnified his word above all his name, who through the ages, as they pass on, keepeth covenant; and who has said, that though heaven and earth shall pass away, his word shall not pass away? Surely if men wish to receive the blessing of the most high God, it becomes them to take heed to their ways and their words; to remember that the lip of truth shall be established forever; and to see to it that there stand upon record against them no array of broken promises and unfulfilled agreements, to dishonor them here in the sight of men, and to condemn them hereafter in the sight of God, when the words which Christ hath spoken shall judge us in the last day.—The Christian.

THE UNLOCKED DOOR.

A poor girl betrayed fell into sin, and was ruthlessly driven from home by her father. She went forth into the great city, forlorn and friendless. Entering a den of infamy—the only place generally open to the fallen—she continued her degraded life for twenty years. At last, worn, diseased, and penniless, one cold, stormy night, she resolved to take her life, and risk the terrors of the future rather than face further the sorrows of this wicked world. On her way to the river, with full intention to drown herself, the memory of home and childish innocence and happiness got a strange hold upon her heart. She felt she must once more look upon the old home, which, though within a mile of it, she had not looked upon for these twenty sad and sinning years.

She turned aside and came once more to the old home spot. There stood the house as of yore. A light was shining out through the window from her mother's room. Her heart was melted; recollections of happy years spent there and childish innocence and glee stirred her soul. Questions rushed through her mind: Are father and mother alive yet? If so, are they living here? Creeping up to the door she peered in through the keyhole. Impulsively she laid hold of the door knob and turned it. To her surprise the door opened. There sat before her an old lady—her own mother. The mother, looking up at her a moment, recognized her, and, springing up, they fell into each others' arms weeping. After a few moments of sobbing she got calm enough to speak.

"Mother, how is this? Your door unlocked at such an hour as this, when nearly every other door in the city is bolted? How came it the door was not fastened?" "Ah, my daughter," said the good old mother, "that door has not been locked day or night in twenty years. It has stood unlocked for your return since the day you went forth a wanderer."

So, my brethren, when the door of mercy and hope was locked against a lost and sin-blighted world, and there was no key, our blessed Saviour, with love stronger than a mother's, went upon the cross, baptized it with his blood, and made it a key with which to unlock the gates of salvation to a lost world. Wanderer, he awaits you now with more than a mother's love.—Rev. L. L. Pickett.

A DEMOCRATIC ARISTOCRAT.

There has been so much criticism adverse to the Prince of Wales lately in circulation that the following anecdote, showing a pleasanter side, is worth repeating. It was related to me this summer by a friend, and I can vouch for its accuracy, barring a change in the name of the chief actor:

"It was in the autumn of '72," said my friend, "that I was on my way home from Europe by one of the old cunarders. We had a dreadful passage, and, being the only lady who was not sea-sick, I had the exclusive attention of most of the well passengers. Among them was a small boy, who was one of the plainest little mortals that I ever beheld, red-haired and freckled, but with a bright, sharp little face like a terrier.

"My attention was first called to him by noticing his intimacy with an English baronet aboard, who seemed to derive the keenest delight from his conversation, and was constantly being reduced to a helpless condition from laughter at the remarks of his small friend. In the course of time, he drifted into my vicinity and opened conversation.

" 'Ever seen the Prince of Wales?' he said.

" 'Yes,' I answered, 'I have seen him.'

" 'Nice man, very. Nice in his own house. I like him very much.'

" 'Oh, don't talk that way, Jack,' I exclaimed. 'That's silly.'

" 'But I mean it,' he persisted; 'I know him. I've dined at his house.'

" 'How was that?'

" 'Well, you see, it was when we were travelin' in Italy. I was puttin' my head out of the car-window, and I saw two boys puttin' their heads out, and I says "Hello!" and they said "Hello!" back again, and I says: "Come in here; there's lots of room," and they said: "No, we can't, but there's room in here, and when the train stops you come in here with us." So when the train stopped, I asked pa, and he said I could go, and I got in their carriage. And I asked them what was their names, and one said: "I'm Prince Albert Victor of Wales," and the other said: "And I'm Prince George, his brother." '

" 'And what did you do then?'

" 'Why, I says: "Whew—ew, is that who you are? Well, I'm Jack Post, of New York."

" 'They were real nice fellows, and we were having a splendid time when the cars stopped and their pa got out of the next carriage and came to speak to us, and then my pa saw it was the Prince of Wales. So he got out himself and told him that he didn't know who they were, or he wouldn't have let me go, and he was going to take me away, but the Prince of Wales said: "No," he was glad to have his boys meet a little American boy, and he would be much obliged if he would let me stay all day. So I stayed. We played games, and their pa told us some first-rate stories; and when we had to change cars he took me back and asked my pa to let them know when I was in London, because he would like me to come to dinner with them. Pa said it was "an opportunity," so just as soon as I got back to London I wrote a note.'

" 'What did you say?' I asked.

" 'Oh! I said: "Dear Princes, I've come. I'm here at the Langham. I can come around just as soon as you want me."

" 'Well, it hadn't hardly had time to get there when a gentleman came back with an invitation for me to come and take dinner with them in the middle of the next day. When I got there, they were waiting at the window. It was an awful nice house. Their ma came in and shook hands, and we had our dinner. Didn't think much of the things they had to eat. I'd have given them lots more if they'd come to take dinner with me in New York. But they treated me just fine, and their ma was an awful pretty lady.' "—Christian Union.

HIS SATANIC MAJESTY.

Men don't believe in the devil now
As their fathers used to do;
They've open'd the door of the broadest church,
To let his majesty through.

There isn't a print of his cloven foot,
Nor a fiery dart from his bow,
To be found in earth or air to-day,
For the world has voted it so.

They say he doesn't go about
As a "roaring lion" now,
But whom shall we hold responsible
For the everlasting row

To be heard in church and state to-day,
To the earth's remotest bound,
If the devil by unanimous vote
Is nowhere to be found?

Who dogs the steps of the toiling saint,
And digs the pit for his feet?
Who sows the tares in the field of time
Wherever God sows his wheat?

Who tempts the young to the gates of death,
Then opens its portals wide?
Who kindles with a sirocco breath
The flames of passion and pride?

Whose boiling cauldron overflows
With a flood of liquid fire?
Who gloats o'er each victim swept away
To a doom unutterably dire?

Who poisons the blood and life of a boy
With the baleful cigarette?
Who whispers to the beautiful girl
The wiles of a fast coquette?

Whose creed proclaims that to disobey,
Deceive and lie is "smart"?
To take God's holy name in vain
Is progress in "manly art"?

Suggests, that it's only "a few wild oats;
Some day, you will dig them up;
No harm in an innocent game of cards—
In a sip of the sparkling cup."

The devil was fairly voted down,
And of course the devil is gone,
But simple people would like to know
Who carries his business on?

—Associate Reformed Presbyterian.

TEMPERANCE.

A RUMSELLER'S STORY.

The following is the experience told by a genuine liquor-dealer to H. L. Reade, Jewett City, Conn., and reproduced in the words of the man who told the story with reference to himself. No doubt this story is substantially the story of thousands engaged in the business: I was born in Canada. When I was ten years old I came with my parents to the States, and with other members of the family began work in a cotton-mill. Being large of my age, I was very soon getting 75 cents a day—more money than I could get for a week's work in the place where I came from.

My father took my wages until I was twenty. When I started for myself, I got good pay and immediately began to lay up money. Before mill and after I used to take care of a lot of fancy fowls and to train dogs, out of which business I made more money, which I added to what I got working in the mill.

Before long I had enough to hire a saloon, pay for a license and go into the liquor business. I was young and ambitious and did all that I could to attract custom to my shop. In my efforts I frequently broke the law, and as the prosecuting agent meant business I was often arrested for illegal sale.

Ten times have I been before the courts; and while I never have got put into jail I have had to pay lots of money for breaking the law. I did not understand how it was at first that I was took up so much. Afterward I did. When I began selling, if a man got noisy and saucy and nasty in his talk, I would hustle him out. That would make him mad, and he would get some boy under age to buy a pint, or somebody to come and get drinks on Sunday, and first I would know the officer would be on me, and it would be "settled or the jail." Afterward I took their sauce and filth whether or not it was agin my grain or not.

From the first I never liked the business. I never drank myself. I never liked the taste of liquor; and after seeing what miserable beastly fools it made of men I could not touch the stuff anyway. But I kept in it because there was money in it. I could buy cheap liquor at a little less than $1.50 a gallon, put it in my shop, and if I sold it by the drink it brought me $6 and sometimes more. That's a pretty good profit.

After a while I said, I will quit the business; and I did, and went to work by the day, as I did before I began to sell rum.

You ask me what made me quit the business; I'll tell you. My wife and I lived in the same house where we sold the liquor—the saloon below and the tenement overhead. We had some children, and once in a while my little girls would come into the shop, no matter how much we tried to keep them out; and most always there would be half-drunken men in the saloon, and these girls would hear their talk and see their actions—things I could not tell you—and then they would go up and ask their mother what it meant and keep talking about it.

I saw that nothing could be worse for my family than seeing what they did and what we could not help seeing. Besides, I saw that the children of some of my neighbors who kept saloons were growing up bad. Some of the girls were street-walkers, and the boys were beginning to drink and "bum;" and I said to my wife I had rather shovel gravel at $1 a day than to see my girls harlots and my boys sots. Then, again, I never had any peace. After I got to bed some half-crazed man would begin to kick my door and holler for me to get up and give him some rum.

Sometimes four or five would come in and make a night of it. I could not get the drunken fools out. If it was cold, I'd got to keep them anyway; and if it was not cold and I put them out they might tell on me and make me trouble, and so I had to sit up all night and clean up—wash the floor in the morning; and sometimes they had spent their money elsewhere, and I never got a cent. Besides this, we all broke the law—selling to minors and selling Sundays—and every day I expected the sheriff or constable would be on us, and what peace could I have?

One other thing helped to make me stop—my poor brother died a drunkard! I ain't much religious, but when a man is in a business that helps men on their way to hell I tell you he had better get out, money or no money. It will be better for him in the end.

And so I quit it, and I would starve before I would take it up again. And we are a happy family now. What money we get we honestly earn, and we didn't get it out of somebody that ought to spend it for his family instead of making a miserable fool of himself.

NUGGETS.

The Maryland legislature has passed a bill making it obligatory on the courts of Maryland, on certain conditions, to send inebriates to gold cure institutes for treatment.

A writer in the New York World, who is an expert in athletic and other contests of strength and endurance, urges the folly and danger attendant upon the use of any form of alcoholic drink in connection with the task of training for such enterprises. He says: "Touch not the hurtful thing, since it will be sure to undermine all the qualities on which you depend for success. It will injure your precision, your decision, your presence of mind and your endurance."

BIBLE LESSON.

STUDIES IN THE BOOKS OF MOSES.

LESSON VII.—Second Quarter, 1894, May 13.

SUBJECT.—Israel in Egypt.—Exodus 1: 1-14.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Our hope is in the name of the Lord. —Psalm 124: 8.

Open the Bible and read the lesson.

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Exodus 1: 1-14. T.—Gen. 46: 1-7. W.—Gen. 47: 27-31. Th.—Isaiah 52: 1-6. F.—Ex. 5: 13-19. S.—Psa. 14. Su.—Acts 2: 1-12.

COMMENTS BY E. E. FLAGG.

1. A small beginning.—vs. 1–6. The proverb that "small beginnings make great endings" is a law which prevails both in the natural and spiritual world. Seventy souls seemed but a small nucleus from which to form a nation whose numbers should be as the sands of the sea, and whose continuance to this day is one of the standing miracles of the world. Let us not be discouraged, however few are those around us whose faces are set towards the heavenly Canaan. Nor let us faint, or be weary in well doing, though after years of earnest labor we seem to have but few sheaves to show for them. There is a story that the aged minister under whose preaching the missionary Moffatt was converted when a lad, was thought a very unsuccessful pastor because he had converted only one boy. Yet that boy carried the light of the Gospel to multitudes of benighted souls who had never heard of Christ before "And Joseph died, and all his brethren, and all that generation." There is a story told that a man, who afterwards became a successful preacher of the Gospel, was converted by reading the fifth chapter of Genesis, where, at the end of almost every verse, these words occur:—"and he died," having lived eight or nine hundred years, or, as in the case of Methusaleh, nearly a thousand. The longest life must come to a close. The men who seem to be pillars in church and state must go the way of all the earth, and lie as low as the common laborer. The Hebrews must have felt keenly the loss of their great protector; but if he had continued with them they would never have felt the need of a stronger Arm. So earthly props are taken away that we may learn to trust God more entirely. Great men pass off the stage that others more suited to the exigencies of the times may fill their places. Joseph could not have done the work of Moses. Like human workmen, God lays down one instrument and takes up another, as he thinks best.

2 Trials and prosperity.—vs. 7–10. The simple lives led by the Hebrews, with none of the enervating luxuries of wealth which had already sapped the morals of the upper class of Egyptian society, had much to do with making them a prolific race. They "waxed exceeding mighty," and threatened in time to outnumber the native population. With this prosperity came trials unheard of in the days when they were small and weak. "A new king arose," supposed to be Amasis; one of a new dynasty who cared nothing for Joseph or his years of public service. Yet Joseph's name is embalmed for all time on the pages of sacred history, while that of the king who contemned his memory is a subject for conjecture, and the record of his deeds a blank to the world at large. So the names of God's faithful ones may perish from men's minds, but they are written in his "book of remembrance," to be revealed in the last great day, if not before. "Let us deal wisely with them." This was the thought of the Egyptian government, jealous lest their numbers should make them a formidable help to the enemy in the event of war. But an oppressive and unjust policy is never wise. Generally it fails, as in this case, to accomplish the end sought, and is always a boomerang that recoils on the head of the oppressor.

3 The Hebrews enslaved by the Egyptians.—vs. 11–14. The steps were no doubt gradual by which the people were brought into slavery. It is supposed that they were first loaded down by taxes too heavy for them to meet, and then, in lieu of payment, were degraded by the government to the condition of serfs, and employed on the public works. Two fortified cities, Pithom and Raamses, are especially mentioned, being perhaps the first works of importance that were built by this new slave labor. "The more they afflicted them, the more they multiplied and grew." So the people of God have never multiplied so fast as in times of persecution. "The blood of the martyrs is the seed of the church." It was the death of the first martyr, Stephen, that gave Christianity its first great impetus, by scattering the disciples into strange lands instead of keeping them a little community by themselves at Jerusalem. What is true of men is also true of principles. Truth may be crushed, but it cannot die. It contains within itself the germs of immortal life, as error bears in her own bosom the seeds of death. "They made their lives bitter with hard bondage." So the slaves of Satan serve a cruel master. "All manner of service" is required of them. He does not stop to inquire whether they like it. And it is "with rigor" they are made to serve, crushing out the spiritual life, and binding them every day in a more hopeless and miserable bondage.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

AMERICAN BIBLE SOCIETY.

—The issues from the Bible House in this city during the month of March were 100,602 volumes. The total issues from the Bible House during the year ending March 31, not including those issued in foreign lands, were 1,040,020 volumes.—N. Y. Observer.

CONGREGATIONAL.

—Sunday, the 22d of April, being the fifteenth anniversary of Dr. F. A. Noble's pastorate at Union Park church, Chicago, he repeated the same sermon, substantially, which he preached there fifteen years before, from the text, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me." During these fifteen years the church has increased wonderfully in numbers and in material and spiritual strength.

—The triennial convention of the Directors of the Chicago Theological Seminary will be held at Union Park Congregational church, Wednesday, May 9, at 10 A. M. The directors invite each local association of the Congregational churches of Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Missouri, Minnesota, Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wyoming, Montana and New Mexico to appoint each one delegate to represent the churches of such local associations.

—Chicago Theological Seminary is to have the privilege of a series of very interesting lectures from the Rev. James Denney, of Scotland, the lectures, ten in number, to be delivered in the Union Park church and to cover a wide range of topics.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL.

—Bishop Newman said to the London Methodists at a missionary anniversary, "You complain of empty churches in this country. Have you ever complained of empty preachers?" His amplification of the connection between the two—showing the first to be the effect of the second—was applauded to the echo.

—The Methodist ministers' meeting, at Chicago, has, it is stated, passed resolutions of appeal to the Pope asking him to use his influence to establish in the South American States the same degree of religious freedom that prevails in the United States. The appeal is made in view of the persecutions to which Protestant missionaries have been subjected in Peru, Equador, Bolivia and elsewhere.

PRESBYTERIAN.

—It is not always that an evanglist has the privilege of seeing the results of his early labors. Dr. E. P. Hammond has recently been holding a series of meetings in Springfield, Ill., where twenty-eight years ago he conducted what was the greatest revival ever known in that city. Many who were then children and were converted came now with their children, and the evangelist had the great pleasure of hearing one after another testify to the good work done so many years ago. This fact undoubtedly had a great influence in the results attained during these meetings, when nearly five hundred professed conversion.

—Rev. W. M. Thompson, for forty-five years a missionary to Asia Minor, died in Denver, Colo., April 8, at the age of 86. He is well known as the author of "The Land and the Book."

MISCELLANEOUS.

—There are said to be 149 Young Men's Christian Associations in Denmark, the oldest dating from 1880. The Copenhagen branch has 400 members, and two other branches have 100 members each, while the smallest branch has five members.

—Sweden is the most Protestant country in the world. Of a population of 6,000,000 there are only 2,000 Roman Catholics, the remainder of the population belonging almost exclusively to the Lutheran church.

—The Occident tells the story of a tramp who, in a Methodist prayer-meeting at Elkwood, Ind., prayed thus: "Lord, thou knowest I am a stranger here; thou knowest I live in a neighboring town, and thou knowest why I can't get there. Lord, thou knowest just what I want. I want 40 cents. Amen." And he got his 40 cents.

—At a recent Sunday service of the Young Women's Christian Association in Toledo, Ohio, five young women members, under appointment to mission work, spoke. One goes to establish a model home in the mountains of Tennessee. Another to work among her own people, the Germans, in Cleveland. The others expect to go to Shanghai, China, Sendai, Japan, and the Congo.

—The Ministerial Union of Philadelphia has inaugurated a campaign against Sunday newspapers. As a first step 476 circulars were sent to the pastors of the city asking suggestions for practical measures to suppress them.

—The railroad from Joppa to Jerusalem is being followed by another from Acre, under Mt. Carmel, through Esdraelon, past Cana and Nazareth, across the Jordan, and thence north to Damascus. A third is to run from Beyrout across Lebanon to Damascus.

—Several Protestant chapels have been closed in Spain by the government acting under the pressure brought to bear by the Catholic clergy. The front entrance of a Protestant house of worship in Madrid is kept closed, and the worshipers are obliged to enter by a side door.

—A church presided over by a German Catholic priest, at Wesley, Iowa, is in trouble from alcoholic embarrassment. The priest, Father Eckert, was recently indicted for keeping a nuisance and selling liquor contrary to law, and on the 13th ult. pleaded guilty and was fined $300 and costs.

—Rev. A. R. Torrey, for several years superintendent of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, has been appointed pastor of Chicago Avenue church, popularly known as Moody's church. This church has been without a pastor for five years.

LITERATURE.

CURRENT PERIODICALS.

Scribner's Magazine for May is up to its standard of excellence and attraction. Its contents, copiously illustrated, are: Some Episodes of Mountaineering, by a Casual Amateur (Edwin L. Weeks); John March, Southerner, by Geo. W. Cable—continued; The Provincials—Sketches of American Types, by Octave Thanet; A Pound of Cure—A Story of Monte Carlo—continued, by Wm. H. Bishop; A Corner in a Market (painted by Jules Muenier), with a full-page illustration (frontispiece); The American Congo, by John G. Bourke, U. S. A.; Womanliness as a Profession, by Alene Gorren; Afoot, by Chas. G. D. Roberts; A New Portrait of Benj. Franklin; Working-girls' Clubs, by Clara S. Davidge; Alone, by Melville Upton; That Good May Come, by Edith Wharton; Two Sonnets, by Edith Thomas; Climbing for White Goats, by Geo. B. Grinnell; The Ethics of Democracy—Liberty, by F. J. Stimson; Science and Song—The Passing of Man—Truth and Stage-truth—Objections to Cleverness, by the Editor. New York: Chas. Scribner's Sons. Price, 25 cents.

The March-April issue of Our Day presents a fine array of papers for thoughtful readers, as follows: Cosmopolitan Christianity in the Twentieth Century, by John B. Donaldson; Principles of the Covenanters, by Rev. J. M. Foster; Crudity of Japanese New Theology, by Rev. J. L. Atkinson; Atonement—a Boston Hymn, by Joseph Cook, whose Boston Monday Lecture embraces the proposed annexation of Hawaii, and the peerlessness of Christian Theism. Vital Points of Expert Opinion discuss Reed on Free Trade and Protection, Stoeckel on Germans in America, Comstock on Immoral Shows on the Midway Plaisance, Behrends on the New York Society for the Suppression of Vice, Kate Field on Statehood for Utah, Gladden on Municipal Misgovernment, etc. The editorial and kindred departments possess versatility and general interest. The full-page portraits are those of the Archbishop of Zante, Greece, and Baba P. C. Mozoomdar, of Calcutta, India. Published at 28 Beacon street, Boston. Price, 25 cents.

The more important papers in St. Nicholas for May are sketches of our former naval heroes, Commodores Decatur and Somers, by Mollie E. Seawell; Some Ancient Musical Instruments, by H. S. Conant; A Few of Our Fur Bearers, by W. T. Hornaby; Washington Irving, by Brander Matthews, and Peril Among the Pearls. Continuations appear of Recollections of the Wild Life, by Dr. Eastman; The Brownies Through the Union, by Palmer Cox; Jack Ballister's Fortunes, by Howard Pyle; and two new serials—A Four-leaved Clover in the Desert, and Rhymes of the States—are begun. The remaining contents embrace the usual variety of short sketches, verses and what-nots that never fail to find delighted readers. The illustrations are numerous and satisfactory, especially the frontispiece—"The Bloom of May"—a charming art-picture, by Francis Day. Published by the Century Company, New York City. Price, 25 cents.

Good Roads is a handsomely printed and illustrated monthly magazine "devoted to the improvement of the public roads and streets," published by the League of American Wheelmen, 12 Pearl street, Boston. The engravings are numerous and artistic, and the character of the letter-press may be gathered from the following list of its contents for April: The Colored Man and the League, a plea for equal rights as wheelmen; Asphalt Block Pavement, illustrated; How to Repair a Macadam Road, illustrated; Concerning the Human Head, illustrated; The Mutual Relations of Cities and Street Railroad Companies; Denver and its Vicinity, illustrated; Form and Location of Street Railroad Tracks; Another Impractical Inventor, etc. Price, $1 a year.

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. ☞ A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 65 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers. 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Allyn's Ritual of Freemasonry by Avery Allyn contains the fully Illustrated Ritual of the Blue Lodge, Chapter Council and Commandery, 11 of the Scotch Rite Degrees, Several Masonic side degrees and what is termed a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, the Orange and Odd-fellows Societies. Price in cloth $5.00.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor. Profusely illustrated with explanatory engravings, and containing the ritual and work of the order for the seven degrees, including the Royal Arch. Though extensively used as an Instruction Book and one of the best in the market it is not as accurate as "Freemasonry Illustrated," the first book on catalogue. Price in cloth, $2 50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry. Containing the ceremonies of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, etc. Illustrated. Although extensively used in conferring the higher degrees, it is not only very incomplete but inaccurate especially as regards the first seven degrees, and as to the higher degrees it gives but a description and general idea of the degrees rather than the full ritual. Price in cloth, $1.25; Paper covers, 75c.

Look to the East. A Ritual of the first three Masonic Degrees by Ralph Lester. Price in cloth $2.00. Notwithstanding the high price this book is very inferior in every way to Freemasonry Illustrated or The Handbook of Freemasonry at a quarter the price.

Ecce Orienti. The Complete Standard Ritual of the First Three Masonic Degrees in Cypher, with complete Floor Charts of Initiating, Passing and Raising a Candidate. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Cabala. The Complete Standard Ritual of the Chapter Masonic Degrees; 4th to 7th inclusive, in Cypher. Giving the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master and Royal Arch. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Council of the Orient. The Complete Standard Ritual of Council Masonic Degrees in Cypher, 8th to 10th inclusive. Giving the Degrees of Royal Master, Select Master and Super Excellent Master. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

Knights of the Orient. The complete Ritual of the Commandery Masonic Degrees, Knights of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta, 11th to 18th degrees. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

The Mystic Shrine Illustrated. An Illustrated Ritual of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. This is a Side Masonic degree conferred only on Knights Templar and on Thirty-two degree Masons. 15 cts. each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion. 5 cents each.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover. 50cts.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Odd-fellowship: Its History and its Work. By President J. Blanchard. A neat pamphlet with cover. Postpaid. 5 cts

OTHER RITUALS.

Revised Knights of Pythias Illustrated. An exact copy of the new Official Ritual Adopted by the Supreme Lodge of the World, with the Secret work added and fully Illustrated. In cloth 50 cts. Paper cover 25 cts.

Knights of the Orient Illustrated. The full Illustrated Ritual of Ancient Order of the Orient, or the Oriental degree, This is a side degree conferred mostly in Knights of Pythias lodges. 15 cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and council. 25cts each.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin. Illustrated with engravings. 25 cents each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords etc. 15cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated, "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each.

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

Knights of Labor Illustrated. ("Adelphon Kruptos.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

Folly, Expense and Danger of Secret Societies. By Pres. C. A. Blanchard. This booklet of 32 pages is a general discussion of the secret orders, whether religious, political, industrial, insurance or social. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Disloyal Secret Oaths. By Joseph Cook, Boston. He quotes the law of Vermont which makes the administration of the Masonic oaths illegal. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing? An address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891. W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's, too." A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover Postpaid, 5 cents.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void: or Freemasonry Self-Convicted. This is a book for the times. The design of the author is to refute the arguments of those who claim that the oaths of Freemasonry are binding upon those who take them. 207 pages. Postpaid, 40 cents each.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the lodge when S. H. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry. 15 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 300 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Masonry a Work of Darkness, adverse to Christianity, and inimical to republican government. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian) a seceding Mason of 21 degrees. 15 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. J. Day Brownlee. In reply to a Masonic Oration by Rev. Dr. Mayer, Wellsville, Ohio. 5 cents each.

Masonic Outrages. Compiled by Rev. H. H. Hinman. Showing Masonic assault on lives of seceders, on reputation, and on free speech; its interference with justice in courts, etc. Postpaid, 20 cents.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife, of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty-three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

A Booklet of 100 pages, which includes "The Martyr's Own Monument," by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association; "Christian Politics," by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure; "The Mysterious Machine: Was it Lawn-mower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what?" by Prof. E. D. Bailey, of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government. Postpaid 25 cts.

Jonathan Blanchard's Sermons and Addresses. Select discourses of the first editor of the Cynosure. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of living reform, Secret Societies, The Sabbath, Temperance, National Reform, Christian Education, Christian Socialism, The Bible, etc. A book everybody should read. 12mo. Fine photogravure portrait. Price, 75 cents.

American Handbook and Citizen Manual By Manlove N. Butler. Contents: Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement. Over 200 pages. Paper, single copy, 40c.

Image of the Beast: A Secret Empire; or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy. By Rev. Richard Horton. Third edition. 200 pages. Cloth. Price, 60 cents.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages. paper cover. 25cts each.

Eminent Men on Secret Societies. Composed of "Washington Opposed to Secret Societies," "Judge Whitney's Defence," "The Mystic Tie," "Narratives and Arguments," the "Anti-mason's Scrap-Book" and "Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry as Proved in the New Berlin Trials." 326 pages. cloth. $1.00.

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear array of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Prof. J. G. Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies. A most convincing argument against fellowshiping Freemasons in the Christian church. 10 cents each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have. 5 cents each.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher. In cloth, 35cts each; paper covers, 15cts each.

Between Two Opinions: or the Question of the Hour. By Miss E. E. Flagg author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages, cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William M'Nary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury; "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion," and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth $1.00.

Stories of the Gods. By I. R. B. Arnold. Brief sketches from the mythology of Rome, Greece, Egypt, India, Persia, Phrygia, Scandinavia, Africa and America, showing the relations and unity of past and present systems. The idolatrous worship of the Masonic lodge is thus clearly seen and understood. Postpaid, 10 cents.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50cts each.

HOME AND HEALTH.

PRETTY TEA TABLES.

As housekeepers we are apt to satisfy ourselves if there is plenty to eat, but do we make the table look pretty? Where there are children nothing makes better manners than flowers every day. And when there is company it relieves stiffness and encourages cheerful conversation. We had a mournful widower at the tea table some time since and the social atmosphere seemed as heavy as lead. The boy had brought in a very curiously-shaped beet which looked like a basket, and when washed, the beautiful red color showed while the scarlet-veined leaves hung over. I put in a few calliopsis, one of the brightest and cheeriest annuals that grow, and fastened the hanging basket to the chandelier. Our friend caught sight of it, was interested, and from that moment talk went on famously. This spring let us decide to have table flowers, and here are a few which can be easily raised and are very desirable: The double sun-flower has long stems, and mixed with blue larkspurs is as bright a combination as one could have; gladiolas alone in tall vases are lovely. An annual little known is the shell flower, or molucca balm; this mixed with a spray of scarlet phlox would start a conversation in a deaf and dumb asylum. Roses are beautiful at any meal, and morning glories belong to the breakfast table; put a bunch of sweet peas on each napkin and see how quickly the annoyances and bothers will disappear.—Anna Lyman, in Vick's Magazine.

HOW TO SLEEP.

Dr. J. E. Huxley, of Maidstone, Eng., thinks he has hit upon the natural remedy for sleeplessness. It is, in brief, to curl under the clothes like a kitten, or put the head under the wing like a hen. ....Try nature's plan: lower the supply of oxygen to the blood, produce a little asphyxia, limit the quantity of air to the lungs, and the heart and circulation becoming quicker, the brain loses its stimulant and sleep follows. When you find yourself 'in' for a sleepless night, cover your head with the bed-clothes and breathe and re-breathe only the respired air. Thus you may reduce the stimulating oxygen and fall asleep. There is no danger. When asleep you are sure to disturb the coverings and get as much fresh air as you require; or, when once drowsiness has been produced, it is easy to go on sleeping, though the air be fresh. What do the cat and dog do when they prepare to sleep? They turn around, generally three times, and lastly bury their noses in some hollow in the hair, and 'off' they go. They are in no danger, although it might look as if they were from the closeness with which they embed their noses."

THE OBJECTS, WORK AND SECRET RITUAL of "The Nobles of the Mystic Shrine" have just been issued in a revised and enlarged edition. Price, in paper, 25 cents. This new order of Freemasonry, now so popular in this country as the basis of social hilarity among members of the higher degrees, claims to have originated in Arabia, and was revived in Egypt, and brought to America from France. It is interlarded with Mohammedan terms and worship; and its original objects as defined in its ritual, was inquisitorial and barbarous. Its prayers are addressed to "Allah," instead of the G. A. O. T. U., and it is quite as un-Christian as the devotees of the blue lodge would have it. The abridged edition is still sold for 15 cents. Address the National Christian Association, 221 West Madison street, Chicago.

Holden with Cords. OR THE POWER OF THE SECRET EMPIRE. By E. E. Flagg, author of "A Sunny Life," etc. This is a thrillingly interesting story, accurately true to life because mainly a narration of historical facts. In cloth, $1.00; in paper, 50 cents.

Lillie May Bentley

Born a Genius

Disease Threatens to Cut Short a Noble Career

But Hood's Sarsaparilla Restores Good Health.

Lillie May Bentley is an accomplished elocutionist and natural born speaker of only 12 years of age. She is the only child temperance lecturer before the public. Her genius, however, did not exempt her from an attack of a disease of the blood. Her own words best tell the story: "C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"I heartily join with the many thousands that are recommending Hood's Sarsaparilla. I had been troubled from infancy with gatherings in the head. I was compelled to leave school upon the doctor's advice. He thought it was the only thing to save my life, but I

Continued to Grow Worse.

I was persuaded finally by a friend to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. The use of one bottle acted effectively upon the blood and I began to improve. After the use of three bottles the gathering ceased and I am cured of my former trouble. I owe my life and will always remain a true friend to Hood's Sarsaparilla." LILLIE MAY BENTLEY, Shelbyville, Indiana. Get HOOD'S.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Hood's Pills act easily, yet promptly and efficiently, on the liver and bowels. 25c.

TRIAL FREE.

$2.75 Buys our $9 Natural Finish Baby Carriage complete with plated steel wheels, axle, springs, and one piece steam bent handle. Made of best material, finely finished, reliable, and guaranteed for 3 years. Shipped on 10 days' trial. FREIGHT PAID; no money required in advance. 75,000 in use. We are the oldest and best known concern of our kind, reliable and responsible. Reference furnished at any time. Make and sell nothing but what we guarantee to be as represented, sold at the lowest factory prices. WRITE TO-DAY for our large FREE illustrated catalogue of latest designs and styles published.

OXFORD MFG. CO., 340 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

THE LARGEST MANUFACTURERS IN THE WORLD OF CHURCH FURNISHINGS
OPERA AND ASSEMBLY CHAIRS.
THE GRAND RAPIDS SCHOOL FURNITURE CO.
GRAND RAPIDS MICH.

JONATHAN BLANCHARD'S

—]-oo-[—

SERMONS AND ADDRESSES.

Select discourses of the late editor of the Cynosure and leader in our reform. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of

LIVING REFORM.

Secret Societies,
The Sabbath,
Temperance,
National Reform,
Christian Education,
Christian Socialism,
The Bible, Etc., Etc.

A BOOK EVERYBODY SHOULD READ

12mo. Fine Photogravure Portrait.

Price, 75 Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

The St. Louis Sermon.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

An Address by Rev. B. Carradine D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."

A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover.

Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

Where Grapes are Choicest

—sweeter and juicier than anywhere else—they're taken from the vine, pressed and their succulence concentrated—the origin of SANITAS GRAPE FOOD—

The California GRAPE CURE

—unfermented—absolutely pure.

It's a delicious medicine—nourishes the digestion, strengthens the nerves, clears the vocal organs. A refreshing beverage — non-alcoholic —suitable for table and sick-room use—keeps fresh for years.

A pint bottle (65c.) makes one-half gallon of the food.

Your grocer or druggist sells it. Booklet free.

THE CALIFORNIA GRAPE FOOD CO.,

Los Gatos, Cal.

UNFERMENTED SANITAS TRADE MARK

General Eastern Agency,
145 Broadway, N. Y.
General Pacific Agency,
408 Sutter St., San Francisco.
Chicago Selling Agent,
Edwin E. Hills, 70 State St.

THE GUIDING HAND;

—OR—

PROVIDENTIAL DIRECTION.

—)o(—

Illustrated by authentic instances of Relief and Deliverance in times of Trouble and Perplexity; of Direction through Dreams and Mental Impressions, and of Providential Guidance, resulting in Conversion. Recorded and collected by

H. L. HASTINGS,
(Editor of "The Christian.")

This striking work is divided into three parts as follows:

(1) Providences in Relief and Deliverances. (2) Dreams and Impressions. (3) Conversions.

The "Guiding Hand" contains nearly 400 pages. It is really a handsome book, printed on heavy book paper, from large open type, good for the eyes, and artistically and durably bound in fine cloth, with fancy panels. Price, $1.50.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer. Ennis, Texas.

Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp.

LORD & THOMAS,
NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING
45 RANDOLPH STREET,
CHICAGO.

THE MYSTIC SHRINE

Illustrated.

THE FULL

ILLUSTRATED RITUAL

OF THE

Nobles of the Mystic Shrine

PRICE 15 CENTS, EACH.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES

MONTHLIES.

The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, Sunshine, each, per quar., 3c.

WEEKLIES.

L. & L. Infant Class, 4c.
L. & L. Intermediate Lesson Leaf.....1⅞c.
L. & L. Lesson Leaf, 1⅞c.
Golden Treasures (for every fifth Sunday) 1c.

QUARTERLIES.

LIGHT AND LIFE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY....5c.
" " " SCHOLAR'S " ....3c.
" " " INTERMEDIATE " ....3c.
" " " PRIMARY " ....3c.

Secretaries' Books, Class Registers, Reward Cards and Tickets, Charts, Maps, S. S. Libraries and other supplies. A large line of books, tracts, pamphlets, Bibles and Testaments at lowest prices.

BOOK AND PAMPHLET PRINTING

Done with neatness and dispatch. Send for estimates.

T. B. ARNOLD,
104-106 Franklin St., CHICAGO, ILL.

Talks to Sunday-School Teachers.

By Rev. J. G. Terrill. 12mo, 200 pages, bound in fine cloth..... .75

This book is the result of twenty-five years of experience in Sunday-school and treats of: 1. The Sunday-school organization and management. 2. Methods of work. 3. Studies in human nature. 4. Rules of Interpretation as applied to the Bible. 5. Illustrative exercises for primary classes and children's meetings. In the style of presentation, subject matter and price of the book, the wants of the officers and teachers of the ordinary Sunday-school are kept in view.

S. S. Times:—A very comprehensive book. N. Y. Independent:—A sensible manual for the average Sunday-school teacher. Evan. Mess.:—We have been very favorably impressed with the book, because it is so intensely practical. The subject is systematically treated, and leaders of teacher's meetings can not do better than adopt it as a text-book and devote half an hour of each session to teaching the theory and practice of teaching as here systematized. Christian at Work:—Any school that will adopt this book generally and carry forward its work or doctrines here laid down will not be long in developing into a model school and reaping the harvest of a rich fruitage. Herald and Presbyter:—These Talks are well attested in their profitableness and excellence. Buffalo Advocate:—A plain, practical, common sense book on a very important subject. The author has had wide experience in this field of work. He knows thoroughly the ground over which he would lead others, and possesses the happy faculty of packing a great deal of valuable information as to matter and manner of teaching into this little hand-book. We commend it to the attention of all Sunday-school workers. Religious Telescope:—We are pleased with the plan and treatment of the subjects throughout, and are sure that the diligent Sunday-school teacher who longs for more thorough equipment, will find in this book a helper of great value. Illustrated Christian Weekly:—The author talks from observation and experience, and talks well.

Sunday School Publications.

The Pearl (Mo.)	Pr. Qr. 3c.	Sunshine (Mo.)	Pr. Qr. 3 "
The Lily	" " 3 "	Pure Words	" " 3 "
Light & L. Scholar's	Qrly. 3 "	Light & L. Inf. Cl.	wk. 4 "
" " Teacher's	" 5 "	" " Lesson Leaf	" 1½ "
Golden Treasures	1 "	L. & L. Primary	Qly 4 "

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTIONS.

The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, Teacher's Quarterly Pr. Yr. 25c
& Sunshine, each Pr. Yr. 25c Scholar's " " 20c
The four to one address " 75c L. & L. Infant Class, weekly, 25c

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

JAMES PYLE'S
PEARLINE
WASHING
COMPOUND
THE GREAT INVENTION
FOR SAVING TOIL & EXPENSE
WITHOUT INJURY TO THE TEXTURE, COLOR OR HANDS.
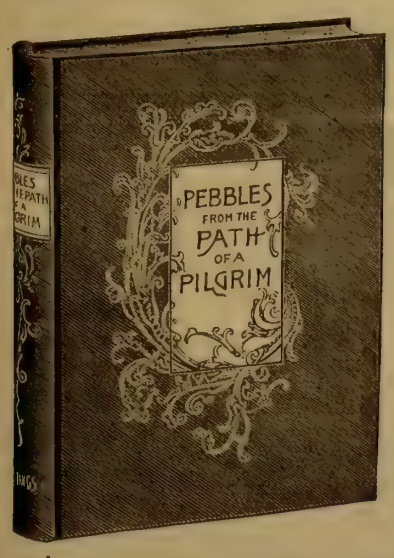
NEW YORK

Bristles with good points, and the minute they spy dirt they rise up and go for it. No matter what it's on—linen, laces, silk, woolens, flannel, marble, china, glass, wood, metal, or your own person, Pearline will get the dirt off with the least trouble and labor. It saves that ruinous wear and tear that comes of rubbing. Another point to think of: Pearline is harmless to any washable substance or fabric.447

Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim.

—BY—

MRS. H. L. HASTINGS.



This remarkable collection of stories from the eventful life of a Green Mountain girl has been pronounced "more fascinating than any romance." A member of Congress writes: "'Pebbles' has been read by me with great interest. The introductory chapter has followed me into dreams. My copy is read to pieces by the family, and borrowed to death by the neighbors." An editor says: "Surely the faith that 'obtained promises, wrought righteousness, and stopped the mouth of lions,' must have been given in large measure to the writer of this truly remarkable book....No family library should be without it." "'Pebbles,'" says the Christian Cynosure, "is such a book as Christian parents are always glad to put on their center-tables."

"Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim" is a large and beautiful book of over 300 pages, printed on heavy book paper, from clear open type, and is profusely illustrated. It is artistically bound in handsome cloth, with fancy panels, and specially attractive side and back cover designs. Price, $1.50.

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

FARM NOTES.

MORE POTASH NEEDED.

1. Fodder crops, pasture grasses, corn clover and hay all remove large amounts of potash from the soil, and these crops occupy a large proportion of our improved lands.

2. The urine of our domestic animals contains about four-fifths of the total potash of their excrements.

3. When urine is allowed to waste, the manure is poor in potash.

4. When manures are exposed to rains, much of the potash, being soluble, is washed away.

5. Nearly all the special fertilizers are especially rich in phosphoric acid, and do not contain enough potash.

6. Superphosphates were the first fertilizers to come into general use among our farmers.

7. When the farmer buys a fertilizer, he still, nine times out of ten, calls for a phosphate.

8. As a result of the above conditions, our soils seem to be quite generally in need of more liberal applications of potash.

9. In the case of corn the need of potash appears to be particularly prominent.

10. For a good crop of corn the fertilizer used should supply 100 to 125 lbs. of actual potash per acre; 200 to 250 lbs. of muriate of potash or one ton (50 bus.) of good wood ashes will do this.

11. With ordinary farm or stable manure it will generally pay to use some potash for corn; 125 to 150 lbs. of muriate of potash has given profitable results.

12. The liberal use of potash means more clover in our fields, more nitrogen taken from the air, more milk in the pail, a richer manure heap, and store-houses and barns full to overflowing. It means also a sod which when turned will help every other crop.

13. For the potato crop the sulphate appears to be much superior to the muriate of potash, promoting both yield and quality in much higher degree; 300 to 400 lbs. of high grade sulphate of potash furnishes enough of this element.

14. For oats, rye and grass, nitrate of soda applied just as the growth begins in spring has proved very beneficial; 300 to 400 lbs. per acre should be applied.—Prof. W. P. Brooks, Massachusetts Agricultural College.

Day Unto Day

Uttereth speech concerning the good being done by Hood's Sarsaparilla. By the cures it is accomplishing, by the good health restored to men, women, and children, Hood's Sarsaparilla wins its way more and more into the confidence of the people.

Its army of friends tell of scrofulous and impure blood made rich and pure, of the relief it gives from the itching and burning of salt rheum, of the satisfaction at meals experienced by the former dyspeptic, of the happiness of those cured of malaria, rheumatism and catarrh, of excellent spirits and good appetite enjoyed by those recently weak, tired and run down.

It is by such results as these that Hood's Sarsaparilla makes its hosts of friends and does its own most effective advertising.

Its record of cures and the good it has done others are sufficient to warrant your giving this excellent medicine a trial.

A Journey to Palestine

BY REV. B. CARRADINE, D. D.

—oo—

Revised and Illustrated Edition. 500 pages. Eighteen beautiful half-tone Engravings, including portrait of Author. Cloth postpaid, $1.50. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

The Kind of medicine
you need is the old reliable tonic and blood-purifier,
AYER'S
SARSAPARILLA
It can have no substitute.
Cures others,
will cure you

AMERICAN HANDBOOK AND CITIZEN MANUAL.

BY

MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION;
WM. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Chic

THE TWO-FOLD GIFT of the Holy Ghost,

BY REV. THOS. K. DOTY,
Author of Lessons in Holiness.

240 pp. Price postpaid.....65cts.

The design of this book is, in plain language, to designate the place of the Holy Ghost in both the Godhead and the work of Salvation. Especially to show that Entire Santification is wrought in the heart by the Baptism of Holy Ghost; and that the Epoch of the Baptism is identical with that of his Advent in his Indwelling Personalty. The agency of the Holy Ghost in the Life, and in carrying on the work of the Gospel, is given particular attention.

TITLES TO THE CHAPTERS:

1. A Summary. 2. The Holy Ghost a Person. 3. The New Testament Designating Terms. 4. The Scriptural View. 5. The Holy Ghost is God. 6. Blasphemy Against the Holy Ghost. 7. The Trinity of God. 8. The Apostolic Benediction. 9. The Worship of the Holy Ghost. 10. The Dispensations. 11. The First Dispensation. 12. The Second Dispensation. 13. Holiness—Sinning. 14. "The Sin of the World." 15. Final Deliverance from Sin. 16. The Day of the Holy Ghost. 17. Jesus and the Holy Ghost. 18 and 19. The Epoch of the Holy Ghost. 20. The Anointing. 21. The Baptism of the Holy Ghost. 22. The Baptism of Fire. 23. The Two-Fold Experiences of the Holy Ghost. 24. Fellowship of the Holy Ghost. 25. "In the Spirit." 26. Several Scriptural Terms Considered. 27. Pentecost. 28. Inspiration—Prophecy. 29. Spiritual Leading and Teaching. 30. The Gifts of the Spirit. 31. "Praying in the Holy Ghost." 31 and 32. Power.

This book is creating quite a stir in religious circles. The original, bold and convincing manner of presenting the subject, has forced the press to comment upon the book, either adversely or favorably, generally the latter. We give a few OPINIONS:

Bible Standard and Gospel Record: "This book is very compact, scarcely a superfluous sentence in the whole book. The manner of treating the questions involved is both clear and scriptural. .....The effect of the book will be to deepen thought and increase knowledge and, in the end, deepen piety."

Evangelical Messenger: "Brother Thomas K. Doty has written a book which we take pleasure in commending to all devout readers who enjoy all spiritual things. The subject is so important, and the treatment of it so timely, that we may be pardoned for calling attention to it thus prominently. We at least have been greatly interested, and gratefully acknowledge that we have also been decidedly profited by perusing it .....Brother Doty writes with an incisive pen, in a clear, lucid style, often epigrammatical and with great force. He is evidently deeply impressed with the truth of what he writes and demands the respect even where he does not gain the intellectual assent of his readers." Withal the book is written in a kindly, candid spirit, rather didactic than polemical, and is calculated to help the reader and not to rouse his opposition, as is the case with so many books which have been written upon this and kindred subjects. The theological views expressed are orthodox, and in some cases the argument is fresh in matter, and certainly fresh in form throughout."

Christian Cynosure: "His book is one of the most excellent, instructive and practical of any that have come to our knowledge. The exposition of the Scriptures concerning the personality and work of the Spirit is very clear, able and comforting. There is much dogmatizing on these topics by Christians who never fully felt the power of the Spirit's work, or are not living in gracious fellowship with him. To all such and to those who have not yet learned what gifts the Lord is waiting to bestow on his people we heartily commend the careful reading of this volume."

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

RECENT PUBLICATIONS OF FLEMING H. REVELL.

Modern Ideas of Evolution.

As related to Revelation and Science. By Sir William Dawson, L. L. D., F. R. S., etc. 12 mo, cloth, $1.50.

In popular style, a testing by scientific facts and principles, the validity of that multiform and brilliant philosophy of the universe, which has taken so deep a hold of the science and literature of our times.

The New World of Central Africa

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness; with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. Maps, Portraits and numerous engravings. 537 pages, 12 mo, $2.00.

This comprehensive volume is as fascinating as the most entertaining romance. Its vivid portrayal of the dark side of African history makes one's blood tingle, while its earnest appeals create an inspiring sympathy with the effort to evangelize its teeming millions.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

Matthew Henry's Commentary.

An entirely new large type edition of this inimitable Commentary, in six large 8vo. volumes, fine cloth, $15.00; or, in half Morocco, $18.00.

"Biblical students who are most familiar with the very best commentaries of this generation are most able to appreciate the unfading freshness, the clear analysis, the spiritual force, the quaint humor, and the evangelical richness of Matthew Henry's Exposition of the Old and New Testaments."—New York Observer.

"First among the mighty for general usefulness we are bound to mention the man whose name is a household word—MATTHEW HENRY. He is the most pious and pithy, sound and sensible, suggestive and sober, terse and trustworthy."—Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

The Present Tenses of the Blessed Life.

By Rev. F. B. Meyer. 32 mo, 50 cents.

"It is sufficient to say its one direct aim is the present enjoyment of the precious promises. Mr. Meyer's earnest and persuasive teaching in this direction is admirably condensed in these brief chapters."

BY THE SAME AUTHOR:

Christian Living. Cloth, 32 mo, 50 cents.

"A more suggestive and helpful volume it would not be easy to name."—Christian Leader.

The Shepherd Psalm. Cloth, 32 mo, 50c.

"This is a gem."—Illustrated Christian Weekly

"It is a little book which hundreds of devout hearts will enjoy."—Congregationalist.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

OTHER WORKS BY C. H. SPURGEON:

Feathers for Arrows; Or, Illustrations for Teachers and Preachers. 12 mo, $1.

"This work covers a wide range of subjects. The metaphors are always striking and frequently brilliant, while the truths that they illustrate are such as have always formed the staple of Mr. Spurgeon's discourses. A choicer collection of illustrations we do not know."—Freeman.

Spurgeon's Gems. Being a selection of brilliants from his discourses. 12 mo, $1.

The Golden Alphabet. Being a Devotional Commentary on the One Hundred and Nineteenth Psalm. 12 mo, $1.00.

"Mr. Spurgeon brings out the truths and beauties of this wonderful Psalm so as to set a rich feast before the reader. As a practical commentator on the Psalms, Spurgeon has no equal."—Presbyterian Banner.

"This commentary is written in quite the happiest vein of its popular author, and the devotional spirit throughout is intense and elevating."—Occident.

Gleanings Among the Sheaves. 18 mo, 60c.

All of Grace. An earnest word with those seeking the way of life. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

According to Promise; Or, the Lord's Dealings with His chosen People. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Christmas Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve New Year Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth. 50 cents.

"Preachers may get aid in preparing Easter or funeral sermons from this volume. Good to present to those who have lost loved ones."—National Baptist.

Twelve Striking Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Soul-Winning Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Selected by Mr. Spurgeon as the twelve sermons under which there has been the most marked and permanent success.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

Royal Baking Powder

Absolutely Pure

A cream of tartar baking powder. Highest of all in leavening strength. — Latest United States Government Food Report.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO.,
106 Wall St., N. Y.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

CHICAGO.

Smallpox has secured a foothold in the "sweat shops" of Chicago.

Lucy Parsons was rebuked by General Randall for preaching anarchy to the 1,000 Chicago commonwealers.

Differences between the master plumbers and journeymen have been adjusted and the men return to work.

Graff & Co., of Chicago, have purchased the World's Fair buildings for $87,500. The Art Palace, Convent and Forestry buildings are not included.

Certain brick manufacturers are said to be paying to keep the men on strike that they may secure advanced prices for stock.

Heavy shortages have been found in the accounts of the Universal and Continental loan associations and they have been given sixty days to make good the assets.

At the dinner of the Congregational Club Dr. Washington Gladden said American cities were the worst governed in the world.

Judge Smith reprimanded and discharged the jury which found Carl Brandt, charged with burglary, guilty of petty larceny.

Attorney General Maloney decided to bring quo warranto proceedings against the Chicago gas companies, holding that they were violating the anti-trust law.

Major Joseph Kirkland, a well-known soldier and author, died in Chicago, at the age of 64.

For refusing to turn over ballots to the grand jury, election commissioners and Clerk Taylor have been cited for contempt by Judge Chetlain.

Addressing a mass meeting at the Calumet Theater, South Chicago, Thomas McGuire said the American Protective Association is a foe to organized labor.

COUNTRY.

St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church of Denver has sued Father Malone for $12,066, which he is charged with converting to his own use.

Col. J. A. Watrous, of Milwaukee, was chosen commander of the Wisconsin department G. A. R. at the convention at Janesville.

Nick Martin, a member of the coroner's jury investigating a murder at Omaha, has been arrested for the crime.

Seven horse thieves were killed by vigilantes in Oklahoma near the Texas line.

All overtures for a peaceful settlement of the Great Northern Railroad strike have been declared off.

Deputy marshals engaged a gang of desperadoes in battle near Coal Creek, I. T. Three officers and one bandit were killed.

It is estimated that 1,000,000 Odd-fellows celebrated the seventy-fifth anniversary of the order.

Diplomatic and consular appropriation bill passed the house and shows a decrease of $46,706 compared with the current year's appropriation.

Floyd Radbaugh, a young Ohio farmer, rendered desperate by domestic troubles, hanged himself and his two children.

Supervisors of Woodbury county, Iowa, are charged with having misappropriated $250,000 by a taxpayers' committee.

Two children were killed and three adults fatally injured by a gasoline explosion in the home of Casimir Nigg, near Carondelet, Mo.

Western lines have determined to continue the immigrant rate war, in spite of the refusal of the Southern Pacific to handle the business.

Discovery that Juror Armstrong had solicited a bribe led to the dismissal of the jury in the Indianapolis bank wrecking cases and the arrest of Armstrong and Frank Stannard, the go-between.

Changes have been agreed upon in the tariff bill which placate the Democrats who were opposed to certain features.

Republicans in the New York Senate buried factional differences and passed three of the bills aimed at Tammany.

Wisconsin department G. A. R. suffered a reduction in membership of 700 during the year.

Editor Rosewater, of the Omaha Bee, and one of his reporters were sent to jail for contempt in writing and publishing an article reflecting on Judge Scott.

Illinois miners in convention at Springfield indorsed the strike ordered by the national body and adopted a political platform.

Fifteen thousand persons attended the reunion of Confederate veterans at Birmingham, Ala.

Union Pacific earnings in 1893 showed a deficit of $2,595,841, compared with a surplus the previous year of $2,069,757.

The Merchants' Bank, of Enid, O. T., failed, with liabilities of $20,000. Depositors pursued the cashier, but he escaped on a train.

James Douglas was convicted at Jacksonville, Fla., of vending obscene pictures in selling a copy of Rubens' "The Judgment of Paris."

Bandits stripped the cathedral at Banon, Mexico, of its ornaments. Two were killed in a fight with guards.

Michael Boland, one of the celebrated triangle of the Clan-na Gael, died at his home in Kansas City.

Jesse Seligman, of the New York and London banking firm of J. & S. Seligman, died at Coronado Beach, Cal.

FOREIGN.

Great damage was done by the storm on the Irish coast. Forty-five vessels were missing.

Great Britain, Germany and the United States are corresponding on the subject of annexation of Samoa to New Zealand.

Returns from all Grecian districts affected by the recent earthquake show 250 persons killed and 150 injured.

Great Britain is planning to assume an exclusive protectorate over the Samoan Islands. Germany and the United States are said to favor the move.

Troops fired on rioting Socialists at Hodmezo Vasarhely, Hungary, wounding six severely and many others slightly.

The Wellman arctic expedition sailed from Aalesund, Norway, for Spitzbergen on the Ragnvold Jarl. A fleet of small boats escorted the steamer out of the harbor.

Another violent earthquake has destroyed many villages in Greece. It is feared the loss of life has been heavy. Bodies of 233 persons killed by the recent earthquakes have been recovered. It is feared many more have perished in seacoast towns.

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances of money to the Cynosure from April 23 to 28:

A M Lundstrom, G S Peck, J W McKinley, R Paddock, A Acker, J S Yaukey, Miss H E Powers, H Kohler, W Pallister, C H Watson, C A Webb, M Woodward, J Dalrymple, W Ferguson, Rev M A Gault, W G Hathaway, Rev H A Fischer, R Hammond.

Physicians,

the world over, endorse it; babies and children like the taste of it. Weak mothers respond readily to its nourishing powers.

Scott's Emulsion

the Cream of Cod-liver Oil, is the life of the blood, the maker of sound flesh, solid bones and lung tissue, and the very essence of nourishment.

Don't be deceived by Substitutes!

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All Druggists.

BUY DIRECT AND SAVE DEALER'S $12 AND AGENT'S PROFITS. buy our Oxford Boss Bicycle, suitable for either sex, made of best material, strong, substantial, accurately adjusted and fully warranted. Write to-day for our large complete catalogue of bicycles, parts, repairs, etc., free. OXFORD MFG. CO.
338 Wabash Avenue, - CHICAGO, ILL.

PROPHECY:
A STUDY.
BY REV. S. F. PORTER,
A Study of Christ's Comings.
Paper Cover, 100 Pages.
Single copies, postpaid..... 25 cents.
Per 100 copies, postpaid..... $20.00.
For sale by the
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

A BOOKLET.
107 pages, 5x7 inches.
Paper Cover, Postpaid, 15 Cents
—o:o—
The following addresses form part of the contents of this booklet:

THE MARTYR'S OWN MONUMENT, by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association.

CHRISTIAN POLITICS, by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure.

THE MYSTERIOUS MACHINE: was it Lawnmower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what? by Prof. E. D. Bailey of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government.

This booklet includes other interesting matter connected with the unveiling of the Morgan monument at Batavia, N. Y. Address
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2		57¾@	58
Winter No. 2		55¾@	58⅛
Corn—No. 2		37⅝@	39
Oats—No. 2		34 @	35
Rye—No. 2		46⅛@	48
Bran per ton	11	37½@11	00
Hay—Timothy	9	00 @11	00
Butter, medium to best		10 @	19
Cheese		07 @	12½
Beans	1	10 @ 1	72½
Eggs, fresh		10 @	10½
Seeds—Timothy (100 lbs)	4	00 @ 4	30
Flax	1	24
Clover (100 lbs.)	9	00 @ 9	40
Broom corn (per ton)	30	00 @70	00
Potatoes, (bu.)		70 @	90
Hides—Green to dry flint		02½@	06¼
Lumber—Common		15	50
Wool (unwashed)		12 @	26
Cattle—Choice to extra	4	00 @ 4	40
Common to good	3	55 @ 4	00
Hogs	5	05 @ 5	40
Sheep	2	70 @ 4	75

NEW YORK.

Wheat No. 2		61 @	62¼
Corn No 2		43⅜@	45
Oats		41 @	45¼
Rye		51 @	56
Eggs, Western fresh		11 @	12
Butter		10 @	20
Wool		15 @	26

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle	1	75 @ 4	45
Hogs	4	80 @ 5	10

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address S. C. KIMBALL,
Box 277. Newmarket, N. H.

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST
A Secret Empire;
Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.
By Rev. Richard Horton.
Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.
Price, 60 cents.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

THE
Folly, Expense & Danger
OF
SECRET SOCIETIES.
BY
CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.
(President Wheaton College.)
5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred
NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago

The Very Best!
1894—LIGHT and LIFE LESSONS—1894
(INTERNATIONAL)

In book form, containing all the lessons for the entire year, with four large pages of instructions and comments on each lesson, comments being adapted to the Advanced, Intermediate, and Primary classes; Black Board Exercises, Maps, Bible Dictionary, and Class Registers beside other valuable helps. 225 Pages.

Paper covers, postpaid	.35
Clubs of five or more, postpaid	.30
Cloth covers, postpaid	.50
Clubs of five or more, postpaid	.40

Read what is said about it:

"The classification of each of these fifty-two Lessons is excellent. The choicest of Biblical literature has been drawn upon for material to make it one of the very best lesson expositors extant, and in this respect its compilers have achieved flattering success. Its cheapness and its merits entitle it to a general acceptance by Sunday-school workers."—CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE.

"The book will prove a great convenience and a blessing."—EARNEST CHRISTIAN.

"This is a very complete and valuable guide to the Sunday school teacher for the International Lessons of 1894."—METHODIST RECORDER.

"This is the best thing by way of S. S. supplies I have ever seen."—W. W. HULET.

"It is a marvel of neatness and cheapness."—T. C. GIVENS.

"I am highly pleased with it."—JAMES I. COUNCIL.

"We like it exceedingly well and presume the plan will be continued in the future; if so you may count on us to subscribe for it."—VICTOR CHAREOIN.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Love, the Supreme Gift:
THE GREATEST THING IN THE WORLD.
The Perfected Life;
THE GREATEST NEED IN THE WORLD.
Both by Prof. Henry Drummond. Bound in chaste white vellum paper, each 20 cts.

These are not to be judged by the size, unless rubies are counted for the weight thereof. The first has been very largely circulated, the second is now only just published and deserves the same wide reading—both are gems such as are only found at rare intervals. If you have not read them, do so at once, you will be a better man or woman for the reading.

Sermons of Rev. John McNeill,
12mo. cloth, 416 pages, $1.50.

The fame of this Scottish Spurgeon, as he is very generally called, is becoming as wide-spread as the English tongue. The secret of his power over the masses, has been discussed on both sides of the Atlantic. If one may judge from these printed sermons the secret lies in a homely and pointed putting of the old truths of the Gospel in plain Anglo-saxon. There is evidence of study, but more the study of human nature, and particularly the human heart, than that of books, other than the Book of books—with this volume Mr. McNeill is evidently in love. With unquestioned faith he believes the writen word, and preaches it with an earnestness born of conviction.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies. A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian churches to disfellowship secret societies. 10cts each.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVI., No. 35 | CHICAGO, THURSDAY, MAY 10, 1894. | WHOLE No. 1,254.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill. as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
The Bounds of Human Research..... 8
Masonic Democracy and Christianity..... 8
Clan-na Gael and Masonry..... 8
The Coxey Fiasco..... 8
CONTRIBUTIONS:
Rome, in Apocalyptic Vision (Concluded).... 1
No Church Fellowship with Secretists..... 2
SELECTED:
Odd-fellowship Dissected by Rev. J. P. Stoddard (Concluded)..... 3
United Brethren and the Lodge..... 3
College Secret Societies. 4
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 4
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4
REFORM NEWS:
From the Pacific Coast.. 5
CORRESPONDENCE:
More Extracts from Letters to Secetary Phillips; Secretism and the Public Schools; Orangemen.....5,6
LODGE NOTES..... 7
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
N. C. A..... 7
THE HOME.....10
TEMPERANCE.....11
BIBLE LESSON 12
LITERATURE 12
RELIGIOUS NEWS..... 12
Catalogue of Publications 13
HOME AND HEALTH.....14
FARM NOTES 15
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....16
MARKETS 16

The official call for the Annual Meeting of the N. C. A. will be found at the head of the eighth page of this issue of the Cynosure. Especial attention is called to the date—May 16; and all those who cannot be present in person on that day are earnestly requested to write, conveying to the meeting whatever suggestions or opinions they may have to offer in regard to the work of the Association during the coming year. Everything that tends to the profitable extension and progress of our reform will be appreciated. Let as many as can, however, be with us on that occasion.

The Free Methodist of May 2 says: "Our attention is called to the fact that a number of the pastors of Protestant churches are becoming frequent attendants at spiritist circles, seances, etc., in this city. It is to be deplored that in any enlightened community any one should be found to advocate the idolatries, infidelity, heresies and witcheries of modern spiritism. It also seems strange that Protestant ministers should lend their influence to this infernal system by attending their seances where persons profess to put themselves in a trance state, and while professedly unconscious pretend to converse with the spirits of the dead." There is no more direct method of forming an alliance with the devil and his works than by following or tolerating modern spiritualism. We speak feelingly, because we speak from sad experience.

The present disturbances in labor affairs, and the great number of unemployed and disgruntled laborers, ought to produce an era of hard thinking among philanthropists, statesmen and capitalists. The remedy, or the attempt to find one, should not be left to pothouse politicians, walking delegates and reckless strikers. It is time that the "upper classes" should make a practical study of the situation and evolve measures of relief not only for the deserving poor who are willing to work, but to equalize and harmonize the respective claims of labor and capital, and to establish foundation principles and codify measures thereon, whereby all differences arising between employers and employed may be definitely settled by a governing law based upon justice and mutual forbearance.

At the meeting of the Supreme Council of the American Protective Association in Des Moines, Iowa, the Grand Secretary reported that since March, 1893, 1,400 charters for new councils (lodges) had been issued. Press reports indicate two factions (radical and conservative) in the supreme council. The former wishes to have the order indorse a policy of aggression in the matter of citizenship and the Church of Rome, while the other favors more moderation. An address to the public, embodying the principles and aims of the order, will be prepared for publication.

A Mason has recently begun, in a leading Masonic periodical, a serial romance entitled "The Man of Moriah," meaning the mythical "Hiram (Abiff), Tyrian, widow's son," who "visited King Solomon" to find employment as a boss in the construction of the temple, which Solomon, with the assistance of King Hiram of Tyre, was erecting at Jerusalem. Of course the entire story as perpetuated in Masonic legends and rituals is a romance, without a particle of evidence to sustain it. "When you hear ministers, or orators, on any occasion, claiming for speculative Freemasonry.....a great antiquity, let it be settled, I pray you, in your minds that such claims are utterly false, and that those who make them are either grossly ignorant, or intensely dishonest.....Does any one believe the silly tale?" So wrote Chas. G. Finney—himself a Master Mason—once a friend and companion of the modern Hiram Abiff.

White Caps are terrorizing people in North Alabama. Quite recently three Negroes, accused of burning barns at Tuscumbia, were lynched by these secret vigilantes, and one morning last week a threatening circular was found posted up in Tuscumbia, addressed to the public. Among other information given in this manner is the following: "We never had an organization in North Alabama until March 23, and now it numbers 483, in three counties, of the best people of the State. We are here to stay and try to protect the property of our people, and do all the good we can. When the law is too slow, we take it in our hands. We have just eleven on our docket to go as the three did last Saturday night. We have them on trial in our court, and want just a little more evidence. Take warning." The moral condition of a community where the organization of such secret societies for the punishment of crime is necessary must be terrible indeed. The practice of "lynching" criminals may seem to be a necessity in certain communities, but it looks more like a return to barbarism than advancement in civilization.

The new labor organization—secret, of course, to retain its power over its members—it is said, has met with a success unparalleled in the history of similar unions. During its six months of existence, it is claimed, it has organized one local union every day, and in Chicago, within a few weeks, thirteen lodges have received charters. An ominous feature of the society is the fact that those who unite with it profess great contempt for the older and more conservative railway fraternities to which they formerly belonged. They exhibit a desire for more aggression in their new sphere than either of their old leaders—Arthur, Clark and Sargent—ever advocated, and, in the opinion of an intelligent city daily, their leaders will find it difficult to properly restrain this spirit. The disposition of the men will be to inaugurate fierce strikes on innumerable provocations, and this will test the good sense of the leaders as well as their popularity with the unions. An organization of such great numbers, and with the spirit already manifested by it, is calculated, if thwarted, to become a mob of anarchists.

Protestants and Freemasons are placed on the same level in Roman Catholic circles. "Mexican papers announce that through the intercession of the Blessed Virgin the conversion of a Mason and Protestant has been obtained." The man was originally a Catholic, but for seventeen years professed to be a Protestant, and was at the same time a Mason. Now he says: "I have returned to my early faith." We doubt very much whether he was ever a Protestant at heart. By the way, is it not singular that while Freemasons and Roman Catholics in the United States profess to oppose each other, they will vote together to overthrow any political influence aimed against either? In the election of a school board at Wheaton, last week, the two fraternities united their forces and elected their men.

Bradstreet's Review thus delineates the commercial situation at the close of last week: "The movement of general merchandise throughout the country is smaller in volume. Spring trade is finished, and orders for fall delivery are, with few exceptions, not meeting expectations. Jobbers in leading lines at almost all larger cities report sales almost without exception as of a hand-to-mouth description. The extension of the coal and coke strike, accompanied by riots at Cleveland and Mesaba, has emphasized the depression. The industrial situation, therefore, has not improved. Strikes of iron ore miners, among building trades, with an extension of the coal miners' strike and the almost total cessation of operations in the coke regions have swelled the total number of idle industrial workers to fully 215,000. Shut-downs of industrial concerns, dependent on coke or soft coal for fuel, are increasing, notwithstanding an attempt of coal operatives and operators to get together to arrange a basis of settlement. Corn, oats, cotton, coffee and refined sugar are all lower, and wool and some varieties of woolens and cotton goods heavy, with a market tendency of quotations to weaken. Wheat scored its fifth or sixth lowest price on record during the crop year, 60¼ cents at New York."

ROME, IN APOCALYPTIC VISION.—THE DRAGON AND THE BEAST DESCRIBED.

BY REV. C. A. S. TEMPLE.

(Concluded)

SUMMARY.

The facts above stated shed a flood of light upon Rev. 17: 8–17. They show that "the beast" there exhibited is a simple impersonation of the "healed head" of "the first beast" (chap. 13: 3, 12), the head which "had been slain." Hence, in verse 8 (chapter 17) he is called "the beast that was and is not, and yet is." Verse 11 adds, "The beast that was, and is not, even he is the eighth, and is of the seven." "The eighth"—what? Clearly not the eighth beast, for even if we include the dragon of chapter 12, only three seven-headed beasts are exhibited in the Apocalypse, and no other, throughout the Scriptures. Of course, therefore, for the same reason, he could not be "of the seven" beasts. He must, then, be one "of the seven" heads. That is, he must of necessity be that head which (chap. 13: 3) "had been slain," but "whose deadly wound was healed."

Some writers assume that that head was restored in Charlemagne, when (A. D. 800) he was crowned and proclaimed Emperor of Rome. But his coronation did not restore to Rome even her independence, much less her long-lost imperial dominion over "the nations." Although at that time Charlemagne "had reduced under his sway nearly the whole of Europe," Rome still continued a mere dependency and tributary of and to the kingdom of France, exercising a subordinate temporal power over only her own municipal affairs, and over those of what have since been called "The States of the Church."

Thus, notwithstanding the great dominion and power of Charlemagne, his coronation at Rome was not the reconstruction, or in any sense the revival, of the ancient Roman Empire. It did not and could not restore or "heal" the "slain" sixth head of the beast. Besides, the fact that the "healed" head, to be "the eighth" (chap. 17: 11), must come after all the seven, showed that when that restoration should come, the seven heads would all have run their course; whereas, when Charlemagne became Emperor of Rome, the papacy had not even reached its full development as the seventh head, and did not reach its end for more than a thousand years.

Charlemagne did not, therefore, represent "the eighth" head. But although his coronation did not restore the ancient empire, with the administration which followed it, it did strengthen, confirm and help forward the papacy, and opened the way for its full development as the then expanding and maturing seventh head.

Other writers have seen, or have thought they saw, in one or another of the many other epochs in the career of Rome, the restoration of the "slain" head.

A few such cases may be mentioned. The first occurred early in the fifteenth century (1414), when the Council of Constance deposed two popes, from which to the appointment of another there was an interregnum of three years. The second case was in 1798, when France usurped the papal government, and in consequence the papal chair was vacant for two years, when (1800), "the pope (Pius VI.) was restored by the Emperor." In 1809, France again interfered. The pope was "deposed and taken captive to France." In 1814, "he was released by Napoleon," returned to Rome, and to the Vatican, and resumed the tiara. In 1848, the outraged and indignant Roman people drove Pope Pius IX. from the Vatican and from Rome. In a few months, France restored and reinstated him. In neither of these cases was the seventh head "slain." Although, in each case, the Roman pontiff was, for a time, removed, yet in neither case was the papacy (the seventh head of the beast) anything more than temporarily discomposed. In each and every intermission, the papal-civil regime was retained. Thus, on the restoration and return of the pope, no revolution occurred. None was needed. Papal, civil magistrates—ecclesiastics, always—though perhaps, during the absence of the pope, overborne and hampered somewhat by superior power, still administered papal government and papal law.

When the first, the regal head, was "slain," that whole system of administration was destroyed, root and branch. Nothing of royalty remained. When, in 1870, it was revived and restored, all that had made the papacy "the seventh head of the beast" (its secular, or civil power), was taken from it and appropriated by its successor, now "the eighth," that "healed" first head—the present kingdom of Italy and Rome. The removal in those former cases could not, therefore, be the "slaying" of the seventh head. Neither, for the same reason, could his restoration be, in either case, the "healing" of the "slain" head. In each case, in its effect upon the papal system, it differed nothing, essentially, from his removal by death. The interregnum, which, in each case, followed his deposition, was also, to all concerned, precisely the same as if the pope had then died and years had intervened before the appointment of another.

But no deposition of the pope has introduced the present state of things in Rome. He is neither a deposed monarch nor pontiff. He is neither a captive in a foreign land, nor a refugee from the fury of his long oppressed subjects, or of any one else. He is, and has been, from the first, in the Vatican; and, despite the silly pretense that he is "a prisoner" there, he is as free as he ever was. His situation there differs nothing from that of other times, excepting that the temporal power which he used to exercise is now wholly in other hands, while he is compelled to confine himself exclusively to the sacerdotal and religious functions of the papacy. In other words, as in ancient times, "the Sovereign Pontiff is supreme judge and arbiter in all religious matters." (Adams' Rom. Antiq., p. 248.) As then, too, while all taxes and other imposts levied by regal authority find their way into the royal treasury, the papal exchequer absorbs all ecclesiastical revenues. Only in the temporal power is the pope, or his hierarchy, in any way superseded. He still monopolizes the Vatican, with all its appurtenances and belongings, with perfect liberty to go or come when and where he pleases.

Thus it was reserved for Victor Emanuel (and his son and successor, or successors) to personate (unconsciously, no doubt) the once "slain," but now, in them, "healed" head of the beast, and in that capacity to stamp out (probably forever) the papal monarchy, the seventh head. Their government, therefore, thus formed, though the restored first "of the seven," becomes "the eighth" in the succession, the concluding link in the prophetic chain.

CONCLUSION.

"And goeth into perdition." Rev. 17: 11.

The connection of these words with the previous statements in the same verse, and in the 8th, and with the facts brought out in the foregoing investigation, renders their solution easy and clear. They show (1) that "the eighth" form of administration in Rome is to be the last in her career; (2) that that career is to end in her destruction, and "in perdition."

Such is the sentence already pronounced upon Rome; such her destiny, when her seven heads shall all have done their work, passed on, given place to "the eighth"—which would be "of the seven"—and when, too, that shall have "filled up the measure of its iniquities" there. That eighth form, or period, of administration is the last in a career in which Rome has been the conqueror and the oppressor of the whole known, civilized world; a career in which she has reveled in the tears and groans and blood of more than fifty millions of "the saints and martyrs of Jesus." When this last head has done its work, she "goes into perdition." Her present vigorous, and even desperate, efforts to spread her influence and power among "the nations"—especially in these United States—will not, cannot, prolong her existence, much less her power. Her doom is sealed. Her sentence, from the Almighty, is gone forth. Her days are numbered, her end is at hand; and "the things that shall come upon her make haste."

The very presence of a king—as a sovereign—in Rome is of itself a sure token, a signal even, that she has entered upon that last stage in her career. In it, she fills up the measure of her iniquities, and "comes in remembrance before God," to receive at his hand "the cup of the wine of the fierceness of his wrath," when "with violence, she shall be thrown down and shall be found no more at all." More, we are assured, chap. 19: 20, that "the beast" (Rome) and "the false prophet" (the pope and hierarchy, or "church" of Rome) shall be "cast alive into a lake of fire, burning with brimstone!"

The apparent impossibility of a literal construction or fulfillment of these words, is thoroughly dispelled by the following facts:

1. "Whatever God has promised (or predicted), in his Word, he is able also to perform." 2. Every prophecy of the divine Word, whose time of fulfillment has come, has been fulfilled to the very letter. 3. Possibilities. Geologists tell us that the whole region in and about Rome is volcanic. From that it would seem possible, if not even probable, that Rome and her surroundings may at some time be subjected to some terrible catastrophe, from the action of those vast, subterranean fires, even now gathering strength in unknown depths beneath her. 4. The startling predictions (for that is what they are) in chapters 16 and 19, do indeed seem to have these very things in view, and so to magnify and emphasize the dangers which threaten that devoted city.

Says the Revelator (chap. 16: 17–19), "And there came a great voice out of the temple of heaven from the throne, saying, It is done." "From the throne," that is, it was the voice of God, saying, "The end is come." "And" (when he had said this) "there were voices and thunders and lightnings, and .... a great earthquake, such as was not since men were upon the earth; so mighty an earthquake, and so great." "And the great city was divided into three parts, and the cities of the nations fell; and great Babylon came in remembrance before God, to give unto her the cup of the wine of the fierceness of his wrath." "A great earthquake" which shook the earth, but its central and chief power was to be in and upon "that great city, Babylon," Rome, splitting up and dividing her, and thus (as in chap. 18: 8–18, 21) "throwing her down," burning her up and utterly destroying her, as in verse 8, "she shall be utterly burned with fire."

"The nature of the soil in the vicinity, the frequent eruptions of subterranean fires and terrible earthquakes which have occurred, seem to point out the method. The combustibles are provided and the train is laid. There wants only the breath of the Almighty to kindle it." (Scott, comment on Rev. 18: 11–17.)

The fearful crash which shakes to pieces and "throws down" that great city will, no doubt, combine with the flames bursting up from beneath to consume her. So terrible will be the spectacle that all who behold it ("the kings of the earth who have committed fornication with her," that is, rulers who have catered to her, or who have fawned upon her, or her lackeys—her deputy popes, cardinals, archbishops, etc.... "the merchants of the earth....every shipmaster and all the company in ships and sailors") "stand afar off, for fear of her torment, "her burning," ....and cry, weeping and wailing, "Alas, alas, that great city, for in one hour is she made desolate." (Verses 8–21.)

Probably, too, in fulfillment of that divine prediction in chapter 19: 20, the scene will close by sinking her, her papacy, the false prophet, and all her belongings there, "alive," into the fiery abyss, then opened from beneath her, and thus literally (as in the vision) "casting her into a lake of fire, burning with brimstone."

Lebanon Springs, New York.

NO CHURCH FELLOWSHIP WITH SECRETISTS.

BY REV. A. MAYN.

The following paper was read before the Young People's Society of the Bloomington, Ind., Covenanter Church, on Sabbath evening, April 8:

Should a church exclude members of secret societies from her communion? Her Founder established the Christian home—so very different from the heathen home, that the female members are equally honored with the males. Yet these societies exclude all females from participation in their mysteries. The father and husband is bound to keep all these in his own bosom, and must never reveal them to those who are nearest and dearest on earth to him. And though these secrets are claimed to be highly beneficial to their possessors, they must not be possessed by the wives and daughters, lest they should be benefited, too.

He must also absent himself from home, without necessity, for many nights in the year, apparently regarding the companionship of his fellows as worth more than the society of the home circle.

Suppose the mothers and daughters should form such circles, and exclude the husbands and fathers from their society, absenting themselves from home and binding themselves by oath to keep out their husbands and fathers. What would result? You will predict that a want of harmony would exist in every such home. Yet they would have the same right as the others thus to stab home confidence.

2. The fellowship into which the secretist enters is not a true Christian fellowship. Its basis is selfishness. "Pay your dues" is the watchword, and the promise is, that if you do, you shall be counted a brother beloved; when sick, one or two paid brothers shall watch over you; and, if you die, your payment of dues will still secure the fellowship of your brethren. If a Freemason, you can march in a Masonic funeral procession, while alive, and when dead you can be buried with the honors of Masonry, provided you are a Master Mason. No Fellow Craft or Apprentice is entitled to such honors—dead or alive. So says Albert G. Mackey, Past General Grand High Priest of the General Grand Chapter of the United States.

John says: "Truly our fellowship is with the Father and with his Son, Jesus Christ." How wonderfully different such a fellowship. The language of the lodge is: Our fellowship is in the lodge—with every worthy brother—every one who pays his dues—whether infidel or Christian, Jew or Mohammedan, anarchist or socialist.

3. Another reason is found in the great tendency of such societies to prevent justice. Everywhere in my travels have I heard of instances where justice was disregarded in court, because one of the parties was connected with a secret society. No wonder, when the oath in one society is to help a brother in all cases, "murder and treason excepted;" or in another degree of that society, "in all cases, murder and treason not excepted." Morgan, Bernard, Allyn, and a host of others are my witnesses of this oath. This tendency has been admitted even by some secretists. A judge of the court has lately referred to the throwing of signs to him when on his seat of justice. Even outside the court-room public men have been led, by their affiliation with the lodge, to give an undue preference to a brother of the mystic tie; and this has even been boasted of, as in the case referred to by Rev. Mr. Finney, who quotes from the American Freemason, published in Louisville, Ky., and dated April 8, 1854. The writer to that paper says that his load of pork was received at the depot in preference to many others which were ahead of him, because he was a Freemason. The writer says: "Is it not an admirable thing, this Masonic spirit of brotherly love?" And the editor says: "Verily it is! We have seen it in many varieties of form, but our kind-hearted brother's is but an every-day experience of Masonic practice; but to the world, how inexplicable do such things appear!" Again, the various oaths imposed by the lodge are un-Christian. First, they are administered without proper authority. It is not the government, but a self-appointed tribunal that swears the candidate. Secondly, he is sworn to conceal a thing before he knows its nature. For aught that he knows, it might be something which a sense of duty would compel him to reveal. How then can he submit to give up his right to be ruled by his own conscience? This certainly is not according to Jeremiah 4:2: "Thou shalt swear the Lord liveth, in truth, in judgment, and in righteousness."

Some say that their lodge does not administer an oath; that they require only a solemn promise. What makes the promise solemn? Is it not because God is thought of? Is it not, then, an appeal to God? Therefore it is an oath. In the leading secret society the oaths are horrid in language, and demoralizing in effect. What think you of such penalties as having the throat cut, the heart cut out, the tongue torn out, or the body quartered? These are Masonic penalties, as affirmed by many witnesses. Said I once to a Mason: "Why do you Masons swear not to violate the chastity of a Master Mason's wife or daughter?" "Oh! we do that Masonically," said he; thus admitting that they did thus swear. "Well," said I, "suppose that I should promise that I should not steal from a Presbyterian, would it be a sufficient explanation to say that I did it Presbyterially?" Do not such oaths demoralize by implying that we may do evil to certain classes?

Again, what was the example of Christ? In the temple or synagogue by the highway—in the fields—on the seashore, he taught the multitude. He spread no tent or placed an outside tyler or sentinel. No grips or signs were necessary in approaching him. Said he to the Jews: "In secret have I said nothing." What were his commands? Not "organize a lodge in every town, for which you may charge a fee of five or ten dollars," but, "freely ye have received, freely give." "Publish the glad tidings of salvation."

By the mouth of Paul he says: "What fellowship hath light with darkness, or what part hath he that believeth with an infidel?" "Be not unequally yoked together with unbelievers." "Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them."

Now, McKnight, Adam Clarke and Matthew Henry, chief commentators, say that Paul probably referred to the Eleusinian Mysteries, and leading Masons say that Masonry is based upon these Mysteries. Albert G. Mackey, a Masonic author, speaks of the Ancient Mysteries as "those sacred rites which have furnished so many models for Masonic symbolism, referring, doubtless, to the Eleusinian and Dionysian Mysteries."

[To be concluded.]

ODD-FELLOWSHIP DISSECTED BY REV. J. P. STODDARD.

(Concluded.)

Keeping strictly within the limits of my permit, let me say a word in closing on the "benevolent work" to which my respondent alludes. The benevolence of the order, like its profession of good will to men, is a myth and a delusion. The very extreme limit of good will among Odd-fellows is restricted by their covenant to brothers in good standing in the lodge, and the benevolence of the order does not go beyond an insurance paid for and limited to those expressly named in the bond. Individuals belonging to the Odd-fellows may and often do perform acts of real benevolence, but no subordinate lodge as such ever did, under the present system, or ever can, perform an act of real charity without doing violence to their covenant bond without obtaining permission from the Sovereign Grand Lodge of the world. I assert this without fear of successful contradiction; and challenge the Grand Master of Ontario, or any other member of the craft, to substantiate the claim of the order to a single benevolent act. Such a thing as real charity or true benevolence is precluded and made impossible by the organic basis of the compact itself. Here is the proof. A requisite number of able-bodied men desire to form a subordinate lodge, and apply to the proper authority and receive a charter authorizing them to organize and work according to the established laws of the order. Having complied with the necessary requirements, they put their scheme in motion.

The payment of membership fees and dues brings money into their treasury, which becomes the common property of the brotherhood. The articles of compact provide for the use and bestowment of every penny accumulated, and disbursements can only be made in compliance with these articles of compact. It is provided that members in good standing whose dues are paid, and certain of their relatives, shall in certain contingencies be entitled to receive aid from the lodge treasury. It occurs that two worthy and deserving widows in the neighborhood are in sore need of assistance, and when the lodge meets to "dispense sweet and blessed charity," a brother states the case of widow Smith, and moves that money be appropriated from the treasury to buy a cord of wood and a barrel of flour for her relief. The motion is seconded, when a brother raises the question, was Mr. Smith a member in good standing in our order and were his dues paid at the time of his decease? The secretary and treasurer report favorably and the motion prevails. A brother arises and states the case of Mrs. Browne, who is equally needy and personally deserving, and moves that a similar appropriation be made for her relief. The motion is seconded and the question raised, was Mr. Browne an Odd-fellow, and if so were his dues paid and was he clear on the books at the time of his decease? The secretary and treasurer find no evidence in the records, and there is no satisfactory proof at hand that Mr. Browne was an Odd-fellow, or that he ever paid a dime into the lodge treasury. A discussion follows. The case is urgent; and when the vote is finally taken, a majority favor the appropriation. The minority protest and appeal to the Grand Lodge. The State grand body sustain the minority as being true to the laws of the order. But the majority appeal from the decision of the State lodge to the Sovereign Grand Lodge of the world, where the decision, to accord with the highest code of law recognized by that supreme body, must be that as Mr. Browne had never paid anything into the funds of the order, it would be a misappropriation of the funds to bestow anything from the treasury for the relief of his widow, however great her necessities. The case is simply that of insurance where the lodge guarantees certain returns in consideration for moneys actually paid by the insured, and the lodge has no legal authority to appropriate a dollar to aid Mrs. Browne, or for any other benevolent purpose under heaven. No honorable insurance bodies claim to perform a benevolent act when they cancel a just claim for which they have been paid according to agreement, and it is a specimen of the most brazen effrontery when the order or its Grand Master trumpet their benevolence, when they simply deliver the goods for which they have already been paid at their own price. It is presuming too much upon the credulity of the man of average intelligence.

It gives me sincere pleasure to assure the "Grand Master" that his prayer to "Mr. Stoddard to study the Decalogue referring to the bearing of false witness against one's neighbor" is heard and answered. I have borne a truthful testimony against the order, avoiding personalities where not absolutely required in the interests of truth, but had I felt constrained to speak even more pointedly I have ample warrant in Leviticus 19:17: "Thou shalt in anywise rebuke thy neighbor, and not suffer sin upon him." "With love towards all and malice towards none," I am, sincerely, etc., JAMES P. STODDARD.

Boston, Mass.

UNITED BRETHREN AND THE LODGE.

There is a whole sermon in the declaration against the lodge of the forty-first session of the Rock River Conference of the United Brethren in Christ, held at Kent, Stephenson county, Ill., last September, and printed in full in the official proceedings.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

We see no valid reason why we should abandon our position on secret societies, but many why we should faithfully maintain it.

Our position is a tenable one from a Bible basis, and were we to desert it now we would confess ourselves moral cowards.

It is our belief, that as the world becomes more and more enlightened and Christianized, the more it will see the uselessness and folly of such organizations.

The argument so often resorted to in defense of secret sscieties, namely, that because so many good and eminent men belong to them, therefore there must be no evil in them, is not conclusive. Such an argument, if it proves anything at all, proves too much, and is therefore worthless.

Catholics used to burn Protestants, and they in turn burnt Catholics, but who would now dare to say it is right to burn men and women at the stake just because men of eminence, and claiming to be Christians, gave the crime their sanction?

In the days of American slavery, Christian men and Christian ministers held slaves and justified themselves in so doing, claiming that the Bible sanctioned the system and slavery.

It is a sad fact that the conduct of Christians has not always been, and is not always even now, consistent Christian conduct.

Paul says of Peter: "I withstood him to the face because he was to be blamed."

To all of our people, and specially to such as have more recently entered upon the Christian life, we would say: "Do not take your Christianity from men, but take it from Christ, who said in vindication of the purity and honesty of his life and labors, "I spake openly to the world—and in secret have I said nothing"—"Leaving us (says Peter) an example, that ye should follow his steps."

To emulate the example of the Saviour, should be the ambition of every professed follower of his. He says: "My sheep hear my voice and I know them, and they follow me." Following his steps no one can ever go astray. "Be ye therefore imitators of God, as beloved children."

Secret societies, to say the best that can be said of them, are worldy institutions; most frequently officered and dominated by wicked men; and are anti-Christian in their religious character.

Into such societies the Christian goes, if he will, but at the loss of his spiritual power, and to the injury of the cause of Christ.

For when a Christian becomes a member of a secret society, as they exist in our day, he enters into and sanctions a communion contrary to the plain teachings of the New Testament; for the communion of saints is there taught by precept and example as opposed to communion with the wicked. Such is the teaching in 2 Cor. 6:14-17; and Eph 5:11; and exemplified by the apostles in Acts 1:14; and by Paul, Acts 20:36, 38; and by the primitive church as shown in Acts 2:42 and 5:12.

"Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful."

"Be not conformed to this world."

We hereby record our approval of our present law touching secret societies, and pledge ourselves to loyally execute the same.

COLLEGE SECRET SOCIETIES.

DISSECTED BY REV. M. A. GAULT.

Rev. M. A. Gault preached on "College Secret Societies," Sabbath afternoon, to an unusually large congregation, comprising quite a number of students.

His text was John 3: 21. "But he that doeth truth, cometh to the light, that his deeds may be made manifest that they are wrought in God." Mr. Gault said the whole conduct and life of the Christian should be like that of Christ, luminous and aboveboard. Of Christ, it is written, in John 18: 20, he said: "I spake openly to the world; I ever taught in the synogogue and in the temple, whither the Jews always resort; and in secret have I said nothing." The standards of the Reformed Presbyterian and United Presbyterian churches, and those of a score of other denominations, forbid membership in any secret society. He read the pledge of the Beta Theta Pi society of the Indiana University, and from the oath of the Kappa Phi Delta society. The members of the latter bind themselves by an oath, in the name of Almighty God, with their hands on the Bible, that they will vote only for their own members in preference to any other fraternity or neutral man. No student with the spirit of freedom in his veins could take such an oath. The motto of every honest student should be to secure fair play for himself and fellows and let the best man win.

There was no advantage the secret fraternity can secure which cannot be secured by the open society. Secrecy necessarily excites suspicion. Let a man sneak around your hen-house or coal-house after dark; or let him come to Bloomington, rent a room, close the blinds, bolt the doors, go in and out after dark, and use secret signs and passwords, and your suspicion is aroused. Why do the saloons in Bloomington invariably screen their doors? Secrecy is the natural tool of the evil doer, burglar, counterfeiter, whisky-seller, assassin and thief. The cabals, star chambers, inquisitions, towers and bastiles, and every conspiracy against liberty and equal rights have been secret. It has been proved that the war of our late rebellion was plotted at a secret wine supper at New Orleans.

College secret societies are expensive and lead to extravagance. They absorb the time, money, talent and interest that should be devoted to literary pursuits. They are the cause of the decline of the once flourishing literary societies of our colleges. Their initiation cost the students from $5 to $25 a year. The rent of their halls costs from $150 to $200 a year. At Yale they have windowless, gloomy, tomb-like structures costing $10,000 and $50,000. At Williams there is a secret society hall costing $15,000. They break the confidence between parent and child, and substitute club life for family and domestic relations. The young man and woman have crossed the danger line when they have secrets they dare not tell their parents. Their worst feature is, they inspire lawlessness, crime and disorder. Their champagne suppers and dances are the starting point of many down the road to ruin. Their hazings and initiations have led to crime and death. In October, 1873, Mortimer M. Leggett, a student of Cornell University, was killed while being initiated into the Kappa Alpha fraternity. While waiting blind-folded on the verge of a precipice overhanging Six Mile Creek, near Ithaca, at the hour of midnight, he fell over the bank and died in two hours, saying in his unconscious delirium: "Oh, boys, don't! Oh, boys, take it off!" He was taken to an undertaker's unobserved, and the fraternity boys tried to remove the body from the town without an inquest, and to keep it out of the papers. And some months afterward, when President C. A. Blanchard, of Wheaton College, Ill., lectured in Journal Hall, Ithaca, on secret societies, the fraternity boys broke up the meeting in disorder. And last April, at the Ohio Wesleyan University, students of the Phi Gamma fraternity hazed five of their fellow-students, branding them with a strong solution of nitrate of silver, with the letters "D. O. A." on their cheeks and chin, so that they were disfigured for life; and the five victims, it was reported, entered a suit for damages for $100,000. On the same night forty girl-students of Monnett Hall took five others down to the basement after midnight, and, like the boys, branded them for life with nitrate of silver. The faculty have since prohibited all secret fraternities in the college, and the State legislature of Ohio, by a vote of sixty-one to two, has passed a bill prohibiting hazing under a penalty of from $10 to $100, and imprisonment for a year. This, the speaker hoped, will soon be the law in every State and in every college.—Bloomington (Ind.) Telephone.

[To be concluded.]

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

May days.—Radcliff College.—A descendant of King Philip.—Temperance matters —"Golfing."—Ex-Senator Dawes.—The military drill in the high schools.

"If May will be a gardener he will not fill the granaries," says the old weather-proverb. But when everything is coming forward with a leap; when twenty-four hours, and even less, are enough to change as by magic the whole face of nature, who can resist the gardening fever? Who, in the mild intoxication which these spring days breathe through the veins, can stop to think of the frosty nights or the fortnight of cold rains which may cause the seed to rot in the clod, and dash all one's hopes? This golden sunshine and flood of bird-songs engender a blessed forgetfulness in which frosts and cold rains seem as distant as last February's snowstorms, or a past sorrow in the sunshine of present joy.

"We don't want a new Gospel. We want the old Gospel with increased power," said Mr. Moody in Music Hall, yesterday. There seems to be no "dead-line of fifty" with this famous evangelist, who still draws as big crowds as ever.

Radcliff College has received its first endowment by the will of Miss Sarah Parker, who lately died at Roxbury, of a handsome estate valued at not less than $150,000. It is one of Roxbury's old estates, and was purchased from the Indian owners 250 years ago for a pint of brandy, according to one tradition, and, according to another, for two young pigs. The house itself, which was built early in the last century, is one of the most interesting houses in New England, and ought to be preserved for the wealth of colonial treasures which it contains. Even the wire loops are still to be seen on the old beams from which hung the golden rows of squashes in "ye olden days." We are continually striking chords that bind us with the past, and remind us how with every step we tread on the graves of former generations. Occasionally I have the privilege of entertaining a lady of royal blood—no less than a lineal descendant of old King Philip. She is very proud of her relationship to that dusky monarch; but sometimes I wonder how he would regard his descendant—a very lady-like person, by the way—as she goes about from house to house, plying her trade of book canvasser. I am afraid King Philip, who thought reading and writing superfluous arts, and preferred his wigwam and bear-skin to all the amenities of civilized life, would give only a disgusted "Ugh!" and wish he had never returned to earth at all. But she is, if possible, more proud of her life-long friendship with Prudence Crandal, William Lloyd Garrison, Harriet Beecher Stowe, and other noted Abolitionists. Her picture of Mrs. Stowe, as she saw her a few months ago, guarded by her faithful nurse, Hannah; happy as a child over trifles, and yet with occasional gleams of that noble intellect which charmed the world a generation ago, breaking through like sunshine over some ivied ruin, is one that will long remain in my mind. And why call it "sad," —this going down into the valley, like a little child all unconscious of any dread, to fall asleep and wake in the glorious morning of the resurrection, with every chord of that wondrous harp in tune which now gives forth only wandering, broken melodies?

"If Satan and his council had control in Holyoke, things could not be worse than they now are," says Mayor Whitcomb of that city. As in Fall River, Haverhill, and other places, the aldermen control the license question, a few members of the board combining to monopolize the business. As they owe their election to the liquor-power, they know their tenure of office will depend on the promptness with which they liquidate the debt by accommodating their political friends with licenses, which are not always sufficiently numerous to "go round," and then trouble and confusion ensue and the public gets an inside view of "the saloon in politics." I heard a story, the other day, from one of the members of the Massachusetts House, who is himself incorruptible and voted for woman-suffrage, that the day before the final vote on this matter was taken, a dinner was given at one of the largest hotels in Boston, at which many of the men whose votes the next day turned the scale were bribed by the liquor-dealers to defeat this measure, which they well knew, if carried, would mean ruin to their nefarious business.

A Soldiers' Home, with a saloon on one side, and a Keeley Cure Institute on the other, is one of the sights in Bath, Me. The last two, in locating so near each other, seem to have been guided by a sense of the fitness of things, but the Soldiers' Home should be in better company.

The Congregational ministers, at their last Monday meeting, took up the subject of pugilism. It is about time. When Music Hall is crammed to its utmost capacity with a crowd anxious to see one human being pound another into insensibility, and newspapers of the largest circulation publish the disgusting details, it is enough to make a genuine Bostonian question whether he has any longer a right to be proud of his name. Every prize-fight is a source of gain to the rum oligarchy, and while they rule municipal politics the law against these brutal exhibitions will continue to be a dead-letter.

Most people who have read in Scotch stories about "Golfing," have cherished a dim idea that "golfs" were a peculiar kind of fish; but now that it has got established on our shores as firmly as lawn-tennis, and even the Wellesley girls have their Golf Club, we have learned, with a blush for our former ignorance, that it is only a game in which balls are caught in baskets. It is a rather pretty game, but like all other athletic sports subject to the abuse of overdoing,

Ex-Senator Dawes and his wife have just celebrated their golden wedding. He lives in the old historic town of Pittsfield, Mass., which not everybody knows was named for Lord Chatham, the elder Pitt, and has among its other old houses the one famous for the "Old Clock on the Stairs" immortalized by Longfellow's verse. Mr. Dawes introduced the first appropriation for Indian schools, in 1878. It was only $20,000. Last year $2,200,000 was appropriated, which shows how the cause of Indian education has advanced from its first feeble beginnings.

The death of Gen. Moore has left the place of military instructor vacant in the high schools of Boston, and as the salary is $2,000 there are plenty of candidates. The question is whether the position would not be better honored by being left vacant. There are many who do not believe in the military drill at all, or that love for the trappings of war which it necessarily inculcates. One army officer, Lieut.-Col. Edmands, thinks it does the boys more harm than good, even from a physical point of view; military duty being for men rather than undeveloped boys. Another, Col. Logan, is of the opposite opinion, and thinks—but most judicious parents and teachers would, I am persuaded, differ from him—that "we cannot infuse too much of the military spirit into our boys." Such doctrine is at least fifty years behind the times. Most of the teachers seem to favor the drill merely as a means of physical development; yet anyone who has seen a battalion of these high-school "soldiers" marching along with round shoulders, hollow chests, and slouching gait will question whether it produces the results claimed for it. One serious objection has been recently brought forward by those who have investigated the question, and that is, that it generates ambitions and rivalries, those boys who desire to be elected as officers buying up votes with all manner of promises, thus developing into "machine politicians" at a very early age.

ELIZABETH E. FLAGG.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, May 2, 1894.

The last fears connected with the unwelcome appearance in Washington of the misguided men who irreverently call themselves "The Commonweal of Christ" vanished yesterday afternoon when they marched up to the Capitol grounds and their leaders pretended to make an attempt to speak from the steps of the Capitol building. They had been previously notified that no meeting or speaking would be allowed on the Capitol grounds, because of there being a law against it, and when the attempt was made, Mr. Coxey, the head of the movement, was quietly escorted off the grounds by the police. Two of his aids attempted to resist the police, and were arrested and locked up. One of these, Carl Browne by name, has a record as a mischief-maker extending away back to Dennis Kearney's sand-lot agitation in San Francisco, and the other is a half-crazy socialist who calls himself Christopher Columbus Jones. Mr. Coxey then marched his three hundred-odd foolish followers into an enclosure in the most unhealthy part of Washington, and, having procured a license for that purpose, put his men on exhibition, charging 25 cents admission. They will probably stay here as long as they are fed; but if they remain where they now are for any length of time their camp will be turned into a hospital, as it is alongside of a creek that is practically a big open sewer. The majority of these men have not the slightest idea why they came here; they simply obeyed Mr. Coxey, who they regard as a man of means and who they rely upon to see that they are fed. It is farcical to call the most of them unemployed working-men; they are professional tramps and vagabonds, who could not be persuaded to work for a living. Some few of them might work, if the job was easy and the pay large.

Miss Harriet Blaine, daughter of the late Hon. James G. Blaine, who was married at her mother's Washington residence this week to Hon. Truxton Beale, ex U. S. Minister to Persia, is a communicant of the Episcopal church, and desired to be married by the Episcopal ritual. Her mother, who has attended the Church of the Covenant, a Presbyterian church, ever since its erection, about eight years ago, desired that her pastor, Rev. Dr. Tennis S. Hamlin, should perform the ceremony. The desires of both were gratified. Dr. Hamlin performed the ceremony, using the Episcopal marriage ritual, What a pity it is that all religious differences cannot be as easily and as satisfactorily settled.

An important decision was handed down from the Supreme Court, this week, concerning the right of States to tax a selling-agent from any other State. The opinion, which was prepared by Justice Brewer, holds in substance that no State can levy a tax on interstate commerce in any form. The case grew out of the fining, by one of the city courts of Titusville, Pa., of an agent for a Chicago firm who failed to secure a license before soliciting orders. He appealed, and the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania affirmed the judgment, which is now reversed by the U. S. Supreme Court.

Two more deaths in the Senatorial circle occurred within the last week. The friends of the late Mrs. Morgan, wife of Senator Morgan, of Alabama, before attending her funeral, which took place here yesterday morning, received an additional shock from the morning papers which contained telegraphic news of the death of Senator Stockbridge of Michigan, at Chicago. Although not altogether unexpected, the death of Senator Stockbridge, coming so soon after the deaths of two other Senators, has had a peculiarly saddening effect upon his late colleagues. Three deaths within the short period of five weeks in the small membership of the Senate is certainly a startling warning as to the uncertainty of life.

The Washington branch of the American Tract Society held its sixty-ninth annual meeting this week, ex Justice Strong, of the U. S. Supreme Court, president, presiding. The report of the secretary showed the past year to have been one of the busiest in the history of the society, special efforts having been made to utilize the crowds in attendance upon the World's Fair for the distribution of Christian literature.

The "Sunday-school Teachers' Club," a branch of which was recently organized in Washington, appears, if one may judge from its rapid growth, to fill a real need. Its purpose is to enable teachers in Sunday-schools to prepare themselves to do their work better.

The tariff situation in the Senate is not satisfactory to anybody. The most contradictory assertions are constantly being made and denied on the floor of the Senate as to what is to be done. Meanwhile little or nothing is being publicly done.

A year's numbers of the Cynosure would make six good-sized volumes of valuable reform literature, containing 550 pages each.

REFORM NEWS.

FROM THE PACIFIC COAST.

SHERIDAN, Ore., April 30, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—Since my last letter to the paper the Prohibitionists of Benton county met in the county seat, in regular convention, and put in the field a complete county ticket. Your correspondent was honored with the nomination for Representative, and also was made chairman of the convention. Rev. F. A. Powell, pastor of the Christian church of Corvallis, was the secretary.

During a respite in the convention work, this brother whispered to me, "Are you still engaged in the reform work?" Being answered in the affirmative, he said, "God bless and prosper you; I am with you, heart and soul, in that work."

He is a true blue anti-secretist, and regretted very much his inability to attend our last convention at Canby. We hope to have him with us at our convention next September.

The Benton County Sunday-school Convention convened in our church at Philomath last Wednesday evening, and was addressed by Mr. Wm. Reynolds, of Peoria, Illinois, of the International Committee. He is a grand Sunday-school worker. I was compelled to leave the next morning to meet lecture engagements already out.

I went to McCoy, on the Southern Pacific Westside railroad. I was met by Rev. C. R. Zumwalt, who conveyed me to his home at Perrydale, where I spoke two nights in the Methodist Episcopal church. The first night my theme was the evils of intemperance. I advocated the prohibition of

(Continued on 9th page.)

CORRESPONDENCE.

MORE EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS TO SECRETARY PHILLIPS.

HATTON, N. DAKOTA.

The K. P. lodge has recently introduced itself at this place, this being the only secret society here. Now I would like to know if there is any manual, constitution or text-book setting forth the form of devotion, practice and general principles of this identical society, the K. P.

(Rev.) C. J. M. GRONLID.

[The above is a hint to friends to keep a supply of our catalogues, and to distribute them.]

MARS, PENN.

[The writer of this letter was pastor of one congregation 46½ years. He is a Cynosure subscriber and circulates it among his neighbors.]

I pray God to give you good success in contending against secretism and all the works of darkness. (Rev.) JOHN GALBRAITH.

BALTIMORE, MD.

Some back numbers of the Cynosure would help on wonderfully in making our young men see the evil of secret societies. The lodges are not satisfied with taking our young men, but our girls also, and even our children from 8 to 10 years of age. May our God bless you in the grand and noble work in which you are engaged.

A. BROWN.

LIBRARY OF THE UNIVERSITY AT WORCESTER, OHIO.

You ask whether we have any anti-secret books in the library. We have quite a number, presented by some friend a few years ago, and I try to see that they are used. Only a few days ago I received a letter from one of our alumni, saying that he remembered such books in the library, and asking me to give him the names and authors of some of them, where published, and to inform him how he might get them. Of course I told him of the N. C. A., the Cynosure, and where and how he might obtain the books he wanted.

ALEXANDRIA, NEB.

[Rev. J. E. Wolfe, of Indian Territory, tells of missionaries sent there by denominational boards, who seek the salvation of the Indians by first getting them into the Masonic lodge, and then they find it easy to get them to "join the church"—just as Catholicism combines heathenish practices with Christian names, and then gets the heathen to accept Christianity in name, while remaining heathen in practice.]

Your letter came to hand, and its contents were read with interest. There is no reform that lies so near my heart as the National Christian Association, because the foe that it grapples with (organized secrecy) is in my mind the greatest enemy of the home, the church, and the state—a subtle enemy in the guise of a friend. It is robbing the church of God and retarding the coming of the Redeemer's kingdom. The M. E. minister of Pleasant Plain told me that he had a two-fold influence by his belonging to the lodge. Our eldest son marched in the Woodmen procession. So you see these things have come into our home and have saddened our hearts. But the blame lies more with these hireling shepherds than with any one else.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.

I promised to find out for you, when I returned to Yale, the number of Masons there were in college, but have been so busy that I have not had as much time to devote to that subject as I would like. However, I have found by observation that there are only four in my class, which numbers 239 members; in the class that is below me there is only one, and that class numbers 247; and there are only two more that I know of; so you see that the men who come here do not cater to that sort of thing. I am to deliver essays on the various systems of societies, and as soon as I get an Encyclopædia of Masonry that I have at my home, I am going to show the boys what Masonry is, and in that way get them not to go into it. Up to the present time I have shown the foolishness of it to quite a number, and they are disgusted and will not join the institution in consequence.

SECRETISM AND THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

PROSPECT, Ohio, April 26, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—This is a suggestive thought. Romanism and the public schools has been a very common subject in the last few years. But who has thought of secretism and the public schools? The fact that the latter subject is not so prominently before the public as the former is no argument against its importance. The argument may even run the other way. There is no such positive line of distinction between secretists and the rest of society, as there is when we speak of Roman Catholicism. Roman Catholics are known to be such, and those opposed to the Romish church are generally known as such opponents also. Those connected with secret orders are mixed up with society everywhere, like the frogs of Egypt, and it is often exceeding difficult to know who stands in such connection. They are watching every movement, and using every opportunity to advance their interests as organizations and as individuals. They have no use for those who are not in some way connected with them, least of all for those, who, driven by conscience, stand in their way and earnestly contend against them. Masons are more deeply interested in the sun-worshipers of Egypt, and the Odd-fellows in the fire worshipers of India, and the Knights of Pythias in the transmigrationists of Greece, than they are in their fellow-citizens who choose to differ with them on the subject of secret societies.

Those connected with these institutions of darkness secure for themselves almost every office of influence and financial worth in the land. The nominations are frequently made before a political caucus is held. It is but natural that the greed, which has been a distinguishing mark of these orders, should drive these hungry wolves, also, into the public schools. Under the pretence of patriotism the Grand Army of the Republic has succeeded in elevating the red, white and blue over the school buildings of the nation, and succeeds, in many places, in having the schools engage in ceremonies prescribed and approved by their lodge. Those who denounce the Decoration services, and forbid their children to participate, are looked upon as bigots and dis loyal citizens, although their consciences prevent them from doing otherwise.

The influence of secretism is felt in the whole school system. The children are now being organized and decorated with badges, that in this way they may be trained for the system of secretism. In order to do this without awakening suspicion, it is important to keep the schools under the management of secretists or of those who are in hearty sympathy with them.

In recent years it has come under our observation that order-men are endeavoring to get the public school entirely under their control. Secretists are wanted in the school-boards, and if it can be done without the danger of being found out, those not belonging to an order are going to be kept out of these boards. If they can, however, only succeed in having a controlling number, they are all right, for then they can make their plans in secret, and, having the majority, execute them when in session as a board. In this way things are manipulated, and those not in the ring often wonder at the strange results. A young lady connected with a church which antagonizes secretism, served one year as teacher. She gave excellent satisfaction. She applied for another year, but, as she afterwards learned, the fact of her connection with such a church made her in the eyes of that school-board unfit for the position of teacher; or, to put the most charitable construction upon their actions, they had some one who was more in sympathy with them for the position.

The same lady afterwards applied for a position in another county, presenting in every way first-class testimonials; but, as it afterwards leaked out, she was not wanted because she was a member of a church that uncompromisingly renounces secretism. The president of the board belonged to the same church; but the whole thing was cut and dried in secret, and in a few moments the business was settled.

Only recently a number of applications have been made under similar circumstances and with like results. What we here state occurred in two village boards and one township board. Possibly these facts will help others who have been disappointed in their efforts to secure schools to understand why they should be treated thus.

In our opposition to that dangerous foe, Romanism, let us not forget that there is another wolf after the lambs. Let us take to heart what St. Paul says:—Gal. 1:8: "But though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other Gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed." It cannot be disputed that secretists do preach another gospel, a gospel differing from the Gospel that St. Paul preached. Woe unto us if we sympathize or co-operate with them in the spreading of their un-Christian and ungodly gospel! (Rev.) D. SIMON.

ORANGEMEN.

NEW YORK CITY, April 28, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—There are some things harder to do than to stand against secret, oath-bound societies, but not many. They can, without observation, throw their forces against a man, or a particular work, and with but little fear of detection. They can manipulate conventions, religious as well as secular, and have "one of them" in the chief position. This is done much oftener than the unobserving will suppose. It is their common practice.

It is gratifying, however, to say that now and then these societies are called upon, though much against their will, to lose some of their best men. Recently an Orangeman, one who had held prominent official positions in their lodge and who was about to be put up as a candidate for Worshipful Master, left the order, "bag and baggage," and connected with a denomination which has the most uncompromising testimony against all secret societies.

This is gratifying to workers in this field of activity and encourages them not to cease their efforts, for they are not in vain. The testimony which this young man gives, and which is corroborated by others who have left the Orange lodge, is, that several rum-shops are visited on the adjourning of the lodge, and the chief officer leads the way. Theoretically, they read the Bible, and call upon the membership to do right and "to hell with the Pope." This is strong language, but probably not much stronger than fills the air of the large proportion of lodge-rooms.

It is gratifying, also, that the better element of Protestants coming from the "Green Isle," and who are in connection with the Orange lodge, find some reason for discontinuing the same, after being here a few years. But new and unsophisticated recruits to the order come across and the twenty or thirty lodges in New York live. But they cannot well endure the blaze of light from the "Sun of Righteousness." They will become less and less until they disappear; at least such in the opinion of F. M. FOSTER.

CYNOSURE OFFER!

Any of the Books sold by the N. C. A. in this paper, ordered, with subscription to the Cynosure, at one-fourth off from list price, sent postpaid.

The New Volume of Pen and Pencil Series.

WELSH PICTURES Drawn with Pen and Pencil.

By D. Lewis Jones, Morris Jones, Edward Ffoulkes, H. Elvet Lewis, D. Tyssil Evans, D. Davies and O. M. Edwards. Edited by Richard Lovett, M. A. With many Illustrations. Imperial 8vo, cloth, gilt edges, boxed..... 3.20

"'Welsh pictures' is the work of ten Welshmen, among whom illustrating the beauties of Wales has been parcelled out according to the special familiarity of each. The result is a pleasing volume."—London Times.

THE EARTHLY FOOTPRINTS OF OUR RISEN LORD, Illumined.

A continuous narrative of the Four Gospels according to The Revised Version, with introduction by Rev. John Hall, D. D. Illustrated by 113 full-page half tone re-productions. Small 4to, cloth.....net 1.50
Gilt edge, with silk book mark, boxed.....net 2.00
Full morocco, flexible, gilt edges, round corners, boxed.....net 3.75

Pictures reflecting the best in sacred art from Raphael to the present day are scattered profusely through the book.

"To many the life of the Christ will be a new book in this form. Though beyond the introduction it contains no word except what is found in the four Gospels, yet when read continuously, without the breaks necessarily made by the different stories of the four evangelists, the narrative takes on new force and lifelikeness. The very fact that this is not our usual method of reading the Word will give it a new reality."—Golden Rule.

A GIFT OF LOVE, and Loving Greetings for 365 Days.

By Rose Porter. Long 18mo. Paper cloth..... 1.00
White cloth, silver top, in box..... 1.25
Decorated silk, silver top, in box..... 1.75

"'A Gift of Love' is the work of a loving heart. It contains a text of Scripture for every day of the year with the addition of an appropriate thought in poetry of prose all bearing on the theme of love. The work must have called for a great amount of patient toil. But it has not been spent in vain, for the volume will prove a blessing to many a soul. To use it day by day for a year thoughtfully and prayerfully, must result in a rich growth in love on the part of the user. The author is well known and esteemed for her previous works' sake."—The N. Y. Observer.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE SERIES.

By Rev. F. B. Meyer, containing CHRISTIAN LIVING, THE PRESENT TENSES OF THE BLESSED LIFE, AND THE SHEPHERD PSALM. 3 vols. in box. 18mo, cloth..... 1.50
White vellum cloth, silver top, in box..... 1.75

D. L. Moody says: "Few books of recent years are better adapted to instruct and help Christians than those of this author. He is a man mighty in the scriptures, saturated with Bible facts and truths."

PRAYERS FROM THE POETS.

By Martha Harger. 16mo, two colored cloth, gilt top..... 1.00
Leatherette, boxed..... 1.50

"This volume is admirable. The Prayer are better suited to some of our moods than formal Litanies and are selected from excellent sources. The book will be a dear treasure to many hearts."—The Churchman.

KIN-DA-SHON'S WIFE.

An Alaskan Story. By Mrs. Eugene S. Willard, Home Missionary of the Presbyterian Board of America to Alaska. With illustrations. 8vo, cloth..... 1.50

"Being a close observer and in deep sympathy with the native population in their struggles towards a Christian Civilization, Mrs. Willard has gained a more intelligent knowledge of their character, of their needs and hindrances, than perhaps any other person."—Dr. Sheldon Jackson.

HEROES OF THE GOODWIN SANDS.

By Rev. Thomas Stanley Treanor. With many illustrations. 8vo, Cloth..... 1.50

"It is a book of most engrossing interest, and as stimulating as it is readable."—The Record.
"The deeds of daring are thrilling in the extreme. Suitable for the public library or for the home."—Times.

THE GREAT LONDON DAILIES.

By H. W. Massingham. Profusely illustrated. 12mo, cloth..... 1.00

Very welcome to all who like to look behind the scenes and see how the great London dailies are worked.

New Editions.

The Prayer Meeting and Its Improvement.

By Rev. LEWIS O. THOMPSON. Eighth edition, cloth, $1.25.

"Most heartily do we wish this work a wide circulation, both among pastors and people, and we hope it may do much toward the lifting of the prayer-meeting into that higher place which it ought to hold among the grand instrumentalities in the kingdom of the Master'—Congregationalist.

"We do not remember to have met with a work so suggestive, and we heartily commend it to both pastors and private members."—Baptist Weekly.

The Crisis of Missions. By Rev. ARTHUR T. PIERSON, D. D.

Cloth, $1.25; paper, 35c.

"We do not hesitate to say that this book is the most purposeful, earnest, and intelligent review of the mission work and field which has ever been given to the church."—Christian Statesman.

The Christian's Secret of a Happy Life.

By HANNAH WHITALL SMITH. One hundredth thousand. Issued in fourteen styles, from 50c. to $2.50. Send for circular.

"To commend this work would seem almost superfluous; and yet to young Christians who may not know it, we cannot refrain from saying, Buy this book, and keep it with your Bible for constant study, until you have thoroughly mastered, in your own experience, the 'secret' of which it tells. It will transform the dark days of your life, as it has transformed those of thousands before you, into days of heavenly light."—New York Evangelist.

The Topical Text Book. Fourth edition.

16 mo., cloth, 60c.

This little volume is a worker's most useful tool. It collates all Scripture passages under their topical headings, and for this reason proves far more helpful in studying a subject than the best concordance.

"I find one of the very best ways to study the Scripture is to study topically."—D. L. Moody.

Stalker's Life of Christ. Twelfth edition.

Stalker's Life of St. Paul. Fourth edition.

12 mo., cloth, each, 60c.

These works by Professor James Stalker, M. A., are unique in their compact putting of these lives into such condensed form without injurious brevity. They are being taken up as text books by Biblical classes in all parts of the country, thus proving their practical value.

Grace and Truth under Twelve Different Aspects.

By W. P. MACKAY, M. A. Paper, 35c.; cloth, 75c. Two hundred and fiftieth thousand.

This remarkable sale can only be attributed to the very practical character of this work as a guide to the inquirer and a work of helpful instruction for the immature Christian. It is of this volume Mr. D. L. Moody said: "I know of no work in print better adapted to place in the hands of the inquirer."

Notes and Suggestions for Bible Readings.

By S. R. BRIGGS. Sixtieth thousand. 8 vo, cloth. $1.00; flexible, 75c.

Edition after edition of this work has been called for until it would seem the demand must be supplied. The sales however, increase rather than otherwise.

Feathers for Arrows. By Rev. C. H. SPURGEON.

16 mo., cloth, $1.00.

Few preachers have made such effective use of pointed illustrations as the well known pastor of the great Metropolitan Tabernacle. Here he has given us a large cluster of his best with liberty to enjoy and employ.

Revell's Record for Church Treasurers.

Size No. 1, $1.50; Size No. 2, $2.00.

Popular because practical—valuable because time saving—the only record for weekly envelope system that reduces the treasurer's work to the minimum.

For sale by the

National Christian Association;

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Ill.

LODGE NOTES.

(From secret society papers.)

TRICKY ODD FELLOWS.

Some months ago Excelsior Lodge, No. 34, of Thibodeaux, received an appeal for aid from members of Northern Light Lodge, located at Fargo, in North Dakota, representing that the lodge hall, and the lodge property of almost all of the brethren, had been destroyed in a great conflagration. That lodge, although small and isolated, seldom fails to respond, according to her means, when the wail of distress is heard, and sent five dollars to the aid of her so-called afflicted brethren. It now appears that the appeal was unnecessary, that the distress was greatly exaggerated, if not false, and the lodges, that in the exercise of fraternal duties, sent donations of some six or eight thousand dollars, were deliberately made the victims of misplaced confidence. The principal part of the relief sent has been, or is about to be, used in the erection of a temple for the use of the brothers of Northern Light Lodge. Such a misappropriation of the funds of the order, wrongfully drawn from the great heart of Odd-fellowship, should not be permitted and deserves the attention of the entire brotherhood.—Uncle Silas, in the Odd fellows' Companion.

ODD FELLOW STATISTICS.

April 26, 1819, there was one lodge and five members. Dec. 31, 1892, there were 10,274 lodges and 773,431 subordinate lodge members; 2,503 encampments and 133,349 patriarchs; 630 cantons (estimated) and 26,400 chevaliers (estimated); 2,916 Rebekah lodges and 181,033 members, 96,312 of whom are sisters.—Companion.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

It is already settled that, unless the stringency of the times prevents it, the gathering of Knights and Sir Knights at the capitol of the nation in August next will be the grandest outpouring and the most brilliant array ever made by a secret order since time began. The Knights of the District, and of the city of Washington especially, are fully awake to the necessities of the occasion, and committees and subcommittees have been formed and assigned to work. It is expected that the display at Washington of mounted Knights will be one of the great attractions of the parade.—The Knight.

Hood's Cures.

In saying that Hood's Sarsaparilla cures, its proprietors make no idle or extravagant claim. The advertising of Hood's Sarsaparilla is always within the bounds of reason, because it is true; it always appeals to the sober common sense of thinking people, and it is always fully substantiated by endorsements, which, in the financial world, would be accepted without a moment's hesitation.

Read the testimonials published in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla, all from reliable, grateful people.

"I have been afflicted with neuralgia, catarrh of the head and nervous headache for a number of years and could get nothing that would do me any good until about two years ago I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. I have taken five bottles and no longer suffer with my head and the neuralgia seems to be a thing of the past."

MRS. ADA R. SMITH, Millhousen, Ind.

A Journey to Palestine

BY REV. B. CARRADINE, D. D.

—oo—

Revised and Illustrated Edition. 500 pages. Eighteen beautiful half-tone Engravings, including portrait of Author. Cloth postpaid, $1.50. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

CURES OTHERS

A TERRIBLE CASE OF DROPSY CURED.

JOHN MALLON, ESQ.

JNO. MALLON, ESQ., No. 21 McLean St., Mt. Adams, Cincinnati, O., writes: "I took sick with dropsy, lost my appetite, could not sleep, became feverish; always thirsty, lost all strength, stomach became painful, breath short and had to give up work. The best physicians in Cincinnati, failed to help me. My limbs and body were swollen to enormous size, and I was suffering terrible agony. The doctors all said I could not get well again, that I was liable to drop dead at any moment. My wife sent for the priest, to prepare me for death. While waiting for death, I remembered reading of your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and thought I would try it as a last hope. When I had taken three bottles, I was almost well. The swelling entirely disappeared and I was soon able to resume work. My health is better now than it has been in twenty-five years."

WHY NOT YOU?

$5.00 a Day and FREE Samples to AGENTS to sell the Greatest Kitchen Utensil ever invented. Retails 25 cts. 2 to 6 sold in every house. Sample, postage paid FREE. FORSHEE & McMAKIN, 190 W. 5th St., Cincinnati, O.

MY WIFE CANNOT SEE HOW YOU DO IT AND PAY FREIGHT.

$14 Buys our 2 drawer walnut or oak Improved High Arm Singer sewing machine finely finished, nickel plated, adapted to light and heavy work; guaranteed for 10 Years; with Automatic Bobbin Winder, Self-Threading Cylinder Shuttle, Self-Setting Needle and a complete set of Steel Attachments; shipped any where on 30 Day's Trial. No money required in advance. 75,000 now in use. World's Fair Medal awarded machine and attachments. Buy from factory and save dealer's and agent's profits. FREE Cut This Out and send to-day for machine or large free catalogue, testimonials and Glimpses of the World's Fair. OXFORD MFG. CO. 342 Wabash Ave. CHICAGO, ILL.

WHEATON COLLEGE,

WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women.

SPRING TERM BEGINS TUESDAY, APRIL 3RD.

ENROLLMENT BEGINS MONDAY, APRIL 2ND.

For Catalogue, address

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

IF YOU WANT WORK

that is pleasant and profitable, send us your address immediately. We teach men and women how to earn from $5 per day to $5,000 per year without having had previous experience, and furnish the employment at which they can make that amount. Capital unnecessary. A trial will cost you nothing. Write to-day and address,

E. C. ALLEN & CO.,
Box 1001. Augusta, Me.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained, and all Patent business conducted for Moderate Fees.

Our Office is Opposite U. S. Patent Office, and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A Pamphlet, "How to Obtain Patents," with names of actual clients in your State, county, or town, sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.
Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

The St. Louis Sermon.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

An Address by Rev. B. Carradine D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."

A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover.

Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Colver on Masonry.
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

NORTHERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
Nathan Callender Montdale Pa.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
W. M. Love, Osceola, Mo.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Thompson, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
D. A. Richards, Brighton, Mich.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill.

Disloyal SECRET OATHS

ADDRESS OF

JOSEPH COOK,

OF BOSTON,

AT THE

Conference of Christians

CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate. By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter)
—AND OFFICE OF—
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. A. J. Gordon D.D. Boston, Mass.

VICE PRESIDENT—Charles A. Blanchard, President Wheaton College Ill.

GEN'L SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I. Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

REC. SECRETARY—Amos Dresser, Jr. Wheaton, Ill., Box 367.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E Whipple, E. R. Worrell, Edgar B. Wylie W. M. Howie, H. F. Kletzing.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., J. A. Conant; Vice-president, S. C. Kimball; Sec'y, D. B. Gunn.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. R. W. Chesnut Marissa; Sec., Rev. J. R. Wylie, Coulterville; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., Rev. J. A. Greer, Columbus City; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton; Treas., Rev. L. Mendenhall, Fairfield.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., ——, ——, ——, Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom, Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morrill St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry; Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

OREGON.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dillon, D.D., Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan, Beaver; Treas., Edwin P Sellew, Philadelphia.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poynette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas., J W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

HENRY M. HUGUNIN - - - - Editor.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, MAY 10, 1894.

The Annual Meeting of the National Christian Association will occur on Wednesday, May 16, 1894, at 10:30 A. M., in Carpenter building, 221 West Madison street, Chicago, Ill., for the election of officers and the transaction of other important business. REV. A. J. GORDON, Pres.
AMOS DRESSER, JR., Sec'y.

THE BOUNDS OF HUMAN RESEARCH.

The student of nature, carefully examining the causes, progress and results of intricate phenomena, is frequently met by manifestations of opposition that bring his researches to a sudden halt. This is one of the principal difficulties encountered in the prosecution of scientific investigation. Certain rules have been laid down by the learned for conducting the study of abstruse subjects, as systematic as the primus, secundus, tertius, et ergo of the logician, and often with surprising success in unveiling mysteries that have hitherto surrounded them; but often, even under the most favorable circumstances, and when following the most judicious methods of research, some particular phenomenon will baffle the most discriminating mind.

There is one cause—omitting the discussion of all minor hindrances—to which these impediments may be traced. The Creator wisely does not take mankind into his confidence and reveal to even the most studious all the arcana of his designs or system of operation. Much can be accomplished by mental effort in what may be styled the field of the knowable; and we are justly astonished when we realize to what extent men have analyzed the material facts relating to the mysteries of nature. But the fiat of the Almighty has gone forth to human intellect, as well as to the seas that he has made—"Thus far mayst thou go, and no farther." To press a mystery too far is to reach the borders of the unknowable, the unanswerable, and the unattainable, and the result is confusion frequently merging into insanity, if the mind persists in trespassing upon the domain of the Deity. Men of the most brilliant intellects stand aghast when confronted with phenomena that lie beyond their powers, and confess how little they have learned with all their assiduity. This is the humility of genuine wisdom. The charlatan alone is satisfied that he has gained the heights of scientific research.

THE COXEY FIASCO.

Leaving the details of the movements of the several branches of the so-called "Army of the Commonweal," bossed by Coxey, Kelly & Co., to the daily press, we commend the view taken of it by our Washington letter in to-day's issue of the Cynosure, and the following, from the Wheaton College Record, both of which, we cannot doubt, fairly indicate the character and failure of this new tom-foolery:

> The Coxey armies are moving from various points of our country toward Washington. They propose a personal petition to Congress to issue money, build roads, etc. Nine out of ten of them voted for the political parties which are destroying the nation. They are troubled by their own work. If men will stop voting for demagogues who talk tariff and silver while they license grog-shops and wink at prostitution and gambling, matters will right themselves. It is astounding that the business men of the country can tolerate the tariff-tinkers for one hour. It is more so that Christian men do not refuse their votes to the authorities who permit all the evils which the church is organized to renounce.

It seems as though the daily newspapers, the Associated Press and other newsmongers have all along placed too high an estimate upon this movement as a political factor. It is the outgrowth of unrest, idleness, and the desire to obtain something for nothing that pervades the animal man when ignorantly searching for a panacea for the evils which beset our race. It is a disorder that afflicts the lazy and ignorant, and is more likely to result in crime and poverty than in virtue and prosperity. It is a subversion of the laws of supply and demand. The demand for honest labor is very great, and very few who are able and willing to work faithfully need go long without employment and a livelihood. But the man who pays his hard-earned stipend to a labor-lodge as dues, and binds himself in a blind obedience to the mandates of the lodge, is a slave. His private judgment, his manhood, his abilities, are all perverted to the use of the lodge, without whose consent he may not earn a penny for months, although his family should starve. Then he is ready to be beguiled by the first politician who would convince him of the "political wrongs" under which he suffers—phantoms that exist only in the brains of wily schemers or fanatics. He does not stop to reason for himself, but joins any movement that does not involve manual labor and promises to provide him with a square meal and a can of beer a day.

Such fellows as Coxey, Kelly & Co., know how to fool these victims of ignorance, finding in them the material for their own purposes, in either an oath-bound secret fraternity or a half-clad, half-starved "army" of tramps, ready "for treasons, strategems and spoils.

These collections of idle fellows are dangerous, inasmuch as their condition easily tempts them to rob and steal from those who are so unfortunate as to live along their lines of march. It is in this light that the voluntary charity extended to them on their way to the capital is to be regarded as a safeguard against robbery.

CLAN-NA-GAEL AND MASONRY.

Last Friday, the anniversary of the murder of Dr. Patrick H. Cronin, was celebrated by a number of his personal friends, who visited his grave in Calvary Cemetery and decorated it with flowers. Since the previous anniversary of this event, has occurred the death of LeCaron, the British spy, who became the unsuspected "brother" of the Doctor in the murderous Clan-na-Gael Camp 20, in which the assassination of Cronin was devised, and by which it was accomplished. The event also gains new interest from the recent publication of LeCaron's Autobiography, in which the character of the Clan, and the circumstances leading to the assassination, are graphically described.

Between Le Caron's Autobiography and John Devoy's review of Le Caron's acts, some interesting developments concerning the Clan-na Gael have been made public.

Le Caron was an Englishman. His real name was Thomas Willis Beach. When he became a spy upon the Fenians, the Irish Nationalists, the Clan na-Gael, and the Irish Land League, he laid aside his name and nationality and became Major Le Caron, the friend of Ireland, and entered upon a course of hypocrisy and falsehood that has never yet been separated from the profession of a spy or detective.

Le Caron was shrewd. He carried a presence, a spirit, a traction, that deceived all the enemies of Great Britain, and admitted him freely to their councils and secret lodges. John Devoy, who is heralded abroad as a sterling Irish patriot, acknowledges that Le Caron fooled him as he fooled others. "I never suspected him of being a British spy, but I never liked or trusted him." Possibly the solution of the antipathy of Dr. Cronin and Devoy to Le Caron might be traced to the fact that they were opposed to the "triangle" policy of the Clan-na Gael, while the spy supported it. But the wily Englishman, nevertheless, became a Clan-na-Gael Center, a Fenian commander and a Land-League orator, while he never for one moment flinched in his duty to the sovereignty by which he was employed. John Devoy's knowledge of the spy's real character seems never to have been confirmed in his mind until Le Caron was dead.

With all Le Caron's success among the friends of Ireland, most of whom became his friends, Devoy says that Dr. P. H. Cronin did not like the spy, and opposed his admission as a member of the "Union" Irish convention of 1888, because "he was not of Irish birth or lineage." But even Dr. Cronin did not seem to suspect Le Caron as a British spy. Indeed, Devoy says: "The senior guardian of the Braidwood camp (Le Caron) was implicitly trusted to the last by the men who managed the dynamite policy, and was able to bring with him to England the very latest news of their most secret action."

One interesting feature in Le Caron's connection with the Clan-na-Gael is described by Le Caron himself (Autobiography, pp. 81, 82), in the following language:

> "Merging almost all other societies in itself, the Clan, now known as the V. C. or United Brotherhood, established subordinate bodies or 'Camps,' as they were called, almost simultaneously in all the leading centres of the United States Secrecy was the text preached in every direction Every member was bound by the most solemn of oaths to keep secret all knowledge of the order and its proceedings which might come to him, under penalty of death. A Masonic form of ritual was adopted; grips, passwords, signs, and terrorizing penalties were decided upon; and all the pomp and circumstance of mystery so dear to the Irish heart and so effective in such a conspiracy were called to the aid of those who now inculcated this new doctrine.....The ritual and forms of initiation were framed entirely upon Masonic precedent; and, to the vast majority of the members of the Clan, the statement will come no doubt as a great surprise that the much-vaunted secret forms of the Masonic order need be secret to them no longer, inasmuch as that, when being admitted to a Clan-na-Gael club, they were going through the same forms and ceremonies as attached themselves to that great source of mystery and wonderment in the eyes of the non elect, the Masonic brotherhood. I have often laughed to myself at the surprise shown by some Masons on the occasion of their initiation to Clan-na-Gael clubs—for there are Masons in the Clan—at being brought once more into contact with the familiar procedure. One great feature of similarity exists between the two ceremonies. In both, the candidate is impressed with a deep sense of awe and respect, to learn subsequently that nothing very mysterious or wonderful is to come within his knowledge."

Le Caron remained in the Clan-na-Gael until 1884, when a dispute arose in the fraternity, which led to its division—part of the membership joining the Alex. Sullivan wing, and others uniting their fortunes with Devoy, after the latter and his adherents had been expelled. The Sullivan faction was the strongest in point of numbers, and, following his usual rule, Le Caron joined the majority, which organized as the U. S. An important change in this faction regarded the number and title of the governing body, and thus originated the celebrated "Triangle," composed of three members, in whom centered the executive power of the organization. The name—triangle—was taken from the triangular sign which was used by way of cipher signatures on all documents coming from headquarters.

The fight between the two factions of the Clan-na-Gael raged bitterly, and the oath of the U. S. was so drawn as to exclude members of any other Irish revolutionary body, thereby denying the right of Devoy or any other person to belong to both organizations.

Money collected under the former united organization for revolutionary purposes had disappeared. The records had also been burned and no documentary evidence remained that would allow of any investigation. Loud and sweeping charges were made by Devoy and his adherents against the Triangle for misappropriations of funds, and other like accusations. "None," writes Le Caron, "was more prominent in leading the attack on Sullivan and his colleagues than Dr. Cronin....Indeed, from this point onwards, almost down to the end of 1888, the history of the Clan-na-Gael is the history of the dispute between Cronin and Sullivan."

The quarrel waxed fiercer and fiercer. Finally "Cronin, filled with fury, returned to his camp and made a series of sweeping charges against the Triangle. In return charges were prepared against him of being a traitor, liar, etc.....A trial-committee, of which I was one, was appointed, and by it Cronin was promptly found gullty and formally expelled."

Immediately, however, Dr. Cronin joined the Devoy faction and became one of its executive officers.

This paved the way to his subsequent murder.

Le Caron's testimony of the Triangle, we think, may readily be accepted as the truth.

MASONIC DEMOCRACY AND CHRISTIANITY.

John Cuckson writes in the May number of the Voice of Masonry: "Not only is Masonry democratic, but I venture to say that Masonry is, in the very best and broadest and highest sense of the word, thoroughly Christian." Chase's Digest of Masonic Law tells a different story: "A Grand Lodge is the supreme Masonic authority within its jurisdiction. Its powers are threefold: legislative, judicial and executive. In its legislative capacity it has the power of enacting laws and regulations for the government of the craft, and of altering, repealing and abrogating them. In its judicial capacity it has the power of investigating, regulating and deciding all matters relative to the craft or to particular lodges, or to individual Masons, which it may exercise, either of itself or by such delegated authority as it may appoint. In its executive capacity, it has the power of erasing lodges and expelling brethren from the craft." And Mackey's Masonic Lexicon tells us: "A Grand Lodge is invested with power and authority over all the craft within its jurisdiction. It is the Supreme Court of Appeal, in all Masonic cases, and to its decrees unlimited obedience must be paid, by every lodge and every Mason situated within its control. The government of Grand Lodges is, therefore, completely despotic. While a Grand Lodge exists, its edicts must be respected and obeyed without examination by its subordinate lodges. Yet, should a Grand Lodge decree wrongfully or contrary to the ancient constitutions, though there be no redress for its subordinates, the Grand Lodges in other States may declare its proceedings irregular."

As for the second part of Mr. Cuckson's statement, referring to the thorough Christianity of Masonry, it is completely refuted by Mackey's Encyclopædia of Freemasonry, although we readily admit (which many Masons deny) that it is a religious institution: "Freemasonry is not Christianity, nor a substitute for it" (page 641). Dr. Mackey also tells us why Masonry rejects Christianity: (In the lodge) "the precepts of Jesus could not have been made obligatory on a Jew; a Christian would have denied the sanctions of the Koran; a Mohammedan would have rejected the law of Moses, and a disciple of Zoroaster would have turned from all to the teachings of his Zend-Avesta. The universal law of nature .... is therefore the only law suited in every respect to be adopted as the Masonic code." In Romans 3: 19, 20 we find the Scripture estimate of this law as a religion. So far from Masonry having any affiliation with Christianity, it should be remembered that it is only a revival of heathen worship, or "mysteries," and that "the natural man" (who is not a Christian, because he follows a law of nature) "receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, for they are foolishness unto him." That is the real difference between Masonry and Christianity. There is no affinity between them.

—Among esteemed visitors at the approaching Annual Meeting of the N. C. A., we are to have (D. V.) the pleasure of greeting Rev. M. A. Gault, of Bloomington, Ind., our old-time friend and co-worker. He will be heartily welcomed.

—Is there any city, outside of New York and Chicago, where it is necessary for a grand jury to return twelve indictments against election judges and clerks for permitting fraudulent balloting? That was last week's record here, and it is not creditable to us.

—The law of Illinois forbidding the sale of railroad tickets by "scalpers," or unauthorized brokers, has been declared constitutional by the State Supreme Court. The decision is important to all travelers, as it will undoubtedly cause a revolution in passenger traffic throughout the State.

—It stands on record in the Chicago papers that a Mason has been expelled from a Masonic lodge for gambling. Probably the world would never have known anything of it, if the money which he wasted in this manner had not belonged to the lodge. It wasn't a very brotherly act, to be sure.

—A Farmers' Alliance paper in Texas gravely remarks that "Manufacturers are closing down all over the country, throwing additional men out of employment." To us, up North, it looks as if the secret, tyrannical labor-unions were closing up manufactories all over the country, and that the manufacturers have very little to say about it.

—Important news comes from Africa to the effect that Kabarega, the native king of Unyora, has been defeated by the British-African expedition. This event is considered a death-blow to the inhuman slave trade which has so long prevailed on the African coast. Should it prove true, it is cause for great rejoicing in all civilized nations.

—In the proceedings of the eightieth annual communication of the Grand Lodge of Tennessee, it is stated that "Rev. Sam P. Jones, a Royal Arch Mason, invited the members of the Grand Lodge to attend his meeting," etc. Is this revivalist Jones the predecessor of Rev. Sam Small? On his own statement, the latter is not a Mason. Sam Jones may be.

—Among recent deaths in the United Presbyterian church is that of Rev. Dr. R. A. McAyeal, a close friend of our reform, and a participant in one of our Eastern conventions, a year or two ago. The United Presbyterian truly says that "in the death of such men the church sustains a great loss." And so does the world in which they labor. But we are assured that such men find blessed rest in the world to come.

—In answer to an inquiry concerning the obligation imposed upon the Jesuits, we would say it is published in full in a pamphlet entitled "Secret Instructions of the Jesuits," with much other interesting matter connected with them. Sent by mail from this office to any address for thirty cents.

—The Voice of Masonry quotes the Cynosure as saying: "Masonry is now the ruling power in Italy," and adds: "If pure Masonry were the ruling power everywhere, earth would indeed be blessed." Yet Roman Catholic papers assure us that the government of Italy is one of the most detestable on the globe—if not the very worst in existence anywhere.

—From information recently made public, it would seem that the A. P. A. declares itself opposed to the practices of ex-Roman Catholic priests who travel and revile the religion of the Church of Rome. In the Supreme Council of the order at DesMoines, Iowa, last week, the judiciary board refused to consider a memorial asking that this declaration be changed. The action of the board indicates that the purposes of the order are political, not sectarian.

—Freemasonry, boiled down to the Masonic standard, is a system founded only on "the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man." The phrase is too indefinite, since it lacks the only element that can render these two relationships holy and complete—even Jesus Christ, the Son of God, the only mediator between God and man, without whom all religion is vain, since men can only come to God in heaven by him, and without whom all men must remain sinners forever.

—John Jay, son of William Jay, and grandson of the distinguished Revolutionary statesman and jurist, has just died in New York, in his seventy-seventh year. He seems to have been a worthy representative of his family. His father was a noted philanthropist, devoted to temperance, anti-slavery, and universal peace reforms, and the son also took a prominent part in the anti-slavery agitation. As a public man he occupied leading positions, and served as United States Minister to Austria from 1869 to 1875.

—Our friends in Iowa should not forget the revival of our work in that State, which is (D. V.) to be inaugurated at Northwood, Worth county, on the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Northern railroad, on Monday evening next, May 14, by Rev. William Fenton, with an anti-secrecy lecture. That discourse will be the first of a series of six on this subject, and the excellent reputation of the speaker should secure him full houses on each evening. Friends of the lodge will find him an intelligent opponent of the secret system.

—Recent foreign intelligence gives color to the common taunt, that "Home-Rule" is "Rome-rule" for Ireland. Almost to a man the Protestant ministers in that country are averse to it. Out of seven hundred Presbyterian clergymen, only five favor it; as do, also, three out of 200 Wesleyans; while Congregationalists, Primitive Methodists, Baptists, Unitarians and Friends all oppose it. In the United States the great mass of the friends of Home-Rule for Ireland is composed of Irish Roman Catholics in various secret fraternities.

—This week is remarkable in England for the annual meeting of the British Women's Temperance Association, of which Lady Henry Somerset is the head. Monday was devoted to her reception of the assembled delegates; Tuesday, to devotional exercises and addresses; Wednesday and Thursday, to the work of the council. These meetings are held in Holborn Town Hall, with the galleries thrown open to the public. A grand evening demonstration is appointed at Queen's Hall. American friends of temperance are interested in these meetings.

—Judge William W. Farwell, for a number of years attorney for the National Christian Association, died in this city April 30, aged 77 years. As a lawyer he obtained honor and just preferment, serving for years in the Circuit Court of Cook county, and for fourteen years as professor of equity jurisprudence, pleading and practice in the Union College of Law. From his youth, up to the issue of Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation, he was an ardent Abolitionist, and throughout his life he bore a professional and social character of which his children may be justly proud. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. E. P. Goodwin, of the First Congregational church, of which Judge Farwell had been an active and influential member ever since he became a resident of Chicago.

—A New York newspaper "thinks it safe to assert that three-fourths of the Protestant people and clergy are in favor of taxation of church property and the other fourth would be in favor were they intelligently informed on the matter. Not only are they in favor of taxation on the consistent ground of opposition to a state-supported church, but on the ground that if the people who build the enormous and costly churches had to pay taxes on them, they would build more in consonance with the spirit of Christianity, and would not erect palaces from which the poor are excluded, but would build several smaller churches where most needed, instead of building one great structure in a fashionable quarter." No better arguments in favor of the proposed reformation have been advanced, and they are sufficient to promote some hard thinking on this subject.

—In the Masonic lodge, when the foresworn initiate is to be restored to light, he can only receive it at the hands of the Master, who comes from the East to bestow this great Masonic blessing upon the half-dressed and haltered neophyte. We are reminded of this incident by an article in the New York Weekly Witness of May 2 (page 9) showing the boastfulness of the Hindoo priests of India over the introduction and flattering reception of their religion at the World's Fair Parliament of Religions. The writer (Rev. G. W. Morrison) remarks in this connection: "It must be a great comfort to the promoters of the Parliament to think that through their efforts spiritual truth is at last beginning to break in from India to America.....Fortunate America, that at last is about to find light 'from the East.'" It was, in point of sublimity, a "shock of enlightenment" almost equalling that produced by the Masonic three tallow-dips when the hoodwink is removed and all the "boys" clap their hands.

REFORM NEWS (Continued from 5th page.)

the rum-traffic. We had only a fair congregation, owing to the rain. The next night I was almost completely boycotted, not more than two dozen persons showing themselves.

One member of the A. O. U. W. become so heated up that he could stand no more, and fled.

My hope is that good was accomplished for the few young men who were present. On this occasion I showed a letter received by another brother at another place—printed, so as to not detect the hand-writing—reading as follows, "You have spouted here long enough. You can preach here Saturday night, if you show up. After that, death shall be your penalty. Take warning. VIGILANTES." On the letter were pictured a man hanging to a limb, the skull and cross-bones, a cleaver and a revolver. The best people of Perrydale came forward, examined the letter, and remarked, "I thought this was a free country." What a mistake! How many in this fair land have sold their freedom and are now the veritable slaves of secret orders!

I distributed some literature, secured one subscription to the Cynosure, and left them to their reflections.

I went on Saturday to Bellevue, where, on Sunday, I preached the funeral sermon of Mrs. Davis, who died Jan. 31, at which time the telegram failed to reach me in time to attend the funeral.

I spoke last night at Sheridan to three hundred people. At this place I am at present writing. I am billed to speak here two nights. It has been predicted that I will meet with mob violence here on Tuesday night, as it is a hotbed of lodges. I have no fears. I noticed groups on the streets this morning discussing how it is that "an intelligent man like Mr. W., who preached last night, can be opposed to secret orders." Shall I consider that a compliment?

Well, after Tuesday night, May 1, 1894, (D. V.), their doubts will be dispelled, or their curiosity gratified.

P. B. WILLIAMS.

THE HOME.

A SERMON IN RHYME.

If you have a friend worth loving,
  Love him. Yes, and let him know
That you love him, ere life's evening
  Tinge his brow with sunset glow.
Why should good words ne'er be said
Of a friend—till he is dead?

If you hear a song that thrills you,
  Sung by any child of song,
Praise it. Do not let the singer
  Wait deserved praises long.
Why should one who thrills your heart
Lack the joy you may impart?

If you hear a prayer that moves you
  By its humble, pleading tone,
Join it. Do not let the seeker
  Bow before his God alone.
Why should not your brother share
The strength of "two or three" in prayer?

If you see the hot tears falling
  From a brother's weeping eyes,
Share them; and by kindly sharing
  Own your kinship with the skies.
Why should any one be glad
When a brother's heart is sad?

If a silvery laugh goes rippling
  Through the sunshine on his face,
Share it. 'Tis the wise man's saying—
  For both grief and joy a place.
There's health and goodness in the mirth
In which an honest laugh has birth.

If your work is made more easy
  By a friendly, helping hand,
Say so. Speak out brave and truly
  Ere the darkness veil the land.
Should a brother workman dear
Falter for a word of cheer?

Scatter thus your seeds of kindness,
  All enriching as you go—
Leave them. Trust the Harvest Giver,
  He will make each seed to grow.
So, until its happy end,
Your life shall never lack a friend.

—Alice Cary.

THE SCOTCH COVENANTERS.

Ettrick Shepherd.—.....To my ears, sir, the most shocking epithet in language is—Apostate. Soon as you hear it, you see a man selling his soul to the devil.....I look to the mountains, Mr. North, and there they stand in a glorious gloom, for the sun is struggling with a thunder-cloud, and, facing him, a faint and fast-brightening rainbow. The ancient spirit of Scotland comes on me from the sky, and the soul within me re-swears in silence the oath of the Covenant. There they are—the Covenanters—all gathered together, not in fear and trembling, but with Bibles in their bosoms, and swords by their sides, in a glen deep as the sea, and still as death, but for the sound of a stream and the cry of an eagle.

"Let us sing to the praise and glory of God, the one hundredth Psalm," quoth a loud, clear voice, though it be the voice of an old man; and up to heaven holds he his strong, withered hands, and in the gracious winds of heaven are flying abroad his gray hairs, or say, rather, white as the silver or snow. The eagle and the stream are silent, and the heavens and the earth are brought close together by that triumphing Psalm. Aye, the clouds cease their sailing, and lie still; the mountains bow their heads; and the crags, do they not seem to listen, as in that remote place the hour of the delighted day is filled with a holy hymn to the Lord God of Israel?

Oh, if there should be sitting there—even in that congregation, on which, like God's own eye looketh down the meridian sun,.....an Apostate!

Mr. North.—The thought is terrible.

Ettrick Shepherd.—But no, no, no! See that bonny, blue-eyed, rosy-cheeked, golden-haired lassie—only a thought paler than usual—sweet lily that she is—half sitting, half lying on the green-sward, as she leans on the knee of her stalwart grandfather—for the sermon's begun, and all eyes are fastened on the preacher—look at her till your heart melts as if she were your own, and God had given you that beautiful wee image of her sainted mother, and tell me if you think that all the tortures that cruelty could devise to inflict would ever wring from those sweet lips one word of abjuration of the faith in which the flower is growing up among the dew-drops of her native hills?

Mr. North.—Never—never—never!

Ettrick Shepherd.—She proved it, sir, in death. Tied to a stake on the sea-sands she stood; and first she heard, and then she saw, the white roaring of the tide. But the smile forsook not her face; it brightened her eye when the water reached her knee; calmer and calmer was her voice of prayer, as it beat against her bonny breast; no shriek when a wave closed her lips forever; and methinks, sir—for ages on ages have lapsed away since that martyrdom, and therefore imagination may without blame dally with grief—methinks, sir, that as her golden head disappeared, 'twas like a star sinking in the sea! .....When I think on these things—in olden times the produce of the common day—and look around me now, I could wish to close my eye in the darkness of death; for, dearly as I love it, still, alas! alas! I am ashamed of my country. —Nostes Ambrosianæ.

THE LOST BOY.

One Sunday Dwight L. Moody, having hired the big circus tent near the Columbian Exposition in Chicago, preached there in the morning to many thousands of saints and sinners, from the text, "The Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost." After he had finished, a little boy with handsome face and form was brought to the platform by an officer, who said he had found him wandering in the crowd, evidently lost. Mr. Moody took the little fellow in his arms and, standing before the great throng, asked the people to look at the lost child.

"This boy has a father who is no doubt at this moment looking for him with anxious heart," said the preacher. "The father is more anxious to find his boy than his boy is to be found. It is just so with our heavenly Father. He is seeking us to-day: seeking us with unspeakable solicitude. For long years he has been following you, oh, sinner; he is following you still. He is calling to you to-day."

At this instant a man with blanched face and excited eye was seen elbowing his way toward the platform. As he reached it the little boy saw him and, running quickly over the platform, threw himself into his father's outstretched arms. The multitude witnessed the scene with breathless attention, and then broke out into a mighty cheer.

"Thus," cried Mr. Moody, "will God receive you if you will only run to him to-day. 'The Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost.'"

The impression made by the incident was very great, and as the people filed out many eyes were filled with tears. God providentially gave to the preacher a most vivid object-lesson with which to illustrate and enforce his message.—Epworth Herald.

MISS HAVERGAL'S SECRET.

Although thousands throughout this broad land sing with delight the sweet songs and hymns of this sainted minstrel, few probably are familiar with the record of her life on earth—how she walked by faith, hand in hand with her blessed Master, in blessed communion with the heaven-life, so that her songs were but the breathings of her own soul, the manifestation of the hidden life within.

May our divine Lord bless this meditation as we turn aside from the rugged path of life, and resting awhile our weary selves upon the promises, endeavor to quicken our own spiritual life, and cause the flame of devotion upon the altars of our own hearts to burn more brightly, because touched by a divine spark from the altar of another life, and fanned by the Spirit's breath from the sacred incense of that other life, "hid with Christ in God."

"It is impossible," a recent writer states, "to epitomize a life so full of courage, faith, sympathy for others, forgetfulness of self, industry and intense devotion, as this of that minister's daughter seems to us who judge it as a whole. She wrote so many books, and sent so many letters, it was marvellous. And God blessed everything she did."

The very name of Havergal is an inspiration. It is supposed to have been derived from "heavergill," the heaving or rising of the brook or gill. Our own Whittier, when paying tribute of grateful affection to the life of another, aptly portrays the influence of the life we are now considering.

"For all her quiet life flowed on,
  As meadow streamlets flow,
Where fresher green reveals alone
  The noiseless ways they go."

The parents of Miss Havergal were both persons of deep piety. Her father, Rev. Wm. H. Havergal, has bequeathed a rich legacy of hymnology and sacred music to the church. Her mother, when sweetly falling "asleep in Jesus," taught little Frances the prayer which became the mainspring o her after life, "O Lord, prepare me for all thou art preparing for me."

Little Frances, with her golden hair, dancing eyes, buoyant temperament, agile movements and winning ways, was indeed a "very fairy-like creature." She was full of fun and frolic, sometimes getting into mischief like other children, but a very clever scholar. One might also infer that she was a good deal of a romp, from the fact that her father's pet name for her was his "Little Quicksilver."

We could know but little of her early life were it not for her autobiography written about 1859. This autobiography was written for perusal by her sister Maria only in case of her own death. It has but recently been made public, in order, her sister writes, "that the shadows on her early pathway may reveal more clearly by contrast the light which afterward shone more and more unto the perfect day."

Frances in this autobiography writes as follows: "Up to the time I was six years old I have no remembrance of any religious ideas whatever..... I think I had a far more vivid sense of the beauty of nature as a little child than I have even now (1859), and its power over me was greater than one could imagine." Astley rectory lay, ivy-clad, glistening like an emerald gem in the lap of the velvet hills—no wonder that the beauties of God's universe should have left their impress on her childhood. She continues: "But I did not feel happy in my very enjoyment; I wanted more. I do not think I was eight when I hit upon Cowper's lines, ending:

"'My Father made them all!'"

A recent biographer writes: "Lofty and unusual attainments in spiritual life sometimes discourage us, they so cast our own experiences in the shadow. It may be encouraging to know that Miss Havergal did not begin her Christian life on the gilded mountain tops of unbroken peace, on which we see her in later years."

"I shall know some day," she writes, "why my Father left me to walk thus alone in my early childhood." Though her grief at her mother's death, which occurred July 5, 1848, was very deep, she persistently endeavored to conceal it. "If anything else occupied my attention," she writes, "I had a happy faculty of forgetting everything else for a moment. And thus it happened that a merry laugh or a sudden light-heeled scamper upstairs and downstairs led others to think I had not many sad thoughts, whereas not a minute before my little heart was heavy and sad."

In the summer of 1850, Miss Havergal went to school with a Mrs. Teed. Before her departure her sister Ellen engaged her in conversation, the puport of which Miss Havergal records as follows:

"She spoke of God's love and of how pleasant and sweet a thing it was to love him who first loved us. I could not stand it, and for the first time for five years I spoke out: 'I can't love God yet, Nellie,' was all I said, but I felt a great deal more."

Little does the world ever know of the hidden life and of the conflicts fought, lost or won, in the heart of childhood.

Miss Havergal's life-long friend, Elizabeth Clay, writes of this period as follows: "For some years she had not the settled peace and joy in the Lord which were so characteristic of her after-life; she seemed to seek in vain for an assurance of salvation. In later years her impression was that her trying and painful early experience was permitted, partly that it might be evident that her after joy had nothing to do with her naturally happy, buoyant temperament."

It was not long now, ere the light broke upon her. It was at the school of Mrs. Teed, in sweet intercourse with her loved teachers and companions, that she began to trust in her Redeemer. In February, 1851, we find the following recorded in her autobiography:

"I feel that the beginning of this year (1851) ought to be marked as the commencement of a new life chapter, because it was then for the first time I ever knew what it was to have one gleam of hope or trust in Christ, or one spark of conscious faith.....Having broken the ice by speaking on sacred things with a few at Belmont, it was the less difficult to do so again, and before long I had made a confidante of Miss Cooke..... At last one evening (I remember it was twilight) I sat on the drawing-room sofa alone with her, and told her again how I longed to know that I was forgiven." Her friend said to her: "'Why cannot you trust yourself to your Saviour at once? Supposing that now, at this moment, Christ were to come in the clouds of heaven, and take up his redeemed, could you not trust him? Would not his call, his presence be enough for you? Could you not commit your soul to him, to your Saviour, Jesus?' Then came a flash of hope across me which made me feel literally breathless. I remember how my heart beat. 'I could, surely,' was my response; and I left her suddenly and ran away upstairs to think it out." And then she completes the record of this triumph of faith over which in gladdest strain the heavenly hosts rejoiced, as follows: "Then and there I committed my soul to the Saviour, I do not mean to say without any trembling or fear, but I did—and earth and heaven seemed bright from that moment. I did trust the Lord Jesus."—N. Y. Observer.

"WHAT IF WE HAD GONE BACK!"

A young clergyman and his brother, when on a tour through Switzerland, prepared to ascend a certain mountain that they might enjoy that rare privilege of a lifetime—a sunrise on the Alps.

How easy it seemed as they stood gazing upward from the valley, with setting sun flinging a robe of glory over the mountain side, softening each rugged feature and transforming every rugged boulder into a thing of beauty. About midnight they commenced the ascent of the mountain, and for a time all was well. But when about half way up the mountain side the moon went down and darkness fell over them. Steeper and more difficult grew the ascent, and having lost their way, they ofttimes halted in terror, as they found only a step between them and eternity, while the roar of a distant avalanche perhaps echoed in their startled ears, or a rock disturbed from its delicate equilibrium dashed by them in its career of mad destruction.

Several times, footsore, weary and awe-stricken, they were on the point of turning back; but, ah! the thought of sunrise on the Alps!

An so they pressed on and upward, till the rough and dangerous way lay all behind them, and they stood at last upon the summit in time to behold the sun slowly rising above the eastern peaks. Almost the whole of Switzerland, that earthly paradise, lay spread out before their enraptured vision, and far off like a crowning glory to the scene appeared Monte Rosa, wrapped in her funeral robes of white, stained with crimson and crowned with gold.

Like a dream faded away the remembrance of the weary night; what weariness or danger to the rapture of such an hour as they stood and whispered to each other in awed voices, "What if we had gone back!"

Dear friend, are you struggling up the mountain side of life in the darkness of night, the sun of prosperity gone down in disappointment, and even the stars of hope obscured by foreboding clouds? Has misfortune, sickness and death, like an Alpine avalanche, swept from you all that was dearest in this life, and left you to pursue your journey, stricken and alone? Have you well-nigh lost your way while treading the devious paths of life, and are you anxiously sending up the prayer, "Lead me in a plain path?"

O friend, press forward for the joy that is set before you. "Sorrow may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning." And when you and I have reached the summit of the "high eternal hills," and have beheld spread out before us the "sweet fields" of that fair land which hath no need of the sun to lighten it, and have begun to realize something of that "exceeding great and eternal weight of glory," of which the apostle speaks, as we catch the gleam of sunrise on the pearly gates and jeweled foundations of the holy Jerusalem—we shall wonder that we could ever have cast one backward glance, and one thought will fill our enraptured souls: "What if we had gone back!"

"When the paths of prayer and duty
And affliction all are trod,
And we wake to see the beauty
Of our Saviour and our God,
Then his rest will be the sweeter,
As we think of weary ways,
And his light will be the clearer
As we muse on cloudy days."

—Lena G. Every, in Michigan Christian Advocate.

THE PENITENT.

Matthew xviii: 11.

'Tis not for me. I may not come
And kneel before that holy shrine;
I cannot pray; my lips were dumb
If I should seek His face divine.
That shrine the cross, he thereon died;
But not for me 'twas sanctified!

'Tis not for me! My soul so stained
Can find no lasting refuge there!
Mercy, some souls thereat have gained
When pleading in repentant prayer.
So steeped in guilt, I feel there'd be Naught of forgiveness proffered me!

* * * * * * *

It is for me! Oh, blessed word!
How rich the promise which Christ gave;
The vilest sinners, he averred,
He came into the world to save;
My soul so deeply dyed in sin,
He by his grace there sought to win.

It is for me! Through mercy's smile
He drew me to his feet in prayer,
And pardon granted me, the while
I sought forgiveness from him there;
Then said, as he redemption gave:
"That which was lost I came to save."

—S. P. Leeds, in the San Francisco Pacific.

TEMPERANCE.

FARMERS AND THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

"More than any other class of our population, the tiller of the soil is interested in the continuance of the prosperity of the liquor traffic."

That is the strong and rather startling assertion we find in a leading liquor journal. It is well-known that rural communities are the ones that are strongest in their opposition to the saloon.

Prohibition States are those in which the rural population preponderates. In these States only the larger cities tolerate the traffic at all; from all farming communities the saloon is rigidly excluded. If the statement above quoted is true, then the farmers are the very men who ought to encourage the liquor traffic. Strange, is it not, "what fools these" farmers "be!" It might be well for farmers to consider this question carefully and not oppose their own interests. The article from which the above assertion is taken, is an argument based on internal revenue statistics intended to establish the proposition, that if the manufacture of liquors should be stopped the farmers of this country "would be utterly ruined." Let us review the argument. "There was consumed in this country in the manufacture of distilled spirits only the following amounts of grain and other materials:

Rye	5,521,205
Corn	19,770,559
Malt	3,272,899
Wheat	97,070
Barley	5,958
Oats	13,516
Mill feed	17,343
Molasses, gallons	4,884,577
Other materials	3,823

These figures indicate that large quantities of the cereals are consumed in the manufacture of alcoholic liquors. It might be well, however, to make some comparisons. Nineteen million bushels of corn is an immense quantity. But our yield of corn last year was one billion eight hundred million (1,800,000,000) bushels, or about one hundred times as much as was consumed in the distilling business. That is to say the liquor trade furnishes a market for about one bushel of corn out of every hundred produced in this country. Well, that is not so wonderful after all. If we just suppose that the farmer would have to throw away that portion of grain or reduce the price of the whole in the same ratio, it would amount to only one per cent, or at the present average price of corn it would be a reduction of a quarter of a cent per bushel.

Then there is the wheat consumed, ninety-seven thousand and seventy bushels. But the entire yield of wheat was estimated at twenty-four million three hundred and thirty-three thousand (24,333,000) bushels. That shows that about one bushel in every two hundred and fifty the country produces is used in distilling. If that amount should be thrown away it would be a loss of one bushel in two hundred and fifty or a reduction at the present average price of wheat of less than a quarter of a cent per bushel. That would hardly be considered a disastrous drop in the wheat market.

But looking at this subject in another light, we will see how insignificant a factor the liquor traffic is in comparison with the farming products of the country. The entire amount of material consumed, according to these internal revenue figures, is worth about ten million dollars. But the entire farm products of the country are valued at about two billions of dollars, so that the farmer gets from the distiller one dollar for every two hundred dollars from other sources. That does not indicate that the farmer is so tremendously indebted to the liquor traffic after all. But this liquor journal is so bent on showing the blessings of the distilling business that it announces a fact which calls the attention of the farmer to the competitive character of the distiller. It tells us that in addition to the immense quantity of liquors made out of this small amount of grain the distillers produce 21,664,936 pounds of meat by means of the cattle and hogs they fatten. Of course that is just so much out of the pockets of the farmer. But does the competition of the distiller with the farmer end with the amount of meat produced. Not by any means. It is a fact that there are about one hundred and a half of families in this country living on half-rations because of drunkenness. It takes about two hundred dollars of farm products to support the average family a year—this is a low estimate. The million and a half of saloon-cursed families, were it not for drink, would buy from the farmer one hundred and fifty million dollars' worth of farm products more then they now do. In other words, for every dollar the liquor traffic pays the farmer he would get fifteen dollars from the homes of the country were it not for the saloon. But still worse and more of it. The great burden of which farmers complain to-day is taxation. Now the liquor traffic lays a tax of about sixteen dollars per capita upon the entire population of the country. It is entirely safe to estimate the proportion of that tax paid by the farmers as at least one-fifth, or two hundred millions of dollars. While, therefore, the distilling business of the country puts into the pocket of the farmer about ten million dollars a year it takes out of the other pocket three hundred and fifty million dollars, or thirty-five for one, which is not anything certainly to boast of. There is no greater foe of the farmer to-day than this accursed, poverty-producing, tax-levying liquor traffic, and they will do well to lend every energy they possess to drive it from the land. And that is true of every other legitimate business. The liquor traffic is the enemy of every human interest, financial, social, moral and political, and THE SALOON MUST GO!—The Christian Statesman.

LACK OF ENTERPRISE.

"Let me have three fingers of whisky," he said to the clerk of a drug-store in a Kansas town.

"I can't," replied the clerk, who did not know the customer; "this is a prohibition State."

"I can't get a drink of whisky, eh?"

"No, sir; not without a physician's prescription, when it is to be used as a medicine."

"Is there no emergency at all in which you would be permitted to dispense a small quantity of whisky without that formality—a case of life or death, for instance?"

"Why, yes," replied the clerk; "I suppose if a man were to be bitten by a rattlesnake, and it would require some time to go to a doctor and get a prescription, in that case it might be allowable to give him whisky."

"Do you know where I could find a snake?" was the next question.

"Why, no," replied the clerk, greatly surprised at the query.

"Well," commented the thirsty one, with a great deal of disgust in his tone, "it seems to me that if this drug-store had any enterprise it would keep a rattlesnake on hand for use in cases of emergency."—Harper's Monthly.

BIBLE LESSON.

STUDIES IN THE BOOKS OF MOSES.

LESSON VIII.—Second Quarter, 1894, May 20.

SUBJECT.—The Childhood of Moses.—Exodus 2: 1-10.

GOLDEN TEXT.—I will deliver him and honor him. —Psalm 91: 15.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Exodus 2: 1-10. T.—Ex. 2: 11-15. W.—Ex. 2: 16-25. Th.—Heb. 11: 23-27. F.—Acts 7: 17-22. S.—Acts 7: 23-29. Su.—Psa. 33: 10-22.

COMMENTS BY E. E. FLAGG.

1. The birth of Moses.—vs. 1–4. Man's extremity is God's opportunity. In the darkest hour of Israel's history the deliverer was born. He sprang from an inferior tribe, although it afterwards received the distinguishing honor of the priesthood. In common with the tribe of Simeon, the curse of the dying Jacob had rested upon it on account of the cruelty and dissimulation practiced in the murder of the Shechemites;—characteristics which seem to have been continually re-appearing till the climax was reached, when they conspired against our Lord, and by their clamor forced Pilate to consent to his crucifixion. Moses' parents had other children born before the persecution grew so fierce. Without doubt they were grieved over the advent of another at this particular juncture, so fraught with evil for the innocent babe and themselves. "She saw that he was a goodly child," bearing the impress, even at that tender age, of extraordinary endowments both of mind and body; and while it is not at all likely that his mother had the faintest idea of the destiny that lay before him, something deeper was behind her action than the mere maternal instinct to save her child. She evidently followed a divine leading in the matter. Many of the Hebrew mothers reasoned (see Acts 7: 19) that it was better their children should die in infancy than grow up to lives of wretched slavery. But she seems to have been a woman of the loftiest faith, and her faith was joined to works.

She hid him three months" in her own house; and when she could no longer hide him, because the search for concealed infants was growing more rigorous, she made an ark of bulrushes, made waterproof with bitumen, and laid it in the beds of papyrus which grow so thickly in the broad canals of Lower Egypt, his sister, a child of ten or twelve, being stationed outside, but "afar off," that she might not attract suspicion. The same land of Egypt which was such a furnace of affliction to the oppressed Israelites, became a sanctuary for the infant Jesus when his life was also sought by a cruel king. Our prison-house may become our door of hope. God controls our most untoward circumstances as much as he does our happiest; and if we maintain an active, living faith in him, using all the means he has given us, he will surely make us a way of escape.

2. The rescue of Moses.—vs. 5–10. Says Henry: "God has a special care for outcasts." This is illustrated not only in sacred history, but by the traditions of ancient nations, which abound in cases, doubtless founded more or less on fact, of infants cast out to perish, who afterwards became famous kings and leaders. "When my father and my mother forsake me then the Lord will take me up." This was wonderfully fulfilled in the case of Moses, to whose rescue God sent the one person in the whole empire who could dare to take the responsibility of disobeying the royal mandate—the king's daughter herself. She "came down to wash herself at the river's brink." This is thought to have been some ablution performed as part of a religious ceremony. The Nile, as is well known, was worshiped in Egypt. "And behold the babe wept." God ordered that even this trivial circumstance should happen at the right moment to arouse the womanly sympathy of the Egyptian princess. Miriam's ready wit secured as nurse for the infant Moses his own mother, who must have received him back to her arms with feelings of mingled awe and thankfulness, and more than ever convinced that some great destiny must await him. "And I will give thee thy wages." The Egyptian princess could only pay in silver and gold; but that is a far richer reward which God gives to faithful motherhood. Can we compute the value of that bestowed even here on earth to the mother of the Wesleys, as she saw the blessed fruits of her early training in the conversion of multitudes of souls? Moses' mother, without doubt, seized the opportunity so providentially given her to instill into his infant mind those principles of devoted piety and heroic patriotism which made him, in after-years, "refuse to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter." This was an excellent foundation on which to build his future education. Being "learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians" was a help to him in his lifework. It would have been a hindrance without this early training, or, rather, would have prevented him altogether from developing the qualities requisite for leading his people out of bondage. Such a mother would not have taken leave of him, when she brought him to Pharaoh's daughter to live henceforth as a prince of the blood in the most magnificent court in the world, without words of counsel and warning. Humanity owes a vast debt to the faithful mothers of great men.

LITERATURE.

CONSECRATION: "I am the Lord's." By H. L. H. Boston: Scriptural Tract Repository, 47 Cornhill.

The keynote of this pretty booklet is Isaiah 44: 3–5, including the motto—"I am the Lord's." The whole is a meritorious application of the text to the Christian as an individual; and happy is he or she who can, with bowed head and thankful heart, adopt its language as the song of the soul. Scriptural in spirit, deep in spirituality, it is an excellent companion for the closet. It can be obtained in silver and blue cloth binding for 25 cents.

CURRENT PERIODICALS.

The two papers in the May issue of the Century Magazine in which the thoughtful reader's interest will center are: Across Asia on a Bicycle—the journey of two American students from Constantinople to Peking, copiously illustrated from photographs, and the Capture of the Slave-ship Cora—the last slaver taken by the United States, an exciting narrative, with capital engravings. Continuations appear of Pudd'nhead Wilson, by Mark Twain, and Cœur d'Alene, by Mary Hallock Foote. Other contributions are presented as follows: The Kearsarge, by James J. Roche; Hunting an Abandoned Farm in Upper New England, by Wm. H. Bishop; Dagnan-Bouveret (French artist), with portrait and copies of his paintings, by Wm. A. Coffin; Fragments, by J. Russell Lowell; Contrasts of English and American Scenery, by E. S Nadal; Book-bindings of the Past, by Brander Matthews; The Imitative Functions, and their Place in Human Nature, by Josiah Royce; Reminiscence, by Thomas Bailey Aldrich; Minor Chord, by Edgar Fawcett; The Heart of the World, by Wm. P. Foster; A Loan of Half Orphans, by Thomas A. Janvier; Aelbert Cuyp—An Old Dutch Master, by Timothy Cole; "Their Exits and their Entrances," by Geo. A. Hibbard; Love and May-time, by Nath. H. Dole; Witherle's Freedom, by Cornelia A. Pratt; Iovanovich, the Chief Servian Poet, and Paraphrases from the Servian; Mr. Pate's only Infirmity, by Rich. M. Johnson, etc. The illustrations throughout are fine, and the editorial departments rich in thought and expression. New York: The Century Co. Price, 35 cents.

The leading sermon in the Preacher's Magazine for May is by F. W. Farrar, D. D., the Archdeacon of Westminster, and is entitled: Am I My Brother's Keeper? Prof. Geo. C. Findlay contributes the second and concluding part to his able paper on Faith and Duty. The Senior Editor, Mark Guy Pearse, writes on the Prayer of Moses, and Its Answer. The Minister's Use of His Bible, by the Rev. H. J. Foster, will command attention, especially among the clergy. The Homiletics or Sermon outlines include: The Wastefulness of Christian Love, by Rev. Samuel E. Keeble; The Hidden Word, by Rev. J. Feather; A Lion in the Snow, by Rev. Thomas Champness. Elocution, by Alfred C. Genty, is suggestive, as is the article of Difficult Texts, by the Rev. John Urquart. Notes and Illustrations, and Notes on the International Lessons, are interesting features and of the magazine. Outline Addresses on Golden Texts are most complete. The magazine is intended for the preacher, but will befound most helpful to the teacher and the Bible student. Wilbur B. Ketcham, Publisher. 2 Cooper Union, New York. Price, 15 cents.

A new Christian Workers' manual comes to our desk in the form of No. 1, Vol. 1, of the Temple Builder, whose basis of operations is Ephesians 2: 20–22. It purposes to advance Christian work and improve the methods of such service on a plan that shall cover the whole field—and "the field is the world." It is not only a comely magazine, but filled with suggestive and instructive papers, by various writers. Among the more important of these are the following: An account, by Russell H. Conwell, of Grace Baptist Church, Philadelphia, of the methods of work in his church by which it has grown in ten years from a membership of forty-nine to something over two thousand. The Boys' Club, by John C. Collins, giving the general plan and methods of this work which has been organized by Mr. Collins in many cities of New England, and has been the means of reaching, in the last few years, over twenty thousand street boys. Tracts and How to Use Them, addresses by Rev. R. A. Torrey, Rev. H. W. Pope, and Dr. Wm. A. Rice, at the World's Convention of Christians at Work. Corporations in Christian Work, giving methods of Connecticut organization for churches, benevolent, philanthropic, and other Christian work organizations. The subscription is $1 a year; single copies, 20 cents each. Published bi-monthly, at New Haven, Conn.

McClure's Magazine for May is a choice number. Prominently it commemorates the birthday of Gen. Grant, with reminiscences and anecdotes of him by his son and old comrades, and with a complete series of portraits of the hero from youth to age. It also presents a study of the life and habits of captive wild beasts and their trainers, in the preparation of which the author (Cleveland Moffatt) and the artist associated closely for months with the largest collection of trained wild beasts in the world. Other articles of interest include a sketch of Flammarion the Astronomer—His Home, Manner of Life, and his Work, by R. H. Sherard, illustrated; The Sheriff of Siskyou, a story, by Bret Harte; The Governor's Prerogatives, a story, by Mary T. Earle, with additional chapters of The Ebb Tide, by Stevenson and Osbourne. For its price, and considering its uniform excellence both of letter-press and illustration, this is a very satisfactory periodical. Published by S. S. McClure (Ltd), 743 Broadway, New York. Price 15 cents.

The May issue of Dr. M. L Holbrook's excellent Journal of Hygiene (edited and published by the doctor at 46 East 21st street, New York) is, as usual, filled with topics of interest and utility. Among these are: Congestion of the Brain, by Dr. A. W. Leighton; The Hygienic Treatment of Insanity; The Bread We Eat, by R. T. Colburn; Ceylon and the Sinhalese (continued), by Dr. W. A. English; A New Education for Women, by Jennie Chandler, and the following by the editor: Danger to Health in Street Dust; Malaria, its Prevention and Hygienic Treatment; Useful Bacteria; Bacteria necessary to Plant-growth; The Elmira Reformatory; Milk as a Disease Producing Agent; Suggestion to Vegetarians, and Book Notices. Price, 10 cents.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

BAPTIST.

—The following Baptist general anniversary gatherings are to be held this month, at Saratoga Springs, N. Y.: Women's Home Missionary Society, May 21, 22. American Education Society, May 22, 23. American Home Missionary Society, May 23, 24. American Publication Society, May 25, 26. American Missionary Union, May 28, 29. All correspondence with Saratoga Springs, in reference to the anniversaries, should be addressed to Dr. J. Byington Smith, chairman, or S. R. Barrett, secretary.

LUTHERAN.

—The only Protestant church in Bethlehem of Judea is a Lutheran church, in which the pastor preaches in the Arabic language.

—Rev. Dr. Joel Swartz, of Gettysburgh, Penn., where he has until recently ministered to the people of St. James Lutheran church, has severed his connection with his congregation and that denomination. He has accepted a unanimous call to the pastorate of two congregational churches in Ohio, but in bidding farewell to the flock over which he has for more than twelve years presided, he told them that his removal meant with him no change of doctrine, and the harmony with them remained intact to the close of his labors.

PRESBYTERIAN.

—The American Presbyterian synod for China has decided upon the formation of a missionary society for sending out Chinese as missionaries to new and unoccupied fields in that country. The question of uniting seven other Presbyterian boards in a single church, as has been done in Japan, is under discussion.

—Dr. Kerr, of the Reformed Presbyterian church, Scotland, suggests the appointment in a public manner of a committee of five Established ministers, five Free, four United Presbyterian, two Original Secession, two Free Church Secession, and two Reformed Presbyterian, to consider the question of reconstructing the Presbyterian church.

SALVATION ARMY.

—This year General Booth of the Salvation Army celebrates the fiftieth anniversary of his conversion. In honor of this jubilee it is proposed to raise a thanksgiving fund of $350,000 for the promotion of the army work, and the first week in May was observed as a jubilee week. A lady friend of the army has already given $100,000.

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 65 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers. 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Allyn's Ritual of Freemasonry by Avery Allyn contains the fully Illustrated Ritual of the Blue Lodge, Chapter Council and Commandery, 11 of the Scotch Rite Degrees, Several Masonic side degrees and what is termed a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, the Orange and Odd-fellows Societies. Price in cloth $5.00.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor. Profusely illustrated with explanatory engravings, and containing the ritual and work of the order for the seven degrees, including the Royal Arch. Though extensively used as an Instruction Book and one of the best in the market it is not as accurate as "Freemasonry Illustrated," the first book on catalogue. Price in cloth, $2 50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry. Containing the ceremonies of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, etc. Illustrated. Although extensively used in conferring the higher degrees, it is not only very incomplete but inaccurate especially as regards the first seven degrees, and as to the higher degrees it gives but a description and general idea of the degrees rather than the full ritual. Price in cloth, $1.25; Paper covers, 75c.

Look to the East. A Ritual of the first three Masonic Degrees by Ralph Lester. Price in cloth $2.00. Notwithstanding the high price this book is very inferior in every way to Freemasonry Illustrated or The Handbook of Freemasonry at a quarter the price.

Ecce Orienti. The Complete Standard Ritual of the First Three Masonic Degrees in Cypher, with complete Floor Charts of Initiating, Passing and Raising a Candidate. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Cabala. The Complete Standard Ritual of the Chapter Masonic Degrees; 4th to 7th inclusive, in Cypher. Giving the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master and Royal Arch, Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Council of the Orient. The Complete Standard Ritual of Council Masonic Degrees in Cypher, 8th to 10th inclusive. Giving the Degrees of Royal Master, Select Master and Super Excellent Master. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2 50.

Knights of the Orient. The complete Ritual of the Commandery Masonic Degrees, Knights of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta, 11th to 33th degrees. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

The Mystic Shrine Illustrated. An Illustrated Ritual of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. This is a Side Masonic degree conferred only on Knights Templar and on Thirty-two degree Masons. 15 cts. each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion. 5 cents each.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover. 50cts.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Odd-fellowship: Its History and its Work. By President J. Blanchard. A neat pamphlet with cover. Postpaid. 5 cts

OTHER RITUALS.

Revised Knights of Pythias Illustrated. An exact copy of the new Official Ritual Adopted by the Supreme Lodge of the World, with the Secret work added and fully Illustrated. In cloth 50 cts. Paper cover 25 cts.

Knights of the Orient Illustrated. The full Illustrated Ritual of Ancient Order of the Orient, or the Oriental degree. This is a side degree conferred mostly in Knights of Pythias lodges. 15 cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and council. 25cts each.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin. Illustrated with engravings. 25 cents each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords etc. 15cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated, "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each.

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

Knights of Labor Illustrated ("Adelphon Kruptos.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

Folly, Expense and Danger of Secret Societies. By Pres. C. A. Blanchard. This booklet of 32 pages is a general discussion of the secret orders, whether religious, political, industrial, insurance or social. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Disloyal Secret Oaths. By Joseph Cook, Boston. He quotes the law of Vermont which makes the administration of the Masonic oaths illegal. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing? An address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891. W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's, too." A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover Postpaid, 5 cents.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void: or Freemasonry Self-Convicted. This is a book for the times. The design of the author is to refute the arguments of those who claim that the oaths of Freemasonry are binding upon those who take them. 207 pages. Postpaid, 40 cents each.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the lodge when S. H. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry. 15 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 308 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Masonry a Work of Darkness, adverse to Christianity, and inimical to republican government. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian) a seceding Mason of 21 degrees. 15 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. J. Day Brownlee. In reply to a Masonic Oration by Rev. Dr. Mayer, Wellsville, Ohio. 5 cents each.

Masonic Outrages. Compiled by Rev. H. H. Hinman. Showing Masonic assault on lives of seceders, on reputation, and on free speech; its interference with justice in courts, etc. Postpaid, 20 cents.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife, of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty-three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

A Booklet of 107 pages, which includes "The Martyr's Own Monument," by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association; "Christian Politics," by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure; "The Mysterious Machine: Was it Lawn-mower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what?" by Prof. E. D. Bailey, of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government. Postpaid 25 cts.

Jonathan Blanchard's Sermons and Addresses. Select discourses of the first editor of the Cynosure. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of living reform, Secret Societies, The Sabbath, Temperance, National Reform, Christian Education, Christian Socialism, The Bible, etc. A book everybody should read. 12mo. Fine photogravure portrait. Price, 75 cents.

American Handbook and Citizen Manual. By Manlove N. Butler. Contents: Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement. Over 200 pages. Paper, single copy, 40c.

Image of the Beast: A Secret Empire; or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy. By Rev. Richard Horton. Third edition. 200 pages. Cloth. Price, 60 cents.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages. paper cover. 25cts each.

Eminent Men on Secret Societies. Composed of "Washington Opposed to Secret Societies," "Judge Whitney's Defence," "The Mystic Tie," "Narratives and Arguments," the "Anti-mason's Scrap-Book" and "Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry as Proved in the New Berlin Trials." 326 pages, cloth, $1 00.

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. Dr. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear argument of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Prof. J. G. Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies. A most convincing argument against fellowshiping Freemasons in the Christian church. 10 cents each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have. 5 cents each.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher. In cloth, 35cts each; paper covers, 15cts each.

Between Two Opinions: or the Question of the Hour. By Miss E. E. Flagg author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages, cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William M'Nary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury; "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion," and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth $1 00.

Stories of the Gods. By I. R. B. Arnold. Brief sketches from the mythology of Rome, Greece, Egypt, India, Persia, Phrygia, Scandinavia, Africa and America, showing the relations and unity of past and present systems. The idolatrous worship of the Masonic lodge is thus clearly seen and understood. Postpaid, 10 cents.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50cts each.

HOME AND HEALTH.

(From the Vanguard.)

Fresh air and deep breathing are the best preventives of lung diseases. Do not huddle over the fire, or keep in the house if consumptive. No doubt the supposed benefits from change of climate are often results of being out of doors more.

Do not wear any garment that is tight enough to impede the circulation of the blood. Tight shoes, collars, gloves or sleeves are hurtful, as well as tight waistbands or corsets. Avoid all such garments and encourage the circulation of the blood by daily exercise.

Graham gems are much more wholesome and nourishing than fine flour biscuits. Fine flour mixed with lard and eaten hot, forms an almost indigestible mass which few stomachs are capable of managing. The coarse flour gems made only with water, or with buttermilk, and well baked are not open to the same objection.

A vegetarian diet is cheaper than one of meats. It is also more wholesome and conducive to spirituality. The one who eats flesh three times a day, as many do, has as a result a large butcher's bill to pay, and his blood is kept in an inflammatory state that invites disease. If you must use meat, use no pork, and never take meat suppers. Once a day at dinner is amply sufficient.

Do you know just what is an overdose of drugs? No. There is not a doctor on earth who can tell just what you might call an ordinary dose of morphine or other medicine, might effect. Much must depend upon the condition of the system. One person might be killed by what would not seriously harm another. An eminent and evidently honest physician says: "A sixth of a grain of morphine might cause death if kidney trouble existed, even though the disease were so hidden that the patient was not aware of its presence." A word to the wise is sufficient. Beware of drug poisons! Better trust to nature and to nature's God.

THE OBJECTS, WORK AND SECRET RITUAL of "The Nobles of the Mystic Shrine" have just been issued in a revised and enlarged edition. Price, in paper, 25 cents. This new order of Freemasonry, now so popular in this country as the basis of social hilarity among members of the higher degrees, claims to have originated in Arabia, and was revived in Egypt, and brought to America from France. It is interlarded with Mohammedan terms and worship; and its original objects as defined in its ritual, was inquisitorial and barbarous. Its prayers are addressed to "Allah," instead of the G. A. O. T. U., and it is quite as un-Christian as the devotees of the blue lodge would have it. The abridged edition is still sold for 15 cents. Address the National Christian Association, 221 West Madison street, Chicago.

A BOOKLET.

107 pages, 5x7 inches.

Paper Cover, Postpaid, 15 Cents

—o:o—

The following addresses form part of the contents of this booklet:

THE MARTYR'S OWN MONUMENT, by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association.

CHRISTIAN POLITICS, by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure.

THE MYSTERIOUS MACHINE: was it Lawnmower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what? by Prof. E. D. Bailey of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government.

This booklet includes other interesting matter connected with the unveiling of the Morgan monument at Batavia, N. Y. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

Only a Scar Remains

Scrofula Cured—Blood Purified by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"It is with pleasure that I send a testimonial concerning what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for my daughter. It is a wonderful medicine and I cannot recommend it too highly. Sarah, who is fourteen years old, has been

Afflicted With Scrofula

ever since she was one year old. For five years she has had a running sore on one side of her face. We tried every remedy recommended, but nothing did her any good until we commenced using Hood's Sarsaparilla. My married daughter advised me to use Hood's Sarsaparilla because it had cured her of dyspepsia. She had been troubled with that complaint since childhood, and since her cure she has never been without a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla in the house. We commenced giving it to Sarah about one year ago, and it has conquered the running sore,

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Only a Scar Remaining

as a trace of the dreadful disease. Previous to taking the medicine her eyesight was affected but now she can see perfectly. In connection with Hood's Sarsaparilla we have used Hood's Vegetable Pills, and find them the best." MRS. MARIA GRIFFIN, Xenia, Illinois.

Hood's Pills cure nausea, sick headache, indigestion, biliousness. Sold by all druggists.

—freed from their seeds and skins, as fresh and sweet as when fresh plucked, are the grapes in

The California Grape Cure

Concentrated and Perfectly Pure.

It's a royal drink and (you wouldn't know it, except by the good it does)—a medicine. It clears the vocal organs, soothes the nerves, purifies the blood and nourishes the weakest stomach.

Not a taint of alcohol is in it—it's suited for table or sick-room.

A	costs	at	or	Makes
pint	75	your	your	one-half
bottle	cents	grocers	druggists.	gallon.

A Booklet about it mailed free.

THE CALIFORNIA GRAPE FOOD CO.,
Los Gatos, Cal.

General Eastern Agency, 145 Broadway, N. Y.
General Pacific Agency, 408 Sutter St., San Francisco.
Chicago Selling Agent, Edwin E. Hills, 70 State St.

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer. Ennis, Texas.

THE MYSTIC SHRINE

Illustrated.

THE FULL

ILLUSTRATED RITUAL

OF THE

Nobles of the Mystic Shrine

PRICE 15 CENTS, EACH.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

Sermons of Rev. John McNeill,

12mo. cloth, 416 pages, $1.50.

The fame of this Scottish Spurgeon, as he is very generally called, is becoming as wide-spread as the English tongue. The secret of his power over the masses, has been discussed on both sides of the Atlantic. If one may judge from these printed sermons the secret lies in a homely and pointed putting of the old truths of the Gospel in plain Anglo-saxon. There is evidence of study, but more the study of human nature, and particularly the human heart, than that of books, other than the Book of books—with this volume Mr. McNeill is evidently in love. With unquestioned faith he believes the writen word, and preaches it with an earnestness born of conviction.

"Best" Marriage Certificate. Size 14x17½. Price postpaid 25 cents; per dozen, $2.50.

This superb certificate meets a popular demand, and is rapidly becoming the favorite. Read what the people say of it: BRO. BEST: My attention having been called to your marriage certificate, I must pronounce it the neatest in design and execution of any I have seen. Rev. E. P. HART. E. C. BEST—Dear Brother: I am well pleased with the specimen copy of your marriage certificate, and shall use them hereafter. They are in good taste, well executed, on good material, and at a very reasonable price. Yours, M. V. CLUTE.

Struck by Lightning.

A true and thrilling narrative of one who was struck by lightning; with incidents, experiences and anecdotes for old and young. By Rev. E. Owen.

With Striking Illustrations.

Beautifully bound in cloth, with title stamped in gold on side and back.....50c.
Paper cover.....30c.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

Plan for Evading the Judgment—Request to be Whipped to Death—Learning to Swear—Alarmed by a Rattlesnake—Fall from a Building—Struck by Lightning—Converted—Sanctified—Called to Preach—First Effort—Casting out a Devil—Protracted Meeting on "Satan's Premises"—First Circuit—Revival in "Haying"—S. Hill Revival—Sisters' Quarrel Settled—Accused of Fortune-Telling—Souls Saved—Dreams—Too near Hell tc Spend Time with—A Sceptic Awakened—Public Talk with a Universalist—A Chair Thrown at the Minister—Revival in Berlin—A Methodist Church of Baptist Converts—A Noisy Stage Passenger Quieted—Preaching on the Deck of a Steamboat—A Pleasure Trip—Two Overboard—Revival by Torch-light—A Fiddler Saved—A Slanderer Humbled—Bar-room Discussion—Saved by Expulsion from the Church—Dancing with the Devil—Answering a Fool According to his Folly—Raps for Spirit Rappings—Short Debate with a Restorationist—"Open Rebuke"—An Unspeakable Blessing.

COMMENDATIONS.

American Wesleyan: "Thrilling as a romance, and true to the last syllable. No private library or Sunday-school should be without a copy."

Phonographic Monthly, N. Y.: "Calculated to throw light into the dark places of orthodoxy."

Earnest Christian: "A true narrative of instructive events."

Lay Evangelist: "Quite entertaining and neatly gotten up."

Free Methodist: "Meeting with universal favor. Intensely interesting. We have read, laughed and cried, and shall try it again."

Talks to Sunday-School Teachers.

By Rev. J. G. Terrill. 12mo, 200 pages, bound in fine cloth.....75

This book is the result of twenty-five years of experience in Sunday-school and treats of: 1. The Sunday-school organization and management. 2. Methods of work. 3. Studies in human nature. 4. Rules of Interpretation as applied to the Bible. 5. Illustrative exercises for primary classes and children's meetings. In the style of presentation, subject matter and price of the book, the wants of the officers and teachers of the ordinary Sunday-school are kept in view.

S. S. Times:—A very comprehensive book. N. Y. Independent:—A sensible manual for the average Sunday-school teacher. Evan. Mess.:—We have been very favorably impressed with the book, because it is so intensely practical. The subject is systematically treated, and leaders of teacher's meetings can not do better than adopt it as a text-book and devote half an hour of each session to teaching the theory and practice of teaching as here systematized. Christian at Work:—Any school that will adopt this book generally and carry forward its work or doctrines here laid down will not be long in developing into a model school and reaping the harvest of a rich fruitage. Herald and Presbyter:—These Talks are well attested in their profitableness and excellence. Buffalo Advocate:—A plain, practical, common sense book on a very important subject. The author has had wide experience in this field of work. He knows thoroughly the ground over which he would lead others, and possesses the happy faculty of packing a great deal of valuable information as to matter and mauner of teaching into this little hand-book. We commend it to the attention of all Sunday-school workers. Religious Telescope:—We are pleased with the plan and treatment of the subjects throughout, and are sure that the diligent Sunday-school teacher who longs for more thorough equipment, will find in this book a helper of great value. Illustrated Christian Weekly:—The author talks from observation and experience, and talks well.

Sunday School Publications.

The Pearl (Mo.)	Pr. Qr.	3c.	Sunshine (Mo.)	Pr. Qr.	3 "
The Lily	"	3 "	Pure Words	"	3 "
Light & L Scholar's	Qrly.	3 "	Light & L Inf Cl.	wk.	4 "
Teacher's	"	5 "	" " Lesson Leaf	"	1½ "
Golden Treasures	1 "		L. & L. Primary	Qrly	4 "

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTIONS.

The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, & Sunshine, each Pr. Yr. 25c. Teacher's Quarterly Pr. Yr. 25c. Scholar's 20c. The four to one address " 75c. L. & L. Infant Class, weekly, 25c.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago

RECENT PUBLICATIONS

OF

FLEMING H. REVELL.

Modern Ideas of Evolution.

As related to Revelation and Science. By Sir William Dawson, L. L. D., F. R. S., etc. 12 mo, cloth, $1.50.

In popular style, a testing by scientific facts and principles, the validity of that multiform and brilliant philosophy of the universe, which has taken so deep a hold of the science and literature of our times.

The New World of Central Africa

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness; with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. Maps, Portraits and numerous engravings. 537 pages, 12 mo, $2.00.

This comprehensive volume is as fascinating as the most entertaining romance. Its vivid portrayal of the dark side of African history makes one's blood tingle, while its earnest appeals create an inspiring sympathy with the effort to evangelize its teeming millions.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

Matthew Henry's Commentary.

An entirely new large type edition of this inimitable Commentary, in six large 8vo. volumes, fine cloth, $15.00; or, in half Morocco, $18.00.

"Biblical students who are most familiar with the very best commentaries of this generation are most able to appreciate the unfading freshness, the clear analysis, the spiritual force, the quaint humor, and the evangelical richness of Matthew Henry's Exposition of the Old and New Testaments."—New York Observer.

"First among the mighty for general usefulness we are bound to mention the man whose name is a household word—MATTHEW HENRY. He is the most pious and pithy, sound and sensible, suggestive and sober, terse and trustworthy."—Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

The Present Tenses of the Blessed Life.

By Rev. F. B. Meyer. 32 mo, 50 cents.

"It is sufficient to say its one direct aim is the present enjoyment of the precious promises. Mr. Meyer's earnest and persuasive teaching in this direction is admirably condensed in these brief chapters."

BY THE SAME AUTHOR:

Christian Living. Cloth, 32 mo, 50 cents.

"A more suggestive and helpful volume it would not be easy to name."—Christian Leader.

The Shepherd Psalm. Cloth, 32 mo, 50c

"This is a gem."—Illustrated Christian Weekly

"It is a little book which hundreds of devout hearts will enjoy,"—Congregationalist.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

OTHER WORKS BY C. H. SPURGEON:

Feathers for Arrows; Or, Illustrations for Teachers and Preachers. 12 mo, $1.

"This work covers a wide range of subjects. The metaphors are always striking and frequently brilliant, while the truths that they illustrate are such as have always formed the staple of Mr. Spurgeon's discourses. A choicer collection of illustrations we do not know."—Freeman.

Spurgeon's Gems. Being a selection of brilliants from his discourses. 12 mo, $1.

The Golden Alphabet. Being a Devotional Commentary on the One Hundred and Nineteenth Psalm. 12 mo, $1.00.

"Mr. Spurgeon brings out the truths and beauties of this w onderful Psalm so as to set a rich feast before the reader. As a practical commentator on the Psalms, Spurgeon has no equal."—Presbyterian Banner.

"This commentary is written in quite the happiest vein of its popular author, and the devotional spirit throughout is intense and elevating."—Occident.

Gleanings Among the Sheaves. 18 mo, 60c.

All of Grace. An earnest word with those seeking the way of life. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

According to Promise; Or, the Lord's Dealings with His chosen People. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Christmas Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve New Year Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth. 50 cents.

"Preachers may get aid in preparing Easter or funeral sermons from this volume. Good to present to those who have lost loved ones."—National Baptist.

Twelve Striking Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Soul-Winning Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Selected by Mr. Spurgeon as the twelve sermons under which there has been the most marked and permanent success.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

FARM NOTES.

PROFIT IN FARMING.

A statistical review of the agricultural situation, given out by the national board of agriculture, says: "With wheat selling at fifty-seven cents and corn at thirty-six cents a bushel in Chicago, a rotation of crops rather than a persistence in exclusive wheat growing would be more profitable to our farmers."

Very likely this is good advice. Those competent to judge of the matter should also see if it is not true that the farmer markets too much raw material—products in their primary condition. Corn is not a profitable crop if sold as corn, but converted into pork it is usually highly profitable. To convert wheat into a secondary form it must be made into flour. This is now done with great profit by the miller. And the baker converts the flour into bread at a large profit. The farmer cannot convert his wheat into flour, but must pay for having it done for him.

Perhaps it would be safe to say that the farm product which may be made most profitable is that which can be converted into the greatest variety of marketable products. There was a time when the farmer raised corn, fed it to hogs, killed the hogs, cured the meats, rendered the lard and sold these ultimate products. Now he aims to sell his product in its primary condition. Possibly the idea of converting the crop into another form could be worked out with profit by very many farmers.—Chicago Record.

FULLY FATTENED STOCK.

Every year a great deal of half-fattened stock is sent to market which sells for low rates and helps to depress prices for that fattened as it should be. There is loss every way in this. Not only does the farmer get a poorer price than he ought, but what he sells has cost more per pound than it would if fully fattened. What does the feeder do in fattening a lean store animal? He simply puts on carbon on the already existing frame of bone and muscle or lean meat. This frame has cost him more to grow than it cost to fatten it. English farmers used to pay more per pound for well-grown, thrifty store cattle than they got per pound when it was fattened, says the American Cultivator. Their reasoning was that the extra weight cost them less than did the frame. They buy store cattle now from America and fatten them, and of course they adopt the American idea and get their stock to fatten as cheaply as they can.

Word comes from all quarters that the neatest and most satisfactory dye for coloring the beard a brown or black is Buckingham's Dye for the Whiskers.

"Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething" softens the gums, reduces Inflammation, allays pain and cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST
A Secret Empire;
Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.
By Rev. Richard Horton.
Third Edition. 200 Pages. Cloth.
Price, 60 cents.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES

MONTHLIES.
The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, Sunshine, each, per quar., 3c.

WEEKLIES.
L. & L. Infant Class, 4c.
L. & L. Intermediate Lesson Leaf.....1⅞c.
L. & L. Lesson Leaf, 1⅞c.
Golden Treasures (for every fifth Sunday) 1c.

QUARTERLIES.
LIGHT AND LIFE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY....5c.
" " " SCHOLAR'S " ....3c.
" " " INTERMEDIATE " ....3c.
" " " PRIMARY " ....3c.

Secretaries' Books, Class Registers, Reward Cards and Tickets, Charts, Maps, S. S. Libraries and other supplies. A large line of books, tracts, pamphlets, Bibles and Testaments at lowest prices.

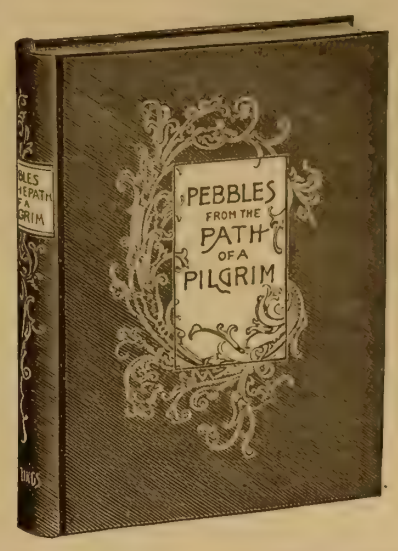
BOOK AND PAMPHLET PRINTING
Done with neatness and dispatch. Send for estimates.
T. B. ARNOLD,
104-106 Franklin St., CHICAGO, ILL.

Your Family
should be provided with the well-known emergency medicine,
AYER'S
CHERRY PECTORAL
The best remedy for all diseases of the Throat and Lungs.
Prompt to act,
Sure to Cure

AMERICAN HANDBOOK
AND
CITIZEN MANUAL.
BY
MANLOVE N. BUTLER.
CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages
Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c.
NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
WM. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Chic

THE TWO-FOLD GIFT
of the Holy Ghost,
BY REV. THOS. K. DOTY,
Author of Lessons in Holiness.
240 pp. Price postpaid.....65cts.
The design of this book is, in plain language, to designate the place of the Holy Ghost in both the Godhead and the work of Salvation. Especially to show that Entire Santification is wrought in the heart by the Baptism of Holy Ghost; and that the Epoch of the Baptism is identical with that of his Advent in his Indwelling Personalty. The agency of the Holy Ghost in the Life, and in carrying on the work of the Gospel, is given particular attention.
TITLES TO THE CHAPTERS:
1. A Summary. 2. The Holy Ghost a Person. 3. The New Testament Designating Terms. 4. The Scriptural View. 5. The Holy Ghost is God. 6. Blasphemy Against the Holy Ghost. 7. The Trinity of God. 8. The Apostolic Benediction. 9. The Worship of the Holy Ghost. 10. The Dispensations. 11. The First Dispensation. 12. The Second Dispensation. 13. Holiness—Sinning. 14. "The Sin of the World." 15. Final Deliverance from Sin. 16. The Day of the Holy Ghost. 17. Jesus and the Holy Ghost. 18 and 19. The Epoch of the Holy Ghost. 20. The Anointing. 21. The Baptism of the Holy Ghost. 22. The Baptism of Fire. 23. The Two-Fold Experiences of the Holy Ghost. 24. Fellowship of the Holy Ghost. 25. "In the Spirit." 26. Several Scriptural Terms Considered. 27. Pentecost. 28. Inspiration—Prophecy. 29. Spiritual Leading and Teaching. 30. The Gifts of the Spirit. 31. "Praying in the Holy Ghost." 31 and 32. Power.
This book is creating quite a stir in religious circles. The original, bold and convincing manner of presenting the subject, has forced the press to comment upon the book, either adversely or favorably, generally the latter. We give a few OPINIONS:
Bible Standard and Gospel Record: "This book is very compact, scarcely a superfluous sentence in the whole book. The manner of treating the questions involved is both clear and scriptural. .....The effect of the book will be to deepen thought and increase knowledge and, in the end, deepen piety."
Evangelical Messenger: "Brother Thomas K. Doty has written a book which we take pleasure in commending to all devout readers who enjoy all spiritual things. The subject is so important, and the treatment of it so timely, that we may be pardoned for calling attention to it thus prominently. We, at least have been greatly interested, and gratefully acknowledge that we have also been decidedly profited by persuing it .....Brother Doty writes with an incisive pen, in a clear, lucid style, often epigrammatical and with great force. He is evidently deeply impressed with the truth of what he writes and demands the respect even where he does not gain the intellectual assent of his readers." Withal the book is written in a kindly, candid spirit, rather didactic than polemical, and is calculated to help the reader and not to rouse his opposition, as is the case with so many books which have been written upon this and kindred subjects. The theological views expressed are orthodox, and in some cases the argument is fresh in matter, and certainly fresh in form throughout."
Christian Cynosure: "His book is one of the most excellent, instructive and practical of any that have come to our knowledge. The exposition of the Scriptures concerning the personality and work of the Spirit is very clear, able and comforting. There is much dogmatising on these topics by Christians who never fully felt the power of the Spirit's work, or are not living in gracious fellowship with him. To all such and to those who have not yet learned what gifts the Lord is waiting to bestow on his people we heartily commend the careful reading of this volume."
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim.
—BY—
MRS. H. L. HASTINGS.



This remarkable collection of stories from the eventful life of a Green Mountain girl has been pronounced "more fascinating than any romance." A member of Congress writes: "'Pebbles' has been read by me with great interest. The introductory chapter has followed me into dreams. My copy is read to pieces by the family, and borrowed to death by the neighbors." An editor says: "Surely the faith that 'obtained promises, wrought righteousness, and stopped the mouth of lions,' must have been given in large measure to the writer of this truly remarkable book....No family library should be without it." "'Pebbles,'" says the Christian Cynosure, "is such a book as Christian parents are always glad to put on their center-tables."

"Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim" is a large and beautiful book of over 300 pages, printed on heavy book paper, from clear open type, and is profusely illustrated. It is artistically bound in handsome cloth, with fancy panels, and specially attractive side and back cover designs. Price, $1.50.

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

The Very Best!

1894—LIGHT and LIFE LESSONS—1894
(INTERNATIONAL)

In book form, containing all the lessons for the entire year, with four large pages of instructions and comments on each lesson, comments being adapted to the Advanced, Intermediate, and Primary classes; Black Board Exercises, Maps, Bible Dictionary, and Class Registers beside other valuable helps. 225 Pages.

Paper covers, postpaid..... .35
Clubs of five or more, postpaid..... .30
Cloth covers, postpaid..... .50
Clubs of five or more, postpaid..... .40

Read what is said about it:

"The classification of each of these fifty-two Lessons is excellent. The choicest of Biblical literature has been drawn upon for material to make it one of the very best lesson expositors extant, and in this respect its compilers have achieved flattering success. Its cheapness and its merits entitle it to a general acceptance by Sunday-school workers."—CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE.
"The book will prove a great convenience and a blessing."—EARNEST CHRISTIAN.
"This is a very complete and valuable guide to the Sunday school teacher for the International Lessons of 1894."—METHODIST RECORDER.
"This is the best thing by way of S. S. supplies I have ever seen."—W. W. HULET.
"It is a marvel of neatness and cheapness."—T. C. GIVENS.
"I am highly pleased with it."—JAMES I. COUNCIL.
"We like it exceedingly well and presume the plan will be continued in the future; if so you may count on us to subscribe for it."—VICTOR CHARBOIN.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp.
LORD & THOMAS,
NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING
45 RANDOLPH STREET,
CHICAGO.

The New World of Central Africa.

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness, with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. 12mo., 530 pages with maps, portraits and numerous illustrations. $2.00
"A conscientious piece of work, and gives a very clear account of what has been done by the Protestant missions to evangelize the barbarous races of Central Africa. * * * He who wants to know what missionary effort means in these days may well learn from this volume. * * * The reader who goes carefully through will have a good bird's eye view of recent events in Africa, with all the results of modern travel. * * * The work contains solid information of use to all who are interested in the future of this wonderful country. The many illustrations throw light upon savage customs and costumes."—Graphic.

In the Far East.

Letters from China by Geraldine Guinness, edited by her sister, with introduction by Rev. J. Hudson Taylor. Very fully illustrated. Quarto cloth, ...$1.50

This book was scarcely written—it was lived; for the breath of life is in it from cover to cover. * * * We have never read so wonderful an account of successful missionary effort.—Presbyterian

We easily understand how this edition is the fifteenth thousand. It is a very remarkable book.—The Golden Rule.

Frances Ridley Havergall's Poems.

Author's edition complete. The only unabridged authorized edition published in America.
1. 12mo., 880 pages, cloth, beveled....2.00
2. Beveled boards, full gilt.....2.50
3. Half white vellum, gilt top, uncut edges, ...2.50
4. French morocco padded, roll red under gold edges...4.00
5. Persian calf, padded and embossed, gilt roll and r. g. 5.00
6. Crushed levant, elegant.....6.00
7. Full German calf, padded, elegant, gilt, rd. cors.....7.50

Miss Havergall stands without peer in the English language in the department of religious poetry.
"The book in paper and binding is all that could be desired."—Publishers' Weekly.

Small Books by Miss Havergall.
Bound in elegant illuminated board
Kept for the Master's Use .....
My King; Daily Thoughts for the Lord's Children.....

Works of Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

Sermon Notes. Covering all the Bible from Genesis to Revelation. 4 vols.....4.00
Feathers for Arrows. A volume of Choice Extracts, 12mo., cloth.....1.00
Twelve Striking Sermons..... 50
Twelve Soul Winning Sermons, ... 50
Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection 50
Twelve New Year Sermons..... 50
Twelve Christmas Sermons..... 50

Notes by C. H. M.

On Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy.
Mr. D. L. Moody says of these books: "They have been to me a very key to the Scriptures."
Deuteronomy is issued in two volumes, the others complete in one volume each.
Separate volumes may be had if desired.
The complete set in six volumes, covering over 2,300 pages, is offered at the reduced price of 75c per vol. or $4.50 per set

A. L. O. E. Intermediate Library.

Selected from the numerous productions of this world-renowned writer as being those of rare merit. 12 vols., 12mo., cloth elegant, each 75c; set.....9.00

An Eden in England.	Life in Eagle's Nest.
Ned Franks.	White Bear's Den.
Sheer Off.	Fairy Spider's Web.
Braid of Chords.	Lake in the Woods.
Silver Keys.	Seven Perils Passed.
Grace Vernon.	Hartley Brothers.

The Jessica Series. By Hesba Stretton. 6 vols., handsome bindings, cloth 50c each, or per set 2.10

Jessica's First Prayer.	Friends till Death.
No Place Like Home.	A Miserable Christmas
Under the Old Roof.	A Night and a Day.

A. L. O. E. Junior Library. Adapted to the young folks. 7 vols., 12mo., cloth each 60c; the set.....4 20

Claremont Tales.	A Wreath of Smoke.
Christian Conquests.	Pomegranates from Punjab.
Tales Illustrative of Parables.	Little Bullets from Batala.
The Battle of Life.

The Hesba Stretton Series. 8 vols., elegant cloth bound, per set.....4.80

Cassy.	King's Servant.
Lost Gip.	Alone in London.
Max Kromer.	Little Meg's Children
Storm of Life	Crew of the Dolphin.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Royal Baking Powder

Absolutely Pure

A cream of tartar baking powder. Highest of all in leavening strength. — Latest United States Government Food Report.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO.,
106 Wall St., N. Y.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

CHICAGO.

Judge Chetlain dismissed the contempt proceedings against the election commissioners on discovering that the grand jury had acted on hearsay evidence in its investigation of alleged election frauds. A special jury will be summoned to take up the inquiry.

A decision sustaining the finding of the lower court upholding the Edison lamp patent was handed down by the United States circuit court of appeals.

The Continental Investment and Loan Society, having again deferred action on a plan to place it on a sound basis, Auditor Gore has asked the attorney general to begin proceedings for a receiver.

A boycott on the product of the Washburn flour mills of Minneapolis has been ordered by the executive board of the Knights of Labor.

General Miles has decided that Lieutenant Maney, who killed Captian Hedburg at Fort Sheridan, and was acquitted by a Chicago jury, must be tried by a court-martial for unmilitary conduct.

Attorney General Maloney began proceedings against the cigarette trust, alleging it was violating the Illinois statutes.

An appropriation of $100,000 to aid the health department in its efforts to stamp out smallpox was made by the council.

Seventh national deaconess conference met in Grace Methodist church. Bishop Joyce presided. One hundred and fifty delegates were present.

Mrs. McCormick and her son Cyrus donated funds to establish a chair of biblical theology in the McCormick Seminary.

It is announced that several election judges and clerks have been indicted by the April grand jury.

At the meeting of the real estate board it was resolved to ask the attorney general to institute proceedings for the recovery of lake front land illegally occupied by the Illinois Central.

Output of the Chicago breweries continues to show a falling off, notwithstanding prices are lower than they were a year ago.

COUNTRY.

The Association of General Secretaries of the Young Men's Christian Associations of North America met at Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

According to Commissioner of Labor Wright there are 5,838 building and loan associations in the country, with net assets of $450,667,893.

Big land owners have entered into a project to straighten the Kankakee River and reclaim vast tracts of marsh lands.

Thomas E. Benedict, of New York, nominated for public printer, has been confirmed by the Senate.

Through the efforts of the business men of St. Paul and Minneapolis, the Great Northern strike has been settled, the men securing most of their demands.

Seven thousand of the unemployed at Cleveland wrecked a number of business establishments and drove out the men at work. They were dispersed by the police after many had been injured.

In Illinois the wheat plant is reported to have made excellent progress under the favorable weather conditions of the last week.

The April Treasury statement showed a smaller loss than was expected, the general balance standing at $125,097,785.

Work in every mine on the Mesaba Range has been stopped by riotous strikers. The sheriff of St. Louis county, Minnesota, has asked for troops.

William Richie, the astronomer, died at Sharon, Pa. A book on which he had been working for twenty-five years will be published by his niece in Chicago.

A nugget weighing 3,300 pounds and containing silver worth $25,000 was hoisted from a mine at Aspen, Colo. It is the largest ever found.

Lyon and Osage counties, Kan., were visited by a destructive storm. At Olivet a waterspout injured a number of persons.

Illinois prohibitionists nominated a State ticket headed by H. J. Puterbaugh for treasurer. Dr. J. G. Evans was named for United States Senator.

Nearly 110,000 Chinese are believed to have registered in compliance with the provisions of the exclusion act.

American Railway Union members employed in the Pullman works demand the wages paid in 1893, and may strike to carry the point.

FOREIGN.

Five hundred Mexican troops are said to have been ambushed by Yaqui Indians in the Le Bacetot Mountains and 200 either killed or wounded.

An anarchist meeting in London was broken up and the speakers roughly handled by listeners who became enraged at expressions used.

Seismic disturbances continue throughout Greece. It is now believed nearly 500 people lost their lives in the recent earthquakes. Nine villages on the Island of Euboea were destroyed by the earthquake shocks of last Friday.

The Walter Wellman expedition sailed from Tromsoe for Spitzbergen to begin the search for the north pole.

Trial of the directors and officers of the Banka Romana, charged with issuing notes without authority, permitting a cash deficit, and attempting forgery, was begun at Rome.

The Duke of Devonshire's report on labor, in which he opposed the institution of any general system of industrial tribunals and advocated suppression of sweat shops, has been substantially adopted by the British labor commission.

A later earthquake in Greece completed the destruction of many houses. No lives are reported lost.

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances of money to the Cynosure from April 30 to May 5.

H Curtis, J. A. Parks, Mrs R Knodle, B Casey, W H H Myers, Mrs A Kindell, E Bingham, Miss Burdick, J C Card, W Dean, A Mooney, Mrs A C Hand, R G Wood, C S D Cowles, Mrs H E Powers, W McClelland, R Canning, G V Bohrer, Mrs E Conery, H S Curtis, E W Hicks, J F Stewart, D L Garver, Mrs S L Carpenter.

Insomnia is fearfully on the increase. The rush and excitement of modern life so tax the nervous system that multitudes of people are deprived of good and sufficient sleep, with ruinous consequences to the nerves. Remember, Ayer's Sarsaparilla makes the weak strong.

Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp.

LORD & THOMAS,
NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING
45 RANDOLPH STREET,
CHICAGO.

Mothers,

when nursing babies, need a nourishment that will give them strength and make their milk rich.

Scott's Emulsion

the Cream of Cod-liver Oil, nourishes mothers and makes babies fat and healthy. Gives strength to growing children. Physicians, the world over, endorse it.

Don't be deceived by Substitutes!

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All Druggists.

PROPHECY:
A STUDY.
BY REV. S. F. PORTER,
A Study of Christ's Comings.
Paper Cover, 100 Pages.
Single copies, postpaid..... 25 cents.
Per 100 copies, postpaid..... $20.00.
For sale by the
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

THE
Folly, Expense & Danger
OF
SECRET SOCIETIES.
BY
CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.
(President Wheaton College.)
5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred
NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago

THE CELEBRATED OXFORD ORGANS.—CONTAINS 122 CELEBRATED ORCHESTRAL TONED REEDS.
When you buy from us you pay the factory profit, and not agents' dealers' or middlemens' enormous profits. This beautiful Oxford Columbia Organ for $45.00.
COMPASS:—Five Octaves, 11 Necessary Stops, 2 of 3-Octave, 2 of 2-Octave Each.

11 NECESSARY STOPS— All that can be put on a 4 set reed action without attaching bogus stops, viz.: Diapason, Principal, Melodia, Dulcet, Cremona, Vox-Angelica, Echo Horn, Celeste, Treble Coupler, Bass Coupler, Grand Organ and Right Knee Swell and Left Knee Swell. The above 4 set reeds and 11 necessary stops are placed at the disposal of the performer and the action is characterized by greater power, variety and brilliancy of tone, combined with the most exquisitive purity and sweetness, in addition to the music contained in an ordinary organ.

DESCRIPTION OF CASE— Constructed of the best grade of solid black walnut, handsomely finished, hand-rubbed with oil, durable and strong, thoroughly seasoned, kiln dried, and made on scientific principles, each component part being paneled to prevent warping or splitting, with veneered panels, elegantly carved and ornamented; center panel on top fitted with a large beveled French plate glass mirror, with veneer panels on each side; exquisite fret work, brocade silk velvet trimmings back of all fret work, large music cabinet, swinging front fall board, two lamp stands, convenient handles for moving. It is entirely new in design, and is as illustrated in cut. The case stands on castors.

INTERIOR CONSTRUCTION— is simple yet scientific and durable, not liable to get out of order and easily adjusted in case of any disarrangement; working parts are free from friction and will neither break nor wear. Nothing but the best of material used, and you will never find in one of the Oxford organs blotting paper instead of felt; cloth instead of leather; oil-cloth instead of rubber; common board instead of three-ply stock.

THE TONE— which is the most important part of an instrument, is full, sweet, round, sympathetic, and harmonious, with volume, variety and brilliancy, combined with great power.

THE BELLOWS— a very important part of a good organ, are of the very best and strongest material, best quality of rubber cloth and best quality of felt, with perfect stop action. They have an immense capacity and furnished, with the automatic valve for preventing an over supply of air, will never leak or wear out.

THE WARRANT— By our warrant we pledge ourselves in case our organ should prove defective in material or workmanship during a term of fifteen years to put the same in proper condition or refund money.

FREE—Our Wholesale Catalogue of Organs, Baby Carriages, Sewing Machines and Bicycles, quoting cash and time prices. Write for Catalogue at once and state which to send.

THE OXFORD MFG. CO. | Old Established and reliable.... | 338 TO 334 WABASH AVE., CHICAGO, ILL.

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address S. C. KIMBALL,
Box 277. Newmarket, N. H.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2	53⅜	@	58⅞
Winter No. 2	58⅜	@	58⅞
Corn—No. 2	37⅞	@	39⅛
Oats—No. 2	35	@	37
Rye—No. 2	46	@	49
Bran per ton	12 00
Hay—Timothy	8 50	@	10 50
Butter, medium to best	10	@	16
Cheese	07	@	12⅛
Beans	1 10	@	1 82½
Eggs, fresh	9⅛	@	09⅛
Seeds—Timothy (100 lbs)	4 00	@	4 30
Flax	1 29
Clover (100 lbs.)	8 00	@	9 25
Broom corn (per ton)	30 00	@	70 00
Potatoes, (bu.)	65	@	90
Hides—Green to dry flint	02¼	@	06⅛
Lumber—Common			15 50
Wool (unwashed)	12	@	26
Cattle—Choice to extra	3 95	@	4 45
Common to good	3 50	@	4 00
Hogs	4 95	@	5 35
Sheep	2 50	@	4 35

NEW YORK.

Wheat No. 2	60¾	@	62⅜
Corn No 2	44	@	45
Oats	41⅛	@	42⅛
Rye	51	@	56
Eggs, Western fresh	10⅛	@	11¼
Butter	10	@	17
Wool	15	@	26

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle	2 00	@	4 35
Hogs	4 70		5 05

JONATHAN BLANCHARD'S
]-oo-[
SERMONS AND ADDRESSES.

Select discourses of the late editor of the Cynosure and leader in our reform. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of

LIVING REFORM.
Secret Societies,
The Sabbath,
Temperance,
National Reform,
Christian Education,
Christian Socialism,
The Bible, Etc., Etc.

A BOOK EVERYBODY SHOULD READ
12mo. Fine Photogravure Portrait.
Price, 75 Cents.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

MY EXPERIENCES
WITH
SECRET SOCIETIES.
BY A TRAVELER.
With a Key to Masonry Illustrated
o-o
A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is
Fifteen Cents,
but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chica

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies. A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian churches to disfellowship secret societies. 10cts each.

SUPPLEMENT TO
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE.
May 10th, 1894.

OUR readers are not ignorant of the fact that education is the power which under God determines the future. Why are we what we are? Largely because of our training. How are the people of the earth to be made what they should be? Evidently by correct education. We do not omit the truths of Scripture. Repentance, confession, faith, and regeneration are foundation stones in character. No man is educated into salvation.

But none the less education has to do with salvation. How can men believe unless they hear? and how can they hear without a preacher? and what is a preacher but a teacher? The learned nations are not necessarily Christian but the ignorant nations are necessarily pagan. This is true not only of Christianity in bulk but of the system in detail. Evils are not recognized and opposed without information, and information is not gained and communicated without schools or their equivalent.

These truths which are patent to all have application to the work of the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION and its organ THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE. While we recognize with gratitude the work of other schools and scholars we may still say what all who are familiar with the facts know that WHEATON COLLEGE has done much toward setting the truth on the lodge question before the people. We know that many CYNOSURE readers have given to it, prayed for it, and thanked God for its teachers and graduates. This fact would be ample apology were any needed for saying a few words regarding our college at WHEATON.

It was founded in 1860, having had its beginning some years before as a preparatory school called Illinois Institute. The purpose of the College was and is to furnish a thorough preparatory and college education and at the same time to aid its students to become Christian workers. This latter point is not crowded into a subordinate place but is kept continually before both FACULTY and students as the great end for which education is to be desired. That a measure of success has been attained in this direction is evidenced by the work which its graduates Stoddard, Bailey, Kellogg, Phillips, Hiatt, Wheeler, Nutting and others have done.

The College has a fine stone building beautifully located in a campus of fourteen acres in WHEATON, twenty-five miles west from Chicago on the C. & N. W. Railway. A frame building which has served a valuable purpose for nearly forty years is also employed but should now be replaced by a modern structure. Here are taught over two hundred fifty young men and women annually. Three courses of study, the Classical, the Scientific, and the Literary each requiring four years constitute the College work. The Preparatory School includes courses leading to each of the above and the English and Normal courses which are designed for those who have not been able to complete their English work and for those designing to teach.

In order to the highest usefulness the College should have as soon as possible a Ladies' Hall, and Observatory, a Gymnasium and an addition to its permanent funds. With these facilities added to those now at hand there is reason for supposing that four or five hundred students would be enrolled and that the power of the College for good would be much more than doubled. Meanwhile there is required a subscription toward current expenses in order that those who are instructing these young men and women and are thus giving thousands to the work of CHRISTIAN EDUCATION may do so without care. At the present time nearly three thousand dollars are needed in order to close the year with all expenses paid. If ten persons should give one hundred dollars each; twenty, fifty dollars each, and one hundred, ten dollars each the entire sum would be raised, a great work would be forwarded, and no one need be deprived of any comfort.

Of course gifts larger or smaller would be gratefully received. No offering which comes from a friendly hand will be unwelcome, but the above plan is outlined that all may see how easily the needed sum could be secured by a concerted effort on the part of those interested in the work. As one who has been for twenty-five years your fellow worker and who has labored for our common cause so far as strength and ability permitted, I am free to urge every reader of the CYNOSURE to send at once some offering large or small to this work. I believe that it will come back to you in a better state of society, a more effective church.

Should any of those to whom this may come desire to give toward buildings or endowments and desire to confer with me on the subject it will be a pleasure to hear from them. We are gratified also to acknowledge notice from a number of our friends of bequests for our work but at this time our special desire is that all those who are laboring with us for Christ and His kingdom and who have not aided us for the present year should, if God puts it within their power and into their hearts do so immediately.

In the love and service of Jesus.

Your friend and fellow worker.

CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.

Address

Wheaton College,

Wheaton, Illinois.

Royal

Absolute
Pure

A cream
der. High strength. - Governmen

ROYAL 10

NEW

Judge Che proceedings sioners on jury had act investigation
A special ju up the inqui

A decisio
the lower c lamp patent
United State

The Conti
Society, havi
a plan to pla tor Gore has to begin proc

A boycott burn flour mi ordered by t
Knights of L

General M tenant Maney
burg at Fort
by a Chicag court-martial

Attorney G
ceedings aga leging it was utes.

An appropr the health de stamp out sn council.

Seventh na met in Grace
Joyce preside delegates were

Mrs. McCo donated funds lical theology
nary.

It is annou
judges and cle
the April gra

At the meet it was resolved
al to institute
ery of lake fr
by the Illinois

Output of tinues to sho standing price
a year ago.

The Associa of the Young tions of Nort
Rapids, Iowa.

According t
Wright there associations in sets of $450,6

Big land ov project to strai
er and reclaim

Thomas E. nominated for confirmed by t

Through th men of St. P
Great Northern
the men securi[illegible] most of their demands.

Seven thousand of the unemployed at Cleveland wrecked a number of business establishments and drove out the men at work. They were dispersed by the police after many had been injured.

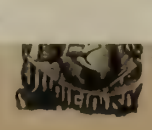
In Illinois the wheat plant is reported to have made excellent progress under the favorable weather conditions of the last week.

The April Treasury statement showed a smaller loss than was expected, the

Mothers,

when nursing babies, need a nourishment that will give them strength and make their milk rich

PROPHECY:
A STUDY.
BY REV. S. F. PORTER,
A Study of Christ's Comings.
Paper Cover, 100 Pages.
Single copies, postpaid 25 cents



NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING
45 RANDOLPH STREET,
CHICAGO.

Wool	15	@	26

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle	2 00	@	4 35
Hogs	4 70		5 05

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies. A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian churches to disfellowship secret societies. 10cts each.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVI., No. 36. CHICAGO, THURSDAY, MAY 17, 1894. WHOLE No. 1,255.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill. as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
Religious Gambling..... 8
A Scheme to Capture Ireland by Force..... 8
Altars..... 8
True and False Consecration..... 8
CONTRIBUTIONS:
Being Filled with the Spirit..... 1
No Church Fellowship with Secretists (Concluded)..... 2
"It Stingeth Like an Adder"..... 10
SELECTED:
College Secret Societies (Concluded)..... 3
The Work of Missions... 3
Friends Oppose Secret Societies..... 3
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 4
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4
A Worthy Co-adjutor of the National Christian Association..... 4
REFORM NEWS:
Anti-secrecy Meetings in Washington; From the Pacific Coast Agent; Pennsylvania State Association.....5, 9
CORRESPONDENCE:
The Oath of the A. P. A. —Is it Right or Wrong?; From Correspondence to Secretary Phillips; The Lodge and the Courts.....5, 6
OBITUARY..... 7
LODGE NOTES..... 7
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
N. C. A..... 7
THE HOME.....10
TEMPERANCE.....11
BIBLE LESSON.....12
LITERATURE.....12
RELIGIOUS NEWS:.....12
Catalogue of Publications 13
HOME AND HEALTH.....14
FARM NOTES.....15
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....16
DONATIONS.....13

The Great Northern Railroad has emerged from the immense strike of its employes, with as little damage as there was reason to believe it possible. It was the result of quiet arbitration. The moral aspects of the affair seem not to have been taken into account. As a matter of dollars and cents it was a success. The labor unions won all the advantage and the glory.

Last week, at a session of the executive committee of the National Farmers' Alliance and Industrial Union, at Washington, D. C., it was decided to establish permanent headquarters in that city, and a committee was appointed to revise the secret work of the order. It was also determined to amend the charter of the Alliance so as to improve the establishment of insurance terms, etc., in connection with the organization.

Although the dispensary system of selling ardent spirits in North Carolina was declared unconstitutional by the supreme court and had to be abandoned, another decision from a high judicial source declares that the State is under prohibitory rule, so far as the liquor traffic is concerned. This unexpected turn in affairs is a severe blow to the liquor dealers, who had reason to believe themselves freed from all restraint when the dispensary law failed.

The death of Mrs. Charles Kenyon, by poison, and the attempted suicide of her paramour, Dr. J. M. Applewhite, after the latter had endeavored to kill the woman's husband, is the story, in brief, of a shameful tragedy near Corvallis, Oregon, last week. Mrs. Kenyon was a patient of Dr. Applewhite's, and, to avoid interruption in his visits to her, he induced her husband to join a secret society, which would keep him away from home one night in each week. Both families are prominent. Applewhite, who may recover, is treasurer of the board of regents of the State Agricultural College. Who ministered the poison to Mrs. Kenyon was not known at latest accounts.

Another instance of the efficacy (or, rather the inefficiency) of high license to abate the sale and use of ardent spirits, has recently occurred in Philadelphia, where, according to the Christian Instructor, the license court "has granted for the current year 1,661 retail licenses and 518 wholesale licenses, including those to brewers and bottlers. This is an increase of 40 in the retail, and a decrease of 16 in the bottlers' licenses over last year. The whole number is considerably less than before the Brooks' high license law went into effect, but statistics show that the amount of liquors sold is larger than when the saloons were more numerous." And this will be found a universal experience wherever high license rules instead of prohibition.

Spoliation of Roman Catholic churches in Paris, France, including Notre Dame, according to the London correspondent of the New York Sun, has been traced to a diabolical sect known as Luciferians, or worshipers of Satan. Their headquarters are near Fribourg, Switzerland, but they have a large following in Paris. Their liturgy is a parody on the Roman Mass, and their sacrilegious thefts from Catholic churches are mostly confined to consecrated wine and wafers. The latter are also received, it is alleged, by Luciferian females while partaking of the sacrament at Catholic services. The stolen elements are then used in what is known as Black Mass. So numerous have these church robberies become as to excite increased vigilance by the priests and police. A Roman Catholic exchange professes to see in this sacrilege new confirmation of the doctrine of transubstantiation, since the devil worshipers prefer the Catholic to the Protestant form of the Eucharist!

Secret societies are not more exempt from intermeddling women than other institutions. The Masonic fraternity rid itself of some of them by putting them into the "Order of the Eastern Star;" the Odd-fellows, by making them "Rebekahs;" and it looks as if the Knights of Pythias, in self-defence, may have to corral them in a sideshow to their order before quiet can be secured. Two female societies, both claiming affinity with the Knights, and struggling for precedence, are known as "The Sisters" and "The Sisterhood," and there is war between them. "As they are now on a par, as far as their standing in the Pythian order goes," says the Knight, "neither being recognized nor countenanced by the supreme power, and Knights of Pythias being prohibited by their order from joining or affiliating with either, it were well to stand aside and view the fight, if fight they must." A project is already on foot for a "ladies' rank," to be controlled by the Knights.

A Roman Catholic writer in a London periodical severely criticises the pope's encyclical on the study of the Bible, and characterizes it as a disappointment to the clergy of that faith, by more rigorously excluding argument than error. "In the name of reasoning, it lands us in a maze of difficulties and contradictions, whence the wit of man is unable to find an issue." "Strange to say, in most Catholic cities on the (European) continent, it is at this day impossible to obtain a copy of the document (the papal encyclical) for love or money." The truth is, the Roman Catholic priesthood and people have so long depended upon the infallibility of the church and its traditions that the Bible has sunken into desuetude. To make the Bible a study, as recommended by the pope, the priesthood very well know would tend to unsettle the foundations of the church, by creating doubts as to its correctness in the light of Scripture truth. For this reason, we believe, the pope's encyclical has become a veritable dead-letter.

The Christian Standard, organ of the Disciples' church, criticizes the action of the Lutheran minister at Hampshire, Ill., who refused, on a recent occasion, to administer the communion to church members because they belonged also to secret societies. It does not deny the right of the church to refuse fellowship with lodge members, but insists that the repudiated persons have also the right of seceding from the church. As no one disputes this proposition, why make a great hue-and-cry over it? "Let every one be persuaded in his own mind." "If the Lord be God, follow him; but if Baal, then follow him." If "Ephraim is joined to his idols, let him alone." But the church should have no affiliation with Baal or Ephraim. It is a plain case.

The condition of business at the close of last week, as reported by Bradstreet's Review, is thus defined: "The great coal miners' strike has been extended in the far west and in portions of Maryland and the Virginias, and this has been followed by an increase in the number of industrial shut-downs due to increasing scarcity of fuel. Not far from 175,000 men are reported idle in the coal trade alone, and with those idle or on strike in other lines the total out of work is not less than 225,000. Destruction of property has been a feature of the coal strike in Pennsylvania and Alabama. The Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio railroads are reported confiscating coal in transit. It is suggested to ship Duluth's excess stocks of coal to Chicago to relieve the fuel famine. General trade remains dull, as does business in manufacturing lines at Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit, Cincinnati, Louisville, Milwaukee, Minneapolis and Omaha, except that at the last named more activity is reported in dry goods and hardware. Favorable crop prospects and activity in agricultural lines have checked trading by country merchants. At Chicago also there are decreased volumes of sales with jobbers in dry goods, millinery and clothing."

BEING FILLED WITH THE SPIRIT.

[A paper read before the New York Presbytery, in the Twenty-Third Street Reformed Presbyterian Church New York City, April 24, 1894, by Rev. J. M. Foster, of Boston.]

And be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess; but be filled with the Spirit."—Eph. 5: 18.

We speak of a drunken man as being "full." On the day of Pentecost there were certain who mocked and said: "These men are full of new wine." But Peter replied: "These are not drunken, as ye suppose," but have received the promised Spirit. So Paul's exhortation is: "Be not intoxicated with wine, but be intoxicated with the Spirit." A drunken man is alcoholized in his whole being. A Christian should be spiritualized in the whole man.

I. Its character. The man possessed with the devil was completely under the control of the evil one. The thoughts of his mind, the choices of his will, the desires of his heart, were suggested by the spirit of evil. So a man possessed by the Spirit is wholly under the power of the good Spirit of God. The Spirit reveals to him the great and glorious truths of God's Word, awakens in his heart a response to those truths, and persuades and enables him to transmute them into practice. His inward and outward life is determined by the indwelling Spirit, so that it is no more he that doeth the work, but the Spirit. The cloud of glory in the temple prefigured the indwelling Spirit of God with his people. That meant four things: 1. Divine presence. "I will send the Comforter, even the Spirit of truth, and he shall abide with you forever." 2. Holiness. No one ceremonially unclean was allowed to enter the temple. "Holiness becometh thine house." "The temple of God is holy, which temple ye are." "Know ye not that your bodies are the temple of God. If any man defile the temple of God, him will God destroy." 3. Consecration. "We beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable unto the Lord, which is your reasonable service." 4. Proper instruments for the Spirit of God. The tabernacle and the temple were proper instruments of divine worship, because they were made according to the pattern shown in the mount. So believers are proper instruments of the Spirit, by being made conformable to the holy and just and good law of God.

This indwelling has an analogy in nature. God is immanent in all his works, producing all organic structures that indicate design, controlling and directing all forces and agencies. He upholdeth all things, and by him all things consist. But this power and sovereignty are not exercised contrary to or in disregard of the laws of the material universe. He does not say: "Let it rain," or "Let it snow," or "Let there be a harvest," as he said in the beginning: "Let there be light." But he brings these things to pass through the operation of natural laws, which he ordained and which he executes. So the Spirit of God dwells in the soul of the believer, working in him to will and to do of his good pleasure. He does not ignore or violate the laws of our mental and moral constitution. He does not produce sensible impressions in the believer's soul, so that he is conscious of a power within him, not of himself, which is leading him. It is not a matter of consciousness, nor faith, nor profession, but simply a fact. The Spirit, according to the laws of his moral being, leads him to recognize, receive and love the truth which he reveals, to love the Lord Jesus Christ, whose beauty, excellency and glory he shows unto him, and to devote himself to his service by avoiding that which is evil and cleaving to that which is good, in loving his Redeemer supremely, and his neighbor as himself, on which two commandments hang all the law and the prophets. The Spirit takes and uses all gifts, natural or acquired. Thus Moses becomes the law-giver, Joshua the captain of the Lord's host, David the sweet singer of Israel, and Isaiah the evangelical prophet. Peter is the bold leader, John the apostle of love, James the meditative soul-winner, and Paul, the logician. Augustine exhibits the city of God's truth, Athanasius defends the Godhead of Christ against the world, Luther breaks the image of Romish superstition, Calvin sets in order the doctrines of God's Word, Spurgeon is the great preacher, Moody the evangelist, and Joseph Cook the unique lecturer. Gladstone and Bismarck are the great Christian statesmen. Peabody and Childs and Rockefeller and McCormick use their money, making talent for Christ, while Carey and Duff and Judson and Paton and Hamlin and Livingstone go to the foreign field. "As many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God."

II. Its power. It is to be noted that the expression "filled with the Holy Ghost" in the New Testament generally signifies miraculous gifts, such as revelation, inspiration, tongues, miracles, and prophecy. These gifts ceased with the apostles. But there were "greater works" than these performed by the apostles. The Spirit of God fell upon their hearers when they preached the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ. To this the Saviour referred when he said: "But ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth." Accordingly, when Peter and John preached in Samaria, when Peter preached in the house of Cornelius, and when Paul preached at Antioch, "the Holy Ghost fell upon them" who heard. This power of the Holy Spirit is a permanent gift to the church. The apostles still live in the church in their message and their divinely-appointed order. And those who proclaim the apostles' message and observe the apostolic order have this Holy Ghost power. Peter said: "Christ was put to death in the flesh, but quickened by the Spirit, by which he went and preached to the spirits that were in prison." This is a difficult passage. It seems to teach this: Christ was put to a violent, bodily death; as a reward, he was quickened spiritually; he was made a quickening Spirit; the resources and energy of the Holy Ghost were placed in his hands; in the exercise of this Spirit-energy, he went by the apostles, preached to men in the prison-house of sin, and the result was multitudes were converted. Three thousand believed, on the day of Pentecost, and five thousand were soon added. Paul had converts in many lands. Since the apostles' day He has been going and preaching through Cyril, and Chrysostom, Savonarola and Zwingli, Wickliffe and Knox, Wesley and Whitefield, and the missionaries in India, China, Japan, Africa and the islands of the sea, and greater multitudes have been converted each succeeding generation. And he will continue going in this Spirit-power, through the apostles' message and order, proclaimed and observed by his ambassadors, until all the world has been brought out of darkness into his marvelous light. There have been more conversions in Madagascar during the last fifty years than in all the Roman Empire during the first one hundred years. On the tombstone of William Geddes, the apostle of Anityum, New Hebrides, is inscribed: "When William Geddes came there were no Christians; when he went away there were no heathen."

On a tablet in a church in Malden, Mass., is inscribed: "Adoniram Judson, born 1788, died 1850; birthplace, Malden; sepulchre, the great sea; the Burman converts and Burman Bible his monument; his record is written on high." He was one of four who founded the American Board of Foreign Missions, which sent him to India. On the ship his views on baptism underwent a change. He was carried against his will to Burmah and founded a mission which led to the organization of the Baptist Missionary Union. So these two great organizations were brought about by his agency. For twenty years he labored without a convert. To his discouraged friends "the prospects are just as bright as the promises." His faith was rewarded with a great harvest. He was led by the Spirit. To a friend, Dr. Cyrus Hamlin said: "If you care to listen to the simple annals of the poor, I was born in a New England home, put myself through college, went as a missionary to Constantinople, spent forty years among the Turks, cleared $50,000 by a bakery during the Crimean war, which I used in building mission churches, built Robert College on a hill overlooking the Bosphorus, returned to America, taught three years in Bangor Theological Seminary, was five years president of a Vermont college, two years professor in Auburn Theological Seminary, and since traveling lecturer for the American Board. As for the future, God knoweth and careth for, not I." That is being filled with the Spirit.

John G. Paton was raised in a Scotch Covenanter home. Teaching a village school and conducting a mission in Glasgow furnished means for his education and gave him needed discipline. By the loss of his dear wife and child, three months after landing on Tanna, New Hebrides, and by personal sickness, he was baptized with the Holy Ghost and with fire, fitting him to remain for three and one-half years, the only white missionary on that island of cannibals. When he struck off the first proof of the Tannese Bible and found it correct, he danced for joy around his rude printing-press at 1 o'clock in the morning, like David around the ark of God. Making two tours of the churches at home, he secured funds for purchasing two mission-ships—the Dayspring and the Auxiliary, which ply those islands as white-winged messengers of the Gospel; and half the people, who were once man-eaters, are sitting at the feet of Jesus, clothed in their right minds. This is being filled with the Spirit.

This power, resulting from being filled with the Holy Ghost, presupposes regeneration and conversion. It implies that all the graces are in lively exercise. Being, as Calvin says, a proper instrument of the Holy Ghost, he is endued with power from on high. He has aspirations and longings and yearnings after God and a burning zeal for the salvation of men that transform and transfigure and spiritualize the whole man. Such an one the Spirit separates for the work of Christ. And when he calls the worker responds: "Here am I—send me." whether it be to teach in the Sabbath-school, to lead a prayer-meeting, to visit the slums of our cities, or to go into the dark regions of heathen lands. With such an one is the secret of the Lord, not by revelation or inspiration, but illumination. Such an one is led by the Spirit of God as an obedient son, his outward and inward life being determined by the indwelling Spirit, so that it is no more he that doeth the work, but the Spirit of Christ within him. His liberty and responsibility are not impaired. He is not conscious of a power within not of himself. But he does not resist or grieve or quench the Spirit. His thoughts, feelings, desires, and purposes are prompted by the Spirit. The Spirit governs his tongue, controls his passions, orders his life. The Spirit gives right views and right motives in determining his conduct in all the emergencies of life.

NO CHURCH FELLOWSHIP WITH SECRETISTS.

BY REV. A. MAYN.

Concluded.

Perhaps some may say: "All this is against Masonry; what say you of the minor orders?" Let me say: They were created partly to blunt the edge of opposition to the leading secret societies. The Order of the Sons of Temperance was first organized by six Freemasons and six Odd-fellows. The Patrons of Husbandry (or Grange) had its ritual prepared by leading Odd-fellows and Masons of the 32d and 33d degrees. An opponent of the leading secret societies told me, after joining the Good Templars, that joining them had the effect of lessening his opposition to Masonry. Is not this necessarily so? Sworn secrecy is the foundation-stone of all of them.

Again, on joining a secret society puts one's self directly in the way of temptation—temptation to lie. The rituals of almost all such societies are published to the world. Their secrets are well-known—may be bought for a few cents; then, when a member is asked if he did not take a certain oath, or dress in a certain manner, remembering his oath, he is tempted to deny the truth. He is in a quandary; he must either violate his oath or lie, unless he giggle, or cough, or refuse to answer, and any of these courses would be counted a confession.

May the church admit such, and thus countenance lying?

But the greatest objection to secret societies is, perhaps, this: That almost all of them teach a religion, and that a false one. They have their prayers, their hymns, their reading of the sacred Book, their chaplain, their oaths, and their "good lodge above," to which their members are said to go.

The 19th Landmark of Freemasonry is this: "Every Mason must believe in the existence of God as the Grand Architect of the Universe." It is not said what god it must be, whether Jehovah, Jove or Baal.

A. B. Grosh, in his Manual of Odd-fellowship, tells us that the Jew, Mohammedan, Parsee, and Christian leave their prejudices at the door of the lodge—they cannot take their distinctive beliefs with them. Then the Christian must leave his Christ outside. The prayers in Mackey's Manual make no allusion to a Redeemer; and he says that, "though in ancient times, Masons were charged in every country to be of the religion of that country or nation, whatever it was, it is now thought more expedient only to oblige them to that religion in which all men agree."

I once perused the ritual of the Patrons of Husbandry (the Grange). I asked a leading member if the book were correct. He said: "Substantially so." I noticed that in the prayers used at the grave the Saviour's name was mentioned every time, but in the prayers used in the lodge, his name was suppressed every time, and no allusion is made to him. This was in keeping with part of the ceremonies. A young lady, dressed in white and adorned with flowers, had many honors bestowed upon her. Her name was Ceres, the name of the heathen goddess of agriculture. So we see that even the minor secret societies are tainted with infidelity, and even with idolatry. Mackey says that Freemasonry is a system of morality veiled in allegory, and illustrated by symbols. This is true of all the brood. He also says that Freemasonry is a philosophical development of the ancient sun-worship.

Those societies, in order to give instruction, go back to the age of signs and emblems, while our age abounds in other and better means, since books, maps and pictures are a hundredfold more common, and plainer, too.

While the Lord Jesus was very sparing in his use of emblems, these lodgites follow the Ancient Mysteries, and would teach their devotees by means of emblem upon emblem, and sign upon sign, the square, the level, the plumb, the compasses and trestle-board giving lessons, instead of written or spoken language. This we would call retrograding instead of advancing in methods of teaching.

Finally, the church should give no admission to adhering secretists for the sake of self-protection. "Take them into the church and teach them," says one. When admitted they will corrupt the flock. Very many who do belong to the church and some secret order say that they would quit the former before they would the latter. Others say of their society "it has a good enough religion for me." How little spirituality in a church where their affections are thus divided!

Said a leading Mason, an infidel: "We are disintegrating your churches." How true this is, we may see, by observing the small attendance on divine service by the male members of our congregations, by the readiness of many to attend the meetings of the lodge, instead of the meetings of the church, and by the vast numbers of lodges in our land.

If secret societies are evil, the fewer of their numbers we have in God's visible church the better. Why is it, that in churches where no secretists are admitted but members of college fraternities and some of the G. A. R., that the pastors' lips are sealed on the subject of secret societies?

Said I to a lady—a member of one of our churches: "Why don't you get Bro. ——— to lecture on secret societies?" "Oh," she replied, "so many of our people are members!"

Yes, form a phalanx that no secretist can break, form one united front of opposition to this arch-foe of Christianity, and thus defeat the secret wing of Satan's army!

Bloomington, Ind.

COLLEGE SECRET SOCIETIES.

DISSECTED BY REV. M. A. GAULT.

(Concluded.)

I did not think my sermon on College Secret Societies would have raised such a commotion among the fraternity students as it did here. The State University has long been a hot-bed of the Greek-letter fraternities. Their halls are on all sides of the public square. There are eight gentlemen and four lady fraternities. Their halls are often used for dancing, where lady students mingle with the gentlemen and spend most of the night in dancing and social pastimes. These societies have largely sidetracked the once-flourishing, old-time literary societies.

The Daily Telephone stated that my sermon "created quite a stir and much talk in fraternity circles." Several of the students denied in the Daily Telephone that their fraternities compromised any one in his religious, social or political relations.

Last week the Bloomington World published the following from the Indiana Student, a university paper published at the World's office:

REV. M. A. GAULT ON FRATERNITIES.

The sermon preached by one of the Bloomington ministers against fraternities was as uncalled for as it was narrow and unjust. If the Telephone report is correct, the gentleman succeeded in doing but one thing, but he did that successfully,—he showed that he was ignorant of his subject, or, as we say in every-day English, "he didn't know what he was talking about."

Generally people who talk against secret societies know something about them, but the more they know the less they talk, and vice versa. The idea that Greek fraternities are founded for the political benefit of their members is absurd. Most fraternities have as their object the intellectual and social improvement of their members. It is true that many secret organizations at the great Eastern colleges are obnoxious; but to compare them with our Western fraternities is about as bad as to say that the Masonic fraternity ought to be outlawed because Tammany Hall is wicked.

The gentleman claims to know part of the oath taken by members of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity of this university. Where he got it we do not know, as we have enough to do to take care of our own business without prying into the secrets of others; but we wonder if there weren't many beautiful things in that ritual, and if the gentleman did the Betas justice?

The attempt to make the fraternities responsible for the rivalry in college political affairs is also a little far-fetched; it would be a great institution in which men were not ambitious to fill the positions of honor at the disposal of the students, even though there were no fraternities. He talks about the time and money spent in fraternities that ought to be devoted to literary pursuits. Evidently he does not know that literary exercises are a regular feature of the evening programs. Of the injustice done in the attempt to make the fraternities responsible for hazing and other college outrages, it is unnecessary to speak. It is too bad that the students killed a man in one of their initiations, but the fool doubtless received what he deserved for attempting to join a lady organization.

It is always best to know something about your subject before attempting to discuss it, especially if you are going to talk about its worst side and ignore whatever good there may be in it. Most fraternity people, as well as Greeks, will condemn the rash utterances of a man who deals with a question in a one-sided manner, and who goes out of his way to put the fraternities in a bad light before the world.

This week my reply was published in the World and also copied by the Indiana Student as follows:

EDITORS WORLD:—I have read your article in Indiana Student referring to my sermon on College Secret Societies. It is remarkable if all the defense the fraternity boys can make is the stereotyped charge "he didn't know what he was talking about." They ground this conclusion on the mistake of the Telephone in making me say Kappa Alpha Theta, instead of Kappa Alpha, in which Mortimer M. Leggett was being initiated when he was killed at Cornell University. It is too bad that this mistake of the Telephone should lead the boys to the conclusion that this unfortunate student, who was the son of Gen. Leggett, U. S Commissioner of Patents, "was a fool, and doubtless received what he deserved for attempting to join a ladies' organization." I will leave it for an intelligent public to decide which of us "didn't know what he was talking about." Again, the Indiana Student accuses me of claiming to know the oath taken by the Beta Theta Pi fraternity. It was their pledge I quoted; and the Indiana Student ought to know that the Lambda Chapter of this fraternity at Bloomington have no oath. The oath which I read in my sermon, and to which the Beta Theta Pi boys took exception in the Telephone, was the oath of the Kappa Phi Delta fraternity. Before the Indiana Student attempts to speak on this subject again it should study to be more accurate, and know what it is talking about. Back in the sixties I spent several years in a college where a number of the college fraternities of Bloomington were born, and where the Greek-letter fraternities were the source of so much mischief and instigated such a morbid appetite for office honors, trickery and wire-working, that they culminated in driving some of the best students from the college, and the faculty were obliged to expel the fraternities, which I predict the faculty of Indiana University will be obliged to do before many years. I have never been a member of any society on whose constitution and rules of order I would not be glad to have turned the full light of discussion.

If the Indiana Student is not afraid to have the light turned on, and will give me an opportunity in its columns, I will be only too glad to show what I know of college secret fraternities.

In 1873 the National Christian Association addressed letters of inquiry to many colleges respecting the Greek-letter fraternity, and out of a list of forty-eight colleges the replies from forty-five testified that their nature and tendency were wholly evil. Princeton has recently prohibited college fraternities after a long experience with them. President D. A. Wallace, for twenty-five years president of the Monmouth College, wrote: "From careful observation I am fully persuaded that very great evils are necessarily attached to the existence of a secret society in a college."

Dr. Howard Crosby, for a time Chancellor of the University of New York, said: "College secret societies interfere with a faithful course of study. They are naturally used for disturbance of public order, and they injure the regular literary societies of the college." M. A. GAULT.

THE WORK OF MISSIONS.

One of the most astonishing facts of the closing years of our century is the spread and dominance of missionary work among the heathen nations of the globe. The truth is that people too frequently draw upon their own ignorance, or their prejudices, for their facts, and so remain oblivious as to what is going on beyond the range of their vision in the spread of the Gospel. They judge of the results of a year's work and expenditures by the accomplishments of that year, and thus lose the perspective view of the whole field for a series of years or decades.

India has been, perhaps, the most difficult and discouraging field the Christian missionary has had to attack. The country was old; it had a religious philosophy and literature possessing many elements of moral grandeur and an educated and cultivated priesthood armed to resist, at all points, the assaults of Christianity. As might have been expected, progress was slow and often disheartening. But the Missionary Review for April presents some statistics that show the great inroads Christianity has made in India proper. They will encourage the friend of foreign missions and surprise those who know little of the extent of the work in that country.

Leaving out Burmah and Ceylon, India proper had in 1851 91,092 native Christians and 267 churches; in 1861 the number had increased to 132,731 and 971 respectively. In 1871 the native Christians numbered 224,258 and the churches 2,278. In 1881 the former reached 417,372 in number and the latter 3,650. In 1890 the native Christians numbered almost 600,000, while the number of churches was 4,863.

While this number is not large as compared with the total population, it is large enough to indicate what rapid progress is being made in mission work in one of the most difficult fields of the world.

Nor is this all. The religion of India is yielding many of its distinctive features. The effort is being made by native priests to ingraft on the Brahman stock many of the truths of Christianity, and the whole system is so honeycombed that its disintegration has already begun. Child-marriage is being surrendered and the burning of widows is no longer tolerated. The influence of caste is slowly yielding under Christian enlightenment.

The four leading missionary boards of this country have a force of 11,108 missionaries in the various fields; the heathen communicants number 217,989, being an increase of 18,832 during last year, and the contributions to this work in 1893 amounted to $4,189,248. The Christian church has every reason to feel encouraged, if not satisfied, with its work and its wonderful accomplishments.—Chicago Record.

FRIENDS OPPOSE SECRET SOCIETIES.

It is claimed again and again by those who speak and write for the lodge that there is no other tie or brotherhood or allegiance on earth so close and so inviolable as that between members of certain lodges. That this is so I think we have sufficient reason to believe, aside from the veracity of those who make the statement. But will anyone claim that it is a brotherhood in Christ, when it is also true that a Mohammedan, a Jew, a Christian, a pagan and a scoffer at all religions are equally eligible to membership if certain other conditions are fulfilled? A certain man some years since gave me an interesting specimen for the Earlham College Museum. By that means I became acquainted with him and he has seemed to take an interest in me ever since. Not long since he stopped me on the street and in our conversation he volunteered the following: "Well, Moore, whatever I am, I am no hypocrite! I belong to a lodge here in town and have often been asked to conduct religious services, but I never will do it, but I know fellows who do, who are no more fit for it than I am." Now this man is not only an unbeliever but he is very well known to be scandalously dissolute. I am not here betraying any confidence, for we were not speaking confidentially, and he was speaking rather boastfully of how good he was in that he was not a hypocrite as other men. However close and sacred the ties between lodge members of all persuasions, they surely ought not to be more sacred or dear than the tie of universal Christian brotherhood which never had and never will have any secret grips or passwords.

To swear at all is bad enough, but how a Christian man, or any manly man, can swear to keep, and to be and do according to secrets he as yet knows not what, and at the same time maintain his self-respect, seems to be something of a problem.—Joseph Moore, in the (Friends') Christian Worker.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

"An Island-Garden."—Some long-lived Boston ministers.—Prohibition matters.—The name of Walsh.—The newspapers.—Agitation in the I. O. O. F.—Mr. Moody's school.—The season in New England.

Says Mrs. Celia Thaxter, in her exquisite "Island-Garden," "the very act of planting a seed in the earth has in it to me something beautiful. I always do it with a joy that is largely mixed with awe." Mrs. Thaxter, with her poet's soul, has said what most of us only feel as we watch the yearly miracle of resurrection which changes the "vile body" of the buried seed into the shining blades of grain, or the many-colored blossoms that bloom simply for our delight. And each one has "its own body." A hollyhock is not a sweet-pea, and the sweet-pea is not the aster. And even each separate plant has its own separate individualty. Given finer and more delicate senses, and we should see subtle shades of difference in flowers of the same family. Notice how the young plant reaches up out of its grave in the dark, damp mould into the sunshine, seeking its "own place." You whose continual soul-cry is for more light, deeper depths of beauty, higher heights of truth, fear not the brief sleep in the clods of the valley, for you, too, shall seek and find your own place. And who shall paint the first rapture of that resurrection-life? Imagine a pansy endowed with a soul; fancy the thrill at its heart when the first green leaf shoots up into a wondrous new world of breeze and sunshine, and other sister flowers, with fairy faces, nestling in their green beds. Multiply it by figures higher than anything known to terrestrial mathematics, and you have a faint glimpse of the joyful surprise God is keeping for you and me, and every one of his children. I am rather glad, by the way, that Mrs. Thaxter is unconventional enough to like the poppy, and brave enough to say so. A bed of this flower, in all the different varieties—orange, and carmine, and gold—is a perfect carnival of color, which few others can rival. Like Tennyson's princess, it "breathes full cast,"—the very atmosphere of dreams.

Dr. Bartol has just celebrated his eighty-first birthday. Dr. Miner, in his eighties, can still aim a blow as telling as ever against rum and Romanism. Dr. Hale, whose pen and voice has for so many years been active in every work of practical philanthropy, said to a reporter, who asked him on his return from the "Parliament of Religions," "Do you preach to-morrow?" "I preach forever!" No "dead-line of fifty" with these men. In fact, it is growing less prominent with every decade. An examination of any religious encyclopædia will show how much briefer were the lives of noted clergymen one or two hundred years ago than now.

"Education is slow work." Very slow indeed; but "slow and sure" seems to be the method of Providence. If children are educated to see the evil of the deadly cigarette, and to pledge themselves, against the use of tobacco in every form, the next generation will be comparatively free from the vice. A few cases of death from this cause get into the papers, but the majority are ascribed to something else. Those members of the Boston school board who oppose the forming of anti-cigarette leagues among the children, "because it will only tend to foster the habit," show a curious mental and moral obliquity.

Our cities and large towns still continue to be stirred up over the corruption of the license system, as now administered by aldermen in the pay of the rum party. In New Britain, Conn., the liquor cases, forty in all, have been summarily dismissed by Judge Roche, who decided that "such testimony," namely that of "spotters," or informers, "has to be received with much caution and distrust." This practically throws out of court all liquor cases where the prosecution depend on such testimony; and yet, as is well known, evidence against violators of the law can seldom be obtained in any other manner. But let the agitation continue. Anything is better than the stagnation of indifference.

If anybody bearing the name of Welch or Walsh is foolishly ashamed of it because it seems to betoken Hibernian descent, let him understand that, on the contrary, it betokens the purest British lineage. Arthur and his Knights of the Round Table were Welches, and also the ancestors of the Tudors. Tyndal was tutor in the family of a Sir John Walsh when he was cherishing his great project of translating the Bible into English, and received from him his strongest encouragement. Welch was the name held by the few aboriginal Britons when they took refuge in the mountains of Wales from the hordes of Hengist and Horsa. So writes a correspondent of the Transcript who bears this name and has been looking up his "family tree."

Dean Wayland, when he talked to the law-students at Yale, and gave them his mind about receiving and entertaining "a lot of soap-fearing, vermin-haunted vagabonds, whom the newspapers call Coxeyites," contrived to get in a sarcastic reference to these same journals by saying that he should not have thought these remarks necessary if he had not read of the movement in the papers, and added, "That I saw it in the newspapers, however, is good evidence that it is not true." The great blanket-sheets, with their scandals and prize-fights and amours of actresses, are getting to be what one writer calls them, "one great, monotonous, soul-sickening bray." This seems to pre-suppose an unlimited number of donkeys' ears in the dear public for whom they are supposed to cater.

Gov. Greenhalge finds he must give up public dinners. I wonder how many men in high positions whose final break-down was laid to overwork have really succumbed to this much more deadly foe. People in these days do not die of overwork so much as from the constant demands made by society upon them, by which their time and strength are frittered away uselessly.

According to the Manchester Union the I. O. O. F. fraternity, in some localities, are much stirred up over a recent movement to abolish the horse-collar which is such a prominent feature in their regalia. To be or not to be,—this is the burning question. "To abolish the collar," says one indignant Odd-fellow "would be like obliterating the stars and stripes from the flag of our country. Many have learned to love the collar and want no ruthless hand laid upon it." This is not merely a touching piece of sentiment. What would Masonry, Odd-fellowship, or any other secret order, be without the regalia in which it shines to dazzle the eyes of small boys and simpering school-girls? Much in the condition of the unfortunate maid of nursery fame, whom the mischievous blackbird deprived of her nasal appendage.

"I've been here three months and haven't heard an oath or foul story," says a member of Mr. Moody's Mt. Hermon school. Of how many colleges in the land could this be said? But at the same time the students play as fine a game at foot-ball, minus the rowdyism, as anywhere; in fact, their team is said to lead all the other schools and colleges in the Connecticut Valley. There is a vast difference between schools and colleges where the students go to work, and those where rich men's sons set the fashion of idleness and dissipation.

The season is two weeks ahead in most parts of New England, and there is a prospect that this will be an unusually good fruit-year where the canker-worm and caterpillar do not get in their nefarious work. Every appletree is a huge bouquet, wafting sweeter scents than those of "Araby the Blessed," and the more gnarled and witch-like, the more it is sought by the nest-building robin and all manner of creeping and flying things that delight in its shadow. In what wonderful relief the snow-white bough stands out against the blue sky, and what a buzz and hum of happy insect-life, to which one old appletree is as much as the whole stellar universe is to us.

ELIZABETH E. FLAGG.

Please renew your subscription now.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, May 9, 1894.

The most important act of any member of the present administration, from the standpoint of those who believe in moral reform, was Postmaster Bissell's determination not to appoint any man postmaster who is engaged in selling intoxicating liquor. Mr. Bissell's argument is unanswerable. He says that a man who sells intoxicating liquor is, in his opinion, unfitted to occupy a position of trust. He is right; there is a screw loose in the moral machinery of any man who is willing to engage in a business which contaminates everything it comes in contact with, and which creates more misery and entails more suffering upon innocent women and children than any other business that is recognized by law; but he should not stop at refusing to appoint sellers of intoxicating liquor; he should also refuse to appoint drinkers of the vile stuff, and then the President and every other member of the Cabinet should do likewise. Many good men, aye, and women too, have for years been studying and promulgating methods of purifying politics, but none of them have made a striking success of it, although their earnest efforts have resulted in some improvement. This administration has an opportunity to do more towards purifying politics than has been done during the preceding century, by taking whisky out of politics. Let it be officially announced that no man who drinks intoxicants can be appointed to or hold office, and temperance would be given the greatest boom it has ever enjoyed, and the official business of the country would be better transacted than ever before. Nothing short of a Constitutional amendment can reach the whisky-drinkers of Congress; but it was made apparent this week, when a member of Congress, while intoxicated, made an unprovoked attack upon an inoffensive citizen, on Pennsylvania Avenue, that they ought to be reached in some way. There will be—there can be—no purification of politics until whisky-drinking is banished therefrom, and Mr. Bissell deserves well of the country for having taken even a short step in that direction.

It was confidently expected by many that the Senate would ratify the Chinese treaty this week, but it did not, although an executive session five hours long was entirely devoted to the treaty. The labor organizations have increased the opposition in the Senate, and they are credited with the delay in acting upon the treaty.

The International Peace Bureau, at Berne, Switzerland, has selected the following to constitute a branch bureau, with headquarters in this city: Alfred H. Love, of Philadelphia; Belva A. Lockwood, of Washington, D. C.; Chas. C. Bonney, of Chicago; Rev. Amanda Deyo, San Diego, Cal.; and William F. Aldrich, Aldrich, Ala. This bureau is to be made the medium of communication between the various American peace associations and the Berne bureau. The sixth Universal Peace Congress will be held from Aug. 29 to September 3, at Antwerp, Belgium, by invitation of and under the auspices of the managers of the exposition now being held there.

Every observer has noticed the remarkable growth in recent years of young people's organizations in the churches, and none of them have had a more phenomenal growth than the Brotherhood of Andrew and Philip, which, although only six years old, has nearly 200 chapters in the United States and Canada, embracing in its membership eleven denominations. Washington and Baltimore have united in a brotherhood union, meetings of which are to be frequently held in both cities. At its present rate of growth the membership of to-day will be doubled before the organization is ten years old.

Now that the amendments—more than 400 in number—to the tariff bill have been submitted to the Senate it is expected that the majority will proceed to push the bill to a vote, and, although the amendments are not, on the whole, entirely satisfactory to any of the Senators, it is not believed that the minority will resort to any dilatory tactics to present a vote.

If any proof had been needed that the leaders of the so-called "Coxey's army" are willfully and intentionally misleading the 500 men now camped in about the unhealthiest spot in Washington, it was furnished by the refusal of those leaders to allow ministers of the Gospel to preach to the men. The health officials have recommended that the camp be removed, regarding it as a menace to the health of the city. Yesterday, after a trial lasting the greater part of four days, Coxey and two of his assistants, Browne and Jones, were convicted of violating the law for the protection of the Capitol building and grounds. They will appeal to a higher court, if denied a new trial.

A WORTHY COADJUTOR OF THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

Our readers are not ignorant of the fact that education is the power which, under God, determines the future. Why are we what we are? Largely because of our training. How are the people of the earth to be made what they should be? Evidently by correct education. We do not omit the truths of Scripture. Repentance, confession, faith and regeneration are foundation stones in character. No man is educated into salvation.

But none the less, education has to do with salvation. How can men believe unless they hear? and how can they hear without a preacher? and what is a preacher but a teacher? The learned nations are not necessarily Christian, but the ignorant nations are necessarily pagan. This is true not only of Christianity in bulk but of the system in detail. Evils are not recognized and opposed without information, and information is not gained and communicated without schools or their equivalent.

These truths which are patent to all have application to the work of the National Christian Association and its organ, the Christian Cynosure. While we recognize with gratitude the work of other schools and scholars we may still say, what all who are familiar with the facts know, that Wheaton College has done much toward setting the truth on the lodge question before the people. We know that many Cynosure readers have given to it, prayed for it, and thanked God for its teachers and graduates. This fact would be ample apology were any needed for saying a few words regarding our College at Wheaton.

It was founded in 1860, having had its beginning some years before as a preparatory school called Illinois Institute. The purpose of the College was and is to furnish a thorough preparatory and college education and at the same time to aid its students to become Christian workers. This latter point is not crowded into a subordinate place, but is kept continually before both faculty and students as the great end for which education is to be desired. That a measure of success has been attained in this direction is evidenced by the work which its graduates, Stoddard, Bailey, Kellogg, Phillips, Hiatt, Wheeler, Nutting and others, have done.

The College has a fine stone building, beautifully located in a campus of fourteen acres in Wheaton, twenty-five miles west from Chicago on the C. & N. W. railway. A frame building which has served a valuable purpose for nearly forty years is also employed, but should now be replaced by a modern structure. Here are taught over two hundred and fifty young men and women annually. Three courses of study, the classical, the scientific, and the literary, each requiring four years, constitute the College work. The preparatory school includes courses leading to each of the above and the English and Normal courses which are designed for those who have not been able to complete their English work and for those designing to teach.

In order to the highest usefulness the College should have as soon as possible a ladies' hall, an observatory, a gymnasium and an addition to its permanent funds. With these facilities added to those now at hand there is reason for supposing that four or five hundred students would be enrolled and that the power of the College for good would be much more than doubled. Meanwhile there is required a subscription toward current expenses in order that those who are instructing these young men and women and are thus giving thousands to the work of Christian education may do so without care. At the present time nearly three thousand dollars are needed in order to close the year with all expenses paid. If ten persons should give one hundred dollars each; twenty, fifty dollars each, and one hundred, ten dollars each, the entire sum would be raised, a great work would be forwarded, and no one need be deprived of any comfort.

Of course gifts larger or smaller would be gratefully received. No offering which comes from a friendly hand will be unwelcome, but the above plan is outlined that all may see how easily the needed sum could be secured by a concerted effort on the part of those interested in the work. As one who has been for twenty-five years your fellow worker and who has labored for our common cause so far as strength and ability permitted, I am free to urge every reader of the Cynosure to send at once some offering, large or small, to this work. I believe that it will come back to you in a better state of society, a more effective church.

Should any of those to whom this may come desire to give toward buildings or endowments and desire to confer with me on the subject it will be a pleasure to hear from them. We are gratified also to acknowledge notice from a number of our friends of bequests for our work, but at this time our special desire is that all those who are laboring with us for Christ and his kingdom and who have not aided us for the present year should, if God puts it within their power and into their hearts, do so immediately. In the love and service of Jesus, your friend and fellow-worker, CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.

Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill.

REFORM NEWS.

ANTI-SECRECY MEETINGS IN WASHINGTON.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 14, 1894.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—I write to say that Bro. and Sister Powers, who have aided us in the Washington work during the past winter, have arranged for regular cottage-meetings at 67 New York avenue. They hold these meetings Thursdays and Fridays of each week, at 11 o'clock. Sister Powers is an expert at chart-talks. Any Masons in Washington, who are not as "bright" as they desire to be, could not find a better opportunity to post up than by attending these meetings. Those not acquainted with the inside workings of Masonry will find this a good place to learn of the things done of them in secret. Already Sister Powers reports that some have left their lodges on learning the facts as presented by her. I trust these meetings, so unselfishly conducted, may be blessed of God in the salvation of many. Let all the friends who can attend and aid this work. Those who cannot attend can pray for God's blessing upon it.

W. B. STODDARD.

FROM THE PACIFIC COAST AGENT.

PHILOMATH, Ore., May 5, 1894.

Large crowds greeted me at the M. E. church in Sheridan, Monday and Tuesday evenings, April 30 and May 1. The congregations were very attentive.

The meetings had been well announced in the pulpit and the Sheridan local paper. Sheridan is a nice little town of some five hundred people. It is quite an enterprising place, and a stranger would judge them to be a church-going people. The better people of the place pride themselves that they have only one saloon, while the best people of the town are in favor of prohibiting it.

The first night, we spoke on the evils of intemperance. After portraying its horrors, we undertook to prove that the only possibility of riddance is the legal prohibition of the evil. Laws to restrain it have existed from the colonial times to the present, but we might with equal propriety undertake to regulate a den of rattlesnakes, or the bottomless pit. Prohibit evil at all times, and refuse it license at any price.

There is quite a temperance sentiment here, but the voters need shaking up, because they are praying for what they want, prohibition, and then vote for what they don't want, license.

The more I study this subject the more astonished I am that professors of religion will favor the receiving of revenue for that which murders seventy-five thousand people annually; virtually selling for slaughter that many men each year, fitting them only for "outer darkness" and banishment from the presence of Almighty God forever.

On Tuesday night, I spoke on the lodge question. The congregation was quite large, and very well disposed. The various lodges were well represented. It was plain to be seen, however, that some who had been in attendance the two evenings before, could not "stand fire" on this

(Continued on 9th page.)

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE OATH OF THE A. P. A.—IS IT RIGHT OR WRONG?

CHICAGO, May 10, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—Wrong, is my answer. Although I agree with the A. P. A. and all others who oppose the connexion of church and state, I do not regard such oaths as the proper element in promoting the welfare of the people, personally, politically, or religiously. This is now a free country in each of these relationships; and the oaths of the A. P. A. and kindred secret societies are the same in character—an infringement upon the freedom and manhood of every member in those societies.

A correspondent of a religious paper heads his letter, "Give the Devil His Due," and so, while ready to extirpate the I. P. I. (whatever that may be), he tries to justify the A. P. A. oath by the example of the aforesaid I. P. I. They are thus alike subverters of the civil oath, and alike set up an authority over the consciences of their members, which authority is, or may be, supreme over the laws of the United States.

Thus a slavery of the soul is experienced until this baneful influence of the lodge is repudiated.

Americans, as citizens, and as Christians, should ever openly maintain the perfect freedom of the citizen, politically and religiously; and the perfect, separate independence of each. A man may be both a citizen and a Christian, but his first duty is, as a Christian, to suffer, if necessary, for the name, but never to enforce the Gospel by the sword of state. Peter was told to put up his sword. But as a citizen he should, of course, appeal to the civil power, and have evildoers punished; for law is written in every human heart. Yes, he may be a soldier and, if necessary, die to maintain the stars and stripes.

Away, then, with all the wrongful oaths, which, alas! too often frustrate the divinely authorized civil oath to tell the truth when called on in the interest of, and for the welfare of, the whole American people. Yours truly, SENEX.

FROM CORRESPONDENCE TO SECRETARY PHILLIPS.

HOPKINTON, IOWA.

The pastor of the Reformed Presbyterian church of Hopkinton, Iowa, sends a note of thanks for the kindly co-operation of the N. C. A. with him in his efforts to bear faithful witness in his parish. When the Knights of Pythias were organized, his Sabbath-school took up a collection and sent for expositions for distribution. The pastor writes: "Our community has been pretty well-informed on secret society lines, and there is evidence of good fruit resulting. ——."

ANOTHER PASTOR,

but of a United Presbyterian church in Illinois, sends for facts, saying: "I am in a conflict with an Odd-fellows' lodge that is making an effort to draw away some of our young men from the church. I am going to preach upon the subject in two weeks." Later I learned that this pastor's words not only blessed those not yet drawn into the lodge, but led at least one to renounce his obligations. I give an extract from a later letter from the same pastor: "The Odd-fellows have been on the rampage ever since my sermon. They brought Dr. Blodgett, pastor First M. E. Church of Galesburg, here last Monday night, and he paid me his compliments in not very flattering terms. I have come to the conclusion that when a man becomes an Odd-fellow he loses his senses as well as his manhood. I invited the lodge to place him upon one side of the pulpit of my church, and allow me to occupy the other side, but for some cause they did not take to that idea....I am becoming more and more convinced that the devil is the Grand Master of these cursed institutions. ———."

THE FOLLOWING

from a Presbyterian pastor of New York State, one of a number to whom sample Cynosures were sent, is appreciated for its kindly tone and interest in this reform: "I enclose to you a dollar draft—a subscription for the Cynosure. I do not wish to be a tax on a good cause and self-denying labors, and I will say, a very sensibly edited paper. Let my subscription date from the time you began sending it to me. ———."

S. G. SWENSON,

Crookstown, Minn., asks the following question: "I have been told that the World's Grand Council of Independent Order of Good Templars has decided to allow the Hindoos in India to use the Veda in their lodges instead of our Bible. Is that a fact? I believe it but have no means of proving it."

DOING GOOD WORK.

"I am sending out accumulated numbers the of Cynosure, with one or more tracts, to each of the 154 school district clerks in our county. Sincerely yours, ———."

[Tract distribution, judiciously performed, is a very successful method of getting our reform before strangers.]

THE LODGE AND THE COURTS.

DEKALB, Iowa, April, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—Several years ago, in a case in court between a Granger landlord, plaintiff, and his tenant, defendant, it was seen that secretism tried to control the jury. It took several days to try the case, and when it was submitted to the jury, the foreman, a Granger, said, "I would suffer my right hand to be cut off before I would give a verdict against the plaintiff." It seemed that all the secret society men were agreed, but four of the jury thought, according to evidence, that justice demanded a decision in favor of the defendant. And so they stood several hours four to eight. Then they sent to the judge for instructions. The judge, of course, did not tell them how to decide, but if they found that the evidence justified it, they might write their verdict thus, "We find for the defendant." But it was twenty-four hours before they were all willing to sign such a verdict. They did, however, and none lost a hand either.

Why is it that secret society men hang the jury for their members, more than those of the church do for brethren? Is it not the secret oath? Why do some lawyers advise their clients to join a lodge to gain a suit in court? I am informed by good authority that such advice has been given, in more than one place, by several attorneys, but I never heard of such advice given concerning the church, because it is a more honest institution.

But because of the influences of Christianity, many lodge men have the honor to respect the civil above the lodge oath; and honorable judges render just decisions and maintain the dignity of the law. They are men, in spite of every evil influence. If able-bodied men were all controlled by lodge influence, then cripples, women, fools and children could not obtain justice.

It was thought that justice in our courts was, because of lodge influence, fast becoming a farce. But because of Christianity, our only hope, such a calamity will not overtake us, we pray. No one can estimate the good done by the National Christian Association, as an instrument in the hands of God; and still we need the light.

CYRUS SMITH.

CYNOSURE OFFER!

Any of the Books sold by the N. C. A. in this paper, ordered, with subscription to the Cynosure, at one-fourth off from list price, sent postpaid.

The New Volume of Pen and Pencil Series.

WELSH PICTURES Drawn with Pen and Pencil.

By D. Lewis Jones, Morris Jones, Edward Ffoulkes, H. Elvet Lewis, D. Tyssil Evans D. Davies and O. M. Edwards. Edited by Richard Lovett, M. A. With many Illustrations. Imperial 8vo, cloth, gilt edges, boxed..... 3.20

"'Welsh pictures' is the work of ten Welshmen, among whom illustrating the beauties of Wales has been parcelled out according to the special familiarity of each. The result is a pleasing volume."—London Times.

THE EARTHLY FOOTPRINTS OF OUR RISEN LORD, Illumined.

A continuous narrative of the Four Gospels according to The Revised Version, with introduction by Rev. John Hall, D. D. Illustrated by 113 full-page half tone re-productions. Small 4to, cloth.....net 1.50
Gilt edge, with silk book mark, boxed.....net 2.00
Full morocco, flexible, gilt edges, round corners, boxed.....net 3.75

Pictures reflecting the best in sacred art from Raphael to the present day are scattered profusely through the book.

"To many the life of the Christ will be a new book in this form. Though beyond the introduction it contains no word except what is found in the four Gospels, yet when read continuously, without the breaks necessarily made by the different stories of the four evangelists, the narrative takes on new force and lifelikeness. The very fact that this is not our usual method of reading the Word will give it a new reality."—Golden Rule

A GIFT OF LOVE, and Loving Greetings for 365 Days.

By Rose Porter. Long 18mo. Paper cloth..... 1.00
White cloth, silver top, in box..... 1.25
Decorated silk, silver top, in box..... 1.75

"'A Gift of Love' is the work of a loving heart. It contains a text of Scripture for every day of the year with the addition of an appropriate thought in poetry of prose all bearing on the theme of love. The work must have called for a great amount of patient toil. But it has not been spent in vain, for the volume will prove a blessing to many a soul. To use it day by day for a year thoughtfully and prayerfully, must result in a rich growth in love on the part of the user. The author is well known and esteemed for her previous works' sake."—The N. Y. Observer.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE SERIES.

By Rev. F. B. Meyer, containing CHRISTIAN LIVING, THE PRESENT TENSES OF THE BLESSED LIFE, AND THE SHEPHERD PSALM. 3 vols. in box. 18mo, cloth..... 1.50
White vellum cloth, silver top, in box..... 1.75

D. L. Moody says: "Few books of recent years are better adapted to instruct and help Christians than those of this author. He is a man mighty in the scriptures, saturated with Bible facts and truths."

PRAYERS FROM THE POETS.

By Martha Harger. 16mo, two colored cloth, gilt top..... 1.00
Leatherette, boxed..... 1.50

"This volume is admirable. The Prayer are better suited to some of our moods than formal Litanies and are selected from excellent sources. The book will be a dear treasure to many hearts."—The Churchman.

KIN-DA-SHON'S WIFE.

An Alaskan Story. By Mrs. Eugene S. Willard, Home Missionary of the Presbyterian Board of America to Alaska. With illustrations. 8vo, cloth..... 1.50

"Being a close observer and in deep sympathy with the native population in their struggles towards a Christian Civilization, Mrs. Willard has gained a more intelligent knowledge of their character, of their needs and hindrances, than perhaps any other person."—Dr. Sheldon Jackson.

HEROES OF THE GOODWIN SANDS.

By Rev. Thomas Stanley Treanor. With many illustrations. 8vo, Cloth..... 1.50

"It is a book of most engrossing interest, and as stimulating as it is readable."—The Record.
"The deeds of daring are thrilling in the extreme. Suitable for the public library or for the home."—Times.

THE GREAT LONDON DAILIES.

By H. W. Massingham. Profusely illustrated. 12mo, cloth..... 1.00

Very welcome to all who like to look behind the scenes and see how the great London dailies are worked.

New Editions.

The Prayer Meeting and Its Improvement.

By Rev. LEWIS O. THOMPSON. Eighth edition, cloth, $1.25.

"Most heartily do we wish this work a wide circulation, both among pastors and people, and we hope it may do much toward the lifting of the prayer-meeting into that higher place which it ought to hold among the grand instrumentalities in the kingdom of the Master'—Congregationalist.

"We do not remember to have met with a work so suggestive, and we heartily commend it to both pastors and private members."—Baptist Weekly.

The Crisis of Missions. By Rev. ARTHUR T. PIERSON, D. D.

Cloth, $1.25; paper, 35c.

"We do not hesitate to say that this book is the most purposeful, earnest, and intelligent review of the mission work and field which has ever been given to the church."—Christian Statesman.

The Christian's Secret of a Happy Life.

By HANNAH WHITALL SMITH. One hundredth thousand. Issued in fourteen styles, from 50c. to $2.50. Send for circular.

"To commend this work would seem almost superfluous; and yet to young Christians who may not know it, we cannot refrain from saying, Buy this book, and keep it with your Bible for constant study, until you have thoroughly mastered, in your own experience, the 'secret' of which it tells. It will transform the dark days of your life, as it has transformed those of thousands before you, into days of heavenly light."—New York Evangelist.

The Topical Text Book. Fourth edition.

16 mo., cloth, 60c.

This little volume is a worker's most useful tool. It collates all Scripture passages under their topical headings, and for this reason proves far more helpful in studying a subject than the best concordance.

"I find one of the very best ways to study the Scripture is to study topically."—D. L. Moody.

Stalker's Life of Christ. Twelfth edition.

Stalker's Life of St. Paul. Fourth edition.

12 mo., cloth, each, 60c.

These works by Professor James Stalker, M. A., are unique in their compact putting of these lives into such condensed form without injurious brevity. They are being taken up as text books by Biblical classes in all parts of the country, thus proving their practical value.

Grace and Truth under Twelve Different Aspects.

By W. P. MACKAY, M. A. Paper, 35c.; cloth, 75c. Two hundred and fiftieth thousand.

This remarkable sale can only be attributed to the very practical character of this work as a guide to the inquirer and a work of helpful instruction for the immature Christian. It is of this volume Mr. D. L. Moody said: "I know of no work in print better adapted to place in the hands of the inquirer."

Notes and Suggestions for Bible Readings.

By S. R. BRIGGS. Sixtieth thousand. 8 vo, cloth. $1.00; flexible, 75c.

Edition after edition of this work has been called for until it would seem the demand must be supplied. The sales however, increase rather than otherwise.

Feathers for Arrows. By Rev. C. H. SPURGEON.

16 mo., cloth, $1.00.

Few preachers have made such effective use of pointed illustrations as the well known pastor of the great Metropolitan Tabernacle. Here he has given us a large cluster of his best with liberty to enjoy and employ.

Revell's Record for Church Treasurers.

Size No. 1, $1.50; Size No. 2, $2.00.

Popular because practical—valuable because time saving—the only record for weekly envelope system that reduces the treasurer's work to the minimum.

For sale by the

National Christian Association,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Ill.

OBITUARY.

JAMES HARVEY,

of Pleasant Plain, Iowa, passed peacefully away on the 15th of January, 1894, aged seventy-one years and six months. He bore a lingering illness for more than two years with Christian patience and resignation, often saying that he was only waiting for the time of his release. Near the last he remarked: "We often hear of the terrors of death, but if this is death which I feel slowly but surely creeping upon me, it has no terrors for me."

This Christian brother was deeply interested in the advance of prohibition and anti-secrecy, and in his death our reform loses a good friend.

LODGE NOTES.

SECRET SOCIETIES AND THE CHURCH.

There is quite a disruption among the members of the Roman Catholic church. Bishop Becker has caused it, by sending forth an edict that members of the Catholic church will not be granted absolution who are members of the K. of P., Odd-fellows, Golden Eagle, and other similar organizations. The most interesting thing about the fight against these organizations is that the blow is aimed more particularly against the K. of P's. This should not be, as that organization, or at any rate its members belonging to the Catholic church, for years past have been potent factors in the upbuilding of the church. But that is not all. The members of the orders who are not Catholics have been most liberal in helping the church financially. The unpleasant part of the fight is felt more keenly by the priests of the different churches, some of whom are in sympathy with the objects of the orders that the fight is being waged against. They recognize the charity and Christian spirit with which these orders and its members are imbued. —The Savannah (Ga) Independent.

A RIVAL OF THE SHRINERS.

A rival of the celebrated A. O. N. M. S. has been put into being in Cincinnati, Ohio. It is of a Russian (not rushing) character and is called the Imperial Order of Muscovites. The first meeting was held in the Odd-fellows' Temple in that city, on the last Friday in March, and a large class became members. It is in no way connected with Odd-fellowship, but it is especially intended for the members of that order, It is styled the Imperial Order of Muscovites, and the lodge in Cincinnati is named the "Kremlin-Moscow." The officers of this body are —Czar, E. L. Mehner; Regent, G. W. Halley; Commander, W. H. Creighton; High Priest, J H. Shobrook; Inspector, A. D. Poterfield; Royal Messenger E. T. Hannum; Recorder, W. E. Moorehead; Treasurer, J. H. Moss; Guard, George Rowe; Trustees; Wm. Knight, M. Dodsworth, J. W. Paul, Ernst Koklanner, George F. Fritsch, C. De Ruiter. Much secrecy is exercised by those connected with it. Time will develop its merits, its uses and its benefits.—The Companion.

A Grand Feature

Of Hood' Sarsaparilla is that while it purifies the blood and sends it coursing through the veins full of richness and health, it also imparts new life and vigor to every function of the body. Hence the expression so often heard: "Hood's Sarsaparilla made a new person of me." It entirely overcomes that feeling so common this season, cures headache, biliousness, dyspepsia, scrofula, and all humors. It accomplishes wonderful cures where other medicines fail to do any good. Such success proves merit. If you are sick is it not the medicine for you? A fair trial guarantees a complete cure.

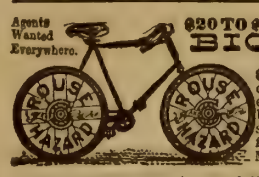
Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp.

LORD & THOMAS,
NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING
45 RANDOLPH STREET,
CHICAGO.

MOTHERS

and those soon to become mothers, should know that Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription robs childbirth of its tortures, terrors and dangers to both mother and child, by aiding nature in preparing the system for parturition. Thereby "labor" and the period of confinement are greatly shortened. It also promotes the secretion of an abundance of nourishment for the child.

Mrs. DORA A. GUTHRIE, of Oakley, Overton Co., Tenn., writes: "When I began taking your 'Favorite Prescription,' I was not able to stand on my feet without suffering almost death. Now I do all my housework, washing, cooking, sewing and everything for my family of eight. I am stouter now than I have been in six years. Your 'Favorite Prescription' is the best to take before confinement, or at least it proved so with me. I never suffered as little with any of my children as I did with my last, and she is the healthiest we've got. Have induced several to try 'Favorite Prescription,' and it has proved good for them."



Agents Wanted Everywhere.

$20 TO $60 SAVED ON NEW BICYCLES

$125 high grade Safety $50; $100 pneu. $60; $40 cush. ball $20 etc. Largest and oldest dealers in U. S. Easy payments We sell everywhere. Catafree. House, Hazard & Co., Mfrs., 4 G St., Peoria, Ill.

MY WIFE CANNOT SEE HOW YOU DO IT AND PAY FREIGHT.

$14 Buys our 2 drawer walnut or oak Improved High Arm Singer sewing machine finely finished, nickel plated, adapted to light and heavy work; guaranteed for 10 Years; with Automatic Bobbin Winder, Self-Threading Cylinder Shuttle, Self-Setting Needle and a complete set of Steel Attachments; shipped any where on 30 Day's Trial. No money required in advance. 75,000 now in use. World's Fair Medal awarded machine and attachments. Buy from factory and save dealer's and agent's profits.

FREE Cut This Out and send to-day for machine or large free catalogue, testimonials and Glimpses of the World's Fair.

OXFORD MFG. CO. 342 Wabash Ave. CHICAGO, ILL.

WHEATON COLLEGE,

WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women.

SPRING TERM BEGINS TUESDAY, APRIL 3RD.

ENROLLMENT BEGINS MONDAY, APRIL 2ND.

For Catalogue, address

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

IF YOU

WANT WORK

that is pleasant and profitable, send us your address immediately. We teach men and women how to earn from $5 per day to $3,000 per year without having had previous experience, and furnish the employment at which they can make that amount. Capital unnecessary. A trial will cost you nothing. Write to-day and address,

E. C. ALLEN & CO.,
Box 1001. Augusta, Me.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained, and all Patent business conducted for Moderate Fees.

Our Office is Opposite U. S. Patent Office, and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A Pamphlet, "How to Obtain Patents," with names of actual clients in your State, county, or town, sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.
Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES

MONTHLIES.
The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, Sunshine, each, per quar., 3c.

WEEKLIES.
L. & L. Infant Class, 4c.
L. & L. Intermediate Lesson Leaf..... 1⅜c.
L. & L. Lesson Leaf, 1⅜c.
Golden Treasures (for every fifth Sunday) 1c.

QUARTERLIES.

LIGHT AND LIFE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY		5c.
" " "	SCHOLAR'S "	3c.
" " "	INTERMEDIATE "	3c.
" " "	PRIMARY "	3c.

Secretaries' Books, Class Registers, Reward Cards and Tickets, Charts, Maps, S. S. Libraries and other supplies. A large line of books, tracts, pamphlets, Bibles and Testaments at lowest prices.

BOOK AND PAMPHLET PRINTING

Done with neatness and dispatch. Send for estimates.

T. B. ARNOLD,
104-106 Franklin St., CHICAGO, ILL.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Col er on Masonry.
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

NORTHERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
Nathan Callender Montdale Pa.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
W. M. Love, Osceola, Mo.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Thompson, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
D. A. Richards, Brighton, Mich.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill.

Disloyal

SECRET OATHS

ADDRESS OF

JOSEPH COOK,

OF BOSTON,

AT THE

Conference of Christians

CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a nationa subject, and very valuable for re ence.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate. By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter)
—AND OFFICE OF—
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. A. J. Gordon D.D. Boston, Mass.

VICE PRESIDENT—Charles A. Blanchard, President Wheaton College Ill.

GEN'L SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I. Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

REC. SECRETARY—Amos Dresser, Jr. Wheaton, Ill., Box 367.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E Whipple, E. R. Worrell, Edgar B. Wylie W. M. Howie, H. F. Kletzing.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., J. A. Conant; Vice-president, S. C. Kimball; Sec'y, D. B. Gunn.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. R. W. Chesnut Marissa; Sec., Rev. J. R. Wylie, Coulterville; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., Rev. J. A. Greer, Columbus City; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton; Treas., Rev. L. Mendenhall, Fairfield.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., ——— ———, ——— Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom, Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morrill St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry; Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

OREGON.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dillon, D.D., Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan, Beaver; Treas., Edwin P Sellew, Philadelphia.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poynette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas J W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

HENRY M. HUGUNIN - - - - Editor.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, MAY 17, 1894.

RELIGIOUS GAMBLING.

Church fairs and raffles caused a ripple in the august United States Senate a few days ago, when a bill came up for the suppression of lottery traffic through national and interstate commerce and the postal service.

Senator Vest, of Missouri, protested against the extension of anti-gambling laws to religious fairs where articles are raffled off for charitable purposes.

To a question by Senator Gray, of Delaware, whether church members should be exempted from the operation of the law, Mr. Vest replied that if any Senator thought that church and charity fairs should be placed on the same footing as the Louisiana or Havana lotteries, he was welcome to his opinion; but he thought the question hardly worthy the Senator from Delaware.

Senator Gorman, of Maryland, coincided with the views expressed by Mr. Vest, and suggested that the bill should be laid over until there was more time to consider it.

Senator Hoar remarked that no officer, he supposed, would interfere with church or charity affairs. Whether officers should do so or not was a question which might be discussed. But no provision of law could be made that would prohibit the offence of gambling, and at the same time contain a provision that church members and amiable people might gamble a little for pious purposes. It was not practicable and would be mischievous legislation.

Senator Gorman again expressed his sentiments respecting the bill, incidentally citing the fact that in two-thirds of the hospitals in Washington and the institution of the Little Sisters of the Poor two-thirds of the revenue came from those practices. There was no demand or necessity, he said, for such legislation.

The bill went over without further action.

The New York Mail and Express thus sums up the discussion:

"Senators Vest and Gorman objected to placing church and charity fairs on the same footing with the Louisiana and Havana lotteries. These Senators are both wrong and right. They are wrong in supposing that gambling is any less immoral and injurious by being carried on within a church edifice and for alleged pious purposes or charitable causes. They are right in contending that a church lottery is not on the same footing with the Louisiana or Havana lottery. A church lottery is the last degree of desecration and degradation. Christ's 'whip of small cords' drove the honest but misguided men of merchandise out of the ancient temple. The church that turns itself into a gambling den needs and deserves a more severe chastisement."

A SCHEME TO CAPTURE IRELAND BY FORCE.

One of the Chicago papers of May 13 devotes two columns of fine type, with a map and diagrams, to the exposure of a plot, hatched in Chicago, which is neither more nor less than a bold and elaborate scheme of Irish-Americans, assisted by France and one or more other Latin governments known to be more or less opposed to England, to capture Ireland by force and arms.

The inside facts relating to this gigantic conspiracy, it is said, are in possession of the British government, and forewarned and forearmed, England will undoubtedly be able to frustrate it.

The scheme is considered the most systematic attempt at revolution against the United Kingdom, planned by Irishmen, since the days of Wolfe Tone, in 1796-'98, whose French-Irish expedition for the liberation of Ireland met with inglorious defeat by a British squadron on the Irish coast. Among important facts revealed concerning the present conspiracy are these: For some time "there have been in existence in London and in Paris offices maintained by the Irish revolutionary societies. The London branch, housed in several rooms over a livery stable in the Strand, had the duty of collecting and disseminating military intelligence and of keeping the Paris branch informed continually of the strength and movements of the military in England and in Ireland. It was to provide emissaries and to place men in the gun shops at Woolwich and other arsenals, as well as in the important defensive works. In Ireland men were kept in the coast guard, in the constabulary, in the line regiments, in the railway service and in the government offices. A set of maps, complete in every detail, showing the trace, profile and armament of important fortifications, with harbor and channel charts for most of the Irish and English coasts, were obtained by this staff service, which had also certain diplomatic functions. It was the agency between the parliamentary party and the peasant societies. The money to sustain it came from America, whence also troops were expected to come."

Next week (D. V.) we purpose to describe how Ireland was to have been captured. The details show a large degree of Irish shrewdness, and include the blowing-up of the fortress of Gibraltar, at the west end of the Mediterranean Sea. This accomplished, England would be crippled by the cutting off of her passage, through the Mediterranean, Suez Canal and Indian Ocean, to her Asiatic possessions, and her commerce would probably be apportioned among other nations.

The discovery of this deep-laid plot, which also embraced the destruction of many important public works and other property in England, is another argument against the formation of political secret societies in this or any other country.

ALTARS.

There are altars many, and gods many. Though the sacrifice be taken away from the synagogues of God's chosen people, and their house is left unto them desolate until he whose right it is to reign shall return and rule in righteousness, it was not always so. In times when Israel sought good, and not evil, their offerings went up before the Lord as a sweet savor, and his blessing was upon them; but when he determined to cast them out for their rejection of the Messiah and their hypocrisy, he said: "I hate, I despise your feast-days, and I will not smell in your solenm assemblies. Though you offer me burnt offerings and your meat-offerings, I will not accept them; neither will I regard the peace-offerings of your fat beasts. Take thou away from me the noise of thy songs; for I will not hear the melody of thy viols."—Amos 5: 21-23.

What a lesson is this for a backslidden church or a nation that has forgotten God! "To obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams. For rebellion is as the sin of witchcraft, and stubbornness is as iniquity and idolatry."—1 Sam 15: 22, 23. David, too, understood this: "Thou desirest not sacrifice, else would I give it; thou delightest not in burnt offering. The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit; a broken and contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not despise."—Psalm 51: 16, 17.

Thus it may not always be an acceptable act to rear the altar of worship in the family, the Sabbath-school, or the church, lest it be done unworthily; for "God is a Spirit, and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth."—John 4: 24. Formality, hopocrisy, covetousness, idolatry, frivolity, or any secret sin, will bring God's hatred and contempt upon a worship in which the spirit of obedience and submission is not a ruling principle. The omission of any worship would be more acceptable to God than an unrighteous one, as in the case of Cain.—Gen. 4: 3-8.

From the true Christian, however, God is well-pleased (as in the case of Abel) to receive adoration and sacrifice: "For we are the circumcision, which worship God in the spirit and rejoice in Christ Jesus, and have no confidence in the flesh."—Phil. 3: 3. Such worship, coming from such a source, is to God a sweet incense—as fragrant as the smoke from the golden censer in the holy of holies, when the high priest went in to plead for Israel with blood. But if the heart is not right with God, either in repentance, or justification, or sanctification, it is man's first duty to get right with God (Isaiah 55: 7), and then he may rear his altar to God and be blessed.

But what are we to say of the lodge altar, bearing upon it the Christian's Bible as a religious emblem, while the order carefully and purposely excludes from all its religious ceremonies not only the worship but even the name of the principal Person designed to be glorified in the Scriptures—Jesus Christ—the "Wonderful, Counselor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace," the Eternal Word—and offers, instead, its worship to a deity unrecognized in the Bible—the god of nature, who dwells in the realm of paganism?

Altar-building, it would seem, therefore, ought to be carefully done, lest a vital error be committed and our prayers go astray. Certainly the best place in which to erect an acceptable altar is, primarily, in our closet, placing our heart upon it as our first offering to the God of the Bible, and leaving it there for life. Then we may bring other hearts also, and offer them there; and when they have been accepted by the Lord, they may be united around God's altar for public worship, with the assurance that their act will be equally acceptable in his sight. At such an altar as this sinners may lay down their iniquities and find mercy; there the justified may yield up whatever in them savors of "pride, vain glory and hypocrisy," with every "root of bitterness," and be washed "whiter than snow." There is no better altar than this, and it bears upon it the seal of divine acceptance.

TRUE AND FALSE CONSECRATION.

Israel and God's dealings with her stand as the symbols of the present generation and God's relation to his church in these days.

Take the first and second chapters of Malachi, conveying "the word of the Lord to Israel." Compare this "word" with the previous history of God's "peculiar people," whom he had loved long and deeply; had cast off when they grieved him by their sins; had restored to his love and favor when they turned again to him in humility and obedience.

The lesson to the Gentile church in all this is plain and important, inasmuch as it involves the whole subject of hearty consecration to God and Christ, and the danger of making a false consecration instead of a true one.

A false consecration is a divided one. It involves only a partial obedience to God, while the affections still cling to something of a worldly nature. The result is spiritual starvation. The soul, in this condition of double obedience to God, the world, the flesh and the devil, cannot offer an acceptable sacrifice to its Creator. It is offering polluted bread upon his altar. It was to such (Mal. 1: 10) that he made this fearful statement: "I have no pleasure in you, saith the Lord of hosts; neither will I accept an offering at your hand."

Let us instance a case that occurs frequently in Chicago and other large cities. In a fashionable street, in a stately mansion, surrounded by every luxury, a man may live honorably and respected, with his wife and children—a part of his time. In another and distant street he maintains in rich apparel and luxurious living a paramour whom he loves as truly as he does his wife, and to whose sordid desires he as fully submits his wealth and personal attention. The world knows him as a reputable business man, a devoted husband and father—the envy of all his acquaintances. But his consecration to his family and good society is false. He leads a double life, in defiance of the laws of God and man. Men may not know it; but God does. Would any offering to his wife, did she but know him as God does, be acceptable to her? Would any offering of his to God—be it millions for the cause of Christianity—atone for the sin in which he voluntarily lives? Would not his sacrifice resemble those described by Malachi—the blind, the lame and the sick of the flock? "Is it not evil?"

All men in society are not so. Many pursue business as a livelihood, in a Christian spirit, day by day; practicing the Christian virtues at every opportunity, making those with whom they come in contact better men and women; abstaining from sinful pleasures, avoiding secret lodges, giving their time and energies to works of real charity and benevolence, unrestrained by lodge oaths and "assessments," and living such pure and earnest lives that their daily sacrifices are as acceptable to God as their actions are to those around them.

This is the contrast between true and false consecration. It presupposes purity and self-denial on the one hand, and uncleanness and selfishness on the other. The church is too often satisfied with both kinds. The "good man" gives freely of his substance to church work and its promotion. His morality is deemed unimpeachable, and his presence is courteous and agreeable. He stands high in the church—and also in the lodge. His neighbor stands high only in the sight of God—despised by many, but walking uprightly, free from the entanglements of sin and worldly care, and blessed in all his goings.

—The Knights of Pythias are congratulating themselves that Col. Breckenridge is not one of them.

—In Michigan, especially at Bay City, the labor unions have decided to espouse the cause of the Populists and endorse their principles.

—The return of Miss Frances E. Willard from a protracted sojourn abroad, during which she has received numerous tokens of esteem, will be hailed with pleasure, and her presence in the coming temperance convocations will carry weight and give increased interest to their sessions.

—Secrecy in oath-bound societies, founded upon selfishness, and maintained by assessments, is very far from any Christian precedent, whatever its objects may be. No good cause requires such combinations; evil motives and purposes thrive best in them. But there is one case in which secrecy obtains a righteous reward—it is secret prayer.

—Rev. Thos. M. Chalmers has, we are pleased to learn, greatly improved in health, and he earnestly desires and expects to engage again in the work of the ministry. He is much interested in the conversion of the Jews, and may consecrate himself to work in that behalf. He may be counted upon, also, as a firm supporter of the anti-secrecy reform.

—Mr. W. McClelland, of Washington, Iowa, in a letter dated May 3, says: "I would like to write a few lines giving you my high appreciation of your paper, but I cannot write, as I am barely able to be out of bed." Even such a brief word of encouragement effectually offsets the numerous unkindnesses that reachus from the opponents of our reform.

—The British-American discovers "a growing conviction that Rome has spies among all secret and fraternal orders." This fact—no longer a surmise—has been patent for years to those who remember that Roman Catholics in the lodges remaining true to their religion are obliged to confess their secrets to the priesthood without mental reservation. These are the spies.

—Congressman Breckenridge has confessed himself a great sinner in the church to which he belongs; but we fail to find in his confession a single sign of heartfelt contrition, or a desire to live a new and better life. On the contrary, his disposition to maintain his political standing seems to override every other sentiment, and indicates a condition of conscience that leaves little hope for his reformation.

—Some of the correspondence of the Masonic Grand Lodges, reported at the annual communications, is quite of the raciest of their proceedings. "Bro." Kuykendall, of the Wyoming Grand Lodge, would relegate the Grand Representative system and the Past Master's degree "to the ash-barrel of Masonry, until they are bleached out of existence." Why not include all of the other worthless degrees of Masonry? The world would be the better for it.

—The very place of all others where unbelief should not be found is in the heart of a Christian. While Peter was locked up in prison, his Christian friends and neighbors were holding a prayer-meeting in his behalf; and when the angel of God had delivered him, and he went home before the prayer-meeting was out, they were loth to receive him except as a spirit. That which they had been seeking of God was to them a great surprise. But then Peter himself appears to have been considerably astonished. Are not too many modern prayer-meetings conducted with too little faith that they will receive according to their needs?

—The Pope appears to have been unfortunate in the effects of his later encyclicals. In one of recent date he counseled the Catholics in Poland to yield submission to the church. As the people are imbued with intense patriotism, this advice created consternation, and preferring love of country to church dominion, some severed their connection with the latter, and it is announced that 200 of their leaders have already openly gone over to Protestantism. It is threatened that if the Pope does not recede from his position, the revolt is likely to increase.

—The destruction by fire of the Brooklyn Tabernacle, in which T. DeWitt Talmage preached, for the third or fourth time in its history, is among the interesting events of the week. The peculiarity of this edifice appears to have been the facility with which it has been able to get into debt and remain continually embarrassed. No blame, however, seems to attach to Mr. Talmage, who has long regretted this condition of affairs without the ability to remove it.

—Some one sends us a program used in the First Baptist church of Brattleboro, Vt., on the recent anniversary—seventy-fifth—of Odd-fellowship. The day was Sunday and the order of exercises very full. The responsive Scripture readings included extracts from David, Paul, Moses, and one from our Lord Jesus Christ, whose name does not appear in the entire proceedings. It was a very consistent, because a characteristic performance, by a society in which the name of Christ is carefully ignored and excluded. The covenant with Noah and the praises of charity were prominent features of the occasion.

—The philosophy of coal-miners' strikes is graphically described by a contemporary. The miners strike for higher wages. Owing to the strike, coal becomes scarce; the price is advanced until the mine-owners can afford to pay the increased wages asked by the laborers; then production increases until the price falls again; then the men's wages are "cut," and another strike ensues. This seems to be the routine from year to year. Were it not for the bad blood manifested by the strikers, the evil would not be a serious one. The natural law of supply and demand will regulate the coal; but who can tame the unruly hearts of men?

—The great International Temperance Congress at Prohibition Park, Staten Island, N. Y., June 3–5, is attracting widespread attention, not only as the ninetieth birthday of Gen. Neal Dow, in whose honor the celebration was inaugurated, but for the impetus which it is expected it will give to the prohibition cause. Leading temperance workers are giving it their hearty approbation and announcing their purpose to be present. A proposition to establish a National Advisory Temperance Board, to be composed of the first two officers of each general temperance organization that favors total abstinence, is to be one feature of the gathering; and other measures looking to the formation of some plan of united effort on the part of now divided temperance forces, will probably be discussed.

—A Roman Catholic paper in St. Louis, having spoken approvingly of the "Palatka plan" of dealing with men who make remarks derogatory to the Roman Catholic church, the Christian Reformer revives the story of that outrage: This inquisitorial "plan" takes its name from the methods adopted at Palatka, Fla., where a number of Romanists, enraged at what a certain Marshal Nix had said, "sought Nix in his room and gave him a dreadful cowhiding. His screams were heard several blocks. A crowd collected, but no one cared to interfere. Nix was ordered to leave town, but stopped in Rowtown's store and was again cowhided." These barbarities are worthy of the White Caps, and should have no place in a land of free speech and free ballots; and if too often repeated may raise a storm of indignation that will "make Rome howl."

—Committees of the following Presbyterian bodies have agreed upon a mutual plan of confederation, which they will recommend to their respective churches for adoption: The Associate Reformed Synod of the South, the Cumberland Presbyterian General Assembly, the Synod of the (Dutch) Reformed church in America, the Synod of the (German) Reformed church in the United States, the Synod of the Reformed Presbyterian church, General Synod of the Reformed Presbyterian church, United Presbyterian General Assembly, and the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America. The work of the proposed union is to be controlled by an ecclesiastical assembly to be known as "The Federal Council of the Reformed Churches in the United States of America Holding the Presbyterian System;" but each denomination will retain its distinct individuality and power, jurisdiction and right not delegated to the confederation.

—Some recent statistics of Moody's Bible Institute in this city present interesting facts relating to its former students, 64 of whom have gone into various heathen lands as missionaries, and 55 have taken up home mission work in city and country. Twenty-eight are engaged as secretaries of young men's and young women's Christian associations, pastors' assistants and church visitors; 70 have become pastors of churches in eight denominations, 41 are in evangelistic service, and eight are Gospel singers; 23 occupy various positions of responsibility in Christian work, and others are completing their theological studies in seminaries, preparing for the pulpit. The record is very encouraging.

—Thousands of members of the Society of Friends in England have addressed a circular letter to other members of their denomination, earnestly appealing to them to agitate and oppose the cruel practice of torturing dumb animals for scientific purposes by the process known as vivisection. They make this appeal, believing that it involves "a direct ignoring of the claims of universal justice and compassion, and, apart from its extreme cruelty, to be fraught with grave moral and physical danger to society;" and urge them to unite their voices in condemning that which is to be regarded as fundamentally corrupt and immoral, both in its practice and in the principles upon which it is defended—its medical utility and expediency. But it should be opposed on the Christian principle that we ought not to do evil that good may come. The American Association for the Spread of Knowledge of the Extent and Existing Methods of Vivisection, in New York City (P. O. Box 2828), fully endorses the purposes of the circular.

REFORM NEWS (Continued from 5th page.)

subject. They "made themselves scarce." Many lodge men smiled at first, then sobered down, and at last got angry, as was manifest by their darkened countenances. The majority of the large audience was more than pleased with our effort. Some lodge men who ought to know, admitted that I had the passwords all right, but rather intimated that I did not have the inside workings of the lodge.

I am as sure that I know how a man is made a Mason, as I am that there is a city called Boston, though I have never seen Boston. I have seen men initiated openly and have tested those who were initiated secretly, and have demonstrated the correctness of the same.

We have at Sheridan some true anti-secretists—men whose lives are a constant rebuke to the orders, and whose very presence makes the teeth of iniquity to chatter.

I secured five subscribers to the Cynosure, distributed one hundred tracts, and came away feeling that our cause will be strengthened by the discussion that must follow these lectures. I am about out of tracts. Any one wishing to speak to the people on the secret society question can do so by sending me tracts, which will be distributed as wisely as possible. P. B. WILLIAMS.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE ASSOCIATION.

CHICAGO, May 14, 1894.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—There was a meeting of the Pennsylvania State Executive Committee held in the office of Rev. D. C. Martin, Allegheny, May 8, at which your agent was invited to act as secretary.

A brief report of work done in the State during the year was given and approved by the committee.

It was voted to request the agent to continue work the coming year on the same terms as last. The payment of the expense in sending resolutions passed at the State Convention to religious papers for publication, by the State Treasurer, was ratified.

It was made known to the committee that some churches in sympathy with our work in the State had signified a willingness to take up an annual collection in aid of the same. It was voted to secure envelopes and circulars to supply such churches as were disposed to aid the work.

Earnest prayer was made for God's blessing upon our efforts. W. B. STODDARD, Sec.

THE HOME.

A HYMN OF PRAISE.

To Him who formed the heaven of heavens,
Where his glory dwelleth,
Who lighteth up each star of even,
Which that glory telleth;
Who stretched that arch of blue above,
That plain of blue below;
Who built the everlasting hills,
And bid the rivers flow;
To him who made us what we are,
And loved us all so well,
Whose thoughts are thoughts of boundless grace,
Beyond what lip can tell,
To Him, to Him be praise,
Now and thro' endless days!

To Him in whom we live and move,
In whom we have our being;
To Him whose glory passeth far—
All-hearing and all-seeing;
Who speaketh, and lo, it is done,
Commands, and all stand fast;
Who is the everlasting God,
Who is the first and last;
To Him who hath prepared for us
A home and mansion bright,
The kingdom never to be moved,
The heritage of light,
To Him be glory given,
By all in earth and heaven!

—Bonar.

"IT STINGETH LIKE AN ADDER."

BY MRS. VICTORIA ALEXANDRA STONE.

"No, boys, no whisky for me," and Donald Murray pushed the wine-glass back upon the table. The four young men who sat by the table looked surprised. "You don't drink, Murray?" said Charley Howard. "I don't drink now," said Murray; "but I did drink in my younger days, and thereby hangs a tale."

"Let's have it," cried Dick Warren. "Your stories are always interesting."

"But this is a true story," said young Murray.

"That's why we want it," said Charley Howard.

"Put up your cards, then," said Murray.

"We will," said Dick Warren; and forthwith put the cards in his pocket.

It was a log hut in a lumber camp in Wisconsin. The young men were roughly dressed, but were fine and intelligent-looking. Evidently they were accustomed to refined society, notwithstanding their present rough surroundings. Donald Murray leaned back in his chair and said:

"Yes, boys, I drank when a young man, and it was less than six months that my appetite for liquor lasted; but those six months have left their impress upon my whole life. You see, I lived in a little hamlet in southwestern Pennsylvania. My father was a good man, a Christian, and a strict, not to say stern, father to his children. At that time a railroad passed through our district, and it needed new ties, and a gang of young men were at work in the mountains cutting them. I joined them, partly because I wished to earn money, but mainly because I enjoyed their society. They were rough fellows, and—they drank. They all drank, and I learned to drink with them—I, who had never tasted liquor before in my life. Boys, do you know what it is to lead a double life? I do. As I told you, my father was a church-member, and night and morning I kneeled with my parents and sisters at the family altar, and lifted my voice with theirs in the hymn of praise when my brain was scarcely free from the fumes of liquor. My eldest sister, Rachel, was a noble girl. Beautiful in form and feature, she was as good as an angel. How I loved her! I idolized her.

"Well, boys, that spring a young girl from Pittsburgh came to teach our district school. She was an intimate friend of Rachel's, and was just as good as Rachel. We became acquainted, and, to make a long story short, we were to be married when her school closed in September. This was in June. How I loved that girl! Marion Moore was my ideal of what a woman should be. She looked like a queen, with her tall, majestic figure and her black hair and eyes. Well, summer passed away and the close of Marion's school was very near; only a few days, and we were to leave for our home in the West. But there was a traitor in the camp, and he disclosed to Marion the secret that I drank. She knew this, but was just as cordial in her manner as ever; and, believe me, boys, I did intend to stop drinking as soon as we were married. The school was to close with an exhibition, and on the evening that it took place I walked with Marion to the schoolhouse. It was Friday evening, and we were to be married the following Monday. It was a lovely evening, and, as we walked along, my heart swelled with pride to think that the lovely creature by my side would soon be mine. She was very silent, and I made some casual remark about the bright future before us, when she turned suddenly, fixed her blazing eyes upon my face, and then, boys, the lightning struck me.

"'Never speak to me again, Donald Murray!' she cried; 'I will never marry you! You drink! I will never marry a drunkard!' and she walked on towards the school-house with the tread of a tragedy queen, leaving me standing in the middle of the road, transfixed with shame and amazement. Well, I slunk into the schoolhouse, crept into a corner, and watched the exercises like one in a dream. The last act on the program was a solo, which Marion sang. It was a Scotch song: 'Good night, and joy be wi' you a'.' There she stood—Marion, my Marion no longer—dressed in black velvet, with scarlet geraniums in her bosom and in the clusters of her dark hair; and how her glorious voice pealed out into the darkness! Did you ever hear that song, boys? It is very sweet and plaintive."

Murray was silent a moment, and then, slowly and softly, he whistled the melody; and then, in a sweet tenor voice, he sang the first stanza of the song:

"Good night, and joy be wi' you a';
Your harmless mirth has cheered my heart;
May life's fell blasts out o'er ye blaw!
In sorrow may we never part!
My spirit lives, but strength is gone,
The mountain fires now blaze in vain;
Remember, sons, the deeds I've done,
And in your deeds I'll live again!"

"When the exhibition was over I escaped from the crowd as quick as possible, and was rushing blindly along the street in the moonlight when I happened to remember that I had a pint bottle full of whisky in my coat-pocket. I instantly uncorked it and drank it all, and then flung the bottle from me into a meadow. I had scarcely done so when I felt a touch on my arm, and my sister Rachel said, 'Donald, father has sent me over to gran'pa's on an errand; won't you go with me? I am going on the railroad track.' I hesitated a moment and then went with her.

"We passed on swiftly down the moonlighted track, between the glistening rails. Well, boys, that whisky got into my head in time and I was staggering along, when Rachel's voice, sharp with agony, sounded in my ear, 'Oh, Donald, Donald, you are drunk!' A moment later she seized my arm, crying, 'Donald, the night express is coming; get off the track!' But I could not get off. On thundered the train, and when it was almost on us I fell down. Rachel dragged me off the track, and I rolled down the steep bank just as the train thundered by. But above the roar of the train there rose an awful sound, the scream of a woman's voice. It sobered me, and I got up and clambered up the bank, and there upon the ties lay my dear faithful sister dead—killed by the cars!

"Well, boys, the next morning after the funeral I stood by the gate in the lane, thinking sadly of what had transpired, when a quick step sounded behind me on the gravel. I looked around. It was Marion. She fixed her mournful, accusing eyes on my face. 'Do you know what you have done, Donald Murray?' she said. I did not reply. 'Rachel, your lovely, noble sister died to save your worthless life.' Still I did not answer. She waited a moment, and then said: 'I am going home to-morrow. We shall probably never meet again.' I gave her my hand; her fingers tightened for a moment over it, and I said: 'Marion, I know that what you say is true, and I know that you despise me. I cannot tell what the future will bring. All is darkness to me now. I, too, am going away; and, believe me, Marion, I shall yet be a man—a man before the world.' 'Will you, Donald?' she said; and her eyes were full of tears. 'Good bye,' she said, and passed quickly down the lane, and I never saw her again. She died five years ago." Murray was silent for a few moments, and then, in a strangely altered voice he said: "Boys, I pass over the few days that followed. I had to tell father and mother that Marion would not marry me, and the reason why, and that I was going West. They did not oppose my going. Father said, 'Let the boy go; it may be the means of saving him.'

"Well, boys, I sat in my bedroom the night before leaving home, and if there was never but one broken-hearted fellow in this world, I was that one. I had lost everything. Marion and Rachel, self-respect, everything! I sat there in the darkness, for there was no moon, and then—it was about 11 o'clock—a strange thing happened. I felt something—a strong power it was—stir within me. A sudden desire to break off all my bad habits and to be a man took possession of me. I got up, groped about in the darkness to the table, got hold of my Bible, laid my left hand upon it, lifted my right hand to heaven, and said, just loud enough for God and the angels to hear, 'I forswear drink from this time on!' stooped and kissed the book. Then I undressed and went to bed and slept soundly until morning. Boys, my subsequent life you know; and you know that I have kept that vow. My daughters, Rachel and Marion, can tell you that I never drink."

A silence like death was in the room. The four young men sat with pale faces, and eyes bright with excitement. Finally, Charley Howard broke the spell. He sprang to his feet, crying, "Boys, let's all take that oath!" and he lifted his right hand to heaven. Dick Warren rose, but the other two hesitated. "Come!" cried Charley Howard; "stand up! let's be men!" Then they rose slowly, and all four stood with right hands raised to heaven.

"What was the oath you repeated?" said Charley Howard to Murray. "I forswear drink from this time on!" said Murray in a deep, solemn voice, and slowly and reverently the four young men repeated in chorus, "I forswear drink from this time on!" adding a fervent "So help me God!" and sat down.

All was silent save the soughing of the wind in the pines above the little cabin; and as Donald Murray sat with tearful eyes in that silent room one could almost imagine that the angels leaned over the battlements of heaven and whispered, "All is well!"

Steamburgh, N. Y.

OLD-FASHIONED WHITE MEETING-HOUSE.

In the midst of the prevailing craze for odd and bizarre styles of architecture, it is pleasing to come across a plea for the simple and homely buildings such as contented our forefathers. William Henry Bishop, in an article in the May number of the Century, in which he gives his experience while searching for a summer home in upper New England in the form of an abandoned farm, says: "Two small white meeting-houses show their Christopher Wren steeples complacently. Time has been when all these white country meeting-houses alike seemed to freeze the imagination with their coldness; but times change, and we with them. The charming grace and lightness of design that many of them possess have been recognized; their whiteness is a refreshing spot amid the greenery; in short, they are coming back into favor again, with the many other nice old-fashioned things of the period, and the invasion of Gothic chapels that succeeded them had better look well to the security of its domination."

AN ANECDOTE OF JOHN WESLEY.

A farmer went to hear John Wesley preach. He was a man who cared little about religion; on the other hand he was not what we call a bad man. His attention was soon excited and riveted. Wesley said he would take up three topics of thought; he was talking chiefly about money. His first was, "Get all you can." The farmer nudged a neighbor, and said, "This is strange preaching; I never heard the like before; this is very good. That man has got things in him; it is admirable preaching." John Wesley discoursed on "industry," "activity," "living to purpose," and reached his second division, "Save all you can." The farmer became more excited. "Was there ever anything like this!" he said. Wesley denounced thriftlessness and waste, he satirized the willful wickedness which lavished in luxury; and the farmer rubbed his hands as he thought,

"All this I have been taught from my youth up," and what with getting, and what with hoarding, it seemed to him that "salvation" had come to his house. But Wesley advanced to his third head, which was, "Give all you can." "Ah, dear! ah, dear," said the farmer, "he has gone and spoiled it all!"—Onward.

SHE NURSED A CHILD.

Amid the prosperity of the children of Israel the latter century of their stay in Egypt the spirit of envy prompted Pharaoh, the king, to pass the heartrending decree that all the male children of the Hebrews should at their birth be destroyed.

During this epoch Jochebed, the wife of Amram, gave birth to a son. "And when she saw him that he was a goodly child, she hid him three months. And when she could no longer hide him, she took for him an ark of bulrushes, and daubed it with slime and with pitch, and put the child therein; and she laid it in the flags by the river's brink." Ex. 2: 2, 3.

As the daughter of Pharaoh, with her maidens, in a walk of recreation came along the river Nile, the ark was discovered; and perhaps out of curiosity the lady of nobility commanded that it be brought for her. "And when she saw the child: and, behold, the babe wept. And she had compassion on him, and said, This is one of the Hebrews' children." Ex. 2: 5, 6.

In the meantime Miriam, the sister of the babe, as a guardian angel, lay in ambush to see what would be done to him; and the child being found she came hastily, and said, "Shall I go and call to thee a nurse?" And by divine wisdom the maid was directed to call the mother of the babe. "And Pharaoh's daughter said unto her, Take this child away, and nurse it for me, and I will give thee thy wages."

So Jochebed did not lead an army, nor govern a kingdom, but had the honor of nursing a child, and the virgin soil in which the divine seed was sown in after-years produced the most remarkable man that ever lived, save Christ, the God-man, being called Moses. We are told by the inspired apostle, "When Moses came to years, he refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter, choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season; esteeming the reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures of Egypt: for he had respect unto the recompense of the reward." Heb. 11: 24–26.

To renounce his nobility, and the prospect of an earthly crown, no doubt was considered by the Egyptians a very foolish choice. And where did Moses learn the fallacy of an earthly crown, the inestimable value of religion, and an incorruptible crown in heaven? Surely not from Pharaoh's daughter, for the Egyptians were heathens; but this knowledge had undoubtedly emanated from the example, prayers and instruction of his mother—as all noted men in every age, according to history, received their first religious impressions from pious mothers. We, of course, are all sons and daughters of mothers, and the general impression rests in the mind of each dutiful child, "I have had the best mother."

We trust our readers will not accuse the writer of egotism when we say, this is our impression, as we owe our little all to God through the instrumentality of a devoted mother. Our dear mother was converted in 1827, when it cost something to live a consecrated life. Her influence in the family circle and community was unlimited, having lived to the advanced age of ninety-six years, retaining her physical and mental faculties to the end, not having any disease, neither ache or pain, but ceased to breathe, and the Lord took her.

Therefore, cheer up, ye desponding mothers who are now shut in with family cares, frequently burning the midnight lamp by watching tenderly over your loved ones, as you may, like Jochebed, be doing a work, prospectively, which will speak favorably for the glory of God, not only after your tongues are paralyzed in death, but the hallowed influence will be felt and seen through all eternity.

The faculty which we call memory, in many instances is now very imperfect, but in a future state it will be complete and everlasting.

Abraham appealed to the rich man in hell: "Son, remember that thou in thy lifetime received thy good things" (Luke 16: 25). So that from the Scripture we may readily infer that Pharaoh will remember the massacre of the Hebrew children, Jezebel, the slaying of the prophets, and Herod, the murdering of the children throughout his realm; and the catalogue of sins perpetrated by every sinner who is lost will forever loom up before their vision, the remembrance of which will keenly augment their misery; whereas the glorified in heaven cannot forget the tender care, counsel, and prayers of our sainted mothers, and those who have been instrumental in winning us to Christ.

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them." Rev. 14: 13.

Praise God for pious mothers.—Rev. John Fohl, in Earnest Christian.

THE POINT OF VIEW.

Said the Gray Horse to the Brown Horse,
"Eh, but life's a pull!
Half at least of every day
My cart is full.
Half of every year—
Talk about the lark—
I must leave my warm bed
While it is dark.

"Half the food I live on Every day
Is—I give my word for it—
Only hay.
Half my time, yes, fully,
Cold days and hot,
I must still keep going,
Whether I can or not."

Said the Brown Horse to the Gray Horse,
"My work is half play,
For my cart is empty
Half of every day;
Half of every year, too,
I go to bed at night
Knowing I can stay there
Till it is light.

"Master likes his horses
With glossy coats,
So half my food is always
The best of oats.
What with nights and standing
While they unload,
Half my time I'm resting,
Not on the road."

Two little sparrows, perched up on a beam,
Broke into laughter with a perfect scream.
Mr. Sparrow chuckled, "Who'd believe it, dear,
Their food and work are both alike all the livelong year.', —Youth's Companion.

TEMPERANCE.

THE LORDS AND COMMONS OF CHICAGO.

There were nine high-license rumsellers in the Chicago board of aldermen which went out of office by the municipal election a few days ago. Following are their names, politics with similar information about a number of other rumsellers prominent in Chicago's government before the late election:

The following saloon-keepers are holding office in Chicago: Joseph A. Habukorn, sergeant-at-arms city council, Democrat; Frederic Rohde, alderman, Democrat; J. N. Mulvihill, alderman, Democrat; John Powers, alderman, Democrat; Thomas Reed, alderman, Democrat; Martin Morrison, alderman, Democrat; John J. Brennan, alderman, Democrat; John McGillen, alderman, Democrat; Michael Ryan, alderman, Democrat; Ernst Hummel, alderman, Democrat, treasurer South Chicago Brewing Co.; James O. Connor, representative, Democrat; W. D. Kerwin, town clerk, Democrat; James Cummings, supervisor, Democrat.

"These," writes the Voice correspondent, "comprise the list of officials openly engaged in the liquor business. It is a matter of common notoriety that scores of others own wholly or in part saloons in the names of brothers, relatives, friends, or dummies. That many more are hand-in-glove with the saloons, make them practically their headquarters, and draw from them their main political support, is too well known to need mention. The saloon in Chicago, as in most large cities, is the strongest single force in local politics. If each saloon, with its proprietor, employes, relatives, and friends of proprietor and employes, together with hangers-on, controlled ten votes, it would make a solid voting mass of 70,000 ballots cast uniformly for the worst measures and the most disreputable candidates. Over $65,000,000 was spent last year in Chicago for liquor; a trifle over $3,000,000 was paid back to the city for license fees.

"Every forty-three months the whole taxable wealth of Chicago is paid into the saloon-keepers' tills.

"Last year over 89,000 arrests were made, the vast majority for drunkenness and crimes due to or associated with liquor. Over $615,000 was collected in fines, mostly from the same cause."

The following is a list of high-license rumsellers balloted for for aldermen in the late Chicago election:

Fifth Ward, David Deist, saloon-keeper and Democrat; Sixth Ward, James McCormick, saloon-keeper and Democrat; Seventh Ward, Moses Barnett, saloon-keeper and Democrat; Seventh Ward, Henry Schroder, whisky agent and Democrat; Tenth Ward, Frederic Engel, saloon-keeper and Republican; Seventeenth Ward, Maurice O'Connor, saloon-keeper and Democrat; Seventeenth Ward, Charles Cullen, saloon-keeper and Democrat; Seventeenth Ward, Frank Riley, saloon-keeper and Democrat; Twenty-third Ward, Fred Roth, saloon-keeper and Democrat; Twenty third Ward, James Lyons, saloon-keeper and Democrat; Twenty-third Ward, John Dunn, saloon-keeper and Democrat; Twenty-third Ward, William Donahue, saloon-keeper and Democrat; Thirty-third Ward, James Matthews, saloon-keeper and Democrat.—N. Y. Voice.

PRAYING AND VOTING.

Think of praying

"HALLOWED BE THY NAME,"

then voting to legalize the liquor traffic by tax or license, which causes God's name to be continually blasphemed;

"THY KINGDOM COME,"

then voting that Satan's kingdom (the saloon) may continue if they will only pay the price which politicians have fixed upon them;

"THY WILL BE DONE,"

and then voting it shall not be done;

"GIVE US THIS DAY OUR DAILY BREAD," and then voting to tax or license that which takes the bread from thousands of starving mothers and helpless children;

"LEAD US NOT INTO TEMPTATION," and then voting that the allurements and temptations of the saloons may go on under some form of tax or license;

"DELIVER US FROM EVIL,"

and then voting that the State and nation shall become a partner in drawing young men into evil, if the saloon will agree to pay a high tax or license.

Think of these things next time when you go to the ballot box.—Anonymous.

NUGGETS.

A strong scientific temperance education law has just been enacted by the New Jersey Legislature.

The corner-stone of the Salvation Army creed is total abstinence, and its members are not permitted to use tobacco.

Even if prohibition does not prohibit in Kansas, the penitentiary population has fallen off sixty per cent since 1880.

The Dominion W. C. T. U. is preparing to petition the Dominion Parliament for full parliament suffrage for women.

Six thousand children will take part in the children's annual temperance demonstration in Sidney, South Australia, this month.

The vote in favor of the Scott Act in Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, secures prohibition as far as the retail trade is concerned for the entire province.

A special effort is being made to secure the names of college and university faculties and students to the great World's Petition of the W. C. T. U. Those desiring to assist in the endeavor may obtain copies of the Petition from Mrs. Mary A. Woodbridge, The Temple, Chicago, Ill.

BIBLE LESSON.

STUDIES IN THE BOOKS OF MOSES.

LESSON IX.—Second Quarter, 1894, May 27.

SUBJECT.—Moses Sent as a Deliverer.—Exodus 3: 10-20.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Fear not, for I am with thee.—Isaiah 41: 10.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Exodus 3: 10-20. T.—Ex. 3: 1-9. W.—Ex. 4: 1-9. Th.—Ex. 4: 10-17. F.—Ex. 5: 1-9. S.—Ex. 6: 1-13. Su.—Jer. 1: 6-10.

COMMENTS BY E. E. FLAGG.

1. Moses' commission.—v. 10. "Come now therefore." All God's commands are imperative. When he calls it is not for us to hesitate. "I will send thee unto Pharaoh." We need not shrink from any commission, however difficult, that bears upon it the seal of Jehovah. Pharaoh was a great king, but he who sent him to him was the King of kings.

2. Moses encouraged—vs. 11, 12. God would have us free to unbosom ourselves before him, but not to feign a humility or a courage that we do not actually feel. Above all things, we are to be honest with our Maker. "Who am I that I should go unto Pharaoh?"—a despised Hebrew outlaw. Would he not, instead of delivering Israel, be remanded to instant execution? "And he said: Certainly I will be with thee." What greater encouragement could he have had? but it is one the weakest believer may claim. "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." This is the blessed assurance of our risen Saviour. Let us who are his disciples act as if we believed it, instead of making excuses when duty calls us. God sealed his promise with a sign: "Ye shall serve God upon this mountain." That religious freedom which Pharaoh would refuse them should yet be theirs. The wild fastnesses of the everlasting hills would be their sanctuary.

3. God's name revealed.—vs. 13–15. Moses' next inquiry was a perfectly natural and proper one. The children of Israel, in their miserable slavery, had lost to a large extent their religious knowledge. They could have had no Sabbaths, even if the patriarchs had brought this institution with them into Egypt, and there was, therefore, in their life of unremitting toil no opportunity for parents and children to come together, and keep alive, by frequent rehearsal, the sacred and inspiring memories of the past. Used to the degrading polytheism of Egypt the thought of one only and true God must have been nearly obliterated from their minds, and very naturally their first inquiry would be for the name of this strange God who had sent him unto them with such a new and startling message, which to obey would be considered by their masters a revolt, and cause them to be treated with even more harshness. It must be a name radically different from any borne by Egyptian deities; a name that should include in itself all his essential attributes, omnipotence, omnipresence, omniscience, and eternity of existence. "I Am that I Am," is the sublime name which takes them all in; the name which is so sacrilegiously used in the seventh degree of Freemasonry, the Royal Arch, where, behind a bush that is set on fire, some person blasphemously personates Jehovah. "The Lord God of your fathers.... This is my name forever." God is known through what he has done for his people. His revealed Word is nothing but a record of his dealings with them. He is the God of archangels and cherubims; but to call him such would not bring him any nearer to us. It would, instead, put him off into a dim, infinite distance; but to call him "the God of our fathers," makes him also our God.

4. Moses further encouraged.—vs. 16–20. When God sends his messengers he tells them what to say. He does not send them "with enticing words of man's wisdom," as some popular preachers seem to imagine. "I have said." There is no popular eloquence like that which can say to the people with the strength of assured conviction, "God hath said thus and so." "I will bring you up out of the afflictions of Egypt.... to a land flowing with milk and honey." God has purposes of good in store for us that we but dimly realize. But Egypt must come before Canaan. "They shall hearken unto thy voice." This was Moses' great fear, that he would seem an impostor to them. But he is graciously reassured on this point also. We people the land with Anakims, and find they are only the shadows of our own fears magnified. "I am sure the king of Egypt will not let you go." So we may be as sure as if told so by an audible voice from heaven, that these great evils against which "all who are on the Lord's side" are warring,—Masonry, Rum and Romanism, will never, of their own accord, let go their hold on the people. It is right that we should work for their overthrow, as it was right for Moses to petition Pharaoh, though he knew beforehand he would be refused with contumely. Only by a mighty hand would Pharaoh let the people go. Only through great judgments, like that which overthrew slavery, will these despots be dethroned. Perhaps God will send on them a spirit of confusion and madness that will make them devour each other, while God's people will have nothing to do but shout Alleluia.

LITERATURE.

CURRENT PERIODICALS.

The May number of the Social Economist ably discusses some of the more important problems of the day. Those whose interest centres in production, supply and demand will learn, in The Search for Foreign Markets, that "the great bargains are nearby," provided the nearby consumers can be stimulated to desire and demand the very best goods and the most of them. Earning comes of the determination to have, to be and to enjoy; the psychic spring that moves men to toil is aspiration toward the excellent and perfect in their possessions. The eight-hour experiment traces the Mather demonstration at the Salford Works, that 1,200 men will do as much work in a year, working an eight-hour, as working a ten-hour day. Americans get all the "direct taxes" they hanker after in their State and local systems of taxation on property. English and European systems lack this. The latter theorize more in favor of so laying their customs-duties that they shall rest on commodities themselves rather than on their importation. Hence American and English Condition of Taxation differ. Previous Experiences with Free Trade details six American financial crises, and two English, which it is alleged resulted from the freer importation of foreign commodities. Transcontinental Railways and Ocean Steamers indicates that the Canadian Pacific Railway is getting much the start of our own lines in the work of "throwing a girdle round the earth." Prof. Van Buren Denslow proves that in its origin the British nation is far more Roman and much less Anglo-Saxon than is currently assumed. Prof. A. B. Woodford holds that the ethical is the economical and vice versa. The Editorial Crucible is as pungent as usual. The Book Reviews and Economics in the Magazines are vigorous. If demanding a high order of economic work will secure it, it will not be the Social Economist's fault if we do not soon enter upon an era of high-class economic literature. Published at 34 Union Square, New York City. Price, 25 cents.

An interesting feature of Astronomy and Astro-Physics for May is a photographic view of the Pleiades, a constellation which always possesses attraction from its close connection with classical literature. Canals of Mars, The Satellites of Jupiter, and numerous treatises on abstruse subjects inseparable from astronomical science, by various adepts, with the results of recent investigation of astral phenomena indicate the advance which this noble study is continually making at home and abroad. Published at Carleton College, Northfield, Minn., ten times a year. Price, 50 cents.

NOTE.—Woman suffrage, or rather the newest agitation of it, will gather freshness of ideas in the serial story of "A Bachelor-Maid," by Mrs. Burton Harrison, which is soon to begin in the Century. The heroine is a New York girl agitated by all the current movements; a noble character struggling with the conditions, fads, sympathies, and philanthropic schemes of our day.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL.

—The report of the Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal Church shows an income of $87,653, of which $70,000 were collected from Sunday-schools and churches. The number of students assisted is 1,416 in 100 different schools throughout the world and of twenty-four nationalities. Seventy-seven per cent are studying for the ministry or missionary work. The complete list of the educational institutions of the church shows that there are 202 with over 43,000 students, and property and endowments valued at $26,583,000, and an annual income of $1,810,171.

—The general minutes of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, for 1894, show 5,487 traveling preachers, 6,513 local preachers, 1,329,673 white members, an increase of 40,128 during the year; 312 colored members, a decrease of 45; and 3,225 Indian members, a decrease of 729. There are 13,185 churches valued at $20,567,757, and 3,163 parsonages valued at $3,675,739.

UNITED PRESBYTERIANS.

—The following is the summary for the present year: Synods, 12; Presbyteries, 64.

Ministers.—Pastors and S. S., 576; without charge, 257; total, 833; deceased, 9; received, 3; dismissed, 4; suspended, 3; ordained, 37; installed, 79; released 69; licentiates, 77; licensures, 40; students, 70.

Congregations.—With pastors and S. S., 668; vacant, 271; total, 939; pastoral charges, 776; congregations organized, 21; dissolved, 13; mission stations, 148; new stations, 11.

Buildings.—Churches erected, 38; total cost, $402,465; average, $10,590; congregations without house, 54; parsonages, 253; erected during year, 21; total cost, $36,600; average cost, $1,886.

Members.—Received on profession, 8,249; on certificate, 6,170; deaths, 1,680; removals, 5,586; members in America, 104,058; total members, 115,272; adults baptized, 1,861; infants baptized, 4,218.

Sabbath-schools.—Open whole year, 1,096; open part year, 18; total, 1,114; officers and teachers, 11,649; scholars, 101,667; contributions, $79,250.

Societies.—Missionary, 853; young people, 710; members, 30,824.

Contributions.—Pastors' salaries, $569,086; congregational purposes, $598,105; for boards, $241,787; general purposes, $97,086; total for America, $1,493,572; total for church, $1,506,064; average per member, $14.68; average salary, $1,020; congregations contributing to any one fund, 760; contributing to all, 415; not contributing to any, 50; not reporting, 47; membership of congregations not reporting, 2,350.

FRIENDS—STATISTICS.

	1892	1893
Philadelphia estimated	5,500	5,500
New England	4,393	4,335
New York	3,795	3,749
Baltimore	993	1,021
North Carolina	5,130	5,200
Ohio	4,767	5,034
Indiana	18,177	18,472
Wilmington	5,221	5,321
Western	13,923	14,249
Iowa and Oregon	12,289	11,415
Oregon		1,363
Kansas	9,587	10,186
Canada	1,040	1,020
Total	84,815	86,875
Increase		2,060
London	16,102	16,244
Dublin	2,636	2,611
Total	18,738	18,855
Increase		117
Australasian	515	524
On the Continent (Est.)	200	200
Total in the World		106,454
Total Increase		2,086

—Christian Worker.

WORK OF THE SALVATION ARMY.

—The Review of the Salvation Army work for the past year has been published. The following selections from it possess special interest:

The total standing of the Army throughout the world is thus exhibited: Corps and outposts, 7,397; training garrisons, 66; slum posts, 64; rescue homes, 49; prison gate homes, 12; homes of rest, 24; food and shelters, 53; factories and labor bureaus, 32; farm colonies, 5; total social institutions, 215; number of officers, 10,874; social officers, 443; rescue officers, 288; slum officers, 186; farm colony officers, 87; total social officers, 1,004; War Crys sold weekly, 580,532; Young Soldiers sold weekly, 147,582; magazines monthly, 114,990.

Standing of the Army in the United States: Number of corps and outposts, 114; slum posts, 14; rescue homes, 5; food and shelter depots, 5; outrider circuits, 3; total number of officers, 1,634.

Slum work performed in Chicago in 1893: Souls saved, 114; families visited, 3,205; saloon and dive visits made, 5,464; tenements prayed in, 2,123; persons dealt with on streets and in saloons, 8,086; meals given, 10,318; garments given, 3,647; sick cases nursed, 219; hours spent in visiting, 1,932; hours spent in street work and for poor and sick, 2,390.

MISCELLANEOUS.

—At least in some respects Africa would appear to be the paradise for women missionaries. For "nothing is feared from them, and they are allowed to go in and out at their pleasure. Their presence more than once has spared valuable lives to the Congo work. The missionaries in Africa count the work of one woman worth that of twelve men, since they can go everywhere, even among the fiercest tribes. Their motives are never questioned, and they are listened to with the greatest respect." Woman has a large sphere in China as well, for "it may be truthfully said, in general terms, that the salvation of women in all Oriental countries depends on the women of Christian lands. This arises from the peculiar ideas of propriety and modesty prevalent, which forbid women holding any social intercourse with men who are not members of their own immediate families.

—At Wittenberg, Germany, during a recent storm which passed over Europe, Luther's famous old church was wrecked. It had been restored and reconsecrated under the direction of the Emperor.

—At the beginning of the century there were only 150 missionaries; now there are 25,000 missionaries and native helpers.

DONATIONS.

Current Expense Fund:

J. F. Icke	$ 1 50
J. W. Suidter	5 00
Wm. Kitely	5 00
Mrs G Spies	10 00
Mrs. G. F. Milton	18 00
L. M. Samson	10 00
A. G. Mansfield	3 17
Julia Hulburt	5 00
J. W. Allen	3 17
Rev. Samuel F. Porter	25 00
Mrs. M. B. Parke	5 00
Prof. C. M. Lowe	5 00
Jacob Ackart	5 00
Mrs. M. C. Walston	3 50
O. N. Carnahan	2 00
H. Curtis	5 00
Mrs. S. L. Johnson	5 00
Mrs. R. Fry	1 00
Peter Guthrie	1 25
Wm. Huston	5 00
John Shuh	8 50
Rev. Amos Dresser	10 00
E. Whipple	5 00
John Crawford	3 00
W. Kytle	5 00
D. Davis	50
I. Faris	1 50
O. C. Blanchard	1 00
J. W. Wood	1 00
I Bancroft	2 10
Collection	1 10
S. S. Finley	1 00
Mrs. Lizzie Kessel	2 00
W. A. Hervey	50
Chs. Kennicott	3 85
H. A. Fischer	5 00
Collection College Church at Wheaton, Ill	25 20
C. A. Blanchard	10 00
John Hays Gray Estate	75 00
	$285 34

Free Tract Fund:

L. C. Livesay	$ 65
D. Lotzenhiser	50
Mrs. M. F. Carr	1 60
E. H. Person	50
W. C. Wilson	50
O. W. Watkins	50
C. S. D. Cowles	25
	$ 4 50

Southern Ministers' Fund:

N. P. Eddy	$ 50
W. Hamlyn	60
Mrs. E. Talcott	1 50
	$ 2 60

W. I. PHILLIPS, Sec'y and Treas.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2	56	@	57
Winter No. 2	53	@	56¾
Corn—No. 2	37	@	39¼
Oats—No. 2	33¼	@	36⅛
Rye—No. 2	45¼	@	50½
Bran per ton	11 50	@	12 00
Hay—Timothy	9 00	@	11 00
Butter, medium to best	12	@	18⅛
Cheese	06	@	12½
Beans	1 25	@	1 85
Eggs, fresh			09
Seeds—Timothy (100 lbs)	3 75	@	4 25
Flax	1 32½	@	1 33
Clover (100 lbs.)	8 00	@	9 10
Broom corn (per ton)	30 00	@	70 00
Potatoes, (bu.)	60	@	78
Hides—Green to dry flint	02¼	@	06½
Lumber—Common		15	50
Wool (unwashed)	12	@	26
Cattle—Choice to extra	4 00	@	4 50
Common to good	3 65	@	4 15
Hogs	4 90	@	5 32½
Sheep	4 10	@	4 40

NEW YORK.

Wheat No. 2	58¾	@	60⅜
Corn No 2	43¼	@	44⅜
Oats	38¾	@	42
Rye	51	@	56
Eggs, Western fresh	12	@	12¼
Butter	09½	@	17
Wool	15	@	26

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle	1 90	@	4 35
Hogs	4 40		5 05

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50cts each.

Standard Works
—ON—
SECRET SOCIETIES
FOR SALE BY THE
National Christian Associat'n
111 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 65 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers. 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Allyn's Ritual of Freemasonry by Avery Allyn contains the fully Illustrated Ritual of the Blue Lodge, Chapter Council and Commandery, 11 of the Scotch Rite Degrees, Several Masonic side degrees and what is termed a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, the Orange and Odd-fellows Societies. Price in cloth $5.00.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor. Profusely illustrated with explanatory engravings, and containing the ritual and work of the order for the seven degrees, including the Royal Arch. Though extensively used as an Instruction Book and one of the best in the market it is not as accurate as "Freemasonry Illustrated," the first book on catalogue. Price in cloth, $2 50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry. Containing the ceremonies of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, etc. Illustrated. Although extensively used in conferring the higher degrees, it is not only very incomplete but inaccurate especially as regards the first seven degrees, and as to the higher degrees it gives but a description and general idea of the degrees rather than the full ritual. Price in cloth, $1.25; Paper covers, 75c.

Look to the East. A Ritual of the first three Masonic Degrees by Ralph Lester. Price in cloth $2.00. Notwithstanding the high price this book is very inferior in every way to Freemasonry Illustrated or The Handbook of Freemasonry at a quarter the price.

Ecce Orienti. The Complete Standard Ritual of the First Three Masonic Degrees in Cypher, with complete Floor Charts of Initiating, Passing and Raising a Candidate. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Cabala. The Complete Standard Ritual of the Chapter Masonic Degrees; 4th to 7th inclusive, in Cypher. Giving the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master and Royal Arch, Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Council of the Orient. The Complete Standard Ritual of Council Masonic Degrees in Cypher, 8th to 10th inclusive. Giving the Degrees of Royal Master, Select Master and Super Excellent Master. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

Knights of the Orient. The complete Ritual of the Commandery Masonic Degrees, Knights of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta, 11th to 13th degrees. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

The Mystic Shrine Illustrated. An Illustrated Ritual of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. This is a Side Masonic degree conferred only on Knights Templar and on Thirty-two degree Masons. 15 cts. each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion. 5 cents each.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50cts.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Odd-fellowship: Its History and its Work. By President J. Blanchard. A new pamphlet with cover. Postpaid. 5 cts

OTHER RITUALS.

Revised Knights of Pythias Illustrated. An exact copy of the new Official Ritual Adopted by the Supreme Lodge of the World, with the Secret work added and fully Illustrated. In cloth 50 cts. Paper cover 25 cts.

Knights of the Orient Illustrated. The full Illustrated Ritual of Ancient Order of the Orient, or the Oriental degree, This is a side degree conferred mostly in Knights of Pythias lodges. 15 cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and council. 25cts each.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin. Illustrated with engravings. 25 cents each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords etc. 15cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated, "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each.

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

Knights of Labor Illustrated. ("Adelphon Kruptos.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

Folly, Expense and Danger of Secret Societies. By Pres. C. A. Blanchard. This booklet of 32 pages is a general discussion of the secret orders, whether religious, political, industrial, insurance or social. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Disloyal Secret Oaths. By Joseph Cook, Boston. He quotes the law of Vermont which makes the administration of the Masonic oaths illegal. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing? An address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891. W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's, too." A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover Postpaid, 5 cents.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void: or Freemasonry Self Convicted. This is a book for the times. The design of the author is to refute the arguments of those who claim that the oaths of Freemasonry are binding upon those who take them. 207 pages. Postpaid, 40 cents each.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the lodge when S. H. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry. 15 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 300 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Masonry a Work of Darkness, adverse to Christianity, and inimical to republican government. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian) a seceding Mason of 21 degrees. 15 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. J. Day Brownlee. In reply to a Masonic Oration by Rev. Dr. Mayer, Wellsville, Ohio. 5 cents each.

Masonic Outrages. Compiled by Rev. H. H. Hinman. Showing Masonic assault on lives of seceders, on reputation, and on free speech; its interference with justice in courts, etc. Postpaid, 20 cents.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife, of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty-three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

HOME AND HEALTH.

EXPERT EVIDENCE AS TO POISON.

"I have made a specialty of reading everything published relating to every poisoning case that figures in the courts," said Dr. Frederick M. Endlich, of California, to me. "It isn't a fad with me exactly, but I have an idea that a great many innocent people are convicted of killing their fellow-men by the use of poison. They are convicted upon circumstantial evidence. I had an experience a few years ago that taught me a lesson and opened my eyes a bit. I had been off prospecting in Colorado. On reaching Denver, not feeling well, I consulted a physician. He diagnosed my case malaria and gave me a prescription containing arsenic. He treated me for a couple of days, and as my business was pressing I hurried on to San Francisco. When I got to 'Frisco I was in pretty bad shape and went at once to my old physician. He saw at once that my trouble was not malaria, but indigestion. The next day when I called on him he looked at me keenly and said:

"'Endlich, have you been trying to kill yourself?'

"'No,' I answered. 'What is the matter?'

"'I have discovered strong traces of poison in your system.'

"Then I remembered my Denver doctor's prescription for malaria and all was made clear. He had, it seems, given me arsenic in small quantities, and as none of it had digested it had accumulated in my stomach. Of course, when my digestive apparatus did resume work there was enough arsenic inside of me to kill a horse. The doctor worked over me for a week before I was out of danger. Suppose I had been taken ill at a country tavern just after eating, and died before help could arrive. The post mortem would have revealed poison, and suspicion might have fallen upon my wife or any of my friends who had happened to be near me at the time. They might have had hard work to establish their innocence. Since then I have taken more or less interest in poisoning cases."—New York Press.

FREE TRIAL FREE.

$2.75 Buys our $9 Natural Finish Baby Carriage complete with plated steel wheels, axle, springs, and one piece steam bent handle. Made of best material, nicely finished, reliable and guaranteed for 3 years. Shipped on 10 days' trial. FREIGHT PAID; no money required in advance. 75,000 in use. We are the oldest and best known concern of our kind, reliable and responsible. Reference furnished at any time. Make and sell nothing but what we guarantee to be as represented, sold at the lowest factory prices. WRITE TO-DAY for our large FREE illustrated catalogue of latest designs and styles published.

OXFORD MFG. CO., 340 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer. Ennis, Texas.

MY EXPERIENCES

WITH

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY A TRAVELER.

With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

—o-o—

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,

but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chica

M. L. Cheuvront
Leonard, Mo.

In Agony

15 Years With Salt Rheum

Hood's Sarsaparilla Gave a Perfect Cure.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"Hood's Sarsaparilla is an excellent medicine. I had eczema in my left leg for fifteen years. Part of the time my leg was one mass of scabs, and about every week corruption would gather under the skin and the scabs would slough off.

The Itching and Burning sensation made me suffer indescribable agonies. I spent a great deal of money for different remedies but did not get relief. About a year ago, leading physicians advised me to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. I did so and have taken five bottles. Now all the sores, scabs and pain have vanished and I am enjoying perfect health. I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is second to none and gladly recommend it to all suffering humanity." M. L. CHEUVRONT, Leonard, Missouri.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Hood's Pills act easily, yet promptly and efficiently, on the liver and bowels. 25c.

THE

Folly, Expense & Danger

OF

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY

CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.
(President Wheaton College.)

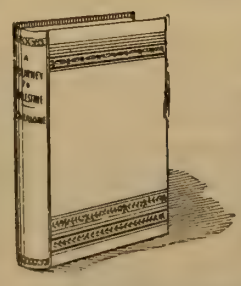
5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago

A Journey to Palestine

BY REV. B. CARRADINE, D. D.

—oo—



Revised and Illustrated Edition. 500 pages. Eighteen beautiful half-tone Engravings, including portrait of Author. Cloth postpaid, $1.50. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

A BOOKLET.

107 pages, 5x7 inches.

Paper Cover, Postpaid, 15 Cents.

—o:o—

The following addresses form part of the contents of this booklet:

THE MARTYR'S OWN MONUMENT, by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association.

CHRISTIAN POLITICS, by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure.

THE MYSTERIOUS MACHINE: was it Lawnmower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what? by Prof. E. D. Bailey of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government.

This booklet includes other interesting matter connected with the unveiling of the Morgan monument at Batavia, N. Y. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

THE GUIDING HAND;

—OR—

PROVIDENTIAL DIRECTION.

—)o(—

Illustrated by authentic instances of Relief and Deliverance in times of Trouble and Perplexity; of Direction through Dreams and Mental Impressions, and of Providential Guidance, resulting in Conversion. Recorded and collected by

H. L. HASTINGS,
(Editor of "The Christian.")

This striking work is divided into three parts as follows:

(1) Providences in Relief and Deliverances. (2) Dreams and Impressions. (3) Conversions.

The "Guiding Hand" contains nearly 400 pages. It is really a handsome book, printed on heavy book paper, from large open type, good for the eyes, and artistically and durably bound in fine cloth, with fancy panels. Price, $1.50.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

The Nonesuch Professor,

In his Meridian Splendor. By William Secker (Puritan). With an introduction by Theo. L. Cuyler, D. D. 16 mo, $1.00.

"It is a mine of sparkling gems."—Presbyterian Observer.

"A sheaf of golden grain, ripened by grace, and sweet with the flavor of rare simplicity and holy wisdom."—N. Y. Observer.

"It is a searching book."—Christian Intelligencer.

"This is a wonderful book. At whatever page you open it, your eye lights upon pithy aphorisms that combine the sententiousness of Benjamin Franklin with the sweet, holy savor of Samuel Rutherford. It contains hundreds of bright seed thoughts."—Rev. T. L. Cuyler, D. D

Talks to Sunday-School Teachers.

By Rev. J. G. Terrill. 12mo, 200 pages, bound in fine cloth..... .75

This book is the result of twenty-five years of experience in Sunday-school and treats of: 1. The Sunday-school organization and management. 2. Methods of work. 3. Studies in human nature. 4. Rules of Interpretation as applied to the Bible. 5. Illustrative exercises for primary classes and children's meetings. In the style of presentation, subject matter and price of the book, the wants of the officers and teachers of the ordinary Sunday-school are kept in view.

S. S. Times:—A very comprehensive book. N. Y. Independent:—A sensible manual for the average Sunday-school teacher. Evan. Mess.:—We have been very favorably impressed with the book, because it is so intensely practical. The subject is systematically treated, and leaders of teacher's meetings can not do better than adopt it as a text-book and devote half an hour of each session to teaching the theory and practice of teaching as here systematized. Christian at Work:—Any school that will adopt this book generally and carry forward its work or doctrines here laid down will not be long in developing into a model school and reaping the harvest of a rich fruitage. Herald and Presbyter:—These Talks are well attested in their profitableness and excellence. Buffalo Advocate:—A plain, practical, common sense book on a very important subject. The author has had wide experience in this field of work. He knows thoroughly the ground over which he would lead others, and possesses the happy faculty of packing a great deal of valuable information as to matter and manner of teaching into this little hand-book. We commend it to the attention of all Sunday-school workers. Religious Telescope:—We are pleased with the plan and treatment of the subjects throughout, and are sure that the diligent Sunday-school teacher who longs for more thorough equipment, will find in this book a helper of great value. Illustrated Christian Weekly:—The author talks from observation and experience, and talks well.

Sunday School Publications.

The Pearl (Mo.)	Pr. Qr. 3c.	Sunshine (Mo.)	Pr. Qr. 2 "
The Lily	" " 3 "	Pure Words	" " 2 "
Light & L Scholar's Qrly.	2 "	Light & L Inf Cl. wk.	4 "
" Teacher's "	5 "	" " Lesson Leaf "	1½ "
Golden Treasures	1 "	L. & L. Primary Qly	4 "

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTIONS.

The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, Teacher's Quarterly Pr. Yr. 25c
& Sunshine, each Pr. Yr. 25c Scholar's " " " 20c
The four to one address " 75c L. & L. Infant Class, weekly, 25c

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

RECENT PUBLICATIONS

OF

FLEMING H. REVELL.

Modern Ideas of Evolution.

As related to Revelation and Science. By Sir William Dawson, L. L. D., F. R. S., etc. 12 mo, cloth, $1.50.

In popular style, a testing by scientific facts and principles, the validity of that multiform and brilliant philosophy of the universe, which has taken so deep a hold of the science and literature of our times.

The New World of Central Africa

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness; with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. Maps, Portraits and numerous engravings. 537 pages, 12 mo, $2.00.

This comprehensive volume is as fascinating as the most entertaining romance. Its vivid portrayal of the dark side of African history makes one's blood tingle, while its earnest appeals create an inspiring sympathy with the effort to evangelize its teeming millions.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

Matthew Henry's Commentary.

An entirely new large type edition of this inimitable Commentary, in six large 8vo. volumes, fine cloth, $15.00; or, in half Morocco, $18.00.

"Biblical students who are most familiar with the very best commentaries of this generation are most able to appreciate the unfading freshness, the clear analysis, the spiritual force, the quaint humor, and the evangelical richness of Matthew Henry's Exposition of the Old and New Testaments."—New York Observer

"First among the mighty for general usefulness we are bound to mention the man whose name is a household word—MATTHEW HENRY. He is the most pious and pithy, sound and sensible, suggestive and sober, terse and trustworthy."—Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

The Present Tenses of the Blessed Life.

By Rev. F. B. Meyer. 32 mo, 50 cents.

"It is sufficient to say its one direct aim is the present enjoyment of the precious promises. Mr. Meyer's earnest and persuasive teaching in this direction is admirably condensed in these brief chapters."

BY THE SAME AUTHOR:

Christian Living. Cloth, 32 mo, 50 cents.

"A more suggestive and helpful volume it would not be easy to name."—Christian Leader.

The Shepherd Psalm. Cloth, 32 mo, 50c

"This is a gem."—Illustrated Christian Weekly

"It is a little book which hundreds of devout hearts will enjoy,"—Congregationalist.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

OTHER WORKS BY C. H. SPURGEON:

Feathers for Arrows; Or, Illustrations for Teachers and Preachers. 12 mo, $1.

"This work covers a wide range of subjects. The metaphors are always striking and frequently brilliant, while the truths that they illustrate are such as have always formed the staple of Mr. Spurgeon's discourses. A choicer collection of illustrations we do not know."—Freeman.

Spurgeon's Gems. Being a selection of brilliants from his discourses. 12 mo, $1.

The Golden Alphabet. Being a Devotional Commentary on the One Hundred and Nineteenth Psalm. 12 mo, $1.00.

"Mr. Spurgeon brings out the truths and beauties of this wonderful Psalm so as to set a rich feast before the reader. As a practical commentator on the Psalms, Spurgeon has no equal."—Presbyterian Banner.

"This commentary is written in quite the happiest vein of its popular author, and the devotional spirit throughout is intense and elevating."—Occident.

Gleanings Among the Sheaves. 18 mo, 60c.

All of Grace. An earnest word with those seeking the way of life. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

According to Promise; Or, the Lord's Dealings with His chosen People. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Christmas Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve New Year Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth. 50 cents.

"Preachers may get aid in preparing Easter or funeral sermons from this volume. Good to present to those who have lost loved ones."—National Baptist.

Twelve Striking Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Soul-Winning Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Selected by Mr. Spurgeon as the twelve sermons under which there has been the most marked and permanent success.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

Tried & True

may well be said
of the Superior Medicine,
the standard
blood-purifier,

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA

Its long record
assures you that what has cured others

will cure you

AMERICAN HANDBOOK
AND
CITIZEN MANUAL.
BY
MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
WM. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Chic

THE TWO-FOLD GIFT
of the Holy Ghost,
BY REV. THOS. K. DOTY,
Author of Lessons in Holiness.

240 pp. Price postpaid.....65cts.

The design of this book is, in plain language, to designate the place of the Holy Ghost in both the Godhead and the work of Salvation. Especially to show that Entire Santification is wrought in the heart by the Baptism of Holy Ghost; and that the Epoch of the Baptism is identical with that of his Advent in his Indwelling Personalty. The agency of the Holy Ghost in the Life, and in carrying on the work of the Gospel, is given particular attention.

TITLES TO THE CHAPTERS:

1. A Summary. 2. The Holy Ghost a Person. 3. The New Testament Designating Terms. 4. The Scriptural View. 5. The Holy Ghost is God. 6. Blasphemy Against the Holy Ghost. 7. The Trinity of God. 8. The Apostolic Benediction. 9. The Worship of the Holy Ghost. 10. The Dispensations. 11. The First Dispensation. 12. The Second Dispensation. 13. Holiness—Sinning. 14. "The Sin of the World." 15. Final Deliverance from Sin. 16. The Day of the Holy Ghost. 17. Jesus and the Holy Ghost. 18 and 19. The Epoch of the Holy Ghost. 20. The Anointing. 21. The Baptism of the Holy Ghost. 22. The Baptism of Fire. 23. The Two-Fold Experiences of the Holy Ghost. 24. Fellowship of the Holy Ghost. 25. "In the Spirit." 26. Several Scriptural Terms Considered. 27. Pentecost. 28. Inspiration—Prophecy. 29. Spiritual Leading and Teaching. 30. The Gifts of the Spirit. 31. "Praying in the Holy Ghost." 31 and 32. Power.

This book is creating quite a stir in religious circles. The original, bold and convincing manner of presenting the subject, has forced the press to comment upon the book, either adversely or favorably, generally the latter. We give a few OPINIONS:

Bible Standard and Gospel Record: "This book is very compact, scarcely a superfluous sentence in the whole book. The manner of treating the questions involved is both clear and scriptural. .....The effect of the book will be to deepen thought and increase knowledge and, in the end, deepen piety."

Evangelical Messenger: "Brother Thomas K. Doty has written a book which we take pleasure in commending to all devout readers who enjoy all spiritual things. The subject is so important, and the treatment of it so timely, that we may be pardoned for calling attention to it thus prominently. We, at least have been greatly interested, and gratefully acknowledge that we have also been decidedly profited by perusing it .....Brother Doty writes with an incisive pen, in a clear, lucid style, often epigrammatical and with great force. He is evidently deeply impressed with the truth of what he writes and demands the respect even where he does not gain the intellectual assent of his readers. Withal the book is written in a kindly, candid spirit, rather didactic than polermical, and is calculated to help the reader and not to rouse his opposition, as is the case with so many books which have been written upon this and kindred subjects. The theological views expressed are orthodox, and in some cases the argument is fresh in matter, and certainly fresh in form throughout."

Christian Cynosure: "His book is one of the most excellent, instructive and practical of any that have come to our knowledge. The exposition of the Scriptures concerning the personality and work of the Spirit is very clear, able and comforting. There is much dogmatizing on these topics by Christians who never fully felt the power of the Spirit's work, or are not living in gracious fellowship with him. To all such and to those who have not yet learned what gifts the Lord is waiting to bestow on his people we heartily commend the careful reading of this volume."

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

FARM NOTES.

FEEDING AT A LOSS.

It should be considered in keeping poultry that a flock of hens are, to a certain extent, scavengers on the farm, and they should be permitted to perform that function. The hen can eee the smallest seed on the ground, and every square inch of the surface is carefully searched. The amount of food which she can secure for herself during the day, unaided, is quite large, and she consumes a great variety of substances that would be lost but for her appropriation of them. On the range she not only consumes grass and seeds, but destroys a large number of insects also, and every ounce of food thus secured is so much gain to the farmer, of which he should avail himself.

During the summer months the hens require less food than in the winter, though something depends on how they may be situated, and how many eggs may be layed; but when on the range they cannot fail to secure a full supply of all that they require if they are active and industrious. If the farmer continues to feed them he will waste the food given, as the hens will not seek food on the range if they are fed in the barn-yard, becoming lazy and sluggish, and also overburdened with fat. By withholding food the cost of the eggs will be reduced, and of course the profit will be much greater.

As an experiment, take two flocks that are alike, and give them free range. Feed one flock at the barn-yard, allowing grain twice a day, and compel the other flock to pick up its food (provided the range is good), and the flock that receives no food at the barn-yard will not only lay more eggs than the other, but will also keep in better condition, while the flock that is given plenty of grain will be fat, and will contain a larger proportion of hens that desire to sit. Of course, such method will not answer for all the seasons, but applies to the warm days of summer only, and the experiment is worthy of being made.—Farm and Fireside.

Lack of vitality and color-matter in the bulbs causes the hair to fall out and turn gray. We recommend Hall's Hair Renewer to prevent baldness and grayness.

"Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething" softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain and cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

THE OBJECTS, WORK AND SECRET RITUAL of "The Nobles of the Mystic Shrine" have just been issued in a revised and enlarged edition. Price, in paper, 25 cents. This new order of Freemasonry, now so popular in this country as the basis of social hilarity among members of the higher degrees, claims to have originated in Arabia, and was revived in Egypt, and brought to America from France. It is interlarded with Mohammedan terms and worship; and its original objects as defined in its ritual, was inquisitorial and barbarous. Its prayers are addressed to "Allah," instead of the G. A. O. T. U., and it is quite as un-Christian as the devotees of the blue lodge would have it. The abridged edition is still sold for 15 cents. Address the National Christian Association, 221 West Madison street, Chicago.

THE MYSTIC SHRINE
Illustrated.
THE FULL
ILLUSTRATED RITUAL
OF THE
Nobles of the Mystic Shrine

PRICE 15 CENTS, EACH.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

This is (a) House Cleaning Time

—and it's a time of trouble and much work for unbelieving women. Because their grandmothers worked hard then and made things uncomfortable, they can't believe that there's any better way.

Other women can—millions of them. They use Pearline, and "take it easy." They're spared the hard work, get through in half the time, and save the wear and tear that's made by useless scouring and scrubbing. Paint, glass, marble, wood-work, carpets, hangings, everything that will "wash" at all, is cleaned or washed easily and safely with Pearline.

Use Pearline, and you won't mind the trials of house-cleaning. You can laugh at them. But if you don't use Pearline, wiser women will laugh at you.

Send it Back Peddlers and some unscruplous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, do the honest thing send it back. 306 JAMES PYLE, New York

Where Grapes are Choicest

—sweeter and juicier than anywhere else—they're taken from the vine, pressed and their succulence concentrated—the origin of SANITAS GRAPE FOOD—

The California GRAPE CURE

—unfermented—absolutely pure.

It's a delicious medicine—nourishes the digestion, strengthens the nerves, clears the vocal organs. A refreshing beverage — non-alcoholic —suitable for table and sick-room use—keeps fresh for years.

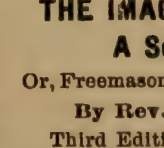
A pint bottle (75c.) makes one-half gallon of the food.

Your grocer or druggist sells it. Booklet free.

THE CALIFORNIA GRAPE FOOD CO.,

Los Gatos, Cal.

General Eastern Agency,
145 Broadway, N. Y.
General Pacific Agency,
408 Sutter St., San Francisco.
Chicago Selling Agent,
Edwin E. Hills, 70 State St.



BUY DIRECT AND SAVE DEALER'S $12 AND AGENT'S PROFITS.

buy our Oxford Boss Bicycle, suitable for either sex, made of best material, strong, substantial, accurately adjusted and fully warranted. Write to-day for our large complete catalogue of bicycles, parts, repairs, etc., free. OXFORD MFG. CO.
338 Wabash Avenue, - CHICAGO, ILL.

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST
A Secret Empire;
Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.
By Rev. Richard Horton.
Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.
Price, 60 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

The St. Louis Sermon
Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

An Address by Rev. B. Carradine D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."

A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover.

Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

A NEW AND WONDERFUL BOOK.

TOUCHING INCIDENTS
AND
REMARKABLE ANSWERS TO PRAYER,
AS RELATED BY

John Wesley, Bishop Simpson, John B. Gough, Edward Payson, James Caughey, Bishop Bowman, John Knox, Martin Luther, C. H. Spurgeon, Wm. Carvosso, S. A. Keen, A. B. Earle, B. Fay Mills, D. L. Moody, Guy Fox, Frances E. Willard, Geo. Muller, James H Potts, Chas. G. Finney, T. De Witt Talmadge, and many others.

This new book is meeting with universal favor.

OVER 3,000 SOLD IN LESS THAN THREE WEEKS.

Read a few of the good things said of it:

Western Christian Advocate: "It is simply wonderful. No one can read the book without having his faith in prayer greatly strengthened."

Union Signal: "Its high religious tone, its fascinating spirit, and the high rank of its contributors, make it a strong faith tonic and an inspiration to prevailing prayer."

B. Fay Mills: "A wonderful book—an excellent book."

Chaplain C. C. McCabe: "This book will remind the reader that there are Elijahs still upon the earth."

Bishop Wm. Taylor "True to its title."

This grand, inspiring book sent postpaid for only $1. Ministers 75 cents.

Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

Any who wish the agency or general agency for the book, should address the author, Rev. S B. Shaw,
Near Grand Rapids. DUTTON, MICH.

Royal Baking Powder

Absolutely Pure

A cream of tartar baking powder. Highest of all in leavening strength. — Latest United States Government Food Report.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO.,
106 Wall St., N. Y.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

CHICAGO.

By the provisions of a report made by the postal commission fifty-seven independent postoffices in Chicago are to be changed into sub-stations, 212 carriers are added, and one more delivery is provided for, the change to be effective July 1.

Business at the banks continues very quiet and rates on call for money were never lower.

Election commissioners, who refused to turn over the ballots asked for by the Grand Jury, must answer for contempt of court.

In accordance with the resolution adopted by the general grievance committee, 3,500 operators at the Pullman car works went on strike.

Twenty-four ministers were graduated from the theological seminary of the Evangelical Lutheran church of Chicago.

Twenty preachers were given diplomas at the thirty-eighth annual commencement of Garrett Biblical Institute.

Knights of Labor failed in their third attempt to settle the difficulties with the Chicago City Railway Co.

Officers of the Alley Elevated Railroad are experimenting with compressed air as a motive power. If the test is successful operating expenses will be greatly reduced.

Mrs. Caroline E. Haskell has given $20,000 to Chicago University to endow a lectureship in comparative religion.

Mrs. Frederick Magnusson-Jewett, who for a quarter of a century had been an instructor of vocal music in Chicago, is dead.

General Matthew M. Trumbull died at his residence in Chicago. He did brilliant service in the civil war and had written exhaustively on the tariff and labor questions.

Health commissioners of several States discussed the smallpox situation in Chicago and practically decided to compel fumigation of all clothing made in sweat shops.

Residents of Cicero and surrounding townships resolved to inaugurate a campaign against race tracks and saloons.

Striking Blue Island brickmakers reached an agreement with the manufacturers and work was resumed.

COUNTRY.

Trustworthy reports show a material decrease in failures in the United States and Canada.

Clearing-house reports for principal cities in the United States show a decrease in the corresponding week of last year of 34.2 per cent.

Official figures show that nearly one-fourth of the old corn crop in Illinois is yet in the hands of the producers.

Chief Hazen, of the secret service, will wage active war on firms counterfeiting World's Fair medals and diplomas.

In Congress, the House Committee on Labor, after listening to Coxey decided to recommend an investigation of the commonweal movement by a committee of both Houses. Coxey, Browne and Jones, the commonweal leaders, were found guilty of violating the law. A motion for a new trial was entered.

Fearing he would be hanged for using a canceled postage stamp, a Swede named Johnson drowned himself in Boston harbor.

Major Powell, at the head of the government geological survey, has resigned, owing to failing health.

Women of the Ashland district, Kentucky, have determined to petition Breckenridge to withdraw from the Congressional race.

Seven men armed with Winchesters robbed the bank in Southwest City, Mo., of $4,000 and shot four citizens.

Favorable crop reports are received from all sections of the country, except the Pacific coast and the southern portion of the cotton region.

Members of the Little Falls, N. Y., branch of the Ancient Order of Hibernians boycotted a lecture by John F. Finerty, of Chicago, and their action has created a stir among Irishmen.

The American Ticket Brokers' Association, at its session in Washington, resolved to contest the Illinois Supreme Court decision sustaining the anti-scalper law.

Output of the Chicago and Milwaukee breweries for April showed a decrease of 3,686 barrels. No dividend will be declared on the ordinary shares for some time.

Populists of Illinois will cause a test of the apportionment acts of 1882 and 1893.

Patriotic women unveiled a monolith to Mary Washington at Fredericksburg, Va. President Cleveland made an address.

C. F. Wishart, of Illinois, was awarded first honors in the interstates college association contest at Indianapolis.

Rev Richard K. Todd, for forty-three years proprietor of Todd Seminary for boys at Woodstock, Ill., is dead at the age of 79.

Gus Weisbrodt, treasurer of Middletown, Ohio, has used $30,000 of the city's funds in betting on races.

FOREIGN.

Striking miners attacked gendarmes who were guarding a colliery in Polsh Ostran and in the conflict nine rioters were killed.

A vast nihilist conspiracy is said to have been discovered in St. Petersburg. A hundred arrests have been made.

By a vote of 291 to 220 the French government was sustained by the deputies in its determination to prosecute M. Toussaint for inciting workmen to continue a strike.

Twenty-three members of the executive committee of the Roumanian national party were placed on trial for treason in Hungary, and 30,000 sympathizers gathered to protest.

An earthquake destroyed the cities of Egido and Merida and several village isn Venezuela. Ten thousand lives are said to have been lost.

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances of money to the Cynosure from May 7 to May 12.

John Clair, Rev C R Hunt, Robt May, A F Brockman, J Gilmour, J Manville, Rev E Tappenbeck, Mrs M Harvey, Mrs N Frazier, B Fish, R W Wass, H H Hauser, J L Wadsworth, J M Frink, W A. Ferrenburg, N Smith, J S Pope, J W Leeds, T S Parvin, W Cheetham, Mar E Talcott.

If ever a man feels like "a poor worm of the dust," it is when he suffers from that tired feeling. Ayer's Sarsaparilla removes this discouraging physical condition and imparts the thrill of new life and energy to every nerve, tissue, muscle and fibre of the whole body.

Holes

in your lungs are the Homes of Consumption Germs. The diseased spots are wiped out with new tissue made by the Cream of Cod-liver Oil, and hypophosphites. This acts immediately upon the Lungs and makes new tissue there. Physicians, the world over, endorse it.

Scott's Emulsion

Don't be deceived by Substitutes!

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All Druggists.

PROPHECY:
A STUDY.

BY REV. S. F. PORTER,

A Study of Christ's Comings.

Paper Cover, 100 Pages.
Single copies, postpaid..... 25 cents.
Per 100 copies, postpaid..... $20.00.

For sale by the
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address Box 277. S. C. KIMBALL, Newmarket, N. H.

JONATHAN BLANCHARD'S
]-oo-[
SERMONS AND ADDRESSES.

Select discourses of the late editor of the Cynosure and leader in our reform. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of

LIVING REFORM.
Secret Societies,
The Sabbath,
Temperance,
National Reform,
Christian Education,
Christian Socialism,
The Bible, Etc., Etc.

A BOOK EVERYBODY SHOULD READ

12mo. Fine Photogravure Portrait.
Price, 75 Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Love, the Supreme Gift:
THE GREATEST THING IN THE WORLD.

The Perfected Life;
THE GREATEST NEED IN THE WORLD.

Both by Prof. Henry Drummond. Bound in chaste white vellum paper, each 20 cts.

These are not to be judged by the size, unless rubies are counted for the weight thereof. The first has been very largely circulated, the second is now only just published and deserves the same wide reading—both are gems such as are only found at rare intervals. If you have not read them, do so at once, you will be a better man or woman for the reading.

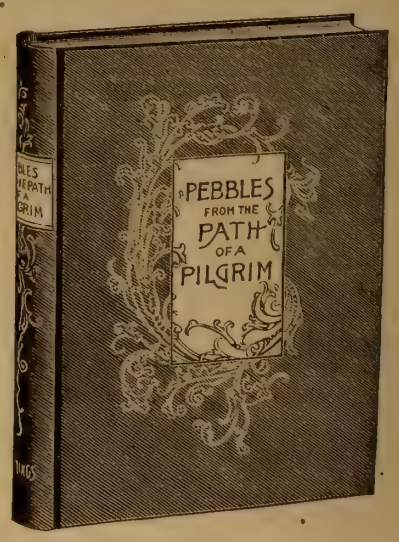
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

Between Two Opinions: OR THE QUESTION OF THE HOUR. By Miss E. E. Flagg author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages; cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim.

—BY—

MRS. H. L. HASTINGS.



This remarkable collection of stories from the eventful life of a Green Mountain girl has been pronounced "more fascinating than any romance." A member of Congress writes: "'Pebbles' has been read by me with great interest. The introductory chapter has followed me into dreams. My copy is read to pieces by the family, and borrowed to death by the neighbors." An editor says: "Surely the faith that 'obtained promises, wrought righteousness, and stopped the mouth of lions,' must have been given in large measure to the writer of this truly remarkable book....No family library should be without it." "'Pebbles,'" says the Christian Cynosure, "is such a book as Christian parents are always glad to put on their center-tables."

"Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim" is a large and beautiful book of over 300 pages, printed on heavy book paper, from clear open type, and is profusely illustrated. It is artistically bound in handsome cloth, with fancy panels, and specially attractive side and back cover designs. Price, $1.50.

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

The Very Best!

1894—LIGHT and LIFE LESSONS—1894
(INTERNATIONAL)

In book form, containing all the lessons for the entire year, with four large pages of instructions and comments on each lesson, comments being adapted to the Advanced, Intermediate, and Primary classes; Black Board Exercises, Maps, Bible Dictionary, and Class Registers beside other valuable helps. 225Pages.

Paper covers, postpaid..... .35
Clubs of five or more, postpaid..... .30
Cloth covers, postpaid..... .50
Clubs of five or more, postpaid..... .40

Read what is said about it:

"The classification of each of these fifty-two Lessons is excellent. The choicest of Biblical literature has been drawn upon for material to make it one of the very best lesson expositors extant, and in this respect its compilers have achieved flattering success. Its cheapness and its merits entitle it to a general acceptance by Sunday-school workers."—CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE.

"The book will prove a great convenience and a blessing."—EARNEST CHRISTIAN.

"This is a very complete and valuable guide to the Sunday school teacher for the International Lessons of 1894."—METHODIST RECORDER.

"This is the best thing by way of S. S. supplies I have ever seen."—W. W. HULET.

"It is a marvel of neatness and cheapness."—T. C. GIVENS.

"I am highly pleased with it."—JAMES I. COUNCIL.

"We like it exceedingly well and presume the plan will be continued in the future; if so you may count on us to subscribe for it."—VICTOR CHARROIN.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

 Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp.

LORD & THOMAS,
NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING
45 RANDOLPH STREET,
CHICAGO.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVI., No. 37. CHICAGO, THURSDAY, MAY 24, 1894. WHOLE No. 1,256.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill. as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
"The Gospel for the Cities"..... 8
Iniquity Abounding—and the Church..... 8
Iniquity in Chicago..... 8
CONTRIBUTIONS:
Brotherly Love..... 1
SELECTED:
The New Irish-American Conspiracy..... 2
Christian Workers Persecuted in Spain..... 3
Exhausted on Finance.. 3
The Great Antwerp Fair 3
CORRESPONDENCE:
Letters to the Annual Meeting..... 5
IN BRIEF..... 7
ANNUAL MEETING:
Directors' Report; Annual Report of the General Secretary; Treasurer's Report; Auditors' Report....4,5,9
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
N. C. A 7
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 8
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 9
THE HOME.....10
TEMPERANCE.....11
BIBLE LESSON 12
LITERATURE 12
RELIGIOUS NEWS. 12
Catalogue of Publications 13
HOME AND HEALTH.....14
FARM NOTES 15
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....16
MARKETS 16

A four-days' severe storm last week wrought unusual destruction, and caused the death of probably fifty persons on the great lakes and on shore. It was the worst gale experienced in this region within the past fifteen years, and the details are harrowing.

The columns of the Cynosure are so crowded this week with the proceedings of the Annual Meeting of the N. C. A., the reports of the past year's business, letters from non-attendants etc., that other matters of interest are unavoidably laid over until the next issue.

The Annual Meeting of the National Christian Association, last week, was more largely attended than were the prior two, and the proceedings were characterized by harmony and hopefulness in the future. The reports of last year's business and progress were encouraging, and gave promise of increased success in our reform work. We were pleased to see among those present two of the earliest supporters of the anti-secrecy cause—Elder Barlow and Rev. E L. Harris, who still retain their faith in the work which they aided in inaugurating. Altogether the occasion was one of much enjoyment.

The Coxey system of righting alleged wrongs meets with sharp rebuke from Judge Cooley, of Michigan, who, in the course of a lecture at the Ann Arbor law school, denied the right of American citizens to petition Congress, or their representatives, in person, as the Coxey armies seek to do. He said that where, as in ancient Greece, the people as a mass made the laws, the case was different; but our system of law-making is a representative system; and after the citizen has chosen his representatives, there is no power left to him whereby he can coerce those representatives into certain lines of action.

Two warm friends of the anti-secrecy reform, and earnest workers against the lodge on the Pacific coast—Rev. P. B. Williams and Rev. Henry L. Barkley, pastors in the United Brethren church—have each been nominated in their respective counties for representatives in the Oregon Legislature—the former by the Prohibitionists of Benton county, and the latter by the Republicans of Marion county. The impression conveyed by the comments of those intimately acquainted with these gentlemen is that they will make excellent legislators. Both have proved themselves able supporters of our work.

Dun and Co's Review and Bradstreet's reports thus indicate the situation of business during the past week: "The obstacles to improvement do not lessen. The strikes of coal miners and coke workers have not ceased, but have caused the stoppage of numerous works this week and embarrassment to some railroads. The conference at Cleveland exhibited much angry feeling and wider differences than had been expected, and seems to render agreement more distant. Yet the recuperative force of the country is so great that observers are constantly amazed at the volume of business being transacted, the tonnage being transported, the number of works resuming operations and the general soundness of trade notwithstanding influences which in any other land would produce dire disaster." "Continued uncertainty regarding tariff legislation," says Bradstreet, "restricts trading in futures in all staple lines. This is largely responsible for the reduction in the volume of bank clearings."

Sam Moy, a prominent Chinese merchant, and another Chinaman, Hip Lung, also well-known, and both residents of this city, are fearing assassination at the hands of agents of the murderous secret society of the Highbinders, composed of their countrymen. On Friday last, Mr. Moy reported his case to the federal authorities, but not to seek their protection, preferring to notify the police and ask them to aid him. From a government official it was learned that a new organization of Highbinders has recently been formed in the city which meets near Harrison and Clark streets. They are being watched by the police. The head of the organization, it is said, is Moy Kee, whose place of business is on State near Polk street. It is claimed that several of the Chinese arrested recently for opium smuggling are members of the new band, and that all of their party are satisfied that Hip and Sam gave the information which led to their incarceration. Informers are held in execration by Chinamen, and hence Hip and Sam, while they deny they had any dealings with the revenue officers, are much alarmed.

Respecting the situation in labor circles, the Chicago Herald of last Saturday makes this statement: "No more serious situation has been faced by this country for years than the one arising from the failure of the conference between the operators and coal miners to reach an agreement and end the strike which has been in progress for several weeks. A continuance of the strike for a few weeks longer means the absolute suspension of all manufacturing, the stoppage of railroad and lake transportation, a shutdown of all gas and electric light plants, and the most serious annoyance and inconvenience to householders all over the country. Our whole system of commerce and production is dependent upon coal as the basis of power. In a few localities wood may replace it temporarily, but wood is unsatisfactory as a fuel, and it cannot be obtained in sufficient quantities to supply the demand. The hope of tiding over the emergency by importing coal from Canada and Wales is idle. All that could be transported would be a mere drop in the bucket compared with the necessities of the country. Therefore, unless the dispute between the mine owners and their men is arranged we shall have a fuel famine of the most disastrous kind, and as both sides appear to have no respect whatever for the rights of the public in the matter, the prospect is that we will have to grin and bear it until one side or the other yields."

Persons who are conversant with the history of George Washington and believe that he was not much of a Freemason (since, as he wrote a year before his death: "I preside over no lodge, nor have I been in one more than once or twice during the last thirty years,") are asking why the Masonic fraternity were allowed (or invited) to officiate at the dedication of the monument recently erected in memory of Washington's mother. It was well enough for the President and other magnates of the government to be present at the exercises, since the monument has national significance; but the influence of the administration should have secured the event against so clannish a ceremony. It should have been free from anything and everything of a factional nature—a mark of respect in which all citizens could warmly unite. As it was, the memory of a noble woman, who was not a Mason—not even an "Eastern Star"—had to be subjected to the rigmarole and misleading performances of the lodge. It was shameful.

Rev. W. O. Dinius, of Harvey, Ill., notifies the Christian Conservator that Illinois is among the States in which women are permitted to vote for school officers, and adds: "We wish your readers to know that we are half-way, or nearly so, for woman suffrage here, and we are working hard to give them all the privileges in that direction which are allowed to foreigners, saloon-keepers, bummers, anarchists, Clan-na-Gaels, illiterates, half-civilized, and every other tramp, scamp and blackleg in the country. An Irishman came to the school election in Harvey, and seeing the women there, he said: 'And shure, kin wimmin vote here?' Being informed that they could, with an oath he tore his ticket to pieces and tramping it under his foot, said: 'And shure I'll not vote where wimmin kin vote,' and then walked away. Would to God that multiplied thousands like him would follow his example and let the women take their places in all elections!" We do not know of any denomination of Christians that opposes giving the ballot, at least in part, to women. Even intelligent Roman Catholics approve the measure.

BROTHERLY LOVE.

BY REV. J. M. FOSTER.

We use the word love with different significations. Sometimes it means the love of benevolence; i. e., desiring the happiness of others according to their nature and capacity. This is a duty which we owe to all men, good and bad. It is this that prompts God to send rain upon the evil and the good, and to make the sun shine on the righteous and the wicked. This is the love enjoined in the law. It is that charity which "beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things." It is that enjoined by the Saviour: "Love your enemies, do good to them that hate you and pray for them that despitefully use you and persecute you." Sometimes it means the love of complacency; i. e., delighting in the good character of the good. In this sense holy men love holy angels, and holy angels love holy men. Holy men and angels love God, and God loves them. It is limited to those who are pure in character and life. Only the good can be either subject or object of it. Still again, it signifies the love of the brother. This is more limited still. It can be exercised only by a believer, and only a believer can be the object of it. As the love of the law was for all men, the Saviour said: "A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another." A worldly man may love his wife and children. But his love is not based upon Christian principles; it is not a Christian sentiment, and it is not because they are Christians that he loves them. But a believer loves those who believe on Christ, because they are new creatures and the sons of God and bear the image of God, and are, with him, members of the household of God. An unbeliever may love the citizens of his nation from sentiments of patriotism, because they have a common ancestry, history, purpose and destiny. But the Christian loves fellow-believers, because they are members of the holy nation; because they are animated by the Spirit of Christ, guided by the law of Christ, and exalted by the glory of Christ. The ties of family and home are soon sundered. The ties of country and nation are soon broken, no more to be renewed. But the ties of the household of God and of the holy nation are intimate and indissoluble. "All flesh is as grass, and all the glory of man as the flower of grass. The grass withereth and the flower thereof falleth away; but the word of the Lord endureth forever." "Seeing ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth through the Spirit unto unfeigned love of the brethren, see that you love one another with a pure heart fervently; being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God, which liveth and abideth forever."

I. Brotherly love is unfeigned. This naturally suggests sincerity. Paul enjoins this: "Let love be without dissimulation." John requires it: "Love not in word, neither in tongue, but in deed and in truth." There must be a sentiment in the heart corresponding to the expression on the lips, and the sentiment must outrun the expression. There must be a feeling in the heart corresponding to the benevolent act, and the feeling must be stronger than its outward manifestation. This is one way in which we may "love with a pure heart." But hypocrisy is not the only species of that "filthiness of spirit" that interferes with the exercise of the grace of brotherly love. All low, earthly, selfish motives interrupt it. It is only when all these have been eliminated and the heart has been purified by the indwelling Spirit of God that this love is free and active and complete.

II. It is fervent. That means, it is constant. When Peter was in prison the disciples prayed for him "without ceasing." That is the word for fervent. It is not fitful. It is constant, as the shining sun. Clouds may pass between the earth and the sun, but the shining continues. It is as continuous as the flow of the river. "Men may come and men may go, but I go on forever." Human love is often changeable. To-day it blows hot; to-morrow it blows cold. To-day it cries "hosanna;" to-morrow it shouts "crucify him." But this love of the brother is unchangeable. A brother "loveth at all times." Love is not love which altereth when it alteration finds. In a battle in the late war, a young man from Boston had both arms and legs shot off. He had a dispatch sent to his affianced bride, informing her of his misfortune, and offering to release her from all obligations to him. She replied: "So long as there is enough of your body together to hold your soul, I am yours." That has the true ring. It is like the love of the brethren in its unchangeableness. But the word fervent contains the idea of intensity. "And being in an agony he prayed more earnestly." The word is fervently. This love is an unquenchable fire. "Many waters cannot quench love, neither can the floods drown it." The waters of neglect, contumely, reproach, infirmities, petty offences and injuries cannot quench or even dampen the ardor of this love. It is like the fire from heaven, which consumed Elijah's sacrifice and the wood and the stones of the altar, and licked up the water and mud in the trenches roundabout, using all as fuel to increase the flame which ascended to God as a sweet-smelling sacrifice. "Given to hospitality." "Ready to distribute." "Willing to communicate."

III. It is Christ like. He who is not ashamed to call them brethren, requires His people to love as brethren. "A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another, as I have loved you." The love of Christ for his people is free and ready, considerate and wise, laborious and costly, generous and self-sacrificing. He always had in view the interests of his disciples, but especially their highest interests. He remembered that they had bodies to be clothed and fed, but their souls' salvation was first. He defended them when their conduct was defensible; he held up and made much of their good qualities and threw the mantle of charity over their failings. He taught them as they were able to bear it, reproved their faults when necessary, and recognized them as brother and sister and mother. This makes the interests of one those of all. The wise guide the strong, and the strong protect the wise. The zealous stimulate the prudent; the conservative moderate the impetuous. And thus all the members of Christ's body, by joints and bands, having nourishment ministered, maketh increase unto the perfection of itself in love.

IV. It is toward all the brethren in Christ. It is not limited by denominational lines. But wherever a believer is found, it is called forth. It cannot be less extensive than Christ's love. The believer must love all those whom Christ loves, because he has his Spirit. If we love him that begat, we also must love him that is begotten of him. "If a man say, I love God and hateth his brother, he is a liar; for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen? and this commandment we have from him, that he that loveth God love his brother also." This love is not inconsistent with the maintenance of denominational distinctions. A soldier in the army has a regard for all in the ranks, because they have a common leader, a common cause, and common sentiments. But keeping his place in his own company is necessary to the maintenance of moral of the army. It would be the destruction of the army should he train with the cavalry to-day, the artillery to-morrow, and the infantry the third day; with one regiment the next day and another the following, and all have like freedom. To keep his place and perform his duties these are essential. So the soldier of the cross loves all Christ's people. But it is subversive of church order and efficiency to pretend to serve Christ upon undenominational lines. We cannot be Presbyterians, Congregationalists, Methodists and Baptists promiscuously. We must choose the place in the ranks of the sacramental host that corresponds with our convictions of revealed truth, and there we must work the work of God, and fight the good fight of faith. And as the sacramental feast is a seal of the covenant, in which believers pledge themselves to God and one another to be true to those Bible principles about which they are agreed, through which they hold communion with God and he with them, and by which they gain the victory over the world, the flesh and the devil, close communion is not only justifiable, but the only way in which the death of Christ can be shown forth in all its meaning. But this does not question the allegiance to the Captain of our salvation of the other divisions of his army, nor lessen our love for them.

Boston, May 3, 1894.

THE NEW IRISH-AMERICAN CONSPIRACY.

HOW IRELAND WAS TO HAVE BEEN CAPTURED.

In addition to our account, last week, of the recent Irish-American conspiracy against England, we print below further particulars of this diabolical scheme. (Diagrams are omitted.)

In 1886, when General Boulanger was minister of war, the French government consented to arm, pay, uniform and subsist three army corps of Irishmen—60,000 men in all—if the Irish societies in America would deliver the men at Cherbourg. It was proposed to open the campaign with 15,000 Irish troops embarked at Brest, on the coast of France. Twelve vessels of the merchant marine were to be used as transport ships and were to be escorted by six Spanish and ten French armed cruisers and a fleet of fourteen torpedo boats. This force, it was thought, would be sufficient to effect a landing on the west coast of Ireland. The permanent garrison of Ireland is only 30,000 men, and the simultaneous uprising of the peasantry would enable the revolutionary troops to establish themselves at Sligo, Galway and Limerick. The remaining 45,000 could be transported from France and an active campaign commenced along the railroads converging on Dublin on the east coast. A few trusted men were to cut the railroads and thus completely isolate the central strategic communications over Galway City, Athlone, Tullamore, Dublin and the line from Limerick. The road from Sligo over Longford City and Mullingar was also to be held. Unionist Ulster was to be completely cut off as well as the south of Ireland, except the zone between Sligo and the Shannon. (See map of Ireland.)

The peasantry could be relied upon to destroy all railroad bridges and tunnels on the railroads from the north and south, so that the only open lines would be those running east and west and closing on Dublin. Twenty thousand men could keep this belt open and the remaining 40,000 could handle any force which England, menaced by France, would undertake to send out. The French army proper would, with a small force covered by its channel squadron, effect a landing and the 80,000 men of home troops in England would be well occupied without attempting a campaign of subjugation in Ireland. Secrecy was to have been maintained until it was time to strike, when England would be completely paralyzed and prostrated by the simultaneous blowing up of all her important tunnels, railway bridges and arsenals. Her railways would be crippled and neither troops nor supplies could be hurried forward to the theater of war. This work was to be undertaken by a society in Chicago which has ramifications extending all over the world. To cripple the prestige of England in Europe plans were made for nothing less than the mining and blowing up of Gibraltar, rock, garrison and all! Spain and the other powers wished to profit by the result of a conspiracy to do that which, under the law of nations, they could not do themselves. It is admitted that Spain has recently granted a mining concession to a syndicate of Americans whose names have a fine rich Celtic flavor. The land is at San Paulo, near Gibraltar, and the geological formation is such that no sane person would mine there for precious metal. The movements of the company have been clouded in secrecy; and whenever any stock has been offered on the Vienna Bourse, the Bleicoroeders have always been able to find a mysterious buyer at a profitable premium. This, of course, is only a blind.

The ore sent for assay is taken from a mine in the Sierra Madras, and the mine near Gibraltar is salted for the sake of appearances. The real object is to get under Gibraltar. A competent mining engineer connected with a Chicago contracting firm went over the ground and was to have been in charge of the work. He proposed to sink a shaft at San Paulo, a small hamlet on the Spanish side, and then tunnel under Gibraltar a distance of 16,000 feet and to run galleries at different heights up through the rock. These galleries were to average 2,000 feet in length. An elaborate plant had been provided for the heavy cuttings. It included drills and channeling machines operated by compressed air. Provision was made for sinking the San Paulo shaft by the Poetsch method, as it was known that about fifty-six feet of quicksand would be encountered. A ring of pipes was to be sunk by means of water jets and then connected with a circulating pump. The ice machine used in connection would be powerful enough to make a ton of ice an hour. The solution in the pipes was to be chloride of calcium. This process would give a solid wall four to six feet in thickness, and the core could then be mined out and the shaft lined with brick set in hydraulic cement mortar. The tunnel could then go forward, unsupported through rock and timbered in the softer material. This tunnel was to be six feet high and four feet wide. When Gibraltar proper had been reached, very little material would have to be taken out from the face, as some of the loose stone would be needed for tamping the explosives. The general idea as shown in the sketch was to concentrate heavy charges in the lower galleries to get an upward reaction, and in the upper galleries to run the mine as near the face of the rock as possible so as to make the line of least resistance outward through the sides, and in this way to shelter the base of the rock with the lower charges, and to blow out the sides, causing the entire upper surface to fall in. The sketches show a profile of the tunnel and galleries and also show the tunnel and one of the upper galleries in plan. The small black circles show charges of 144 quarts of liquid fulgurit; the plain circles show 2,600-pound charges of Hercules powder No. 1, seventy-five per cent nitro-glycerin; the circles with crosses in them indicate three-ton charges of explosive gelatine, 89.3 per cent nitroglycerin. Electrical detonators were to be used for firing all charges at once. They were to be five distinct and separate electrical circuits, any one of which could fire the whole mine. The ends of these wires were to be attached to a buoy in the Mediterranean. The captain of a swift steam yacht would touch the key and the red coat would no longer stand guard in the sentry boxes of Gibraltar.—Chicago Herald, May 13, 1894.

A MORMON ON SECRET SOCIETIES.

President Joseph F. Smith, last month, delivered a discourse at the general conference of the Mormon church in Salt Lake City. In the course of his remarks he referred to secret societies, much as Roman Catholic priests do, ignoring those fostered and tolerated by the church, but boldly and adroitly condemning all others.

"Last night, after meeting," he said, "a good brother put into my hand a copy of the constitution and by-laws of a certain society which is seeking to enlist the Latter Day Saints as its members. When he spoke to me about it, I saw in a moment that he was thoroughly imbued with the idea that to join this secret association was the proper thing for Latter Day Saints to do. I read it in his countenance, and saw it down deep in his heart. This almost alarmed me. I have been alarmed a little about it a good many times, from the representations that have come to us in relation to this matter. I could read you the principles laid down in the constitution of this particular association, but I do not wish to name it, because I wish to make no distinctions, nor to antagonize one against another. I do not consider one better or worse than another. For my part, I hold this position: that as for me and my house, we have enlisted to serve God, and I have come to the conclusion long since that it is impossible for me to serve God and Mammon. I cannot carry water on both shoulders without spilling some of it. I cannot wear the yoke of Christ and the yoke of Belial at the same time, and call the yoke of Christ easy and his burden light. Some of these articles in this constitution are most excellent. There are no better contained in the Gospel of Jesus Christ, simply because they are taken directly from the Gospel. They are: peace on earth and good will to men, charity, forgiveness, long-suffering, patience, love unfeigned, kindness one toward another, every effort to be exerted to prevent brethren from going to law one with another, and to settle their difficulties between themselves. They have a chaplain, and a lecturer or preacher; and among other things it is the duty of the chaplain to be present, and open the meetings and officiate in all the burial services of the members of the association. I suppose that these are some things that are common to all these secret organizations. It is no harm for any one to believe in all these good things. President Woodruff has been preaching these very same principles for some sixty years, and he has at no time advised you to join a secret association, in order that you may be taught these principles or that you may the better practice them. He has taught that these are the commandments of God to the people, and that it is their duty to observe these precepts, and that, too, without taking an oath to become associated with any secret society. But one of the provisions of this constitution requires that each member of this secret association shall stand by the principles of the association unto death. That is pretty strong. Suppose, for instance, an elder of the church has entered into this association and has taken upon himself this covenant, and something should arise which would be derogatory to his interests as a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, what position would he be in? He would be under the necessity of either violating his covenants with the church or the oath that he had taken in that secret society. He would prove himself in either case a traitor. Therefore, it is better that we should not mix up with these entangling alliances.

"It is wrong to join these associations. By doing it you place upon yourselves burdens, and you put bands around your necks by which others will lead you whithersoever they will; and you are no longer free to serve God as men and women ought to be who are made free by the liberty of the Gospel of Christ."

The advice of the elder is good, notwithstanding its origin. But he should have made its application more general. It is not enough to say that membership in secret societies is "derogatory" to the "Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints" only—or any other professedly Christian church—but offensive and dishonoring to the Lord himself.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS PERSECUTED IN SPAIN.

Two of the National Bible Society of Scotland's colporteurs (says the Christian Leader), with their local superintendent, Mr. H. S. Turrall, spent the night of Jan. 19th under lock and key in a Spanish prison. They were offering books in the fair of Bercerra, in Galicia, when the mayor arrested one of them, and prohibited him from selling. Mr. Turrall went on with his work for an hour without any difficulty on the part of the people. At length he offered a well-dressed man a Bible, not knowing that he was the mayor's uncle, and a vehement opponent of the Bible. The man who bears the good name of "John Baptist," but appears scarcely to live up to it, called him a liar and a deceiver. Taking no notice, the evangelist next offered a Gospel to a laborer, when a priest who officiates in a church which John Baptist has built, denounced him for selling false and corrupt books. Mr. Turrall asked him to bring his own Bible and compare it with those he was selling, and on the workingman taking out his "ha'pence" to pay for the Gospel, the priest flew into a passion, and threatened him with excommunication. The man, not belonging to his parish, only smiled, and bought the book to see what might be in it. The priest, thereupon, raised the cry: "Long live our holy religion! Long live the Pope! Death to the Protestants!" A number of his own parishioners, whom he had brought into town in thoughtful anticipation of a possible riot, took up the cry, and Mr. Turrall was immediately surrounded by a threatening mob. An appeal to two policemen, who happened to belong to the priest's village, only ended in their taking him before the mayor, his two men joining him. The priest and an immense crowd followed them, the majority being only curious to know the result. Mr. Turrall and his friend refusing to leave the fair not to return, they were sent to jail, though happily they were not lodged with the common prisoners.

Now comes a strange contrast. All afternoon and evening, visitors poured in to express their shame and sympathy, some offering money, help—anything that would be of use. The prison became a preaching hall, and after night-fall they sat around the jailer's fire and told him what he must do to be saved. He wanted to buy a Bible, which they gave him in memory of his queer prisoners. Then they read Psalm 31, offered prayer, and gave thanks for bonds thus turned to the furtherance of the Gospel. Next morning they were brought separately before the judge. Mr. Turrall, being asked to call witnesses in his defence, said it was impossible for him, a stranger in Bercerra, to do so, when the laboring man who had bought the Gospel in the fair, with other eye-witnesses, came forward. The judge, having heard their testimonies, without going further into the case, set the prisoners free.—Bombay Guardian.

EXHAUSTED ON FINANCE.

If, some thousands of years hence, this American nation, in which we trust and of which we boast, should be dug out of ruins by the archeologists of the future times and there should be left only the record of the Congressional debates, what would they conclude concerning us? That our god was something called "Finance."

Whether the exhumers of the year 5000 A. D. could determine what finance was is not certain; there is such difference of opinion.

What a fine thing if some representative of the people—some Senator, some member of the House—would give the country a new sensation, by making a speech on something other than finance!

It would almost shock the country if a leader in the National Congress were to plead for some measure on other than financial grounds; to urge the passage of some law simply because it would be in perfect harmony with eternal righteousness. We must not expect too much of our representatives; perhaps they do the best they can. At all events we send them to represent us. Is the heart of all Americans so much on finance as the words and works—almost the sole occupation of Congress—indicate? Has money become a "fixed idea?" Can we think, talk, work or care for anything else?

This writer is haunted by an old-fashioned notion that government has to do with the people as well as with money. If so, our rulers should consider the fundamental laws under which men live. There can be no good finance without some sort of conformity to the eternal verities which do not depend upon "good times."

What method of government will bring most money? This is the question that fills us. It keeps us awake of nights. It consumes us with anxieties. But other matters concern government—justice, righteousness, efficient and clean administration; these qualities are worth something.

We pay the penalty of over-specializing. When a man fixes his whole mind on any one thing he dwarfs himself. A man may look at one spot till he can't see that. So we are this day in our financial chaos. Statesmanship has exhausted itself on finance till it has become incapable of solving financial problems. Until government thinks of something besides money it can never escape money panics.

When the people lose confidence in the sense or honesty of their leaders, panic must come upon them; when people distrust their rulers they distrust each other; when confidence is gone money hides, and it does not emerge from its hiding-place in response to any sort of incantations; it will "not listen to the voice of charmers, charm they never so wisely." Sacred capital is deaf—"deaf as the adder"—to entreaty.

Let the Congress get to an end of something, do something, or take an affidavit that it will not do anything.

One says: "Do this and the country is ruined." Another says: "If you don't do this the country is ruined." The people hear both, fear both, and trust neither. Money hides, and labor begs, and the people "revile" their rulers.

Maybe we are getting too rich and getting rich too fast. Few young men are equal to the wise handling of great fortunes. Perhaps a young nation is not equal to it.

It sounds antiquated, let it be allowed, to talk about God in connection with national finances. But a great deal that is old is true. God always holds nations as well as persons responsible for the use of the talents committed to them. It may be God is displeased with the use we have made of our unparalleled prosperity. We seemed bent on paganism; perhaps the "hard times" only indicate divine mercy. While God holds us responsible we may yet be sure that he will do all that can be done to save. Poverty has saved many.

If we could only think of something—not Finance.—Bishop Haygood, in the Independent.

THE GREAT ANTWERP FAIR.

The influence of the World's Fair in bringing the industries of our country prominently before the world is shown by the position accorded the United States in the World's Fair at Antwerp. This great fair was opened last week by the King of Belgium. The Exposition buildings, which are effectively placed in a park of 200 acres, provide an actual exhibit space of about 1,080,000 square feet, and of this area the exhibits of the United States will occupy a share worthy of their importance and sufficiently large to satisfy, in a measure, the curiosity awakened abroad by the reports of the World's Fair in Chicago. Altogether this country will have 146,500 square feet of the whole space, the substantial and attractive United States building occupying 26,500 feet, and the remainder of the space being divided among the main, electricity and machinery buildings. This is more space than is occupied by any other nation except Belgium, and more than twice that accorded to Great Britain. Our country is now the leading English-speaking nation of the world in manufactures, mines, education, railroads, everything in which civilization consists except finance. That she does not take the lead in that, too, is the fault of unpatriotic and selfish leaders.—Exchange.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

THE ANNUAL MEETING.

Wednesday, the sixteenth of May, the date appointed for the annual meeting of the corporate body of the National Christian Association, was bright and warm, and at 10:30, the hour for opening, the following members and friends were in attendance: Pres. Chas. A. Blanchard, Rev. and Mrs. W. I. Phillips, Rev. and Mrs. W. B. Stoddard, Rev. and Mrs. H. L. Kellogg, Mrs. Mary C. Baker, Rev. W. M. Howie, Prof. H. F. Kletzing, W. O. Dinius, Rev. B. F. Worrell, Rev. Edgar B. Wylie, Thos. Hodge, J. M. Hitchcock, Rev. T. B. Arnold, Rev. J. P. Richards, Rev. J. L. Barlow, Prof Elliott Whipple, A. Dresser, Jr., and Rev. E. L. Harris. In the absence of Pres. Rev. A. J. Gordon, D.D., Vice-President Blanchard took the chair and called the meeting to order, and it was opened with prayer by Eld. Barlow.

The reports of the General Secretary, Treasurer and Publisher, and of the Board of Directors, were severally presented by Secretaries Phillips and Wylie. Both were approved, and both appear at length in this issue of the Cynosure. They are excellent reflexes of the past year's work and full of interest for our readers.

The Auditors' report, confirming that of the Treasurer, was also read and approved, and is printed herewith.

A motion to amend the by-laws of the Association relating to membership resulted in the adoption of the following:

1. The membership of the National Christian Association shall consist of the persons incorporated, together with those who shall be from time to time elected to increase their number. Election to membership shall be by a two-thirds vote of members present, on recommendation in writing by three members of the Association; and the persons so recommended must be in sympathy with the objects of the Association and signify their acceptance of the election.

2. The payment of $50 at one time to the Treasurer may constitute the donor, or any friend of the Association whom he may designate, a life-member, with full privileges of membership and the Christian Cynosure for life.

3. The payment of $1.00, as above, shall constitute the donor an annual contributing member, with honorary privileges at meetings, and annual reports of the Association.

4. All persons chosen by churches, or church assemblies, co-operating with the Association, and from State auxiliary associations, as their representatives to its meetings, such delegations being limited to one from each body, shall have full privileges of membership during the period for which they are elected.

During the sessions, the following persons were recommended and elected as members of the Association: Mrs. Agnes E. Stoddard, Rev. J. A. Collins, Rev. P. A. Raidabaugh, and Henry M. Hugunin.

It was voted that the Directors be authorized to reprint the constitution and by-laws, and the new amendments thereto, and to drop the names of inefficient members from the roll.

On motion, it having been reported that the corner-stone of the new Illinois State Fair buildings at Springfield is to be laid with Masonic rites, Messrs. Phillips, Howie, Dinius, Arnold and Richards were appointed a committee to prepare and present the protest of the Association against the proposed ceremonies.

Another measure proposed and adopted has the object of securing the representation of friendly religious bodies and of State and local associations in our future annual meetings.

The following recommendation, which speaks for itself, was discussed and approved:

1. That there be procured from all church assemblies opposing secret societies a memorial to the general bodies representing the Baptist, Methodist, Congregational, Presbyterian, or other denominations in sympathy with the lodges, presenting to the latter the urgency of this reform, and the fact that the false worships of the lodge will destroy the true worship of the Christian church, unless overcome by the truth, as Pastor Fisch of Paris prophesied.

The details of this plan are suggested as follows: (1) That the Board of Directors prepare such a memorial and secure its adoption by all church assemblies possible. (2) That there be secured, also, wherever possible, a delegation from such assemblies to present this memorial to those bodies to whom it is addressed. (3) That the Board secure such presentation, either by such church delegations, or by its own agents, or by both.

The Committee on Nominations presented the following list of officers of the Association for the succeeding year:

President—Rev. J. E. Roy, D.D.

Vice-president—Rev. M. C. Ranseen.

Recording Secretary—Mrs. Mary C. Baker.

General Secretary and Treasurer—W. I. Phillips.

Corresponding Secretary—M. A. Gault.

Board of Directors—T. B. Arnold, Chas. A. Blanchard, J. A. Collins, E. A. Cook, W. O. Dinius, J. M. Hitchcock, H. F. Kletzing, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, Elliott Whipple and E. B. Wylie.

The report was adopted.

Messrs. Blanchard, Whipple and Wylie were appointed a committee to formulate the sentiments of the Association respecting the American Protective Association for publication in the organs of that secret political fraternity.

Letters were read from Mrs. J. W. Phelps, Rev. J. A. Conant, Rev. Dr. Wm. Wishart, Rev. H. H. Hinman, and S. C. Kimball, with reports from Rev J. P. Stoddard, Rev. W. B. Stoddard, Rev. P. B. Williams, and Rev. Wm. Fenton. Most of these missives are marked for insertion in the Cynosure, with others of equal interest.

After prayer by President Blanchard the meeting adjourned sine die.

Great harmony prevailed, and the members departed with renewed confidence in the excellence of the anti-secrecy reform and a firm belief in its final success through the power of God.

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

REPORT OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION FOR THE YEAR FROM JUNE 20, 1893, TO MAY 16, 1894.

The present report is confined to the gross business transactions of the Board, while the details of the year's work will be presented in the reports of the agents and the General Secretary.

June 20, 1893, the following Board of Directors of the National Christian Association was elected: T. B. Arnold, Chicago; Chas. A. Blanchard, Wheaton; E. A. Cook, Chicago; J. M. Hitchcock, Chicago; W. M. Howie, Chicago; A. G. Johnson, Huntington, Ind.; H. F. Kletzing, Naperville, Ill.; J. P. Richards, Chicago; Elliott Whipple, Wheaton; Edgar B. Wylie, Summerdale, Ill.; E. R. Worrell, Washington Heights, Ill.

June 24 the Board met and effected an organization, with Rev. E. R. Worrell as President; T. B. Arnold, Vice-president, and E. B. Wylie, Secretary.

Committees were constituted as follows:

Committee on Publications, including Cynosure.—Pres. Chas. A. Blanchard, Prof. H. F. Kletzing, Rev. A. G. Johnson, Rev. J. P. Richards.

Committee on Finances and Auditing.—Prof. Elliott Whipple, Prof. H. A. Fischer, and J. M. Hitchcock.

Committee on Buildings.—Wm. I. Phillips, W. B. Stoddard, E. A. Cook.

The first matter of importance to engage the action of the Board was the election of an editor of the Cynosure and a general secretary. The ability, diligence and Christian spirit of Mr. Henry M. Hugunin have justified the wisdom of his appointment as editor-in-chief of the organ of the Association. The corresponding editors, Miss Elizabeth E. Flagg and Mrs. Victoria A. Stone, with many more or less regular contributors, among whom Rev. H. H. Hinman, of Oberlin, and Rev. J. M. Foster, of Boston, are prominent, have greatly assisted in making the paper an effective and worthy exponent of the great reform, the peculiar work of this Association.

Being a man of extended service in the employ of the Association, Mr. Wm. I. Phillips was made General Secretary in charge of the field work, which, added to the duties of the treasurership, has proved him eminently fitted for the place. His reports will be a welcome feature of the Annual Meeting.

Correspondence was exchanged between the Board and Rev. M. A. Gault as to the corresponding secretaryship; and but for a previous engagement as pastor of an important church, Mr. Gault would have favorably considered the wish of the Board. The office of Corresponding Secretary has been vacant during the year, though a part of the duties have rested upon the General Secretary.

Other employes of the Board have been four compositors, five authorized district agents, and one office clerk.

At the outset in the new year the Board was confronted with the question as to what use it should make of the opportunity to exhibit the publications and other evidences of the growth and importance of the reform of the National Christian Association at the World's Columbian Fair, and it was only when the Lord's day was regarded by the local, as well as by the national authorities, that a representative was authorized to appear at the Association's booth in behalf of the Board. Rev. J. P. Stoddard was engaged there most of the time during the Fair, and it is his matured judgment that great good was done. The action of the Board was of such vital importance that we invite a review of its procedure, as set forth in the following resolution, drawn and presented by Mr. Ezra A. Cook:

WHEREAS, The vote of the Board of Directors that the National Christian Association should not take part in the World's Congress Auxiliary as previously planned, provided the gates of the World's Fair are open on Sunday, was passed at a time when the Fair management were fighting to open said gates on Sunday in defiance of Act of Congress and the moral sentiment of the nation, but have since then reconsidered their wicked action and have voted to close the gates on Sunday, and are prevented from carrying out such vote by an injunction which they have in vain sought to have dissolved, but which a judicial trick has virtually made perpetual, against the protest of the Directorate; and

WHEREAS, The World's Fair is national in character, and all citizen tax-payers have contributed to its success, through national and State aid, and the citizens of Chicago by a tax of five million dollars, and therefore have a right to share in its unparalleled advantages;

Resolved, That this Association take part in the World's Congress as previously planned, since by so doing it is not accepting a bribe, because we have contributed, through taxation, towards the expense of said Congresses; and considering the fact that by taking part in said Congress we pay no toll to the World's Fair, as the Congress is held in the heart of the city instead of on the World's Fair Grounds, and neither admission fee nor hall rent is charged.

On the basis of the facts as stated in the foregoing resolution, the Committee on the Exhibit at the Fair were also authorized to provide adequate assistance to make the exhibit as effective as possible.

The Congress was attended by respectably large audiences, when there were many more popular attractions. The occasion undoubtedly started inquiry which has opened, and will open, the way for the publications of the Association.

The success of the tract-work has never been greater than this year. Not less than a half-million pages of tracts have been published, including a new edition of the noted sermon by Rev. Dr. B. Carradine. Twenty thousand four-paged catalogues were issued. Except the tracts "Odd-fellowship Weighed," and "The Initiation Degree in Odd-fellowship," and a four-paged illustrated tract of testimonies, there have been no new publications.

The buildings, both in Chicago and Washington, have been kept in good repair, and have been a source of revenue during the year. The Chicago building, besides accommodating the compositors and office work of the Association, has, in part, been rented for a Chinese mission and a mercantile house. The Washington building has been the headquarters of the Eastern agent. The detailed reports will be given by the Treasurer and Eastern agent.

The year has been one of many encouragements, as well as those not unexpected discouragements and hindrances that necessarily accompany a moral reform. We feel that while progress is apparently slow, there is an unmistakable indication of greater freedom of speech in both private intercourse and public utterances of pulpit and press, which—in part at least—is the result of God's use of this Association.

Notwithstanding an unprecedented financial stringency, the Association ends the year without debt, and with an enlarged endowment, which is a promise of future strength and effectiveness. The year has seen the usual number of enthusiastic State conventions, and demand for literature has increased, both at home and in foreign lands. Not the least important accomplishment of the year is the work done among students in colleges and seminaries by the College agent and by co-operation with the Students' Bureau of Correspondence.

With grateful acknowledgments of the ever-watchful care and unceasing favor which "cometh down from the Father of lights," the Board respectfully submit with this report the following suggestions and recommendations as to the future:

1. The employment of active agents in the several districts of the country, for the furtherance of our reform, by lecturing, canvassing for subscriptions, donations, tract distributing, etc., as follows:

Rev. P. B. Williams as Secretary of the Oregon Department.

Rev. William Fenton as Secretary of the Minnesota Department.

Rev. M. A. Gault as Secretary of the Central Department, including the States of Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Indiana and Ohio.

Rev. W. B. Stoddard as Secretary of the Eastern Department, including all Northern States outside of New England and east of Ohio.

Rev. Samuel F. Porter as College agent, to work this year in Kentucky and Tennessee, and Rev. Mr. A. Gault in the Central Department.

Rev. Francis J. Davidson, agent for three months in Louisiana, etc.

That the same support as last year be accorded to the New England Department, Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Secretary.

2. That the Christian Cynosure be sent to 1,600 ministers in the South for three months each, provided that ample donations for that purpose can be secured.

3. That the Association issue regularly a four-page monthly paper (each page measuring 8 by 11 inches), to be used by the friends as a cheap method of disseminating facts relating to the secret lodge system. It is expected that friends will subscribe for this paper in clubs chiefly; and in this belief we recommend that in clubs of twenty (20) or more the price per annum be fixed at ten (10) cents per copy, and for single subscriptions, twenty (20) cents per copy. It is also recommended that all subscriptions for this monthly paper begin on the first day of either January, April, July or October.

4. That friends be requested to aid in reaching the 16,000 teachers in colleges, seminaries and academies, by supplying means for sending a specially prepared sample copy of the Christian Cynosure to each teacher therein; and that an effort be made to send that or a similar copy of the paper to the 20,000 pastors in the United States to whom it is not now sent.

5. That the Association appeal to all churches in sympathy with the movement to donate certain funds for the advancement of our reform.

6. That we recommend to State Associations the use of prepared mail lists, provided for the purpose, of farmers, tradesmen and consumers. These lists cover whole States and reach the best classes. With these lists, cheap and effective communication can be opened with these persons, and maintained, by sending them the new monthly paper, the publication of which is recommended above.

7. That the Rev. H. H. Hinman be paid $3.00 (three dollars) per week for his written communications to the Cynosure, if funds for that purpose are provided by voluntary offerings from friends of the cause. T. B. ARNOLD, Pres. pro tem.

EDGAR B. WYLIE, Secretary.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE GENERAL SECRETARY.

CHICAGO, May 16, 1894.

MEMBERS OF THE ASSOCIATION:—Since the duties of secretary, publisher, and treasurer have been performed by one person, it seems proper to include an account of my stewardship in one report.

Only eleven months have elapsed since our last annual statements were presented to you. Our annual meetings will hereafter, doubtless, occur in May rather than in June, because it is found that more members of the Association can conveniently attend then than at a later date.

It is encouraging to consider that if the Association had merely held its own during these months of financial stringency, and not run deeper into debt, we should have had reason for thankfulness; but when, in addition to paying all expenses, we have also paid the few hundreds of dollars of indebtedness against the Association at the beginning of the year, we may well add a note of praise to our song of thanksgiving to God. Nor is this all, for God has given us over five thousand dollars additional, in mortgage-notes, adding that much to funds that will in time be available for enlarging the work.

The Oregon Department has been placed on a basis that will enable it to be self-sustaining, we trust, for many years to come. It now has an interest-bearing fund of over three thousand dollars,—a self-denying and capable agent and lecturer, and a membership numbering nearly one thousand.

The conventions and conferences of the year have been of usual interest. The largest audience was at the Nebraska conference, held in connection with a denominational meeting of Swedish Lutherans. Some fifteen hundred were present. One result of this conference was the opening of quite a number of churches in Nebraska, and invitations to Bro. Fenton to instruct the people in this reform. In some respects the Pennsylvania convention was the strongest. It was very wisely planned and prepared for by your Eastern agent.

There was, probably, never before a convention in the history of the world in which a man publicly unburdened himself of one hundred and thirty-eight degrees of Freemasonry—of its hundreds of blasphemous oaths and bloody penalties—that he might be free in Christ Jesus his Lord. Such was Stephen Merritt's renunciation before our New York State convention. But while he is such a conspicuous instance of God's goodness, he is only one among quite a number in this and other States who have been delivered from bondage to various kinds of secret lodges during the past eleven months.

New England sets an example to all other auxiliary associations in the prominent position given to women and the use made of them in its conventions and reform work. We hope that what is true of New England may become general. In Illinois, indeed, during the past year, Mrs. Julia W. Fischer has begun a good movement in calling a parlor meeting in her own home, and organizing for similar gatherings in the homes of her lady-friends. And Mrs. H. E. Powers, now of Washington, D. C., is continuing the work among the women in that city which she began in Boston.

Annual conventions for the election of officers have been held in Oregon, Iowa, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, New York, New Hampshire and New England, and conferences have been held in Nebraska, Illinois and Indiana, all of which were quite fully reported in the Christian Cynosure.

The exhibit of the National Christian Association in the Liberal Arts Building of the World's Fair was equal to an ordinary convention in session for one hundred and fifty six days. Hundreds listened daily to the exposition of the principles of the Association, and many thousands of tracts and pamphlets were carried to homes in different parts of the world, to give information and warning to the unsuspecting victims of Satan's masterly traps for destroying souls.

The tract-work in this reform is not one hundredth part appreciated at its true value. No force in nature is more potent than that of the silent sunlight. Our public efforts are not more important than the quiet but daily outgo of tracts and other literature from these headquarters. This work is the silent sunlight of this reform. An evangelist wrote to this office: "The National Christian Association literature is surely leavening society." It was where he had been laboring. We wish it might be true everywhere. Some $200 worth of books and pamphlets have gone to foreign lands on the orders of missionaries.

It is well for us to look at the encouragements in this unpopular work. When, in the Wisconsin State convention, I said there are one hundred and fifty churches in this State (Wisconsin) that do not admit secretists to church fellowship, "Yes," said a pastor, who was present, to me, "there are more than three hundred such churches in Wisconsin." The encouragements are more and greater than we know. It is true of the dissemination of literature; consider the number of other places from which there is a steady outgo, such as from Bro. Stoddard's in Boston, Bro. Kimball's in New Hampshire, Bro. Butler's in Missouri, Mrs. Enlow's in Iowa, the Wesleyan and Free Methodist and the United Brethren publishing-houses, and those of E. A. Cook and T. B. Arnold, as well as a number of houses which publish in foreign languages, such as the Concordia Publishing House of St. Louis, and of Rev. A. S. Hauser, of Buffalo, New York.

While upon this subject, it is natural to report upon the Christian Cynosure. The total number of papers printed in the past eleven months is 170,050, or an average of 3,500 per week in round numbers. If estimated in books of 500 pages each, size of page five by seven inches, it would equal fourteen hundred volumes, or quite a large library. The Cynosure has enabled the Association to place an advertisement of our work and publications in more than a million copies of other papers in exchange for advertising space in the Cynosure. Marked sample copies have been sent to some nine thousand pastors in our country. These papers were intended to bring the reform prominently to the notice of these ministers, and in some cases to call special attention to the anti-secrecy convention of their State.

The placing of anti-secrecy libraries in institutions of learning has been prosecuted by your College agent as heretofore. Though he has traveled more miles than usual, he has found fewer colleges on his route. He has visited Kansas, Colorado, and south on the Southern Pacific Railroad to Los Angeles, California; then north as far as San Francisco, where he turned east, visiting Utah and Nebraska on his way home. Eighteen libraries have been sent out this year, and their reception acknowledged. We hope each will do as well as one president who wrote: "Your library has been given a conspicuous place, and I shall urge it upon the attention of the students."

Each book in all the libraries sent out by the National Christian Association has the following on the inside cover:

TO THE LIBRARIAN:—This Anti-Secrecy Library is donated by the National Christian Association, on the assurance, given on the part of the college, that the books should have a good position and be accessible to the students.

If at any time changes should occur, so that these provisions could not be carried out, please notify the National Christian Association, 221 West Madison street, Chicago, Ill., that measures may be taken for their return.

The number of libraries sent out by the Association within the past five years is above one hundred and fifty. It will be interesting to note the States to which they have gone. They are now found in twenty-nine different States, viz: N. C. (1); S. C. (4); Tenn. (27); Ky. (10); Miss. (4); Ark. (5); Ala. (3); La. (2); W. Va. (1); Va. (7); Ga. (3); Mich. (9); Wis. (6); Ill. (10); Ohio (17); Iowa (9); Kan. (5); Neb. (4); S. Dak. (5); Ind. (2); Wash. (1); Pa. (3); N. J. (2); Mass. (9); N. Y. (1); Utah (1); Cal. (5); D. C. (2); Texas (1).

The report of the Board of Directors gives the number and names of those in the employ of the National Christian Association for a longer or shorter period during the past year.

The number of months of field-work has been about forty-five. The number of anti-secrecy addresses, about two hundred and seventy, and of sermons and other addresses, about two hundred and twenty, or a total of four hundred and ninety, making an average of about forty-four addresses per month, or twenty-four anti-lodge addresses and twenty sermons for each month. The reason I cannot be accurate is that I have not full reports.

Quite a list of co-laborers could be made out, who have given public addresses and in other

(Continued on 9th page.)

CORRESPONDENCE.

LETTERS TO THE ANNUAL MEETING.

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., May 4, 1894.

W. I. Phillips, Secretary N. C. A.,

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER:—I notice in the Cynosure that the Annual Meeting of the National Christian Association occurs on the 16th inst. It would give me much pleasure to meet the old war-horses and later recruits in this grand reform at the time mentioned, but it is impossible.

When we look over the field and observe the progress in the anti-secrecy work the last twenty-five years, we may well thank God and take courage, remembering that it is always safe to side with him on every issue that arises in our day and generation. We are living in solemn, yet grand times. The enemy of all righteousness is marshalling his hosts on every side and in every form conceivable, and, if possible, will deceive the very elect. Yet "the Lord bringeth the counsel of the heathen to naught; he maketh the devices of the people of none effect. The counsel of the Lord standeth forever, the thoughts of his heart to all generations." As to suggestions for future work I have none to offer, other than to continue a forward move as our Captain, the Lord of hosts, shall command and open the way.

As to the work in New England, you will doubtless receive a report from Bro. Stoddard, who, with his noble wife, is doing a grand work; especially so, when we consider the many difficulties necessary to overcome. Hoping the meeting will be made harmonious and profitable by the presence of the Holy Spirit, I remain yours truly,

J. A. CONANT.

MONMOUTH, Ill., May 12, 1894.

DEAR BROTHER:—I am truly sorry that I cannot be with you at the Annual Meeting of the N. C. Association to take place on the 16th inst. I expect to start on that day for Albany, Oregon, to attend the U. P. General Assembly. I trust the Holy Spirit will be with you in your meeting as a spirit of light and love—as a spirit of wisdom and power. If ever there was a time when our association needed divine wisdom for guidance, and divine energy for work, the present, it seems to me, is emphatically such a time. That Jesus Christ may be honored and glorified and his cause advanced by your meeting is the prayer of your humble servant,

WM. WISHART.

MONTDALE, Lackawanna Co., Pa., May 8, 1894.

DEAR BRO. PHILLIPS:—On April 22, my seventy-fourth birthday, I slipped and broke my leg. I cannot, of course, attend the Annual Meeting of the N. C. A. With much effort I manage to write my reason for being absent.

It would be a luxury to me to meet the noble band of men composing the N. C. A. If I could make any important suggestions to said body, I should be most happy to do so. I will pledge myself to pray to God, the source of all wisdom, to lead you all into all truth.

Allow me to say humbly that I conceive that no more important movement than ours is on foot. This demands great faith, great effort, and great liberality. God has hitherto so crowned our feeble efforts in this noble cause with grand successes as to inspire us with a zeal and courage that knows no discouragement or defeat. Perhaps the greatest shortcoming among God's dear people is the failure to come up to the measure of courage and of will-power demanded by the magnitude of this work. What has God wrought in the twenty years of our history? Look at the grand men who have enlisted in the cause of the N. C. A. Is not the name well-chosen? Was it a prophet that directed it? Many of the pioneers have fallen (?)—risen to glory, above all militant conflicts. Thank God that many, though frosted and furrowed with years of battle-scenes, live to lead us on in the triumph! Dare we breathe the names of the Moseses and Johns gone up Pisgah's height? Shall we speak the names of the great living soldiers come, and coming, into line? They need no mention in this humble sheet.

Writing this with a pencil, under much inconvenience, and not a little pain, I have never felt a more thrilling courage than now courses my being in every channel. Can we have a more important work than that contemplated by our N. C. A.? Brethren, pray for us, that "the word of the Lord may have free course and be glorified among us." Yours for emancipation from lodgery and every Satanic "cable-tow" known to the God of liberty and freedom,

NATHAN CALLENDER.

LITITZ, Pa., May 7, 1894.

To the Members of the N. C. A., Greeting:

I regret very much that I cannot be present at the Annual Meeting, but my prayers shall ascend in behalf of the same.

The Christian Cynosure has been very ably conducted during the past year. The reports from the different secretaries were very encouraging, and the sentiments of the people have been changed to a marked degree against secret oathbound institutions.

The good that our department did, under the able superintendency of our worthy brother and sister, at the World's Columbian Exposition, cannot but result in an abundant harvest in the near future, and in the world to come receive the encomium "Well done, good and faithful servant; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." All honor to our noble brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Stoddard.

May the blessing of the Master rest on our work. Yours fraternally,

C. G. F. MILLER, (U. B.)

CYNOSURE OFFER!

Any of the Books sold by the N. C. A. in this paper, ordered, with subscription to the Cynosure, at one-fourth off from list price, sent postpaid.

The New Volume of Pen and Pencil Series.

WELSH PICTURES Drawn with Pen and Pencil.

By D. Lewis Jones, Morris Jones, Edward Ffoulkes, H. Elvet Lewis, D. Tyssil Evans, D. Davies and O. M. Edwards. Edited by Richard Lovett, M. A. With many Illustrations. Imperial 8vo, cloth, gilt edges, boxed..... 3.20

"'Welsh pictures' is the work of ten Welshmen, among whom illustrating the beauties of Wales has been parcelled out according to the special familiarity of each. The result is a pleasing volume."—London Times.

THE EARTHLY FOOTPRINTS OF OUR RISEN LORD, Illumined.

A continuous narrative of the Four Gospels according to The Revised Version, with introduction by Rev. John Hall, D. D. Illustrated by 113 full-page half tone re-productions. Small 4to, cloth.....net 1.50
Gilt edge, with silk book mark, boxed.....net 2.00
Full morocco, flexible, gilt edges, round corners, boxed.....net 3.75

Pictures reflecting the best in sacred art from Raphael to the present day are scattered profusely through the book.

"To many the life of the Christ will be a new book in this form. Though beyond the introduction it contains no word except what is found in the four Gospels, yet when read continuously, without the breaks necessarily made by the different stories of the four evangelists, the narrative takes on new force and lifelikeness. The very fact that this is not our usual method of reading the Word will give it a new reality."—Golden Rule.

A GIFT OF LOVE, and Loving Greetings for 365 Days.

By Rose Porter. Long 18mo. Paper cloth..... 1.00
White cloth, silver top, in box..... 1.25
Decorated silk, silver top, in box..... 1.75

"'A Gift of Love' is the work of a loving heart. It contains a text of Scripture for every day of the year with the addition of an appropriate thought in poetry of prose all bearing on the theme of love. The work must have called for a great amount of patient toil. But it has not been spent in vain, for the volume will prove a blessing to many a soul. To use it day by day for a year thoughtfully and prayerfully, must result in a rich growth in love on the part of the user. The author is well known and esteemed for her previous works' sake."—The N. Y. Observer.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE SERIES.

By Rev. F. B. Meyer, containing CHRISTIAN LIVING, THE PRESENT TENSES OF THE BLESSED LIFE, AND THE SHEPHERD PSALM. 3 vols. in box. 18mo, cloth..... 1.50
White vellum cloth, silver top, in box..... 1.75

D. L. Moody says: "Few books of recent years are better adapted to instruct and help Christians than those of this author. He is a man mighty in the scriptures, saturated with Bible facts and truths."

PRAYERS FROM THE POETS.

By Martha Harger. 16mo, two colored cloth, gilt top..... 1.00
Leatherette, boxed..... 1.50

"This volume is admirable. The Prayer are better suited to some of our moods than formal Litanies and are selected from excellent sources. The book will be a dear treasure to many hearts."—The Churchman.

KIN-DA-SHON'S WIFE.

An Alaskan Story. By Mrs. Eugene S. Willard, Home Missionary of the Presbyterian Board of America to Alaska. With illustrations. 8vo, cloth..... 1.50

"Being a close observer and in deep sympathy with the native population in their struggles towards a Christian Civilization, Mrs. Willard has gained a more intelligent knowledge of their character, of their needs and hindrances, than perhaps any other person."—Dr. Sheldon Jackson.

HEROES OF THE GOODWIN SANDS.

By Rev. Thomas Stanley Treanor. With many illustrations. 8vo, Cloth..... 1.50

"It is a book of most engrossing interest, and as stimulating as it is readable."—The Record.
"The deeds of daring are thrilling in the extreme. Suitable for the public library or for the home."—Times.

THE GREAT LONDON DAILIES.

By H. W. Massingham. Profusely illustrated. 12mo, cloth..... 1.00

Very welcome to all who like to look behind the scenes and see how the great London dailies are worked.

New Editions.

The Prayer Meeting and Its Improvement.

By Rev. LEWIS O. THOMPSON. Eighth edition, cloth, $1.25.

"Most heartily do we wish this work a wide circulation, both among pastors and people, and we hope it may do much toward the lifting of the prayer-meeting into that higher place which it ought to hold among the grand instrumentalities in the kingdom of the Master."—Congregationalist.

"We do not remember to have met with a work so suggestive, and we heartily commend it to both pastors and private members."—Baptist Weekly.

The Crisis of Missions. By Rev. ARTHUR T. PIERSON, D. D.

Cloth, $1.25; paper, 35c.

"We do not hesitate to say that this book is the most purposeful, earnest, and intelligent review of the mission work and field which has ever been given to the church."—Christian Statesman.

The Christian's Secret of a Happy Life.

By HANNAH WHITALL SMITH. One hundredth thousand. Issued in fourteen styles, from 50c. to $2.50. Send for circular.

"To commend this work would seem almost superfluous; and yet to young Christians who may not know it, we cannot refrain from saying, Buy this book, and keep it with your Bible for constant study, until you have thoroughly mastered, in your own experience, the 'secret' of which it tells. It will transform the dark days of your life, as it has transformed those of thousands before you, into days of heavenly light."—New York Evangelist.

The Topical Text Book. Fourth edition.

16 mo., cloth, 60c.

"This little volume is a worker's most useful tool. It collates all Scripture passages under their topical headings, and for this reason proves far more helpful in studying a subject than the best concordance.

"I find one of the very best ways to study the Scripture is to study topically."—D. L. Moody.

Stalker's Life of Christ. Twelfth edition.

Stalker's Life of St. Paul. Fourth edition.

12 mo., cloth, each, 60c.

These works by Professor James Stalker, M. A., are unique in their compact putting of these lives into such condensed form without injurious brevity. They are being taken up as text books by Biblical classes in all parts of the country, thus proving their practical value.

Grace and Truth under Twelve Different Aspects.

By W. P. MACKAY, M. A. Paper, 35c.; cloth, 75c. Two hundred and fiftieth thousand.

This remarkable sale can only be attributed to the very practical character of this work as a guide to the inquirer and a work of helpful instruction for the immature Christian. It is of this volume Mr. D. L. Moody said: "I know of no work in print better adapted to place in the hands of the inquirer."

Notes and Suggestions for Bible Readings.

By S. R. BRIGGS. Sixtieth thousand. 8 vo, cloth. $1.00; flexible, 75c.

Edition after edition of this work has been called for until it would seem the demand must be supplied. The sales however, increase rather than otherwise.

Feathers for Arrows. By Rev. C. H. SPURGEON.

16 mo., cloth, $1.00.

Few preachers have made such effective use of pointed illustrations as the well known pastor of the great Metropolitan Tabernacle. Here he has given us a large cluster of his best with liberty to enjoy and employ.

Revell's Record for Church Treasurers.

Size No. 1, $1.50; Size No. 2, $2.00.

Popular because practical—valuable because time saving—the only record for weekly envelope system that reduces the treasurer's work to the minimum.

For sale by the

National Christian Association;

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Ill.

IN BRIEF.

Observations in the Botanic Garden at St. Petersburg show that some blossoms are more odorous out of doors than when raised under shelter, while some—like the mignonette—are less odorous when protected from light than when expanded normally; but that the flowers of the tobacco plant are more odorous at night, or in darkness, than in daylight. There are other noxious plants which, like tobacco, love darkness rather than light.

In a case of wound of the eye recorded by Mr. Henry Power, an eyelash became transplanted in the iris, and grew until coil upon coil of hair was formed within the anterior chamber. As soon as the nature of this singular foreign body was determined, it was successfully removed.

The perfume of flowers disappears as soon as the starch in the petals is exhausted, and it may be restored by placing the flower in a solution of sugar, when the formation of starch and the emission of fragrance will be at once resumed.

In Holland women and persons of either sex under the age of 16 are now forbidden to begin work earlier than 5 A. M., or to continue at work after 7 P. M., nor can their work exceed eleven hours a day in all.

The following is worth knowing, and may prove worth remembering: In case of fire a wet silk handkerchief tied in one thickness over the face permits breathing, yet at the same time excludes the smoke from the lungs.

A company has been formed in Madrid for promoting the use in Spain of all kinds of mechanically propelled vehicles, and means of conveyance by steam, gas, petroleum and electricity are now being sought.

That Tired Feeling

Is a dangerous condition directly due to depleted or impure blood. It should not be allowed to continue, as in its debility the system is especially liable to serious attacks of illness. It is remarkable how beneficial Hood's Sarsaparilla is in this enervating state. Possessing just those elements which the system needs and readily seizes, this medicine purifies the blood, and imparts a feeling of strength and self-confidence. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the remedy for that weakness which prevails at the change of season, climate or life. A point for you is that, if you want a blood purifier or strengthening medicine, you should get the best. Ask for Hood's Sarsaparilla and insist upon having it.

PROPHECY:
A STUDY.

BY REV. S. F. PORTER,

A Study of Christ's Comings.

Paper Cover, 100 Pages.

Single copies, postpaid..... 25 cents.
Per 100 copies, postpaid..... $20.00.

For sale by the

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

A BOOKLET.
107 pages, 5x7 inches.

Paper Cover, Postpaid, 15 Cents.

—o:o—

The following addresses form part of the contents of this booklet:

THE MARTYR'S OWN MONUMENT, by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association.

CHRISTIAN POLITICS, by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure.

THE MYSTERIOUS MACHINE: was it Lawnmower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what? by Prof. E. D. Bailey of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government.

This booklet includes other interesting matter connected with the unveiling of the Morgan monument at Batavia, N. Y. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

CURES OTHERS

To purify, enrich and vitalize the blood, and thereby invigorate the liver and digestive organs, brace up the nerves, and put the system in order generally, "Golden Medical Discovery" has no equal.

DYSPEPSIA IN ITS WORST FORM.

ERVIN DIETERLY, ESQ., of Gettysburgh, Pa., writes: "Only those who have had dyspepsia in its worst forms know what it really can be. What such a case needs I have found in your kindly encouragement, and your 'Golden Medical Discovery.'

E. DIETERLY, ESQ.

Although I can now claim, if any one can, that I have a cast iron stomach, I always keep your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and the 'Pellets' on hand when settling down from an active summer's vacation, to quiet student life.

I heartily recommend these medicines to every one whose suffering is of the nature that mine was." Sold everywhere.

WHY NOT YOU?

MY WIFE CANNOT SEE HOW YOU DO IT AND PAY FREIGHT.

$14 Buys our 2 drawer walnut or oak Improved High Arm Singer sewing machine finely finished, nickel plated, adapted to light and heavy work; guaranteed for 10 Years; with Automatic Bobbin Winder, Self-Threading Cylinder Shuttle, Self-Setting Needle and a complete set of Steel Attachments; shipped any where on 30 Day's Trial. No money required in advance. 75,000 now in use. World's Fair Medal awarded machine and attachments. Buy from factory and save dealer's and agent's profits.

FREE Cut This Out and send to-day for machine or large free catalogue, testimonials and Glimpses of the World's Fair.

OXFORD MFG. CO. 342 Wabash Ave. CHICAGO, ILL.

WHEATON COLLEGE,
WHEATON, ILL.
A School for Men and Women.
COMMENCEMENT DAY JUNE 28TH, 1894.
For Catalogue, address
CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

IF YOU WANT WORK

that is pleasant and profitable, send us your address immediately. We teach men and women how to earn from $5 per day to $3,000 per year without having had previous experience, and furnish the employment at which they can make that amount. Capital unnecessary. A trial will cost you nothing. Write to-day and address,

E. C. ALLEN & CO.,
Box 1001. Augusta, Me.

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST
A Secret Empire;
Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.
By Rev. Richard Horton.
Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.
Price, 60 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained, and all Patent business conducted for Moderate Fees.

Our Office is Opposite U. S. Patent Office, and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A Pamphlet, "How to Obtain Patents," with names of actual clients in your State, county, or town, sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.
Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

The St. Louis Sermon.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

An Address by Rev. B. Carradine D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."

A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover.

Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Colver on Masonry.
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

NORTHERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
Nathan Callender Montdale Pa.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
W. M. Love, Osceola, Mo.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Thompson, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
D. A. Richards, Brighton, Mich.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill.

Disloyal
SECRET OATHS
ADDRESS OF
JOSEPH COOK,
OF BOSTON,
AT THE
Conference of Christians
CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a nationa subject, and very valuable for reence.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate. By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter)
—AND OFFICE OF—
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. A. J. Gordon D.D. Boston, Mass.

VICE PRESIDENT—Charles A. Blanchard, President Wheaton College Ill.

GEN'L SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I. Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

REC. SECRETARY—Amos Dresser, Jr. Wheaton, Ill., Box 367.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E Whipple, E. R. Worrell, Edgar B. Wylie W. M. Howie, H. F. Kletzing.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., J. A. Conant; Vice-president, S. C. Kimball; Sec'y, D. B. Gunn.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. R. W. Chesnut Marissa; Sec., Rev. J. R. Wylie, Coulterville; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., Rev. J. A. Greer, Columbus City; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton; Treas., Rev. L. Mendenhall, Fairfield.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., ——, ——, Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom, Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morrill St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry; Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

OREGON.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dillon, D.D., Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan, Beaver; Treas., Edwin P Sellew, Philadelphia.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Gaoway, Poynette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas J W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

HENRY M. HUGUNIN - - - - Editor.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, MAY 24, 1894.

"THE GOSPEL FOR THE CITIES."

Under this title, B. L. Smith, of Topeka, Kan., makes a strong plea for Christian union in faith and good works. He does not believe in the church sending away the common people to find pasturage for their souls in other and forbidden places. "In real city Christianity," he writes in the Cincinnati Missionary Intelligencer, "the feeding of the multitude is literally repeated. The disciples are still saying: 'Send the multitude away into the cities to buy food.' But the Saviour said: 'They need not depart; give ye them to eat.'

"We are still sending them away to the city of lodges, to the Y. M. C. A., to the moral societies, to buy what they need. It is the privilege of the church to supply all these needs—to keep the multitudes with her, and not have them depart. Will we do it?

"We should be concerned, not only about man's eternal welfare, but we should give generous thought to the interest of human welfare here. Our King dried the tears of human anguish; he healed broken hearts; his humanity forgot no human need while directing the aspirations of immortal souls to their eternal home; while he met and answered the most anxious questions of the human soul, he was never indifferent to the needs of the body. 'Send the multitudes away to the villages of Masonry, Odd-fellowship, Knights of everything and anything, to buy food,' says the church. Send them away to buy social food, to buy intellectual food. 'They need not depart,' says the Saviour; give ye them to eat.' Oh, brethren, can we read it: 'They need not depart?' Open your doors, open your hearts; give ye them to eat.

"If we cannot save Chicago, we cannot save Calcutta; if we cannot save St. Louis, we cannot save Bombay; but it fires the heart, it glorifies the intellect, it makes the whole man tingle with the keenest anticipation of seeing and helping a church that will meet the world-wide wants of our humanity, while guiding hearts to love Him whose home is beyond the stars."

The lesson taught by this narrative and its application is that the church has mistaken its mission, and wandered away from its Founder and his purpose. "A church," says Edward Eggleston, "is formed when two or more persons agree to help each other to serve God."

This definition covers a world of bewildering creeds, and a church thus organized will "feed the multitudes."

INIQUITY ABOUNDING—AND THE CHURCH.

In the Temperance department of this issue of the Cynosure is an able review of Mr. Stead's description of Chicago, by Lady Henry Somerset, who deems the gentleman's views somewhat misleading. It is interesting reading, since Mr. Stead and Lady Somerset are English by birth and education, both talented, and have opinions of their own. To us, Americans, however, their several suggestions may be of value.

If we discuss the causes of the iniquity of Chicago, which forms so large a topic in Mr. Stead's book, we shall have to go farther and higher than the slums and cess-pools of the city. We do not say who in the higher walks of life have been remiss in their duty to the lower and more dangerous classes in this community; but one thing is certain, and greatly to be regretted. Twenty years ago, or more, the Christian churches in the city carried a strong influence for righteousness in municipal affairs, and served as a check upon the powers that ruled. We regret that, for some reason or other, they have lost much of their power. They may have been deserted by the moral influence of persons who, while they were not Christians, still cast their votes for honesty and good government. Or the sinister influences of "boodleism" and rum may have increased and overpowered the Christian and moral bias of municipal politics; and this is very likely one important factor in the present corruption that exists.

The Christian church, however, should not relax its efforts to secure and maintain righteousness and good government. If it continues faithful to its great Head and is walking with Him rather than the world, it is sure of his mighty help, whatever adverse circumstances may threaten to overwhelm us.

In the words of Rev. Dr. McNaugher, of Allegheny, Pa., printed in the United Presbyterian of last week: "The church is an outer witness for the truth and law of Almighty God, in social, industrial, commercial and political life.....It is commissioned to assert the righteousness of the Decalogue and the philanthropy and sympathy of the Gospel for the amelioration of society at large. Whenever the domain of the moralities is invaded, whenever the rights of God or man are trampled upon, it is appointed to voice its protest with strong earnestness, no matter where the application lies. And in addition to controversy with iniquity, it is the church's duty to inculcate those remedial virtues, and to send out those humanizing and beneficent influences which go to strengthen the bonds of civil society, which tend to smooth its 'rough places,' and to restore its lost harmonies. Such a public calling has constituted the church the guardian of all that is best in civilization, and given it a firm place in the van of social progress."

Will the church fulfill its mission?

INIQUITY IN CHICAGO.

Resolutions were adopted by the International Sunday Observance League of this city, last week, protesting against the practice of playing baseball on Sunday. Mr. William W. Clarke, secretary of the League, presented a copy of these resolutions to Mayor Hopkins.

One of the resolutions particularly requests the Mayor to prohibit the practice. In answer to this request, the Mayor replied "that he had himself played baseball on Sunday, liked to see a Sunday game now and then, and thought the youth of the land would not be demoralized if allowed to see them."

With such a Mayor and a Council made up of saloon-keepers and "boodlers," there can be but little hope of the moral reformation of the city, until the power of God is brought to bear upon its iniquity, as in the days of Sodom and Gomorrah. We are fast realizing the "wickedness in high places" of which Paul wrote, and believe that "a fearful looking-for of judgment" must follow.

—The attention of Cynosure readers is especially called to recommendation third in the report of the Board of Directors, which report was adopted by the corporate body and recommended to the friends. What do you think of it? Let us hear from you. Three men were asked last Saturday, and responded by each subscribing for a club of twenty or over.

—According to his usual custom at the close of the college sessions for the summer, Rev. Samuel F. Porter is engaged in missionary work in North Dakota. Writing from Lidgerwood, in that State, quite recently, he informs us that he is now supplying pulpits in three neighboring churches. He says: "I preached to a fair audience, morning and evening, in the Congregational church, last Sabbath, at Fort Abercrombie." We are pleased at this evidence of Bro. Porter's health and energy, notwithstanding his advanced age. At the Annual Meeting of the N. C. A., last week, a hope was expressed that he may continue his good work among the colleges this year, an occupation in which the records show that he has, in the past, done excellent service.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

Spring in the city.—The annual meeting of the American Peace Society.—At Dr. Gordon's Training School.—The great fire.—The Norwegian system.

Even the city puts on its holiday attire at this most delightful season of the year, and in the less-crowded portions, where they have breathing room, its citizens can enjoy some of the delights of spring;—the few leafing trees, the green grass in the door-yards, the cloudless blue of the sky against which the red brick walls stand out in such cameo-like clearness. And then there are the Common and the public gardens—just now a perfect dream of delight—but, after all, it is only the hem of her garment that the dweller in the city sees. Still one needs other inspirations occasionally, and this is what Boston's May anniversaries afford to the dweller in the country. Those who attend bring back with them a new sense of what the religious and philanthropic world is doing, and carry on the work in their own obscure corner of the vineyard with greater faith and courage when they think of themselves as units in a great host. I know there are heroic souls who derive no inspiration from the consciousness of numbers; who are satisfied to know that they are on the side of right. But few of us are cast in this heroic mould, and perhaps it is just as well.

I had the pleasure, this week, through the kind invitation of Secretary Trueblood, of attending the annual meeting of the American Peace Society, in Pilgrim Hall. Sixty-six years ago this organization was founded, and surely none—not even our own anti-secret reform—ever had its birth in a more discouraging epoch. Our wars with Great Britain had hardly become a thing of yesterday, nor the thunders of Napoleon's campaigns died away, and the nations, couched on their arms, were watching each other like lions ready for the onset. In our own country, what with Fourth of July orations and the martial strains in the school reading-books, the whole tendency of things was to foster the military spirit and call it patriotism. The hardest fighters in the anti-slavery struggle were advocates of peace; and so, as generally happens, one reform helped the other. This may seem strange; yet what people have ever dealt keener or heavier strokes against evil than the non-resistant Quakers? The fact is, when men have personally proved the powers there is in spiritual weapons, they feel no desire to exchange them for anything of grosser temper. With the rise of so many different and yet kindred lines of reform, the peace movement has steadily kept on its way till now it numbers among its officers and members many of the most prominent names in this country and in Europe, and has seen arbitration successfully tried by the greatest nations on the globe.

Robert Treat Paine was in the chair, a fine-looking, grayhaired man of commanding presence. He paid a glowing tribute to Secretary Trueblood, to whose unsparing labors in the cause it owes much of its present prosperity. Dr. Trueblood, as readers of the Cynosure need not be reminded, is a strong foe to organized secrecy, and fully alive to the close connection between the two reforms. Dr. Reuen Thomas spoke a few words, and the president being called away, the chair was occupied during the latter part of the session by the benignant face of Dr. Miner.

I had the pleasure of meeting, for the first time, another of our anti-secret friends with whom I had only been acquainted through correspondence—Mrs. H. J. Bailey, Superintendent of Peace and Arbitration in the World's and National W. C. T. U. She is a small, dark-eyed woman, with the quiet, reserved manner inherited from her Quaker ancestry. She expects to be present at our next New England convention, in which event we shall doubtless hear some brave and strong words from her on the lodge question.

The next morning I took in the examinations in Dr. Gordon's Training School. Here I met Rev. F. L. Chapell, and greatly enjoyed his examination of the junior class on the names of Deity as used in Scripture. No class in any of our theological seminaries could have acquitted themselves more creditably. He was followed by Rev. J. M. Gray, of the Reformed Episcopal church, who examined them on the evidence of the Bible. I was told by Bro. McElwain that the school numbers about one hundred, half of whom are day-pupils, the rest attending in the evening. The bright, thoughtful faces of these young men and women, as they sat on the platform, seemed to me an earnest of hope for Darkest Boston. For there is a Darkest Boston, as well as Darkest London or Chicago; and always will be till our Lord comes to reign. And as Kitty Trevylyan says in her Diary: "The storms never cease on earth . . . but till heaven and earth pass away the work of rescuing the lost will have to begin again, generation by generation, and day by day."

The great fire, this week, which burned over twenty acres and rendered homeless two thousand people, is not an unmixed evil, sad as is the condition of many who have lost their little all, as the tenements destroyed were many of them old, rickety, and very defective in sanitary arrangements. The blaze, which started on the base ball grounds, from a match carelessly or maliciously dropped, seemed so trifling at first that even the police stationed there thought it could be easily subdued and neglected to ring in an alarm till it was too late. Another illustration of "how great a matter a little fire kindleth."

The Ruggles' Street Baptist church did nobly in sheltering and feeding the homeless, and to many of the poor, burned-out people its walls must have been indeed "a sanctuary." But when did any of the grand Masonic temples scattered over our country ever open their doors in similar fashion to a homeless crowd?

The bill for the Norwegian system, in a modified form, passed the House yesterday by a vote of 132 to 39. It enables cities which have voted for liquor license for two successive years to adopt the system. The great benefit supposed to result, and of which its friends make most capital, is the taking of the saloon out of politics; but what is to take politics out of the saloon? The first step after a town or city passes this measure will be the creation of one great rum monopoly, and if it does not, like other monopolies, find ways and means to work the political wires for its own advantage, it will be something new under the sun. "The hideous features of the traffic will be done away with," say the advocates of the measure. But we don't want its "hideous features done away with." We want every loathsome fold and crinkle of the old serpent to be seen, without any intervening veil of "respectability" to put the question of his snakehood in doubt. The arguments in favor of the measure are really the strongest against it. There is also danger that many hitherto no-license communities will be tempted to quit their vantage-ground and vote for the Norwegian system, which would be a much worse "set-back" than any that have yet befallen the temperance cause through voting for prohibition. ELIZABETH E. FLAGG.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, May 16, 1894.

When the Indian appropriation bill was reported to the House of Representatives, many people were surprised and not a few alarmed at the manner in which the recommendations of the Indian Bureau had been cut in the name of economy. It is said by those familiar with the subject that great inconvenience, and it may be serious trouble, will be the inevitable result if the amounts appropriated are not increased. No one who has taken the trouble to make an intelligent investigation of the Indian schools maintained by the government can be found who will deny that they are doing much good. That the good that they are doing was not appreciated by those who constructed this appropriation bill is shown by the cutting of $273,000 from the estimates of what was needed for the schools. This cut, if the bill is not amended, will necessitate the abandonment of nearly all of what are known as "contract" schools. An estimate of $75,000 to send Indians to industrial, mechanical, agricultural and other schools in various States is entirely ignored by the bill. In this connection it may be stated that one of the heaviest guns of those opposed to educating the Indians was spiked by the official denial of the statement made before the House committee that "Apache Kid," the notorious outlaw, was an educated Indian. He never was in school a day, and he learned what English he speaks while serving as a government scout. The educational feature of the bill is not the only one that is criticised. Representative Wilson, of Washington, says the cut of $35,000 in the amount for the Apache Indians will necessitate a reduction of 1,000,000 pounds of beef and 30,000 pounds of flour, which he fears may lead to trouble. A strong effort will be made to get the appropriations increased, and, as a majority of people believe the Indians should be justly dealt with, it is likely to succeed.

The celebration of the fifth anniversary of the Epworth League was the largest event of the week in church circles. Five years old, and a membership of more than 600,000! No wonder the leaguers are proud of the record. It is something to be proud of. For the especial benefit of your Epworthian readers and as a matter of interest to everybody I present a copy of the new league rallying song, rendered for the first time in public at this meeting, to the air of "Marching through Georgia." It was written by Mrs. Hattie A. Buell, who has dedicated it to the Washington District:

Come and sing a cheery song, ye Epworth Leaguers all;
Sing it with a spirit that is like a bugle call;
Let it echo around the world in every cot and hall,
While we are marching to Canaan.

Chorus—Look up! Lift up! and sing our Jubilee.
Look up! Lift up the cross that makes us free,
Ring aloud the chorus from the mountains to the sea,
While we are marching to Canaan.

We have left Egyptian darkness far, far behind,
And the glorious Land of Promise now we seek to find;
Raise on high our banner bright and fling it to the wind,
While we are are marching to Canaan. Chorus—

We're a League of workers true, six hundred thousand strong,
Soon six hundred thousand more will swell our triumph song,
Sworn to battle for the right—to fight against the wrong,
While we are marching to Canaan. Chorus —

Wesley's loyal leaguers all, unite this song to sing—
Sing it with the spirit that shall honor Christ our King—
Sing it as we hope to sing it when the heavens ring,
While we are marching to Canaan. Chorus—

The United States Supreme Court is justly regarded as being as near infallibility as anything human can be, but it proved itself, in a decision handed down this week, to be human enough to make mistakes, and to be great enough to acknowledge and to correct them afterwards. Some years ago the United States Supreme Court, in a case involving the title to a piece of property in Nebraska, construed a will. Afterwards in another suit the Supreme Court of Nebraska decided that the construction put upon the will by the United States Supreme Court was wrong and the case was sent to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, which certified the case to the United States Supreme Court and asked which construction of the will it should follow. Here is the answer of the Court, voiced by Justice Gray: "Ordinarily there would be no doubt as to how to answer that question, and the inquiring body would be told to follow the decision of the United States Supreme Court. But here we are satisfied that the Supreme Court of Nebraska was right and the United States Supreme Court was wrong, and the Court of Appeals will be so informed." There is a beautiful lesson for us all in this action of our highest court in acknowledging its error and reversing its previous decision.

*

GENERAL SECRETARY'S REPORT (Continued from 5th page).

ways helped along the general work. Aid to such has been by correspondence, and by appropriation of literature, and, in some cases, by an appropriation of a small sum of money.

The good work among college students has been assisted, as formerly, by correspondence, by helping them to literature, and in one instance by getting out a special college number of the Cynosure.

Not a little correspondence has been had with a view of opening doors for lectures, and conventions, especially in the central western States. A six days' meeting, thus introduced, is now in progress in Iowa. More than a usual inquiry has been aroused among the pastors and evangelists, judging from the increase of correspondence with such. The majority of inquiries have reference to the minor orders, that, under one pretext and another, are taking the young men. The value of the National Christian Association to the churches is evidenced by this correspondence. I quote from a letter from a pastor of a Lutheran church in Fort Wayne, Ind., as here in point: "By the information you gave me, I was able to procure literature, publications, etc., sufficient to prove that these more modern societies (minor secret orders) are organizations which Christians must avoid."

While most of my time has of necessity been in the office, yet, under the instruction of the Board of Directors, I have traveled over six thousand miles in looking after the financial and district work of the Association, and in attending State conventions, or conferences.

Since I was a member of the committee appointed by your Board of Directors to present, through your Board, a plan of work for the coming year, it will be needless for me to make suggestions here.

W. I. PHILLIPS, General Secretary.

N. C. A. TREASURER'S REPORT.

JUNE 1, 1893 TO APRIL 30, 1894.

STATEMENT OF RESOURCES.

Real estate—Carpenter building	$20,000 00
Washington "	10,000 00
Michigan house	4,000 00	$34,000 00
Bills receivable—Pub. h'se notes	2,929 22
Loans acc't annuities	10,473 96	13,403 18
Fixtures—In Carpenter building	486 62
In Washington "	66 69	553 31
Publishing material		966 40
Books in stock		532 82
Tracts in stock		596 95
Christian Cynosure: amount paid for good will, etc., estimated		5,859 50
Cynosure subscriptions due		507 75
Reference library		229 90
Suspense accounts		1,493 03
Personal accounts due		874 35
Merchandise on hand: coal, etc		11 20
Library fund		205 63
Foreign fund		4 37
Cash on hand May 1, 1894		66 59
		$59,304 98

STATEMENT OF LIABILITIES.

Capwell annuity fund	$ 805 94
Ninety-three " "	2,500 00
Oregon " "	2,224 50
Columbia " "	6,000 00
Ohio " "	1,000 00
New York " "	500 00
Cynosure extension fund	49 53
Southern ministers' Cynosure fund	17 60
Cynosure subscriptions owed	1,680 75
Personal accounts owed	185 16
N. C. A. capital	44,341 50
	$59,304 98

The losses and gains may be classified as follows:

LOSSES.

Expenses: rent, fuel, etc	$ 701 57
Publishing house note	12 00
Publishing material	76 08
Postage account	228 82
Salary account	2,778 43
Appropriation to Illinois work	36 25
" Minnesota and Wisc'sin work	81 20
" Iowa work	1 50
" New England work	181 30
" Oregon and Washington work	141 50
Special appropriation of literature, and for advertising, etc	351 72
Annuities	451 28
Anniversary and conventions	5 20
Tracts given away over and above donations	52 84
World's Fair expenses	81 73
Students' Bureau	2 00
	$5,183 42

GAINS.

Reference Library	$ 2 75
Fixtures	8 86
Carpenter building	1,036 34
Current expense fund	4,385 77
Interest	248 85
Washington building	444 29
Michigan house	119 50
Christian Cynosure	406 92
	$6,653 28

The gains exceed the losses by $1,469 86, which added to the capital account of June 1, 1893 make the present capital account $44,341.50. W. I. PHILLIPS, Treas.

AUDITORS' REPORT.

WHEATON, Ill., May 14, 1894.

The undersigned, members of the Finance Committee of the National Christian Association, and Auditors, have examined, for the year closing May 1, 1894, the books and vouchers of W. I. Phillips, Treasurer, and find the same to be correct; we have also examined the assets of the Association and find them to be as exhibited in his annual report. E. WHIPPLE, Chairman.
H. A. FISCHER, Secretary.

CHIEF JUSTICE MARSHALL was the intimate friend and biographer of Washington, and was himself a Freemason in his youth. Marshall left the lodge in 1793. He had then for some sixteen years been acquainted with Washington, who died six years later. Marshall wrote to Hon. John Bailey from Richmond, Oct. 18, 1833, of Washington and Freemasonry: "I do not recollect ever to have heard him utter a syllable on the subject."

THE HOME.

WAYSIDE FLOWERS.

I love the flowers whose softly-tinted faces
By dusty road or hedgeside meet the gaze,
Clothing with beauty earth's unlovely places,
Freshest and sweetest in life's common ways.
Their mission is so lofty, yet so lowly—
Brightening the rugged paths of daily toil;
Their lesson is so simple, yet so holy—
Such gracious growths may spring from stony soil!
Hands, labor worn, which have but little leisure,
Pause in their work these untrained blooms to cull;
World weary hearts throb fast again with pleasure
At sight of things so pure and beautiful.
Through dust and mire their stainless petals glisten;
They choose the world's waste ground to make it fair;
And whisper in the ear that stoops to listen:
"Sweetness and grace may flourish everywhere."

—Chambers' Journal.

WOMEN'S WORK IN THE SLUMS.

How dark is the gloom, how oppressive the atmosphere of crime and misery, none can understand who "go slumming" as sight-seers, or who dabble for a time in slum work as an experiment.

To know all, to understand the needs, and to be able to grasp the awfulness of the existing state of things, you must live and work in the slums as neighbor to the people, sharing their poverty, dwelling in their homes, and dressing in as poor a garb as they, that you may be brought to their level sufficiently to benefit them, while you turn your back on all the comforts, ease, and refinements of home as completely as if you were a missionary in Central Africa or China.

These "poor outcasts" have their feelings, are sensitive, suspicious, and sometimes proud. They do not care to be looked at as phenomena, patronized and pitied by those who consider themselves above them, and they will rebuff those who come as spies or strangers into their midst.

It is with love and constant kindly deeds that the slum-workers of the Salvation Army have won their way from cellar to garret, from dive to saloon, making themselves necessary to their neighbors, showing them that real Christianity is disinterested, intensely practical, and believes sincerely in the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of all men.

In New York, Chicago, Brooklyn, Boston, Philadelphia and Buffalo, day and night, summer and winter, patiently and lovingly, away out of sight, between forty and fifty young women, without salary or worldly recompense, are passing in and out of the most wretched homes and haunts of sin, seeking, as Christ did, the most needy, the most debased and most hopeless, and by their patient toil winning them back to life and hope and goodness. Fearlessly they visit from saloon to saloon, talking and praying with the rough, drunken crowds who, gathered therein, are drinking and blaspheming, their pure, earnest faces carrying conviction of the truth of their words.

They have no male escort with them to protect them; their own goodness and purity are about them like a wall of fire, silencing and impressing the very lowest and most degraded, and arousing in the hearts of the men to whom they go with their loving message the dormant sparks of chivalry that still exist away beneath the hardened coating created by their tough lives and many sins.

By the side of the hopeless fallen woman in the lowest dives you would find them talking of possible purity and brightness that may yet chase the dark shadow of death from the future. You could see many a poor painted face wet with tears amid the coarse laughter, the fetid fumes, and noisy dance of those night revels as the girl has been drawn aside and lovingly talked to of Jesus and the loving message he has sent of pardon, hope and restoration, with a tender reminder of "mother" and "home" in the now far-away past. Down into cellars God's messengers have groped their way, and found there human beings sleeping on the damp ground in places where light was dim, and where rats ran around and scampered over them; and the bitter cold crept in to start fatal maladies in their worn and hungry bodies.

To these in the darkness and poverty and sickness, as messengers of light, these brave, true-hearted girls have gone, and have brought help and comfort. Not there alone, but away up in the garret, where the rafters hang low, covered with funeral drapings of soot-laden cobwebs, their faces have brought sunlight brighter than that which dirt and old rags have effectually kept out of the window.—Harper's Weekly.

"WHERE'S MOTHER?"

When the tired father returns home at night from the office or shop, when the children come home from school, the first question is always—unless she stands in the very hall before their eyes—"Where's mother?" It is often said that the mother is the home. This question is one of the many proofs of the truth of this proverb. Unless the mother is in the house, the vital principle of the home seems to be lacking. She comes, and comfort, love and joy seemed to enter with her. She goes, and there is a sort of breathless and uneasy waiting time until she comes back again.

To the true mother, the knowledge that she is thus indispensable to the loved ones should be one of the choicest possessions. It is only by cherishing the spirit which prompts the question, "Where's mother?" that she can properly instill into the hearts of her children that "passion for home" which one of our great writers has called the "first characteristic of manly natures." And yet, not infrequently, a tired mother will exclaim impatiently: "I wish I could stir without having an outcry, 'Where's mother?'" To one who sets true value upon life and its duties and pleasures, such words come with an awful shock. Pearls seem to have been cast wastefully before the feet of such a woman.

But even if a mother hold most dear this precious tribute of love, how many are there who take pains to be at home when the children come? Or, if she must be absent, to leave word for them, or to tell them before they go in the morning, or at noon, that she expects to be gone when they return, with the reasons and regrets? It is only by mutual thoughtfulness in these so-called trifles that the harmony of the home life can be preserved, and woe to her who does not appreciate them at their true value. It is impossible that the busy mother of a family, with shopping to do, calls to make, and meetings of various kinds to attend, should always be in when the children come home from school. It would show an undue regard for sentiment if she were to shut herself away from the outside life which every woman needs so much, and which she needs especially for the benefit of her family. But by following this rule, to tell the children in the morning, whenever she can, just where she is to be, and how soon she will be at home, she may keep alive and still foster, though she is absent, the sacred flame which she so prizes.—Selected.

EXCUSES.

Christian people, as a rule, admit that they ought to go to church at least once every Sabbath. Yet in fact a very large proportion of church members do not attend one service each Lord's Day. There is a very general impression that this shortcoming has its root in love of ease, self-indulgence and simple selfishness. Not by any such excuses, however, does the failing member justify himself. Not feeling well, the weather with its varied moods, unexpected company,—these things are made to do duty. How little there is in these reasons, often so confidently put forth, we had good opportunity to see the other evening. There was much sickness in the place, the weather bad, walking difficult, the night dark and cold; but a popular bal masque filled the streets with thousands, and an admission fee of half a dollar did not seem to remind people that we are in the midst of hard times. What people want to do they evidently can do.—Reformed Church Messenger.

YOUTHFUL AMBITION AND AIMS.

Mr. George W. Childs, when a boy, said to himself, "I'm going to be the owner of the Philadelphia Ledger, some day." It was a grand incentive, and the "some day" came around to him at last, and the newspaper plant has grown into a valuable property in his hands. Years ago a young playmate of mine, who had a taste for botany, said to me, "I'll some day fill the chair of professor of botany in the ——— university." He trained himself for the position, and filled it, twenty-five years later.

Persistent application must be united with the incentive. Mere ambition will not be enough. It will soon spend itself. Rufus Choate once taught a boy the force of this remark. He entered the office and said, in a self-consequential way:

"Mr. Choate, I want to become a great lawyer, like yourself."

"Ah, indeed!" replied Mr. Choate. "That is commendable. You can begin now."

He motioned the boy to a chair, gave him a copy of Blackstone, and said: "Read this until I come back, and I will see how you get on." The boy had not trained his mind to study. He could not fix his attention. His back and head began to ache. Every moment increased his torture. He wanted fresh air; he felt like running away; his ambition wilted. In two hours Mr. Choate returned.

"How do you get along?" he asked.

"Get along!" groaned the boy. "Did you have to read such stuff as this?"

"Yes, and a great deal more. All the books you see here," replied Mr. Choate, glancing at the well-filled library shelves.

"How long did it take you?"

"About twenty-five years," replied Mr. Choate.

"Oh!" gasped the boy, in supreme disgust. "Well, I'll never be a great lawyer. I don't want to be."

Another boy, who afterward became one of the millionaire merchants of Philadelphia, was made of better material. He walked into an office and asked for work.

"You are starting out young in life," the busy man said. "Have you a motto?" "No, sir," replied the boy, a little puzzled.

"Well, every boy ought to have a motto," suggested the gentleman. He meant an incentive. The boy stared directly in front of him, and saw the word "push" on the door. "There is my motto," he quickly said as he pointed to the door.

"Good!" laughed the gentleman. "This is a hustling world. The fellow who doesn't push is left out on the edges. I want a boy with push, and so I'll try you."

David Livingstone was a boy of push. When but ten years of age he gave proof of his wonderful powers of observation by the flowers and shells he had collected. At sixteen he had mastered Horace and Virgil, working from six in the morning to eight in the evening, in a factory, and studying at night. He tells us himself how he read while in the factory: "I placed the book on a portion of the spinning-jenny so that I could catch sentence after sentence as I passed at my work." A boy with so much laudable persistency could not help becoming a great man. Linnæus, Herschel, Cuvier and Agassiz were boys blessed with similar persistency, but were not so shut up by circumstances as Livingstone was.

Daniel Webster once used a very startling and appropriate illustration in one of his speeches.

"Where did you get that?" asked a friend.

"I stored it away in my head when I was a boy," replied Webster. "I never had a chance to use it until to-day." He had a recalling memory as well as a retentive memory. He labeled the story, put it into a pigeon-hole in his brain, and found it there when he reached for it.

Hard work in boyhood antedates the brilliant success of manhood. When Peel entered the House of Commons, at the age of twenty-one, he startled the public with the ease, brilliancy and impressiveness of his speeches. But, before he was eight years old, he had exhibited his aptitude in that direction, and his father was sensible enough to foster it. He trained him to address visitors in the parlor with a self-possession and eloquence that was quite effective. He would make him repeat, on Sabbath afternoon, all he could recall of the sermon of the forenoon. By cultivating the habit of attention and retention, he was enabled to repeat the sermon almost word for word.

An uncle of the late Justice Lamar aroused a fortunate incentive in his nephew. The latter admitted that he was making little progress in Latin, Greek and mathematics.

"Lucius, what do you do in your debating society?" asked Mirabeau B. Lamar.

"Oh, I talk to the members," was the boy's reply. "I do not find that very hard."

"Then, sir," said Mirabeau, "go back to school and learn how to talk, and how to talk well."

A great deal of information can be obtained by observation. It is a wonderful incentive to the naturalist. He is ever discovering something new. There are boys who are observing and there are boys who are not. On one occasion a class of boys stood up to read. The word eclat was in the lesson.

"How is that word pronounced?" asked the teacher, before they began to read. None of them knew; yes, the boy at the foot of the class knew.

"It is pronounced e-claw, sir," he answered.

"How do you know?" asked the teacher.

"Because it tells us, at the top of the lesson, how to pronounce it," was the reply. He had observed that fact; the other six had not. Observation can be trained. It is a faculty that should be cultivated. Robert Houdin, the French conjurer, trained himself and his son to such a quickness of the eyes that they could discriminate dozens of objects seen merely at a glance. In passing a shop window, or a book-stall, they would compare which of them had noticed and memorized the greatest variety of articles or the titles of the greatest number of books.—Frank H. Stauffer, in the Interior.

HOW ONE BOY FACED THE WORLD.

About twelve years ago a soldier's widow with one boy and one girl lived in Chicago. The boy was less than ten years old: a handsome, dark-eyed, curly-headed young fellow, richly endowed in heart and mind, and having a true, loyal love for his mother. They were very poor and the boy felt that he ought to work instead of going to public school; but his mother was a very intelligent woman and could not bear to have him do this. He thought a great deal upon the subject and finally begged a penny from his sister, who was a few years older than himself. With this money he bought one copy of the daily paper at wholesale, and sold it for two cents. He was then careful to pay back the penny he borrowed (make a note of that, boys), and he now had one cent of his own; with it he bought another paper and sold it for two cents, and so on. He took up his position in front of the Sherman House, opposite the City Hall; this was a favorite place with the newsboys and they fought the little fellow fiercely; but he stood his ground, won standing-room for himself, and went on selling papers.

He became one of the most successful newsboys in the city, and at the age of fourteen had laid up money enough, besides helping his mother, so that he could afford to take a study in stenography and typewriting. He began in a class with two hundred others; when he graduated from the course only six remained with him. There is something in this to think about. A great many start in the race, but few hold on to the end. They are like boys chasing a butterfly—pretty flowers along the way attract them, and they hear a bird sing somewhere in the woods, or they stop to skip pebbles in the river; it is only the few that go on—right straight on—who catch the butterfly we call success.

Well, this boy became the best stenographer in Chicago. When he was only eighteen he was president of their society. He then went to a leading college and took the entire four years' course of preparation in two years, at the same time supporting himself and his mother by his stenographic work for the professors.

He kept up his health by regular out-door exercise. He never tasted tea, coffee, tobacco, or alcoholic drinks. His food was simple, mostly fish, vegetables and fruit. He had a good conscience; there was no meanness about him. When he was twenty years of age he became the private secretary of one of the greatest capitalists in America. Of course he had a large salary. He was clear cut in everything that he did; there was no slackness in his work. The gentleman who employed him used tobacco and drank wine, but this young private secretary, with quiet dignity, declined both cigars and claret, though offered him by his employer in his most gracious manner. It is to the credit of the great capitalist that when his secretary told him he never used tobacco or liquor, he answered, "I honor you for it, young man."

The name of this remarkable Chicagoan is Jerome Raymond. He is now the private secretary of Bishop Thoburn, and is making a trip around the world; at the same time he is studying for his degree in the university, being permitted to substitute French and Sanscrit for some other studies that he would have taken if he were here.

He was my stenographer on and off for two years, and I think most highly of him. It seemed to me I could not do a greater service than to tell you this simple story. He is a knight of the new chivalry, a champion of the White Cross, a believer in woman's ballot, a Prohibitionist in politics, and an earnest Christian in faith and practice.—Frances E. Willard.

MY FOE—MYSELF.

Not from my foes without, but those within,
I pray to be protected hour by hour;
For that aggressive self, that leads to sin,
And lures to pleasure with seductive power,
Stands ever by the portal of desire,
And mocks my spirit when it would aspire.

From that most subtle foe, disguised as friend,
I need be ever on my guard, for when
I cease for one brief moment to defend
The castle of my soul, he seeks me then
In some unlooked-for way, with mein so fair
And voice so sweet, the while he sets his snare.

With honeyed words, and sophistries and lies,
He argues on the pleasures of the sense;
He pictures Duty in a hideous guise,
And laughs at Labor's paltry recompense;
"Let dullards toil," he cries; "thine is the right
To gather all life's blossoms of delight!"

Again, in mask of teacher he appears,
And cries, "Why seek to lift another's load?
Each soul that journeys down the vale of tears
Must carry his own burden o'er the road;
Accept thine own, but let all others go."
Despite his mask, I know him as my foe.

My base foe, self, which, envious of the goal
It cannot reach, since formed of dying clay,
Would hinder and oppose my starving soul
That longs and labors for the better way;
And with this foe my spirit must contend,
By prayer and vigil, even to the end.

—Ella Wheeler Wilcox, in the Independent.

TEMPERANCE.

"IF CHRIST CAME TO CHICAGO."

The Woman's Signal of recent date contains a review by its editor, Lady Henry Somerset, of Mr. Stead's new book "If Christ came to Chicago." Lady Henry shows in her review a deeper study of the conditions of American society, the causes of vice and pauperism and the agencies at work for the alleviation of the misery that exists not only in Chicago but other cities of our country. She says:

"The picture he draws is a dark one, but he does not, I think, sufficiently emphasize the reason of the shadow cast over the shores of Michigan. In his preface he states briefly that 'the polyglot city cannot be regarded as a fair sample of American life,' but he fails to impress the English with the intricacy of the problem Chicago is called to solve, namely, the fact that hitherto it has been the police station of Europe, the goal of paupers, castaways and criminals, more than ninety per cent of its population being either foreign or the children of foreigners. The beneficent intention of the early founders of the Republic has become the bane of its municipalities. The Constitution was based on the liberty of the law-abiding American citizen; it has become the opportunity of the ignorant barbarian to smite the hand held out to bless; the boast of the Fourth of July orator, that America is "an asylum for the oppressed of the world," is now the most appalling danger of a generous people. Fifteen per cent of the whole population of the United States is foreign, while fifty per cent of the inmates of its goals and poorhouses are likewise foreigners. The saloons, houses of ill fame, and pawn-shops depicted on the map at the beginning of the volume are largely kept by foreigners. The Irish and German saloon-keeper are the typical figures of their class."

She calls attention to the fact that many of the so-called "tramps" did not belong to the genus of the "ordinary tramp," but were wage-workers thrown out of employment by the commercial failures, for whom the city was called to provide without opportunity for preparation.

The description of Brant Smith's ideal liquor-saloon, and the advice of Farmer Jones, "If you want to do any good in this town, begin a crusade against the indecent saloons; you will do no good at all if you go against all the saloons, but you should distinguish between the decent and the indecent saloons," is thus answered:

"This is no new gospel; it has long been preached, and doubtless will be to the end. It was the great argument advanced by the anti-Abolitionists—keep the good (?) masters, and restrict the traffic within certain prescribed limits. It is served up again by those who defend the legislation of the public house; but it appears to me that no one can read this chapter without feeling that in all probability this very "oasis of cleanliness and light," for thus Mr. Stead describes Brant's saloon, has done more to ruin Chicago, to demoralize its citizens and debase its politics, than the indecent saloons shunned by all who still retain the vestiges of self-respect; for here is planned the political prostitution of the voter, bought up at so many dollars apiece, that men may be continued in power under whose leadership the reign of misrule which the author deplores may steadily strengthen and extend its malign sway."

Of the scenes in Harrison street police station, the "central cesspool" of its city's moral sewers, she says:

"There is, however, a fact briefly touched on by Mr. Stead which I feel should be emphasized for English readers. 'One policeman and one police matron,' he says, 'are in command. In America such an institution as a police station is thrown open to public inspection, and can be visited by any citizen who desires to know the workings of that local government to pay for which he is taxed. In London the great police stations can not under any circumstances be entered, applications made to the Home Secretary and other authorities being at once refused. The women are there brought in mad or stupid with drink, and are attended by men only. Police matrons in America are the direct outcome of the work of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, who in Chicago paid the first matron from their own society's funds, until the benefit arising from a woman waiting on women were so fully recognized that the city employed them, and the pressure brought to bear by White Ribbon women has resulted in laws requiring their services in many of the States.'"

In conclusion, Lady Henry calls attention to Mr. Stead's failure to give honor to whom honor is due, in the following words:

"Mr. Stead throughout his entire presentation of the political situation in Chicago has absolutely failed to recognize the only philanthropic society that had the Christian fortitude, the womanly love, to 'dare to be in the right with two or three,' as his favorite poet, James Russell Lowell, has so truly described this divine courage. I mean that band of women who rose superior to rooted prejudice, social ostracism, and religious rebuke, and stood for the new movement in which whisky and politics are to be mixed no longer. He is probably unaware that in 1884 the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, for the first time in the history of American philanthropy or politics, stood for a party whose rallying cry was the protection of the home, and dared the obliquy of the Republican and Democratic party, both of whom feared to antagonize the liquor power. Their action brought the expected result. Up to that time they had been upheld by the churches and praised by the press, but from that day on they have suffered financially, socially and ecclesiastically the retribution which in earlier times fell on the Abolitionists when they dared to pass from theory to practice, and tried to act as they believe Christ would have done had he been there."

NUGGETS.

Arrangements are in progress by the California W. C. T. U. for a temperance congress to be held in San Francisco, the last of May.

It is stated that Maine is less affected by the financial and industrial depression of the country than any other northern State. Has the prohibitory law anything to do with it?

Lady Henry Somerset recently made a nine days' lecture trip, during which she addressed over 22,000 persons on intemperance, and was presented with twenty-seven public addresses.

BIBLE LESSON.

STUDIES IN THE BOOKS OF MOSES.

LESSON X.—Second Quarter, 1894, June 3.

SUBJECT.—The Passover Instituted.—Exodus 12:1-14.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us.—1 Cor. 5:7.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Ex. 12: 1-14. T.—Ex. 12: 21-28. W.—Ex. 12: 29-36. Th.—Ex. 13: 3-10. F.—Psalm 105:26-38. S.—Luke 22: 7-16. Su.—1 Pet. 1: 17-25.

COMMENTS BY E. E. FLAGG.

1. The Passover instituted.—vs. 1–4. "This shall be to you the beginning of months." Their year had hitherto begun on the seventh of September. This change to the middle of March was to typify their new national life. The winter of their bondage was over; it was therefore fitting that they should date time from a fresh starting-point. So the Sabbath was changed from the seventh to the first day of the week, and all Christendom reckons time from what is called "the Christian era." "They shall take to them every man a lamb." This was an entirely new ordinance. While not offered on the altar, it was yet in a sense a sacrificial rite, and the head of the household was endowed for the time being with something like priestly functions, pointing towards the time when the Jewish ritual would be superseded by a more spiritual worship. Households too small for one lamb apiece were to join together. How many weak, struggling, debt-laden churches would be strong through union instead of keeping apart, and shaming the cause of Christ by their petty rivalries and worldly methods of raising money. The doctrine of Christian unity is here dimly foreshadowed, even in the very beginning of the Jewish dispensation. Yet, after two thousand years of New Testament teaching on this subject, Christians have not yet learned the lesson.

2. The Paschal Lamb.—vs. 5–10. The lamb was a type of Christ. Therefore it must be without blemish, like Him who was "holy, harmless, undefiled and made separate from sinners." "A male of the first year." So Christ was crucified in the prime of his life. The blood was to be sprinkled on the side-posts of their houses, as a sign to the destroying angel to pass over their households when on his mission to destroy the first-born of Egypt. So we shall be passed over by God's angels of judgment if our souls have been sprinkled by Christ's atoning blood. Henry mentions the fact that the lamb was to be set apart four days. So Christ entered Jerusalem four days before his crucifixion. The Passover was to be eaten with unleavened bread. So we must spiritually feed on Christ with sincere hearts, not cherishing malice, impurity, or any unholy feeling. "With bitter herbs." With penitential sorrow for sin. It may also refer to the bitter discipline through which God leads his chosen ones. "Ye shall let nothing of it remain until the morning." We cannot hoard up our Christian experience. It must be like our daily food, which will not nourish our bodies if kept till it is old and stale.

3. How the Passover must be eaten.—vs. 11–14. "Thus shall ye eat it, with your loins girded," ready for instant departure as soon as the summons should come. So the Christian's attitude should be one of constant readiness to obey any call of his divine Master;—to go here or there, or simply "stand and wait." "Your shoes on your feet." "Shod with the preparation of the Gospel of peace;" that is a state of preparedness to do and suffer all God's will. This passage, in Eph. 6: 5, refers to the military sandals then worn. Feet thus shod can tread any path of duty, however rough or thorny. "Your staff in your hand." The symbol of a pilgrim's life. We have no abiding city, but are strangers and pilgrims on the earth. "And ye shall eat it in haste." "What thy hand findeth to do, do it with all thy might." We have no time for dalliance with the world. It is the Lord's business that we are about. It is his passover, his table at which our souls must feed. "Against all the gods of Egypt I will execute judgment." The margin reads "princes." They who strengthened Pharaoh in his foolhardy course by their evil counsels should find that the God against whom they fought was unlike the bestial gods to whom they paid false worship, a living, almighty power. "This day shall be unto you for a memorial." We have Scriptural authority for keeping memorial days, especially that feast which brings to remembrance the sufferings and death of Him who was our Passover sacrificed for us. "It shall be a perpetual ordinance." So, through all the centuries that have passed, in the moral and spiritual darkness of the papal apostasy, this feast has endured, and will continue to endure till time shall be no more, or this dispensation is replaced by another. Let us remember (1), the necessity laid upon us to be like Christ our Passover, harmless and undefiled. (2) To be always prepared for God's service. (3) To remember that we are to pass through this world as pilgrims journeying to a better country.

LITERATURE.

GLAD TIDINGS: or The Gospel of Peace: A Series of Daily Meditations for Christian Disciples. By W. K. Tweedie, D. D. With an Introduction by H. L. Hastings. One Vol., pp. 275. Boston: H. L. Hastings, 47 Cornhill. In cloth, price 75 cents.

Devotion, or communion with God, is inspired by the reading of such books as this, unfolding, as it does, with spiritual understanding and Christian tenderness, more than a hundred of the choicest texts of Scripture, promoting sublimity of thought, comfort under trials, and a leaving behind of worldly snares and struggles, in the contemplation of the higher and better life. The variety of topics is sufficiently wide to avoid monotony of sentiment, the language is exalting, and the general tenor of the book is in harmony with the purest of Christian worship.

THE MORAL ASPECTS OF THE HIGHER CRITICISM. By H. L. Hastings, editor of the Christian. Boston: H. L. Hastings, 47 Cornhill. Paper, pp. 32. Price, 10 cents in cover; without cover, 5 cents.

We have read this tract, the fourth in Mr. Hastings' series on Higher Criticism, with pleasure. In its general exposure of the fallacies of the "higher critics," it covers nearly the entire "refuge of lies" behind which these gentry have entrenched themselves in their efforts to bring discredit on the Bible and weaken the faith of believers. But "the old book will stand"—as it has already withstood—the attacks of open infidelity or self-constituted cavillers, who, unable to discuss its spiritual import, can only see its material "errancy." In the words of a contemporary: "The great trouble is that many who profess Christianity do not know Christ."

CURRENT PERIODICALS.

The Cottage Hearth for May is a representative number of this pretty home magazine. The frontispiece is a full-page copy of a beautiful painting of Henry Bacon's "Letting Out the Flock," and the other eleven illustrations of the month are expressive and appropriate. The following stories and sketches form its contents: Ida Flournoy's Stratagem, by Laura J. Rittenhouse; A Chronicle of Miesenstein—continued; A Brigand's Daughter in Belgravia, by Chas. J. Mansfield; A Garden of Roses, by H. E. Howe; Worked Out, by Philip North; Forewarned is Forearmed, by S. E. Winfield, and A Diver's Impromptu Telephone. The usual many domestic departments of this magazine are brimful of variety and interest. Published at 25 Bromfield street, Boston, by W. A. Wilde & Co. Price, 15 cents.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY.

—In connection with the removal of the American Tract Society in New York to its new quarters at 10 East Twenty-third street, the Publishers' Weekly gives the following interesting facts about the society's work: It has issued 472,767 copies of "Pilgrim's Progress," 512,000 of "Baxter's Call to the Unconverted," 832,877 of "Dew Drops," 400,000 New Testaments, with notes, 141,000 "Pike's Persuasives to Early Piety," 181,000 "Doddridge's Rise and Progress of Religion in the Soul," 263,550 Baxter's "Saint's Rest," 339,240 "Songs for Little Ones at Home," 141,000 "Nelson on Infidelity," and 223,260 Bible dictionaries.

CONGREGATIONAL.

—The sixty-eighth annual meeting of the Home Missionary Society will be held this year in the First Congregational church of Omaha, Nebraska, June 6–8. The President of the Society Major General Oliver O. Howard, will preside. The first session will convene at half past three Wednesday afternoon, June 6. At this meeting the annual election of officers will occur, the report for the year will be made, and other business transacted. The Annual Sermon will be preached on that evening by the Rev. Samuel E. Herrick, D. D., of Mt. Vernon church, Boston, Mass.

—The Chicago Theological Seminary has just completed its thirty-sixth year. This last year is one that will be memorable in its history. Its graduating class numbered sixty-three. Somewhat more than half a million dollars was added during the year to its endowment.

CONVERTED JEWS.

—Rev. Thos. M. Chalmers recently spent a Sabbath in Chicago, and has written to the United Presbyterian anent his visit to the Jewish mission. He says: "This mission was begun in November, 1887, by Mr. Bernhard Angel, a converted Jew, and at that time a student in Chicago Theological Seminary. It has gone on advancing, until to-day it is an incorporated mission under interdenominational control, and supported entirely by voluntary contributions. Much good has been accomplished by it, and a kindlier feeling awakened among thousands of Jews toward the religion of Jesus the Nazarene.....I have spoken concerning the oldest and most important mission to the Jews in Chicago. There is another mission on the West Side, under Lutheran control. A third mission is just now commencing under a recently arrived Russian Jew, by the name of Yosenoff. There is plenty of room here for all these movements, and more. Chicago has 70,000 Jews, of whom about 500 are converted to Christ.

PRESBYTERIAN.

—The first number of the Chicago Presbyterian, a local weekly paper for the Presbytery of Chicago, has made its appearance under date of May 12. It is a nicely printed quarto of sixteen pages, and ably edited. It is styled "The McCormick Seminary Number," and gives ample space to the work of Presbyterian educational and religious institutions of Chicago and vicinity. Rev. Dr. Robert P. Kerr begins a series of short papers on Presbyterianism for the People, with a chapter on church government. The information which it supplies is of interest to members of the denomination. Published at 153–155 LaSalle street, Chicago, for $1 a year.

PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL.

—The following is the inventory of a lot of church fixin's donated to a Protestant Episcopal church in San Francisco: "An altar, linen cloth for altar, linen cloth for vestries, credence cloth, fair linen cloth, red silk cope, red (preaching) stole, white (eucharistic) stole, 2 corporals, red frontal, biretta, ciborium, altar spoon, 12 zuchettos, 2 bread canisters, hymn board, notice board, 2 amyss or tippets, sanctuary shoes, white silk tunicle, red antependium, 4 girdles, 2 cossacks, 5 crucifixes, 2 cottas, pall cover, lace for altar and cottas, prayer card and frame, thurible (brazen), boat (brazen), handglass, brushes, vestry curtains, alms basons, credence table, table for porch, alms box, white silk burse."

—The latest extravagance in ritualism is a religious service to accompany the washing of an altar. This was introduced lately at Kennington, England, just after evensong on Maundy Thursday. After all but fifty of the worshipers had withdrawn, the clergyman appeared in alb, amice, and stole, and the servers in albs; the altar ornaments were removed, and a server extinguished the altar candles. Then an attendant priest repeated a special Scripture service, with responses, about the Lord's death, while the servers used a bunch of box, or hyssop, to wash the surface of the altar with wine and water.

ROMAN CATHOLIC.

—We rejoice to learn that the duty of evangelizing the Roman Catholics is pressing upon the minds and hearts of Christians in all parts of the country. At the weekly meeting of the ministers of the Methodist Episcopal church in Cleveland, Ohio, March 19, Rev. Mr. Lozenski, of the Bohemian Methodist Episcopal church, reported that on the previous Sunday thirty Roman Catholics professed conversion. Rev. D. E. Manchester, of the Broadway Methodist Episcopal church, said that whole families of Roman Catholics, mainly Poles and Bohemians, were being converted, Not only are individuals renouncing the Roman Catholic faith, but societies and congregations that have borne the yoke of Rome too long for their happiness and prosperity are uniting with the great system of Protestant Christianity that allows liberty and freedom in the exercise of the rights of man and assures eternal salvation through Christ the Lord.—Converted Catholic for May.

—While the losses to Rome through Old Catholicism have not been as great as was hoped and feared, recent events show that the movement is still a strong force. Recently a whole Roman Catholic congregation in Leitmeritz, in Bohemia, joined the Old Catholics. In Italy the entire village of Montorfano did the same, and in Szablya, in Hungary, 650 German Roman Catholics lately became Protestants.

SOUTH AMERICAN MISSIONS.

—There are only three mission stations in Colombia; its population is 4,000,000. Ecuador, with between 1,000,000 and 2,000,000 of people, has no missionary, and never had any. Dr. Thomas B. Wood is the only Protestant pastor among the 3,000,000 of Peru. There are not more than 20 or 30 light-bearers among the 2,500,000 of Chili. Only 18 workers for the 4,000,000 people of the Argentine Republic and Patagonia. Paraguay has 5 foreign workers for its 500,000 people. The proportion is the same in Uruguay, with its 800,000. A few passing visits have been made by colporteurs of the American Bible Society among the people of Bolivia. but there is as yet no resident Protestant missionary for its 2,300,000 souls. Venezuela, with a population of 2,100,000, has only one Protestant missionary. In Brazil 14,000,000 people, and 12,000,000 of them still unevangelized. That republic has "not more than one missionary on an average to every 175,000 souls."

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. ☞A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 65 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers. 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Allyn's Ritual of Freemasonry by Avery Allyn contains the fully Illustrated Ritual of the Blue Lodge, Chapter Council and Commandery, 11 of the Scotch Rite Degrees, Several Masonic side degrees and what is termed a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, the Orange and Odd-fellows Societies. Price in cloth $5.00.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor. Profusely illustrated with explanatory engravings, and containing the ritual and work of the order for the seven degrees, including the Royal Arch. Though extensively used as an Instruction Book and one of the best in the market it is not as accurate as "Freemasonry Illustrated," the first book on catalogue. Price in cloth, $2 50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry. Containing the ceremonies of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, etc. Illustrated. Although extensively used in conferring the higher degrees, it is not only very incomplete but inaccurate especially as regards the first seven degrees, and as to the higher degrees it gives but a description and general idea of the degrees rather than the full ritual. Price in cloth, $1.25; Paper covers, 75c.

Look to the East. A Ritual of the first three Masonic Degrees by Ralph Lester. Price in cloth $2.00. Notwithstanding the high price this book is very inferior in every way to Freemasonry Illustrated or The Handbook of Freemasonry at a quarter the price.

Ecce Orienti. The Complete Standard Ritual of the First Three Masonic Degrees in Cypher, with complete Floor Charts of Initiating, Passing and Raising a Candidate. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Cabala. The Complete Standard Ritual of the Chapter Masonic Degrees; 4th to 7th inclusive, in Cypher. Giving the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master and Royal Arch. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Council of the Orient. The Complete Standard Ritual of Council Masonic Degrees in Cypher, 8th to 10th inclusive. Giving the Degrees of Royal Master, Select Master and Super Excellent Master. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

Knights of the Orient. The complete Ritual of the Commandery Masonic Degrees, Knights of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta, 11th to 13th degrees. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

The Mystic Shrine Illustrated. An Illustrated Ritual of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. This is a Side Masonic degree conferred only on Knights Templar and on Thirty-two degree Masons. 15 cts. each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion. 5 cents each.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover. 50cts.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Odd-fellowship: Its History and its Work. By President J. Blanchard. A new pamphlet with cover. Postpaid. 5 cts.

OTHER RITUALS.

Revised Knights of Pythias Illustrated. An exact copy of the new Official Ritual Adopted by the Supreme Lodge of the World, with the Secret work added and fully Illustrated. In cloth 50 cts. Paper cover 25 cts.

Knights of the Orient Illustrated. The full Illustrated Ritual of Ancient Order of the Orient, or the Oriental degree, This is a side degree conferred mostly in Knights of Pythias lodges. 15 cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and council. 25cts each.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin. Illustrated with engravings. 25 cents each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords etc. 15cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated, "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each.

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

Knights of Labor Illustrated. ("Adelphon Kruptos.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

Folly, Expense and Danger of Secret Societies. By Pres. C. A. Blanchard. This booklet of 32 pages is a general discussion of the secret orders, whether religious, political, industrial, insurance or social. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Disloyal Secret Oaths. By Joseph Cook, Boston. He quotes the law of Vermont which makes the administration of the Masonic oaths illegal. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing? An address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891. W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's, too." A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void: or Freemasonry Self-Convicted. This is a book for the times. The design of the author is to refute the arguments of those who claim that the oaths of Freemasonry are binding upon those who take them. 207 pages. Postpaid, 40 cents each.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the lodge when S. H. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry. 15 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 398 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Masonry a Work of Darkness, adverse to Christianity, and inimical to republican government. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian) a seceding Mason of 21 degrees. 15 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. J. Day Brownlee. In reply to a Masonic Oration by Rev. Dr. Mayer, Wellsville, Ohio. 5 cents each.

Masonic Outrages. Compiled by Rev. H. H. Hinman. Showing Masonic assault on lives of seceders, on reputation, and on free speech; its interference with justice in courts, etc. Postpaid, 20 cents.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife, of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

A Booklet of 107 pages, which includes "The Martyr's Own Monument," by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association; "Christian Politics," by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure; "The Mysterious Machine: Was it Lawn-mower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what?" by Prof. E. D. Bailey, of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government. Postpaid 25 cts.

Jonathan Blanchard's Sermons and Addresses. Select discourses of the first editor of the Cynosure. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of living reform, Secret Societies, The Sabbath, Temperance, National Reform, Christian Education, Christian Socialism, The Bible, etc. A book everybody should read. 12mo. Fine photogravure portrait. Price, 75 cents.

American Handbook and Citizen Manual. By Manlove N. Butler. Contents: Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement. Over 200 pages. Paper, single copy, 40c.

Image of the Beast: A Secret Empire; or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy. By Rev. Richard Horton. Third edition. 200 pages. Cloth. Price, 60 cents.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages. Paper cover. 25cts each.

Eminent Men on Secret Societies. Composed of "Washington Opposed to Secret Societies," "Judge Whitney's Defence," "The Mystic Tie," "Narratives and Arguments," the "Anti-mason's Scrap-Book" and "Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry as Proved in the New Berlin Trials," 398 pages, cloth, $1.00.

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. H. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear arraignment of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Prof. J. G. Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies. A most convincing argument against fellowshiping Freemasons in the Christian church. 10 cents each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have. 5 cents each.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher. In cloth, 35cts each; paper covers, 15cts each.

Between Two Opinions: or the Question of the Hour. By Miss E. E. Flagg author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages, cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William M'Nary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury; "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion," and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Stories of the Gods. By I. R. B. Arnold. Brief sketches from the mythology of Rome, Greece, Egypt, India, Persia, Phrygia, Scandinavia, Africa and America, showing the relations and unity of past and present systems. The idolatrous worship of the Masonic lodge is thus clearly seen and understood. Postpaid, 10 cents.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50cts each.

HOME AND HEALTH.

THE BANE OF TIGHT DRESSING.

Dr. Nathan Allen, of Lowell, who made careful investigation into the facts, said in the Popular Science Monthly that while in 1850 it was the exception where an American mother could not nurse her children, it was then (1883) in Massachusetts a question whether one-half of them could do so, and it is safe to say that there has been no improvement since the above date. Why this inability to nurse children? First, the waists of the women of our country had never been compressed and elongated to the extent they have been since 1850. The irritation and compression caused by corsets, stays, and tight dresses applied to young ladies, sometimes cause indurations of the breasts, which, when these organs begin to secrete nourishment for the child, inflame and abscesses result, which interfere with nursing; and then the compression of stays, corsets, etc., often causes a retraction of the organs through which the child derives its nourishment, which renders it difficult for the child to nurse. Palpitation and other derangements of the heart's action often result from tight dressing. Second, there is often a want of lung capacity to properly renovate and purify the blood, owing to tight dressing, and an inability to digest the food required to sustain the vitality of the body, owing to the compressed state of the stomach and bowels. Third, owing to the want of an adequate base for the due support of the head, shoulders, and arms, resulting from the contraction of the waist and abdomen, it is difficult for our women to take the active exercise and to do the active work which are necessary to give the vitality and strength required by a mother of children. "The workers shall inherit the earth."—From "A Medical Warning," by John Ellis, M. D.

No one in ordinary health need become bald or gray, if he will follow sensible treatment. We advise cleanliness of the scalp and the use of Hall's Hair Renewer.

WONDERFUL GROWTH AND POPULARITY.

How Enterprise When Guided by Honest Methods is Bound to Succeed.

A MANUFACTURER WHO SAVES THE BUYER THE DEALER'S ENORMOUS PROFIT.

We have been running for some time in another column the advertisement of the Oxford Manufacturing Co., of 338 to 334 Wabash ave., Chicago, Ills. A few years ago they conceived the idea of selling their goods direct to the consumer at but a slight advance above cost of making and thus increase their sales and enable them to add to the size of their factory. With a bright, pushing and upright manager at the head of this establishment the plan proved a most successful and popular one. Thousands of their machines were sold annually—sale increasing each year, and are now to be found in every city, town and hamlet of the United States. The name "Oxford" has become a byword in the household. There is no greater help to a woman than a good sewing machine. To be without it is to be willfully deprived of the immense advantage of one of the greatest of all inventions. A machine once bought is a perpetual treasure. It demands no wages, occasions no expense or trouble and is always ready at a moment's notice to render the work of the laborious housewife tenfold more efficient and expeditious. Some machines combine the best ideas and suggestions which have been so abundantly introduced in this remarkable mechanism.

A machine which exhibits in liberal combination all the best features introduced is the Oxford Sewing Machine, with lock-stitch, shuttle running light and quiet. These machines have the following important features: Cheapness, perfect, self-adjusting and graduated tension, are under control of the operator and are always positive in their working. They are entirely self-threading in all points including the shuttle. The needle is self-setting, the attachments are quickly and easily placed and fastened. The shuttle has an easy oscillating motion, causing it to keep its proper place against the race. Their Oxford No. 14 and Columbia machines, with attachments, were awarded the medal premium at the World's Columbian Exposition, Chicago.

A description of their Baby Carriages, ranging in price from $2.75 upward, and their Bicycles, ranging from $12 upwards, also their Organs at lowest prices, proves equally interesting and can be had by applying for one of their free catalogues, which is sent on application, and quotes both cash and time prices.

Ivy Poisoning

Eight Years of Suffering

Perfect Cure by Hood's Sarsaparilla

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"Dear Sirs:—We have tried Hood's Sarsaparilla and find it to be all you claim for it. My wife was poisoned by ivy when a young woman, and for eight years was troubled every season with the breaking out and terrible itching and burning. I thought hers was as bad a case as anyone ever had. She was in this distressing condition every year until she began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, which has effected a perfect cure, without leaving any scars, and she has had No Sign of the Poison Since.

She is well and hearty. I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla after the grip with good results, and have also given it to our four children. We are all pictures of perfect health and owe it to Hood's Sarsaparilla." J. C. FREEMAN, Vandalia, Illinois.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy any other instead.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Hood's Pills are hand made, and perfect in proportion and appearance. 25c. per box.

The Nonesuch Professor,

In his Meridian Splendor. By William Secker (Puritan). With an introduction by Theo. L. Cuyler, D. D. 16 mo, $1.00.

"It is a mine of sparkling gems."—Presbyterian Observer.

"A sheaf of golden grain, ripened by grace, and sweet with the flavor of rare simplicity and holy wisdom."—N. Y. Observer.

"It is a searching book."—Christian Intelligencer.

"This is a wonderful book. At whatever page you open it, your eye lights upon pithy aphorisms that combine the sententiousness of Benjamin Franklin with the sweet, holy savor of Samuel Rutherford. It contains hundreds of bright seed thoughts."—Rev. T. L. Cuyler, D. D

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

MY EXPERIENCES WITH SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY A TRAVELER.

With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,

but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chica.

—freed from their seeds and skins, as fresh and sweet as when first plucked, are the grapes in

SANITAS GRAPE FOOD

Concentrated and Perfectly Pure.

It's a royal drink and (you wouldn't know it except by the good it does)—a medicine. It clears the vocal organs, soothes the nerves, purifies the blood and nourishes the weakest stomach.

Not a taint of alcohol is in Sanitas Grape Food—it's suited for table or sick-room.

A pint bottle	costs 75 cents	at your grocer's	or your druggist's.	Makes one-half gallon.

A Booklet about it mailed Free.

THE CALIFORNIA GRAPE FOOD CO.,
Los Gatos, Cal.

General Eastern Agency, 145 Broadway, N. Y.
General Pacific Agency, 408 Sutter St., San Francisco.
Chicago Selling Agent, Edwin E. Hills, 70 State St.

A NEW AND WONDERFUL BOOK.

TOUCHING INCIDENTS AND REMARKABLE ANSWERS TO PRAYER,

AS RELATED BY

John Wesley, Bishop Simpson, John B. Gough, Edward Payson, James Caughey, Bishop Bowman, John Knox, Martin Luther, C. H. Spurgeon, Wm. Carvosso, S. A. Keen, A. B. Earle, B. Fay Mills, D. L. Moody, Guy Fox, Frances E. Willard, Geo. Muller, James H. Potts, Chas. G. Finney, T. De Witt Talmadge, and many others.

This new book is meeting with universal favor.

OVER 3,000 SOLD IN LESS THAN THREE WEEKS.

Read a few of the good things said of it:

Western Christian Advocate: "It is simply wonderful. No one can read the book without having his faith in prayer greatly strengthened."

Union Signal: "Its high religious tone, its fascinating spirit, and the high rank of its contributors, make it a strong faith tonic and an inspiration to prevailing prayer."

B. Fay Mills: "A wonderful book—an excellent book."

Chaplain C. C. McCabe: "This book will remind the reader that there are Elijahs still upon the earth."

Bishop Wm. Taylor: "True to its title."

This grand, inspiring book sent postpaid for only $1. Ministers 75 cents.

Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

Any who wish the agency or general agency for the book, should address the author, Rev. S B. Shaw.
Near Grand Rapids. DUTTON, MICH.

JONATHAN BLANCHARD'S SERMONS AND ADDRESSES.

Select discourses of the late editor of the Cynosure and leader in our reform. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of

LIVING REFORM.

Secret Societies,
The Sabbath,
Temperance,
National Reform,
Christian Education,
Christian Socialism,
The Bible, Etc., Etc.

A BOOK EVERYBODY SHOULD READ

12mo. Fine Photogravure Portrait.
Price, 75 Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

RECENT PUBLICATIONS OF FLEMING H. REVELL.

Modern Ideas of Evolution.

As related to Revelation and Science. By Sir William Dawson, L. L. D., F. R. S., etc. 12 mo, cloth, $1.50.

In popular style, a testing by scientific facts and principles, the validity of that multiform and brilliant philosophy of the universe, which has taken so deep a hold of the science and literature of our times.

The New World of Central Africa

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness; with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. Maps, Portraits and numerous engravings. 537 pages, 12 mo, $2.00.

This comprehensive volume is as fascinating as the most entertaining romance. Its vivid portrayal of the dark side of African history makes one's blood tingle, while its earnest appeals create an inspiring sympathy with the effort to evangelize its teeming millions.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

Matthew Henry's Commentary.

An entirely new large type edition of this inimitable Commentary, in six large 8vo. volumes, fine cloth, $15.00; or, in half Morocco, $18.00.

"Biblical students who are most familiar with the very best commentaries of this generation are most able to appreciate the unfading freshness, the clear analysis, the spiritual force, the quaint humor, and the evangelical richness of Matthew Henry's Exposition of the Old and New Testaments."—New York Observer.

"First among the mighty for general usefulness we are bound to mention the man whose name is a household word—MATTHEW HENRY. He is the most pious and pithy, sound and sensible, suggestive and sober, terse and trustworthy."—Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

The Present Tenses of the Blessed Life.

By Rev. F. B. Meyer. 32 mo, 50 cents.

"It is sufficient to say its one direct aim is the present enjoyment of the precious promises. Mr. Meyer's earnest and persuasive teaching in this direction is admirably condensed in these brief chapters."

BY THE SAME AUTHOR:

Christian Living. Cloth, 32 mo, 50 cents.

"A more suggestive and helpful volume it would not be easy to name."—Christian Leader.

The Shepherd Psalm. Cloth, 32 mo, 50c

"This is a gem."—Illustrated Christian Weekly

"It is a little book which hundreds of devout hearts will enjoy,"—Congregationalist.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

OTHER WORKS BY C. H. SPURGEON:

Feathers for Arrows; Or, Illustrations for Teachers and Preachers. 12 mo, $1.

"This work covers a wide range of subjects. The metaphors are always striking and frequently brilliant, while the truths that they illustrate are such as have always formed the staple of Mr. Spurgeon's discourses. A choicer collection of illustrations we do not know."—Freeman.

Spurgeon's Gems. Being a selection of brilliants from his discourses. 12 mo, $1.

The Golden Alphabet. Being a Devotional Commentary on the One Hundred and Nineteenth Psalm. 12 mo, $1.00.

"Mr. Spurgeon brings out the truths and beauties of this wonderful Psalm so as to set a rich feast before the reader. As a practical commentator on the Psalms, Spurgeon has no equal."—Presbyterian Banner.

"This commentary is written in quite the happiest vein of its popular author, and the devotional spirit throughout is intense and elevating."—Occident.

Gleanings Among the Sheaves. 18 mo, 60c.

All of Grace. An earnest word with those seeking the way of life. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

According to Promise; Or, the Lord's Dealings with His chosen People. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Christmas Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve New Year Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth. 50 cents.

"Preachers may get aid in preparing Easter or funeral sermons from this volume. Good to present to those who have lost loved ones."—National Baptist.

Twelve Striking Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Soul-Winning Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Selected by Mr. Spurgeon as the twelve sermons under which there has been the most marked and permanent success.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

FARM NOTES.

TO RAISE GOOD POTATOES.

The best crop of potatoes I ever raised was by ploughing the ground to the depth of about seven inches, and then pulverizing well with the harrow, then planting in rows about three and one-half feet and in hills one and one-half feet to two feet, two to three pieces of potato, with one or two eyes to the piece, cut from fair-sized potatoes of the Early Rose variety, and covered to the depth of about three inches. Just before they were ready to come up, I gave them a good harrowing, and then in a few days covered them to the depth of three or four inches with rotten straw and coarse manure, which retained the moisture and also prevented weeds from growing, and the few that did put in an appearance were very quickly and easily pulled by hand. No other cultivation was required. The yield was immense, of very large and nice potatoes, and easily harvested, as they were near the surface. Occasionally one would be sunburned where the mulching had got removed from the hills. After the crop is harvested the mulching is ready to plough under for the next crop. —S. C. Cook, in New York Witness.

THE VALUE OF WOOD ASHES.

All the ashes I get from my stoves go into the hen-house, which is cleaned out once a week, or oftener if I can spare the time, and scattered over my meadows. I bought a farm on which was an orchard of stunted-looking trees, and the ground around them was very mossy and weedy, but by giving it a good dressing of ashes and hen-house litter it soon produced a heavy crop of timothy. Last year I bought over one hundred bushels of ashes for ten cents a bushel, besides what I had of my own, and strewed them over my meadow, also on one piece of land which I sowed to oats—all with good results. I make a practice of throwing coals and ashes in for my pigs two or three times a week, and if any one doubts that the pigs relish them, let such ones stand by and hear the pigs grunt their satisfaction while crunching the coals. They help to make good, sound, healthy pork.—Correspondent of the N. Y. Witness.

"Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething" softens the gums, reduces Inflammation, allays pain and cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

THE OBJECTS, WORK AND SECRET RITUAL of "The Nobles of the Mystic Shrine" have just been issued in a revised and enlarged edition. Price, in paper, 25 cents. This new order of Freemasonry, now so popular in this country as the basis of social hilarity among members of the higher degrees, claims to have originated in Arabia, and was revived in Egypt, and brought to America from France. It is interlarded with Mohammedan terms and worship; and its original objects as defined in its ritual, was inquisitorial and barbarous. Its prayers are addressed to "Allah," instead of the G. A. O. T. U., and it is quite as un-Christian as the devotees of the blue lodge would have it. The abridged edition is still sold for 15 cents. Address the National Christian Association, 221 West Madison street, Chicago.

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address Box 277. S. C. KIMBALL, Newmarket, N. H.

For Stomach

Bowel,
Liver Complaints, and Headache, use

AYER'S

CATHARTIC PILLS

They are purely vegetable, sugar-coated, speedily dissolved,
and easy to take.
Every dose

Effective

AMERICAN HANDBOOK AND CITIZEN MANUAL.

BY

MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
WM. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Chic

THE TWO-FOLD GIFT
of the Holy Ghost,
BY REV. THOS. K. DOTY,
Author of Lessons in Holiness.

240 pp. Price postpaid.....65cts.

The design of this book is, in plain language, to designate the place of the Holy Ghost in both the Godhead and the work of Salvation. Especially to show that Entire Santification is wrought in the heart by the Baptism of Holy Ghost; and that the Epoch of the Baptism is identical with that of his Advent in his Indwelling Personalty. The agency of the Holy Ghost in the Life, and in carrying on the work of the Gospel, is given particular attention.

TITLES TO THE CHAPTERS:

1. A Summary. 2. The Holy Ghost a Person. 3. The New Testament Designating Terms. 4. The Scriptural View. 5. The Holy Ghost is God. 6. Blasphemy Against the Holy Ghost. 7. The Trinity of God. 8. The Apostolic Benediction. 9. The Worship of the Holy Ghost. 10. The Dispensations. 11. The First Dispensation. 12. The Second Dispenseation. 13. Holiness—Sinning. 14. "The Sin of the World." 15. Final Deliverance from Sin. 16. The Day of the Holy Ghost. 17. Jesus and the Holy Ghost. 18 and 19. The Epoch of the Holy Ghost. 20. The Anointing. 21. The Baptism of the Holy Ghost. 22. The Baptism of Fire. 23. The Two-Fold Experiences of the Holy Ghost. 24. Fellowship of the Holy Ghost. 25. "In the Spirit." 26. Several Scriptural Terms Considered. 27. Pentecost. 28. Inspiration—Prophecy. 29. Spiritual Leading and Teaching. 30. The Gifts of the Spirit. 31. "Praying in the Holy Ghost." 31 and 32. Power.

This book is creating quite a stir in religious circles. The original, bold and convincing manner of presenting the subject, has forced the press to comment upon the book, either adversely or favorably, generally the latter. We give a few OPINIONS:

Bible Standard and Gospel Record: "This book is very compact, scarcely a superfluous sentence in the whole book. The manner of treating the questions involved is both clear and scriptural. .....The effect of the book will be to deepen thought and increase knowledge and, in the end, deepen piety."

Evangelical Messenger: "Brother Thomas K. Doty has written a book which we take pleasure in commending to all devout readers who enjoy all spiritual things. The subject is so important, and the treatment of it so timely, that we may be pardoned for calling attention to it thus prominently. We, at least have been greatly interested, and gratefully acknowledge that we have also been decidedly profited by persuing it .....Brother Doty writes with an incisive pen, in a clear, lucid style, often epigrammatical and with great force. He is evidently deeply impressed with the truth of what he writes and demands the respect even where he does not gain the intellectual assent of his readers. Withal the book is written in a kindly, candid spirit, rather didactic than polemical, and is calculated to help the reader and not to rouse his opposition, as is the case with so many books which have been written upon this and kindred subjects. The theological views expressed are orthodox, and in some cases the argument is fresh in matter, and certainly fresh in form throughout."

Christian Cynosure: "His book is one of the most excellent, instructive and practical of any that have come to our knowledge. The exposition of the Scriptures concerning the personality and work of the Spirit is very clear, able and comforting. There is much dogmatising on these topics by Christians who never fully felt the power of the Spirit's work, or are not living in gracious fellowship with him. To all such and to those who have not yet learned what gifts the Lord is waiting to bestow on his people we heartily commend the careful reading of this volume."

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

THE GUIDING HAND;

—OR—

PROVIDENTIAL DIRECTION.

—)o(—

Illustrated by authentic instances of Relief and Deliverance in times of Trouble and Perplexity; of Direction through Dreams and Mental Impressions, and of Providential Guidance, resulting in Conversion. Recorded and collected by

H. L. HASTINGS,
(Editor of "The Christian.")

This striking work is divided into three parts as follows:

(1) Providences in Relief and Deliverances. (2) Dreams and Impressions. (3) Conversions.

The "Guiding Hand" contains nearly 400 pages. It is really a handsome book, printed on heavy book paper, from large open type, good for the eyes, and artistically and durably bound in fine cloth, with fancy panels. Price, $1.50.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

THE MYSTIC SHRINE

Illustrated.

THE FULL

ILLUSTRATED RITUAL

OF THE

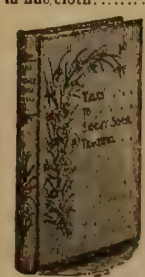
Nobles of the Mystic Shrine

PRICE 15 CENTS, EACH.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago

Talks to Sunday-School Teachers.

By Rev. J. G. Terrill. 12mo, 200 pages, bound in fine cloth.....75



This book is the result of twenty-five years of experience in Sunday-school and treats of: 1. The Sunday-school organization and management. 2. Methods of work. 3. Studies in human nature. 4. Rules of Interpretation as applied to the Bible. 5. Illustrative exercises for primary classes and children's meetings. In the style of presentation, subject matter and price of the book, the wants of the officers and teachers of the ordinary Sunday-school are kept in view.

S. S. Times:—A very comprehensive book. N. Y. Independent:—A sensible manual for the average Sunday-school teacher. Evan. Mess.:—We have been very favorably impressed with the book, because it is so intensely practical. The subject is systematically treated, and leaders of teacher's meetings can not do better than adopt it as a text-book and devote half an hour of each session to teaching the theory and practice of teaching as here systematized. Christian at Work:—Any school that will adopt this book generally and carry forward its work or doctrines here laid down will not be long in developing into a model school and reaping the harvest of a rich fruitage. Herald and Presbyter:—These Talks are well attested in their profitableness and excellence. Buffalo Advocate:—A plain, practical, common sense book on a very important subject. The author has had wide experience in this field of work. He knows thoroughly the ground over which he would lead others, and possesses the happy faculty of packing a great deal of valuable information as to matter and manner of teaching into this little hand-book. We commend it to the attention of all Sunday-school workers. Religious Telescope:—We are pleased with the plan and treatment of the subjects throughout, and are sure that the diligent Sunday-school teacher who longs for more thorough equipment, will find in this book a helper of great value. Illustrated Christian Weekly:—The author talks from observation and experience, and talks well.

Sunday School Publications.

The Pearl (Mo.)	Pr. Qr.	3 c.	Sunshine (Mo.)	Pr. Qr.	2 c.
The Lily	" "	3 "	Pure Words	" "	3 "
Light & L	Scholar's Qrly.	3 "	Light & L	Inf Cl. wk.	6 "
	Teacher's "	5 "	" "	Lesson Leaf "	1½ "
Golden Treasures		1 "	L. & L. Primary Qly		4 "

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTIONS.

The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, & Sunshine, each Pr. Yr. 25c
The four to one address " 75c
Teacher's Quarterly Pr. Yr. 25c
Scholar's " 20c
L. & L. Infant Class, weekly, 30c

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

A. L. O. E. Intermediate Library.

Selected from the numerous productions of this world-renowned writer as being those of rare merit. 12 vols., 12mo., cloth elegant, each 75c; set.....9.00

An Eden in England.	Life in Eagle's Nest.
Ned Franks.	White Bear's Den.
Sheer Off.	Fairy Spider's Web.
Braid of Chords.	Lake in the Woods.
Silver Keys.	Seven Perils Passed.
Grace Vernon.	Hartley Brothers.

The Jessica Series. By Hesba Stretton. 6 vols., handsome bindings, cloth 50c each, or per set 2.10

Jessica's First Prayer.	Friends till Death.
No Place Like Home.	A Miserable Christmas
Under the Old Roof.	A Night and a Day.

A. L. O. E. Junior Library. Adapted to the young folks. 7 vols., 12mo., cloth each 60c; the set.....4 20

Claremont Tales.	A Wreath of Smoke.
Christian Conquests.	Pomegranates from Punjab.
Tales Illustrative of Parables.	Little Bullets from Batala.
The Battle of Life.

The Hesba Stretton Series. 8 vols., elegant cloth bound, per set.....4 80

Cassy.	King's Servant.
Lost Gip.	Alone in London.
Max Kromer.	Little Meg's Children
Storm of Life	Crew of the Dolphin.

Works of Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

Sermon Notes. Covering all the Bible from Genesis to Revelation. 4 vols.....4.00
Feathers for Arrows. A volume of Choice Extracts, 12mo., cloth.....1.00
Twelve Striking Sermons..... 50
Twelve Soul Winning Sermons, ... 50
Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection 50
Twelve New Year Sermons..... 50
Twelve Christmas Sermons..... 50

Notes by C. H. M.

On Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy.

Mr. D. L. Moody says of these books: "They have been to me a very key to the Scriptures."

Deuteronomy is issued in two volumes, the others complete in one volume each.

Separate volumes may be had if desired.

The complete set in six volumes, covering over 2,300 pages, is offered at the reduced price of 75c per vol. or $4.50 per set

Struck by Lightning.

A true and thrilling narrative of one who was struck by lightning; with incidents, experiences and anecdotes for old and young. By Rev. E. Owen.

With Striking Illustrations.

Beautifully bound in cloth, with title stamped in gold on side and back.....50c.
Paper cover.....30c.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

Plan for Evading the Judgment—Request to be Whipped to Death—Learning to Swear—Alarmed by a Rattlesnake—Fall from a Building—Struck by Lightning—Converted—Sanctified—Called to Preach—First Effort—Casting out a Devil—Protracted Meeting on "Satan's Premises"—First Circuit—Revival in "Haying"—S. Hill Revival—Sisters' Quarrel Settled—Accused of Fortune-Telling—Souls Saved—Dreams—Too near Hell to Spend Time with—A Sceptic Awakened—Public Talk with a Universalist—A Chair Thrown at the Minister—Revival in Berlin—A Methodist Church of Baptist Converts—A Noisy Stage Passenger Quieted—Preaching on the Deck of a Steamboat—A Pleasure Trip—Two Overboard—Revival by Torch-light—A Fiddler Saved—A Slanderer Humbled—Bar-room Discussion—Saved by Expulsion from the Church—Dancing with the Devil—Answering a Fool According to his Folly—Raps for Spirit Rappings—Short Debate with a Restorationist—"Open Rebuke"—An Unspeakable Blessing.

COMMENDATIONS.

American Wesleyan: "Thrilling as a romance, and true to the last syllable. No private library or Sunday-school should be without a copy."

Phonographic Monthly, N. Y.: "Calculated to throw light into the dark places of orthodoxy."

Earnest Christian: "A true narrative of instructive events."

Lay Evangelist: "Quite entertaining and neatly gotten up."

Free Methodist: "Meeting with universal favor. Intensely interesting. We have read, laughed and cried, and shall try it again."

Sermons of Rev. John McNeill,

12mo. cloth, 416 pages, $1.50.

The fame of this Scottish Spurgeon, as he is very generally called, is becoming as wide-spread as the English tongue. The secret of his power over the masses, has been discussed on both sides of the Atlantic. If one may judge from these printed sermons the secret lies in a homely and pointed putting of the old truths of the Gospel in plain Anglo-saxon. There is evidence of study, but more the study of human nature, and particularly the human heart, than that of books, other than the Book of books—with this volume Mr. McNeill is evidently in love. With unquestioned faith he believes the writen word, and preaches with an earnestness born of conviction

Love, the Supreme Gift:

THE GREATEST THING IN THE WORLD.

The Perfected Life;

THE GREATEST NEED IN THE WORLD.

Both by Prof. Henry Drummond. Bound in chaste white vellum paper, each 20 cts.

These are not to be judged by the size, unless rubies are counted for the weight thereof. The first has been very largely circulated, the second is now only just published and deserves the same wide reading—both are gems such as are only found at rare intervals. If you have not read them, do so at once, you will be a better man or woman for the reading.

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

Prof. J. G. Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies. A most convincing argument against fellowshiping Freemasons in the Christian church. 10 cents each.

Royal Baking Powder

Absolutely Pure

A cream of tartar baking powder. Highest of all in leavening strength. — Latest United States Government Food Report.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO.,
106 Wall St., N. Y.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

CHICAGO.

Bankers, brokers and inventors report no improvement in the general business situation and are correspondingly depressed.

Election Commissioners Keenan, Hutchings and Schomer were fined $1,000 each for contempt by Judge Chetlain for refusing to turn over ballots to the grand jury.

Health officials claim to have positive evidence that persons suffering from small-pox are shipped here from other points.

Encouraging reports were made at the annual meeting of the directors of the Illinois School of Agriculture and Manual Training for Boys.

A receiver is asked for the Continental Investment and Loan Society by stockholders, who allege a $34,000 deficit.

Mayor Hopkins has ordered the removal, within ten days, of the Sixteenth street tracks of the Illinois Central, the assistant corporation counsel finding they were laid without authority.

Indictments are said to have been found against Aldermen McGillen, Coughlin and Brennan by the partisan grand jury which is investigating alleged election frauds.

The faculty of Northwestern college is said to have determined students shall wear the cap and gown on state occasions, and a rebellion is threatened.

Chicago bank clearings for the week were $84,693,952, against $100,415,879 the corresponding week in 1893.

COUNTRY.

William A. Simsrott, grand secretary and treasurer of the Switchmen's Mutual Aid Association, is mysteriously missing.

Five persons were killed, two fatally hurt, and one slightly injured by a cyclone at Kunkle, Ohio.

State Sunday-school workers, in annual session at Peoria, selected Elgin as the next place for the State convention.

Nathaniel P. Crane, aged 84, and Mrs. Chloe Gibson, aged 78, were married at Belvidere, Ill. The officiating minister is 82 years of age.

Plans have been formulated whereby the Pacific railroads may liquidate their debt to the government in fifty years.

Hailstones 11 inches in circumference fell at Decatur, Ill. Much damage was done to windows and vegetation.

Leading Texas lines have agreed to join the direct western roads in advancing rates to tariff May 26.

Through the efforts of the citizens' arbitration committee all differences between the Great Northern and its employes have been finally adjusted.

In his annual address to the Illinois Homeopathic Association at Quincy, Ill., President Crawford urged higher medical education for the masses.

Members of three Logansport, Indiana, families, twelve persons in all, were poisoned by eating cheese. Three will probably die.

Six hundred families were made homeless and $500,000 damage done by a conflagration which originated in the grand stand of the Boston ball park while a game was in progress.

E. S. Beach, W. C. Truesdell, J. F. Browne and Franklin Whithall, Harvard College students, were downed in Boston harbor, their sailboat capsizing.

Four persons lost their lives in the storm which swept over Minnesota and western Wisconsin. Railway traffic was demoralized and great damage done.

In the Congregational church at East Northfield, Mass., Emma R. Moody, daughter of the evangelist, was married to Arthur P. Fitt, of Chicago.

Judge McConnell has ordered the Garfield Park race track and its effects sold to satisfy judgments amounting to about $6,000.

Seven men were killed and a number injured in a collision between Chesapeake and Ohio trains in Standing Rock tunnel.

Encouraging reports were made at the State convention of Sunday-school workers at Peoria, Ill.

A meeting of the leaders of the commonweal is to be held soon at Des Moines, Iowa, to formulate a plan for a national organization to perpetuate the movement.

A discussion of the relations of the theological seminaries to the church occupied the time of the Presbyterian general assembly.

The weekly statement of the New York banks showed a decrease of $1,870,300 in the reserve and of $1,635,450 in the surplus.

Andrew J. Graham, author of the system of shorthand which bears his name, died at his home in Orange, N. J. He was in his 64th year.

Ex-General Master Workman T. V. Powderly, A. W. Wright and P. H. Quinn have been expelled from the Knights of Labor for plotting the order's destruction.

A plan of Iowa Knights of Labor to affiliate with the State Federation of Labor was vetoed by Organizer Van Der Muellen.

Heavy rains have caused disastrous floods throughout Pennsylvania. At Williamsport, the boom which contained $1,000,000 worth of timber, gave way.

FOREIGN.

A strong interest in England desires the disestablishment of the church in Wales. English clergymen have issued a manifesto against the movement.

George Griffiths, of London, has completed a trip around the world in sixty-four days eleven hours and twenty minutes.

British royal commissioners to the World's Fair, in their official report, pay a glowing tribute to the great enterprise.

Louis Clovis Bonaparte, a grandnephew of the first Napoleon, died at London.

Portugal has asked the mediation of England in the dispute with Brazil caused by the granting of asylum to rebels.

Brazilian government forces were defeated by insurgents near Iguazu. A hundred and forty men were killed.

Emile Henri, the anarchist who threw the bomb in the Cafe Terminus, was guillotined at Paris. He died shouting "Vive l'anarchie!"

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances of money to the Cynosure from May 14 to May 19:

Seth Wardner, J T Cullor, R Dickinson, Rev J R Wylie, S Kirkpatrick, E Avery, J H Fake, L B Skeel, Rev R Meyer, G P Schmidt, S C Dodd, S Rorabaugh, S S Arthur, J Dunlap, J W Margrave, M Fitch, A Geil, D Edgar.

The vast facilities of the J. C. Ayer Co., of Lowell, Mass., enable them to place The Superior Blood-purifier—Ayer's Sarsaparilla—within easy reach of the poorest invalid. Don't be induced to take a "cheap" substitute. Always remember that the best is the cheapest.

Anæmia

is depleted blood. The blood lacks richness and the cheeks lack color. The whole system lacks the nourishment of the Cream of Cod-liver Oil. This nourishing, palatable food restores a healthy color, enriches the blood and tones up the whole system. Physicians, the world over, endorse it.

Scott's Emulsion

Don't be deceived by Substitutes!

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All druggists.

CINCINNATI CLEVELAND CHICAGO BIG 4 ROUTE ST. LOUIS RY. CO.

SUMMER TRIPS To The

MOUNTAINS, LAKES AND SEA SHORE

SHOULD BE ARRANGED VIA THE

BIG FOUR ROUTE

TO SECURE ALL THE

COMFORTS OF HOME

WHILE TRAVELING.

WRITE FOR TOURIST BOOK.

E. O. McCORMICK, Pass. Traffic Mgr. | D. B. MARTIN, Gen'l Pass & Tkt Agt

CINCINNATI.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2	56⅛	@	58⅛
Winter No. 2	54⅛	@	55⅛
Corn—No. 2	37	@	39⅛
Oats—No. 2	33¼	@	37¼
Rye—No. 2	45	@	48
Bran per ton	11	@	12 00
Hay—Timothy	9 00	@	10 50
Butter, medium to best	12	@	16
Cheese	06	@	11
Beans	1 25	@	1 90
Eggs, fresh			09⅛
Seeds—Timothy (100 lbs)	3 90	@	4 20
Flax	1 09⅛	@	1 11
Clover (100 lbs.)	8 50	@	9 00
Broom corn (per ton)	30 00	@	70 00
Potatoes, (bu.)	55	@	68
Hides—Green to dry flint	02¼	@	06⅛
Lumber—Common			15 50
Wool (unwashed)	12	@	26
Cattle—Choice to extra	3 40	@	4 35
Common to good	2 70	@	4 10
Hogs	4 65	@	5 00
Sheep	2 50	@	4 65

NEW YORK.

Wheat No. 2	58⅛	@	58⅞
Corn No 2	42⅛	@	43⅜
Oats	38⅜	@	43
Rye	55	@	56
Eggs, Western fresh	12	@	13⅛
Butter	09	@	17
Wool	15	@	26

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle	2 00	@	4 25
Hogs	4 50		4 80

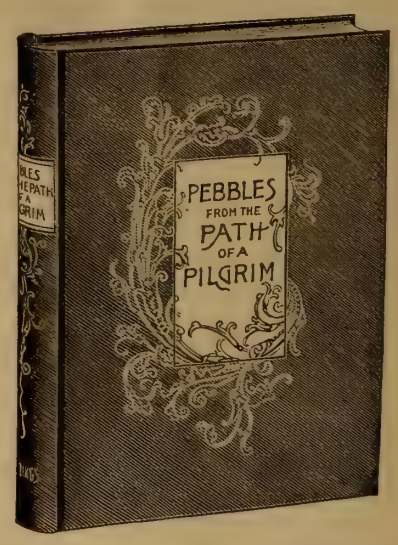
Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp.

LORD & THOMAS,
NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING
45 RANDOLPH STREET,
CHICAGO.

Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim.

—BY—

MRS. H. L. HASTINGS.



This remarkable collection of stories from the eventful life of a Green Mountain girl has been pronounced "more fascinating than any romance." A member of Congress writes: "'Pebbles' has been read by me with great interest. The introductory chapter has followed me into dreams. My copy is read to pieces by the family, and borrowed to death by the neighbors." An editor says: "Surely the faith that 'obtained promises, wrought righteousness, and stopped the mouth of lions,' must have been given in large measure to the writer of this truly remarkable book....No family library should be without it." "'Pebbles,'" says the Christian Cynosure, "is such a book as Christian parents are always glad to put on their center-tables."

"Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim" is a large and beautiful book of over 300 pages, printed on heavy book paper, from clear open type, and is profusely illustrated. It is artistically bound in handsome cloth, with fancy panels, and specially attractive side and back cover designs. Price, $1.50.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

A Journey to Palestine

BY REV. B. CARRADINE, D. D.

—oo—

Revised and Illustrated Edition. 500 pages. Eighteen beautiful half-tone Engravings, including portrait of Author. Cloth postpaid, $1.50. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES

MONTHLIES.
The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, Sunshine, each, per quar., 3c.

WEEKLIES.
L. & L. Infant Class, 4c.
L. & L. Intermediate Lesson Leaf.....1⅞c.
L. & L. Lesson Leaf, 1⅞c.
Golden Treasures (for every fifth Sunday) 1c.

QUARTERLIES.
LIGHT AND LIFE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY....5c.
" " " SCHOLAR'S " ....3c.
" " " INTERMEDIATE " ....3c.
" " " PRIMARY " ....3c.

Secretaries' Books, Class Registers, Reward Cards and Tickets, Charts, Maps, S. S. Libraries and other supplies. A large line of books, tracts, pamphlets, Bibles and Testaments at lowest prices.

BOOK AND PAMPHLET PRINTING
Done with neatness and dispatch. Send for estimates.

T. B. ARNOLD,
104-106 Franklin St., CHICAGO, ILL.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVI., No. 38 — CHICAGO, THURSDAY, MAY 31, 1894. — WHOLE No. 1,257.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞ No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid. ☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill. as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
The National Christian Association and the American Protective Association... 8
Lodgemen threaten Outrage..... 8
Treason in Kansas 8
The Congregational Church and Secret Societies..... 8
CONTRIBUTIONS:
Decoration Day (Poetry) 1
The Valley of Achor.... 1
No-Sabbathism Destroys Christ's Atonement .. 2
SELECTED:
To Arms!..... 3
Mr. Moody's Summer Conventions. 3
The Earthquakes in Greece 3
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 4
Report of the Eastern Agent..... 5
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4
Report of the New Hampshire Christian Association..... 5
REFORM NEWS:
From the New England Secretary; From the Pacific Coast Agent; Rev. Wm. Fenton in Northwood, Iowa.....5,9
CORRESPONDENCE:
More Letters to the Annual Meeting..... 5
LODGE NOTES..... 7
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
N. C. A 7
THE HOME.....10
TEMPERANCE.....11
BIBLE LESSON 12
LITERATURE 12
RELIGIOUS NEWS. 12
Catalogue of Publications 13
HOME AND HEALTH.....14
FARM NOTES 15
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....16
MARKETS 16

The Catholic and anti-Catholic school-war at Gallitzin, near Pittsburgh, Pa., was last week ended. The public schools had been closed under an injunction secured by State Counselor Wm. T. Kerr of the Junior Order of the United American Mechanics, on account of nuns teaching therein clothed in the garb of their religious order. On Monday morning the schools were reopened, the nuns having been retired, and other teachers employed. It was a victory for the secret society.

The Irish-Americans, living in and off of the United States, are "chock-full" of the revolutionary spirit of their ancestors in Ireland. Quite recently Lord Rosebery, Prime Minister of Great Britain, declared that "there can be no home-rule for Ireland until the English people are educated to it." This leads an Irish-American newspaper to advise its readers "to save the money they are paying to support a balance of power in the British that is invariably used against themselves. The money contributed to the support of those members of Parliament can be put to a better use, if only to erect training schools for the education of the Irish people in ways and means of acquiring their independence by other means than that of the circular road of the English constitution." This means that if the Irish demand home-rule, and it is refused, they will "go and take it." The Fenian still lives, but has changed his name.

A dispatch from Berlin, May 19, announced that William II., King of Wurtemberg (Germany), had openly declared against the policy of readmitting the members of the Society of Jesus into Germany. In receiving deputations from the various synods, the King expressed the opinion that the Bundesrath would not confirm the repeal of the anti-Jesuit law. "That," he said, "is not only my personal attitude, but it is that of my government toward this question." It may be added that it is well-known that the inhabitants of the Duchy of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha are opposed to the repeal of the anti-Jesuit law, and it is believed that Prussia's opinion remains the same as when Chancellor von Caprivi, as the Premier of Prussia, declared that the return of the Jesuits was an impossibility. Bavaria is understood to be of the same mind as Prussia, and several of the smaller states of the German Empire are known to be preparing bills forbidding the return of the Jesuits to their respective territories.

It is not often that United States Senators are approached with bribes—at least, such cases are seldom made known to the public; but, several days ago, Senator Hunton (Dem.), of Virginia, and Senator Kyle, (Pop.), of South Dakota, were approached by Charles W. Buttz, in the interest of certain manufacturers, and offered large sums of money to vote in a specified manner on the new tariff bill. Fortunately the two Senators possessed not only sufficient moral rectitude to refuse the offer, but to report it to the Senate, and a committee of investigation, appointed by that august body, has succeeded in bringing the criminal to light.

The proposition of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, promulgated at their recent gathering in Omaha, to call on Catholics and Hibernians in every State, city and township in the country to form secret Columbian Associations to fight the A. P. A., is met by the Western Catholic News as "both unwise and impolitic. It would, if carried out, politically isolate the Catholics of the United States. And that would mean that we would stand one to seven at the polls. For every Catholic vote that we cast there would be seven against it. We must make no mistake in this matter. If we go into politics as Catholics, all non-Catholics will be arrayed against us. Make the issue Rome or America, and you will find America first and Rome nowhere." The proposition came from one of the most influential Irish secret societies in existence, and is worthy of its origin. The News, for once, is right.

The expulsion of Terence V. Powderly, recently its "Grand Master," from the secret order of the Knights of Labor, is an event that calls for a passing notice. Without desiring to commend either the order itself, or his course in his connection with it, we wish to express the opinion that in many of his acts and sentiments he has impressed us as much the superior of his lodgemates, either in intelligence or moral bias. His expulsion, it is alleged, was the result of an effort on his part to disrupt the organization, and he is accused of intriguing against it in the spirit of malice growing out of his removal from its leadership. This may be so, and if it is, it is also another proof that connection with secret, oath-bound fraternities tends to reduce manhood to either tyranny or slavery—to rule or succumb to the despicable obligations which he has self-assumed. The lesson of his downfall is well-expressed in the following paragraph, clipped from the Chicago Evening Journal:

There are other Grands who are destined to go the way of Powderly. All they need is rope enough. After they have played the tyrant for awhile they will come tumbling down and find to their surprise that American law and American institutions and American common sense are greater in this land than all the orders and all the sounding titles that have been invented by the so-called laboring or any other class.

The condition of business throughout the country, last week, is thus reported by Bradstreet's Trade Review of Saturday: "The unfavorable conditions prevailing in commercial and industrial circles throughout the country, together with the prospect for no material improvement during the summer, mark the present season as probably the dullest relatively for twenty years. At no time since panic and business depression manifested themselves last year have reports as to the volume of sales of merchandise, the manufacture of staple goods and the indisposition of merchants generally to buy except for absolutely immediate wants, been so pronounced and so general throughout the country as during the past few weeks. Superficial examinations of business conditions leading to unwarranted optimistic conclusions as to the near-by future of trade have not been wanting; but, as a matter of fact, based on comprehensive and careful examination, the next few months promise a continuance if not an intensifying of existing conditions of extreme dullness and depression. Quite unfavorable advices come from Pittsburg, where there are numerous shutdowns, involving large numbers of men. The total number of industrial employes idle as a result of coal scarcity is placed at 35,000, and the total idle number on account of the strike, which now appears likely to fail, is 210,000. In other industrial lines 25,000 men are reported idle as a result of strikes, making the total now idle 235,000.

DECORATION DAY.

BY MRS. VICTORIA ALEXANDRA STONE.

The peace of God has come at last to thee--
The clouds have rolled away,
Sweet native land! and high in heaven we see
The glory of the day.

The sun reveals its splendor as of old—
Its glory shineth now
As bright as then, when battle-tempests rolled,
It bathed the soldier's brow.

No more the cannon thunder through the land—
The war-cloud waves no more:
The pine and palm, like heroes hand in hand,
Wave high on Freedom's shore.

All o'er the land the war-scarred veterans meet
Where cypress branches play.
Above the honored dead and blossoms sweet
Upon their graves they lay.

In war-days past, the splendor of God's throne
His sky made overbright!
And so he sent his thunder crashing down
The blinding path of light.

The peace of God has come at last to thee
By blood and carnage won,
Sweet native land! and so, that thou art free
We say: "His will be done."

Steamburgh, N. Y.

THE VALLEY OF ACHOR.

BY REV. J. M. FOSTER

Hosea prophesied in times of great apostacy in Israel. The people had committed spiritual adultery in worshiping idols. God hewed them by the prophets, but they disregarded the warnings and threatenings. Then he sent the moth to devour the land, and the lions to slay the people. These were ignored. Then he gave them into the hand of the Chaldeans and they were held in bondage until effectually cured of idolatry. Then the prophet encourages the people. God will lure them into the wilderness and there speak comfortably to them, and he "will give them the valley of Achor for a door of hope."

I. God appoints his people's troubles. God determined that seventy years should be accomplished in Babylon and from this it did not vary. The troubles of Joseph were measured out by the scales of divine exactitude, and there was neither too much nor too little. The four hundred and thirty years of Egyptian sojourn, the forty years in the wilderness, and the trouble of Achor were appointed. When it was reported to Job that the Sabeans had stolen his cattle, the fire from heaven had consumed his flocks, the Chaldeans had taken his camels and slain his servants, and the four winds had smitten the house in which his sons and daughters were feasting, and they were dead, he said: "The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord." He who is our pattern in all things, in the hour when his soul was troubled, looked beyond Judas and his band, Caiaphas and the Jewish Sanhedrim, Peter's denial and the flight of the disciples, Pontius Pilate and the Roman soldiers, the prince of darkness and his host of evil angels, to him whose determinate counsel they were executing, and said: "The cup which my Father hath given me shall I not drink it?"

"Affliction cometh not forth of the dust; trouble doth not spring from the ground." They "come down from above." They come forth from "him who is wonderful in counsel and excellent in working." A great many have the same idea of the troubles which afflict the just that the Philistines had of the emerods with which God smote them, "a chance hath happened unto us." But there is no such thing as "blind chance," or "unintelligent necessity" in God's government. "He worketh all things according to the counsel of his own will." He has a plan, extending from the beginning to the end, and embracing every event, from the falling of the sparrow to the fall of an empire, from the numbering of the hairs of our heads to the numbering of the stars. "His counsel shall stand, and he doeth all his pleasure." The afflictions of his people are a part of his plan. They are to enter the kingdom through great tribulation. "What are these that are arrayed in white robes, and whence came they?" "These be they that came forth out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb."

II. The troubles of God's children are to free them from sin. When Achan and his family were put to death in the valley of Achor, the sin which caused Israel to be smitten before the men of Ai was put away and God returned to them. The forty years' sojourn in the wilderness freed Israel from the stiffnecked rebellious generation that came out of Egypt, to whom God sware in his wrath that they should not enter into his rest. The seventy years' captivity in Babylon cured Israel of the sin of worshiping idols, so that they never fell into that sin again to this day. God casts his people into the furnace and keeps them there until the dross of sin is removed. "By this shall the iniquity of Jacob be purged, and this shall serve to take away their sin." God sits as a refiner and purifier of the house of Jacob, and he will not remove them from the crucible until his image is reflected in the soul. The rod is to drive folly from the heart of the child, and the parent is not to spare for his crying until that end has been gained. "If ye are without chastisement, then are ye bastards and not sons. Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth." God complains of Israel that "they did not cry unto me with their hearts; they howled upon their beds." In ancient times witnesses were put upon the rack to compel them to testify. They might roar with pain, but that gave them no relief. The ropes were only drawn the tighter until they began confessing, then relief came. David tells us in Psalm 32 that he roared all day long under the hand of God. But so long as he kept silence and did not confess, "thine hand continued heavy upon me." But by and by he says, "I acknowledged my sin; I said, I will confess my transgression, and thou forgavest the iniquity of my sin." And then he sings of the blessedness of the "man whose sins are covered." The parable of Moses is suggestive." As the eagle stirreth up her nest, fluttereth over her young, spreadeth abroad her wings, taketh them and beareth them on her wings, so the Lord was with them." The old eagle stirs up her nest, not to make it a pleasant place for the young ones, but to make it intolerable. Then she spreads out her wings and then taking them upon them swoops out over the valley. In mid-air she closes her wings and the eaglets must fly or die. It is severe. But the old eagle means to teach them to fly. So the Lord God deals with his people. Israel had a pleasant nest down in Egypt, a cloudless sky, a beautiful country, a wealthy place. In spite of their bondage they liked it well and had no desire to go out to the land of Canaan. Their nest must be stirred. Their burdens were increased; their taskmasters became cruel; plague after plague desolated the land until they were glad to go. Then he carried them "all the days of old," feeding them with bread of heaven and giving them water from the rock, until they had learned to use the wings of faith, when they were taken into that goodly land and Lebanon. A Christian sometimes prepares a luxurious home. His business prospers, his family flourishes, and he is well-satisfied. But there is something better for him, and God stirs his nest. His children are taken away; his business fails; his friends forsake him. In his distress he lifts up his soul to God and desires to depart and be with Christ, which is far better. Afflictions teach us to lay aside our sins. God sent the late war that we might put away the sin of slavery. He has sent these times of depression that we may put away our rebellion against the King of kings. "Surely it is meet to be said unto God, I have borne chastisement, I will not offend any more. That which I see not, teach thou me. If I have done iniquity I will do no more."

III. These troubles are a promise of better blessings. "The valley of Achor" is a "door of hope." Afflictions lead God's people to confess their sins and that secures pardon. "If we confess our sins he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." Afflictions lead us to forsake sin, and that secures divine favor. "He that hideth his sins shall not prosper; but whoso confesseth and forsaketh them shall obtain mercy." After the army of Israel was smitten before the men of Ai, Joshua and the elders fell down before the ark and rent their clothes and put dust upon their heads and cried to God in deepest distress. But after the sin of Achan had been put away, they were encouraged to believe that God would be with them and give them the land according to promise. So when God's people sin, he ceaseth to communicate with them. "If in my heart I sin regard, the Lord me will not hear." Sin persisted in forfeits divine favor." Behold the Lord's hand is not shortened that he cannot save; neither his ear heavy that he cannot hear; but your sins have separated between you and your God, and your iniquities have hid as it were his face from you." Then God lays his hand upon his erring child. In his distress he cries to God and asks forgiveness. Then God hears and returns with blessings. "Return unto me and I will return unto you." Ezra wept and rent his garment and his mantle, and plucked off the hair of his head and his beard, and sat down astonied. He prayed and confessed, casting himself down. The people gathered about him and covenanted to put away the strange wives. And Shechaniah said: "Now there is hope in Israel concerning this thing." Afflictions open the door of hope. God is with the believer alway, but especially in the time of trouble. "When thou passest through the waters, I will be with thee." "Fear thou not, for I am with thee; be not afraid for I am thy God: I will be with thee, yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee by the right hand of my righteousness." The husbandman uses the pruning-knife in cutting off all fruitless branches and removing the deposits of insects, of moss, and of all other parasitical growths that lessen the fruitfulness, that the fruit-bearing branches may bear more fruit. "Now no chastening for the present seemeth to be joyous, but grievous: nevertheless afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruit of righteousness unto them which are exercised thereby." Pruning is a promise of fruitfulness. The Captain of our salvation "was made perfect through suffering." Then he was crowned with glory and honor. His people participate in his sufferings here, and then share in his glory yonder. "Rejoice, inasmuch as ye are partakers of his sufferings, that when his glory shall be revealed ye may be glad also with exceeding joy." "If we suffer with him, we shall also be glorified together." The glory completely eclipses the suffering. "For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory that shall be revealed in us." "For our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory." The affliction is light; the glory is a weight, an exceeding weight. The affliction is but for a moment; the glory is eternal. No wonder the apostle "gloried in tribulations also." While we pity the afflicted children of God, we also congratulate them. Their afflictions are the badges of the special and peculiar love of the Saviour and his promise of great and enduring riches.

IV. These afflictions prepare for more efficient service. The valley of Achor prepared Israel for the conquest of Canaan. Afflictions call into exercise those graces that make us more useful in Christ's kingdom. After the Lord made a breach upon Uzzah, David was more careful to observe the divine order in bringing up the ark. Peter's fall and the distress which followed made him more humble and dependent upon God and so much the more useful. Paul was spurred on in his work of saving souls by the bitter recollection that he had persecuted the church. Last Monday we heard a reformed drunkard testify in the John Street Mission, New York: "Seven years ago I was sinking in the mire, a wretched, lost sinner. The Lord stooped down and lifted me out and washed me in the Redeemer's blood; and ever since I have been working night and day to rescue the perishing." On East 61st street, New York, is a mission for rescuing fallen women. It's name is "The Door of Hope." Mrs. E. M. Whittemore, the leading spirit, was baptized with the Holy Ghost and with fire by afflictions as a preparation for the work. She and other women go out at midnight to the dens of vice and plead with their fallen sisters to come to Christ. One cannot read her story of "A Pink Rose," blessed of God in saving one of the worst characters, without tears flowing unbidden.

Boston, May 5, 1894.

NO-SABBATHISM DESTROYS CHRIST'S ATONEMENT.

God gave Adam a law in Eden which he disobeyed and fell. "In Adam's fall we sinned all." This fall lay within the scope of God's foreknowledge. For before the foundation of the world redemption was purposed and planned.

God's law for fallen man, so far as it affects us to-day, was formulated at Sinai and is known as the "Ten Commandments."

This law was "ordained unto life," for we read, "Ye shall therefore keep my statutes and my judgments, which if a man do he shall live in them."

Christ taught this also, for in Luke 10: 25, "A certain lawyer stood up and tempted him, saying, Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life? He said unto him, What is written in the law? How readest thou? And he answering said, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself. And he said unto him. Thou hast answered right; this do and thou shalt live." The lawyer gave the law as expressed in Deut. 6: 5.

No man did it, so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned. Sin is the transgression of law. Obedience is holiness.

When the fuliness of the time came for the execution of God's purposes of grace, "He sent forth his Son, made of a woman, made under the law (Gal. 4: 4) to redeem them that were under the law "(and had broken it) that we might "receive the adoption of sons," that is, be restored to God's favor. Christ partook of our nature, was tempted in all manner like as we are, yet without sin. That is, he did not break this law which we have broken, but obeyed it in every "jot and tittle," for had he broken it in but one point he would have been guilty of all (James 2: 10).

By this obedience he became holy, and obedience to God's law is still the very gist and substance of holiness in God's sight. Christ's mission was to "magnify the law and make it honorable." His perfect obedience to God's law and his wonderful character developed under it proved the law itself to be holy and just and good, and justified God in requiring obedience to it.

Had Christ broken the law in one "jot or tittle" he would have been a sinner like ourselves, and as the "wages of sin is death," he could only have died for his own sins. His death on the cross could not have availed for us. We could have found no refuge in him as an intervenor. Faith in him could have done us no good. He would not have been holy and undefiled and separate from sinners.

The whole scheme of redemption would have failed. So far I am Scriptural; now let us look at some of the consequences:

God's Fourth Commandment requires the keeping of the seventh day of the week as his holy Sabbath-day. Christ knew which day this was, for he said "he was Lord of the Sabbath-day." So, by knowing the day that he kept, all possible error of days is eliminated. He was born on our calendar, for he was born in the reign of Augustus Cæsar, who succeeded Julius Cæsar, who gave us our Julian calendar, which hangs in every counting-house in Christendom. Christ kept the Sabbath-day habitually, for when in Nazareth "he went as his custom was into the synagogue on the Sabbath-day and stood up for to read" (Luke 4: 16). Had he kept the first day of the week, as Christians do now, he, too, would have broken the law, would have been a sinner, and could only have died for his own sins. Redemption would have failed.

The great cancerous spot in Christendom lies in human efforts to change this law of God. There is a fatal lapse in all logic that attempts it. Men want the first day of the week thrust into the Fourth Commandment. When they fail to get it there, they declare the law "abrogated." The reasoning applied to this purpose would overthrow the Bible as a whole and in every part.

What an awful thing to teach that God's law is abrogated. Christ foreseeing this by his prescience declares "it is easier for heaven and earth to pass than for one tittle of the law to fail." That is, this material universe is not so firmly rooted as is God's moral law. Under this law Christ died for such as we, and under it he lived an obedient and perfect life. Shall God now consent that such a law needs amendment, and do it away after Christ has vindicated it, and died for us under it?

Again, no man can now be redeemed by Christ who is not under this law, for he came only to redeem such as are "under the law." If men are under a law which he did not keep, his sacrifice cannot avail for them. Such men are without an intercessor.

If the Sabbath law has been changed to another day men must keep it perfectly at their own risk. Christ cannot help them. His intercession on that behalf would be in vain. J. W. WOOD.

Baraboo, Wis.

TO ARMS!

Almost simultaneously with the repeal of the Sherman law comes a recommendation from the Adjutant General that military tactics be taught in the graded schools.

What does all this mean?

Why is this eagerness on the part of the government officials to familiarize even the children with methods of war? Churches, too, contrary to the teachings of Him whom they profess to worship, are falling in with these instructions.

Detroit has 27 church military organizations, containing 651 men and 43 officers.

The largest is the Baptist cadets, with 66 men and 3 officers.

Then come the Maybury cadets, an Episcopal organization, with 60 men, the First Congregational cadets with 53, the first and last being armed with rifles.

The Episcopalians have 6 companies, the Catholics 8, the Presbyterians 7, Baptists 3, Congregationalists 2 and Lutherans 1.

Thirteen of the companies are armed with rifles and one with swords. These, it must be remembered, are all church military companies, and have no connection with the civil societies of the State militia.

The administration, through federal patronage and the system of "pinching business," has succeeded in subjugating Congress. Is it now the plan to force the people into submission? Are even the children to be armed and taught that allegiance to despots is patriotism?

God forbid! The American people are not yet so prostrate at the feet of tyranny.—Corner Stone, Lansing, Mich.

The following appeared in the Inter-Ocean of this city, not long since, signed "A Catholic Irishman:"

"It was announced from the altar of St. Malachi's Church last Sunday that the 10:30 o'clock mass next Sunday would be a military one, for the benefit of the Clan-na-Gael Society, who will appear in uniform and have the foremost seats in the church reserved for their occupancy. As an Irishman and member of the church, I would like to learn what is the reason for a military mass. Are the Clan-na-Gaels a military organization? Such masses are entirely new in our churches. With an opposition to our public schools, and now military masses in the interest of an organization that recent developments in our own country have proven to be a murderous one, I fear our priests are making a sad mistake in sowing the wind. Will we not reap a whirlwind? Can we not be let to live in harmony and in peace with those who differ with us in religious ethics? Now, as a good, true Catholic Irishman, I do hope that on next Sunday all respectable parishioners will refrain from attendance."

With Catholic special mass for the murderous Clan-na-Gael, and Protestant special sermons in honor of Masons, Odd-fellows, Knights of Pythias and unnameable hordes of modern anti-Christian secret societies, is it any wonder that the Christianity of the day is coming to be regarded by the more seriously thoughtful class as a hollow mockery? We suggest that these churches, in their seeming eagerness to become popular with popular institutions, though evil, go one step further and have special services in honor of the saloon men and their adjuncts, the dive women. Let the marriage to the harlot be complete.—Christian Conservator.

MR. MOODY'S SUMMER CONVENTIONS.

The program begins with the opening of the new Northfield Auditorium, on June 7, followed by a series of meetings in connection with the Mount Hermon and Northfield seminaries until June 21. The summer conferences are as follows:

YOUNG WOMEN'S CONFERENCE—JUNE 22 TO 28.

Among well-known Christian workers who will be present and address these meetings may be named Major D. W. Whittle, Mrs. A. J. Gordon of Boston, Dr. Pauline Root, Mrs. Carrie Wilson, Miss Fiske Smith and D. L. Moody.

The music will be in charge of Miss Mary Whittle, together with a number of Vassar students, and a committee composed of students from Mt. Holyoke, Wellesley, Smith, Vassar, and the Women's College of Baltimore, will have charge of the athletics.

Workers' Bible Training classes will be conducted, as well as special missionary conferences, and a regular twilight meeting on "Round Top" has been arranged for.

WORLD'S STUDENT CONVENTION—JUNE 30 TO JULY 10.

Among the speakers already engaged for this conference may be mentioned Prof. W. W. Moore, D.D., of Hampden-Sidney, Va.; Rev. Alexander McKenzie, D.D., of Cambridge, Mass.; Rev. H. C. Mabie, D.D., of Boston, Mass.; Rev. J. E. Tuttle, D.D., of Amherst College, Amherst, Mass.; Rev. H. P. Beach, of the School for Christian Workers, Springfield, Mass.; Prof. Winchester, of Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn.; Rev. A. T. Pierson, D.D., of Philadelphia and Bishop Thoburn, of India. Mr. D. L. Moody will be present during the session and personally conduct many of the services. Prof. James McConaughy, of Mt. Hermon, will conduct the Normal Training Class, and Mr. W. H. Sallmon, of Yale, the Normal Devotional Class. The music will be conducted by Prof. D. B. Towner.

On July 3, the Neff School of Oratory will be instituted and will continue until the 27th. This school, under the immediate direction of President Silas S. Neff, of 1414 Arch street, Philadelphia, will teach voice culture, hygienic and esthetic physical culture, oratory, extempore speech, reading and recitation, psyciology, the ethics of oratory, elocution, social and business conversation, the science of education and methods of teaching, pulpit delivery, Bible and hymn reading.

Between the Students' (July) Conference and the General Conference for Christian Workers, continued services, consisting of lectures or Bible readings, will be given at least six times per week by able Bible students or prominent clergymen.

GENERAL CONFERENCE OF CHRISTIAN WORKERS—AUGUST 1 TO 13.

At this, the oldest of all the Northfield conventions, will assemble very many workers from home and foreign fields and a large number of prominent laymen and preachers.

The following named are among those who have been engaged to speak to this great gathering: Rev. A. J. Gordon, D.D., of Boston, Mass.; Rev. F. B. Meyer, of London; Dr. A. C. Dixon, of Brooklyn; Major D. W. Whittle, of Northfield; Rev. Geo. C. Needham; Rev. A. T. Pierson.

Mr. D. L. Moody will personally take charge of the services of the convention.

The singing will be conducted as usual by Messrs. Ira D. Sankey and Geo. C. Stebbins.

Accommodations may be secured at any of the Northfield Seminary buildings during this conference. Rates from $1 to $3.50 per day.

Although this conference formally closes on August 13, the Rev. F. B. Meyer has kindly consented to give daily Bible lectures or readings throughout the remainder of the month. This will give an unusual opportunity to all to hear this noted student of the Word of God.

Some one of the Seminary buildings will be kept open to accommodate those who wish to remain for these meetings.

Wednesday, Sept. 5, Mt. Hermon School opens. Thursday, Sept. 13, Northfield Seminary opens. "The Northfield" closes about Oct. 1.

Those who are fortunate enough to remain until after these dates will be amply repaid for their stay in seeing the workings of these institutions. During the opening days of these schools eminent preachers or lecturers will address the students, and to these gatherings visitors are also invited.

Visitors to Northfield may be accommodated with first-class board and rooms at "The Northfield" or in private boarding places.

For particular information regarding board, rooms, conventions, trains, etc., apply to A. G. Moody, East Northfield, Mass.

THE EARTHQUAKES IN GREECE.

The earthquakes which occurred during April were widespread and attended with a larger loss of life than has resulted from such disturbances for many years past, save perhaps in Japan. Beginning, apparently, about Tokyo and Yokohomo, Japan, on the 15th ultimo, they were felt on the 20th in Greece, where disturbances are still reported, and on the same date throughout a large portion of Central America. On the 28th Venezuela was shaken, the incomplete reports received indicating that the loss of life and the damage to property there were far greater than in any other of the countries visited. Earthquakes are recurrent in Venezuela and frequently disastrous, 12,000 people having perished in the city of Caracas alone in the catastrophe of 1812, and a year seldom passes without some disturbance being felt. The countries about the Mediterranean are also subject to earthquakes, and have been as far back as history goes, and there is scarcely an important city or site on the shores of the sea that at some period has not felt their effects, those in Lisbon and Antioch being especially memorable. The disturbances in Greece during April were not comparable in intensity with these visitations, but were still very serious, their worst effects, apparently, being felt on the eastern side of the kingdom, in the divisions of Attica-Beotia, Phthiotis-Phocis and Eubœa. The latter is a long, narrow island stretching along the eastern mainland for a hundred miles or more, and on the inner side, facing the channel of Atalanti and the Lamian gulf, the shore is said to have sunk six feet. On the opposite side of the gulf, near Thermopylæ, the coast was also much broken up while the hot springs at Thermopylæ and at Aidipsos in Eubœa were in violent eruption, and the earthquake shocks especially frequent and severe. Indeed, the region between Thermopylæ and Aidipsos seems to have been the center of disturbance in a line extending from Thessaly on the north and following more or less closely the channels separating Eubœa from the mainland to the island of Syra, one of the Cyclades, on the south. Another line, extending from east to west, seems to have followed the Corinthian gulf and the gulf of Patras to the island of Zante, the point of crossing apparently being Thebes, about which great destruction was wrought. Much damage was done at Athens and Galaxithi, on the gulf of Corinth, and the whole triangular area extending from Thermopylæ to Athens and Galaxithi, within which stand the famous mountains of Parnassus, Helicon, Pentelicus and Hymettus, suffered severely from the shocks. The loss of life is estimated at not less than 500, while 10,000 families were probably made homeless, a larger loss than has resulted from any earthquake in these regions in recent centuries, and due to the rapid growth of the larger cities and towns. What occasioned the disturbances can, of course, only be conjectured, though they are said to have been predicted by Professor Rudolph Falb, the German seismologist, in December last, as the result of the combined effects of the tidal action of the sun and moon. The correctness of this theory is not, however, proved by the recent earthquakes, for while the first shock occurred on the 20th ult., when the moon was full, and the combined effects of sun and moon would be felt, the last severe shocks began on the 26th ult., when the conditions were radically changed. A more pressing question is that of relieving the distress occasioned by the earthquake, and as appeal has been made to this country for aid, it may be hoped that the response will be prompt and liberal.—N. Y. Observer.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

Poor pussy.—Costly carriage hire —The bicycle as a factor in church going.—The dark places of New England. —Differing tastes.—Military drill in the high school.—Labor and temperance notes.

The cremation of over one hundred pussy-cats was one of the "incidentals" of the recent great fire in Boston. Even if not a special lover of the feline race, one cannot refuse the meed of pity for their unfortunate fate. But what of the legions of rats and mice inhabiting those old rickety tenements which must have likewise miserably perished? Nobody thinks of the poor rodents. This is a world where sympathy is measured by very unequal standards. The fire, by the way, proves not to be the work of an incendiary, as at first thought. It is the old story of a smoker who carelessly drops either a lighted match, or the burning stub of his cigar, and then, like the wicked one in the parable, goes his way. Everywhere, and under all conditions, the tobacco-user is a nuisance, and considered in the light of a possible fire-bug, when every building is a dry as tinder, and the wind blowing twenty knots an hour, a decided menace to public safety.

The terrible condition of matters at Deer Island is shown in still blacker colors as the investigation goes on. Of course the officials responsible for it denounce Mrs. Lincoln, to whose untiring efforts the revelation is due, as a meddling busybody. But our pauper classes, huddled together with criminals, receiving no suitable care when sick, and left unburied when they die till it suits the convenience of the officials to bury them, may well pray that her tribe may increase. The outrageous condition of the school buildings at Roslindale, a suburb of Boston, is causing much indignation. It would be a scandalous state of things in Congo. The city council is exceedingly economical in certain directions, and, unfortunately, one of these directions is in the line of new and improved school buildings to replace old and unsanitary structures, which are a menace alike to the health and morals of the pupils.

It might be suggested. in this connection, that it would not be a bad idea if each of Boston's aldermen could be supplied with a good bicycle apiece —just as an economic measure. A bill for $8,790 for carriage-hire, which is what these gentlemen managed to expend in one year for that purpose, is rather steep. And when it comes to $500, and even $2,000 for one member, anybody can see that such a measure would be in the interests of impartial justice. The bicycle has come to stay. It is still a very high-priced machine, and will be until the exclusive patents on it expire, but it does not cost as much as an unlimited number of checks for free carriage drives. The possibilities of the bicycle are as yet only faintly perceived. It was stated awhile ago, in the English papers, that the rector of Hatfield proposed to make this vehicle a help instead of a hindrance to church-going, by providing seats especially for wheelmen, and safe accommodation for their wheels during service. Rev. James Brady, of the People's church, is taking similar ground. It is quite true, as he says, that "to ride a bicycle to church is not nearly so much an infraction of the Sabbath as to ride a horse; for the horse may need rest, while the bicycle does not." I once knew a very devoted pastor who used this vehicle in making pastoral calls, greatly to the dissatisfaction of some of the stricter sort among his parishioners. Yet why would a horse, which he could not afford, have been more ministerial? There is no good reason why the bicycle should not be pressed into service as one of the agents in the world's evangelization. The devil claims a great many things that do not rightfully belong to him.

The Presbyterian General Assembly, recently convened at Saratoga, in its Home Missions report spoke strongly of the need of home evangelization in New England. Ninety-five towns and villages in Maine without religious services of any kind is an appalling figure when we consider that it really means a state of practical heathenism.

It is rather funny that the students of the Northwestern University of Evanston, Ill., are up in arms against the decree of the Faculty that they should wear the Oxford cap and gown, for at Wellesley the situation was reversed, and the disfavor with which some of the Faculty looked upon it was the occasion of a gentle breeze of disaffection—not to say mutiny. As a mere question of æsthetics, little can be said in favor of this scholastic garb. It lends no additional beauty to a pretty face, and a plain one it usually makes decidedly plainer, while to wear it everywhere and at all times looks just a little like a display of pedantry. But then tastes differ.

The English high-school and Latin boys had a big parade and review yesterday. "The different battalions marched by the flank, formed column to the rear, changed direction to the right and left, and went through innumerable maneuvres;" so says the press report; "to the intense admiration of their mothers, sisters, cousins, and aunts," who stood on the green slope of Monument Hill and watched them defile past. But among those thousands were there no mothers thoughtful enough to feel with a shiver whereunto all this is tending? A country cannot bring up its boys to study military tactics, or to march in uniformed ranks, the cynosure of admiring eyes, without awakening a desire sometime to use this knowledge, and wear this gay uniform in real campaigns and on real battlefields.

The strikers at the Washington Mills, Lawrence, Mass., have returned to work on their employers' terms. Their leader, McBride, dropped his lordly and defiant airs with curious suddenness, and began to work for a settlement. The chief factor in bringing about this change of attitude is said to have been a sheet of paper which was handed him, containing, among other disagreeably close questions, the following:

"How long have you roomed at the Hotel Brunswick?
"Did your new suit come from the strike funds?
"Is it true that one day recently you spent $7.00 in treats in a saloon?
"Is it true that you loafed two-thirds of the time last year while your wife worked in the mills and you carried her dinners?"

There are too many such barnacles on the labor movement;—men who foment and prolong strikes in order that they themselves may wear soft clothing and fare sumptuously on the funds of the deluded workmen.

The problem in the minds of most philanthropic people, in view of the present distress, is, whether the so-called "industrials" would be willing to work if employment was offered them. A wealthy Boston man, as a test case, offered some men of this class who came along a job at cleaning bricks at thirteen cents an hour. Out of six, four indignantly refused. The other two worked for an hour, then left, and invested their thirteen cents in drink.

President Eliot's words and example as regards his personal use of liquor seems to be bearing fruit. Five Harvard students were lately drowned in a Sunday excursion down the harbor, with plenty of beer on board; and three uproariously drunk on one of the principal streets of Boston were arrested the other day,—all of whom could well plead that they were only following out the teachings of their president to the legitimate end.

A liquor raid at New Britain, Conn., recently resulted in the emptying of the confiscated liquor in such quantities into a brook that it affected the cows who drank there, much as the brandied cherries did the pigs in the story-book.

ELIZABETH E. FLAGG.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, May 23, 1894.

The National League for the Protection of American Institutions, of which Rev. William H. Parsons is president, and Hon. William Strong, ex-Justice of United States Supreme Court, vice-president, and which includes in its board of managers Mr. Wheeler H. Peckham, of New York; Hon. Dorman B. Eaton, ex-Civil Service Commissioner, and Mr. Henry E. Howland, is making a determined fight against the items in the Indian appropriation bill for the support of parochial schools, and it is understood that a number of Representatives have pledged themselves to aid the league in its efforts to have those items struck out when the bill is taken up by the House of Representatives. According to the figures of the league, out of the $3,767,951 appropriated for Indian schools during the last eight years $2,366,416 has been given to Roman Catholic schools; and the proportion given to the Catholic schools has steadfastly increased since the Congregational, Methodist, Presbyterian and Episcopal churches withdrew their applications for funds. The total amount contained in this bill is nearly $400,000, which is to be distributed among forty-five Roman Catholic schools. This contest is by no means a new one, but it has heretofore been easily won by the Catholics because of their long experience in manipulating matters connected with politics. Some of the shrewdest wire-pullers in Congress are Catholics, and they are, of course, hard at work to get votes pledged in favor of retaining those appropriations in the bill.

The Secretary of the Interior has appointed James S. Hook, of Georgia; John A. Gorman, of Pennsylvania, and John L. Tullis, of Arkansas, a commission to negotiate with the Osage Indians for the surrender to the United States of so much of their reservation in Oklahoma as they may be willing to part with.

Rev. F. D. Power, in accordance with an annual custom adopted by him some years ago, devoted a considerable portion of his sermon last Sunday night to an appeal for "Kindness to Dumb Animals." He gave his hearers the benefit of much information gained during a recent visit paid to the headquarters of the S. P. C. A. in New York, made famous by the late Henry Bergh, who was its president for a long period previous to his death and whose name became synonymous with kindness to the brute creation. He called attention to the proof given by its income for the past year—$114,000—of the hold this society has upon the people, and said the day would come when not only every city, but every village and hamlet, would have its society for the prevention of cruelty to animals.

Rev. W. E. Parsons celebrated, last Sunday, the fifteenth anniversary of his pastorate over the Church of the Reformation, by a sermon of review and remembrance, which was enjoyed by a congregation filling the church and by a number of visiting Lutheran ministers. Dr. L. M. Kuhns, formerly of Canton, Ohio, read the Scripture lesson, and Dr. M. W. Hanna, of California, offered a prayer of thanksgiving for the prosperity the church has enjoyed under Mr. Parsons. When Mr. Parsons took charge there was a membership of twenty-three, and services were held in a little mission building. Now there is a membership of more than 200, and they worship in a handsome little brick and stone church of their own.

At a special meeting held this afternoon just after the regular prayer service at the headquarters of the W. C. T. U., Miss Pauline Leavens, of Chicago, delivered a most interesting and instructive address on "The Ideal Body, and How to Clothe It."

The "Veterans' Christian League" is another practical illustration of the good accomplished by the great Moody and Sankey meetings held here several months ago. The Sunday afternoon following the close of those meetings a Gospel service was instituted in G. A. R. Hall and every Sunday afternoon since it has been held there, the singing of Moody and Sankey hymns by a choir of strong voices being a feature of the meetings. These meetings have been largely attended by veterans of the war, from both armies, and their families, although everybody has been made welcome, and one of the results is the formation of the "Veterans' Christian League," a permanent organization, based upon religion and patriotism.

Some progress is being made in the Senate in the consideration of the tariff bill, and from the votes taken, it appears that the majority have fully decided to adopt the amendments recently offered by a sub-committee of the Finance committee, and to pass the bill when so amended, but it will take time. There is little probability of the final vote being taken before the first of July.

*

THE ANNUAL MEETING.

REPORT OF THE EASTERN AGENT.

To the Members and Friends of the National Christian Association, assembled in annual meeting, May 16, 1894:

DEAR FRIENDS:—I am reminded by our gathering to-day that we have passed another milestone in our history. It is well that we assemble to inquire: "Watchmen, what of the night?" and to plan to shed what light we may upon the moral darkness. Naturally we inquire, has there been material gain to the cause of truth in the fields where we have labored? Has the kingdom of darkness less control over the hearts of men be cause of work performed through the agency of the National Christian Association? Or has our work been unfelt in its dark domain?

Were I to compare any good accomplished by my effort in the field assigned for my labor, with the evil being perpetuated by the spawn of secret societies that, like the ancient lice in Egypt, infest our nation, the comparison might appear disheartening indeed. But in the thought that "none of us liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself"—(Rom. 1:47), I am encouraged to press forward.

Viewing what I have been enabled to accomplish during the past eleven months from the divine standpoint, I have every reason for encouragement. A comparison of my report of the results of eleven months this year with the thirteen months last year, indicates a healthy growth. Last year I reported 117 lectures and addresses; this year, the aggregate is 120. Last year, the number of Cynosure subscriptions obtained was 449. This year 550. Collections on the field, last year, $368,31. This year $320.-67. Amount received for Cynosure subscriptions last year, $538.25; this year, $674.80. Total field receipts last year, $906 56; this year, $995.-47. This does not include book sales, which have been more this year than last. Under the divine blessing I may attribute my increased success to three main causes: 1. Better health. 2. A better knowledge of my field. 3 A growing interest among our friends. While there has been much that might depress one inclined to discouragement, I prefer to look on the bright side. I will not take time to mention any discouragements, but invite your attention to a few of the many hopeful features which appear.

Unless I entirely misjudge the feeling of the masses, there is a growing willingness to discuss the question of secret societies. The multiplicity of such organizations has emboldened many to speak out in their defence, wrongly concluding that they are too powerful to be overcome, and that arguments can be brought for their defence. As we well-know, the more lodgemen discuss, the more apparent will be their weakness. "A silent tongue and a listening ear" is a well-chosen jewel for Masonry. My first work of the year past was in Indiana. There I found warm friends and churches open for lectures. After speaking in a large German Baptist church, a much-interested member inquired: "Why don't our preachers preach that way? I never heard such things before." The preachers of that denomination in the East are preaching "that way" more and more, and their invitations to come and help them are exceedingly gratifying. Bro. Myers, pastor of a large church of this denomination at Oaks, Pa., assured me of a hearing before their annual meeting, which is soon to occur at Summit, Pa. The Mennonites and the Mennonite Brethren in Christ of Central Pennsylvania are among those who have become more thoroughly enlisted in aid of N. C. A. work during the past year.

I spent nearly three months of the year very profitably in aiding the work in New England. There I found many too sensible to be led away by the pomp and glitter of secret society parades, willing to subscribe for our organ, and do what they could to stem the tide of organized evil.

I have held but one convention during the year, but it was a good one. President Stratton used to say, when graduating a class from his theological seminary: "The lion has not a numerous progeny, but every one of them is a lion." The Keystone-State is coming up. The Cynosure list has there been largely increased. The State officers are wide awake men. The executive committee is composed of staunch reformers. There is money in the treasury. With God's blessing we may expect great results in the days to come.

Something has been accomplished in Washington, though not as much as could be wished. The coming of Daniel Powers and wife has been of help to us. Under the supervision of Sister Powers, cottage meetings are being held each week. Having carefully studied the Masonic system, she is prepared to give instruction to those desiring it. In short, I can say: "Hitherto the Lord hath helped us." We expect him to carry forward his work in the future as in the past. Respectfully submitted, W. B. STODDARD.

REPORT OF THE NEW HAMPSHIRE CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

NEWMARKET, N. H., May 2, 1894.

DEAR BRO. PHILLIPS:—I regret that I shall not be able to attend the Annual Meeting, and instead I hereby send the cordial greetings of the New Hampshire Christian Association, now in the nineteenth year of its active work to expose and abolish the evils of secret societies. We feel greatly encouraged in this much-needed but somewhat difficult work. More excellent Christian young men have publicly identified themselves with the anti-secret cause in our State during the past year or two than during any previous five years.

Our Association has recently been called upon to assist in organizing a new church and in ordaining its young pastor. This young man, whose labors resulted in the reformation that gathered this church, was, at our last annual meeting, commended as a local preacher. At a ministers' consecration meeting in Somersworth, N. H., a voice as distinct as that which halted Saul of Tarsus on his way to Damascus, called the Methodist pastor to "come out" of his secret societies. He immediately obeyed by publicly, from his pulpit, renouncing Masonry and two other lodges. These facts were favorably reported in Zion's Herald.

I am still employed by the Association as Home Missionary and general State agent, and feel much encouraged in my work. The anti-secret work of the N. C. A., the bold position taken by Joseph Cook, the indirect but powerful influence of the holiness movement, and the W. C. T. U., have been a great help to the reform work in New Hampshire. General Agent Stoddard's influence has also been favorably felt among us. The Christian Witness, now in its fifteenth year, has not, during the past year, at any issue fallen below 1,300 copies. It seeks to give the people the cream of the noble Cynosure, and to prepare the way for that excellent paper. Please accept this renewed assurance of our loyalty to the N. C. A., whose faithful agent, Bro. J. P. Stoddard, nineteen years ago the 23d of next November, came from the west to christen the infant N. H. C. A., The puny child has become quite a boy, and it may be well to have a little family celebration on his 21st birthday.

May the Lord guide your deliberations and cause much good to issue therefrom.

Your fellow servant, S. C. KIMBALL,
Sec'y N. H. C. A.

REFORM NEWS.

FROM THE NEW ENGLAND SECRETARY.

[The following was inadvertantly crowded out of last week's issue.—EDITOR CYNOSURE.]

BOSTON, May 18, 1894.

The present has been a week of unusual opportunities to reach the intelligence and consciences of Christian people in this and contiguous cities. The May conventions have brought to our city leaders in thought and action—men mighty in word and deed, and set the talent and beneficent labors carried on in our own city conspicuously upon the Gospel candlestick. The contrast, as shown in the official reports of the secret "benevolent (!) and patriotic (!)" orders with those of open Christian associations is so marked that even the blind may see and note the contrast if they will. The chief end of the former seems to be vain-glory, ostentatious display, and to be seen of men, while the latter seek first the uplifting of their fellow-men, and their salvation from sin which is degrading and destroying "both soul and body in hell."

Many who read the Christian Cynosure will recall the renunciation of our brother, T. D. Roberts, and the loving spirit in which he told how the Lord had converted his soul and led him out from the lodges and from a life of sin and death into the liberty of the redeemed. He has never retraced one step, or receded from his position of open honorable effort. The "Industrial Home" of Boston held its sixteenth anniversary in the Clarendon Street Baptist church on the evening of the 13th inst. Dr. A. J. Gordon is the president of this, among the grandest rescue-works of our city, and Brother Roberts is his first and trusted lieutenant. His official position is that of superintendent, and the entire work is carried on under the inspection and personal direction of himself and his most estimable and devoted wife.

The primary object of the "Industrial Home" is to help unfortunate men and women, who are out of employment, to needed relief and to positions where they may help themselves, and at the same time to care for their souls. To obtain details of "ways and means," the reader has only to write for information to T. D. Roberts, corner of Harrison avenue and Davis street, Boston; but the following summary gives results: Total number of meals supplied for both departments, men and women, 49,747; total number of beds furnished, 26 537; total number of days' work furnished, 16,987. A pleasant and well-supplied reading-room, to which all have access, and Gospel meetings every Tuesday, Thursday and Sabbath evenings, are other features which have been used by the Holy Spirit in cheering sad hearts and bringing many to know Christ as a personal Saviour. The work done in this single institution to benefit the needy far exceeds that of all the boasted lodge charities in this entire city. Indeed, there is every reason to believe that many who have been forced by sheer want to apply for relief have contracted vicious and intemperate habits from lodge associations, that have resulted in their sad degradation.

The annual meetings of the American Peace Society, and the Commencement exercises and examinations of the Missionary Training School, will presumably be reported by your New En-

(Continued on 8th page.)

CORRESPONDENCE.

MORE LETTERS TO THE ANNUAL MEETING.

DURAND, Ill., May 16, 1894.

DEAR BROTHER:—I am again away from home, and my labors in God's vineyard, this week, are so abundant that I will not be able to attend the Annual Meeting of the N. C. A. This, I assure you, is more painful to me than disappointing to the Association.

The United Brethren in Christ (old constitution) have more of a fight, now, than ever with the secret orders. The Liberal side has hold of our property, and is using the lodge and courts to annoy and menace us continually. Our trust is in God, and through him we hope to succeed.

May the Lord bless you and give you a good session. Respectfully, your brother in Christ,

C. BENDER,
(Pastor, U. B. Church, Mendota, Ill.)

BARRINGTON, Ill., May 14, 1894.

DEAR BRETHREN:—Greeting! It was my purpose to be at the N. C. A. meeting on Wednesday, and so stated to Bros. Phillips and Cook. I am, however, unable to be present. You have my prayers and hearty co-operation in the work. I am more than ever convinced that we need to push this cause.

I believe that all secret societies, "gilt-edge and guilty-edged," are to be eschewed. I am willing to do any work which will aid you. You can depend on me to do my utmost.

The Lord bless your meeting together. Yours in Jesus, (Rev.) A. W. PARRY, (Evanston, Ill.)

KINGSTON, Ill., May 15, 1894.

To the Brothers and Sisters assembled at 221 West Madison street, Chicago, Ill.:

The peace of God and the love of Jesus and of the Holy Ghost rest and abide upon you all. Amen.

I should like to be with you on this occasion of the 16th, but circumstances won't allow. I was appointed a delegate at the county convention to attend the State Prohibition convention at Bloomington, which gave me an opportunity to scatter some Anti-masonic literature and ask some questions respecting the causes and effects of the labor and financial troubles, I trust to a purpose, as the entrance of God's Word giveth light and life. I see a wide difference between the Prohibition party and the American Prohibition party. I am afraid that God cannot bless the cause with so much secret society workings as was and is developed. God's forbearance is the only ground on which I can hope to see anything accomplished in the Prohibition party.

Enclosed please find one dollar for the promotion of the interests of the N. C. A.

I hold that the Canada thistle-patch (morally speaking) that was started in that grog-tavern in London, in the year 1717, has now spread over the whole world, and the sad results are fast opening to view. Praise be to God!—they will all be rooted out and a standard of piety attained unto that is seen in Micah 4:5—the Spirit of God, instead of the spirit of the world, which seems to be the all-important spirit to follow.

With kindest regards to all the dear children of God, I am, as ever, yours in Christ,

M. L. WORCESTER.

OBERLIN, O., May 10, 1894.

DEAR BRETHREN OF THE N. C. A.:—Declining strength and want of means will prevent my meeting with you on the 16th, but I desire to express my unabated sympathy in your great undertaking. There is in the outlook much that is depressing. The multiplication and growth of the secret orders is simply alarming. The subserviency of public sentiment and the indifference of the great mass of professed Christians are such as to give little hope for any great moral uprising that shall throw off the mighty incubus that oppresses both the church and the state. After a quarter of a century of effort, we are still involved in a struggle in which the apparent odds are largely against us; and we renew the conflict with no indications of immediate triumph.

Yet the outlook from the Christian standpoint is not all dark. God reigns. Christ came "to destroy the works of the devil," and as co-workers together with him we must inevitably triumph. "He shall see of the travail of his soul and be satisfied." In all these years, and especially during the past year, an immense amount of good seed has been sown. True, much has fallen by the wayside, or on stony places, and much among thorns; but some has fallen on good ground, and is yielding many-fold; for "God giveth the increase." "Be patient, therefore, my brethren, unto the coming of the Lord. Behold the husbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth, and hath long patience for it until he receive the early and the latter rain. Be ye also patient; stablish your hearts, for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh." James 5: 7, 8.

Your invitation also invited suggestions. I would say:

1. That while there ought to be, as in the past, a steadfast adherence to evangelical Christianity as the unchanging basis of all true reforms, we ought to make our earnest protest against that zeal for denominations that, more than anything else, has embarrassed our efforts and hindered our progress.

2. That while we need not lose sight of the economic evils of the secret lodge system, or of its pernicious influence on civil government, our appeal is, first and mainly, to our brethren in Christ, that they aid us to purge out this "leaven of unrighteousness," and that especially our appeal shall be to those more advanced Christians who are insisting on a higher Christian life and a stricter conformity to the Word of God.

3. That we urge upon all Christians that spirit of practical philanthropy towards all men that shall take away even a seeming occasion for the mutual-aid feature of the secret orders; and especially we insist that the brotherhood in Christ is incomparably more important and beneficent than any mere human arrangement.

4. That our relation to political parties and economic questions generally be that of absolute independence.

5. That, as in the past, we cease not to "cry aloud and spare not," both by the living lecturer and the printed page.

Trusting that the divine blessing will rest on your deliberations, I am your brother in Christ,

H. H. HINMAN.

CYNOSURE OFFER!

Any of the Books sold by the N. C. A. in this paper, ordered, with subscription to the Cynosure, at one-fourth off from list price, sent postpaid.

The New Volume of Pen and Pencil Series.

WELSH PICTURES Drawn with Pen and Pencil.

By D. Lewis Jones, Morris Jones, Edward Ffoulkes, H. Elvet Lewis, D. Tyssil Evans, D. Davies and O. M. Edwards. Edited by Richard Lovett, M. A. With many Illustrations. Imperial 8vo, cloth, gilt edges, boxed..... 3.20

"'Welsh pictures' is the work of ten Welshmen, among whom illustrating the beauties of Wales has been parcelled out according to the special familiarity of each. The result is a pleasing volume."—London Times.

THE EARTHLY FOOTPRINTS OF OUR RISEN LORD, Illumined.

A continuous narrative of the Four Gospels according to The Revised Version, with introduction by Rev. John Hall, D. D. Illustrated by 113 full-page half-tone re-productions. Small 4to, cloth.....net 1.50
Gilt edge, with silk book mark, boxed.....net 2.00
Full morocco, flexible, gilt edges, round corners, boxed.....net 3.75

Pictures reflecting the best in sacred art from Raphael to the present day are scattered profusely through the book.

"To many the life of the Christ will be a new book in this form. Though beyond the introduction it contains no word except what is found in the four Gospels, yet when read continuously, without the breaks necessarily made by the different stories of the four evangelists, the narrative takes on new force and lifelikeness. The very fact that this is not our usual method of reading the Word will give it a new reality."—Golden Rule.

A GIFT OF LOVE, and Loving Greetings for 365 Days.

By Rose Porter. Long 18mo. Paper cloth..... 1.00
White cloth, silver top, in box..... 1.25
Decorated silk, silver top, in box..... 1.75

"'A Gift of Love' is the work of a loving heart. It contains a text of Scripture for every day of the year with the addition of an appropriate thought in poetry of prose all bearing on the theme of love. The work must have called for a great amount of patient toil. But it has not been spent in vain, for the volume will prove a blessing to many a soul. To use it day by day for a year thoughtfully and prayerfully, must result in a rich growth in love on the part of the user. The author is well known and esteemed for her previous works' sake."—The N. Y. Observer.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE SERIES.

By Rev. F. B. Meyer, containing CHRISTIAN LIVING, THE PRESENT TENSES OF THE BLESSED LIFE, AND THE SHEPHERD PSALM. 3 vols. in box. 18mo, cloth..... 1.50
White vellum cloth, silver top, in box..... 1.75

D. L. Moody says: "Few books of recent years are better adapted to instruct and help Christians than those of this author. He is a man mighty in the scriptures, saturated with Bible facts and truths."

PRAYERS FROM THE POETS.

By Martha Harger. 16mo, two colored cloth, gilt top..... 1.00
Leatherette, boxed..... 1.50

"This volume is admirable. The Prayer are better suited to some of our moods than formal Litanies and are selected from excellent sources. The book will be a dear treasure to many hearts."—The Churchman.

KIN-DA-SHON'S WIFE.

An Alaskan Story. By Mrs. Eugene S. Willard, Home Missionary of the Presbyterian Board of America to Alaska. With illustrations. 8vo, cloth..... 1.50

"Being a close observer and in deep sympathy with the native population in their struggles towards a Christian Civilization, Mrs. Willard has gained a more intelligent knowledge of their character, of their needs and hindrances, than perhaps any other person."—Dr. Sheldon Jackson.

HEROES OF THE GOODWIN SANDS.

By Rev. Thomas Stanley Treanor. With many illustrations. 8vo, Cloth..... 1.50

"It is a book of most engrossing interest, and as stimulating as it is readable."—The Record.
"The deeds of daring are thrilling in the extreme. Suitable for the public library or for the home."—Times.

THE GREAT LONDON DAILIES.

By H. W. Massingham. Profusely illustrated. 12mo, cloth..... 1.00

Very welcome to all who like to look behind the scenes and see how the great London dailies are worked.

New Editions.

The Prayer Meeting and Its Improvement.

By Rev. LEWIS O. THOMPSON. Eighth edition, cloth, $1.25.

"Most heartily do we wish this work a wide circulation, both among pastors and people, and we hope it may do much toward the lifting of the prayer-meeting into that higher place which it ought to hold among the grand instrumentalities in the kingdom of the Master'—Congregationalist.

"We do not remember to have met with a work so suggestive, and we heartily commend it to both pastors and private members."—Baptist Weekly.

The Crisis of Missions. By Rev. ARTHUR T. PIERSON, D. D.

Cloth, $1.25; paper, 35c.

"We do not hesitate to say that this book is the most purposeful, earnest, and intelligent review of the mission work and field which has ever been given to the church."—Christian Statesman.

The Christian's Secret of a Happy Life.

By HANNAH WHITALL SMITH. One hundredth thousand. Issued in fourteen styles, from 50c. to $2.50. Send for circular.

"To commend this work would seem almost superfluous; and yet to young Christians who may not know it, we cannot refrain from saying, Buy this book, and keep it with your Bible for constant study, until you have thoroughly mastered, in your own experience, the 'secret' of which it tells. It will transform the dark days of your life, as it has transformed those of thousands before you, into days of heavenly light."—New York Evangelist.

The Topical Text Book. Fourth edition.

16 mo., cloth, 60c.

This little volume is a worker's most useful tool. It collates all Scripture passages under their topical headings, and for this reason proves far more helpful in studying a subject than the best concordance.

"I find one of the very best ways to study the Scripture is to study topically."—D. L. Moody.

Stalker's Life of Christ. Twelfth edition.

Stalker's Life of St. Paul. Fourth edition.

12 mo., cloth, each, 60c.

These works by Professor James Stalker, M. A., are unique in their compact putting of these lives into such condensed form without injurious brevity. They are being taken up as text books by Biblical classes in all parts of the country, thus proving their practical value.

Grace and Truth under Twelve Different Aspects.

By W. P. MACKAY, M. A. Paper, 35c.; cloth, 75c. Two hundred and fiftieth thousand.

This remarkable sale can only be attributed to the very practical character of this work as a guide to the inquirer and a work of helpful instruction for the immature Christian. It is of this volume Mr. D. L. Moody said: "I know of no work in print better adapted to place in the hands of the inquirer."

Notes and Suggestions for Bible Readings.

By S. R. BRIGGS. Sixtieth thousand. 8 vo, cloth. $1.00; flexible, 75c.

Edition after edition of this work has been called for until it would seem the demand must be supplied. The sales however, increase rather than otherwise.

Feathers for Arrows. By Rev. C. H. SPURGEON.

16 mo., cloth, $1.00.

Few preachers have made such effective use of pointed illustrations as the well known pastor of the great Metropolitan Tabernacle. Here he has given us a large cluster of his best with liberty to enjoy and employ.

Revell's Record for Church Treasurers.

Size No. 1, $1.50; Size No. 2, $2.00.

Popular because practical—valuable because time saving—the only record for weekly envelope system that reduces the treasurer's work to the minimum.

For sale by the

National Christian Association;

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Ill.

LODGE NOTES.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR CONCLAVE.

The Boston Journal says that "between now and the time appointed for holding the Triennial Conclave of the Grand Encampment of the Knights Templar of the United States in this city, August 27, 1895, much labor has to be done in preparing for and successfully executing the arrangements made from time to time to render the affair one of which the Knights Templar in the jurisdiction of Massachusetts and Rhode Island will be proud. It was decided to have the grand parade on Tuesday, Aug. 27, and the evening of that day the Grand Commandery will give a reception at the Hotel Brunswick to the officers and past officers of the Grand Encampment and of the Grand and subordinate commanderies and their ladies. Later in the week a banquet is to be tendered the officers of the Grand Encampment of the United States."

BRECKENRIDGE AND MASONRY.

Every Mason understands how Col. Breckenridge, according to his own admission, violated his obligation as a Mason, considering the fact that Miss Pollard is the daughter of a Master Mason. It is stated that he was suspended by his lodge several years ago for non-payment of dues. This does not relieve him from his obligation, or shield him from trial and expulsion from the order. His offense is a serious one, and in view of the publicity given the matter, the lodge of which he was a member should take action at once, in order that the world at large may know that even the official prominence attained by the party in question will not shield him in his disregard of his obligation as a brother of the order.—Southern Lodge Secret.

"MYSTIC SHRINERS."

The Equare and Compass says: "The Shriners all over the States are shaping their caravans or arranging individually for a pilgrimage to Mecca, otherwise known as Denver, where the great gathering is to take place on July 24. It promises to be the greatest gathering in the history of the order."

The official circular of the Imperial Recorder notes that 152 Nobles have been suspended, four expelled and seven reinstated since September 30, 1893.

A Modern Medicine.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is a modern medicine, originated by experienced pharmacists of to-day, under whose careful supervision it is prepared from the most valuable medicinal ingredients by a combination, process and proportion peculiar to Hood's Sarsaparilla. It combines economy and strength, "One Hundred Doses One Dollar" being original with and true only of this great remedy. It costs more, even if you pay less, to buy a medicine to experiment with, than it does to get Hood's Sarsaparilla. If you are suffering from impure blood in the form of scrofula, salt rheum, rheumatism or catarrh, or if you are "all run down," it not only makes you feel better, but if persistently used, it will thoroughly eradicate all the impurities from your blood and make you well.

MY EXPERIENCES
WITH
SECRET SOCIETIES.
BY A TRAVELER.
With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is
Fifteen Cents,
but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

WELCOME WORDS TO WOMEN.

Many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another with pain here or there, and in this way they all present to their easy-going doctor, separate diseases, for which he prescribes, assuming them to be such, when, in reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some womb disorder. The suffering patient gets no better, but probably worse, by reason of the delay, wrong treatment and consequent complications. A proper medicine, like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause would have promptly cured the disease.

Mrs. HARRY TAPPAN, of Reynolds, Jefferson Co., Neb., writes: "For two years I was a sufferer. A part of this time had to be carried from my bed. Was racked with pain, had hysteria, was very nervous, no appetite and completely discouraged. A few bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' effected a perfect cure." Sold by all dealers in medicines.

Agents wanted BICYCLES ON EASY PAYMENTS
New or 2nd hand; lowest prices, largest stock; makers & oldest dealers in U.S. We sell everywhere. Catalog free
Sylph ROUSE HAZARD & CO. 4 G St. Peoria, Ill.

MY WIFE CANNOT SEE HOW YOU DO IT AND PAY FREIGHT.
$14 Buys our 2 drawer walnut or oak Improved High Arm Singer sewing machine finely finished, nickel plated, adapted to light and heavy work; guaranteed for 10 Years; with Automatic Bobbin Winder, Self-Threading Cylinder Shuttle, Self-Setting Needle and a complete set of Steel Attachments; shipped any where on 30 Day's Trial. No money required in advance. 75,000 now in use. World's Fair Medal awarded machine and attachments. Buy from factory and save dealer's and agent's profits.
FREE Cut This Out and send to-day for machine or large free catalogue, testimonials and Glimpses of the World's Fair.
OXFORD MFG. CO. 342 Wabash Ave. CHICAGO, ILL.

WHEATON COLLEGE,
WHEATON, ILL.
A School for Men and Women.
COMMENCEMENT DAY JUNE 28TH, 1894.
For Catalogue, address
CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

IF YOU
WANT WORK
that is pleasant and profitable, send us your address immediately. We teach men and women how to earn from $5 per day to $3,000 per year without having had previous experience, and furnish the employment at which they can make that amount. Capital unnecessary. A trial will cost you nothing. Write to-day and address,
E. C. ALLEN & CO.,
Box 1001. Augusta, Me.

PATENTS
Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained, and all Patent business conducted for Moderate Fees.
Our Office is Opposite U. S. Patent Office, and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.
Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.
A Pamphlet, "How to Obtain Patents," with names of actual clients in your State, county, or town, sent free. Address,
C. A. SNOW & CO.
Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

A BOOKLET.
107 pages, 5x7 inches.
Paper Cover, Postpaid, 15 Cents.

The following addresses form part of the contents of this booklet:

THE MARTYR'S OWN MONUMENT, by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association.

CHRISTIAN POLITICS, by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure.

THE MYSTERIOUS MACHINE: was it Lawnmower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what? by Prof. E. D. Bailey of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government.

This booklet includes other interesting matter connected with the unveiling of the Morgan monument at Batavia, N. Y. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Colver on Masonry.
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

NORTHERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
Nathan Callender Montdale Pa.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
W. M. Love, Osceola, Mo.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Thompson, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
D. A. Richards, Brighton, Mich.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill.

Disloyal
SECRET OATHS
ADDRESS OF
JOSEPH COOK,
OF BOSTON,
AT THE
Conference of Christians
CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate. By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter)
—AND OFFICE OF—
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Oak Park, Ill.

VICE PRESIDENT—Rev. M. C. Ranseen, 79 West Huron Street, Chicago.

GEN'L SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I. Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

REC. SECRETARY—Mrs. Mary C. Baker, 108 Franklin Street, Chicago.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, Edgar B. Wylie, H. F. Kletzing, J. A. Collins, W. O. Dinius.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., J. A. Conant; Vice-president, S. C. Kimball; Sec'y, D. B. Gunn.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. R. W. Chesnut Marissa; Sec., Rev. J. R. Wylie, Coulterville; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., Rev. J. A. Greer, Columbus City; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton; Treas., Rev. L. Mendenhall, Fairfield.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., ——— ———, ——— Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom, Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morrill St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry; Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

OREGON.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dillon, D.D., Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan, Beaver; Treas., Edwin P Sellew, Philadelphia.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poynette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas J. W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

HENRY M. HUGUNIN - - Editor.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, MAY 31, 1894.

THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION AND THE AMERICAN PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION.

We learn that some of our friends are in doubt respecting the position of the National Christian Association with reference to the secret society the name of which appears above. We do not understand why this doubt should have arisen. The National Christian Association is opposed to all secret societies; it sympathizes with the professed objects of most of them; it has a kindly interest in the members of them all.

The objections to these secret societies is that they are injurious to the individuals who are connected with them, detrimental to home life, inconsistent with civil obligations, and rivals of the church of Jesus Christ. It will be seen from this statement that our objection to these orders is not on the ground of their members nor their professed objects, but the principle of organization which they have adopted. We believe that secrecy furnishes a legitimate presumption of evil, that it naturally tends to evil, that it is desired by evil persons, while honest fair-dealing and unselfishness are free and open like the day. We consider the Romish Church the most powerful secret organization in the world at the present time. Its management, its houses, oftentimes hemmed in by high fences and thick walls, are a perfect model for secret combinations. As a secret society we do not approve it, nor can we justify the errors of secret societies to oppose it. We believe that its non-conformance with the state should be rebuked; that persons intelligently holding allegiance to the Pope of Rome, who claims to be the lawful governor not of the church simply but of nations as well, are disqualified for citizenship in any popular government. The fact that the saloonkeepers of our nation are, so far as they have any pretense of church membership, connected with that communion is another one of the dark features of the case. But we do not believe in trying to fight the devil with fire. We believe that the secret societies which are now antagonizing the Romish Church will, if they succeed in obtaining office for their own members, shortly be as corrupt as the organizations which they displace.

The cry years ago in this country was: "Free soil, free speech, free men." We believe this is a good rallying call for the present, and that honest men, instead of hiding away in lodges, should come out on the free soil, exercise themselves in free speech, and demean themselves like free men. If this were done it would be bad for politicians, but good for the country. The present conscienceless crowd of office-seekers who are willing to serve the Romish Church or anything else for a consideration would be ousted, and self-respecting, public-spirited officers would take their places.

LODGEMEN THREATEN OUTRAGE.

Rev. J. K. Alwood, D. D., contributes to the Christian Conservator the following story of lodge malevolence:

Edward (commonly known as "Ted") Wetherington, and his sister, Miss Sarah Wetherington, at Waterlow, Hillsdale county, Mich., are members of the United Brethren (old constitution) church. Early this spring Wetherington and others refused the use of their church to a certain secret order for some lodge performance, although their meeting in the church had been publicly announced, but at the appointed time they were not permitted to enter it.

The lodgemen, including Mr. Smith, the pastor of the Liberal United Brethren, were greatly enraged, but were unable to overcome the opposition that they encountered.

Soon afterward Miss Wetherington received an anonymous letter mailed at the neighboring town of Waldron, evidently disguised so as to evade suspicion, which read as follows:

"Ted you need a little advise and i give it as a frend. you had beter let up in shuten that church the K. P. lodge and masons i overhurd, have sworn vengence on you—your barns will be burnt and your life taken as sure as their is a god if you dont quit tryin to run the lodge and the people of waldron. When you come to the prayer meetin at night you want to watch your Horse and your life on the way home at night they have sworn to burn your Barn and kill you. its comin now mine you what i tell you the masons and K. P. workin after night, your death is red—and it surely will come you mind what I tell you—keep yourself guarded after night, wath your barn and horses —from a friend."

The meanness of an anonymous letter is capitally displayed in this epistle, although it contains but few capital letters. Up to date, however, there has been no demonstration of anything as threatened; and it is probable that the person who could write such a cowardly missive would never have the bravery to undertake the work which he so brutally laid out. It reads like a "bluff."

TREASON IN KANSAS.

At a meeting of newly-organized military companies, known as "home guards," at Topeka, Kan., May 25, the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That Capt. Hunter be and is hereby instructed to tender the governor the services of the home guards to maintain law and order at Leavenworth as against ex-Chief Justice Crozier, the mayor, the sheriff, the United States marshal and other riotously disposed persons.

G. C. Clemens, who presented this resolution, said: "I do not hesitate to say that one of the objects I had in view when I advocated the raising of the home guards was to have a force available so that in case the troops or the national guards are ordered out to stop commonwealers anywhere west of the Mississippi river we can stop the troops or the national guard."

This is treason against the Federal government, and should be promptly suppressed at any cost.

THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH AND SECRET SOCIETIES.

The fiftieth (or jubilee) anniversary of the organization of the General Congregational Association of Illinois was held with the Congregational churches of Oak Park and Ridgeland last week, from May 21 to 24. The exercises were full of interest, and well-attended. On the last day a memorial was received from the Wheaton College church, asking the association to re-affirm its former testimonies against the lodge system. The memorial was adopted, only a few votes being cast in opposition to it.

In this connection, it may be interesting to review the action heretofore taken on this subject, at various times, by the association.

As long ago as in 1850, at Rockford, the association declared that:

"However secret societies may differ among themselves, they are all anti-republican in their tendencies, and are all leading . . . ultimately to the theoretical and practical neutralization of Christianity."

Subsequently similar declarations were made at Farmington, Jacksonville and other parts of the State; and in 1862 the association repeated and re-affirmed all these splendid testimonies against the secret system. A few years later, with but one dissenting vote, the association adopted the report of Dr. Edward Beecher, which says of the lodge: "By it Christ is dethroned, and Satan is exalted;" and also the resolution drawn by Prof. S. C. Bartlett, sometime President of Dartmouth College, then of Chicago Theological Seminary, declaring Freemasonry "hostile to good government and the Christian religion."

In 1866 the association adopted resolutions, the fourth of which reads as follows:

"Fourth resolution. That there are certain other widespread organizations—such as Freemasonry—which, we suppose, are in their nature hostile to good citizenship and true religion, because they exact initiatory notes of blind compliance and concealment, incompatible with the claims of equal justice toward man and a good conscience toward God; because they may easily, and sometimes have actually, become combinations against the due process of law and government; because, while claiming a religious character, they, in their rituals, deliberately withhold all recognition of Christ as their only Saviour and of Christianity as the only true religion; because, while they are in fact nothing but restricted partnerships or companies for mutual insurance and protection, they ostentatiously parade this characterless engagement as a substitute for brotherly love and true benevolence; because they bring good men in confidential relations to bad men; and because, while in theory, they supplant the church of Christ, they do also, in fact, largely tend to withdraw the sympathy and active zeal of professing Christians from their respective churches. Against all connections with such associations we earnestly advise the members of our churches, and exhort them, 'Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers.'"

A triennial convention of Congregationalists, representing 1,150 churches and about 70,000 members, residing in eight different States, in April, 1873, while in session in Chicago,

"Resolved, That we desire the directors of the Western Education Society to decline aiding into the ministry any young man . . . . who is connected with any secret oath-bound society."

Such fidelity to Christianity, by earnest opposition to secret societies, through all these years, places the Congregational churches of Illinois squarely on the record of anti-secrecy organizations.

—Several articles are unavoidably omitted until our next issue.

—We hope none of our readers will forget the new monthly paper to be issued from this office regularly after this date. It is to contain matters of special interest relating to our reform, and will be furnished to annual subscribers in clubs of twenty at 10 cents per copy; single copies, 20 cents a year. Make up clubs everywhere, and keep your neighbors and friends enlightened as to what we have in hand.

—The reason why the Pope of Rome continues to issue his encyclicals against Freemasonry is not based altogether on a religious opposition, but on the fact that out of 504 members of the Italian parliament 300 belong to the objurgated fraternity, and to this majority is attributed most of the legislation in Italy adverse to the interests of the Vatican. Between the Freemasons and the papal hierarchy, the condition of Italy is described as horrible.

—At the triennial conclave of associated coffin-makers, in this city recently, the remarkable statement was made by Secretary Richards that the hard times have lowered the death-rate throughout the country. Thus there is no evil suffered to befall innocent persons without a corresponding compensation. Scarcity of money leads to economy in expenditure and cessation of many hurtful practices and social dissipation. All this tends to promote the public health and is very favorable to sober and sensible living, and the result is increased longevity.

—Bro. George Cooper Connor of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Tennessee, as we learn from his last report on correspondence, "disapproved of considerable of recent Masonic oratory as 'rhodomontade'." This is the same term that Chas. G. Finney applied to Masonic oratory and books. Bro. Connor also well said, "Our teachers and leaders should give us more facts and less flummery, more strong meat and less syllabub." We regret to state that Bro. Connor is dead, for he appears to have had a just appreciation of Masonry as he found it, and a candid form of expression concerning it.

—The General Assembly of the Presbyterian church, in session at Saratoga, N. Y., last week, refused to grant the appeal of Rev. Henry Preserved Smith, D.D., for a new trial, under his former conviction for heresy by the Ohio Synod. The effect of this action by the General Assembly is to prolong Dr. Smith's suspension from the ministry of the Presbyterian church "until such a time as he shall make manifest to the satisfaction of his presbytery his renunciation of the errors he has been found to hold and his solemn purpose to no longer teach or propagate them." The vote was by roll call and was announced as follows: To sustain the appeal made by Dr. Smith from the judgment of the presbytery, 56; to sustain in part, 45; not to sustain, 396. The effect of a vote to sustain in part is to sustain the appeal; the vote is then 95 for Dr. Smith and 394 against him. This decision is final.

REFORM NEWS (Continued from 5th page.)

gland correspondent; but I will speak of the Evangelistic Association, which held its closing session in the Clarendon Street Baptist church last evening. The object of this association is to bring churches and Christian workers together and to find out and cultivate the waste places. The thought originated with Rev. John E. Gray, who is its efficient secretary, and whose devoted service and wise generalship has, under God, made the society what it is. Its sessions continued through three days and evenings, and were well-attended. Among the speakers from abroad were Father A. Lambert, Chas. H. Yatman, Mrs. E. M. Whittemore, of New York City, and Dr. A. C. Dixon, of Brooklyn, N. Y. Such of these meetings as I was able to attend were very spiritual and helpful and, as might be expected in such gatherings, I found many who have no sympathy with Dr. Geo. C. Lorimer in giving the Masonic order preference to the church of Christ. I found tract No. 13 very opportune, and distributed many that have gone to distant fields. Some frowned, of course, but they were the exceptions. Most who stopped to speak had a word of approval, and some returned after reading, with requests for a supply for their friends. The amazing thing about it all is that so few who commend the work in private have words of warning or condemnation to utter in public. Have the brethren decided to give the devil an undisputed monopoly in his lodge scheme, or why do they pass this in silence when arraigning other evils which they concede to be less insidious and destructive to the soul than the Christ-rejecting worship in the lodge? Is such silence consistent? Is it safe for your own souls, brethren, and pleasing to God, to whom we must all give account of our stewardship? J. P. STODDARD.

FROM THE PACIFIC COAST AGENT.

PHILOMATH, Ore., May 21, 1894.

I followed up the lecture at Sheridan by visiting a Masonic brother a night or two later, and had a good long talk with him at his home. He agreed that if I could convince him that it was wrong he would quit the lodge forever. I took up the un-Christian character of it, the awful oaths, every one of which is a direct violation of the law of Christ, and the relation which Christians must sustain to unbelievers in the lodge.

While we were engaged in the most earnest conversation, there was a rap at the door. My friend opened it, when in came a brother from near Portland, who, after the usual salutations, and before he was seated, said, "Brother Williams, I want to tell you that since you stayed with me that night, and talked with me so plainly about the lodge, I have left my lodges forever, and am determined that nothing shall stand between me and my Saviour." I then turned my friend over to him, excused myself (as it was getting quite late), and went to my lodging-place for the evening. I have great hopes that the visit will be blessed of the Lord to the good of my friend, who needs to stand free and alone for Christ. He confessed to me that the meanest treatment he ever received was from a brother Mason. I sent him the Cynosure for a year.

The next day I went to Hopewell, to hold the quarterly meeting for Elder Barkley, who was still too weak to attend. We had an excellent meeting. Large crowds came to the services. I spoke once on Infidelity and touched the other reforms slightly; secured three subscribers to the paper, distributed tracts, and made some impression for good, I am confident.

This is a point where I spoke twice in June last. I was remembered by a number who gave me words of cheer. I went on Sunday evening to Amity, where I attended services in the M. E. church, and spoke after the pastor, Rev. Mr. Crandall, encouraging them all to do for Christ what was enjoined upon them and thereby be happy. I came home next day and attended the State Y. P. S. C. E. at Corvallis, as delegate from our society.

The meeting was well attended, showing a good interest in the cause throughout the State. Reports were made from points where there is no preaching at all. They have a flourishing young people's society, with weekly meetings.

On Friday, the 11th, I had to leave the meeting to attend my own quarterly meeting at Bellefontaine, fourteen miles from Philomath. Our Elder Barkley was present, but unable to preach. Rev. S. P. Conner spoke in the afternoon of Saturday. I spoke on the subject of self-examination, Sunday morning, to a large audience. I took occasion to mention our peculiar peculiarities as a denomination, and urged loyalty upon the part of the membership. I tried especially to show the consistency of our position, in contradistinction to some others who receive lodge members.

Notwithstanding my divided responsibility during the year, I find that on the field I have held my own, and have an increase of five members. All the finances are in shape save one item, which may come up yet.

After having reported for twenty years continuously I now take the broader field of moral reform, to give it all my time and energies. I have given twenty years to the active ministry of the Church of the United Brethren in Christ; active, I say, for I have never missed but two appointments; have never been but fifteen minutes late at one time, and have never had a "vacation" in my life. I need one, if I could find time to take it.

I have received into the church nearly three thousand members, and have seen many more converted. Withal, I feel, "I am an unprofitable servant."

We returned Sunday evening to Philomath, where I spoke to our regular congregation.

On Monday evening I addressed the Prohibition Club of Philomath, and on Sunday the 20th I preached on the subject of Prohibition, it being a union service held under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. The little town is stirred. Quite a number are forsaking their old-time shibboleths at the crying need of the new and living issue of prohibition.

On Saturday night I took the affirmative in the college literary society, on the Right of Women to Vote.

Thus, I am trying to spend what time I must be at home getting ready for the annual conference, putting in what work I can on the side of right.

Next week, I am billed to speak five times, at as many places, on the lodge question.

P. B. WILLIAMS.

REV. WM. FENTON AT NORTHWOOD, IOWA.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—The majority of the people of Northwood, including Rev. O. T. Lee and Rev. L. Pedersen, both pastors of Lutheran churches, received the truth very kindly, but the same could not be said of a minority, including the other two pastors and the newspapers.

The meetings began in the United Norwegian Lutheran church, of which Rev. L. Pedersen is the pastor; but certain idolaters have crept into that church; and these idolaters, when a few books exposing and condemning their lodge-idolatry were sold in that edifice, raised the cry of "church desecration." They also objected to the exhibition of a picture of their god, which picture exhibits their manner of changing the "glory of the incorruptible God into the image of a corruptible man;" they said that the picture was obscene; but certainly no obscenity could be seen in that picture until its identity with their obscene "point within a circle," which their own Lexicon tells us is to be found in every well-regulated lodge, was explained; and it was explained to the audience.

But the idolaters rule the church, and they drove the truth out of it. The town hall was likewise barred against us and the truth which makes men free from lodge and every other bondage of the souls of mankind. The other churches were out of the question of being used for that truth. However a low dingy dance-hall was secured, and the good people of the town crowded into it—the idolaters of the lodges likewise. One of the latter, a Freemason, arose in the midst of the discourse and deliberately said "rats" and walked out, which was very much to the chagrin and annoyance of his own little daughter, who was in the audience. The picture of the Freemasons' god judging the souls of the departed Freemasons was on exhibition, and his nature and character partially explained to the audience as the liar and murderer from the beginning. Even the lodge idolaters were interested; so much so that a posse of them followed us to Kensett, six miles south of Northwood. The sheriff of Worth county, a Freemason also, attended the meeting there with the posse of Masons. During the meeting they were challenged to defend and justify themselves by saying "Mah-hah-bone," but they all kept their jewels until the close of the meeting and the benediction had been pronounced. Then they crowded around the platform, and a Freemason took "Ecce Orienti" in his hand, glanced at its pages, and declared that he had read "Ecce Orienti" from beginning to end, and that the one he held in his hand was not Freemasonry, and that I knew that it was not Freemasonry. Another Freemason, a crooked lawyer, declared that I had misrepresented, or misquoted, a Masonic author by saying that Freemasonry was changed from an operative to a speculative religious institution in A. D. 1717; the Masonic lawyer claiming that Masonry was not a religious institution. But they lost their jewels—"silence and secrecy"—and we felt that they meant mischief. The hour was late, and Rev. O. T. Lee and myself left the hall during the storm of rain and wind. We had proceeded but a few rods when a shower of eggs fell around us, not one of the eggs touching us. Hoping that the Holy Spirit had been a truer marksmen with the truth aimed at their hearts than these children of the devil had been in throwing eggs at us, we reached our place of repose for the night in safety, and slept soundly.

At Kensett there is a young Lutheran, whose name I cannot spell, a theological student, who stood by the truth and defended it nobly.

Rev. O. T. Lee insisted upon going with me to the depot and, as he said, sharing the eggs with me if any were thrown; but the unholy idolaters threw no eggs at us while at the depot, but limited their vituperation to lying about us and cursing us. I ask the prayers of all the readers of the Cynosure for Rev. O. T. Lee as he rides about the prairies of heathen Iowa discharging his duty to his Master—Jesus Christ. He tells me that he has (I think) six churches to serve in his ministry.

I was not aware that I had ever wounded the Masonic beast, or the Apocalyptic image of the beast, at Menomonee, until I heard the false report flying about Northwood and Kensett that I was excommunicated from the Congregational church at Menomonee.

No doubt the devil thinks that if he can succeed in breaking down the testimony of Masonic and other lodge authors in the estimation of the people of Northwood, and make them believe, as one at least of his Masonic children says concerning me, namely, I am a villain, and a lying scoundrel, he can better hang on to his lodge worshipers and run his lodges to better advantage in Northwood. There was much like "foaming at the mouth" by the lodge demonologists. With more united prayer and the kind the Saviour spoke of, that comes by prayer and fasting, we can cast out lodge demons. I believe that the Masonic institution, with its brood—the 100 fools, K. of P.'s, A. O U. W's, etc., etc., is one stupendous demoniacal possession, with the devil for its god.

Yours truly, WILLIAM FENTON.

NORTHWOOD, Iowa, May 22, 1894

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—Last week our town was thoroughly stirred up on the subject of secret societies by a series of lectures from Rev. Wm. Fenton, of St. Paul. This place has abundant material for the lodges, and they have been thriving exceeding well. Outside of the Lutheran churches no voice has been raised against the evil. As lightning from a clear and bright heaven, Rev. Mr. Fenton's lectures came upon the people of Northwood. The first lecture was given in the Lutheran church to a moderate audience. The second evening the church was crowded. The third evening the opera hall was filled. At this time it was decided to quit Northwood on account of the growing excitement, and a lecture was announced at a neighboring town. Who should be there but a large delegation from Northwood!

During the lecture all were quiet, although requested and urged by the speaker to refute him. After the lecture a warfare of words ensued between Masons and friends of the speaker. While going home, the concluding argument was resorted to, and Mr. Fenton was chased in the rain and mud while the eggs were flying thick and fast. Happily none hit him.

Upon outsiders the lectures had a beneficial influence. Many who were bent on joining are thoroughly cured. The Masons have themselves, by their very actions, proved that the speaker knew what he was talking about, and that he dealt out large doses of truth, which, as experience teaches, works so wonderfully on certain classes of people. May truth conquer in the end. (Rev.) O. T. LEE.

THE HOME.

THREE DOORS.

Three doors there are in the temple
Where men go up to pray,
And they that wait at the outer gate
May enter by either way.

There are some that pray by asking;
They lie on the Master's breast,
And, shunning the strife of the lower life,
They utter their cry of rest.

There are some that pray by seeking;
They doubt where their reason fails;
But their mind's despair is the ancient prayer
To touch the print of the nails.

There are some that pray by knocking;
They put their strength to the wheel,
For they have not time for thoughts sublime—
They can only act what they feel.

Father, give each his answer—
Each in his kindred way;
Adapt thy light to his form of night,
And grant him his needed day.

Give to the yearning spirits,
That only thy rest desire,
The power to bask in the peace they ask,
And feel the warmth of thy fire.

Give to the soul that seeketh,
'Mid cloud and doubt and storm,
The glad surprise of the straining eyes
To see on the waves thy form.

Give to the heart that knocketh
At the doors of earthly care
The strength to tread in the pathway spread
By the flowers thou hast planted there.

Then, in the common temple,
There shall worship, hand in hand,
The lives that man's heart would hold apart
As unfit to dwell in one land.

For the middle wall shall be broken,
And the light expand its ray,
When the burdened of brain and the soother of pain
Shall be ranked with the men that pray.

—Dr. George Matheson.

"THE MAYOR WANTS TO SEE THEE."

The young man had been to sea, and on his return was narrating to his uncle, an old Montgomeryshire farmer, an adventure which he had met with on board ship. "I was one night leaning over the taffrail, looking down into the ocean," he said, "when my gold watch fell from my fob, and immediately out of sight. The ship was going ten knots an hour, but, nothing daunted, I sprang over the rail, down, down, and after a long search found the watch, came up, and chased the ship, and climbed back to the deck without anyone knowing I had been absent." "William," said his uncle, "I believe thee, but there's many a thousand that would not." "What!" exclaimed William, "you are politely insinuating that I'm a liar." "William," said the old man gravely, "thee knows that I never call anybody names; but if the mayor of Welshpool were to come and say: 'Josiah, I want thee to find the biggest liar in all Montgomeryshire,' I would come to thee and put my hand upon thy shoulder, and say to thee: 'William, the mayor wants to see thee.' "—New York Observer.

MRS. MORGAN'S QUARTER.

"Only twenty-five cents." It seemed so small to Mrs. Morgan when she thought of what the others would give, though when she remembered the barrel of flour that they must have, the shoes for Kit, the medicine for Janie, and Tom shivering without an overcoat, it seemed much larger. When she thought of all these things it seemed to her that she could not spare even twenty-five cents for the cause of missions.

"I don't believe that I will go to the Circle," she said to herself, "and then I won't have to give anything; the ladies will laugh in their sleeves to see me put it in the box with their five and ten dollar bills. The Lord knows I'd be glad to give more, but I honestly and truly can not, so I'l just stay at home and sew."

But somehow Mrs. Morgan did not feel comfortable in her mind as she settled herself to work.

"You know you're a coward," whispered her conscience very distinctly; "you know, even if you hadn't but one cent to give, that you ought to go and give it. What if they do all give more? It won't be any excuse for you not doing your duty, will it? A quarter isn't enough to do any good? How do you know that? A dollar is only four quarters, and 'Many a mickle makes a muckle.' Suppose every one who could give only a little should not give at all, wouldn't it make a difference? Besides, remember the loaves and fishes; ask the Lord's blessing on your gift, and though it may be small, yet it may have a power that a much larger one without his blessing would never have. Sarah Jane Morgan, you know that you ought to go that Mission Circle meeting and give your quarter; so put up your work and go."

And Mrs. Morgan put up her sewing, went to her room, took the despised quarter out of her pocket-book, and knelt by the bedside. "Dear Lord," she prayed, "this is all I have to give to help thy cause. Thou knowest my heart, and seest that I would gladly do more if I could. I humbly and earnestly ask thee to bless my little offering for the dear Christ's sake. Amen."

Somehow that quarter seemed very different to Mrs. Morgan when she rose from her knees, and putting on her bonnet and shawl started for the meeting.

"I believe I'll stop for Mrs. Carter," she thought as she went along.

"Now," said Mrs. Carter, "I've about given up going. I can't give much, for it's been a hard winter with us, and most of the ladies can give so much that I feel mean putting my mite in the box."

"Just exactly the way I felt at first," said Mrs. Morgan, laughing, "but it isn't the right way. We must every one do our part, no matter how small it is. Now there is my Kit; she can do ever so much to help me, and Tottie can't do anything but take steps, but she oughtn't to refuse to do that because she can't do as much as Kit, ought she? And then the little steps do help wonderfully, after all, sometimes."

"That's a good word, Mrs. Morgan. Thank you ever so much, and I'll remember it. Just wait a minute, and I'll go right along with you."

"John," said Mrs. Thompson that noon to her husband, "I want some money. The Mission Circle meets this afternoon, and then I want to do a few errands, so please give me ten or fifteen dollars.

"I suppose the most of it is for the Mission Circle," he said, laughingly.

"I'm not going to give but a dollar, any way," thought Mrs. Thompson, as she dressed for meeting; "and I will stop at Leonard's on my way home and get that lovely lace scarf. I don't know but it is extravagant to pay ten dollars for it, but I do want it so much. Dear me, what would my dear, good mother say to me!" and Mrs. Thompson sighed as she remembered how far she had strayed from that mother's teachings.

Now it happened that Mrs. Morgan and Mrs. Carter sat directly in front of Mrs. Thompson at the meeting, and she curiously watched them. "I wonder what they find to be so interested in," she thought.

"I am so glad that those two are out," whispered Mrs. Allen. I do like that Mrs. Morgan so much. I believe she does more for missions than any of us, for she gives out of her poverty and prays over what she gives, which is more than the rest of us do, who don't deny ourselves any in giving either."

Mrs. Thompson made no reply, but somehow she thought more and more of that dear mother. She had loved the cause of missions and prayed for it, and like Mrs. Morgan, she had had but little to give. "What would she say to me?" thought Mrs. Thompson for the second time that afternoon.

A little incident which she had not thought of for many years suddenly came to her remembrance. She had discovered that her mother was denying herself that she might have to give, and she had tried to persuade her to use the money on herself.

" 'Will I offer to the Lord that which cost me nothing?' quoted her mother, earnestly. 'No, dear, it is a comfort to give up something for his sake.'

What if she should give up the coveted lace scarf; what if she should? How the strange question kept ringing in her ears! But after all it was Mrs. Morgan who decided it. Mrs. Thompson saw her take out her poor, worn little pocket-book—plenty large enough, though, to hold all Mrs. Morgan had to put into it. She watched her open it, and saw that it held only a quarter and a very little smaller change. She saw her take the quarter and drop it into the box with a joyful, wistful expression, and the hot tears filled Mrs. Thompson's eyes.

"She finds the comfort just as mother did," she thought.

A minute later, and a crisp ten-dollar bill dropped softly from Mrs. Thompson's hand into the box.

"But my mother and Mrs. Morgan gave it," said Mrs. Thompson to herself.

Mrs. Morgan never heard of her part in it, but what did that matter? She knew that she had done what she could.—Gospel in all Lands.

COUNSEL TO CONVERTS.

As an aged minister, who has labored in more than forty revivals, I would give the following advice to young converts:

Be sure that you have turned away from every sin.

Be sure that you have accepted Christ, not only as your Saviour, but also as your exemplar, pattern and guide.

If you have wronged any one, take every possible step to make it right.

Pray much. Take all doubtful things to God in prayer. Have set times for prayer.

Be especially guarded against your besetting faults.

Avoid temptation if possible; if not, bravely meet it, trusting in God's grace.

Seek the society and counsel of experienced Christians, especially your pastor.

Be unselfish. Do not think too much about yourself.

By all means have your church home. Attend upon its services. Help sustain them.

Bear testimony for Christ in public and private. Seek some Christian work. Learn to love it.

Never be satisfied till you have won some soul to Christ and the Christian life.

Study the Bible. Learn to love it. Let the teaching of the New Testament be sufficient authority for you.

Avoid trashy literature. Read the best.

Be earnest and content with the work in hand.

Remember that he that ruleth his own spirit is greater than he that who taketh a city.—The North and West.

GREAT YOUNG MEN.

Charles James Fox was in Parliament at nineteen.

The great Cromwell left the University of Cambridge at eighteen.

John Bright was never at any school a day after he was fifteen years old.

Gladstone was in Parliament at twenty-two, and at twenty-four was Lord of the Treasury.

Lord Bacon graduated at Cambridge at sixteen, and was called to the bar at twenty-one.

Peel was in Parliament at twenty-one, and Palmerston was Lord of the Admiralty at twenty-three.

Henry Clay was in the Senate of the United States, contrary to the Constitution, at twenty-nine.

Morris of Saxony died at thirty-two, conceded to have been one of the profoundest statesmen and one of the best generals which Christendom has seen.

Martin Luther had become largely distinguished at twenty-four, and at fifty-six had reached the topmost round of his world-wide fame.

Webster was in college at fifteen, gave evidence of his great future before he was twenty-five, and at thirty he was the peer of the ablest man in Congress.

Washington was a distinguished colonel in the army at twenty-two, early in public affairs, commander of the forces at forty-two and President at fifty-seven.

Napoleon at twenty-five commanded the army of Italy. At thirty he was not only one of the most illustrious generals of the time, but one of the great law-givers of the world. At forty-six he saw Waterloo.

The great Louis X. was Pope at thirty-eight. Having finished his academic training, he took the office of Cardinal at eighteen—only twelve months younger than was Charles James Fox when he entered Parliament.

Judge Story was at Harvard at fifteen, in Congress at twenty-nine, and Judge of the Supreme Court of the United States at thirty-two.

William Pitt entered the ministry at fourteen, was Chancellor of the Exchequer at twenty-two, Prime Minister at twenty-four, and so continued for twenty years, and when thirty-five was the most powerful uncrowned head in Europe.—Young Men's Era.

IT IS MEAN AND CRUEL.

The Arabians have a quaint old story that has a noble lesson in it: A haughty favorite of an Oriental monarch, who was passing along the highway—so runs the story—threw a stone at a poor dervish, or priest. The dervish did not dare to throw it back at the man who had assaulted him, for he knew the favorite was very powerful. So he picked up the stone and put it carefully in his pocket, saying to himself: "The time for revenge will come by-and-by, and then I will repay him for it." Not long afterward this same dervish, in walking through the city, saw a great crowd coming toward him. He hastened to see what was the matter, and found, to his astonishment, that his enemy, the favorite, who had fallen into disgrace with the king, was being paraded through the principal streets on a camel, exposed to the jests and insults of the populace. The dervish, seeing all this, hastily grasped at the stone which he carried in his pocket, saying to himself: "The time for my revenge has now come, and I will repay him for his insulting conduct." But, after considering a moment, he threw the stone away, saying: "The time for revenge never comes; for if our enemy is powerful, revenge is dangerous as well as foolish; and if he is weak and wretched, then revenge is worse than foolish, it is mean and cruel. And in all cases it is forbidden and wicked."—Exchange.

THE BLOTTED PAGE.

The writing master entered the class-room, passing from one pupil to another reviewing the task he had set before them.

He passed before the new comer; the page was blotted, scratched and disfigured with the stain of many tears.

"Master," said the boy, in trembling accents, "I have labored in vain; my hand is crippled; there is no resemblance between these crooked lines and the model I have endeavored to imitate; but, master, pity me, for I have done my very best."

By his side sat his companion.

"Behold my page!" he exclaimed. "It is fair and clean, untouched by an ungainly mark. Oh, master, in my wisdom I forebore to incur your displeasure. Is not a blank page preferable to the tear-stained, mishaped attempts of a crippled hand that cannot, and never will be able to make a fair copy?"

The master threw aside the clean, white page, without vouchsafing to cast a glance upon it, but he leaned with infinite compassion and tenderness toward the pupil who did his best; gently, he took his hand and guided it over the line, with words of love and encouragement; and the humble pupil took courage and rejoiced, while his idle companion looked upon his fair white page, and saw its brightness overshadowed by the displeasure of the master.—New York Observer.

A TOUCHING INCIDENT.

We heard a story told the other day that made our eyes moisten. We have determined to tell it, just as we heard it, to our little ones:

A company of poor children, who had been gathered out of the alleys and garrets of the city, were preparing for their departure to new and distant homes in the west. Just before the time of starting of the cars, one of the boys was noticed aside from the officers, and apparently very busy with a cast-off garment. The superintendent stepped up to him, and found that he was cutting a small piece out of the patched linings. It proved to be his old jacket, which, having been replaced by a new one, had been thrown away. There was no time to be lost.

"Come, John, come," said the superintendent, "what are you going to do with that old piece of calico?"

"Please, sir," said John, "I am cutting it to take with me. My dead mother put the lining in this old jacket for me. This was a piece of her dress, and it is all I have to remember her by."

And as the poor boy thought of that dead mother's love, and the sad death scene in the garret where she died, he covered his face with his hands, and sobbed as if his heart would break. But the train was about leaving, and John thrust the little piece of calico into his bosom to remember his mother by, hurried into the car, and was soon far away from the place where he had known so much sorrow. We know many an eye will moisten as the story is told and retold throughout the country, and many a prayer will go to God for the fatherless and motherless in all the great cities, and in all places. Little readers, are your mothers still spared to you? Will you not show your love by obedience? That little boy who loved so well, we are sure, obeyed. Bear this in mind, that if you should one day have to look upon the face of a dead mother, no thought would be so bitter as to remember that you had given her pain by your wilfulness or disobedience.—Old School Presbyterian.

THE POPPY-LAND LIMITED EXPRESS.

The first train starts at 6 P. M.,
For the land where the poppy grows;
The mother, dear, is the engineer,
And the passenger laughs and crows.

The palace car is the mother's arms,
The whistle, a low, sweet strain;
The passenger winks, and nods and blinks,
And goes to sleep in the train.

At 8 P. M. the next train starts
For the Poppy-land afar;
The summons clear falls on the ear,
"All aboard for the sleeping car!"

"But what is thefare to Poppy-land?"
I hope it is not dear.
The fare is this—a hug and a kiss,
And 'tis paid to the engineer.

So I ask of Him who children took
On his knee in kindness great,
"Take charge, I pray, of the trains each day,
That leave between six and eight.

"'Keep watch o'er the passengers,' thus I pray,
'For to me they are very dear·
And special ward, O gracious Lord!
O'er the gentle engineer.'"

—The Friend, Philadelphia.

TEMPERANCE.

NATIONAL TEMPERANCE SOCIETY.

The Twenty-ninth Anniversary of the National Temperance Society, Maj.-Gen. O. O. Howard, President, was held in the Broadway Tabernacle, corner Thirty-fourth street and Broadway, New York City, on Tuesday, the 8th day of May, 1894. The annual report was presented by J. N. Stearns, the Corresponding Secretary. Mr. Stearns said:

"We passed our twenty-ninth mile post to-day in our march towards final victory. We are somewhat foot-sore, a little leg-weary, have been obliged to slow up a little for 'breakers ahead,' but, though somewhat cast down, are not discouraged or dismayed. It has been a year of difficulty and of triumph. The Lord of hosts has been with us, and we rejoice in his strength.

"This afternoon, at our twenty-ninth annual meeting, we elected that veteran soldier and Christian philanthropist, Major-General O. O. Howard, as our president for the coming year, and received reports of all departments of our work.

"Thirty new publications have been issued, making 2,082 on our list; 28,459,865 pages have been printed during the year.

"The receipts have been $43,166.15, of which $31,443.82 are for publications, and $11,322.30 for donations, legacies and interest on invested funds.

"Of our publications for the year, 'Temperance in all Nations' is the most valuable. It is in two volumes of over 1,000 pages, giving a history of the cause in all lands, and containing the proceedings of the World's Temperance Congress in Chicago during the progress of the World's Fair. It is the most comprehensive and exhaustive work of the kind ever published in any country, and is a perfect encyclopædia in itself.

"Our missionary work assumes larger proportions every year, covering the nation and extending into foreign lands. The publication and circulation of the literature is very largely a missionary work. The great majority of temperance publications never pay the cost of manufacture in dollars and cents. Our great missionary work is among the colored people of the Southern States. We have several colored missionaries constantly at work among their own people, preaching, lecturing, visiting homes, distributing literature, and in every way possible teaching the principles of total abstinence.

"It was my privilege, last March, to visit many large colored institutions in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, and to address large audiences of colored people in churches and schools, and I was greatly gratified to see the wonderful progress made and the knowledge and conviction they have in regard to the evil nature of the drink. In all these great schools and colleges, they are studying the nature and effects of alcohol upon the human system, and even children understand that alcohol is a poison, and not fit for the healthy human system.

"I had the pleasure during my visit to Charleston and Columbia, S. C., to see the workings of the Dispensary Law of that State and measure the pulse of public opinion in regard to it. I visited the dispensaries where liquor is sold in bottles to everybody who came, had an interview with Governor Tillman, conversed with leading men of all parties and denominations, and was with the constables in a raid upon four or five 'Blind Tigers' in Charleston where liquor was illegally sold. Of course we could not find any of the liquor, for as in Maine, Iowa, and other prohibitory States, they had secret hiding places underground, subterranean passages, and out-of-way places where they could put the stuff when called upon by the constables.

"There were some good points about the law, as with all other laws in every other State where a number of prohibitory clauses are attached, but it gave the sanction, protection and sustentation of the State to the business. There are no visible reliable evidences that the volume of drink or drunkenness was in any way diminished throughout the State. Liquor was stored in private houses in great abundance. The Supreme Court, however, declared the law unconstitutional, and for the present the ghost of State control of the liquor traffic is laid away to rest with hardly a chance of resurrection."

THE BREWER TURNED REFORMER.

The fact that Mr. F. N. Charrington resigned a position in the famous brewing firm on conscientious grounds is well known, but we are not aware that the story has been fully told. The details, as given by Mr. Charrington himself the other day to a representative of a Sydney newspaper, are as follows: 'I was barely twenty-one years of age," he said, "and was spending a holiday abroad in the south of France, when I met the son of the Rev. Marcus Rainford, a well-known clergyman. The result of the acquaintanceship was that I began to look at things in a wholly different light, and upon returning to London took an active interest in the condition of the people in the slums."

One day, outside a public-house, Mr. Charrington saw a poor woman asking her drunken husband for money to buy some bread for the children. He replied by knocking her down. "The next moment," proceeded Mr. Charrington, "I happened to glance up at the top of the public-house, and there I saw my own name in very large letters—'Charrington, Head & Co.' As I walked away I said to myself: 'If this is the sort of thing for which I am responsible; if it is my money and my influence that causes this crime and suffering, I will never have anything more to do with the trade.' And from that hour I never entered the brewery again."

There and then Mr. Charrington told his father that he could not see his way to succeed him, and that there was nothing for him but to resign his prospects. "I was then nearly twenty-one years of age. I am now forty-four. My younger brother stepped into my place, and is to-day a millionaire; but I should like to add that my father, when upon his death-bed, said to me: 'You are right, Fred; you have taken the proper course.' And I afterward found that he had left me in his will, quite independent of the brewery, enough to live upon without adopting a profession. That, of course, enabled me to devote myself, as I have done, to voluntary work among the poor."—Westminster Gazette.

BIBLE LESSON.

STUDIES IN THE BOOKS OF MOSES.

LESSON XI.—Second Quarter, 1894, June 10.

SUBJECT.—Passage of the Red Sea.—Exodus 14: 19-29.

GOLDEN TEXT.—By faith they passed through the Red Sea.—Hebrews 11: 29.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Ex. 14: 19-31. T.—Ex. 14: 5-12. W.—Ex. 14: 13-18. Th.—Ex. 15: 1-10. F.—Ex. 15: 11-19. S.—Psalm 16: 1-12. S.—Isaiah 51: 9-16.

COMMENTS BY E. E. FLAGG.

1. God is a light to his people, but clouds and thick darkness to his enemies. Vs. 19, 20. Hitherto the angel of God's Presence had gone before them. Now, when they were about to make the passage of the Red Sea, he changed his position and went behind them. They no longer needed him in a special manner as a guide, but as a shield. So God reveals his presence to his people in different ways, according to their circumstances. When they need special protection he gives it. But the Lord God is both a sun and shield. The pillar of cloud and fire between the two camps gave light to the Israelites, but was only a cloud and darkness to the Egyptians. "The one came not near the other all night." "In the time of trouble he shall hide me." If God so fulfilled his promise thousands of years ago he will fulfill it now; for "the Lord is not a man that he should change."

Among other important lessons we note: 1. The judgments of God are dark to the unbelieving, but to them who trust him they are so illumined by the sunshine of his love that they get light from their heavenward way on his darkest providences. 2. No real harm can come to the Christian. The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him. Men may kill the body, but neither men nor devils can kill or even hurt the soul. They have no more that they can do.

2. The deliverance. Vs. 21, 22. "And the Lord caused the sea to go back by a strong east wind." In the graphic language of Geikie, "The night set in dark and stormy, with a violent northeast gale, which blew all night and drove the waters before it at ebb-tide into the southwest bay, till the sandy ridge of the ford was laid bare; the shore waters thus becoming a wall, or protection, to the Hebrews on the right, and those of the open sea on the left hand." God uses instruments to work out his purposes. What we call a miracle is only the workings of some higher law than any with which we are acquainted, or else some extraordinary manifestation of ordinary natural laws, as in the present instance. "The storm prolonging the ebb delayed the flow of the tide." This gave time to the Hebrews, who could not march very rapidly, encumbered with their children and cattle, to reach the opposite shore before morning. "The waters were a wall unto them." God can make our sorest trials a protecting wall around us. Many a seemingly adverse providence has proved a blessing in disguise. Poverty has often been a barrier against temptations which might otherwise have wrecked the soul. The children of Israel found it dry ground in the midst of the sea. Whatever sorrow God calls us to pass through; whatever trouble or affliction, even death itself, we have his promise, "When thou passest through the waters I will be with thee, and through the rivers they shall not overflow thee." We shall find it "dry ground in the midst of the sea."

3. The destruction of Pharaoh and his hosts. Vs. 23-29. "Whom the gods would destroy they first make mad." Common prudence might have kept the Egyptians from taking such a risk, but, flushed with the prospect of an easy victory over the hordes of helpless fugitives, they overlooked the danger that a change of wind, which might occur any moment, would bring high tide and render the ford impassable. They could have cut off the retreat of the Israelites by making the circuit of the shore, but it would have added greatly to the fatigue of their already long and wearisome march. They chose the quickest and easiest course, and madly dashed in after them. But the pillar of cloud and fire troubled and confused them. They could not see in the darkness that it was going behind instead of before the fugitives; and thought themselves nearer their prey than they really were. Josephus tells us that a terrible storm of wind and rain, with thunder and lightning, added to their discomfort and bewilderment. Their chariot wheels, imbedded in the moist yielding sand, would not turn and were broken at the axles. There arose one wild cry from the pursuing host, "Let us flee from the face of Israel, for the Lord fighteth for them against the Egyptians." The flower of Pharaoh's army were ready to turn back in panic-stricken terror from an undisciplined horde of fugitive slaves. The weakest are invincible when God fights for them. But it was too late. "The sea returned to his strength when the morning appeared, and the Egyptians fled before it." They themselves were now pursued by an enemy even more relentless and unsparing. "There remained not so much as one of them." Their destruction was utter and complete. Egyptian annals say nothing about this catastrophe. They chronicled the triumphs and victories, not the failures and defeats. Sacred history gives us both sides, and thus demonstrates its truthfulness.

LITERATURE.

PAMPHLETS.

We are in receipt from the Blakely Printing Co., 184–186 Monroe street, Chicago, of a neat pamphlet entitled:—"Suggestive Essays on Various Subjects. Creation vs. Evolution. By Ormond." Pp. 67. Price, 25 cents. The twelve essays included under this general head are: The Creation of Man; Faith of the Ages; The Solution; The Philosophy of Existence; The Nature of Man; The Wealth of a Well-stored Mind; The Philosophy of Mind; The Life of Man; The Pleasure of Life; The Substance of Things Hoped For; The Evidence of Things Not Seen, and the Art of Correct Reasoning. These essays are scholarly in their construction and philosophical in their treatment, and rather favor the idea of Creation contained in the dictum of the Almighty when he spake the earth and its inhabitants into being—"And God saw everything that he had made, and behold, it was very good." (Gen. 1: 31) To Creation, however, "Ormond" adds natural development, or progress in whatever God has pronounced "very good," and rejects the idea of Darwin as to the evolution of the perfect from the imperfect as a law of being. Space will not permit us to enlarge upon the writer's opinions, beyond the quotation of a few paragraphs:

"Naturalists have attracted some attention to their science by showing and arguing at great length as to the similarity of structure that shows itself in the different species of animal life. The inferences they have drawn from these similarities of structure is that perhaps all animals up to and including man might have come from an original protoplasm.

"This theory met with considerable favor at one time, because it seemed in some respects more reasonable than to believe in the technical theory of the creation of all things out of nothing, which had been previously taught.

"A great many professed to believe in the evolution of man from a protoplasm as a demonstrated truth, but good thinkers were simply inclined to examine the evidences in support of such a stupendous statement, and the more they read the more convinced they became that the author or originator of the theory did not claim his ability to demonstrate.

"If Mr. Darwin succeeded in proving anything by his researches and writings it was this, that notwithstanding the similarity of structure between the different species of animal life, the difference was still so great that only the divine power of creation could bridge it."—Philosophy of Existence, pp. 38, 39.

"Ormond" writes rather as a logician than as a Christian, and without reference to the work of divine revelation, without which our knowledge of human nature, its origin, purpose, and destiny must remain an impenetrable secret. As for the work of Christ, he ignores it entirely, seemingly trusting to our spiritual advancement in this world through our mental and sentimental faculties, and finding a higher condition of progress in the world to come. Sin never seems to enter into his calculation, and the atonement has apparently no existence. With these serious omissions, no theory of human perfection can ever be properly demonstrated. Hence "Ormond's" book is almost as incomplete as one of Darwin's protoplasms.

"The Burlington Plan of Church Work" is the name of a little pamphlet, describing the methods employed in the First Church, Burlington, Vt. An executive committee at the head presides over committees on Sunday morning service, Sunday evening service, midweek prayer meeting, district visiting and personal work. Laymen take the management of the details so that the pastor's burdens are lightened. Each member of the church may have something to do. The plans described are in successful operation and show how the effectiveness of the regular church services may be greatly increased. The plan has the approval of Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, Rev. B. Fay Mills, Rev. Chas. E Dickenson and others. For copies of the pamphlet address Rev. Frank Lewis, 136 N. Union street, Burlington, Vt.

LITERARY DIGEST.

The Literary Digest for May 26 presents a fine array of popular reading, in great variety, and liberally illustrated. Among its contents we notice: America's Markets; For and Against the Extension of our Export-trade. The Ethics of Dynamite; a writer discusses the social conditions that have brought dynamiters into existence. The Gothenburg System; Argument for and Against its Adoption, Civil-Service Reform—Investigation of Charges of Bribery Against Senators. A Plan to Equalize the Burdens and Benefits of Protection. The Role Played by Dust in Nature; a remarkable and interesting paper. Right-sightedness and Left-sightedness; an illustrated article. Currents in the Great Lakes, with map. Bees as Messengers, etc. Prussia and the Catholics; several opinions are given. The Silver Question: Opinions from Mexico, Straits of Malacca, and China. Russian Progress in Asia: Building of the Trans-Siberian Railway. England and the Suez Canal: Opinions from Rangoon, etc. Religious Life in Japan. Japanese View of Religion in America. Christianity and Freedom of Worship. The Price of "The Literary Digest" is $3 00 per year; 10 cents per copy. Funk & Wagnalls Company, 30 Lafayette Place, New York.

NOTE.

John Burroughs, in a chapter of "Field-notes" in the Century for June, says that the eye always sees what it wants to see, and the ear hears what it wants to hear. Some people see four-leaved clovers wherever they look into the grass, and he tells of a friend of his who picks up Indian relics all about the fields; he has Indian relics in his eye. "I have seen him turn out of the path at right angles, as a dog will when he scents something, and walk straight away several rods, and pick up an Indian pounding stone He saw it out of the corner of his eye." This intimate acquaintance with the every-day side of animate nature is vouchsafed to but few.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

BAPTIST.

—Dr. George Dana Boardman, who has been pastor of the First Baptist church, Philadelphia, for many years, has sought release from it, but has been made honorary pastor, and is to be given a testimonial of appreciation amounting to $10,000.

—The National Baptist, of Philadelphia, has been sold to the Examiner. It had a very large constituency, was ably edited, and yet has been running in expenditures from $2,500 to $3,500 ahead of receipts for several years.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL.

—A newspaper dispatch announces the death of Rev. Dr. J. O. Peck, one of the Missionary Secretaries of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Dr. Peck was formerly pastor of the Centenary church in Chicago, and pre-eminently a man of devotion to his work. As a pastor he was a great success, always seeing the work of the Lord greatly revive in his hands. A large number of souls were added to the church under his ministry. As Missionary Secretary he was successful in combining the truly spiritual and evangelistic with the financial part of his work.

—The corner-stone of the new Methodist Episcopal church and college was laid in Rome, Italy, on Wednesday afternoon, May 9, with imposing ceremonies in the presence of a distinguished gathering of church dignitaries, diplomats, public officials, and others.

—The General Minutes of the M. E. Church, South, just published, give the present total membership of that church at 1,345,210. The gain during the past year was 39,405. They have 5,487 itinerant preachers and 6,673 local preachers.

PRESBYTERIAN.

—It was stated in the meeting of the Presbytery of New York City that, so far as could be ascertained, "not a single member of the Presbyterian church had applied for aid to any of the public charities of the city," during the past winter.

MISCELLANEOUS.

—Between the years 1884–93 there was given to Catholic institutions, by the government of New York City, $5,526,733. The Protestants of all names, in the same decade, received $395,467.

—A New England paper refers to the shortest pastorate on record which occurred recently in a church in Central New York. The minister was called, went to begin his work, and not finding things as had been represented, preached his opening sermon in the morning and his farewell one in the evening, and left on the first train Monday.

—The Salvation Army in India has 10,000 enrolled soldiers and 431 officers. At present it is under the direction of Miss Lucy M. Booth, who has the title of "Colonel Ruhani."

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

111 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 65 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers. 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Allyn's Ritual of Freemasonry by Avery Allyn contains the fully Illustrated Ritual of the Blue Lodge, Chapter Council and Commandery, 11 of the Scotch Rite Degrees, Several Masonic side degrees and what is termed a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, the Orange and Odd-fellows Societies. Price in cloth $5.00.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor. Profusely illustrated with explanatory engravings, and containing the ritual and work of the order for the seven degrees, including the Royal Arch. Though extensively used as an Instruction Book and one of the best in the market it is not as accurate as "Freemasonry Illustrated," the first book on catalogue. Price in cloth, $2.50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry. Containing the ceremonies of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, etc. Illustrated. Although extensively used in conferring the higher degrees, it is not only very incomplete but inaccurate especially as regards the first seven degrees, and as to the higher degrees it gives but a description and general idea of the degrees rather than the full ritual. Price in cloth, $1.25; Paper covers, 75c.

Look to the East. A Ritual of the first three Masonic Degrees by Ralph Lester. Price in cloth $2.00. Notwithstanding the high price this book is very inferior in every way to Freemasonry Illustrated or The Handbook of Freemasonry at a quarter the price.

Ecce Orienti. The Complete Standard Ritual of the First Three Masonic Degrees in Cypher, with complete Floor Charts of Initiating, Passing and Raising a Candidate. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Cabala. The Complete Standard Ritual of the Chapter Masonic Degrees; 4th to 7th inclusive, in Cypher. Giving the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master and Royal Arch, Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Council of the Orient. The Complete Standard Ritual of Council Masonic Degrees in Cypher, 8th to 10th inclusive. Giving the Degrees of Royal Master, Select Master and Super Excellent Master. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

Knights of the Orient. The complete Ritual of the Commandery Masonic Degrees, Knights of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta, 11th to 13th degrees. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

The Mystic Shrine Illustrated. An Illustrated Ritual of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. This is a Side Masonic degree conferred only on Knights Templar and on Thirty-two degree Masons. 15 cts. each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion. 5 cents each.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50cts.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Odd-fellowship: Its History and its Work. By President J. Blanchard. A neat pamphlet with cover. Postpaid. 5 cts.

OTHER RITUALS.

Revised Knights of Pythias Illustrated. An exact copy of the new Official Ritual Adopted by the Supreme Lodge of the World, with the Secret work added and fully Illustrated. In cloth 50 cts. Paper cover 25 cts.

Knights of the Orient Illustrated. The full Illustrated Ritual of Ancient Order of the Orient, or the Oriental degree. This is a side degree conferred mostly in Knights of Pythias lodges. 15 cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and council. 25cts each.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin. Illustrated with engravings. 25 cents each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords etc. 15cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated, "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each.

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

Knights of Labor Illustrated. ("Adelphon Kruptos.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

Folly, Expense and Danger of Secret Societies. By Pres. C. A. Blanchard. This booklet of 32 pages is a general discussion of the secret orders, whether religious, political, industrial, insurance or social. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Disloyal Secret Oaths. By Joseph Cook, Boston. He quotes the law of Vermont which makes the administration of the Masonic oaths illegal. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing? An address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891. W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's, too." A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void: or Freemasonry Self-Convicted. This is a book for the times. The design of the author is to refute the arguments of those who claim that the oaths of Freemasonry are binding upon those who take them. 207 pages. Postpaid, 40 cents each.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the lodge when S. H. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry. 15 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 396 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 18 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Masonry a Work of Darkness, adverse to Christianity, and inimical to republican government. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian) a seceding Mason of 21 degrees. 15 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. J. Day Brownlee. In reply to a Masonic Oration by Rev. Dr. Mayer, Wellsville, Ohio. 5 cents each.

Masonic Outrages. Compiled by Rev. H. H. Hinman. Showing Masonic assault on lives of seceders, on reputation, and on free speech; its interference with justice in courts, etc. Postpaid, 20 cents.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife, of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty-three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

A Booklet of 107 pages, which includes "The Martyr's Own Monument," by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association; "Christian Politics," by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure; "The Mysterious Machine: Was it Lawn-mower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what?" by Prof. E. D. Bailey, of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government. Postpaid 25 cts.

Jonathan Blanchard's Sermons and Addresses. Select discourses of the first editor of the Cynosure. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of living reform, Secret Societies, The Sabbath, Temperance, National Reform, Christian Education, Christian Socialism, The Bible, etc. A book everybody should read. 12mo. Fine photogravure portrait. Price, 75 cents.

American Handbook and Citizen Manual. By Manlove N. Butler. Contents: Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement. Over 200 pages. Paper, single copy, 40c.

Image of the Beast: A Secret Empire; or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy. By Rev. Richard Horton. Third edition. 200 pages. Cloth. Price, 60 cents.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages paper cover. 25cts each.

Eminent Men on Secret Societies. Composed of "Washington Opposed to Secret Societies," "Judge Whitney's Defence," "The Mystic Tie," "Narratives and Arguments," the "Anti-mason's Scrap-Book" and "Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry as Proved in the New Berlin Trials." 396 pages, cloth, $1.00.

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. L. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear area of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Prof. J. G Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies. A most convincing argument against fellowshiping Freemasons in the Christian church. 10 cents each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have. 5 cents each.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher. In cloth, 35cts each; paper covers, 15cts each.

Between Two Opinions: or the Question of the Hour. By Miss E. E. Flagg author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages, cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William M'Nary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury; "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion," and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth $1.00.

Stories of the Gods. By I. R. B. Arnold. Brief sketches from the mythology of Rome, Greece, Egypt, India, Persia, Phrygia, Scandinavia, Africa and America, showing the relations and unity of past and present systems. The idolatrous worship of the Masonic lodge is thus clearly seen and understood. Postpaid, 10 cents.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50cts each.

HOME AND HEALTH.

HAVE YOU LEARNED—

The value of sunshine?

To change a house into a home?

The great uplifting power of music?

To think and judge without prejudice?

To look up, then reach up and grasp the best?

That some uncomfortable words may be overcome?

How much environment has to do with what you are?

What a little thing will sometimes make a child happy?

That an outside door, or even the glass in it, may tell secrets?

To distribute good cheer, sweet thoughts, tender remembrances?

That a clear, bright light conducts to social, friendly chat at tea time?

That there are two kinds of wealth, and that one is of the heart and mind?

That the paper and pictures on the wall, the carpets and curtains may affect the mood of a sensitive person?

That a tidy is out of place when it becomes more important than the object which it is supposed to protect?

From experience, that discouragements are to be found on all sides, but that encouragements are dealt out sparingly by prudent hands?—Good Housekeeping.

VALUABLE RECIPES.

A raw egg, if swallowed in time, will loose a fish-bone fastened in the throat. The whites of two eggs will render the deadly corrosive sublimate harmless.

Dish towels and common towels can be ironed just as well in half the time if folded together once, as is ironed singly.

The clothes line, as soon as its duty is ended, should be reeled up and placed in a bag until next time.

Bathe the eyes, when tired or weak, in warm salt water; it will soothe and strengthen them.

Either red or white oak bark is excellent to keep in your water troughs for chickens.

Equal parts of sweet oil and vinegar make an excellent preparation for polishing furniture.

Eat parsley, after onions, and it will effectually destroy any odor of the breath.

If troubled from too free perspiration, bathe in strong solution of soda.

To wash wicker chairs when soiled, use strong brine.

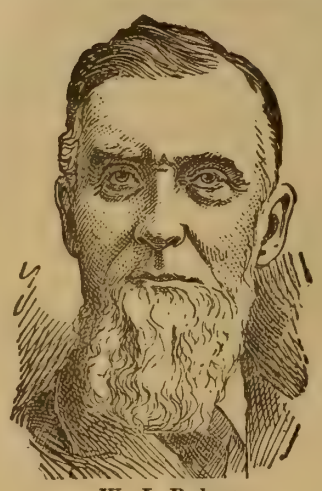
Wash oilcloth with sweet milk and water.

When the hair has fallen out, leaving the head bald, if the scalp is not shiny, there is a chance of regaining the hair by using Hall's Hair Renewer.

"Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething" softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain and cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

BUY DIRECT AND SAVE DEALER'S $12 AND AGENT'S PROFITS.
buy our Oxford Boss Bicycle, suitable for either sex, made of best material, strong, substantial, accurately adjusted and fully warranted. Write to-day for our large complete catalogue of bicycles, parts, repairs, etc., free. OXFORD MFG. CO.
338 Wabash Avenue, - CHICAGO, ILL.

THE MYSTIC SHRINE
Illustrated.
THE FULL
ILLUSTRATED RITUAL
OF THE
Nobles of the Mystic Shrine
PRICE 15 CENTS, EACH.
NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago



W. J. Baker
North Pembroke, Mass.

After the Grip

Relief from Hood's Sarsaparilla Wonderful and Permanent.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"I had kidney trouble and severe pains in my back, which was brought about by a cold contracted while in camp at Linnfield in 1862. I have been troubled more or less since that time and have been unable to do any heavy work, much less any lifting. I received only temporary relief from medicines. Last spring I had an attack of the grip, which left me with physically, in fact my system was completely run down. I tried a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla and it made me feel so much better that I continued taking it, and have taken six bottles. It has done wonders for me, as I have not been so free from my old pains and troubles since the war. I consider Hood's Sarsaparilla a God-sent blessing to the suffering." WILLIAM J. BAKER, North Pembroke, Mass.

A Bad Cough, Very Weak

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Hood's Pills cure Constipation by restoring the peristaltic action of the alimentary canal.

The Very Best!

1894—LIGHT and LIFE LESSONS—1894
(INTERNATIONAL)

In book form, containing all the lessons for the entire year, with four large pages of instructions and comments on each lesson, comments being adapted to the Advanced, Intermediate, and Primary classes; Black Board Exercises, Maps, Bible Dictionary, and Class Registers beside other valuable helps. 225 Pages.

Paper covers, postpaid..... .35
Clubs of five or more, postpaid..... .30
Cloth covers, postpaid..... .50
Clubs of five or more, postpaid..... .40

Read what is said about it:

"The classification of each of these fifty-two Lessons is excellent. The choicest of Biblical literature has been drawn upon for material to make it one of the very best lesson expositors extant, and in this respect its compilers have achieved flattering success. Its cheapness and its merits entitle it to a general acceptance by Sunday-school workers."—CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE.

"The book will prove a great convenience and a blessing."—EARNEST CHRISTIAN.

"This is a very complete and valuable guide to the Sunday school teacher for the International Lessons of 1894."—METHODIST RECORDER.

"This is the best thing by way of S. S. supplies I have ever seen."—W. W. HULET.

"It is a marvel of neatness and cheapness."—T. C. GIVENS.

"I am highly pleased with it."—JAMES I. COUNCIL.

"We like it exceedingly well and presume the plan will be continued in the future; if so you may count on us to subscribe for it."—VICTOR CHARROIN.

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer. Ennis, Texas.

Sermons of Rev. John McNeill,

12mo. cloth, 416 pages, $1.50.

The fame of this Scottish Spurgeon, as he is very generally called, is becoming as wide-spread as the English tongue. The secret of his power over the masses, has been discussed on both sides of the Atlantic. If one may judge from these printed sermons the secret lies in a homely and pointed putting of the old truths of the Gospel in plain Anglo-saxon. There is evidence of study, but more the study of human nature, and particularly the human heart, than that of books, other than the Book of books—with this volume Mr. McNeill is evidently in love. With unquestioned faith he believes the writen word, and preaches it with an earnestness born of conviction.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

Where Grapes are Choicest

—sweeter and juicier than anywhere else—they're taken from the vine, pressed and their succulence concentrated—the origin of

Sanitas Grape Food

—unfermented—absolutely pure.

It's a delicious medicine—nourishes the digestion, strengthens the nerves, clears the vocal organs. A refreshing beverage—non-alcoholic—suitable for table and sickroom use—keeps fresh for years.

A pint bottle (75c.) makes one-half gallon of the food.

Your grocer or druggist sells it. Booklet free.

THE CALIFORNIA GRAPE FOOD CO.,
Los Gatos, Cal.

General Eastern Agency,
145 Broadway, N. Y.
General Pacific Agency,
408 Sutter St., San Francisco.
Chicago Selling Agent,
Edwin E Hills, 70 State St.

THE GUIDING HAND;

—OR—

PROVIDENTIAL DIRECTION.

Illustrated by authentic instances of Relief and Deliverance in times of Trouble and Perplexity; of Direction through Dreams and Mental Impressions, and of Providential Guidance, resulting in Conversion. Recorded and collected by

H. L. HASTINGS,
(Editor of "The Christian.")

This striking work is divided into three parts as follows:

(1) Providences in Relief and Deliverances. (2) Dreams and Impressions. (3) Conversions.

The "Guiding Hand" contains nearly 400 pages. It is really a handsome book, printed on heavy book paper, from large open type, good for the eyes, and artistically and durably bound in fine cloth, with fancy panels. Price, $1.50.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST
A Secret Empire;

Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.

By Rev. Richard Horton.

Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.
Price, 60 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

American Handbook and Citizen Manual By Manlove N. Butler. Contents: Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement. Over 200 pages. Paper, single copy, 40c.

PROPHECY:
A STUDY.

BY REV. S. F. PORTER,

A Study of Christ's Comings.

Paper Cover, 100 Pages.

Single copies, postpaid..... 25 cents.
Per 100 copies, postpaid..... $20.00.

For sale by the
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address S. C. KIMBALL,
Box 277. Newmarket, N. H.

Love, the Supreme Gift:

THE GREATEST THING IN THE WORLD.

The Perfected Life;

THE GREATEST NEED IN THE WORLD.

Both by Prof. Henry Drummond. Bound in chaste white vellum paper, each 20 cts.

These are not to be judged by the size, unless rubies are counted for the weight thereof. The first has been very largely circulated, the second is now only just published and deserves the same wide reading—both are gems such as are only found at rare intervals. If you have not read them, do so at once, you will be a better man or woman for the reading.

The Nonesuch Professor,

In his Meridian Splendor. By William Secker (Puritan). With an introduction by Theo. L. Cuyler, D. D. 16 mo, $1.00.

"It is a mine of sparkling gems."—Presbyterian Observer.

"A sheaf of golden grain, ripened by grace, and sweet with the flavor of rare simplicity and holy wisdom."—N. Y. Observer.

"It is a searching book."—Christian Intelligencer.

"This is a wonderful book. At whatever page you open it, your eye lights upon pithy aphorisms that combine the sententiousness of Benjamin Franklin with the sweet, holy savor of Samuel Rutherford. It contains hundreds of bright seed thoughts."—Rev. T. L. Cuyler, D. D.

"Best" Marriage Certificate. Size 14x17½. Price postpaid 25 cents; per dozen, $2.50.

This superb certificate meets a popular demand, and is rapidly becoming the favorite. Read what the people say of it: BRO. BEST: My attention having been called to your marriage certificate, I must pronounce it the neatest in design and execution of any I have seen. Rev. E. P. HART. E. C. BEST—Dear Brother: I am well pleased with the specimen copy of your marriage certificate, and shall use them hereafter. They are in good taste, well executed, on good material, and at a very reasonable price. Yours, M. V. CLUTE.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

If You Have

Scrofula,
Sores, Boils, or any other skin disease, take

AYER'S
SARSAPARILLA

the Superior
Blood-Purifier
and Spring Medicine.
Cures others,

will cure you

AMERICAN HANDBOOK
AND
CITIZEN MANUAL.
BY
MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
WM. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
231 W. Madison St., Chic

THE TWO-FOLD GIFT
of the Holy Ghost,
BY REV. THOS. K. DOTY,
Author of Lessons in Holiness.

240 pp. Price postpaid.....65cts.

The design of this book is, in plain language, to designate the place of the Holy Ghost in both the Godhead and the work of Salvation. Especially to show that Entire Santification is wrought in the heart by the Baptism of Holy Ghost; and that the Epoch of the Baptism is identical with that of his Advent in his Indwelling Personalty. The agency of the Holy Ghost in the Life, and in carrying on the work of the Gospel, is given particular attention.

TITLES TO THE CHAPTERS:

1. A Summary. 2. The Holy Ghost a Person. 3. The New Testament Designating Terms. 4. The Scriptural View. 5. The Holy Ghost is God. 6. Blasphemy Against the Holy Ghost. 7. The Trinity of God. 8. The Apostolic Benediction. 9. The Worship of the Holy Ghost. 10. The Dispensations. 11. The First Dispensation. 12. The Second Dispensation. 13. Holiness—Sinning. 14. "The Sin of the World." 15. Final Deliverance from Sin. 16. The Day of the Holy Ghost. 17. Jesus and the Holy Ghost. 18 and 19. The Epoch of the Holy Ghost. 20. The Anointing. 21. The Baptism of the Holy Ghost. 22. The Baptism of Fire. 23. The Two-Fold Experiences of the Holy Ghost. 24. Fellowship of the Holy Ghost. 25. "In the Spirit." 26. Several Scriptural Terms Considered. 27. Pentecost. 28. Inspiration—Prophecy. 29. Spiritual Leading and Teaching. 30. The Gifts of the Spirit. 31. "Praying in the Holy Ghost." 31 and 32. Power.

This book is creating quite a stir in religious circles. The original, bold and convincing manner of presenting the subject, has forced the press to comment upon the book, either adversely or favorably, generally the latter. We give a few OPINIONS:

Bible Standard and Gospel Record: "This book is very compact, scarcely a superfluous sentence in the whole book. The manner of treating the questions involved is both clear and scriptural. .....The effect of the book will be to deepen thought and increase knowledge and, in the end, deepen piety."

Evangelical Messenger: "Brother Thomas K. Doty has written a book which we take pleasure in commending to all devout readers who enjoy all spiritual things. The subject is so important, and the treatment of it so timely, that we may be pardoned for calling attention to it thus prominently. We, at least have been greatly interested, and gratefully acknowledge that we have also been decidedly profited by perusing it .....Brother Doty writes with an incisive pen, in a clear, lucid style, often epigrammatical and with great force. He is evidently deeply impressed with the truth of what he writes and demands the respect even where he does not gain the intellectual assent of his readers. Withal the book is written in a kindly, candid spirit, rather didactic than polermical, and is calculated to help the reader and not to rouse his opposition, as is the case with so many books which have been written upon this and kindred subjects. The theological views expressed are orthodox, and in some cases the argument is fresh in matter, and certainly fresh in form throughout."

Christian Cynosure: "His book is one of the most excellent, instructive and practical of any that have come to our knowledge. The exposition of the Scriptures concerning the personality and work of the Spirit is very clear, able and comforting. There is much dogmatizing on these topics by Christians who never fully felt the power of the Spirit's work, or are not living in gracious fellowship with him. To all such and to those who have not yet learned what gifts the Lord is waiting to bestow on his people we heartily commend the careful reading of this volume."

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

FARM NOTES.

(From the N. Y. Witness.)

AN ENTERPRISING WOMAN.

Last spring and summer I took care of three cows until June; then I sold the old red cow for thirty dollars. I kept her calf, which is one-half Jersey, and the other was poisoned after her calf was about six weeks old, so that left me one noble cow with three heifer calves to feed. As I believe in making the calves grow right along, the first year I had to do some fine planning to raise my three calves. My cow gave me a goodly flow of milk; so I just took a barrel and put it at one end of the stoop, fixed a spout to run the milk into the barrel; then I boiled all my potato peelings and put them into the barrel along with the milk, and now you couldn't tell from the looks of my calves but what they had been fed on sweet skimmed milk ever since they were weaned.

I planted, with my daughter's help, fifteen acres of potatoes and one acre of corn. The corn turned out nice, but my potatoes amounted to nothing more than what I needed for my own use, on account of my daughter's illness at the time when the potatoes should have received proper attention and care. Besides being nurse and taking care of one horse, I have done considerable sewing, and kept my family and sent my children to school and kept them in Sunday-school the most of the time, but it keeps me very busy.—Mary E. Smith.

SEED POTATOES.

I would like to write about potatoes. There is so much said about small seed producing small potatoes. I have tried both large and small, cut and uncut, side by side, and my experience is that a bright, healthy potato, the size of a large hen's egg, cut lengthwise once, will grow as large potatoes as large ones cut in any shape whatever. By cutting my seed lengthwise it avoids cutting the veins, and I think a half of a potato, the size of the above, will produce larger potatoes and more bushels per acre than if planted whole, as a whole potato has too many sets. If I plant a whole one I clip off the seed end, so as not to have too many vines.—J. C. Arnold (86 years old).

THE OBJECTS, WORK AND SECRET RITUAL of "The Nobles of the Mystic Shrine" have just been issued in a revised and enlarged edition. Price, in paper, 25 cents. This new order of Freemasonry, now so popular in this country as the basis of social hilarity among members of the higher degrees, claims to have originated in Arabia, and was revived in Egypt, and brought to America from France. It is interlarded with Mohammedan terms and worship; and its original objects as defined in its ritual, was inquisitorial and barbarous. Its prayers are addressed to "Allah," instead of the G. A. O. T. U., and it is quite as un-Christian as the devotees of the blue lodge would have it. The abridged edition is still sold for 15 cents. Address the National Christian Association, 221 West Madison street, Chicago.

The St. Louis Sermon.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

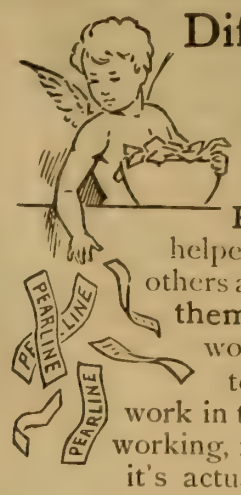
An Address by Rev. B. Carradine D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."

A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover.

Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.



Diffuse Help!

In this way. When you see how Pearline has helped you, tell others and let it help them. Where a woman is trying to do housework in the old, hard-working, rubbing way, it's actual charity to tell her about Pearline. Perhaps she uses it for scrubbing, washing dishes, etc., but can't believe that in washing clothes it can save so much work and wear without doing harm.

Your personal experience might convince her. That would help Pearline, to be sure—but think how much more it would help her, by saving time and strength and real money. 446 JAMES PYLE, N.Y.

$2.75 Buys our $9 Natural Finish Baby Carriage complete with plated steel wheels, axle, springs, and one piece steam bent handle. Made of best material, finely finished, reliable and guaranteed for 3 years. Shipped on 10 days' trial. FREIGHT PAID; no money required in advance. 75,000 in use. We are the oldest and best known concern of our kind, reliable and responsible. Reference furnished at any time. Make and sell nothing but what we guarantee to be as represented, sold at the lowest factory prices. WRITE TO-DAY for our large FREE illustrated catalogue of latest designs and styles published.

OXFORD MFG. CO., 340 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

A NEW AND WONDERFUL BOOK.

TOUCHING INCIDENTS
AND
REMARKABLE ANSWERS TO PRAYER,

AS RELATED BY

John Wesley, Bishop Simpson, John B. Gough
Edward Payson, James Caughey,
Bishop Bowman, John Knox, Martin Luther,
C. H. Spurgeon, Wm. Carvosso,
S. A. Keen, A. B. Earle, B. Fay Mills,
D. L. Moody, Guy Fox,
Frances E. Willard, Geo. Muller, James H. Potts,
Chas. G. Finney, T. De Witt Talmadge, and many others.

This new book is meeting with universal favor.

OVER 3,000 SOLD IN LESS THAN THREE WEEKS.

Read a few of the good things said of it:

Western Christian Advocate: "It is simply wonderful. No one can read the book without having his faith in prayer greatly strengthened."

Union Signal: "Its high religious tone, its fascinating spirit, and the high rank of its contributors, make it a strong faith tonic and an inspiration to prevailing prayer."

B. Fay Mills: "A wonderful book—an excellent book."

Chaplain C. C. McCabe: "This book will remind the reader that there are Elijahs still upon the earth."

Bishop Wm. Taylor: "True to its title."

This grand, inspiring book sent postpaid for only $1. Ministers 75 cents.

Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

Any who wish the agency or general agency for the book, should address the author, Rev. S B. Shaw,
Near Grand Rapids. DUTTON, MICH.

JONATHAN BLANCHARD'S
]-oo-[
SERMONS AND ADDRESSES.

Select discourses of the late editor of the Cynosure and leader in our reform. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of

LIVING REFORM.

Secret Societies,
The Sabbath,
Temperance,
National Reform,
Christian Education,
Christian Socialism,
The Bible, Etc., Etc.

A BOOK EVERYBODY SHOULD READ

12mo. Fine Photogravure Portrait.
Price, 75 Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

RECENT PUBLICATIONS
OF
FLEMING H. REVELL.

Modern Ideas of Evolution.

As related to Revelation and Science. By Sir William Dawson, L. L. D., F. R. S., etc. 12 mo. cloth, $1.50.

In popular style, a testing by scientific facts and principles, the validity of that multiform and brilliant philosophy of the universe, which has taken so deep a hold of the science and literature of our times.

The New World of Central Africa

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness; with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. Maps, Portraits and numerous engravings. 537 pages, 12 mo, $2.00.

This comprehensive volume is as fascinating as the most entertaining romance. Its vivid portrayal of the dark side of African history makes one's blood tingle, while its earnest appeals create an inspiring sympathy with the effort to evangelize its teeming millions.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

Matthew Henry's Commentary.

An entirely new large type edition of this inimitable Commentary, in six large 8vo. volumes, fine cloth, $15.00; or, in half Morocco, $18.00.

"Biblical students who are most familiar with the very best commentaries of this generation are most able to appreciate the unfading freshness, the clear analysis, the spiritual force, the quaint humor, and the evangelical richness of Matthew Henry's Exposition of the Old and New Testaments."—New York Observer

"First among the mighty for general usefulness we are bound to mention the man whose name is a household word—MATTHEW HENRY. He is the most pious and pithy, sound and sensible, suggestive and sober, terse and trustworthy."—Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

The Present Tenses of the Blessed Life.

By Rev. F. B. Meyer. 32 mo, 50 cents.

"It is sufficient to say its one direct aim is the present enjoyment of the precious promises. Mr. Meyer's earnest and persuasive teaching in this direction is admirably condensed in these brief chapters."

BY THE SAME AUTHOR:

Christian Living. Cloth, 32 mo, 50 cents.

"A more suggestive and helpful volume it would not be easy to name."—Christian Leader.

The Shepherd Psalm. Cloth, 32 mo, 50c

"This is a gem"—Illustrated Christian Weekly.

"It is a little book which hundreds of devout hearts will enjoy."—Congregationalist.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

OTHER WORKS BY C. H. SPURGEON:

Feathers for Arrows; Or, Illustrations for Teachers and Preachers. 12 mo, $1.

"This work covers a wide range of subjects. The metaphors are always striking and frequently brilliant, while the truths that they illustrate are such as have always formed the staple of Mr. Spurgeon's discourses. A choicer collection of illustrations we do not know."—Freeman.

Spurgeon's Gems. Being a selection of brilliants from his discourses. 12 mo, $1.

The Golden Alphabet. Being a Devotional Commentary on the One Hundred and Nineteenth Psalm. 12 mo, $1.00.

"Mr. Spurgeon brings out the truths and beauties of this wonderful Psalm so as to set a rich feast before the reader. As a practical commentator on the Psalms, Spurgeon has no equal."—Presbyterian Banner.

"This commentary is written in quite the happiest vein of its popular author, and the devotional spirit throughout is intense and elevating."—Occident.

Gleanings Among the Sheaves. 18 mo, 60c.

All of Grace. An earnest word with those seeking the way of life. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

According to Promise; Or, the Lord's Dealings with His chosen People. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Christmas Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve New Year Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth. 50 cents.

"Preachers may get aid in preparing Easter or funeral sermons from this volume. Good to present to those who have lost loved ones."—National Baptist.

Twelve Striking Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Soul-Winning Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Selected by Mr. Spurgeon as the twelve sermons under which there has been the most marked and permanent success.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

Royal Baking Powder

Absolutely Pure

A cream of tartar baking powder. Highest of all in leavening strength. — Latest United States Government Food Report.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO.,
106 Wall St., N. Y.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

CHICAGO.

Chief of Police Brennan refuses to suspend officers indicted by the grand jury.

As soon as an appropriation can be secured an extra life-saving crew will be placed at the mouth of Chicago River.

Government officials will soon put the new revenue cutter Calumet in commission in Chicago, and her captain will be harbor master.

Talk of extending the Lake Street Elevated Railway to Wabash avenue to connect with the extension of the Alley L. is being revived.

Every employe of the Lincoln Park board excepting day laborers has been asked to send in his resignation.

Fifty-nine indictments were returned by the special grand jury against persons charged with violations of the election law.

A permanent organization was effected by the liberal religious congress in Sinai Temple. A Catholic priest attended the evening session at which attacks were made on czar and sultan by speakers.

As an outcome of the congress of liberal religionists a great summer school on the Chautauqua plan will be founded.

A large office, club and apartment building is to be erected on Michigan avenue by the Christognosis Association, an organization of Christian Scientists.

Mutual Fuel Gas Company directors have authorized the laying of ten miles of additional mains.

Judges Tuley, Sears and Adams decided Judge Chetlain had exceeded his powers in fining the election commissioners for contempt in not producing certain ballots.

John Roeschlein and Frank Grany found a package containing $1,500 worth of diamonds and hunted up the owner, though both were out of work and had eaten nothing for two days.

Hearing of the Prendergast case has been set for June 11, by agreement of counsel.

Three hundred armed stevedores attacked the men engaged in loading the vessel Chicago and a score of men were injured before the police quelled the riot.

S. O. Fitts, cashier and bookkeeper of the Continenal Loan and Investment Society, is under arrest, charged with embezzlement.

The Sunday closing ordinance failed to pass the council, only thirty-two votes being recorded in its favor.

Germany's world's fair building has been accepted as a gift from the imperial government by the South Park Commissioners.

Suit for $100,000 damages, caused by fire in Manufactures Building, Jan. 8, has been commenced by the Republic of France against the Exposition company.

COUNTRY.

The American Baptist Educational Society met at Saratoga, N. Y. The report of the executive board showed phenomenal growth. Governor Northen, of Georgia, was elected president of the Society. Appropriation of public moneys to sectarian schools was opposed by speakers.

Rev. William E Shinn, a rabid American Protective Association orator of Buffalo, was requested to resign by his congregation.

Available stocks of wheat in the United States and Canada are: East of the Rocky Mountains, 75,753,000 bushels; west of the Rockies, 8,889,000 bushels.

Oglesby strikers visited a mine near Ottawa, Ill., burned the tools and destroyed the mine by removing the props.

Strikers at Kangley, Ill., drove out the miners near that place and wrecked the mine by filling it up with debris.

Discovery has been made that Congressmen have been drawing salaries for employes who do not exist and pocketing the proceeds.

Much excitement exists at Danville, Ill., over an attack made by a minister upon two lady school teachers, who played cards.

Investigation shows that farmers of the northwest have abandoned wheat as their only crop. The decrease this year will be 25 per cent.

An unknown young woman from Chicago, accompanied by her mother, visited the penitentiary at Joliet and was married to a convict.

John Crow, for whose murder John Van Nimmangs is serving a life sentence in a Michigan prison, is alive and well and has just learned of his supposed death in 1885.

Resolutions denouncing Pres. Cleveland and calling for his impeachment were adopted by the populist State convention at Sacramento, Cal.

Governor Flower vetoed the bill to prevent display of foreign flags on New York public buildings, styling it un-American.

A thousand striking miners marched to the Mission Field coal mines near Danville, Ill., and compelled the 200 men at work to come out and take an oath not to return.

Coxey, Browne and Jones, the commonweal leaders, were sentenced to twenty days in jail for displaying partisan banners in the Capitol grounds at Washington.

Business men of the northwest met at Minneapolis and formed an association whose object is to build up a home market for home-manufactured goods.

The report of the Boatner subcommittee condemning Judge Jenkins for his Northern Pacific strike order was adopted by the house judiciary committee.

Constitutional amendments providing for biennial instead of annual sessions, and for removal of headquarters to Evansville, Ind., were adopted by the Switchmen's Mutual Aid Association.

Papers relied on to secure conviction in the Indianapolis bank wrecking cases were mysteriously set on fire while court was in session.

Youngstown, Ohio, citizens have petitioned Congress to give public corporations, such as cities, the right to issue money now possessed by national banks.

Thirty well-known citizens of Oklahoma have been indicted for systematic horse stealing.

Business men of New York are planning to make formal protests against the income tax feature of the tariff bill.

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances of money to the Cynosure from May 21 to May 26:

Mrs A E Kellogg, J Ralston, J Brandt, T Mills, Sr., Mrs S J Robison, J B Alexander, A Muller, Jr., Rev C G Fait.

Although it is not claimed that Ayer's Sarsaparilla cures every ill to which flesh is heir, yet, as a matter of fact, it comes nearer doing this than any other medicine ever compounded. In purifying the blood, it removes the source of nearly all disorders of the human system.

Tempt Not

a Cough with a Weak System, Consumption with Weak Lungs, or Disease with Loss of Flesh. Take

Scott's Emulsion

the Cream of Cod-liver Oil, for any ailment resulting from poor nourishment. Physicians, the world over, endorse it.

Don't be deceived by Substitutes!

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All Druggists.

Saves CHILDREN'S LIVES, and prevents sickness, mothers' loss of night's rest, doctors' bills, trouble and anxiety. Prevents coughs, colds and diphtheria. Inexpensive, ornamental, and easily adjusted. A boon to mothers. Indispensable in every house THE EUREKA BEDCLOTHES FASTENER, price, 50 cents. For sale at all department stores, or sent to any address, postpaid, by J. C. Dewey, Box 2816, New York City. Please mention THE STANDARD when writing.

CINCINNATI CLEVELAND BIG 4 CHICAGO ROUTE ST. LOUIS RY. CO.

SUMMER TRIPS To The

MOUNTAINS, LAKES AND SEA SHORE

SHOULD BE ARRANGED VIA THE

BIG FOUR ROUTE

TO SECURE ALL THE COMFORTS OF HOME WHILE TRAVELING.

WRITE FOR TOURIST BOOK.

E. O. McCORMICK, Pass. Traffic Mgr. | D. B. MARTIN, Gen'l Pass & Tkt Agt

CINCINNATI.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2	55¾	@	58
Winter No. 2	53⅛	@	55½
Corn—No. 2	37	@	39
Oats—No. 2	33⅛	@	37¼
Rye—No. 2	45½	@	48¼
Bran per ton	11 50
Hay—Timothy	8 50	@10	50
Butter, medium to best	11	@	16⅛
Cheese	06	@	08⅛
Beans	1 25	@ 1	85
Eggs, fresh	10		10½
Seeds—Timothy (100 lbs)	3 50	@ 3	80
Flax	1 33
Clover (100 lbs.)	8 00	@ 9	00
Broom corn (per ton)	80 00	@70	00
Potatoes, (bu.)	55	@	76
Hides—Green to dry flint	02¼	@	06½
Lumber—Common		15	50
Wool (unwashed)	12	@	26
Cattle—Choice to extra	3 90	@ 4	35
Common to good	3 60	@ 4	10
Hogs	4 45	@ 4	90
Sheep	2 90	@ 5	40

NEW YORK.

Wheat No. 2	56⅛	@	57⅜
Corn No 2	42⅜	@	43
Oats	40	@	44⅛
Rye	55	@	56
Eggs, Western fresh	11⅛	@	12
Butter	09	@	17
Wool	15	@	26

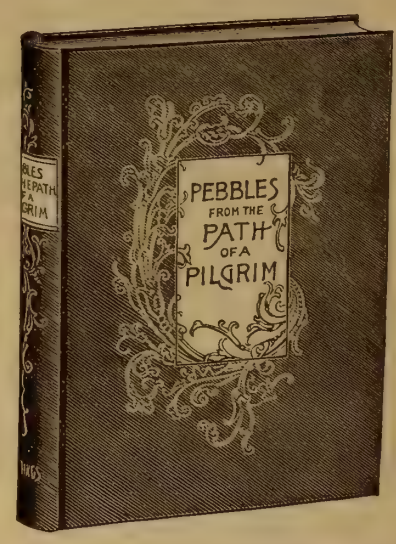
KANSAS CITY.

Cattle	1 90	@ 4	90
Hogs	4 35		4 70

Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim.

—BY—

MRS. H. L. HASTINGS.



This remarkable collection of stories from the eventful life of a Green Mountain girl has been pronounced "more fascinating than any romance." A member of Congress writes: "'Pebbles' has been read by me with great interest. The introductory chapter has followed me into dreams. My copy is read to pieces by the family, and borrowed to death by the neighbors." An editor says: "Surely the faith that 'obtained promises, wrought righteousness, and stopped the mouth of lions,' must have been given in large measure to the writer of this truly remarkable book....No family library should be without it." "'Pebbles,'" says the Christian Cynosure, "is such a book as Christian parents are always glad to put on their center-tables."

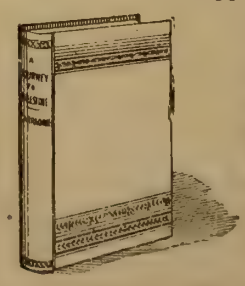
"Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim" is a large and beautiful book of over 300 pages, printed on heavy book paper, from clear open type, and is profusely illustrated. It is artistically bound in handsome cloth, with fancy panels, and specially attractive side and back cover designs. Price, $1.50.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

A Journey to Palestine

BY REV. B. CARRADINE, D. D.

—oo—



Revised and Illustrated Edition. 500 pages. Eighteen beautiful half-tone Engravings, including portrait of Author. Cloth postpaid, $1.50. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES

MONTHLIES.
The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, Sunshine, each, per quar., 3c.

WEEKLIES.
L. & L. Infant Class, 4c.
L. & L. Intermediate Lesson Leaf.....1⅞c.
L. & L. Lesson Leaf, 1⅞c.
Golden Treasures (for every fifth Sunday) 1c.

QUARTERLIES.

LIGHT AND LIFE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY		5c.
" " " SCHOLAR'S "		3c.
" " " INTERMEDIATE "		3c.
" " " PRIMARY "		3c.

Secretaries' Books, Class Registers, Reward Cards and Tickets, Charts, Maps, S. S. Libraries and other supplies. A large line of books, tracts, pamphlets, Bibles and Testaments at lowest prices.

BOOK AND PAMPHLET PRINTING
Done with neatness and dispatch. Send for estimates.

T. B. ARNOLD,
104-106 Franklin St., CHICAGO, ILL.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVI., No. 39. CHICAGO, THURSDAY, JUNE 7, 1894. WHOLE No. 1,258.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill. as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
Woman Suffrage..... 8
Divorce the Church and the Lodge..... 8
The Pope and Freemasonry..... 8
Narrow Escape from Sudden Death..... 8
Coxeyism..... 8
CONTRIBUTIONS:
"Brotherly Love"..... 1
Recent Events Reviewed 2
Africa and its Missions. 2
Our State Religion..... 3
Which is It?..... 3
A Masonic Grand Army. 3
Valley Forge (Poetry)..10
SELECTED:
"Commonwealers" as they Are..... 3
Italy Then and Now.... 3
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 4
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4
REFORM NEWS:
From the New England Secretary; From Rev. Wm. Fenton; The Eastern Agent in Ohio.....4,9
CORRESPONDENCE:
Letters to Secretary Phillips; Saloon Interests and Masonic Influence Defy Justice.....5,6
LODGE NOTES..... 7
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
N. C. A..... 7
THE HOME.....10
TEMPERANCE.....11
BIBLE LESSON 12
LITERATURE 12
RELIGIOUS NEWS.....12
Catalogue of Publications 13
HOME AND HEALTH.....14
FARM NOTES 15
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....16
MARKETS 16

This month, and not far apart, the General Synod of the Norwegian Lutherans will convene at St. Paul, Minn., and the Augustana (Swedish) Synod at St. Peter's in that State. The latter meeting will possess unusual interest, as it is to involve a discussion of the labor unions and the admission of their members into the church. Rev. William Fenton is (D. V.) to be in attendance at both conventions, and will probably be invited to address one or both of them.

"You have heard of us in the last few days. You will hear from us again next fall; and in 1896 you will hear from us with a President who will have the A .P. A. brand on him or there will be no President."

Quoting the foregoing extract from General Hawley's address before the Sunset Club in defense of the A. P. A. from the Cynosure, the Christian Conservator adds: "If this be the spirit of the A. P. A., we hesitate not to say that its spirit is treasonable, and its purposes more intolerable than those of the Catholics whom its seeks to overthrow."

The Christian Conservator having been accused of "winking at the deviltry of Rome and even taking sides therewith," for its opposition to the A. P. A., declares that "our object was not to make our readers hate Romanism less, but to hate secretism more: not to close their eyes to the danger of Catholic encroachment, but to open them to the insidious purposes and danger of the A. P. A." In this matter the Christian Conservator and the Christian Cynosure stand shoulder to shoulder, with their faces to the foe.

Members of the Friends' Church, and all who are in sympathy with them, will be interested in their convention at New Providence, Iowa, June 26 and 27. The subjects to be discussed on the 26th will be (1) "Secret Orders," by John F. Hanson, and (2) "Judicial Oaths," by President Rosenberger. On the 27th the discussion of these topics will be continued in a more general form of questions and answers by those in attendance. Other matters announced for exposition before the convention include "Holiness," "Peace," and kindred subjects. A general attendance is requested.

The American Protestant, the Boston organ of the American Protestant Association (secret and partisan—alias "patriotic") tells us in a recent issue that it "has no fight with the Roman Catholic because of his religion." Then we suggest that it should at once change its name, which is certainly misleading. The true Protestant won his name and cause by fighting just what the A. P. A. claims that it does not.

Mayor Weir, of Lincoln, Neb., has taken the stand against prosecuting fallen women and discharging their male companions. In other words, he believes "there is no sex in crime." "Under no circumstances," he declares, "will I concur in the custom of fining the women alone," and an order to this effect is now in force in that capital. The mayor is right, and deserves credit for living up to the courage of his convictions.

In an interview with Kelly, the leader of "commonweal" shirks, at Quincy, Ill., he thus described the material of his so-called "army." There are two women in the party. The mother of one is a Daughter of Rebekah, and "Kelly usually gets the Odd-fellows in cities where the 'army' stops to get a stopping place in some residence for the women." "Most of the men are from thirty to thirty-five years of age. The oldest men are some seventy-five or eighty—G. A. R. men. Societies are represented as follows: Freemasons, 86; Odd-fellows, 123; Knights of Pythias, 76; A. O. United Workmen, 28; Red Men, 23; Y. M. C. A., 120; Knights of Industry and other labor organizations, 500. Eighty per cent of the men are natives of the United States, and all are citizens, either by birth or naturalization." The influence of the lodge is evidently the moving spirit of the "army." We judge so, since its principal practice is to obtain "something for nothing."

The editor of the Wesleyan Methodist, referring to the American Protective Association, says: "We have often asked why the association with a noble purpose should use such ignoble means as to combine in secret to do their work. Are they afraid or ashamed? We have as often been answered that the secret is for the protection of men who are members, but were it known would be made to suffer in business. That is un-American cowardice, not American courage. We believe that the Roman Catholic church holds a form of religion expressly calculated to make men who, if loyal to their church, cannot make good citizens of the United States. We also believe that this church has in the past employed, and is at the present time employing, her false religion for the basest political purposes ever known to exist. The chief source of danger is in her secrecy. This is her most un-American element. As a principle it is equally un-American in the American Protective Association." This is hitting the nail squarely on the head.

Owners of coal mines in which strikes now prevail, it is alleged, have admitted that if they did not foment disturbances and encourage their men to quit work, they did not in the least discourage them. The reason is thus explained by a contemporary: "The price of coal to the consumer has not varied appreciably for several years. No matter what the price was at the mines, the operators, who are also interested in the transportation companies and in the business of distributing the product, raked off the same profit year in and year out. The depression in business caused a falling off in the demand for coal and found the operators with large stocks on hand. What would have been a misfortune to most business men was turned into an advantage by the mine owners. Instead of reducing prices they raised them by curtailing the output, and at the same time seized the pretext to cut down the wages of the miners." This allegation is plausible, if not correct. It seems to have been merely a "question of finance."

The New York State Convention for the revision of the constitution, now in session, is described as "a very fair company of men, some of them entirely above reproach." This is encouraging, and it is hoped that they will retain their moral influence to the end of their labors. Three very important subjects, among others of a wholesome character, are to be considered by this convention: Non-sectarian appropriations of the public money; woman-suffrage, and the prohibition of the liquor traffic. If these are incorporated in the new constitution, and adopted by the people, New York will justly maintain its claim as "the Empire State." The outlook for this consummation is very hopeful.

The platform adopted by the Illinois State convention of Populists, at Springfield, last week, suggests some very sensible improvements in the character of the State and national economy. Among others we notice the following: Declares "that the appeal for the adjudicating of industrial and political wrongs should always be to the ballot and never to the bullet;" "that we denounce the license system of dealing with the liquor traffic as fostering one of the most corrupt monopolies of our times, and the saloon system, as supported by the Republican and Democratic parties, as one of the chief means by which the money power oppresses the producers; and we demand that wherever a majority of the people petition for the sale of intoxicating liquors, such sale shall be conducted by the State, as a matter of police regulation, without profit;" and "that women shall have equal pay with men for the same labor, and should have an equal chance to make the laws." Possibly, in the absence of any prospect of securing absolute and practical prohibition of the liquor traffic, the foregoing is the most satisfying substitute that can be devised.

"BROTHERLY LOVE."

BY S. C. KIMBALL.

In the Cynosure of May 24, Rev. J. M. Foster, of Boston, has an able article on "Brotherly Love," but I wish to extract two dead flies from his otherwise excellent ointment. (Eccl. 10: 1.) The first is this assertion: "It is subversive of church order and efficiency to pretend to serve Christ upon undenominational lines." Not a single passage of Scripture is cited in support of this amazing proposition. In my humble judgment, none can be. The suggestion that as a soldier must belong to some particular regiment, so every Christian must belong to some sect, is utterly fallacious. The New Testament record gives overwhelming proofs that converts became members of the local church when united to Christ the Head, and that they had no other ecclesiastical connection whatever and bore no sect name. The churches were invariably distinguished by the name of the town or city where located. Some denominational zeal did crop out at Corinth, but the inspired apostle Paul denounced it as "carnal." (1 Cor. 3: 4, 5.)

Does Bro. Foster remember that such men as Moody, Hastings, Simpson, Fee, Hinman, Conant and Browne "pretend to serve Christ upon undenominational lines?" More than half the ministers connected with the New Hampshire Christian Association "pretend" the same thing.

One of them baptized seven happy converts last Lord's day, and ten sinners came forward and knelt for mercy at the following service.

The second dead fly is the following: "Close communion is not only justifiable, but the only way in which the death of Christ can be shown forth in all its meaning." Not a single passage of Scripture is cited in support of this schismatic doctrine. It is my belief that none can be. It is the Lord's Supper, and not a sect feast. It is to "show the Lord's death till he come," not to bolster up some sect tenet. Paul does not say that every communicant must be expert in hair-splitting theology, but only that he must "discern the Lord's body." Evidently Bro. Foster is more "close" than St. Paul.

Bro. Editor: Do not fear a little New England breeze. It will only blow away the chaff. The Gospel wheat will be safe.

Newmarket, N. H.

RECENT EVENTS REVIEWED.

BY REV. J. M. FOSTER.

The Massachusetts Legislature appointed a commission to investigate the Norwegian system of regulating the liquor traffic. The commission made their report, and last week a bill passed the first reading in the lower house, by a large majority, favoring the system. It is briefly this: The mayor and two other officers in the city or town adopting it shall appoint a corporation; this corporation shall have control of all the saloons of that city or town; all incomes over 5 per cent shall be devoted to charities. It is claimed for the measure that it will eliminate the element of financial gains from the liquor business. But this is not apparent. The brewers and distillers will go on brewing and distilling just as before. This corporation will buy their products. There is nothing to hinder the corporators from voting themselves high salaries. They can rent a building for a saloon at $10,000, with the understanding that $5,000 are to be returned. They can employ bar-tenders at $30 per week, with the understanding that $15 is to be returned. If the Norwegians have found out how to make the business profitable, the Yankees will not be behind them.

It is also claimed that this system will take the saloon out of politics. But this is not at all apparent. This corporation will control enough votes to elect the mayor and other officers having the appointing power. Instead of taking the saloon out of politics, it will only make it a fixture there. This corporation would be more powerful than Tammany in New York City.

It is furthermore claimed that this system would lessen the evils of the saloon. But this is not established. As much liquor would be consumed, as many human souls destroyed, and the saloon would be all the more dangerous because of its supposed "respectability."

The great objection to the measure is that it gives legal standing to a moral evil. As well apply this system to houses of ill-fame, gambling dens, lotteries, Mormonism, and every other abomination. Moral evil is not to be regulated, but annihilated. It is a crime to give legal standing to wickedness. In California the saloon enjoys legal protection for $12 per year. That is low license. In Ohio $250 are asked. That is called a tax. In Nebraska $1,000 are demanded. That is high license. And now Massachusetts proposes the Norwegian system. This recognizes the saloon as a legalized benevolence, while the others put it in the list with all forms of legitimate business. These are all excellent liquor measures; but as temperance measures they are utter failures. They cut off a few of the unimportant branches of the upas, which only make the growth more virulent and deadly than before. It is hoped that Massachusetts will not write herself the lowest State in the Union by adopting it.

A two-days' conference of Christian workers among the Jews met yesterday in Park Street church. Delegates were here from London, Toronto, New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and elsewhere. There are 8,000,000 Jews in the world. There are 140,000 in London; about 200,000 in New York. Rev. John Wilkinson and Rev. James Adler represent the work in London and the continent. Herman Warszawiak and A. C. Gaebelein represent New York.

Edward S. Niles, of this city, is the leading spirit in calling this conference. It is hailed as a harbinger of brighter days. Heretofore the workers among the Jews have stood apart from each other. As a result the Christian churches have taken little interest in the work. It is hoped that now the workers will be drawn together and a deeper interest will be taken in their work. The Jews are being driven from Russia, Germany and other countries. They are coming to America that the Gospel may be given them. It is believed that the time is near at hand when the Jews are to be converted. They have been long sitting by the rivers of Babylon with their harps hung in the midst of the willows thereof. But now they are to return to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads. And this is the prelude of the bringing in of the fullness of the Gentiles. The natural branch of the olive tree was taken away because they rejected Christ, and the branch of the wild olive was graffed in. Now, says Paul, if the rejection of the Jews be the salvation of the Gentiles, what shall the bringing of them be but life from the dead?

The Evangelistic Association of New England held its seventh annual conference in this city last week, May 15, 16, and 17. Among the speakers were Father A. Lambert and Mrs. E. M. Whittemore, of New York; Rev. Dr. A. C. Dixon, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Miss M. N. Gordon and Rev. Dr. Wm. Nast Brodbeck. Great interest was manifested.

Boston, May 23, 1894.

AFRICA AND ITS MISSIONS.

BY REV. H. H. HINMAN.

The June number of the Missionary Review of the World is mainly devoted to Africa and its missions. The first article, by the editor-in-chief, Dr. A. T. Pierson, is on "Susi and Chuma," Livingstone's body-guard, and is a description of the death of the great missionary-explorer at Ibala, in Central Africa, and of the wonderful tenderness, fidelity, skill and heroism that led these children of the Dark Continent to carefully prepare his body and carry it to the coast, a distance of 1,500 miles, a journey requiring nine months of most arduous and dangerous travel to Zanguebar; from whence they accompanied it to England. Briefly, they built a hut, in which the good man was to die; they watched over him tenderly, but, after having been dismissed for a few hours, they found him, in the early morning, on his knees, as in prayer. Fearing to disturb his devotions, they waited; but a touch of his cheek revealed the coldness of death. They carefully preserved all his valuable papers and instruments. They took out his heart and buried it with Christian ceremonies. They filled his body with salt and dried it fourteen days in the sun, and then, only by strategem, in extreme peril, and at the cost of several lives of their company, they accomplished their wonderful undertaking. A man who could inspire such remarkable devotedness among those who had once been untutored savages, was manifestly one of the great men of his age; and the men who accomplished so difficult and so wonderful an achievement had capacities of mind and heart that show them the peers of the noblest of men, and commend them to the sympathy of the church universal.

The next African article, and one of great merit, is by F. P. Noble, on "Christendom's Rum-trade with Africa." He describes it as truly "a devil's mission." The concurrent statement of all travelers, traders and missionaries is that all other influences combined do far less evil than the liquor traffic. Not merely moral degradation, but actual depopulation in many cases, is the result. Slavery, with all its horrors, is only a smaller evil than the traffic in rum. Mohammedanism has been a barrier to its introduction; but in some sections, notably in Tunis and Algiers, the Moslem's adherence has given way to the insatiable love of intoxicants that characterizes all people of low civilization. It is estimated that the slave-trade costs 1,000,000 of lives annually, and that the liquor traffic cannot cost less than twice that number. This is the estimate of Bishop Flickenger of the U. B. mission in Africa. But terrible as is the picture, there are manifestly hopeful indications. The Congo Free State, above the Falls of the Congo, is comparatively free from the traffic.

"The British chartered companies in South Africa, at the lakes in East Africa, and on the Niger have been compelled to embody prohibition in their charters. The African Lakes Company has, from the start, set its face like a flint against selling liquor to the natives, while the Niger company has already cut down the import of spirits to one-fourth of what it was."

Let no one imagine that the liquor traffic in Africa has ceased to be a most deadly evil or that it will consent to die. Only we may hope that even the greed of the trader has begun to be alarmed for the results.

It is a remarkable fact that the population of Africa (estimated at 160,000,000) lies mainly in the Western Equitorial regions; that is, between 15 north latitude and 15 south; or from the Senegal to Angola. This includes the Congo basin, and Western Soudan. The number is 90,000,000. East Africa has comparatively a sparse population, and will, perhaps, be an open door to the increasing hordes of India. It is the only great region susceptible of colonization.

The following table of the religions of Africa is based on the estimated population of 160,000,000—probably too low.

Mohammedans, 77,000,000; Pagans, 75,000,000; Christians (all kinds), 7,500,000; Abyssinian Christians, 5,500,000; Protestant, 1,100,000; Roman Catholics, 800,000; Coptic, etc., 600,000.

This makes a better showing than is narrated by the facts. Of the 1,100,000 Protestants, about 700,000 are European immigrants and descendants, largely English, in South Africa; and 500,000 Roman Catholics, mainly French, Spanish and Italian, dwell in Algeria. The so-called Abyssinian Christians are little better than Pagans. There are estimated 113,526 communicants connected with the Protestant mission churches in Africa, of which 16,830 belong to American missions. The number of native Christians is estimated at 316,106, and there are in the mission-schools 80,215. The most successful missions seem to be the United Presbyterian, in Egypt, with 3,891 communicants, and the United Brethren in West Africa, with 6,000 communicants.

No missions, if we except those in Madagascar, have greater promise, or have had a more marked success than those on Lake Nyassa and in Uganda. The fine climate and the comparative exemption from the liquor traffic has, in spite of their remoteness and difficulty of access, made them most promising and important fields. The completion of many lines of railroad, now pushing into the interior, both from the east and the west coasts, will add immensely to the facilities and dangers of these missions—facilities, by bringing them into easy communication with the outside world, and dangers, because of the ubiquitous trader and his paralyzing influence. Surely no part of the great missionary field is more hopeful and important than Africa.

Oberlin, O.

OUR STATE RELIGION.

"Let these foreigners adopt the American religion before they are admitted to the privileges of American citizenship." Thus I read in an editorial in the Missionary Review of the World, penned by Dr. A. T. Pierson, of Philadelphia. The expression was a little startling, for I did not know that the United States had any state religion. So I thought that the doctor had reference to some religion of American origin. But I failed to see that; for in that case he would have ushered all immigrants into the Mormon church, or into some of the smaller subdivisions among the Protestant denominations. But I could hardly believe that, either. The doctor is himself a Presbyterian; but that church has never, so far as I have heard, claimed to be "the American church" above any other of the sister Protestant churches. The Methodist and the Baptist churches are the strongest Protestant bodies in this country, but we could not very much refer to them as the expression of "American religion."

I think, however, that I have now discovered what we have as the official religion of the land. Whether Dr. Pierson had that in mind, I could not say. I rather think not. But the fact is that the only religious body recognized by the state, and entrusted with official functions, is the Masonic fraternity. On our legal holidays, the Masons take the lead. At the dedication of a public building, or the laying of its corner-stone, we find the Masonic fraternity where we should expect to find our elected or appointed representatives—the State officers.

Now I am a member of the Lutheran church; but I would not want the corner-stone of a school-house, or a capitolium, laid by a Lutheran clergyman, and with the same ceremonies that we use in laying the corner-stone of a church or a college building. Should I then allow a brother Mason to do what I would not allow a brother Lutheran to do?

Masonry is a religion, claiming for its fundamental creed the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man; excluding—that is, denying—the Godhead of Christ and the brotherhood of man in Him only. This claim constitutes it a religion, just as much as my own form of Protestantism is a religion; and the second amendment to our Constitution expressly forbids any union of church and state.

No religious test shall ever be required of a public officer. How is it with a candidate who is ostracised by the Masonic society? What chance has he of being elected?

This question could be settled by our courts. At some corner-stone laying, let friends of our free American institutions demand that the ceremonies be performed by the city mayor, the governor, one of the judges of the Supreme Court, or some other worthy representative of the people. Then if the Masonic society insist upon usurping an authority that by right belongs only to the people's representative, then let them ask for an injunction forbidding them to act. If the case should be lost we might, at least, have gained one thing. The courts would have decided what constitutes our state religion; and a decision of the Supreme Court is paramount to an amendment to the Constitution.

Would it be advisable for the National Christian Association to take the matter in hand and gather a fund for the defense of our free American institutions? Or, possibly, some well-to-do American patriot might advance the necessary "shekels" to pay for law—lawyer-hire, witness fees, etc. At any rate, something ought to be done, for we want no state religion—and, least of all, we want no theosophic Masonry for the American religion. S. M. HILL.

Wahoo, Nebraska.

WHICH IS IT?

There is one thing I want to know about secret societies, but cannot find out. Worse yet, I doubt whether anybody can tell. It is not a secret in the ordinary sense of the word, but is even more recondite, if not more valuable.

My question is, whether these little orders, like the "Grange," or the "Royal" this or "Golden" that, are, in practical effect, ante-rooms of Masonry, making it easier for their members to think it all well enough to join any secret order, or, whether they satisfy the desire to join something, and draw off those who would have become Masons into these less objectionable side-shows?

Are they a first glass, or an antidote?

On one hand it seems natural to suspect that, being comparatively free from the more obviously objectionable features of Masonry, they will soothe any lingering prejudice against secrecy or lodgery. From these lodges, also, it seems natural to go into the others, as an advancing Mason goes from degree to degree, or from blue lodge to chapter, and from chapter to commandery.

But there is another side. Blue lodge Masons do not always go beyond, and there are Odd-fellows who reject Masonry.

Again, the lodge craving may in some cases be satiated. Once inside any lodge, and grown familiar with its ritual, some natures tire of it and lose interest. Why may not this cooling down process take place in a "grange" lyceum, and save such from a Masonic lodge?

All this is mere theorizing, and beyond this stage I am not competent to go, for I do not know what actually happens. If any one does know, in such a way as to be able to give facts and figures, there is a field for him.

If these school-girlish affairs really draw off the attention, and are like soda-fountains keeping thirsty men away from bar-rooms, then why not let them sizzle or fizzle away and no fault be found? But if they are the outer ring of a maelstrom, let us show them up in this relation.

The pilot fish of a shark is not to be judged solely on his own merits, and a feeder of Masonry must not be considered by itself apart from this relation.

True, I must make a reservation here, for I will not admit that all these lesser orders will bear the test, even standing alone. I do not mean, let all go on to draw off recruits from Masonry. But some might do so, and for so good a reason I would be willing to help organize new ones, with highfalutin names to satisfy the natural joiner's heart.

I would be willing to write lectures, to instruct the candidates that grass is green and ice cream is cold, therefore charity is a virtue.

But what I want to know, first, is, how does it actually work? What has happened?

Does any one know, and if he does will he tell?

It is easy to ask questions about what might happen; but will not some one who knows, if any such there be, tell us what has already happened?

Do the "joiners" go from other lodges more readily and numerously into the Masonic lodge, or are they contented with what they already have, and less inclined to join the Masonic order?

Can some one answer with fact instead of theory? GRAPHITE.

A MASONIC GRAND ARMY.

A majority of the people have believed that with the eventual decrease of the veteran soldiers the Grand Army of the Republic would cease to be. But already means are being taken to keep up the organization and make it another attachment to the national curse—Freemasonry.

At the last election in a New England town, and by Masonic and Catholic votes, a certain hall and the land on which it stood was deeded to a Mason, to be by him deeded to an association, whenever such was duly incorporated. That has now been duly organized as "The Grand Army Association of ———," and for reasons easy to see certain citizens, who never were soldiers, are among its officers. The present "Commander" of this post is the willing tool of the Masonic rulers—a profane and otherwise immoral person. It is worthy of notice that with but two exceptions every member is not only a Mason, but never found at church unless on some special occasion when pastors degrade themselves and their churches by preaching to one or another of these "noble" and "benevolent" organizations.

Thus, in reality, the town has given valuable real estate—ostensibly to our worthy veteran soldiers—to the Grand Army of the Republic. In reality, it has given it to a clan of Masonic conspirators, who, when the soldiers cease to exist, will quietly continue business at the old stand—the business of unlawful trickery, rascality and deviltry—all under the pretence that it is Masonic "charity and benevolence."

NEW ENGLAND.

"COMMONWEALERS" AS THEY ARE.

The Deseret News of Salt Lake City, Utah, thus dissects the "commonweal army" that, like grasshoppers, has been infesting that territory:

The people of Salt Lake City never have been ungenerous or inhospitable to those who have come asking for succor. Their liberality has been exercised without stint or discrimination to all who have applied for aid. They have a firm conviction of duty in giving of their substance to those that stand in need, and in not permitting those who suffer to make petitions in vain. They have felt it to be a solemn obligation to feed the hungry, clothe the naked, and administer to the wants of the sick and afflicted, according to their ability, and still are willing to do so, preferring to supply the wants of ninety-nine undeserving persons than to take the chance of turning aside one who is worthy of assistance.

But in the interest of the self-preservation of the people there is a limit to this contributing for the support of others. While the residents of this section of the country hold the views stated regarding the sustenance of those who are in need, they also have a firm and deep conviction that it is an improper thing for the idler to eat the bread or wear the clothing of those who are willing to labor. The people of these valleys will divide to the full extent with those who should receive sustenance from them, but they consider it to be no part of their duty to give comfort, or aid, or encouragement to the loafing, idle vagabond who is unwilling to labor for his own support and who is a menace to society and an enemy to good order and government by his idle, lazy habits and beggarly instincts.

In the conditions that have developed in the last few days regarding the influx of the unemployed persons on the way east there is no question as to the limit of hospitality having been reached and a point arrived at where the line of distinction must be drawn. There have been deserving men, and probably there will be more, to feed; there also are unworthy persons whose demands should not be acceded to, but who should be given to understand that their imposition on the people has gone far enough. In the last issue of the News was given an account of a detachment of the "Industrial Army" which was located on Pioneer square. These men were furnished good food and plenty of it at the expense of the city; they now demand that they be supplied with blankets and clothing. They also state that they do not want to work. Their captain left a $2 50 a day job, which kept him employed three-fourths of his time, to take up the occupation of an idle and pestiferous dead-beat. When he and his men were asked if they would take work at a figure which at least would provide them with food, clothing and lodging till they could do better, they contemptuously replied that they would not—that they were not "dollar a day men."

Now, right there is the place to draw the line. Living here are tax-payers and citizens who would be glad to get employment at a dollar a day to provide food and clothing for their wives and little ones; men to whom the square meals given to these "army" tramps would be a treat; residents who will be called upon to bear a share of that expense even if their homes have to be sold by the tax collector. It would be far more charitable, more humane, more just, for the city to take one from each of a half hundred families so situated and give them a good square meal occasionally, because they are deserving, than to continue to feed idle vagabonds who are unwilling to earn what they eat.

In such a situation it was unlawful to feed those men in the way it was done. A mistake has been made, and may be excused because of a preference to lean to virtue's side rather than permit anyone to suffer. But to perpetuate the mistake will be a gross outrage on the tax-payers and deserving people. This gang of men who will not work should be fed, if fed at all, only as prisoners and should be confined and made to work as such, while their insolence in attempting to levy a tribute of blankets and clothing on the citizens of Salt Lake should meet with prompt and vigorous refusal. Let them leave, work, or go to jail. As the idle vagabonds they have declared themselves to be, let them be given no aid or encouragement. Let the food and clothing go to more deserving persons. Some of these may come along with the "army" or in other ways, but there are many of that class right here, and afford excellent opportunity for that commendable kind of charity which "begins at home"

ITALY THEN AND NOW.

Don't you believe it? Then listen. Twenty-five years ago, if a traveler should come to the gates of the city of Rome with a little Testament as big as his thumb in his pocket, the gendarme would search him, and, on the principle that a little fire would do as much execution as a big one, he would take the Testament from the traveler, keep it for him till he came back, and then return it to him. Now, the Methodists, on a lot 95 feet wide and 155 feet long, in the heart of the city, right opposite the war department of the kingdom of Italy, are laying the foundations of a building that is to cost $100,000, and in it they will soon have two or three big power presses at work printing Bibles and Testaments and other religious books, by thousands; and they will also have here a school for boys and one for girls, and a church for the people. There is a very long distance between the ostracised Testament of twenty-five years ago and Italian Methodist Book Concern which is soon to be.—Chaplain Mc Cabe.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

A Wave of Light —The Sea-serpent.—Reading's 250th Anniversary.—The new Dean of Radcliffe College.—The Cigarette Bill —Decline of Biblical Knowledge in N. E.—A Peculiar Suit.—What Title for Archdeacons?

I wonder if in the millennium when people have learned the true principles of political economy we shall have back the sabbatical year, or at least something akin to it, so that nobody need to lament a "lost spring" because they had no time to sit at nature's feet and watch her weave her magical web with its gorgeous, ever-changing patterns. Just to watch the play of light and shadow, the nodding of a head of orchard-grass in the south wind, the flash of a bird's wing, the little comedies and tragedies that make up the life of the insect of a day, does not require a trip to the sea or the mountains. Nature reveals herself only to her lovers, but with them a strip of backyard and a tree or two is quite sufficient. Think for a moment that a single wave of light is only one fifty-thousandth of an inch long, and the atom which makes this wave is but one fifty-millionth of an inch in diameter! Then think how many atoms go to compose this warm, living, pulsing ocean of light in which you sit basking on this June day. Does it matter that you catch this glimpse into boundless immensity from a bit of garden patch that any giant, ancient or modern, could leap at a bound? Can you not claim four thousand miles of real estate measured against that of your antipodal neighbor, and above you the whole infinite of heaven? We can often see more looking upward—or downward—from a confined area, as the small end of a telescope reveals worlds to the eye of the astronomer.

Long Island has lost her sea-serpent that for years has been seen periodically disporting himself in the waters of the Sound. The serpent proves to have been only an immense sea-hog, whose dead body was washed ashore in the recent storm. The newspapers will miss him as a subject for items and funny paragraphs, but doubtless he has left relatives in the briny deep, one of which may be smart enough to do the masquerading act on his own account; perhaps with improvements on his predecessor.

The 250th anniversary of the settling of Reading, Mass., was observed yesterday, as well as the heavy rains which broke up the out-door part of the program would permit. "Redding" it was called in the early days, which goes to show that phonetic spelling is not entirely a modern fad, but only a return to first principles. The town had its share of Indian troubles, and raised two companies in the war against King Philip. In 1694 it was recorded that they hired a schoolmaster to teach reading and writing for three months in the year, paying him $20; but when the salary of the minister himself was paid chiefly in butter, peas, barley and Indian meal, with an occasional load of hay, it probably seemed to the parents, and no doubt to the dominie himself, a very liberal remuneration.

Radcliffe College, formerly Harvard Annex, has taken a new departure in nominating Miss Agnes Irwin, who is not a graduate of any college, for its dean. She is an accomplished and successful teacher, however, though she belongs to the old conservative school of education, which placed the development of the intellectual life, and the forming of individual character, before mere culture or scholarship. In fact, the selection is significant. It shows that there is a reaction from the worship of academic degrees, as if they could ever make, of themselves, a really cultured man or woman. It is probable that Wellesley will again choose a president from the ranks of her Faculty:—the Professor of Greek, Mrs. Irwin. She has a very different personality, in many respects, from the trio who have preceded her, and her reign may introduce an altogether different regime into the college.

A bill for prohibiting the manufacture and sale of cigarettes within the State, and making their sale to minors a criminal offense, brought out the fact that some of our representatives are much less troubled for the safety of our growing boys, who are to be the fathers of the next generation, than they are that no measure should be adopted looking towards the curtailment or injury of the tobacco business. Among those who are supposed to "represent" the mothers as well as the fathers of Massachusetts, was Mr. Hayes, of Lowell, who complained that the bill would "seriously cripple the tobacco industry of the State," and would "prevent a traffic in which hundreds of thousands of dollars are invested, as the sale of any kind of tobacco through all its 700 grades would be forbidden?" Seldom has the devil's argument—the money invested in bad business—been more baldly stated, even in the Massachusetts Legislature.

It is a sad fact that with Sunday-schools attached to every church, and tons of literature published in the way of "helps" to Bible study, real Biblical knowledge seems to be declining in New England. It was not uncommon, in former days, to meet with people who were living concordances; who could locate every chapter and verse asked for; but last Saturday's Transcript has a curious proof that this is no longer the case, in the inquiry of a correspondent who asks for the origin of the phrase, "The faith once delivered to the saints," stating that the editor of the Churchman was unable to give any satisfactory reply. While we continually hear sayings ascribed to the Bible which cannot be found there, it is doubtful whether the majority of Sunday-school scholars, to say nothing of their teachers, could readily turn to this passage so pregnant with meaning for our own times. It is not a little singular that even a man so scholarly as the poet Longfellow should, in his pretty poem, "The Birds of Killingworth," make the blunder of compounding the Herod who slaughtered the innocents with the Herod who was eaten of worms. The old-fashioned way of memorizing whole chapters, and reading the Bible through in course every year, has its advantages.

A peculiar suit is in progress in Springfield, Mass. This city has an investment company interested in "booming" real estate. The "People's Mission" engaged a lot, intending to erect a tent thereon and hold Gospel meetings. It is an aristocratic neighborhood, and the meetings were objected to so decidedly that the owner of the lot withdrew his permission. At this juncture, Mrs. Teske, a mission-worker herself, gave permission for the tent to be erected on her lawn; and now she has been cited to appear in court on the rather singular charge of allowing the mission to erect this tent on her own grounds. Mrs. Teske holds her land by a deed from the company which stipulates that no building shall be erected within fifty feet of the street. So the question at issue is whether a tent is a "building." It looks like a case of religious persecution. Meantime the meetings continue.

The Episcopalians are agitating the question, what they shall call the new archdeacons who have been recently appointed for Massachusetts. The title used in England is "venerable," but as these good men are in the prime of life they might decidedly object to the title; and "very reverend" cannot be used, as it applies only to deans. It would be an interesting subject for inquiry by what title Philip and his brother deacons were known in the early church.

ELIZABETH E. FLAGG.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, May 30, 1894.

The Senate practically placed itself on record yesterday, by a vote of 36 to 18, in favor of the annexation of Hawaii, Senator Hoar having expressly stated, when he moved to lay on the table a resolution declaring against annexation, which had been offered by Senator Vest as a substitute for the compromise resolution reported from the committee on Foreign Relations, that he did so for the purpose of giving the Senate an opportunity to vote for or against the principle of annexation without any side issue being involved. The result of this vote was an agreement among Senators to adopt a resolution simply declaring against interference with Hawaii and not mentioning annexation, and it is probable that it will be adopted by unanimous vote of the Senate before this letter is put in type. The necessity for some expression of opinion was urged upon the Senate by Mr. Kyle, who stated that he had private information from friends in Hawaii to the effect that the royalists were circulating reports that Congress would shortly declare in favor of a restoration of the Queen.

The third biennial Congress of American Physicians and Surgeons is now in session here with an attendance of more than 300 delegates.

Representative Durborow, of Illinois, who took such a conspicuous part in the Congressional contest that resulted in Congress placing itself on record in favor of Sabbath observance, by voting to close the World's Fair, or so much of it as was under control of the U. S. Government, on Sunday, is about to make another attack upon the observance of the Sabbath by the Government, and, as usual with all such attacks, it professes to be made in behalf of the workingmen. Mr. Durborow's attack is contained in a resolution, which he yesterday introduced in the House, providing that the Smithsonian Institution, the National Museum, the Botanic Gardens and the Washington monument shall be open to the public on Sundays from 9 A. M. to 4 P. M. The same men in Congress who voted against closing the World's Fair on Sunday will vote for this resolution, and for the same reason—it would be a step towards the destruction of the quiet, orderly and religious observance of Sunday, which seems to be so repugnant to some natures, and a recognition of the irreverent, boisterous, rollicking, picnicing Sunday of Continental Europe. There is no reason to believe that there has been any change of sentiment in Congress in relation to Sabbath observance, and it is not probable that the absurd claim that the opening of Government buildings on Sunday would benefit the workingmen will bring about any.

A resolution has been prepared by Representative Rayner, of Maryland, providing for an investigation of the recent refusal of the Russian government to allow Rabbi Krauskopf, an eminent Hebrew, and a highly respected citizen of Philadelphia, to enter Russian territory for the purpose of looking into the moral and political condition of the Hebrews in the Polish provinces. The request of the Rabbi was cabled to the Russian government by Secretary Gresham and the refusal was received by him. It is claimed by Mr. Rayner, and my information is that President Cleveland and Secretary Gresham agree with him, that this refusal was a direct violation of an existing treaty between the United States and Russia. Secretary Gresham will probably, regardless of action on the resolution, protest against the refusal of the Russian government to allow an American citizen the same privilege which is granted here to all Russian citizens; and there is reason to believe that he will insist upon the withdrawal of that refusal and that in the event of a declination on the part of the Russian government he may go to the extent of severing all diplomatic relations with that country. The object of the introduction of the resolution in the House is to show Russia that the sentiment of Congress is behind the state department in this matter.

Last Sunday special memorial services were held in a number of Washington churches. Every year these services appear to grow in interest, and they certainly grow in sadness. Every year the absence of prominent veterans who attended the year before is notable, and every year the stoop in the shoulders of the once erect soldiers is a little more pronounced and the steps of many a little slower and a little feebler.

Much interest is felt here in the great anti-liquor meeting that will assemble next Sunday at Prohibition Park, Staten Island, and many Washingtonians will be there to take part in the interesting and important proceedings which will be crowded into three days. Hopes are heard on all sides that a great temperance wave will be started at this gathering which will eventually sweep the continent clear of the rum traffic. God grant that they be realized.

REFORM NEWS.

FROM THE NEW ENGLAND SECRETARY.

[The following was crowded out of last week's issue.—EDITOR CYNOSURE.]

FRANKLIN, Mass., May 22, 1894.

I have been visiting the ministers and prominent men of this city, and find friends. I hope soon to return for a lecture or two in Music Hall. This, like all New England towns, is said to be in the "grip of the lodge." I have put about 300 of tract No. 13 into the houses and stores, in the hope that it may be the beginning of a counter-movement, by which some will be warned and saved.

I have met one elderly retired minister here who knew Nathaniel Colver well, and stood by his side in many a hard-fought battle on reform issues. He assured me of his presence in case a public discussion is held. A pastor who is neither pro nor con upon the lodge question assured me that in two or three instances he had resigned charges to avoid controversy when the lodge question was pressed. He was obliged to join the lodge or combat it, or resign, and he chose the latter. That is, as it seems to me, he preferred to surrender the bride of Christ to her enemies, rather than to defend her at the risk of his own popularity. The remarkable feature in his case was that after relating a number of experiences like the above, he should say, "I know nothing about the lodge." As well might a frontiersman who had repeatedly been driven from his home by Indians say, "I know nothing about Indians, because I am a white man and never belonged to any of their tribes."

While waiting for a train I will add a few incidents of encouragement, showing that we do not labor in vain.

A young man dropped into one of our meetings and was greatly surprised at what he learned about the lodge mysteries. Going directly to his church prayer-meeting he gave an account of what he had heard. As his is what is known as a "popular church," it is needless to add that a "sensation" followed. At the close of the meeting, this faithful witness became the object of deep solicitude. Venerable men felt constrained to warn him of the rashness of his course and the danger to which he was needlessly exposing himself, assuring him at the same time that he "knew nothing about it." Be it said, to the praise of the young man, that he stood firm, and his pastor who did know something about it did not condemn him. Query: Why, if Masonry, as Dr. Lorimer avers, is preferable to the church, should this young man or any one else incur the displeasure of Christian (?) members by speaking the simple truth?

An impression seems to have gone abroad that I am opposed to the "works of darkness," and strangers often approach me on the subject. At the close of a Monday morning ministers' meeting, a lady approached me seeking light. Inquiry disclosed the fact that her husband had taken 32 degrees in Scottish Rite Masonry. He had once been active as a Christian, but latterly his interest had declined until he seldom attended the church. It was the familiar story, told with tearful eyes out of a sad heart,—a loss of sympathy and an indescribable shadow that had fallen upon the home where once all was bright. She was glad to learn that the information she desired was within her reach, and, calling later at our home, she listened attentively while Mrs. Stoddard and myself "turned on the light." After asking many questions and obtaining a supply of tracts, she went on her way, assuring us that if possible she should induce her husband to accompany her on a second visit for further information. Will you permit me, in this connection, to inform your patrons that "the lodge is open on the third degree for work" at 218 Columbus Ave., Boston, every day in the week except Sabbath. ☞No tyler at the door to keep off "cowans and eavesdroppers," and no admission fee demanded. Old men, cripples and women welcomed.

I am in receipt of a renunciation of more than average ability. It is accompanied by an explanation, and with permission to publish if I deem it wise. The writer has had a sad experience, but he is free once more, and willing to trust God and take the consequences of a thorough exposure. His friends, however, would dissuade him, fearing the effect upon his business and reputation. Are these fears groundless; or do the lodges seek to enforce "secrecy and silence" by defaming the character and deranging the business of the member who leaves and exposes them? Can any of your readers furnish authentic information on this point of "lodge benevolence?"

It would seem that the two epidemics which threaten Boston are near of kin; at least, those who have them specially in charge resort to the same methods. One is physical, and the other moral, and both, alike, are kept apart from the common people. A man known to have the smallpox is hustled off to the pest-house, and his nearest friends debarred from all personal contact with him. A man who has been infected with the desire to become an A. P. A. is taken to some secure place and put under bonds to "keep dark" and strike the object of his hate with a hidden hand. A friend stopped me on the street to ask for information about this anti-Romanist order, saying, "I have been repeatedly urged to join, and they tell me that 100 candidates are to be initiated to-night." Several have asked me for information, which of course I am glad to give.

I was asked by a gentleman on the street to invest a nickle in an anti-Catholic paper. Pointing to his secret society badge, I said: "That tells me that you are in the juvenile department of the Jesuitical system, and I advise you to keep that thing out of sight if you expect intelligent opponents to the Jesuitical system to patronize you." This led to a "passage at arms," and I soon found myself confronted by a standard-bearer of the A. P. A.'s. He declared himself a Christian, a Protestant, a patriot, etc., and when driven to the alternative of defining his position, he said: "If compelled to give up my religion or my loyalty to my society, I would hold to my patriotism every time, and let my religion go." At this point several sympathizing listeners dropped quietly out as I made the application.

My confidence is in God, and my exhortation to our friends is, stand by your principles at any cost.

HARTFORD, Conn., May 24, 1894.—"A contentious woman" is typical of the "continual dropping" that has intercepted my purpose to call on the clergymen of this city to-day. As Weatogue is near, I have decided to lay our good brother Philip Bacon under tribute until the storm is overpast.

At North Uxbridge I was made at home with Bro. John B. White, and with him enjoyed the prayer-meeting in the Baptist church. Pastor Hopkins was very cordial, and at the close several of his members spoke words of sympathy and encouragement.

At Blackstone I had time to distribute tracts before taking a train to Putnam. After scattering the seed in the stores, shops and many homes in Putnam, and being refreshed in the inner and outer man at the home of Hon. Geo. Buck, I took a train for Willimantic, knowing that a hearty welcome awaited me at the home of Bro. J. A. Conant. Here I found Bro. Austin pushing on the battle against sin and Satan with tokens of God's favor upon his work. I spoke in the evening, at his request, and in the testimony meeting that followed, a young German girl, who was born and educated in the Romish faith, but who had found Christ in the meetings, gave a faithful witness for her Saviour.

Bro. Conant and a few earnest souls keep up meetings in Mission Hall and are doing a quiet but royal work for the Master. Such men are a blessing to the world as well as to the towns where they live.

KEENE, N. H., May 28, 1894.—An hour's detention here enables me to sketch a retrospect of the last four days. Bro. F. L. Sprague, whom I had hoped to meet, is to-day in Boston. His estimable wife was cordial and gladdened my heart with good news from Brother and Sister Powers. I met here, on the street, H. H. Darling, M. D., who accepted a tract and assured me of his radical and thorough aversion to all secret orders.

I was the guest of our uncompromising friend, Henry E. Hunter, at Hinsdale, over the Sabbath. Nothing was lacking on his part, or on the part of his energetic wife, to add to my comfort. Their kindness will long be held in grateful remembrance.

Accepting an invitation, I spoke for Bro. Smith in the Congregational church in the morning, and again, briefly, in the evening. Pastor Smith is on his fifth year of service with his flock, and a fine congregation at both morning and evening services testified to happy relations between pastor and people.

There are three Protestant churches in Hinsdale, and a call on each of the resident pastors was a source of encouragement.

At Weatogue I found Bro. Bacon "broken up and moved out," but his zeal had not suffered the slightest dimunition in the transition. With his horse and carriage he took me to Hartford, meeting on the way our good friend, E. A. Whiting, who appreciates the Cynosure and promptly renewed, to avoid the loss of a single number.

Our second effort to meet the ministers in Hartford was as unsuccessful as the first. We did succeed, however, in finding one colored brother, who was like the embryo butterfly, all wound up in his lodge cocoon and not disposed to cut his way out; and an M. E. pastor, whose house was quarantined on account of diphtheria. Several calls furnished us with the names of parties who have noted and condemned the work of the lodge.

